NEGRO FARMER
FATALLY SHOT
BY ANGRY MOB

Charged With Attempted Assault on White Girls

ONCE WAS SAVED FROM LYNCHING

Body of Negro Found at Scene where Girls Reported They Were Attacked April 10th

Royston, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—Lunt Shaw, Burley negro farmer once saved from lynching through the pleas of an aged judge, was shot to death by a mob of 40 men, eight hours before he was to have gone to trial on a charge of attempted criminal assault today.

His body was found at dawn tied to a pine tree in a creek bottom near Colbert, Ga., his home. Pierced by shotgun, pistol and rifle bullets, he died at the scene where two white girls reported he attempted to attack them after their motor car broke down April 10.

The mob climaxing a series of demonstrations against the 45-year-old negro, which once required the intervention of national guardsmen, broke into Royston's one-story jail about midnight, cornered Night Chief of Police W. A. Dickerson and smashed a lock on the prisoner's cell.

"I couldn't see exactly what happened," Dickerson said, "they just told me they wanted the negro. He didn't say a word when they dragged him out."

The jail here was the third in which he had been held since he was identified by the girls. First he was taken to jail at Danielsville, Ga., en route he stabbed two officers and was shot twice in return.

A mob of 100 men formed there and battered some bricks from the jail in attempts to reach him. Superior Judge Berry T. Moseley, 74, left a sick bed to warn the throng against a lynching and deterred the leaders until a national guard unit took the negro in custody.

K. W. Cobb Says
Leaf Plants Ready
Be Set This Week

Tobacco Sales Supervisor Observes On Trip In East That Many Tobacco Plants Already Set

K. W. Cobb, sales supervisor of the Greenville tobacco market, said today following a trip through Eastern North Carolina, that he observed that 15 or 20 farmers started setting out tobacco plants last week.

Mr. Cobb added that he saw many beds where the plants were ready to be set out.

The supervisor said there is considerable more blue mold now than there was a week ago, but added indications are there will be plenty of plants for setting out this year's crop.

Declaring that he talked to from 1,000 to 1,500 farmers, Mr. Cobb said he heard of only two instances where growers are planning to increase their crop over the 70 per cent base acreage.

He added that farmers are not far behind with their crops as might be expected, due to the cold and rainy weather this spring. He said farmers are practically through planting their cotton and corn and now are ready to devote their full time to the tobacco crop. He said he observed farmers about completed planting cotton and corn last week.

Pitt Man Injured In Grimesland Accident

C. V. Cannon of Ayden was in Pitt General hospital today suffering painful, if not serious, injuries he received last night in an automobile wreck near Grimesland. Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the wreck, said Cannon was en route to Greenville, following a truck, when the truck swerved another automobile going in the direction of Washington, driven by a Mr. Walters. The Walters' car then collided with the Cannon automobile.

The truck continued without stopping. Mr. Cannon was brought to the hospital here, where an X-ray was expected to be made to determine if he suffered any internal injuries. Two occupants of the other car are reported to be in a Washington hospital, not seriously injured, however.

NAZI GENERAL
GIVEN POWERS

Fascist Near Addis Ababa; Banks of France Block Acts

(By Associated Press) Reichsmarschall, April 28.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler gave additional powers to his right hand man, General Herman Wilhelm Goering, today in a move to curb the power of Germany's economic leader, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht.

An official edict announced the Reich air minister and Premier of Prussia would assume the post of supreme dictator over all raw material and foreign exchange questions, previously supervised by Schacht.

This move was seen in certain quarters as the result of Schacht's criticism of Nazi ideas and his failure to rally the support of industrial leaders.

Financial circles in France reported a plan drawn up by the bank of France to curtail any action to reform it by the anticipated left majority in the new parliament.

Rome advices from the Northern Italian front in Ethiopia reported the fascist army was more than half way on its march from Dessie to Addis Ababa. A minor engagement was fought by soldiers of a motorized Italian column, with Ethiopian irregulars with the native defenders returning to the hills after a short skirmish.

On the southern front the city of Sasa Baneh was surrounded by the fascist army, the Rome reports said, and its capture was expected momentarily after three columns were said to have converged on the city.

Lying Plans For Future
Control Of Tobacco Crop

J. E. Winslow, leader in the movement to secure control legislation for the 1936 tobacco crop, said today "we are laying plans now for future years," and added that consideration was being given to possible means of action this fall if tobacco sells for prices below the cost of yield.

Mr. Winslow, however, said emphatically leaders had not given up hope for control of this year's crop. At a meeting in Raleigh yesterday of the tobacco advisory committee it was decided to send Claude T. Hall of Wooddale, chairman of the committee, and H. P. Foxhall of Rocky Mount, president of the Eastern Carolina Warehousemen's Association, to Columbia, S. C. in attempts to have the South Carolina legislature enact a bill which would not be dependent on similar action in Georgia.

The State Farm Bureau president said that Governor Ehringhaus' criticism that the lead was being taken by a small group and not by the farmers themselves was being met through the selection of three leading farmers in each tobacco growing county, with a meeting of

JAMES FARLEY
SEES CHANGES IN CONVENTION

Predicts Two-Thirds Rule Will Be Abolished in June

SAYS PLATFORM WILL BE BRIEF

Declares John E. Mack "Good Guess" To Nominate President Roosevelt

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—James J. Farley, Democratic national chairman, predicted today that the two-thirds rule would be abolished by the 1936 Democratic national convention at Philadelphia in June.

"My own guess is that the two-thirds rule will be abrogated at this convention," Farley told a press conference. "I haven't seen nor heard anything unfavorable to such a move so far."

Farley was questioned about the 1936 platform.

"The platform will be as short if not shorter than the last one," he said.

The postmaster general said John E. Mack, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was a "good guess" to nominate President Roosevelt. He said the nominations probably would be seconded by each of the 48 states.

Farley predicted the reelection of Senator George Norris, Republican independent, in Nebraska next fall but denied reports of a plan to throw Democratic support to Senator Couzens, Republican independent of Michigan.

J. A. MEWBORN
ON WAY HOME

Green County Man Had Been Missing Since Sunday

After an alarm had been spread today that J. Alton Mewborn, of Snow Hill, had been missing since Sunday night, word was received from Snow Hill that the young man had telephoned that he was all right and was enroute home. Definite information as to his whereabouts and the reason for his absence was not given in the report.

This morning Greene County officials visited this city and asked assistance of city and county officers in locating the 24-year-old young man, son of former Sheriff N. U. Mewborn, of Snow Hill. Young Mewborn came to this county Sunday night to visit a young lady in the Simpson community but had not returned home although he left the young lady's home at 11 o'clock Sunday night with a statement that he was returning to his home.

The officers stated that the young man was of good habits and never remained away from home overnight and when he did not return search was begun for him yesterday. Officers in nearby counties late yesterday and today had been given descriptions of the young man together with the car he was driving when last seen and the fact.

GOOD WEEKEND
FOR M'DONALD

Of 63 Ballots Received 43 Went For Forsyth Man

It was a good week-end for Dr. Ralph McDonald so far as votes in the Reflector five-county poll on the gubernatorial race is concerned. Of the 63 ballots received since the tabulation in Saturday's Reflector McDonald received 43; Hoy received 12; Graham received 8 and McRae none. Today's tabulation of the 200 votes received so far show McDonald with a clear majority in Pitt County, a majority in Martin County, a majority in Bertie County, a plurality in Beaufort County and an even break in Hyde County having received just exactly the same number of votes from that county as received by the other counties combined.

The question of whether or not a ballot would vote for the long-haired Clyde Hoy was answered in the ballots received from Pitt county yesterday when one voter giving his classification as a "barber" cast his vote for Hoy. On the whole the ballots received during the week-end came from the rural districts of the five counties most of them bearing the occupation designation as farming. Among the other classifications a bookkeeper voted for Hoy, a filling station operator voted for Graham, and a State Highway and Public Works commission worker voted for McDonald. Both Graham and McDonald received one female vote each.

For the past two Thursdays The Reflector has mailed 500 ballots to the counties of Pitt, Martin, Bertie, Beaufort and Hyde and an additional 500 will be mailed each Thursday for the next three weeks. While The Reflector is polling these five counties other newspapers in the state are polling the counties in their sections and on Thursday, May 7, the first tabulation of the votes so far in the 100 counties of the state will be published in The Reflector.

Since the poll was announced by the group of newspapers several weeks ago it has created much interest and now it is likewise creating some kicks among the supporters of the various candidates where efforts are being made by some to discredit the poll by charging that fake ballots are being voted to put certain candidates ahead.

At the outset of the poll the newspapers had anticipated such kick from the candidates who might run behind in the voting and careful attention was given to the sending out of the ballots to each twelfth voter on the registration books and likewise careful check is being kept on incoming ballots to see that no fake ballots find their way into the tabulations.

The newspapers in conducting this poll are doing so solely for the purpose of giving their readers the news as it is regardless of how it may affect the race of any candidate. When the final tabulations are made the poll should represent a cross section, vote of the state and should present an accurate picture of the true political situation in the state.

Mr. Winslow expressed much optimism over the South Carolina situation, saying that he felt there was a strong probability that the legislature would enact a compact which could be applied this year. He added he had hopes Governor Ehringhaus would call a session in South Carolina takes favorable action on a workable compact for this year.

Much Excitement Caused
When Boy Tries Forgery

Teller Detects Forged Signature, Chases Youth

A 15-year-old boy caused a lot of excitement this morning when he attempted to pass a forged check at Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, fled when police were called and was captured several minutes later seven or eight blocks from the bank after a bank teller and several persons on the street had given chase.

The good, first presented a check for $31.00 at the window of the Dickinson Avenue Branch of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company. When told by the teller that the check was drawn on the downtown bank he made his way there and presented the check at the window being served by Teller Howard Moye. Moye immediately recognized the signature as a forgery and told the lad to wait just a minute while he telephoned the bookkeeping department to see if the check was good. As Moye picked up the telephone to call the police the boy fled from the bank. Moye immediately gave chase and as he reached the street he shouted to bystanders to "catch that boy." Several persons on the street joined in the chase while others came from nearby stores to find out what was happening. The boy rounded the corner on Fourth street, ran through the alley behind the stores leading to Third street, and continued on his way down Cotanche street with his pursuers gaining ground on him and likewise gaining numbers as they went.

The boy was caught at First street and turned over to police. Chief George Clark said early this afternoon that he was taking the boy back to his home this afternoon and that charges would be preferred against him in juvenile court.

The check, made payable to cash, was drawn on the account of Mrs. W. A. Forbes and the boy endorsed it as Joe Kayton.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
News Behind The News

Washington
By RAY TUCKER

IRRITATED: Harry Hopkins and Harold Ickes are shadow-boxing themselves into another fight that may force Referee Roosevelt to ring the bell.

Though wordless and bloodless, the two spenders—and their chauntistically loyal subordinates—are walking around Washington with WPA and PWA chips on their shoulders. Mr. Hopkins grows privately that Mr. Ickes is engineering the Congressional junta for allocation of $700,000,000 of the relief funds to public works. He bases a suspicion on the fact that Arizona Senator Hayden heads it, and Mr. Ickes used to summer in the Southwest.

Another suspicious circumstance in Harry's mind is that Mr. Ickes' Senator—"Ham" Lewis of Illinois—authors the resolution for an investigation of WPA. The head referee has also listened to whisperings that his rival has been visiting Capitol Hill several times a week since the row began. Putting all these plots together, Mr. Hopkins discerns a Cabinet member underneath the anti-WPA woodpile.

FEUD: Mr. Ickes fumes because Mr. Hopkins is slowly transforming the WPA into a PWA. Every day the give-em-work-in-a-hurry apostle is dishing out funds for heavy, long-time construction projects.

For instance, Mr. Hopkins recently contracted to build a sewage system in an Indiana city. Under his arrangement the government will furnish 82 per cent of the funds, whereas PWA requires the local community to put up 45 per cent. Total expenditures will amount to only $600,000 under WPA as against twice that figure under PWA, although Uncle Sam pays the same in both instances. Yet the President shuts down on these Ickesian projects because they don't.

House Acts to Aid Corporations Having Deficits

ACTION TAKEN ON VOICE VOTE

Hill Instructed to Offer Amendment To Wipe Out Lag in First Year's Income

Washington, April 28.—(AP)—The house today gave tentative approval to the heart of the new tax bill—a system of rates to apply to corporation's income graduated according to proportions of earnings withheld from distribution to stockholders.

The first change to be voted designed to governor more favorable treatment to corporations with deficits was accepted by a voice vote without a single negative vote.

Proposed by Chairman Samuel B. Hill (D. Wash.) of the ways and means tax subcommittee it would reduce from 22 1-2 to 15 per cent, the rates of corporations would pay for portions of their income needed to meet deficits.

The full committee, just before the house assembled, had authorized Hill to offer the amendment. It was authorized also to submit.

IS OUR STRAW VOTE POLL FAIR?

Since The Reflector and a group of other newspapers of this state began a state-wide poll of the gubernatorial race many questions have been asked, and as was expected, supporters of the candidates who are now running behind are pointing out possible defects in our system of handling this poll in order that they might disclaim the poll being correct to any extent.

When the poll was first announced some of McDonald's supporters advised us that it was a scheme started by some of the upstate papers to elect Hoey and that the papers in the east had been hoodwinked into the scheme. Now that McDonald is running ahead in the poll the Hoey followers come back with the charge that the ballots are not being properly distributed and that the published returns are not a true indication of the sentiment of the voters. The newspapers entering this poll expected just such criticisms, so these kicks on the part of ardent supporters of the candidates is not stopping us in our efforts to find out the true sentiment of the voters of the state in order that we might give our readers the news as it is.

One charge has come that one voter received two ballots. While selecting every twelfth name from the registration book, despite our efforts to prevent duplication, it is possible that the same name might have been placed on our list twice, for in many instances we found the same person or persons with the same initials appearing more than one time on the same registration book, but even if this error did occur it could not have occurred enough times to make any material difference in the voting in the poll. Another charge is that because the registration books did not have all the voters designated as to party affiliation it is possible some of the ballots might have been sent to Republicans. Admitting that this error could have occurred we venture the assertion that a smaller percentage of our ballots went to Republicans than there will be in the Democratic primary, for it is generally believed here that every primary many Republicans do vote. There is another charge that it is possible for someone, desirous of having their candidate lead, to have duplicate ballots prepared and get them voted in the poll. So far The Reflector has received no ballot that was not sent out by this newspaper, and we can readily recognize any fake ballot that comes to us as we have a definite method of identifying our ballots despite the fact that we cannot tell from what voter it is received.

We repeat again that the purpose of this gubernatorial poll is to get at the facts from a news value, and let the poll help or hurt any candidate it may, and the newspapers taking part in this poll are still relying on its accuracy and upon the final returns hope to forecast definitely the outcome of the June 6 primary in advance of the actual voting.

The first state-wide tabulation will be published in this paper Thursday, May 7.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

put men to work fast enough. It's been the official reason for discontinuing PWA.

The quarrel offers a perfect picture of New Deal dissension and disorderliness. Mr. Hopkins never has sat down with Mr. Ickes to discuss segregation of relief from public works. President Roosevelt has not summoned the two men for a heart-to-heart talk of their differences. He has not given Congress any definite word on where he stands. So the feud fans on merrily.

HURDLES: Herr Hitler is a tough customer to down—on the economic as well as the military and diplomatic fronts.

Der Fuehrer's sharpest need at the moment is cash. He can get it only by selling German stuff abroad, and the United States offers a vast market. But here he bumps into two serious barriers. Secretary Hull has terminated the most-favored-nation clause with respect to Germany because Hitler won't talk a reciprocal tariff agreement and insists on barter. American Hebrews have declared an economic war on the Nazis, and in some localities they are boycotting merchants who handle made-in-Germany articles. It is a more serious movement than is generally realized—and well organized.

Despite these hurdles German exports to this country increased for the first 1936 quarter over those for the same period last year. They showed a slight increase in March over February. The explanation seems to be that German toys and novelties are again capturing the American market. Tiny saints and Santa Claus are helping rearm Germany.

SPEAKERS: Jim Farley has named his oratorical backfield for the presidential campaign, although he's holding them under wraps for the present. The National Chairman's "four horsemen" must match the 1932 speakers who won't play this time—Al Smith, Newton Baker, John W. Davis, J. P. Morgan, etc. Jim's first-string quartet will consist of President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes, Secretary Wallace and Attorney General Cummings. He has already assigned them their positions. FDR will be the "roving fulcrum." Mr. Cummings, nasavivacious and conservative, will swing through the East. Mr. Wallace will barnstorm the farm country. Mr. Ickes, a Bull Moose, will knock 'em dead in Pennsylvania. Joe Guffy's favorite orators, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and the Northwest.

The New Dealers are taking no chances on being outdone. Besides these headlineers, there will be a chorus of male and female voices. Even White House secretaries—masculine and feminine—are taking elocution lessons.

CHIEF: President Roosevelt will not rebuild his famous secretariat because of the death of Counselor Louis Howe until after the election. Nobody can fill the vacancy, and choosing between M. J. McInyre and "Steve" Early would be embarrassing to their friends and boss.

Although Mr. Howe will be missed, he had not served actively for more than a year. He was credited with more political acumen than he really possessed. He was the man behind the administration's most successful achievement—the speedy establishment of CCC camps—but he was also the inspiration for one of its worst flops so far—Passamaquoddy. Sometimes he didn't say "No," although a negative outlook was his forte.

Jim Farley hit it right long ago in discussing the White House set-up—"Don't fool yourself. The real politician in this crowd is the President himself. You won't see his like for a generation—two generations!"

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN
FLEXIBLE: If Ogden Mills expects to write the monetary plank in this year's Republican platform—as his friends say he does—he is due for a shock. Men high up in party councils predict that the platform will not say anything about returning to a fixed gold standard and will leave the door open for the Republican party to tackle managed money in its own

Gypsy Weather

BY MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS: Dirk Joris has taken Elmor Fleming home from the Hudson. Elmor has told Dirk's older brother, Rupert, that she cannot marry him because of his driving in the pouring rain to a tent show across the river, where he is to meet Elmor's cousin, Isabel, and some others. While Dirk chats with a gifted young circus rider, billed as "Firefly," a horse falls on a clown, seriously injuring him. They are carrying out the clown.

Chapter Five TO THE DEFENSE

NOW they were carrying the clown. A giant of a man was carrying him as if he had been a child. The clown's head hung back heavily. His gay clothes were muddy, and there was a bright red stain on his little tight white cap. He looked thin and young, almost as young as the girl who ran beside him.

Into the van the giant carried the clown, but when the girl would have followed them the man shut the doors, remaining inside. The girl stood on the steps of the van, beating on the doors.

"Let me in!" she sobbed. "Let me in!"

The exit of the tent had been closed behind Dirk. The crowd had retreated inside, and the noises of van while she was in it. He said to Madame Chowdhury, "There's no one here."

"I know," buttoning the flap. "But they are on the way. I see all things. Besides, when he comes to," nodding toward the man lying outside, "he'll call a cop. You are brave," she smiled. "Stay with me. You don't understand. He will call a cop. Or maybe he will pull a gun."

"I suppose he'll pull it on her," said Dirk. "On her? . . . On who?" asked Madame Chowdhury. So she didn't know everything. "On Firefly," he answered, unbuttoning the flap.

"Ah," said Madame Chowdhury, nodding sagely, as if she had made the discovery by looking into his depths. "So it was for her you knocked him down. You're as big a fool as Pipolo. No, don't go out there. She will lock the door. She is safe."

"PIPOLO?" repeated Dirk. Thank God for locks on vans. "Pipolo, yes. She will always make trouble—wherever there are fools." "If Pipolo is the clown," said Dirk, "he won't fight for her tonight."

"I know," said Madame. "Did I not read this accident in the stars?"

Dirk made contact with a bulbous nose.

the show had begun again, the band—louder than ever—the applause. Dirk stood watching the girl in her long green cloak, hearing the sound of her fists on the van doors, and her wild sobbing cry. Why wouldn't they let her in? Perhaps the thing was too terrible for her to see. Perhaps if he spoke to her he might persuade her, induce her to come away.

He was crossing the lot, when the doors of the van reopened. The girl who had stepped back before them, started in. Instantly the figure of the man blocked her way. In the lights of the van Dirk saw him looking at the girl, saw her striving to press past him, matching her strength against his.

Suddenly, as one might eject a kitten, he grasped her arm, and flung her from the step. Then with an oath he stepped down.

She had fallen sideways, landing against the wall of a nearby tent. And now with equal suddenness the man was sprawled at her feet, and Dirk, his fist smarting from contact with that bulbous nose, was saying to the girl,

"Are you hurt? Did he hurt you?" She looked down at the man, then up at Dirk. There was something wild and breathless about her. Instantly she was on the step of the van, beating again on the doors. They opened and she went in. The doors closed.

DIRK was aware that Madame Chowdhury was looking out the back door of her tent where the girl had fallen. She stood watching the man who was rising slowly, shaking his head as if gnats or cobwebs bothered him. She leaned over, appeared to discover who he was.

"Well, I'll be damned," said Madame Chowdhury.

Looking up she saw Dirk, and widened the aperture in which she stood.

"Come in here," she said, and as Dirk made no move to obey, "I think the person you were looking for is here."

Dirk went in, though he wanted to wait for the girl to come out of the van. He wanted to guard her way in future.

Did I not read it in the stars, and warn them?"

"You could have read it in the mud," said Dirk. "If Pipolo fights for her . . ."

"Pipolo is the trapezist," she answered. "She makes nothing but trouble, that girl. I warned Torrobin how it would be. And now—you."

She laid a hand on Dirk's shoulder. Torrobin was the man lying outside. Dirk had some gifts of divination himself. He wanted to ask her about Torrobin, about the girl. But he knew, looking into her face, that she would tell him nothing—or lies. The girl . . . She was no trouble-maker. She was lovely. Out of place here.

Madame Chowdhury's eyes were close to his.

"Now I understand the cards," she said, and pointed to them arranged about the lamp. Her finger touched the King of Hearts.

"You!"

Dirk murmured that she flattered him. "But do you see? You will get a message soon—the message from the stars. All that you desire will follow, when you heed that message. A woman will bring it. A fair woman. Very pale. Very fair."

She opened her arms, closing her eyes.

"Ask me more. Ask me of all things. Past. Future."

There was a sound in the lot, the sound of a door opening. Dirk had turned toward it when a clear voice came from the front of the tent.

"Am I a good swimmer, or am I?" It was Natalie Page, her red hair wet with rain, her cloak of pink taffeta flying away from her damp, orrandle ruffles. She wrinkled her nose, holding out a pink-slippered foot for Dirk's inspection. There was mud on it.

"Freddy wouldn't carry me," she explained. "He preferred to carry Isabel. I told him I was going to tell you."

"You should have stayed on the planks," said Madame Chowdhury. She was standing with her forehead pressed on the Queen of Spades.

Dirk sees, tomorrow, a ghostly figure in the rain.

or even at—the convention. All he wanted—as these sources get the story—was assurance that Borah does not bolt the party if Landon does win at Cleveland. In exchange, he inferred that Governor Landon and his supporters would think of no one they would rather have write the monetary and agricultural planks in the Republican platform than the old master from Idaho.

The dope is that Borah was non-committal—but impressed. He is quite susceptible to a touch of praise. If his hostility to Landon is modified—which appears probable—it removes the most serious obstacle to the Kansas nomination. Astute observers agree that this is one of the shrewdest strokes the Landon promoters have tried.

BIGGEST BRITISH LINERS BEAR QUEEN'S NAME

London (AP)—Britain's two mightiest liners bear the names of queens.

The Queen Mary is the first large British liner to be named for a living queen, but the Berengaria, runner-up in size, was named for the wife of Richard The Lion Hearted, who reigned from 1157 to 1199.

When the 52,000-ton German liner Imperator became British property after the World war, it was decided to re-christen her in honor of a British queen. As the names of the Cunard liners traditionally ended in "a," officials had to go all the way back to Queen Berengaria to find a fitting title.

Determined to drive his father's car, Josef purchased a false moustache which he thought would make him look at least 17, the age limit for driving.

Everything went well until an unsuspecting traffic policeman signalled a halt and Josef sneezed right in front of him.

The glue gave way and the moustache fell in his lap. Josef's father paid the fine.

LEISURE TIME CLUB SUBJECT

Rotarians Discuss Problem of Children in Greenville

By WYATT BROWN

The problem of the use of the leisure of the underprivileged children of the city was attacked last night at the Rotary meeting the appointment of a committee composed of Rufus Keel, Gus Fleischman, and Herbert ReBarker to take two weeks to report back with definite recommendations. Discussion leading to the appointment of the committee indicated this was to be the first step preparatory to calling the matter to the attention of all the other civic clubs in the community.

This grew out of a plea made by Captain Baker, head of the Salvation Army in Greenville, for help for the taking care of the underprivileged children of West Greenville. Captain Baker told the Rotarians that the Salvation Army was working at this problem all over the world. With the closing of school for the summer children of parents who work or are without jobs and thus lacking funds will have leisure on their hands which will supply the idleness the Devil uses as his tool. Captain Baker said. He offered the suggestion that a playground with organization of supervised play would solve the problem.

With a plea that Greenville recognize the seriousness of the problem and not treat it casually, Herbert ReBarker called attention to the great number of colored children who likewise are underprivileged. Dr. ReBarker said that he observed more loafing on street corners in the business district of Greenville by youngsters than he had ever seen anywhere else and that these youngsters should be kept away from town.

Attention was then called to the responsibility of the parents for the children by Steve Wilkerson. He, too, said the children needed to be kept busy.

Following this there was a period of light entertainment and the regular time for adjourning arrived by J. B. Kittrell said he saw the problem of the underprivileged children needed something to be doing. Then followed a real discussion with Gilbert Combs, Kinchen Cobb, J. E. Winslow, Karl Pace and Rufus Keel contributing remarks calling the seriousness of the problem to the attention of the Rotarians and asking for definite action. The suggestion to raise money was made. It was passed up in favor of the suggestion that definite facts and plans should be got together before money was given. At which point the committee was appointed with the men chosen recommended by the Boy's Work committee composed of Karl Pace and Yo Walker.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of singing, tap dancing, jokes and whistling. James Dudley Simpson acted as master of ceremonies and presented Mr. Page in two popular songs. Miss Sara Whyte Vines was next presented in singing a solo and whistling one chorus. Oscar Speed was presented in a brief routine of tap dancing. James Dudley himself sang one popular number.

Guests of the club were Louis Bullock, a visiting Rotarian from Goldsboro, Earle Sellers and Reynolds Combs. The attendance prize was won by Johnny Overton and given by Walter Dresbach. The inter-city meet to be held by Englehard, Greenville and Washington Rotary Clubs in Washington May 7th, was called to the Rotarians' attention. The program was presented ed by Yo Walker, chairman of the boys' work committee. The meeting was presided over by Bill Lee, president of the club.

MANY ENDORSE PEACE ACTION

Local Citizens Back Sale of Peace Bonds in Greenville

The local Peace Bond committee reports that leading citizens of Greenville, sensing the need of a more adequate movement in the United States, are lending splendid cooperation to the sale of Peace Bonds, scheduled to begin tomorrow for a three-day city-wide canvass.

Statements secured from those individuals by the committee, indicate a most generous response on the part of the citizenry generally when the canvassers take to the field. In each case the statement appearing below represents bond purchase.

W. E. Hooker declared that "there's an old saying that people get out of a thing what they put into it. I am a convinced believer that the reason the forces for peace have always lagged behind, letting war win our support, is because we have been indifferent to any sort of peace action, preferring to wait on some mysterious powers of the gods to bring everything out all right in the end. In this campaign that is being put on now there is offered every individual an opportunity to do something definite, practical and helpful to turn the tide away from war; contributing of our means to these national peace groups which will use our money wisely, sanely and effectively. I am mighty glad I can have a part in this campaign as a bond purchaser and an endorser of the local group's action in this regard."

Said J. S. Ficklen: "I have bought a Peace Bond and heartily endorse the local Council's action in putting on this sale." From J. H. Rose came this statement: "I have bought a Peace Bond and I am a worker for peace in America, and hope to live to see the day when the whole world will become Peace-Conscious. I am not in favor of America disarming at the present time. There are too many mad-dogs running around in Europe and Asia. Until these mad-dogs have lost their leadership I believe America should be in a position to protect herself. And, incidentally, the National Council for Prevention of War, which is sponsoring this nationwide sale of Peace Bonds, has never stood on any platform for reduction of armaments except by international agreement."

N. O. Warren asserted that "money given for the strengthening of the peace movement is money given for the prevention of war. I am proud to be a Peace Bond purchaser, and urge my fellow-business men to do likewise—on the sale ground, if on no other ground—that war does not pay, and peace does—and would—if the peoples of this world were to impress that strongly enough on their governments. Money talks! Let it talk for peace!"

Stated F. C. Harding: "There is no greater task confronting our people than the task of organizing peace sentiment, peace votes and peace money. The world—and our own nation—must be halted in its mad rush toward war, and must uproot old ways of thinking and acting about this problem. I am more than proud to be a purchaser of a Peace Bond, and fully and heartily endorse the purposes and objectives of the National Council for Prevention of War, which is trying the peoples of our nation—a chance to answer that question which each of us so helplessly asks: 'But what can I do for peace?'"

In addition to these reactions from prominent local citizens, the local Peace Bond committee also announces that at the canvassers' meeting last night twenty-three canvassers were enlisted for the three-day drive, including five district leaders: Mrs. N. T. Emmett, Mrs. S. J. Everett, Mrs. A. A. Henderson, Mrs. Lee Moore and Mrs. Lyman Ormond. Though no goal has been set, the workers are expecting a most enthusiastic response from their fellowtownspeople.
