Government and Business at Odds as Session Begins

FARMERS ENJOY LARGEST INCOME

Predicted, However, Steady Improvement Cannot Be Maintained During this Year

Washington, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Charges and recriminations between government and industry formed an acrimonious background today for the convening of Congress Monday.

The sharpness of the exchanges centered speculation on the attitude President Roosevelt would take in his annual congressional message. Spokesmen for industry and some Democratic Senators were urging the chief executive to offer co-operation.

Congress will assemble in joint session to hear the address which may chart the course of the administration for the coming months. The speech will be broadcast Monday about 1:30 P. M. eastern standard time.

Meanwhile Agricultural Department officials predicted the steady economic improvement farmers have enjoyed for five years has little chance of continuing through 1938.

The national cash farm income reached $3,500,000,000 in 1937, compared $4,328,000,000 in 1932, but, they said, there are too many adverse factors to expect that such gains can be maintained.

Secretary Wallace warned in a New Year's statement surpluses of agricultural products again threatened to engulf food and fiber producers.

Pointing out farm production in 1937 was the largest on record, Wallace appealed to industry "to match closely the abundance of farm production."

"The farmer must have markets for abundance if he is to keep producing bountifully," he declared.

Other developments:
A fixed price of 64.64 cents an ounce for domestically mined silver became effective to the expressed disappointment of Western Congressmen who had asked the President to maintain the previous figure of 77.37 cents.

Mrs. Mary Hatem Claimed By Death

Mrs. Mary Curry Hatem, 63, died at her home, 1023 Chestnut Street, Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock from an illness of the past year.

Mrs. Hatem, a native of New Bern, had made her home in Greenville for the past 20 years. She was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

Funeral services will be conducted from St. Peter's Catholic church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Father Charles Gable. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery beside her late husband.

Surviving are one son, Francis Hatem, four grand children and several nieces and nephews all of Greenville.

Heflin Seriously Ill Of Pneumonia

Lafayette, Ala., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Dr. N. A. Wheeler said today lobes pneumonia, which attacked former Senator Thomas Heflin a week ago, was "clearing up" but a stomach disorder complicated his condition.

An oxygen tent remained over Heflin and Dr. Wheeler said he would probably see it until tomorrow. The former Senator's temperature was 99.4 today.

An attack of "templeitis," causing dilation of the stomach, has prevented the 68-year-old politician taking any nourishment or water for his last 24 hours, the physician said, but he expressed belief this condition was abating.

Heflin was stricken in the midst of a campaign which he hoped would return him to the United States Senate. The election is set for next Tuesday.

PANAY FILMS TURNED OVER TO NAVY OFFICIALS

Norman Alley (right), newsreel photographer who filmed the bombing and sinking of the U. S. gunboat Panay by Japanese planes in the Yangtze river, is shown in Washington, D. C., describing the attack to Charles Edison, Assistant Secretary of the Navy. High army and navy officials attended a private showing of the newsreel and listened attentively to Alley's personal account of the incident. A full page of Norman Alley's Panay bombing pictures will be found on page three.

OFFICERS GET STILLS FRIDAY

Two Destroyed in Pitt County by Ward and Taylor

Pitt county ABC officers J. M. Ward and J. I. Taylor yesterday afternoon located and destroyed two stills, one in Belvoir township and the other in Greenville township. Neither of the plants was in operation.

The still found in Belvoir township was a steam outfit and was located near the Edgecombe county line. Approximately 1,400 gallons of beer found about the still was destroyed.

The one found in Greenville township had not been operated in a week or 10 days, officers said.

On Wednesday of this week the two officers, working in cooperation with Beaufort county ABC officers located and destroyed two stills situated in Beaufort county. One was a big steam plant which was under construction and had not even been operated. It was located near Batt's crossroads.

The other, a copper outfit, was in operation when officers came upon it, but the operator fled and the officers were unable to apprehend them. Approximately 6,000 gallons of beer was about the plant and five gallons of whiskey had been run.

Policeman S. Henry Martin of Beheh assisted in the capture of the still near the Edgecombe county line.

J. C. Proctor Opens Accounting Firm Here

John C. Proctor, son of the late W. E. Proctor of this city, has returned to Greenville and opened an accounting office on the second floor of the H. A. White & Sons building.

Mr. Proctor, a certified public accountant, has been connected with Ernst and Ernst of New York, for the past nine years.

He has moved his family here and is living at 403 Lewis street.

Democrats To Be Guests At Jackson Day Dinner

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Jan. 1.—Those good Democrats who contribute $25 to the Congressional campaign of 1938 will be guests of the Democratic National Committee at a Jackson Day dinner here January 8, according to announcement of R. L. McMillan, managing director of the drive to collect $12,500 in the state.

Other good Democrats, who have not kicked in to the tune of $25, will be permitted to attend the dinner, eat and listen for a more nearly nominal sum—say $2 though the exact price hasn't been announced.

For the occasion there will be a guest speaker (it will not be Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland)

False Alarms

Sleepy-eyed firemen today said they could see why pranksters might have a desire to turn in a false alarm at the exact hour the old year was going out and the new coming in, but declared they could see no excuse for anyone calling them out two hours later for no reason at all.

Three false alarms were sounded last night. The first came in at exactly midnight from First street. The others were sounded shortly after two o'clock. One came from a box near the Imperial Tobacco Company building and the other from the box at Tenth and Reade streets.

After having to answer three false alarms last night, local firemen made another unnecessary trip this afternoon when someone tried to mail a letter in the fire alarm box on the corner of Evans and Third St.

The alarm was sounded at 3:40 o'clock and attracted numerous spectators at the business corner before the mistake was discovered.

30,000 PLANES READY FOR WAR

International Rearmament Derby Emphasized by Fact

By DEVON FRANCIS

(Associated Press Aviation Editor)

At least 30,000 military airplanes ready for war duty the world over, today emphasized the state of the fifth year of the international rearmament derby.

First evidenced in 1934, the intensive preparation for national emergency by the major powers of 1938, no evidence of stoppage in 1938.

With international tension unabated in the Orient and Europe, the number of destructive flying machines on six continents is estimated to have been increased 75 percent since 1934.

HUNTERSVILLE OFFICER SLAIN

Night Policeman Killed by Unidentified White Man

Huntersville, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Night Policeman J. A. Rape was shot to death early today by an unidentified white man who escaped.

Joe Kearns and Lee Mullins, the policeman's companions, told Dr. Fred Austin, Mecklenburg county coroner, Rape died almost immediately after being rushed to a physician's office.

Kearns and Mullins told the coroner they were walking with Rape in front of the telephone exchange on the main street here, when a man shot from the darkness and ran. They said they were able to ascertain only that the man was white.

Officers here expressed belief the slayer had been surprised by the men's appearance while attempting a robbery.

Rape, formerly of Monroe, became night policeman five months ago.

The coroner said an inquest would be held later today.

Five Cases Heard In Mayor's Court

Five cases were tried in City Police court this morning, all of the defendants being Negroes. Two were bound over to County court, one on a liquor charge and the other for larceny.

Tim Little, convicted of drunkenness, was fined $5 and taxed with court costs.

Harry Price was convicted of trespass and ordered to leave town or serve a 30-day sentence on the roads.

Alec Smith was taxed with costs of court upon conviction of drunkenness.

Louise Williams was ordered held under bond of $200 for his appearance in County court to face a charge of selling whiskey.

Annie Dorson was placed under bond of $200 on a charge of larceny. Both of the defendants bound over probably will be tried at Tuesday's session of County court.

John Sprunt Hill To Quit Politics

Durham, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Reasonably authoritative word was passed in Durham political circles today that State Senator John Sprunt Hill would not be a candidate for re-election to the upper chamber of the North Carolina General Assembly this year.

While Hill preferred not to make a statement he did not deny it. Unless the voters of the 16th Senatorial district draft him again in the June primary, he prefers to withdraw for the present from the stress and strain of public life and rest a bit.

The 16th Senatorial district embraces the counties of Durham, Orange, Alamance and Caswell.

GRENADES HIT JAP SOLDIERS IN SETTLEMENT

Fear Campaign Of Terror Under Way In Shanghai

FOUR INJURED; TWO SERIOUSLY

Segment Of Mighty Japanese War Machine Completes R. R. Domination

Shanghai, Jan. 1.—(AP)

Five bursting hand grenades hurled into a body of marching Japanese soldiers and gendarmes in the heart of the International Settlement today aroused apprehension that a Chinese campaign of terror was underway in this Japanese-dominated metropolis.

Four of the Japanese were injured, two seriously, at the busy intersection of Pukien and Hankow roads, along with several Chinese pedestrians, including a woman.

Cooperating with municipal police, Japanese troops and gendarmes immediately surrounded the district and made a room to room search of a large Chinese hotel from which it was thought the bombs were tossed.

Simultaneously it was reported a small bomb had been thrown at a Japanese cotton mill and a pistol fusillade fired into the building. No one was reported injured in that incident.

The Japanese were marching to the Shanghai race track for exercise when two, then three, grenades burst about them. Several small groups of Japanese sight-seers also were in the vicinity.

While Japanese authorities tried to round up the Shanghai terrorists, a mighty segment of the Japanese war machine maneuvered in Shanghai province to complete the domination of the Tientsin-Pukow railway and isolate the province.

Japanese reports from Nanking, former capital of the Central Chinese government and now in Japanese control, said meanwhile, the Russian Embassy had been completely destroyed by fire.

New Construction On Decrease Here

Greenville citizens were too busy planning for Christmas and the new year to start much new construction during December, or else neglected to get a permit.

Only three such permits were issued during the month, compared with nine during November. Total cost of the three was estimated at $7,500. The nine issued in November called for construction to cost $30,900.

Permits issued in December follow:
Salvation Army, to erect a one-story wood building to be used as a church on Dickinson avenue between Washington and Higgs street estimated cost $2,000.

T. G. Campbell, erect a one-story six room frame dwelling on Third street between Sumner and Reade, estimated cost $3,500.

R. M. Garrett and J. S. Ficklen, to erect a one-story garage on Washington street between Green and Evans, estimated cost $2,000.

Serving Warrants On Alleged Bootleggers

Special law enforcement officers employed by the Pitt County ABC board and members of the City police force today were serving a number of warrants on alleged dealers in illicit whiskey traffic.

The raids began this morning and continued throughout the day.

Little Selba Davis Is Claimed By Death

Selba Jean Davis, four-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Selby Davis of Simpson, died this morning at five o'clock at the home.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at the grave in the family cemetery near Sims.

She is survived by her parents, one sister, Joyce; her paternal grandfather, Albert Davis of Sims; and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Hamilton of Sims.

Insurgents Take Teruel; Two War Correspondents Killed In Bloody Battle

THEY WERE WEDDED TODAY

Their New Year's wedding will be free as the marriage license clerk and a physician who made required physical examinations charge no fees, and a justice of the peace said he would donate his services. The bride and groom-to-be hail from Granite City, Ill.

SUDDEN DEATH CLAIMS MANY MEXICO LIFTS WAGE DEMAND

Reports of 29 States Up to Noon Show 104 Victims

(By The Associated Press)

The symbolic scythe of the departing old year cut a wide swath of sudden deaths across the United States yesterday and today.

Fragmentary reports from 29 states up to noon showed 104 had been killed.

Automobile accidents, in most cases under conditions of snow and ice, accounted for 90 of these deaths.

Of the remaining 14 violent deaths reported, about half was listed by police as suicide.

Ohio, suffered the highest number of automobile fatalities, with 14 reported deaths before noon of New Year's day, while Pennsylvania was (Continued on Page Two)

Court To Decide On Govt.-Decreed Boost

Mexico City, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The government's labor board today suspended application of government decreed wage increase wages in the oil industry until the Supreme Court rules on the question.

Sixteen American and British companies with investment totaling $4,000,000 were involved. They had refused to pay the increases which were to have gone into effect last midnight and appealed the findings of an arbitration board to the Supreme Court.

The arbitration board December 18 awarded wage increases and other benefits which the company said would cost them $11,200,000 annually, a burden they said they could not assume. The board said the annual cost would be only $7,200,000.

Zebulon Man Suicide.

Raleigh, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Coroner L. M. Waring said today Ben May, Jr., 17, of Wendell, shot himself fatally yesterday in Zebulon. Waring said the death was clearly suicide.

State Launches Program For Game Conservation

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Jan. 1.—Rescued on the brink of extinction, wild life in North Carolina faces a happy New Year.

Last year there were only 42,000 acres of protected game refuges in North Carolina. In 1938 the heavy boots of game protectors will go through the snow of 165,000 acres of protected game land in Nantahala and Pisgah Forest—the largest cooperative game propagation and management program ever undertaken between the United States Forest Service and a state conservation department.

The Forest Service selected North Carolina for this experiment in recognition of the state's "model" setup, officials say. Under the cooperative plan, the land for game refuges is provided from the 487,000 acres of national forests in the state, while supervision and patrolling the refuges is in the hands of the game division of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

With a broadening program, the Forest Service looks forward to the day when the land under its control will become public hunting grounds for deer, bear, squirrel, quail, grouse and other game of almost limitless variety. Public hunting is already permitted in the national forests.

AUTO BEARING NEWSMEN HIT

Two Other Reporters, One of Them Edward Neil of the Associated Press, Injured When Group Runs Into Artillery Barrage in Village On Edge of Teruel

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 1.—(AP)

Spain's Insurgent legions were reported today in complete control of Teruel after the greatest battle of the civil war—a bloody struggle of 200,000 men in which four war correspondents were wounded, two mortally.

Automobile in which the four reporters, two of them Americans,

The dead:
B. G. Johnson, Jr., about 26, correspondent for "Spur" and "News Wee"—Ghest pierced by metal fragments.

E. R. S. Sheepshears, about 32, of Reuters (British News Agency)—Shrapnel in face, shoulder and left eye.

The injured:
Edward Neil of the Associated Press, wounded in left thigh.

Harry Thibby of the Times of London—head injury.

Havas (French News Agency) reported the four men were in the party of 11 correspondents accompanied by Insurgent press officers who were following the tide of the battle in five cars.

On the edge of a village a mile northwest of Teruel the procession ran into an artillery barrage with which the slowly retreating government forces were trying to hold up the Insurgent advance yesterday afternoon.

Vehicle Division Foregoes Holiday

Raleigh, Jan. 1.—(AP)—While other state offices today observed the New Year's Day holiday, the Motor Vehicle Division worked to supply late comers with 1938 auto licenses.

The division reported through yesterday sale of 1938 tags had totaled 261,064 compared with 172,037 for 1937 licenses through December 31, 1936. More than 300,000 plates for 1937 were sold.

After today, said Major Arthur Pulk, State Highway Patrol commanding officer, drivers or owners of cars not bearing 1938 licenses will be subject to citation to court.

He has instructed patrolmen to stop all cars bearing 1937 licenses today, though, he said, motorists are being given an opportunity to show they made an effort to get new plates but could not because of crowds in tag dispensaries.

Northeast Struck By Severe Storm

Boston, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A North-east storm whipped across New England today blanketing most of the six states with several inches of snow and weather bureau officials predicted more would continue to fall throughout the night in some areas with possibility of rain in others.

New Year's Eve Dance.

Last night from 10:00 until 2:00 o'clock at the Country Club the German Club entertained at a New Year's Eve dance. The Yuletide motif was effectively expressed in the green pine boughs and red candles on the mantels of the fireplace; vari-colored balloons were affixed to the light fixtures and accented the colorful scene. Music was furnished by "Bear" Johnson and his orchestra. At twelve o'clock favors, horns, serpentine, etc., were passed out among the dancers by Mr. and Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Young, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Boye. The clusters of balloons were released in mid-air. At this time the Grand March was formed and led by Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hadley and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ormond. Tomato juice cocktails, and hors d'oeuvres were served during the evening.

Progressive Dinner Party.

Last night some members of the younger social set entertained at a progressive dinner party celebrating the approach of the new year. Hostesses were: the Misses Elizabeth Wilson, Helen Flanagan, Marion Tyson, Jane Garrett, Jean Blount, Margaret Harris, Jean Jones, Frances Spilman, and Jamie Merritt. For the first course the guests went to the home of Miss Jean Garrett, where they were served tomato juice cocktails and hors d'oeuvres. From there they went to Miss Jean Blount's for the meat course. Next, Miss Frances Spilman served the salad course at her home. Dancing was enjoyed between courses. In all the homes Yuletide decorations prevailed and added a gay note to a gala occasion. After the salad course, the guests proceeded to the theatre where they viewed the picture "Tovarich." When the picture was over they went to the home of Miss Elizabeth Wilson where they were served ice cream and cake. Dancing ended a very enjoyable evening.

What Greenville Has Done In The Way of New Buildings

During the past year Greenville has made a good record in the way of building improvements. Some of the building improvements made are listed below:

Large additions were made to the Gorman-Campbell tobacco factory. Eight rooms were added to the Hotel Macon.

S. T. Hooker had a dwelling house built on Greene street.

The Greenville warehouse was rebuilt and made better than ever.

A handsome residence was built by Dr. E. A. Moye opposite the Academy.

A large public school for the colored race was built in West Greenville.

A small building for a store and a barber shop was put up on Fourth street near the postoffice.

WANTS TWO YEARS FOR OLD-TIME PLANE

Ontario, Calif. (AP)—Ross Hadley, business man and aviation enthusiast wanted one of the famous "Jenny" planes flown in the World war, and was willing to wait and pay to get it. So for two years aeronautics students at Chaffey Junior college have been rehabilitating the craft and have spent $1,000 of Hadley's money for parts. They now promise delivery "in about six months."

or more per cent in 1937.

A quarter of the increase, however, went to replacement of obsolete or obsolete equipment. The net gain for the 12 months, based on reports of factory production, appeared to be about 12,000 machines.

Most notable among the new disciples of armament in the air was Japan. A $70,000,000 program for building civil air fields, training pilots, completing Japan's Central Aviation Research Institute, and encouraging large scale production of aircraft machinery is underway.

The biggest unknown element in the international picture is the Soviet air force, estimated to have as high as 4,500 airplanes. In Russia, too, civil flying is an adjunct of the military, and announced, but as yet unfilled plans, call for training 15,000 persons as pilots.

In first-line airplanes, the United States has less than 2,000 in the army and navy, but the procurement program is heavy. C. G. Gray editor of "All The World Aircraft," last month ranked America's air force as one of the largest and "possibly the most efficiently equipped in the world."

Pictures Tell Story of Bombing of American Gunboat Panay

The scenes below of Norman Alley's Panay pictures depict graphically various angles of the international incident which seriously strained relations between the United States and Japan. The pictures were obtained exclusively by the Associated Press for newspaper reproduction in this country. Alley, who made many of the shots from the deck of the Panay during the bombardment, suffered shrapnel wounds.

High above the U. S. gunboat Panay, as it lies on the Yangtze river sheltering refugees from Nanking, appears a Japanese bombing plane—grim harbinger of the rain of death to come.

From their quarters below deck the crew of the Panay rush to their posts, standing by to repel the threatened attack from the sky as best they can.

Manning machine guns with which they can hardly hope to discourage their attackers, sailors on the Panay train their ineffectual weapons aloft. Chief Boatwain's Mate Mahlmann (right) lost his trousers in the shuffle.

Tragedy hero—Chief Boatwain's Mate Mahlmann, who risked death to return to the sinking boat for supplies.

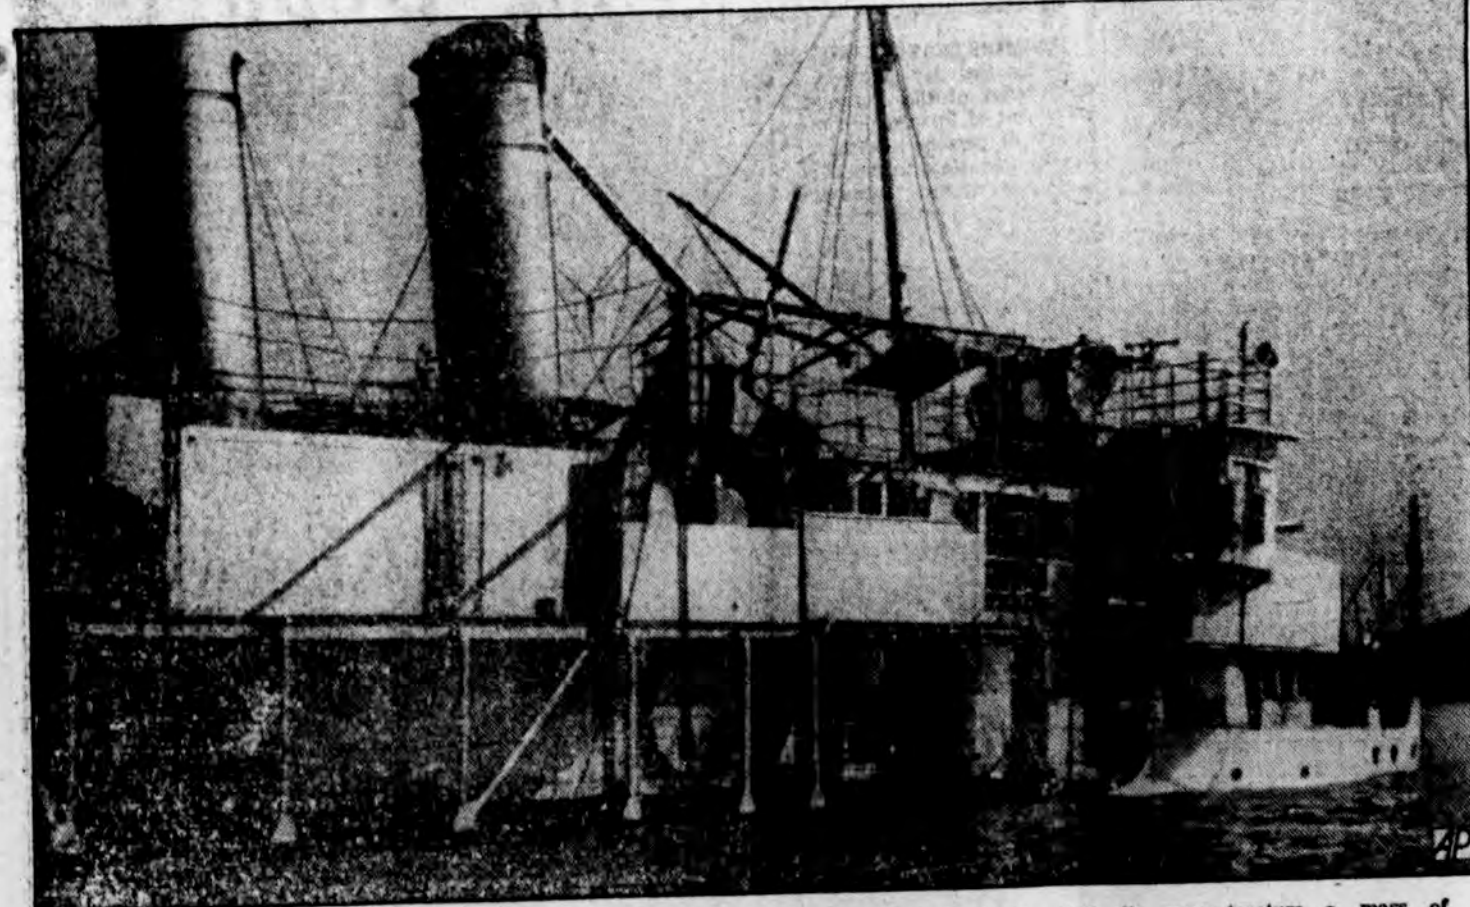

Man overboard, but rescuers are ready at the rail of the Panay. Two sailors, one with a wound in his shoulder, go to the aid of an unfortunate compatriot floundering in the Yangtze.

Abandoning the doomed Panay to its fate, survivors of the bombardment by Japanese planes put off in small boats to seek shelter on the reedy river banks.

One bomb that missed its mark, but not by much, strikes the water close to the Panay, from which this picture was made. At the left is the Standard Oil tanker Melping, one of three destroyed at the same time.

Down, down, down sinks the good ship Panay, its flag (right) no longer flying gallantly in the winds, its superstructure a mass of tangled wreckage, one deck already covered by water. It settled to the bottom of the Yangtze a few minutes later.

Panay Commander James J. Hughes, badly wounded, carried on bravely as he lies concealed in the reeds of the Yangtze river after the attack on his ship.

A bandage holds his chin up and wounded Chief Quartermaster John Land of the ill-fated Panay scans the troubled skies from his weedy refuge as though fearing Japanese bombers will return to continue the attack.

No soft beds are these in which the Panay wounded lie. When the gunboat was attacked and sunk survivors gave succor to the injured in the reeds of the Yangtze river banks.

A Panay stretcher case was this victim shown being carried thru a village by Chinese soldiers after survivors deemed it safe to leave their river bank refuge.

Returning on one party with the dead and wounded is sufficient evidence of their courage, discipline and fortitude. Flag-draped casket on the U. S. S. Oahu, escorted by U. S. S. Ladybird bear the bodies of American sailors to Shanghai.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters

Nelda, a beautiful, courageous girl, who is struggling with a lettuce farm, falls in love with Reck. Bill is a tanned, young lettuce farmer. He and Nelda are drawn together, in spite of frequent flare-ups.

Reck, a wealthy playboy, proposes to Nelda, after placing her in an awkward situation.

Mrs. Reckless, Reck's cold mother, seems to dislike Nelda, but strangely consents to the engagement.

Jack, Nelda's younger brother, has left medical school, and disappeared.

Chapter 23

The Future Mrs. Reckless

NELDA and Bill became silent as they approached the place where Reck was drawing to a stop. There was a smile on his lips, a high, carefree look in his audacious eyes. Both faded when he saw Bill.

Apparently Bill became aware of the other man's displeasure over his presence, for he said quickly, "I won't be able to stay for dinner after all, Nelda. I have another engagement that I completely forgot." Holding himself very straight, he strode to his car, throwing a brief, "Lo, Reckless," to Nelda's friend.

Reck gave him only a cool nod. Bill's old sedan clattered away, making such a racket that speech between Nelda and Reck was impossible for a few moments.

"What's that hick Casanova doing here?" Reck's voice flicked out impatiently.

"He came to see me about plowing."

Reck's laugh was suspicious. "I don't like him hanging around here," he declared.

"Don't be like that, Reck," Nelda's voice was charged with impatience now.

He regarded her in silence for a moment, then he grinned.

"Look, lady!" He extended his hands, palms up. "There's nothing up my sleeve, yet I put my hand in here." He slipped it into his coat pocket. "Attention!"

"I'm all eyes and ears." "This is something more important than plowing." With a flourish he brought forth a small purple velvet box and lifted the cover.

Nelda gasped in sheer astonishment and pleasure for she was gazing upon a beautiful engagement ring. He turned it so the facets caught the light.

"Reck!" was all she could say.

He slipped the ring upon her finger, then took her in his arms and kissed her lingeringly.

"Mother told me to bring you back for dinner," he said as he released her.

Had she misjudged Mrs. Reckless's reaction to her, after all, Nelda wondered. Perhaps she did have some sort of a complex about the haughty woman because she was Reck's mother.

"I'd planned to have steaks on the grill Bill and I made," she said slowly.

"You said he came about plowing!" Reck flared. Jealousy looked out of his eyes and his mouth trembled a little.

"That's what he really came for, but he took pity on me when he saw me working, and he finished the grill."

"I don't see why you fuss around with things like that."

"It was fun. But look here, Reck! You have nothing to worry about so far as Bill Langdon is concerned. Why—he disapproves of me."

"That straight?"

"Definitely."

"Suppose he does disapprove of you," Reck persisted. "That doesn't keep you from feeling some interest in him."

"I don't spoil things, Reck."

"You have absolutely no cause to be jealous of Bill Langdon. He's nothing to me."

He gazed at her, his brows contracted for a moment. Then his anger seemed to melt as suddenly as it had come.

"Let's forget it. Dinner will be formal tonight. Guests from the city."

How she did groom herself for that dinner. Her efforts were amply rewarded by Reck's first look at her. His eyes flicked with admiration.

"You look marvelous!" he cried. "Exactly like the future Mrs. Earl Reckless!"

Wedding In Paris?

THAT night, for the first time, Nelda met Reck's father. Mr. Reckless was a portly man with white hair and alert gray eyes that studied Nelda sharply.

"How do you do, Miss Barrie," he greeted without smiling.

Mrs. Reckless, wearing a smart blue lace gown, was cordially itself to her prospective daughter-in-law. She kissed the girl's smooth young cheek and told her she looked lovely. Yet Nelda kept wondering what was really in the woman's mind, what was under that beautifully coiffed hair.

"My son's fiancée," Mrs. Reckless introduced Nelda to the important-looking man and beautiful blond girl who were the other guests. "Mr. Nelson and his daughter Vivian, Nelda."

Vivian wore a pale pink satin frock with no back. Her eyes were very blue and set too close together. She greeted Nelda coolly. Nelda didn't miss the fact that her rose-leaf color deepened at sight of Reck.

"She hates me," thought Nelda. "She's in love with Reck."

After dinner Mr. Reckless and Mr. Nelson went to the library to talk business.

"They'll discuss stocks and bonds until midnight or after," Mrs. Reckless said. "Won't you play for us, Vivian?"

"I'll be delighted," Vivian answered readily.

"You turn the music for her, Earl," Mrs. Reckless ordered sweetly.

Nelda found herself seated beside Mrs. Reckless on a davenport at the far end of the room, while Reck and Vivian were at the piano at the other end. Oddly, Nelda had a feeling that the whole evening had boiled down to herself and Mrs. Reckless and something that had to be settled between them.

"When do you and Earl plan to be married, my dear?" the woman inquired and placed her hand on Nelda's arm in a light, feeling gesture.

"We haven't set the date yet," Nelda answered and regarded Mrs. Reckless gravely. "I haven't told him yet—but—"

"Yes?"

"I'd like to finish college first."

She felt that with her sheepskin she'd be bringing more to the Reckless family than just her mere self. Too, she was pinning some vague hope upon the possession of her diploma, as if it would be an open sesame to everything she'd ever dreamed about.

"I think you are showing very good judgment." It seemed that a mask on Mrs. Reckless's face slipped a little. "Reck will travel while you're in school." Nelda gave a start, and Mrs. Reckless fixed upon her a kindly, encouraging smile.

"Perhaps we can arrange it so that you can meet him abroad some place for the marriage."

"Meet him abroad?" Nelda had always thought of weddings as home and family affairs.

"How would you like to be married in Paris?"

"I don't—know," Nelda faltered. "You don't know?" Mrs. Reckless said, a faintly incredulous accent on the words.

"I'm thinking of my mother. She—"

Blaze Of Anger

THE music stopped at that moment, and Reck started toward his mother and Nelda.

"Please play the Blue Danube, Vivian," Mrs. Reckless requested.

"You don't appear to be listening to the music," Reck accused.

"I can talk and listen, too. Blue Danube, Vivian," Mrs. Reckless said sweetly.

Nelda wondered if she imagined there was a command under that sweetness. At any rate, Vivian and Reck both turned back to the piano.

"You were saying something about your mother, Nelda," Mrs. Reckless said as soon as Vivian started playing.

"My mother would want to see me married."

"We'll have to make other arrangements then. But time will take care of that." The words came smooth, convincing, yet Mrs. Reckless gave a faint sigh as if she had accomplished something she had set out to do.

"But I want you to go to Europe with me!" Reck exclaimed petulantly on the way back to the piano when Nelda told him of her decision to return to college.

"I really feel I should graduate, Reck."

"Evidently you think more of that than you do of me."

"I'm fonder of you than anybody," she said. "You've been the one bright spot in my new life—but somehow graduation spells heaven to me, Reck."

"Of all the cockeyed ideas!" he stormed.

His face grew set.

"I think your mother wants it that way, Reck."

"Why are you always throwing my mother in my face?" he demanded violently.

Her anger dashed against his. In a flash they were quarreling heatedly.

"I know your mother doesn't like me—and never will!" she blazed. "It's your environment she does not like. That's why I want to get you out of it. But not you—you won't be dragged away from it."

Nelda was now thoroughly indignant, and her eyes flashed defiantly. "Of all the snooty—"

Words choked in her throat. She pulled off her engagement ring and handed it to him.

"Thanks." He thrust the ring into his pocket.

DIXIE HIGHLIGHTS

A MONUMENT TO AN INSECT! Such is the unique distinction claimed by Enterprise, Alabama. Prior to the advent of the boll weevil in 1915, the average cotton crop of this county was 35,000 bales, but due to the ravages of the pest, this was cut down to but 3000 after the third year. Realizing that they would be ruined unless something was done, the progressive planters tried out diversified farming with amazing results. So great was the yield of peanuts, corn, hay, sweet potatoes and other commodities that this section broke the world's record for cash return on area involved. The return was about five million dollars. The inscription reads: "In profound appreciation of the boll weevil and what it has done as a herald of prosperity, this monument is erected by the citizens of Enterprise, Alabama December, 1919."

Strange to say, the familiar COCKLEBUR, generally regarded as a pest, yields a valuable oil for use in paints and varnishes. It is even adaptable for food! After going through a process that removes both the hulls and husks of the cocklebur, the pulverized kernels are wrapped in cheese cloth and pressed between steel plates. The oil thus secured is allowed to settle, after which it is filtered. It has a clear sparkling appearance and a pleasant, nutty taste. Since it keeps well without becoming rancid, it could well take the place of other oils more extensively used.

lustre and sheen to the fur of the animals.

"We contracted to sell 1,000,000 pounds of jack-rabbit meat to fur growers before we actually had one pound in sight," said Winters. Then it was up to me to produce the jack-rabbits."

Trying Canning

Within a few weeks we had 50 packing plants processing rabbit meat in western states. To keep them busy, he organized rabbit drives in scores of communities, paying for every rabbit that was killed. School children, the American Legion and farm organizations cooperated. The farmers were glad to get paid for killing rabbits because they destroy field crops.

The meat is frozen at 10 degrees below zero, then ground with fruits, vegetables and cereals for fox feed.

"Now we are experimenting with canning and if we are successful it will open the markets of Europe to us," Winters said. "The possibilities are almost limitless."

Washington Daybook

Washington—One of the things interfering with the housing program is the age-old tradition that a man and his family should not be hastily expelled from his home for debt.

One of the means by which federal housing authorities hope to keep down the costs of financing private home building is keeping foreclosure costs low. Many states have put up high barriers against hasty foreclosure with the result that when a home building contract goes "sour" it sometimes takes many months of litigation to get the purchaser out so that a new buyer may take possession. The result is to increase the cost of financing the job—and thus to make the financing less inviting as an investment.

Delayed Eviction Expense

Here is the picture as some housing officials see it:

A man comes to his bank asking a contract to build a house costing $5,000. Under the new housing act he will have to pay down ten per cent, $500. The bank will lend him the rest and the Federal Housing Authority will insure the whole $4,500 loan, which thus equals 90 per cent of the value of the house to be built.

When the house is built the buyer takes it over and begins paying off the loan in monthly installments. Except for the original $500 down payment, it is just like renting a house. Of course if all goes well, the buyer owns the house at the end of 17 to 20 years.

But suppose at the end of six months, or a year, the buyer loses his job, or perhaps just becomes ornery and decides not to make any more monthly payments. What then? Under laws in some states the buyer can be expelled from the house in three weeks to a month under foreclosure proceedings. In the District of Columbia it can be done in three weeks.

But in many other states, New York and Illinois are examples, the buyer can escape eviction for a year or more, meantime making no payments and ignoring other terms of the sales contract. The Home Owners Loan Corporation, also in the mortgage field has occasionally spent two years evicting an owner who refused to make payments.

Change Comes Slow

When that happens, the loss on the deal is greater than any possible profit to the bank making the loan at 8 to 5 1/2 per cent interest. The result has been, federal housing authorities comment, that there has been a "tendency" on the part of some banks in these long delay foreclosure states to look two times before showing interest in these new 90 per cent loan insurance deals. The reason for this is that under the old 80 per cent loan operation the FHA stood the cost of the foreclosure. Under the new 90 per cent loan program the bank has to make the foreclosure and turn the house over to the FHA with the defaulting buyer already ousted.

State legislatures are being advised to change their foreclosure laws as a means of encouraging housing, but the going is slow. The old-line foreclosure laws were designed primarily to protect honest farmers and home owners from being roughly thrown into the street by a grasping mortgage holder eager to get possession of the property. The idea of making it possible for a mortgage holder to evict a man and his family from the old homestead on three or four weeks notice has not quite jelled in some spots.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Fragmentary talk and snatches of conversation quoted after a day of knocking about the sidewalks of New York:

Of all the towns in the world you should avoid on Christmas day, London comes first. I was caught there once while living in Paris and it was like a morgue. Shops, theaters, restaurants—all were closed. I finally wound up in Westminster Abbey, but the only people there were dead ones. In desperation I fled to the railroad station, and while I did see a little animation there, it gave me such a distaste for them that, to this day I cannot enter a station without shuddering." — William Keighly movie director

"I was playing in the Persian room and a fellow at a nearby table beckoned to me, and when I joined him he said: 'Mother asked me to ask you if you would come down to the White House and play for my engagement party.' He was John Roosevelt, and I can tell you that I was so excited I accepted in a hurry. I didn't want to give him a chance to change his mind." — Eddy Duchin, orchestra leader

"I do not believe in propaganda nor am I in favor of boycotts but I am an ex-sailor, and after the Japanese outrage of the Panay I will give any guest a prize who comes into Leon and Eddie's wearing cotton stockings—or no stockings at all. I will never spend another quarter on Japanese silk as long as I live." — Leon, night club impresario

"I would like to be like Garbo or Katharine Cornell. The only stage experience I've had was a bit as a bridesmaid in 'Abie's Irish Rose.' Maybe I'll be lucky and get a screen test. I am 16 years old and my father meets me every morning at 2 a. m. and takes me home."

—Hope Chandler, Paradise show girl whose picture occupied most of the cover of Life Magazine, December 17.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, the name of our little play tonight is 'Doggone the Wind.' But don't be misled, it has nothing to do with Margaret Mitchell's novel. The heroine's name is Scarlet O'Hare. The villain is Rhett Butler, the hero is Ashley Wilkes, and the action takes place on a plantation named Tara, in Georgia. The time is 1861. So, you see, it is nothing at all like 'Gone With the Wind.' — Sly Eddie Davis, ex-waiter who now owns and entertains in night clubs.

"When I signed my movie contract I specified three things—one that the Tarzan stuff is taboo; two that there will be no baseball scenes and three, that I be cast in a role secondary to the star. I'm not good enough for a star role yet." — Lou

MAGIC TIE AND JERSEY PLUS WORDS OF WISDOM EQUAL 78 STRAIGHT WINS

THE MEN

A junior college team from John Tarleton, in West Texas, started the 1937-38 season with the longest basketball winning streak in America. The Ploewboys, using athletes eligible for two years only, had faced tough opposition and had won 78 straight games over four seasons. Their squads always have been small. Seven men reported to the current outfit.

THE METHOD

Words of wisdom carried the youngsters to the heights—the talks of Coach W. J. Wisdom. Here's Tutor Bill diagramming a play. He tells the boys: "Keep the ball. Shoot only for sure shots. Force your opponents to shoot when they're off balance."

THE MAGIC

Wisdom's tie was a help. Four years ago he was given a 25c necktie. He wore it at every one of the 78 victories and it got ragged from his twisting it at exciting moments. Ploewboy jersey No. 13 is always worn by the star player. That helps, too.

THE MODE

It's the same story in basketball as in other sports—legs make the player. This shot of three Ploewboys shows you wisdom's idea of good basketball legs. It's not stylish now to wear the long stockings but, shucks, the Texans are old-fashioned. Their string started way back when.

Gehrig, first baseman of the World Champion New York Yankees. "When I told Billy Rose that we had signed two Shaws for his show Oscar and Winnie, he cried. 'Now get us George Bernard and we'll be all set.' —Paul Small, manager and booker of theatrical talent.

JACK - RABBIT HUNTER IS PROXY FOR FOXES

(By the AP Feature Service) Denver, Colo. — Pinch-hitting for nature, R. F. Winters is tinkering with the law of the survival of the fittest and expects "modest dividends."

What he calls "modest" is a new and exciting business that he expects may gross $185,000 this season.

Bolled down, the business is to play proxy for captive foxes on jack-rabbit hunts.

The business was born when Winters went to the aid of fox breeders having a hard time of it to supply their fox farms with an abundant daily ration of protein.

For years the fox farmers depended upon a good supply of wild range horses to produce cheap meat, but finally the herds became less abundant and that fox delicacy, "horse chops," became dearer.

ional forests, outside these refuges. Game has already thrived so well in the protected areas that these too will be thrown open to supervised hunting and fishing for short periods each year so long as conditions permit.

Heart of the Federal-State program is at the Mt. Mitchell Game refuge farm, headquarters of Chief Game Protector C. N. Mease at Baskie. One of the state's seven fish hatcheries is located here.

Federal cooperation will mean virtually airtight enforcement of game laws, assure the most vigilant game protection in history. State protectors now patrol 350 miles of foot and horse trails and 250 miles of streams in the six refuges—day and night, winter and summer, watching for poachers, dogs, predatory animals. Under the recently inaugurated program, these agents will have the help of 50 full-time Forest Service rangers and hundreds of Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees.

Neither the rangers nor the CCC boys are authorized to make arrests, but they will report the bark of a dog, the report of a gun, or the sight of a fisherman to the nearest station. Stations are connected by telephone with fire lookout towers and ranger stations. Almost every acre of the 487,366 in both national forests is in view of at least one fire observation tower which is manned the whole year round.

Wardens believe it will be almost impossible for game law violations to escape detection under such a program.

The six game refuges on National Forest lands now being administered by the Department of Conservation and Development are:

The Daniel Boone refuge, 44,000 acres in Avery, Burke and Caldwell counties.

The Mt. Mitchell Game refuge, 52,000 acres in Yancey and McDowell counties.

The Sherwood Forest refuge, 27,000 acres in Haywood county.

The standing Indian game refuge, 37,000 acres in Clay and Macon counties.

The Wayah Bald game refuge, 15,000 acres in Macon county.

The Fire Creek refuge, 15,000 in Clay county.

The island of Java, in the East Indies, is the most densely populated land mass in the world—821 to the square mile.

Maine is the only state in the union in which state elections are not held in November.

Tuberculosis is the chief cause of death among Alaskan natives.

Gene Raymond, Ann Sothern in romantic comedy "She's Got Everything." Thur.-Friday.

Walter Winchell, Simone Simon, Ben Bernie in "Love and Hisses," opening Sunday at the Pitt.

Gene Autry featured with Phil Regan, Ann Dvorak and others in "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round."

Deaf-And-Dumb Boys Reinforced Early Golden Bear Grid Squads

California Football—Then

Berkeley, Calif. (AP)—Inspired by the 1937 "wonder team" produced by his alma mater, Clinton B. Morse has written a football history to the University of California.

Brick Morse was a member of the original "wonder team" of 1899. Now a music teacher, he styles himself the "official historian and unofficial coach" of the Golden Bears.

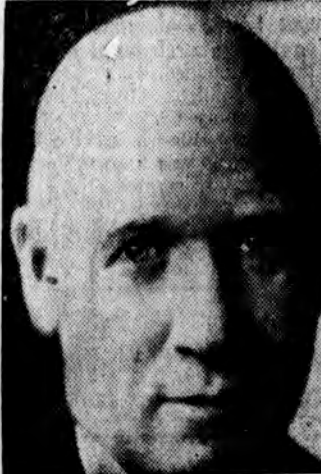

Though stadium attendance indicates that football enthusiasm at Berkeley couldn't be much higher than in the 1937 season, Morse finds it has been in the 90's the college turned out not only for games but for practice and many an afternoon, he says, there were thousands in the stands.

California's first team was organized in 1882 and played rugby. There were 15 men on a team, consisting of eight forwards, three halves, two three-quarters and two backs.

In 1894 the university couldn't round up 15, so the varsity was reinforced by boys from the adjoining deaf and dumb institute. Twice contests were delayed because both teams forgot to bring a football.

The big games with Stanford started in 1892.

Morse's history, illustrated by photos of old games, is just coming off the press. His final word is that Sam Chapman, Bo Herwing and John Meek of the 1937 squad rank with the all-time, all-California players.

Decrease Forecast Conley Installed In Pig Population Next Six Months For Kiwanis Club

Cooperative Crop Reporting Service Predicts Birth of 684,000 Pigs in North Carolina

Raleigh, Jan. 1—Birth of 684,000 pigs between now and June 1 was forecast by the Co-operative Crop Reporting Service of the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture today.

North Carolina's 91,000 sows farrowed from June to December, 1937 are four per cent less than a year earlier and the expected Spring crop—December to June—is estimated at two per cent less than last Spring's results, Frank Parker, Federal statistician with the State Department of Agriculture said.

During the past fall, a litter of pigs in North Carolina averaged 6.2 animals, indicating the State's hog raisers probably saved 563,000 pigs during the past six months and approximately two per cent more than a year ago.

"It is easy to remember that North Carolina farrows over 10,000 sows in the spring and slightly less in the fall," Parker said. "Also, the pigs saved averaged about six per litter, or approximately 1,200,000 pigs per year which means about 1,000,000 are available for sale or farm consumption yearly."

"Last Spring's pig crop was increased relatively more in North Carolina than in the main Western hog states. The current December report, secured through the co-operation of the Federal Post Office Department shows this state slightly below the national trend in farrowing as compared with a year ago. However, the breeding for the spring 1938 farrowing is indicated at 98 per cent of last year or approximately the same as the national average."

An average of 6.19 pigs per litter were saved during the past fall in North Carolina while the national average was 6.24 pigs.

Parker said that the United States crop of over 60 million pigs "indicates well over 50 million pigs for consumption," adding that "while the fall crop was short five per cent, the Spring prospects are for five per cent more, or an average of only one per cent decrease from previous years production."

Other New Officers Take Office at Meeting Also Featured by Annual Report of Secretary

Installation of new officers and the report of the secretary-treasurer were highlights at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club here last night.

D. H. Conley is the new president of the civic club and D. C. Moore, Jr., is vice president. Mr. Moore will continue to serve as secretary-treasurer until the position can be filled. New directors are B. W. Moseley, Claude D. Ward, George P. Reiman and Dr. Needham E. Ward. Directors holding over for another year are J. Nat Harrison, W. J. Bundy, O. P. Matthews and J. Hicks Corey.

Berry Bostic is immediate past president, succeeding Dink James in the position.

Bancroft Moseley, son of Kiwanian B. W. Moseley and one of the two guests last night, made a brief interesting talk on a recent trip to California and Mexico. The other guest was Dr. F. P. Brooks.

A report on the Christmas basket was made by J. Hicks Corey.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer Moore showed that the club gained five new members during the year and now has 45 on its rolls. It also listed the various donations made by the club, including the Red Cross for Flood relief; expense of five Boy Scouts to Camp Charles and to the Rocky Mount training school for Boys.

JAP'S HONOR ANIMALS KILLED IN THE WAR

Tokyo (AP)—Attended by high-ranking Japanese officers, a ceremony honoring the memory of army animals killed in action was held in Tokyo recently.

Prayers were intoned for the spirits of horses, dogs and pigeons which lost their lives serving the army. A regulation shrine, with the customary funeral gifts was erected in Ueno Zoo, and Tokyo's most popular pet, an elephant, was 'chief mourner.'

12-YEAR-OLD MOTHER AND BABY

Betty June Lacer, a mother at 12, is shown with her ten-and-a-half pound baby boy. The father, Tommy Chapman, 13, has promised to support the baby and marry the girl when she is 16, the minimum age under Indiana law. They have been sweethearts since their graduation from school last spring. Their home is in Linton, Ind.

Lamour Wants To Say S'Long To Her Sarong

By HUBBARD KEAVY

Hollywood (AP)—None in Hollywood wears a sarong so well as Dorothy Lamour.

"But," says Dorothy, "I'm getting tired of it."

She wants to put on clothes and strut. She doesn't want to be a native girl, a female Tarzan. The movies have willed otherwise. So perhaps you'd better take a good squint at the Lamour in "Her

Dorothy Lamour She's tired of this attire

Jungle Love," which, for the third time, puts her in tapa cloth. It may be her last jungle picture. "I hope it is, anyway," says Dorothy. "I'm going to object strenuously if they haul out another jungle story. There's no chance to act in these monkey operas and I'd like to dress up some and do a bit of acting."

Come The Hurricane The first time the young lady from New Orleans, who was a radio singer before Hollywood found out about her, raced a camera, it was for "Jungle Princess." The whole thing, and especially the abbreviated garment, was a new experience. There followed bits in other pictures, "things that hardly count," she explains, including a fair role in "The Last Train From Madrid." Dorothy is trying to forget that one.

Along came "The Hurricane." Being the No. 1 native girl, Dorothy got the lead. She admits the role is the best she has played and it earned her a sizeable raise in pay. She hoped it would be the last of its kind for her. She even gave away her sarong. And then they sent her back to the jungle.

Fears Typing "If I could get a story in which I started out as a half-breed girl and then get to civilization—in clothes—I might consider," amended Dorothy. "It's funny, isn't it, that the very typing that has made me might also be my undoing. I can't go on forever doing the same part. People are likely to get tired of my doing the same thing. As bored as I know I'd become. Folks who hear this shapely brunette complain about jungle romances—and see her attired in the conventional jungle fashion—are apt to ask, "What's sarong about that?"

Carson City, Nev. (AP)—Although an inland state and largely desert, Nevada has been enjoying a neat bit of revenue from the big liner Leviathan. This was disclosed when the vessel was sold recently to Great Britain for scrap iron. The United States Lines, former owner of the liner, is a Nevada corporation and the ship was carried on the assessment rolls at $50,000.
