FARMERS GIVE THEIR OPINION ON INSURANCE

Spokesmen Divided On All-Risk Program Suggested

HEAD OF BUREAU FAVORS OLD AAA

Leaders Reiterate Wallace's Expression That Crop Idea Replace Other Plans

Washington, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Divided opinion on whether farmers of this country want an all-risk crop insurance plan was sounded by farm spokesmen today before the special committee named by the President to suggest such a plan to congress.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said he favored reenactment of the original agricultural adjustment act, together with some features of the present soil conservation program and loans to farmers on their crop.

C. V. Gregory, Chicago editor of a farm journal, who said he spoke for farmers East of the Mississippi river asserted he "did not believe there was any large demand for farm yield insurance East of the Mississippi river."

"What farmers there want is price stability," Gregory said. Judge Zenophone Caverno of Canalou, Mo. state AAA committee man, said he thought the proposed federal insurance program was "too complex."

"I think there are shortcuts to obtain the same thing," he said. Many spokesmen, however, favored the insurance proposals.

Many leaders reiterated Secretary Wallace's expression that the federal crop insurance would "supplement" present farm programs.

Reports Indicate That Women Cast Half Of N. C. Vote

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Vice Chairman of Committee of Opinion Women Favored Big Part in Election

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The women voters of North Carolina were responsible for half of the huge majority given to President Roosevelt and to Clyde R. Hoey, the Democratic candidate for Governor in the election this week, according to Mrs. J. B. Spilman, vice chairman of the State Democratic Executive committee who was in charge of the organization work among the women of the state during the recent campaign.

Reports from the county and precinct chairmen, based on actual counts at hundreds of polls over the state, indicate that at least 50 per cent of the votes cast for the Democratic candidates were cast by women, Mrs. Spilman said.

"Four years ago, when President Roosevelt was first elected, 45 per cent of the Democratic votes cast in North Carolina were cast by women," Mrs. Spilman said. "But after four years of the New Deal under President Roosevelt, the women were more convinced than ever that he should be reelected and returned to office for another four years, with the result that in this election an average of 50 per cent of the Democratic votes was cast by women, while in some sections of the state the average was still higher."

The three biggest factors in winning the votes of the women for Roosevelt were the work being done by the National Youth Administration in helping boys and girls still in school to stay in school by providing them with clothing.

High Point, Nov. 7.—(AP)—W. W. Williams of Rocky Mount today was elected president of the North Carolina student council congress, as the 10th annual convention of that organization was concluded. The congress voted to meet at Washington, N. C. next year.

Farley Congratulates Pitt Party Chairman

W. E. Hooks, chairman of the Pitt county Democratic executive committee, has received a telegram from James A. Farley, Postmaster General and chairman of the National Executive committee, expressing the appreciation of the support given President Roosevelt in Pitt county, and the work done in the election by Hooks and his associates.

NEW ANGLE IN MAXWELL CASE

Judge Disqualifies Himself on Account of Distant Kin

Wise, Va., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Judge H. A. W. Skeen of Wise county disqualified himself today from further participation in the case of Edith Maxwell, charged with killing her father, because of a newly disclosed and very distant relationship between himself and the defendant.

His order asking that Governor Peery appoint another judge to preside at the second trial of the school teacher abruptly halted a change of venue hearing, at which Miss Maxwell's attorneys charged that a fair trial for her was now impossible in Wise county.

Judge Skeen said that the disqualification order also should be applicable to the hearing for a change of venue and dropped it at once.

In their petition for a trial elsewhere, defense attorneys said the 85-year-old judge, Skeen, was disinclined to related to the mother of Trigg Maxwell, who was killed at his Pound, Va., home in 1935.

Two Negro Women Ordered Held For Robbery Charges

Pair Charged With Breaking and Entering; Negro Man Just Off Roads Returned For 60 Days

Convicted of drunkenness and of beating two women of his own race, John Dunbar, negro, who only recently completed a two-year sentence for breaking and entering, was sent back to the roads again today—this time to serve 60 days—30 each on two counts.

Lyman E. Allen, white man, was taxed with the costs upon conviction of drunkenness. Louise Reeves and Annie Fowler, negro women, were bound over to Superior court to face charges of breaking and entering. The women are charged with entering the home of Peter Johnson, negro, and stealing $18 from a small safe.

Five negroes, Simon Dawson, W. N. Newsome, Thad Dawson, Robert Taft and Spencer Field, were convicted of disorderly conduct and fined five dollars and taxed with the costs.

$10,000,000 Mark Passed By Market

Farmers from some 40 counties in Eastern North Carolina who sold their tobacco on the Greenville market this year have been paid a total of $10,083,911.83 so far this season.

The $10,000,000 mark was reached with yesterday's sales, when 667,616 pounds brought a total of $159,591.10, for an average of $23.93 per hundred pounds.

So far this season 41,559,196 pounds of tobacco have been sold here, bringing an average of $24.52 per hundred weight.

TO CELEBRATE ARMISTICE DAY

State Treasurer Chas. M. Johnson To Be Speaker Here

The local 1936 Armistice Day celebration will be held Wednesday on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College. The program will begin at 10:30 a. m., featured by a speech by Legionnaire Charles M. Johnson, of Raleigh, treasurer of the State of North Carolina. These exercises will be held in the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College. Following the exercises in the Campus building, a barbecue dinner will be served in the basement of the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College.

In the afternoon, the ex-service men and their friends will journey to Washington to help the Washington Post celebrate the day with a football game between Washington and Greenville.

The Greenville High school band will be present at the exercises and will furnish music for the occasion. There will also be some vocal music under the direction of Miss Kuykendall of East Carolina Teachers College. A detailed program will be furnished later. Veterans of all wars are invited to be present at these exercises and to partake of the dinner, as well as all members of the Legion Auxiliary, all Gold Star Mothers, and members of the George B. Singleary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

S. M. Woolfolk is commander of the local post, and the following committees are functioning to carry out the program: program committee, J. H. Rose, chairman, A. D. Frank, C. L. Adams, barbecue committee, L. J. Smith, C. W. Williams, Frank Diener.

The local schools will also celebrate Armistice Day with appropriate programs at their assemblies on Wednesday morning, and all schools will be dismissed at 12:30.

GORE REFUSES DISMISS CASE

Indicates Early Hearing on TVA Issues, However

Cookeville, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—United States District Judge John J. Gore refused today to dismiss a suit of 19 private power companies against the Tennessee Valley authority on the claim of the authority that the bill was vague and indefinite and raised no specific issues.

The suit is directed at the TVA power program. Once before, when a question of jurisdiction was raised, Judge Gore refused to dismiss it, holding that his court had proper jurisdiction.

He said the motion to dismiss, which he overruled today, was not the proper remedy for the TVA to seek in view of the criticisms it made against the power companies' bill.

"I think the motion to dismiss should be overruled," the judge said in a written opinion.

The opinion indicated that an early hearing of the case on its merits may be expected.

"In order that the case may be appealed and the question in issue be finally determined," Judge Gore said, "I am extremely anxious to bring the case to trial upon its merits at the earliest possible moment."

Open Negotiations To Bring Peace In Labor Federation

Committee For Industrial Organization Authorizes John L. Lewis to Confer with A. F. of L. Head

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Committee for industrial organization today authorized John L. Lewis, its chairman, to start peace negotiations with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The committee telegraphed Green a request that he meet Lewis to confer upon "existing differences."

COAST STRIKE SPREADS INTO WIDER FIELDS

Nation's Entire Shipping Industry Is Threatened

LABOR OFFICIAL TO MAKE STUDY

Secretary Perkins Announces, However, That President Will Not Intervene

(By Associated Press) Paralysis threatened the nation's entire shipping industry as the maritime strike under way on the Pacific coast intensified Atlantic and Gulf coast ports and spread into San Francisco's shipyards with a general walkout ordered.

A union of New York seamen, engaged for a week in a passive "sit-down" strike in sympathy with west coast maritime workers, mapped active resistance after repudiating their contracts with ship owners and demanding new agreements as to wages and hours.

Joseph Curran, chairman of the New York strike group, at odds with the international seamen's union, estimated 16,000 workers were out in Atlantic and Gulf ports, other than New York.

In San Francisco 6,000 workers voted to quit "owing to continued and flagrant violations of agreements with various unions."

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady continued his efforts to settle contract differences between 37,000 other west coast maritime workers and employers.

Secretary of Labor Perkins announced in Washington that President Roosevelt would not intervene in the strike picture, but she began a close study of the situation.

In Port Neches, Texas, the district council of oil field, gas well and refinery workers telegraphed the President the strike would "within 10 or 15 days, close down refineries in the Gulf coast area employing between 40,000 and 50,000 persons."

Teachers College Plans To Observe Its Homecoming

Special Event To Be Held Saturday, November 21, at Which Time Many Teachers Will Be Here

Saturday, November 21, will be homecoming day at East Carolina Teachers College. More than a thousand teachers will already be assembled at the College for a north-eastern district meeting of the North Carolina Education Association on Friday and Saturday, November 20-21, and a large proportion of these teachers are graduates of the College.

In some counties in the district E. C. T. C. teachers outnumber the graduates of all other colleges added together. Additional hundreds of Alumnae and alumni teaching in other sections of this state, and in other states, together with the large number of alumnae who have long since forgotten that they have ever been members of the teaching profession, are expected to return on that day and make up one of the largest representations from past classes ever to assemble at the Greenville college.

Aside from the pleasure of seeing old classmates and asking about their wives, husbands, children or jobs, as the case may be, an engaging program has been planned by the various alumnae committees, headed by the president, Mrs. O. K. Joyner, of Woodland. The administrative, social committee, and the athletic association of the College are cooperating to welcome the "old grads" back to the improved Teachers College, which this year has the largest enrollment in the history of the school and the fifth largest enrollment in the state.

The homecoming celebration will include an alumni luncheon, a football game between the E. C. T. C. Pirates and the Louisville College eleven and a dance in the evening.

Belvoir Man Facing Driving Drunk Count

Lyman Brewer, white man of near Belvoir, is being held under bond on charges of driving drunk following his arrest last night by members of the sheriff's office.

Deputies were called after the man had been seen, apparently in a drunken condition, get in the truck and drive off. The man was arrested on the Bethel highway.

Pay Boost Adds Impetus To John L. Lewis' Drive

Industrial Organization Group To Push Campaign

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A 10 per cent pay increase of practically all the nation's half million steel workers added new impetus today to John L. Lewis' drive to bring them all into one big union.

Gathering for a meeting of their committee for industrial organization, Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and leaders of nine other rebel unions prepared to intensify their campaign.

Philip Murray, the miners vice president and director of the steel drive, said last night that the raise was a "miserly pittance" and that the steel workers would get far more if they allied under Lewis' banner.

Several of the largest steel producers announced that negotiations with their employe representatives had produced an increase in the basic hourly rate for common labor from 47 to 52 1-2 per cent. Schedules for skilled workers also are to be adjusted upward in the general raise, effective November 16.

Among the companies to post notices of the increase were Carnegie-Illinois steel corporation, large U. S. steel subsidiary, The Bethlehem steel corporation and the Jones and Laughlin steel corporation. Others were expected to follow. The agreements are to run for one year.

Mrs. Sophia M'Gowan Is Claimed By Death

Mrs. Sophia McGowan, 66, died at noon yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Spencer Haddock of near Shemertine. She had been ill for some time.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the late home by Rev. J. W. Berry, Pentecostal Holiness minister here. Interment followed in the Henry Jordan Williams cemetery near Cox Mill.

Mrs. McGowan was born in Pitt county and spent her entire life here. She was a daughter of the late Blount and Gailine Venters Stokes. She was a member of the Caledonia Methodist church.

Surviving are her husband, Wyatt McGowan, and the following children, a son, L. J. McGowan; two daughters, Mrs. Spencer Haddock and Mrs. Johnnie O'Geary, Pitt county; a brother, Henry Stokes of Lenoir county; two sisters, Mrs. Jim Albert Lenoir county, and Mrs. Warren Everett, Pitt county.

EXODUS BEGUN FROM MADRID

Terrified Thousands Flee for Safety As Workers Army Battles Grimly to Defend City from Ever Nearing Fascist Armies

Valencia, Spain, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Spanish government established headquarters tonight in the Benicarlo palace. The ministers met immediately in secret session.

A council of defense under the ardent Leftist General Jose Miaja, replaced the government in Spain's menaced capital today.

While government ministers sped to Valencia by motor car and a workers army struggled with determined insurgent regulars and hitlers on the edge of the city, the council met in the last hour defense of Madrid General Sebastian Tomas remained as generalissimo of the Madrid fighting forces, but Miaja was placed at the head of the defense council which has full power to take any steps it thinks necessary in the interest of the capital.

Madrid, Nov. 7.—(AP)—General Sebastian Tomas assumed complete control of Madrid affairs today in the absence of the government and with a general workers army clung grimly to the besieged city.

Tomas, Generalissimo of the government forces in the Madrid area, became head of a new safety council in command of the city after government ministers had left before dawn by motor car for Valencia.

The ministers will continue to advise General Poes, but it was learned from reliable sources that he has been granted full power to take any step he deems immediately necessary in the interest of the capital.

It was not known whether the government would establish its headquarters at Valencia, Barcelona or Alicante. President Manuel Azana has been in Barcelona for several weeks.

The battered proletarian ranks at the gates of Madrid sought frantically to smash through the cordon of besiegers advancing from outlying sections of the city.

A terrific insurgent bombardment from Madrid's suburbs was answered by the crashing shells of the government's heavy artillery.

The battle for possession of the Spanish capital was near a climax. Party leaders exhorted the defending militia to "fight without quarter, without truce." War ministry officials said the next 72 hours would tell the story.

Terrified thousands fled eastward out of the capital. The quaking populace that remained heard the ever-nearing din of battle as fierce Moorish hordes of the fascists attackers invaded the outskirts of the city.

Woods Fire Burns Despite Attempts To Put Out Blaze

Forest Conflagration in Lower Part of Washington County, Been Under Way For Six Months

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 7.—For persistence in the face of unusual suppression efforts, W. C. McCormick, Assistant State forester of the Department of Conservation and Development, in charge of forest fire control points to a fire in the lower part of Washington county as a contender for a record.

This fire broke out in the peat lands near the junction of Hyde, Beaufort, and Washington counties early in May, and Mr. McCormick reported it as still burning after a visit to the scene this week.

Mr. McCormick declared that it has been the hardest fire to suppress he has come in contact with during years of forest fire experience. Every type of equipment used by the Forestry Department in the control of forest fires has been brought to bear on the conflagration. (Continued on page 4)

BERRY BOSTIC TO HEAD CLUB

D. H. Conley Named Vice President of Kiwanis Club

Berry Bostic was elevated from the vice presidency to president of the Greenville Kiwanis club at the organization's regular meeting at the Woman's club last night and D. H. Conley was named to fill the office to be vacated by Kiwanian Bostic.

Four new directors were named as follows: J. Nat Harrison, W. J. Bundy, O. P. Matthews and J. Hicks Gore. The club has eight directors, four of whom retire each year. The old directors are Robert R. Taylor, J. Frank Harrington, Fred M. Stokes and J. F. Arthur.

The new officers will take office at the first meeting in January, J. C. Galloway, present president, will assume the post of immediate past president, a post now held by Dink James. The new president will name the secretary and various committees.

Mrs. Ray Tyson, club pianist, returned last night after having been absent from several meetings due to illness. The only guest of the club was LaFayette Davis, Jr., of Macon, Ga.

W. J. Bundy, Dal Cox and Jimmy Carr, club delegates to the district convention in Greensboro and reported briefly, but Dave Moore, club secretary, who also attended the session reported in detail on proceedings of the convention.

Dr. Joseph R. Sevier of Hendersonville was named new district governor and Dr. A. G. Woodard of Goldsboro was chosen as the next lieutenant governor of this division. Charlotte was selected as convention site for the next convention.

Henry Martin Grows Some Large Collards

Henry Martin today exhibited some of the largest and prettiest collards seen in this section. One of the largest, 50 inches in diameter, was placed in the window of The Reflector and was the subject of much comment.

The collards were grown on Mr. Martin's farm across the river. A survey made by the British board of trade shows that during the calendar year 1935 there were 519 new factories opened in Great Britain, of which 213 were in the greater London area.

Lelia Higgs Studio
Christmas is approaching and our thoughts just naturally turn to gifts... Now is the time to order all those lovely accessories you are planning to include in your Christmas list. By all means go to the LELIA HIGGS STUDIO and see some of the lovely things she is showing... Where else could you find a two-tier occasional table with brass gallery? Mirrors, vases and pictures selected with but one purpose in view, which is to give the loveliest one that will be appropriate in the room for which it is intended... You will also want to attend the showing of the loveliest and newest designs in lamps at this studio the third week in November... Miss Higgs told me this morning that some of the most gorgeous lamps she has ever been able to find would be shown at her studio this year. While there, look for a beautiful creation in Italian pottery in very lovely translucent colors with hand-painted silk shade... A Lenox China in egg-shell background with bands of turquoise blue and dainty floral design mounted on gold standard with the shade accenting the colors of the base... A charming Chinese model mounted on a teakwood base... A pair of etched crystal dressing table lamps with frivolous shades... A colonial lamp with milk-white base and rose-colored shade trimmed with yards and yards of lace. So much importance is attached to the lamps, tables, vases and mirrors in a room... they either lift the room from a state of monotony to a charming room or banish the character of the room. It pays to have professional advice when selecting these important accessories.

Carolina Sales Corporation
"Blue Mondays" and the dreaded "Wash Day" have taken so much fun out of the art of housekeeping that manufacturers have had to step in and do something about it... And I hope every reader of this column will see as I did this morning what a wonderful thing they have done about it. In fact, home laundering no longer means drudgery... The days when women rose each Monday morning at dawn and labored into the dusk with the family washing are history. Today, if a woman makes this gruesome sacrifice of youth and beauty, it is because she is neglecting to modernize this part of her home equipment. The Easy Washer at the CAROLINA SALES CORPORATION will put a bright ring around your "Blue Mondays" and save you money by giving longer life to clothing washed in this easy, gentle manner. A free demonstration is yours for the asking... Just call Mr. Gaskins and he will send a machine out and let the demonstrator do the family wash for you... You will never let this wonderful machine leave your home, because the terms are so reasonable that you can own it for less than the laundry is costing you now.

C. I. Russ Heating Company
The first flurry of snow and the biting cold winds of winter will not find you unprepared if you will call Mr. Russ and let him examine your heating plant now... He is ready to prove to all homes not satisfied with half-heated, cold, uncomfortable rooms that every room in the house can be evenly heated at all hours by installing the famous Fairbanks-Morse stoker to your old heating pipes. Not only the comfort of well heated rooms will be yours but the saving of fuel alone will cover the cost of the new stoker... to say nothing of the doctor's bills, drug bills and worry over colds contracted from living in poorly heated rooms. This modern method of heating also does away with the necessity of building fires every day. I know of nothing more worthwhile looking into than having your home warmed throughout with automatically controlled heat, low cost of operation, and the elimination of running down to the basement several times a day to feed the furnace. Build one fire and give all the time you've formerly devoted to the heating plant to something more pleasant. The telephone number is 636.

Rosebud Beauty Shoppe

The social whirl has begun... Halloween has brought in a rush of parties that herald the approach of Thanksgiving and Christmas festivities and warns all of us who have neglected to take advantage of the first cool days to get our hair in readiness for cold weather and the busy social season to do so now. The first suggestion is a Permanent Three-Minute Wave at the ROSEBUD BEAUTY PARLOR. Only three minutes of your valuable time will be necessary to get a perfect wave that will be easy to keep lovely all winter... and while your hair is drying have your nails manicured in a few minutes with the electric manicure machine. Perfect grooming of hair and nails will add much more to your appearance than the time and money spent for these trifles is worth to you. Appreciation of the high type of work a customer always receives at the Rosebud is proved by the busy atmosphere of this shoppe... I tried to get an appointment there yesterday afternoon and not only found the operators as busy as bees but appointments to fill the balance of the afternoon... It pays to phone for an appointment.

SCHOOL NEEDS ARE TAKEN UP

Importance of Elementary Training Stressed at Meet

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—The importance of the elementary schools in the state public school system and the need for trained elementary school principals, is being stressed here today in the fourteenth annual meeting of the North Carolina District Teachers Association, a branch of the North Carolina Education Association, in session today and tomorrow.

The department of elementary school principals of the State Education Association of which Mrs. A. R. Wilson of Durham is president, is making a more active effort than ever before to interest both the general public and the teachers in the elementary schools and to make them realize that the elementary schools rather than the high schools are the most important in the state's public school system because they reach so many more children.

The elementary school principals who are members of the North Central District Association will hold a banquet here tonight at which Mrs. Wilson, president of the state department, and others will speak. Mrs. Wilson will speak on "What Elementary Education Means to Public Education in North Carolina." Miss Mary Page of Raleigh, who is district president of the elementary principals, will preside at this meeting. Honor guests at the banquet will be Miss Frances Lacy, Miss Hattie Parrott and Miss Juanita McDougald, of Raleigh and Mrs. Dan Schoeder, Mrs. Grady Moore and Mrs. D. L. Johnson, of High Point.

A departmental meeting of all the elementary principals in the 18 counties included in the district will be held Saturday morning at which Guy Phibbs, of the University of North Carolina, formerly superintendent of the Germantown city schools, will be the principal speaker and discuss the responsibilities of the elementary principals. The headquarters for the elementary principals will be at the Carolina Hotel and all visiting principals are urged to visit the headquarters to register and become better acquainted with the other principals.

The Second Term

Unpredictables Veil Future of F. D. R.

This is the first in a series of four articles in which the answers are sought from history to the questions the nation is asking about President Roosevelt's second term.

By ALEXANDER GEORGE

Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Second-term Presidents frequently find the job smoother sailing along some courses.

But if Franklin D. Roosevelt had any inclination, who he learned of his victory, to dream about easier plotting ahead, he had the second four years in the White House usually have brought foul weather as well as fair.

11 PRESIDENTS RE-ELECTED

Washington, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Eleven men have been elected twice to the presidency.

They were: George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, Woodrow Wilson, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge served more than one term, but neither was elected twice. Each succeeded to the White House from the vice presidency on the death of a President in office, and then was elected President in his own right at the end of his part term.

The course of the second New Deal administration will be contingent upon many uncertain factors—plans only to look at history to realize that Mr. Roosevelt domestic and international developments of the next four years, and the reaction of the congress, the supreme court and of the public to those developments as well as to Presidential actions and proposals.

Usual Characteristics

The 11th United States President to be re-elected and the 13th to serve more than one term, Mr. Roosevelt presumably will begin his second term with the traditional freedom from re-election worries but with the outlook of a "shortened whip" on congress.

To first-term presidents, the prospect of submitting their record in office to the voters within less than four years after inauguration and of setting the political stage for re-election usually plays a part in determining their policies and actions. Second-term executives can advance their programs with less concern for their own political fortunes.

On the other hand, second-term Presidents customarily have to deal with a congressional personnel less bound to them for re-election prospects or for campaign leadership. A stiffening in congressional opposition to second administrations is almost axiomatic in American politics due largely to gains by the rival major party in the

OFF TO A RUNNING START

Going into their second term, President Roosevelt and Manager Farley are relatively free of two first-term worries: (1) Patronage redistribution, which always follows a change of party-in-power; (2) Getting ready for a re-election campaign.

Upsets Do Happen

Another second term characteristic is a Presidential tendency toward consolidation and rounding-out of programs which have been inaugurated in a first term. Many expect Mr. Roosevelt to follow this course, although unprecedented supreme court invalidation of New Deal measures may complicate a follow-through program.

Unforeseen developments, moreover, frequently upset an administration's apple cart.

A month after President Wilson took office for his second term, he found his cherished role of America as a peacemaker in the European holocaust impossible of realization and went before congress to ask a declaration of "war to the uttermost" against German government.

Recovery Aids

In his second term, President Roosevelt apparently will have the advantage of an advancing recovery from one of the worst of American business depressions although a tremendous army of citizens on federal relief rolls and other depression by-products remain acute problems.

As a second-termer he will have the traditional advantage of a patronage problem largely settled.

When a President is elected to a second term there is no wholesale change among office-holders—a familiar source of inter-party criticism and intra-party friction. Four years of White House training and experience is rated an invaluable asset of second-term Presidents. They know the administrative and legislative ropes. They have the advantage of having worked with legislative leaders of their parties and of knowing intimately their traits and capacities.

Experience Helps.

They have knowledge of the talents and shortcomings of their administrative aids. They have opportunity to learn of conditions in

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES

President Wilson campaigned successfully for re-election on his record of keeping America out of Europe's quarrel. His second administration was but a month old when he asked congress to declare war on Germany.

GIVE FARMERS NEW SECURITY

More Than 2,000 Negroes Helped By Rehabilitation

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—Approximately 2,300 negro farmers of North Carolina have pulled themselves through the past year and gained new security for their families with the aid of the rehabilitation division of the Resettlement Administration.

Vance E. Swift, state director of rehabilitation, said today. Negro families make up 31 per cent of the total rehabilitation load in the state. This proportion is slightly larger than the proportion of colored people in the state population. In a number of counties, the number of negroes receiving loans this year exceeded the white farmers.

"Generally speaking, the colored farmers have made good clients," Mr. Swift stated. "Whenever the supervisor worked out their farm plans and budgets for the year, they found the negro farmers ready to do their part. As a result, a result, a cross-section study shows that the colored clients are repaying their loans this fall in about the same proportion as the white clients. The work among such people has been satisfactory and much good has been accomplished in putting deserving families back on a self-sustaining basis."

To date, Mr. Swift pointed out, the 7,469 rehabilitation clients in North Carolina have repaid $460,000 on the instalments due this fall. Practically all of this has come from the early tobacco sales. With cotton marketing now getting under way, it is expected that at the present rate of collection more than 80 per cent of the payments due this year will be received in the next six weeks. This year's loans to rehabilitation clients totaled about $2,000,000 in North Carolina.

Dr. Smith has been professor of bacteriology and associate professor of medicine at Duke University School of Medicine since 1930. He is also author of a book published in 1932—"Oral and Fuso-sprochetal Diseases and Related Organisms," and has contributed articles to various medical and scientific journals.

Dr. William H. Smith of Goldsboro, a member of the committee on organization, will preside at the final session. Dr. Charles S. Mangum, Dean of the Medical School of the University, will introduce the speaker.

Moonlight and Magnolias

IN the garden of the old Page house, Sally found dreams and romance.

Closing her eyes, she drifted back to the days when she had pretended—on this very bench—that she was a captive princess shut in a walled garden.

Awaking, she saw a young man standing in the shadowy moonlight.

'Are you a ghost?' he asked pleasantly...

And thus began a charming romance.

U. D. C. Meets
The George B. Singletary chapter, U. D. C., was most delightfully entertained Friday afternoon by Mrs. E. W. Harvey. Reports especially that of the treasurer, which showed a healthy balance.

The Southern Magazine is proving popular as a reference work as well as splendid reading today.

Mrs. T. A. Person gave a vivid and inspiring report on the recent convention at Durham. Items worthy of note are: the educational work, eleven scholarships being reported; the memorial work, the T. B. work, and the charity; increase in members, one hundred seventy-eight.

Special attention was called to the volume of Pledge Essays. This book is gotten out every two years, and this year it is published under the rule of Mrs. J. W. Parker, of Farmville, Division Historian. It is dedicated to Samuel A. Court Ashe and the frontispiece is a photograph of Captain Ashe seated at his reading desk. Mrs. John H. Anderson, recently elected president of the N. C. Division, has several essays, among them, "Life of Captain Ashe," "Life of Jefferson Davis," "Mrs. W. B. Murphy of Snow Hill has several, "The Greene County Boys in the War Between the States," "Carolina Coastal Cooperation," and others. These Prize Essays are all excellent, and the U. D. C. heartily recommends them to the reading public of Greenville and vicinity, especially the club women.

The hostess served a delectable sweet course.—Reported.

Dr. Crain Speaks Sunday
The minister and congregation of the Eighth Street Christian church extend a most cordial invitation to the public to attend the morning service tomorrow and hear Dr. Jas. A. Crain, Executive Secretary of the Department of Social Action of the Disciples of Christ. Dr. Crain is an authority in the field of the social applications of the principles of the religion of Jesus. Years of wide experience, extensive travel, and intensive study have well prepared him to speak to the people of a generation facing fundamental social issues in a disturbed world.

Attention Members Christian Church
On next Thursday night at 6:30 the members of this congregation will hold a Fellowship Supper in the church building. All members of the congregation are invited and it is expected that the response to this invitation will tax the accommodations of the church. Members are requested to advise either the minister or Mrs. B. B. Sugg, president of the Woman's Council, of their intention to attend.

Peace Pageant Sunday
Tomorrow evening the challenging question "Shall War or Peace Reign?" will be presented in pageant form at the Pitt Theatre at 7:30. The Greenville young peoples' group of the inter-denominational and nation-wide movement, "Christian Youth Building a New World," decided to use this pageant as their first project upon organizing under the great objective of re-building the world in Christ's name. Their activity is being guided and sponsored by both the Greenville Council for Peace Action and the Greenville Ministerial Association.

Chapter 47 STRANGE MEETING

EVERYTHING was quite quiet except for an occasional puff of wind rattling the windows and an occasional board creaking. Elsa shivered slightly. The creepy atmosphere of that house affected her nerves; she had an uneasy foreboding that something dreadful was going to happen.

Seconds passed; they seemed to drag like hours. She wished the night's work was over and everything settled satisfactorily. Very faintly from the distance she heard a church clock strike eleven, the hour of the appointment. But Mahony's note had said he might be late; she would probably have to wait some time yet.

Light footfalls mounted the front door-steps and crossed the hall. Elsa stood rooted, waiting; surely those footfalls were not Mahony's. The door of the room opened and Ruth Fraser entered.

For a long second the two girls stood looking at one another. Then Ruth spoke. "Where's Terence?" she asked. "I... I don't know," said Elsa. "He's not here yet."

Ruth frowned slightly. "How do you mean—not exactly a trap?" she demanded. "Is it a trap, or isn't it? Are you betraying Terence again?"

rather interfered with. However, those small mistakes can easily be rectified tonight. And I don't think our friend Mahony will be in a position to trouble me much longer." He stood there, a picture of triumph; malice, smiling at the two girls. Elsa drew away from him, staring at him with utter horror in her eyes.

"It... it was you who killed my uncle!" she gasped in an unbelieving tone. Lawson laughed. He was enjoying this situation, savouring every second of it. "It was I," he admitted boastfully. "And as Miss Fraser has remarked, I have every intention of killing Mahony tonight. This place is entirely surrounded by my men, and Mahony is coming out here alone. I'm really afraid that there's nothing you can do about it."

HE advanced quite calmly and casually into the room; his expression was serene and unperturbed. "Sorry I'm a bit late," he said to Elsa, and then to Ruth: "Hello Ruth, what are you doing here? I didn't know you'd be invited to the party."

With that she blurted out the whole plan which Lawson and she had conceived. Ruth listened; her face grew paler, but she made no comment until Elsa had finished. Then she spoke, and her voice was curiously flat and colorless.

"I believe you meant well," she said. "But you've betrayed Terence to his enemies. Lawson doesn't want to help you to send Terence abroad. He wants to kill Terence, as he killed your uncle."

Chapter 48 ANOTHER AMBUSH

HE took from his pocket a whistle and blew a long, shrill blast. Mahony leaned back against the wall, still smoking, but his hand remained in his coat pocket and his eyes were very alert and watchful.

Then Lawson's right came over in a smashing wallop that knocked Lawson clear across the room, to collapse in a heap in the corner. The revolver remained grasped in Mahony's hand.

HE stepped quickly to the window, thrust Elsa to one side and looked out. On his face was a look of utter stupefaction; and at the sight of his expression Elsa felt her hope revive again. Lawson stared out of the window, and as she stared all the color left his cheeks. Fixed, motionless, he stood there staring, and his expression was that of a trapped animal.

They came, closing in nearer and nearer, and Elsa felt the last dregs of hope drain from her as she watched their quiet, inexorable advance. And then suddenly she stiffened slightly with surprise, and leaned forward, peering anxiously at her breast.

They were policemen, remarked Mahony in a tone of one who gives out a casual piece of information. "That is, unless friend Inspector Kennedy has let me down. He said he'd meet me here this evening soon after eleven. I imagine he'll want to have a word with you too, Lawson, about that book of evidence I took from your safe just before I came along here tonight."

to his pocket. And Mahony had been waiting for that. As Lawson's hand moved, Mahony hurled himself forward from the wall in a swift, long jump, and was on him.

"Good work," said Inspector Kennedy. He turned to Lawson. "Ambrose Lawson, I arrest you on a charge of being concerned in the illegal sale of narcotic drugs. It is my duty to warn you that anything you say may be taken down and used as evidence at your trial. I also warn you that charges of a more serious nature will probably be preferred against you later."

DURING the Inspector's speech Lawson had risen to his feet. It was quite obvious to him that the game was up. What he had planned to be the hour of his triumph over Mahony was the hour of his doom.

Then he fell limply in their arms. Inspector Kennedy bent over him for a moment. But there was nothing to be done. Ambrose Lawson was dead.

"If you'd care for my escort, I could give you a lift home on my way," he said. "Thank you," she said. Mahony took Ruth home in a taxi. During the greater part of the drive both of them were rather silent. Now that all the excitement was over, both of them felt a little flat and washed out.

SPARKS FLYING IN POWER ROW

State and Federal Electrification Heads at Odds

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—Sparks are flying between the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority here and the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington over the situation in Johnston county and it would not surprise some observers to see some flames blown in the near future with reversionary that may reach the ears of Congress and President Roosevelt.

It has been known for months that Rural Electrification Administrator Morris L. Cooke in Washington and his entire outfit has heartily disliked the North Carolina REA largely because it succeeded in getting more than 2,000 miles of rural electric lines either built or under contract in North Carolina without any aid from the Cooke-administered REA in Washington.

The facts in the case are, however, that the NCREA tried to help Johnston county get its loan thru for more than two years, during which it managed to get an agreement from the C. P. and L. Co. not to build any lines, though it had no authority to prevent it from doing so, as the power company has a legal right to extend its lines in that territory at any time.

PHANTOMS TOP FARMVILLIANS

Locals Obtain 7 to 0 Victory Over Red Devils Here

The Green Phantoms of Greenville high school blanketed the Farmville Red Devils by a 7-0 score on Tuesday...

The weather yesterday was good for football, but some of the local fans apparently did not relish the idea of standing in a shower of rain to witness gridiron tactics...

Greenville's only touchdown was made by Tom (Parson) Parrish through the right side of the line. To make the victory 7-0 in preference to 6-0, Kenneth Lane Henderson made a line plunge for the extra point...

On various occasions throughout the game, both teams threatened to score, but their threats did not aid them. Before the Phantoms could reach the scoring vicinity for their touchdown, a 35 yard pass was completed from Pierce to Hodges...

Yesterday's defeat for Farmville was the third loss for the season. Other defeats for the Red Devils were meted out by the eleven of Dunn and Washington, both of whom have gone undefeated thus far this season...

During yesterday's game the locals made nine first downs, three fumbles, attempted nine passes and completed five, as compared with three first downs and three fumbles made by the Red Devils...

Outstanding players for the locals in yesterday's affair were Howard Hodges, Edward Conway, and Tom (Parson) Parrish, while Judy and Joyner forged to the front for honors on the Farmville eleven...

On Wednesday afternoon of next week, the Phantoms engage their long-time rivals—the Washington eleven, in an annual Armistice Day game at Washington.

All of the 24,000 seats in the concrete stands had been sold a week ago, but temporary stands to accommodate 8,000 more spectators have been installed.

The game will mark the renewal of one of the nation's keenest and most colorful gridiron rivalries dating back to 1889. Carolina holds the edge in the series, with 11 wins, six losses, and two ties.

The game this year will, in all probability, decide the championship of the Southern Conference. Duke, the defending champion, and Carolina were both undefeated prior to their contests Saturday and Wake Forest and Davidson.

Contrary to their rating last year, when they had bowled over all opposition by top-sided scores and were regarded as the best bet for the Bow invitation, the Tar Heels will enter the contest this year in the role of underdog.

Prior to the game this week-end, Carolina and Duke had lost only one contest, Carolina lost to Tulane 21-7 and Duke lost to Tennessee 15-13.

Rated a better team than the Blue Devils last year by two or three touchdowns, the Tar Heels shocked football fans throughout the nation by going down before a Blue Devil onslaught in a drizzling

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady one to four lower, with steady Liverpool cables offset by hedge selling and pre-bureau liquidation. March moved between 11.75 and 11.77, with prices generally unchanged to three points net lower at the end of the first half hour. Futures closed very steady, eight to 11 higher, spot steady, middling 12.35.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Spurred by wage boosts, bonuses, increasing earnings and dividends, industrial leaders rallied briskly in today's stock market. May forged into new high ground for the recovery with gains of fraction to three points of 20 generally and a few as much as five. Transfers were around 1,500,000 shares.

THE SPORTSMAN

The lowly coot, or mud hen, is not rated highly among game birds, but if one hankers for the taste of wild meat this queer little fowl, properly prepared, is right good eating. Mud hens migrate along with ducks and at times when the latter are scarce, hunters turn to water chickens for shooting. The body structure is more like that of a chicken than that of a duck. The flavor depends largely upon what they are getting for food. However, we suggest the following recipe:

Skin and draw and soak overnight in water to which has been added half a cup of salt, half a cup of vinegar and several onions cut in quarters. Place pan and contents on fire and boil slowly for 15 minutes. Remove birds, wash well, wipe dry, and place half an onion and half an apple in each and sew up. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Fix strips of bacon across breast, place in greased roaster and cook slowly about two hours or until tender. Remove apple and onion (which absorb any strong flavor) and serve the birds.

The same method may be followed in the preparation of golden-eyes, late season bluebirds, or any ducks which might be strong, except that ducks should be plucked and not skinned. Hargine ducks for several days helps, too. Some folks like all game birds high.

If you don't care for broiled or roasted venison, any hunter or hunter's wife can prepare it this way:

Cut in suitable pieces for serving, season with salt and pepper, dredge with flour or cracker crumbs and brown in butter until done. Remove from skillet and place in a covered pan in oven to keep warm. To the butter in which meat has been cooked add one tablespoon of flour and brown this without burning. Then add one cup of boiling water with a teaspoon of currant jelly dissolved in it. Stir a few minutes, pour the gravy over the meat and serve at once.

What! No venison or ducks? All right, suppose we have a mess of squirrels. Young ones are best fried. If in doubt as to tenderness, try the following method:

Disjoint, salt, pepper, roll in flour and brown quickly in hot fat. Then add some water, cover and let cook slowly until tender. Now remove the cover and turn the pieces often until the water has evaporated. Use the same skillet to make a cream gravy. (Have a big pan of biscuits baking in the oven at the same time.)

Just one more ordinary note about game. No small birds when roasted, should be skinned. The flesh is dry and the skin aids in retaining the juices. We know how easy it is to skin 'em, but a little more time spent in picking makes the birds taste a lot better.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds
By Robin Coons

Hollywood — Film factory: Driving an automobile in the movies is the safe way to drive. Errol Flynn and Kay Francis take a spin under the stars for a scene in "Another Dawn." As in most sequences nowadays wherein actors are seen riding toward the camera, their roadway and the scenery is all on a screen behind them, a movie within a movie, and the lifelike result is one of the modern screen miracles.

Errol and Kay are chatting whimsically about the stars, and Errol at the wheel turns frequently to look at Kay as he talks. Occasionally he turns the wheel slightly to "stay on" the winding road. From the prize-like strict attention to driving necessary, but in scenes like these movie stars are exempt from usual caution. The reader is mounted on a platform and prop men jiggle it for vibration while a huge fan blows Kay's hair in the wind. Between shots Kay resumes her knitting (something that looks like a dog sweater). When the camera starts, she drops it to the floor of the car and turns on the gayety and emotion.

The salt-and-cornflake snow is deep on the outdoor set where Sonja Henie, Adolphe Menjou, Arline Judge, Dixie Dunbar and the three Rita brothers are performing for "One In A Million." The warm Hollywood sun beats down, but this is a dramatic winter and all the players are in fur. Menjou, with a handful of stage currency, is paying off the girls in his theatrical troupe, and they are that surprised, money apparently having been absent from their lives for some time.

The director, Sidney Lanfield, says after the "take": "Mr. Arliss, do you object to another shot before lunch?" Menjou, for whom this is meant, smiles through his perspiration. Directors will have their little jokes, and of course Lanfield addresses the Ritzes as the Yacht Club boys.

On the "Happy-Go-Lucky" set Phil Regan, a football fan, has brought a piskin, and whoever on the set is responsible for a delay in production gets the pellet passed to him, which is as good an excuse to practice passing as any.

The scene today, although set in a Shanghai home, has a gridiron flavor. Phil and some other sailors are making a forced entrance, under Aubrey Scott's direction, into the house. They push past the butler, and race in a flying wedge play toward the defending rivals, also sailors. Phil yells, "There they are, boys—get 'em!"

After the "take" is done, Regan stands under the microphone and repeats the line, clearly. That is, so the audience will be sure to understand the signals, which might have been lost in the clatter of feet during the "take."

REPORTS INDICATE THAT WOMEN CAST HALF OF N. C. VOTE

(Continued from page one) viding them with jobs that would give them a small income, the Civilian Conservation Corps camps, which helped both the boys in the camps as well as their parents at home, and the WPA which provided work for the needy unemployed and provided food, clothing and shelter for many who otherwise would have had nothing, Mrs. Spilman said.

"The women of North Carolina, as well as of the nation, realized the importance of these agencies and of the work they were doing," Mrs. Spilman said. "They realize only too well how many of their children would not have been able to go to school, how many of their boys would have been without jobs, food or clothing, how many of their relatives would have been destitute if it had not been for these New Deal agencies and they were grateful and appreciative."

TURKEYS 'STREAMLINED' FOR HOLIDAY TRADE

Cynthiana, Ky. (AP)—And now its "streamlined" turkeys. Four thousand of the tasty birds are undergoing a holiday finish on a pellet ration on Harrison county turkey farms.

No loaves are the prized festive birds required to push their bills into mixtures of ground grain. Instead, a highly concentrated feed is pressed into tablet form and the turkeys swallow pills to perfect their lines.

The experiment has been so successful that many farmers in this area already have contracted for the sale of their entire stock for the holiday season.

Shaplier birds with a finer finish—streamlined.

Murders Increase in Indian Province

Simla, India.—(AP)—Murders in the northwest frontier province of India, which show a higher percentage to the population than in any other civilized state in the world, again increased last year.

Out of a total of 576 murders committed only 174 convictions were secured and only 78 murderers paid the penalty of their crime.

tion, an effort has yet been successful. State wardens, at times assisted by a Civilian Conservation Corps crew numbering as many as 50 men, have fought the fire at various intervals until it would burn out again. The fire fighters have trekked around the fire center, power tanks and lines of hose; power streams have directed from nearby streams have directed volumes of water against the fire, and virtually every practical means of suppression has been used to no avail so far, Mr. McCormick said. In addition, several inches of rainfall have failed to smother the flames.

In some places the peaty matter has turned to a depth of from 18 inches to three feet, McCormick said. One of the principal problems arises from the fact that the fire has apparently been out on several occasions but that the flame smolders and spreads underground, breaking out at new points. As a final effort, he declared, the fire-fighter are seeking to smother the fire and now seem to be meeting with success.

More Than 1,000 See New Chevrolet On Display Here

Chevrolet's new cars for 1937 made their local bow today at the White Chevrolet Co., Inc. salesroom, where some 1,050 persons had inspected the new product up to 2. Mr. Stafford reported the sale of 4 units, in addition to 72 which had been ordered prior to today.

The local dealer organization, numbering 36 employees were breakfast guests today of Mr. Stafford, who took that means of acknowledging us cooperation which enabled his company to gain such success in 1936. The event was one of 10,000 similar functions held in Chevrolet dealerships from coast to coast today.

Speaking in behalf of Mr. Holler and also in his own right, Mr. Stafford voiced gratification at the friendly relations between the Chevrolet organization and the community. "I am especially impressed," he said, "with the fine tribute owners have paid us by ordering 1937 cars 'sight unseen.' There could be no more striking proof of the faith they feel in Chevrolet."

Chevrolet's new passenger cars for 1937, comprising two new series of six models each, were introduced today with public showings throughout the United States. The two series, known respectively as the Master and Master De Luxe, are identical except for front spring suspension, rear axle and steering gear ratios, and accessories and trim.

On the Master De Luxe models, knee action, formerly optional at extra cost, is not only continued as a major feature, but furnished at no extra cost. Master models are available with semi-elliptic front springs only. All models of both series have safety plate glass all around at no additional charge. Although the cars are described as new from bumper to bumper, the change most obvious outwardly has to do with body lines. A new treatment, described as "diamond crown speeding styling" represents a distinct departure in design, and produces an impression of added fleetness and grace. The change, however, goes deeper than appearance. For the bodies are entirely new. They introduce unexcelled construction, in which solid steel turret top, steel side panels, steel double cowling and steel floor are welded together to form a permanently silent unit. Even the doors are all steel.

The bodies are mounted on a chassis which is also new, with the new six-cylinder high-compression valve-in-head engine developing 89 horsepower, new box-girder chassis frame combining rigidity and lightness, and hypoid rear axle drive gears.

Chevrolet engineers emphasize the fact that the 1937 model adheres closely to engineering principles which Chevrolet has developed through constant improvement year after year. They are more compact, with a gain in strength and a reduction in weight. Better hill-climbing and acceleration, with marked smoothness, durability and economy, characterize the performance of the entire new line.

Both body and chassis refinements contribute to noteworthy advances in safety, comfort, driving ease, and general owner satisfaction. The use of hypoid gears has lowered over-all height, and with it, the center of gravity, a change which, in conjunction with wider-spaced rear springs, and larger cross-section tires on wider rims, makes for greater stability on the road. The power plant and the body are re-located on the frame, the body being longer and wider, with the floor 2-1/16 inches lower than in the 1936 Master De Luxe. The increase in width at the floor line in the front compartment is almost five inches, across the front at windshield level, 1-1/2 inches, and between the doors across the front seat, two inches. Wider windshield and larger windows increase visibility and contribute much to safety.

Ample provision for luggage is made in every model. Town sedan and sport sedan in each line have spacious trunks, and models without trunks or rear decks have commodious space behind the seat. Each model also has a package ledge across the top of the rear seat, as well as a locking compartment in the instrument panel.

The same power plant is used in both series. It is entirely new, and is introduced as the highest refinement of the valve-in-head design, for which Chevrolet has been known over a long period of years. In it, the bore is increased from 3-5/16 to 3-1/2 inches, and the stroke reduced from 4 to 3-3/4 inches. The displacement being stepped up from 208.8 to 216.5 inches, and the compression ratio raised from 6-to-1 to 6.25-to-1.

The crankshaft of the new engine has four bearings instead of three. Bearings are of the steel-backed babbit type. The 61-pound crankshaft is counter-balanced and equipped with harmonic balancer, lighter and more sensitive than that previously employed. Lighter, dome-head pistons, shorter and stiffer connecting rods, four-bearing camshaft, and manifold system with thermostatic heat control, are among the power plant's other new features.

Driving ease is increased, and durability enhanced, by the completely new Synco-Mesh transmission in the new models. It is more compact and rigid, and the synchronizing mechanism is improved through the use of simplified cone clutches.

Sedan, Coach, Business Coupe, Sport Sedan with trunk, and Town Sedan with trunk are available in both series. In addition, there is a Sport Coupe with rumble seat in the Master De Luxe series, and a Cabriolet with rumble seat on the Master chassis, finished with de luxe appearance features.
