REQUESTS AID
FOR LEGATION
OF AMERICANS

SAVAGE ATTACK
IS WARDED OFF

Urgent Appeal Sent to State Department to Request Assistance of British

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—After beating off one vicious attack by Ethiopian bandits today, the American minister to Ethiopia today told Washington, "The situation is getting worse" and appealed for British assistance to protect America's legation.

Evidencing the danger threatening the tiny groups of Americans still holding the legation against marauders was the serious wounding of two native women in the servants' quarters.

London, May 4.—(AP)—The British government today asked Sir Sidney Bard Barton, its minister to Ethiopia, to do everything possible to help the United States legation at Addis Ababa.

Sir Sidney, whose 150 sikh, the famous British fighters from India, at his command, was expected to attempt a real release of the embassies of the American legation, which was reported surrounded by a mob of armed Ethiopians.

The British government instructions were conveyed to Sir Sidney by wireless after suggestion of Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, the United States envoy to the Court of St. James.

An official of the admiralty said that Hailie Selassie, whose flight from Addis Ababa brought the present chaotic condition in the capital had sailed from Djibouti, French Somaliland today aboard H. M. S. Ship Enterprise.

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—A handful of Americans, aided by native servants, today held against a legation at Addis Ababa against a savage attack by Ethiopian bandits. The story of how the marauders were repulsed was wired to the state department by Cornelius Van H. Engert, minister whose wife narrowly escaped bullets that whistled through the legation compound.

But six hours after this clash Engert radioed an urgent appeal to the state department to request assistance of the British government, in holding America's legation against its other, he did not say whether another attack appeared imminent.

Saying he could not get messages through to the British legation, Engert asked that London try to reach its minister by radio and say that with the assistance of a few of Britain's Indian troops and one Lewis machine gun the American legation could be held "if Italians arrived within a few days."

The state department immediately established contact with London by trans-Atlantic telephone.

A heavy bandit fire came from behind trees and fences as the attack was directed at two widely separated gates between 8:45 and 9 o'clock in the morning. Bullets peppered the back yard where Mrs. Engert and John Spencer, a navy radio man were standing.

Native servants, including cooks, rushed to the defense with revolvers, spears and swords.

"After a brisk exchange of shots, in the course of which at least one bandit was either killed or wounded, they were driven off," Engert said.

Governor Ehringhaus
Paroles Six Prisoners

Raleigh, May 4.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus paroled today six state prisoners and declined clemency to 21 others.

Those paroled on the basis of good records included E. E. Mason, given 12 to 17 years in December, 1927, in Wilson county, for second degree murder.

No Decisions Reached
By U. S. Supreme Bar

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—Another opinion session failed to produce a Supreme Court ruling today on constitutionality of the Guffey coal act. The decision was postponed for at least two weeks.

The court adjourned until May 18 after meeting briefly to announce whether it would review 18 cases appealed from lower courts. Not a single decision was handed down.

INTEREST LIES
IN PRIMARIES

Political Attention Is Centered Around
State Elections

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—Political attention was focussed on the far western campaign today.

Not only in the Pacific coast states, but in South Dakota tomorrow and in Maryland today are state wide primaries the top billing of the week's political shows.

In California, the entry of many names stirred greater interest. The primary there involves President Roosevelt, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Upton Sinclair, representative McGroarty, (D. Calif.), and an uncommitted republican slate.

President Roosevelt formally endorsed a slate of 44 persons he himself selected as candidates for delegates to the democratic presidential choice of another group.

Sinclair, however, gave his consent to this arrangement only on condition that the ticket, if elected, would vote for him on the initial ballot and for Mr. Roosevelt thereafter.

The republican struggles center around the ticket supporting Gov. Landon which is backed by Gov. Frank Merriam and William Randolph Hearst, publisher, and an uncommitted slate favored by the republican state chairman and former President Hoover.

In South Dakota tomorrow's vote is to be a struggle between a slate pledged to Senator Borah and an uncommitted ticket which is climaxed by Landon supporters.

President Roosevelt was unopposed in the democratic primary in South Dakota, but in Maryland today he again met the opposition of Colonel Henry Breckinridge.

News Behind The News

TRADE: WPA's beneficiaries have developed a lobby technique which strikes some members of Congress as slicker than the public utilities' high-pressure sales tricks.

Capitol Hill mailbags have been laden with thousands of neatly and inexpensively mimeographed letters protesting against layoffs and the failure to spend all the $4,400,000,000 before June 30. (President Roosevelt hopes to withhold about one billion as velvet for the 1937 fiscal period.) Besides stressing human need, the communications eulogize the economic effect of government spending on industry, agriculture and tradesmen.

In fact, internal evidence suggests that the backfire was inspired by certain commercial interests which dread a loss of customers from curtailment of WPA rolls. The letter-writers demand more rather than less relief. Now they headline the need for including a prevailing wage clause in the measure under Congressional consideration.

Columbus, Ohio, May 4.—(AP)—Delegates to the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church overwhelmingly approved today its unification with the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and the Methodist Protestant church.

Unification of the three churches, if approved by the other two bodies, would give the Methodist church a membership of 8,000,000—the largest Protestant body in the world.

The vote for approval was 470 to 83. It followed a two hour debate on the plan which met a protest from negro delegates.

The Methodist church, South, and the Methodist church had indicated the proposal would receive their approval.

Under the plan a Methodist church would be established year after ratification by the general conferences and a three-fourth majority of the annual conference.

King of Kings Says Revolt of

Of Italians Caused Downfall

Djibouti, French Somaliland, May 4.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, accorded full honors, even in exile, blamed today a revolt of his own tribesmen rather than the power of the Italian armies for the collapse of his Ethiopian empire.

The Kings of Kings, finding a haven in the French territory after fleeing his capital, sought solitude under heavy guard in the governor's palace.

After conferring with members of his government and his military advisors before he fled, the Emperor came to the conclusion that he could no longer serve his country by remaining at the head of his army and decided to end the struggle against his enemies at home and abroad.

In The Daily Reflector five county poll in the Democratic gubernatorial race ballots received up until Saturday afternoon showed Dr. Ralph McDonald with a clear majority of 40 votes and leading among each major classification of voters with the exception of the doctors and lawyers two of each having cast their ballots for Hoy.

Dr. McDonald and Graham were at a draw three having cast their votes for each candidate. Of the three teachers voting for Hoy, two were males, while all three of McDonald's teacher votes came from the women teachers. Among the housewives in this section McDonald is almost a three to one favorite over Hoy and four to one over Graham. Among the unemployed McDonald and Hoy are tied having five each to Graham's two. The tobaccoists have cast their votes for Hoy with none for McDonald and Graham. Among the farmers, merchants, salespeople and tradesmen McDonald is far in the lead in popularity and from the business executives he has received five votes with none in this classification for the other candidates. Of the women's votes cast so far McDonald has received 28; Hoy 14 and Graham 9.

Here is the combined vote of Pitt, Martin, Bertie, Beaufort and Hyde counties for the four candidates by classifications:

Desperado to Be Arraigned on Four Charges

St. Paul, May 4.—(AP)—Authorities a Minneapolis sought today indictments of Alvin Karpis for bank robbery and murder.

United States district attorney George F. Sullivan said, however, Karpis would be arraigned on four kidnaping and conspiracy counts in connection with the abductions of two St. Paul business leaders, William Hamm, Jr., brewer, and Edward G. Bremer, banker.

Protracted questioning of Karpis continued today. Federal agents attempted to learn additional details of the kidnap plots and the names of other accomplices.

While Karpis was held in the federal building, Edward J. Goff, Hennepin county attorney, announced he was taking the steps to have the outlaw indicted for murder and bank robbery in Minneapolis.

Goff asserted the charges were based on Karpis participation in the hold-up of the Third National Western National Bank in Minneapolis in 1932 when two policemen and a motorist were slain by the robbers.

In New York J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of identification, said that if Karpis is found guilty of kidnaping here he may also be tried for the slaying of Sheriff C. R. Kelley of West Plains, Mo., in 1931. Missouri authorities said they wanted Karpis to face the death penalty in a murder trial here.

Special Services At Presbyterian Church

The series of special evangelistic services which have for some time been planned for and anticipated by the local Presbyterian Church begins tonight at 7:45. The public's attention is called to the fact that all of the services this week begin at that hour.

For the series the officers of the local church have secured the Rev. J. J. Murray, D.D., of the Lexington Presbyterian Church, Lexington, Va. His sermon subject for this evening will be "The All-Sufficient Christ"—the subject he is also using to designate the general theme of the series. Dr. Murray is known as one of the outstanding ministers of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

"Although Dr. Murray is to be the guest of our church," said Rev. R. C. Grady, pastor of the host church, "he is not here primarily in the interests of our particular church. He is here primarily in the interest of the Kingdom of God in this community. To that end I am sure members of all local churches will gladly lend their cooperation."

"The camp is for long-time prisoners," Pitts said. "My little information was that the men attacked their guard when they got to work. He was hurt, how badly, I have not been able to learn and five prisoners got away."

Three Candidates

Today's City Vote

Very Little Interest Evidenced In Today's Election Recalls Incidents In County Years Ago

Very little interest was evidenced in the City elections conducted today, none of the three candidates seeking election to the Board of Aldermen having had any opposition.

Mrs. J. L. Hassell, present representative on the board from the Second ward is not seeking re-election. J. A. Watson announced the post from that district.

Dr. M. B. Massey was unopposed for re-election from the Fourth Ward and Joseph M. Taft was assured of the position from the Third Ward, no one else having entered the race.

Old residents here pointed out it was the first time in their recollection that a city election has been held when no opposition was offered in any of the places to be filled.

The mayor's term and those of the other five aldermen continued for another year.

The little interest manifested in today's vote recalled an incident in Grimesland several years ago. Citizens and officials forgot all about the election and no arrangements for voting were made. Old officials automatically held their positions for another term.

It was also recalled that during the last century the same thing happened in the county and all Pitt officials held their jobs for an extra term.

Three Candidates Facing Heavy Speaking Program

Raleigh, May 4.—The Democratic voters of the state are going to be subjected to the heaviest barrage of campaign speeches this week since the campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor has been under way, with the exception that Clyde R. Hoy of Shelby is not going to try to make two speeches a day this week, as he did most of last week.

Dr. Ralph W. McDonald is also confining his campaigning to one speech a day for most of this week, on the advice of his managers. Lieutenant Governor Sandy Graham has one speech a day scheduled for all of this week.

Mr. Hoy came back into the eastern section today for a speech in Windsor, Bertie county, at noon and one in Rocky Mount tonight. He will make two speeches in High Point Tuesday night, one before a civic club, dinner at 8:30 and a regular political speech at 8 o'clock in the court house. So far he has no speaking engagement for Wednesday, but will speak here in Raleigh Friday night, in the court house. This speech will be broad-Raleigh, May 4.—(AP)—Political activity quickened over North Carolina today and observers watched with interest for reaction to formation of "a veterans' organization for Sandy Graham" which started work yesterday in the Democratic gubernatorial campaign.

The "veterans' organization" was perfected at a meeting here which was addressed by Henry Stevens of Warsaw, former National American Legion commander and by three former state Legion Commanders, Tom Daniels of New Bern; Henry Bourne of Tarboro, and Bryce Beard of Salisbury.

H. L. McMillan of Raleigh, named chairman, announced this morning the veterans would conduct an aggressive speaking campaign for Graham. Working as a "speakers bureau," he said, would be Kenneth C. Royall of Goldsboro, Stephens Bourne, Daniels, Beard and others.

Ernest Whitehurst, Pitt county white man, is being held in jail without bond, following his arrest early this morning on a charge of criminally attacking 10-year-old Vivian Muriel Brady, daughter of Frank Brady, tenant farmer of near Farmville.

The man, arrested by Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst and other officers, was quoted by the sheriff as protesting his innocence.

The young girl lived with the defendant until a few years ago when she returned to her father. She had been adopted by Ernest Whitehurst and he was said by the sheriff to have been a frequent caller at Mr. Brady's home, carrying the girl presents and taking her for rides.

The sheriff said Whitehurst, who is about 30 years old, went to the Brady home about noon yesterday and took the girl for a ride. Upon returning, he said, the girl declared the man had attacked her on two different occasions during the afternoon. The sheriff said the girl was seriously injured and that upon reaching her home she collapsed and told her father of the alleged attacks.

Officers were notified and search for the man was begun immediately. Sheriff Whitehurst said the defendant Whitehurst had not been drinking when he left the Brady home, but that when he returned he had been drinking heavily. He said the girl related that Ernest Whitehurst drove into a woods and attacked her, and assaulted her again on the way home.

Whitehurst will not be given a hearing before August, that being the next term of criminal court set for Pitt county.

NEW REGISTRATION NEEDED

In our recent task of procuring names from the registration books of this county in connection with our gubernatorial poll we found that the registration books are in an abominable shape.
Two years ago new registrations were ordered in Greenville and Chicod townships because these large townships were being divided into more voting precincts so these books as a whole are in good shape, but the books in most of the townships are in such condition that we hardly see how anyone can make heads or tails of them at election time.

We found the Farmville township registration in a new book, indicating that it was a new registration that was ordered two years ago, but instead of a new registration, apparently the old book was re-copied with some revisions, for every person listed on the new book carries Farmville as a postoffice address, despite the fact that some of the voters in that township receive their mail from R. F.
D. routes from other towns.

Another peculiarity of the Farmville book is that every voter listed therein is marked as having registered on the same date and without exception every voter was exactly 21 years of age at that time. Even with these defects, though, the Farmville book was the best of any others in the county with the exception of the Chicod and Greenville books already referred to. The books from the other townships apparently haven't been revised in years. Few of them carry any mailing address of the voters; a large number of the names still on the books have moved away from the communities or have been dead for years; the books likewise carry but few party designations. In order to get the proper mailing addresses of many persons whose names appeared on the registration books it was necessary to re-check the names against the tax books which carry addresses. We bring this condition to the attention of our election officials in the hope that something will be done about it before another election year comes around.

Let us say, however, that the condition of the books in this county is not so different from some of the other counties we visited and reports from other newspapers in various sections of the state are to the effect that they likewise found terrible conditions as regards the registration books as a whole.

With such conditions as these throughout the state how can we hope for any degree of fairness in elections if the absentee balloting law stays in effect? The citizens of Pitt county are fortunate that the legislature outlawed absentee balloting in the primaries in this county, but the conditions of the books throughout the state lead one to wonder just how many of these dead names have voted via the absentee route in the past and just how many will be voted in the coming primaries in those counties where the absentee voting privilege is still in effect.

tion that the "twelve Du Ponts" have been subjected to terrific josh-ing and scolding in the locker rooms, cocktail bars and homes of Wilmington friends. Their ubiquitous gifts to anti-Roosevelt, fly-by-night organizations have made the Black "sucker list" a subject of impolite conversation in their social set.
Latest tidbit is that some city fathers feel the first family's Santa Claus role has brought unfavorable publicity to Wilmington—depicted it as a sort of Dayton, Tennessee, which won no fame by staging the Scopes "monkey" trial. Some of the billionaire-baiters have lately received the impression that political gold-diggers won't be so welcome at Wilmington hereafter. Only the Liberty League and Republican National Committee need apply.
What disturbs the Du Pont's associates—business and industrial leaders—is that the exhibition reveals how inept they are when they play a game they don't understand —politics. It's possible the public may get the idea that their inept methods aren't confined to politics alone—as happened after the 1929 smashup.

LEAKS: Although New Dealers profess keen indignation over public utility lawyers' kidnapping of FDR's private memo on PWA power grants, it's more of a pose than they admit. They hope to capitalize the missing scrap of paper.
The memorandum's contents are admittedly of no great moment.
Well-versed lawyers maintain the court would not permit its admission as evidence. Such a precedent might force a President to spend much of his time in a courtroom as witness to his signature. What administrationites propose is to advertise the incident as indicative of the utilities' "unethical" conduct.
They will highlight it along with John W. Davis' "ambulance chasing" of a client in the Baltimore holding company suit.
But there is a serious side to the affair. It supports private suspicions of a tieup between some departmental subordinates and anti-Rooseveltians on the outside. This is not the first time that confidential data has turned up in hands where it doesn't belong. But it's the most glaring.

OUTLOOK: Business men who exchanged notes at the recent Chamber of Commerce convention exhibited more optimism over immediate prospects than they allowed to creep into their speeches.
They look for steady though slow improvement through the summer and fall. They think that increased construction and a pickup in railroad freight and traffic will move heavy goods in larger volume than for some years. They count on relief, AAA and bonus expenditures to furnish a strong retail market.
In the back of their minds ran the feeling that the administration will not allow any economic setback—at least not until after the elections.
The C-of-C-ers concede that government spending is responsible for past and prospective gains, and small tradesmen are especially thankful. There was much less bitterness against FDR among them than among the big fellows. But both groups shudder at the thought of what will happen when the public bill for pump-priming and society-saving falls due. They groaned every time they mentioned prolonged unemployment and what it will cost in the form of a post-election tax increase.

DISGRUNTLED HUSBAND

SUDDENLY it occurred to Dirk that Hope might have returned to her hotel in Manhattan. This was doubtful, since she owed them money, but there was a chance. Failing that, the management might give him some clue as to where else to look for her. The Jameson Hotel.
He remembered that, too, found the address of the hotel in the telephone book, of the first drug-store he passed.

The Hotel Jameson was a dingy hotel in the east thirties. A dingy lady at the desk repeated after him, "Miss Devine, Miss Hope Devine."

She consulted her records and reported that Miss Devine had left some time before.

"I remember her now. A dark little girl—a music-teacher. The colored elevator-boy was her pupil. She didn't leave an address."

Dirk asked if there was any mail for Miss Devine. Perhaps a postmark might be a help. It was important that he find her, he said.

The lady went listlessly through the files of letters. There was nothing for Miss Devine.
"I hardly thought there would be.
That was one thing I remembered about her. She almost never got any mail. You know most girls get at least—wait a minute."

She had a conference with a boy who had just returned from lunch.

"Funny, that," she presently explained. "Miss Devine was in just this morning and got her trunk. It was—she had left it as a sort of security."

"Know where she went?" Dirk asked the boy.

No. She had merely paid her bill, and left.

Dirk left also. He thought he understood. Rupert had no doubt given Hope money the night before, and she had come in forthwith to redeem her trunk. She had left at an incongruous hour for such an errand, but so long as she had accomplished it—

He had no doubt he would find her at Lowrie Wood.

HE was right. Mary informed him that Mrs. Joris had returned shortly after he left.

"She had been to church, sir... to early service."

So that was explained.
"You realize, Mister Dirk, that Mrs. Joris is the daughter of a parson."

This, Mary felt, was a timely rebuke to young gentlemen who seldom went to church at all. Mister Rupert's marriage had bewildered the servants by its unexpectedness, but it held the flavor of romance, and they were tending it with relish today. The odd thing was for Mister Dirk to speed after the bride as soon as she stepped out.

"She brought her trunk back with her, sir... in the taxi. Jane helped her unpack it. It's just gone down to the store-room."

"Where is Mrs. Joris?" Dirk asked.

"In her room, sir. And Mister Rupert wishes to see you as soon as you come in."

Dirk went upstairs to find Rupert sitting on the edge of his bed, a brown dressing-gown over his pyjamas. Rupert's eyes were bloodshot, his cheeks blue and unshaven. The top of his black hair was wet, and the bronze bowl beside the telephone beginning to fill with cigarette-stubs.
The room was full of smoke, and the stale odor of whisky.

It was a plain room, crowded with books. Dirk could remember the time when Rupert had cared for nothing but to pore over books and ride his pony. Croon Joris, whose portrait had always reminded Dirk of Rupert, had been a sybarite and a spender. Rupert's tastes, on the contrary, had a Spartan simplicity —except in what concerned Eleanor.
Nothing had been too lavish, too beautiful for her.

Dirk had opened a window, and the currents of smoke began to flow toward it. Rupert frowned at the light. He said,
"Hell of a mess I'm in. I've been talking to Connolly. He indicated the telephone. 'Where were you last night?' he asked, staring at Dirk."

"I was in Jersey," Dirk answered.
"With Isabel."

"Well, do you know anything about it?" demanded Rupert. "I haven't cared to question Timothy.
He let the woman in, of course."

"She's not a woman," Dirk said, odds on the defensive. "She's a girl.
Eighteen, I should say."

"Connolly says she gave her age as twenty-one. You've seen her?"

"I talked with her last night, after you went upstairs."

"Was she sober?"

"Perfectly. Even solemn."

"This is no joke," remarked Rupert furiously.

"It is not," Dirk agreed. "But your asking if she was sober—"

"I didn't know but we might have had a few drinks together."

"There was no evidence of that," Dirk assured him. "She was sober, and I might say, desperate."

Rupert glanced at him.
"Desperate?"

"For money. She was stranded here. Her hotel had put her out—was holding her trunk."

"But she has a family—according to the record. Her father, she says, is the Rev. Somebody."

"They don't live here," Dirk answered. "The bank where she had her funds closed. It may be her family wouldn't or couldn't help her, or she may not have wanted to tell them. She came to you, as a lawyer, to know what to do."

"She came to do what she did," replied Rupert. "It was a trick, and she managed it."

He reflected with some satisfaction that she had got no money out of him, whatever the trick might net her in the end. He had in his billfold exactly the amount he had brought home with him the evening before, and his check-book had not been touched.

DIRK said, "I'm certain it wasn't a trick. I'm certain your proposal came as a surprise to her. Wait till you see her. It may even be you frightened her into it, or..."

as Rupert seemed about to go into a rage, "or offered marriage as the condition on which you would help her. She was without money, or food, or friends. She was in a panic, so she hunted up a lawyer, and you happened to be the one she found."

"You're ridiculous, of course," Rupert remarked. "She saw the state I was in, and she took advantage of it. No decent girl would have done that. If she was drunk, too, I could understand it."

"It's odd," said Dirk, "that you should mention decency. That was the only question you asked her."

And, as Rupert stared, "I think you made some allusions to her family, but you asked her, as I understand it, only one question. I don't think she could have invented that question, and if she's telling the truth about that, she's probably not lying about the rest. You asked if she was a decent girl."

Rupert was silent. He looked at his cigaret, crushed it out.

"No, I suppose she could not have invented that," he said finally. "However, I'll check on her antecedents and her decency, too. An annulment, under the circumstances, should be simple."

"I've already checked," said Dirk.
Again Rupert's brief stare. It was the memory of Dirk's face that Rupert had carried over from the night before. Dirk, newly arrived, standing in the hall, looking at him. There was an impression, too, of Connolly. He had telephoned Connolly and got the facts, or some of them.
Then he had sent for Dirk, and learned that he had gone out.

"And you found?" said Rupert.

"I can assure you," Dirk answered, "that the girl is not only decent, but decidedly inexperienced."

Yes, he could assure him of that, and he wasn't going to have Rupert digging around, discovering the circus.

"You'll be telling me next," said Rupert, "that she didn't know I was tired."

"That's possible, too," Dirk admitted. "You carry it well enough. However, I shan't say that. I only say that she's a nice kid who came to you in a panic, and that marrying her was your own idea."

Rupert lit another cigaret. The matter of Dirk's looking up the girl, checking on her history, had aroused his gratitude somewhat... A decent and desperate. The combination might insure a quiet settlement of the affair. Connolly had promised to keep it out of the papers, if possible.
Rupert himself had insisted the night before that the papers have it, though it had been too late for the Sunday editions.

date unless he is free to say what he pleases—and other speakers who flayed New Deal taxation and interference reflected the views of the Chamber's membership more accurately. There is no chance of a general and genuine truce at this late date.

POLITICS: Keen observers note that Mr. Roosevelt—in his New York speech a few days before the Chamber sessions began—urged business men to get together and work out their own plans for speeding reemployment.

He is thus in a position to share in the credit if business by any chance does so. If it doesn't, he can seize upon the failure to justify subsequent use of "the strong arm of government."

A leading industrialist bitterly remarks: "It's the old game of heads I win, tails you lose. We're like a bunch of high school kids trying to hit home runs off Dizzy Dean when we try to beat FDR at politics."

PATCH: New York political insiders get word that the picturesque occupation of the New Jersey state capitol at Trenton by an army of jobless demanding relief was not the spontaneous affair it was made to appear. There is backstage evidence that the demonstration was privately encouraged—if not actually planned—by certain New Jersey politicians for their own purposes.

The object? To provide a reason for restoring the unpopular state sales tax. Watch for such a move.
Legislators who vote for the tax could defend themselves to their constituents by pointing to the pressing emergency signaled by the dramatic plight of the unemployed invaders.

Proctor Speaks to College Students

R. S. Proctor, successful educator and expert in the field of placement and personnel work, is to lecture tonight at eight o'clock in the High School Library, to parents, teachers, and others interested in hearing him discuss vocational guidance from the point of view of parents.

The topic selected for this afternoon's assembly period, at which Mr. Proctor talked to the juniors and seniors, was "What Shall I Choose for My Life's Work?"

While Mr. Proctor was superintendent of public instruction in Craven County, he became greatly concerned about the importance of helping young people choose their occupations wisely. He went to one of the great eastern universities for advanced study in that field, and is now doing valuable work associated with the Vocational Guidance Administration. He has headquarters in Raleigh.

This program is sponsored by the A. A. U. W. members who each spring have an educational meeting of interest to the school people and to the rest of the community.

MacBryde Vesper Speaker

"The Time is Past and the Time is Question" was the subject of the last message brought to the students by Rev. Duncan D. MacBryde, at the Y. W. C. A. vesper services last night.

Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever, was the theme of his talk and he stressed the fact that no matter what happens, the Christian Church still stands. Here, also, he expressed the agelessness of our Lord, Christ, he said, has remained on this earth a long time, but He is not old-fashioned; He is unchanging, yet He is ever new. He is always the same to meet the challenge of the world. His concluding thought was that Christ is the only unchanging thing in the universe.

Miss Johnnie Deaton sang a solo.

Mr. MacBryde left this morning for the Union Theological Seminary, in Richmond, Virginia to resume his work there. After his commencement he will go to Wilmington where he will serve as assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church and in the fall will go to Edinburgh University where he will attend a year in study.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 3.

The golden text was from Isaiah 48:22: "There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "In that day the Lord with his sore and great strong sword shall punish leviathan that crooked serpent; and he shall slay the dragon that is in the sea." (Isaiah 27:1).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Every mortal at some period, here or hereafter, must grapple with and overcome the mortal belief in a power opposed to God."

"The scripture, 'Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many,' is literally fulfilled, when we are conscious of the supremacy of Truth, by which the nothingness of error is seen; and we know that the nothingness of error is in proportion to its wickedness. He that touches the hem of Christ's robe and masters his mortal beliefs, animality, and hate, rejoices in the proof of healing—in a sweet and certain sense that God is Love."

PUBLIC HELPS PROTECT FISH

Game and Inland Fisheries Commissioner Encouraged

Raleigh, May 4.—As a whole, the general public in North Carolina has cooperated wholeheartedly in observance of the closed season on fishing. J. D. Chalk, State game and inland fisheries commissioner, said today in expressing his gratitude for this spirit. Public sentiment, according to the commissioner, is supporting the move toward preserving and improving fishing conditions in the State, and this attitude has held some of the limited number who do not take the same attitude in check. The commissioner expressed surprise and pleasure over the fact that the game and fish protector organization in North Carolina have had to conduct so few prosecutions for violations of the closed fishing period over the State. One reason assigned to the general observance of the closed season for spawning is the fact that the period more nearly meets the views of those most interested in wildlife as being the most effective ever established in the State which is 30 days earlier than during previous years. They are more in accord, he continued, with the view that all fishing should be prohibited in the period set aside for spawning rather than have alternating open and closed dates.
