WAGNER LABOR ACT ASSAILED BY G-M PREXY

Declared Drawback To Good Industrial Relations

SAYS EMPLOYER UNREPRESENTED

Automobile Manufacturer's Speech Came on Heels of Attack on Act by Sen. Burke

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—William Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, told the United States Chamber of Commerce today the Wagner labor act is "the largest drawback to good industrial relations."

Discussing the strikes that have tied up his company's plants at various times in recent months, Knudsen said in a prepared address:

"The National Labor Relations Board set up to administer the act makes no pretense even of paying any attention to the employer's side of the case.

"He can only be heard when he goes that there is no record of a single decision where he had a ghost of a show, so what!"

The automobile manufacturer's speech renewed an attack on the labor board that started yesterday, when Senator Burke (D-Neb) addressing the labor section of the Chamber of Commerce convention, demanded that the members of the labor board resign. He proposed that a new board be appointed to represent the viewpoints of labor, management apd the public.

The labor section, after hearing Burke, adopted a resolution asking an investigation by Congress of the "effects" and administration of the Wagner act, which created the board as a means of assuring workers of the right of collective bargaining.

Consider Readjustment In Monetary Policy Of 1936

PLEAD GUILTY IN PITT COURT

Two Negroes Admit Drawing Benefits While Employed

Two Greenville Negroes charged with obtaining money through misrepresentation by swearing to fraudulent statements to get unemployment compensation benefits pleaded guilty in County court here yesterday afternoon and were given 30-day road sentences, suspended upon payment to the commission the sums they had received.

Fennon Dawson and Junius White were the Negroes facing the charge. They admitted their guilt, but declared they did not know what they were swearing to when they told commission attaches they had no other course of revenue.

The Negroes were unable to repay the sums and left at noon today for the road camp to start their terms. Fennon was alleged to have fraudently received $25 and White $41.

They were arrested here several weeks ago when S. T. Cherry, field investigator for the Compensation commission, uncovered evidence against the Negroes showing that they were employed and receiving benefit checks at the same time.

W. G. Cherry, in charge of the

May Make Changes In Value of French Franc

Paris, May 4— (AP) —Officials said today that conversations had been started among the United States, France and Great Britain looking toward amendment of their accord of October, 1936, for monetary stabilization.

Bankers said they believed the talks were designed to facilitate a new readjustment downward of the value of the franc.

They said the stabilization of the franc at about 35 to the dollar (2.8 cents to the franc) and 175 to the English pound was under consideration.

The conversations, which were originated by France, had a prelude in last week's visit to London by Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnett.

This, officials declared, was followed by talks at the treasury in Washington among Secretary Morgentnau, French Ambassador St. Quentin and British Ambassador Lindsay.

If the conversations succeed, officials said, there will be a declaration of new monetary policy by the three powers, accompanied by

DEMPSEY CASE GETS STARTED

Federal Agent Accused of Accepting Bribes

Raleigh, May 4.—(AP)—W. A. Harris of Elizabeth City, an admitted ex-bootlegger and ex-convict, testified in United States District Court today that he had paid money to J. C. Dempsey of Wilson, Federal alcoholic tax unit, investigator, in return of a promise for "protection."

Harris said he worked with special agents of the intelligence division of the alcoholic tax unit during his negotiations with Dempsey.

Dempsey, a former State Senator, was indicted by the grand jury yesterday on charges that he took bribes of $25, $50 and $75.

Harris testified he had had a series of transactions with Dempsey between August, 1937, and April, 1938. He said the final transaction took place in a hotel here several weeks ago when, he testified, he gave Dempsey $25 in marked money.

The investigator pleaded innocent when arraigned.

At the start of his testimony Harris said he had formerly been a bootlegger at Elizabeth City and had twice been convicted in Federal court there and also admitted serving a term in a Federal prison.

CHINESE SCORE FURTHER GAINS AGAINST JAPS

Offensive Reported to Have Smashed Nippon Lines

CLAIM TURN IN CONFLICT'S TIDE

Second Great Offensive by Japs to Wipe Out Previous Defeat Declared Checked

Shanghai, May 4.—(AP)—A general Chinese offensive all along the South Shantung front was declared by the Chinese command to have smashed through the center of the Japanese line at Taierchwang today and to have advanced 12 miles.

Chinese advance guards fought forward five miles in a night battle, adding these gains to the seven miles they rolled back and buckled up the Japanese lines in the first assault yesterday.

The field commanders of General Chiang Kai-Shek declared the tide of war was turning in their favor.

His high command, hopefully awaiting bulletins from the front said they expected an epochal Japanese defeat similar to that which tumbled the divisions of Nippon at Taierchwang a month ago.

The second great Japanese offensive through Shantung province, this time greatly reinforced to wipe out the previous defeat, was definitely checked, they declared.

Japanese army spokesmen were silent.

Chinese sources estimated the weary outnumbered Japanese army had lost 34,000 men, killed in fighting in recent days about Tancheng and Pihsien, on the south and east side of the salient of which Taierchwang formed the west side.

There was no way, however, of verifying these estimates from neutral sources.

ADVANCE MOVE TO FORCE VOTE ON LABOR BILL

Speaker Bankhead Predicts Success for Petition Plan

PREPARE OFFER PETITION FRIDAY

Senate Foes of Wage-Hour Bill, Meantime Map strategy in case of House Victory

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—Speaker Bankhead predicted today a majority of the House members would sign a petition to force floor consideration of the administration-supported wage-hour bill.

"On the basis of information I have received, I think there will be a majority of the members who will sign the petition," Bankhead told newsmen.

Chairman Norton (D.-N. J.), of the House Labor Committee, will file the petition Friday. She said she believed 218 members, a majority, would sign it in time for the controversial legislation to be called up for debate May 23.

The House Rules Committee refused last week to grant legislative right-of-aw to the measure and Mrs. Norton said she "reluctantly" would be compelled to resort to the petition to obtain action this session.

A similar bill was brought before the House by petition in December, but was recommitted to the Labor committee.

While developments pointed to possible House action on the measure, its Senate foes discussed precautionary strategy for blocking the bill should it win House approval.

Other developments:

The Senate Agriculture Committee, conducting an inquiry into the operations of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, heard from one of its members that L. Westbrook, a committee investigator, was formerly employed by the cooperatives.

During questioning of Murray Steward, government cotton expert, about his former employment by the cooperative, Senator Ellender (D.-La.), said "it can be shown that Mr. Westbrook was once employed by the A.C.C.A."

Church Court Upholds Decision On Unification

Foes of Plan Fail To Make Known Aims Immediately

Birmingham, Ala., May 4.—In the face of "secession" threats, the judicial council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, ruled valid today a conference approved plan to unify American Methodism.

The nine-member 'supreme court' of the Southern denomination ruled the quadrennial conference now in session was within its rights in voting the Southern church into a tri-partite union to create a new church of some 8,000,000 members.

The council decision removed the last ecclesiastical barrier to the unification and leaders of the opposition did not say immediately whether they would follow a previously indicated plan to carry the fight to civil courts.

Anti-unificationists who raised again the Negro queston that split the church in 1844, contended that the merger violates the laws of religion.

What effect the judicial ruling

Plans To Prevent Invasion Of N. C. By Peach Mosiac

Although Nothing Alarming About Situation, Precaution Taken Save $2,300,000 Crop

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, May 4.—Believing in the old saying about the ounce of prevention which is worth sixteen times that much cure, North Carolina and Federal agricultural authorities are moving to prevent an invasion of this state by "peach mosaic," a relatively new but very destructive tree disease.

With this prevention motive in mind, J. A. Harris of the State Department of Agriculture's entomology staff, is now en route to New Mexico to study the disease and learn methods of control.

After a month in the western state Harris will come back to North Carolina to make as urvey of Tar Heel peach orchards to determine whether "peach mosaic" does occur here and whether there is any real danger of this spread.

There is nothing in the least alarming about the situation, according to C. H. Brannon, chief of the entimology division, but no precautions are going to be left untaken to preserve the state's peach crop which is valued at $2,300,000 annually.

"Growers are really lucky that the Federal government takes so much interest in training one of our entomologists in methods of control, quarantine procedure and identification work," Brannon said.

Expenses of the Harris trip are to be paid by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Harris survey upon his return to North Carolina will be made in connection with the regular annual inspection of orchards and nuseries. Thus the inspection will require no additional or unusual expenses.

Explaining the danger of the disease, Brannon said that it "weakens the entire tree, dwarfs the fruit, causes leaves to fall off and eventually destroys the entire growth."

PEACH TREES NUMEROUS

Sutter County, California, leads all United States counties in the production of peaches and in number of peach trees, according to Census Bureau reports.

Work Continues On Ten Blue Ridge Parkway Links

Raleigh, May 4—Work on ten new links of the Blue Ridge Parkwal will be continued this season, Federal road engineers announce, bringing nearer realization of the once vague dream of connecting Shanandoah and Smoky National Parks with a super mountain highway.

At the same time, plans for five "recreational areas" along the parkway were revealed. These recreational areas will be miniature parks in themselves, and will afford vacationists stopping, resting, and playing facilities on the 500 mile drive from park to park.

At present, about 135 miles of the parkway is graded, 55 miles in Virginia and 80 miles in North Carolina, which is open to trail, though not yet hardsurfaced. The ten new links will add 106 miles to the system, 47 miles in Virginia and 59 miles in North Carolina.

The five roadside parks now planned will be at Bluff's Cumberland Knob, Rocky Knob, Smart View and Pine Sur. The normal right-of-way and easements of the parkway at these and other points will broaden out to include hundreds of acres. At these places will be erected hotels, comfort stations, camping grounds. At some places facilities for swimming, fishing tennis, riding and hiking will be added.

Already widely popular as a picnic ground is Cumberland Knob, well developed roadside area. Paved roads leave the Parkway above Lowgap, in Surry county and wind still further up to the very top of the Knob. The Knob has been so ingeniously developed that no one can tell which shrub is the handiwork of man, and wwhich of nature. Paths wind up and down te mountain. Rustic tables and benches, a screened by shrubbery, provide private family dining-rooms under the sky. If campers want to cook, there are rock ovens, and if it rains, rustic shelters and cabins are hereby havens.

Engineers are on the proposed plant site making surveys for 13 buildings to be used in manufacturing the cigarette paper.

The plant when in operation, the announcement said, will employ 300 to 400 persons. Construction engineers will use 200 to 300 men when the projects gets underway.

One Striker Jailed On Assault Charge

High Point, May 4—(AP)— One striker was jailed for assault this morning as the Silver-Knit Hosiery company opened with a cordon of pickets about the mill.

The fourth conference between M. Silver, owner, and W. N. Aicher, NLRB representative, will be held today in an effort to settle the strike, affecting about 50 workers in the seamless hosiary mill

The men met yesterday afternoon, last night and early this morning, but no settlement has yet been reached.

The strikers are protesting against a "docking" system, which they allege is equivalent to wage cuts.

State's Oldest Attorney Appears Before Tribunal

Raleigh, May 4—Attorney John D. Bellamy of Wilmington, urged two cases before the Supreme court yesterday morning.

There would be nothing out of the ordinary in ths item, except for the fact that Mr. Bellamy waws arguing cases in North Carolina Supreme court before four of the seven sitting members were born, and made his bow to the august tribunal at a time when Justice Heriot Clarkson, senior court member, was a callow youth of 12.

As he delivered himself of a typical John D. Bellamy argument—marked always by vigor and belligerence—the dean of North Carolina's bar took occasion to point out that he argued his first case before the Supreme court in 1875 when Chief Justice Pearson was presiding. Since then the gentleman from New Hanover has pleaded causes before Chief Justices Merriman, W. N. A. Smith, Walter Clark, Hoke and Stacy.

His boast has always been "By gad, sir, nobody can ever say that John D. Bellamy is afraid to try a case," and lawyers who have faced him from opposing counsel tables are unanimous in admitting that a bulldog will turn loose long before Mr. Bellamy will give up even the forlornest of fororn legal hopes. It's axiomatic with Tar Heel attorneys that the beat "John D." you've got to beat him from Justice of the Peace to Supreme Court.

Graduating from the Universiy of Virginia "way back when" Mr. Bellamy located at Wilmington and has practiced there ever since. He has been prominent in civic affairs and in politics, once representing his district in Congress—that was just about at the turn of the century.

He is a born reconteur, with an inexhaustable supply of incident and anecdote—but what a flood of memories must have swept over him as stood before the Supreme court Tuesday and argued two cases, relatively unimportant as law suits go and recalled that he first did the same thing 63 years ago.

Song Governs Dress.

"I never think of a gown merely as a gown, but as the embodiment of a song," says Jessica Dragonette, who will sing at the college tomorrow night, and she always dresses to suit her songs.

Every time, for example, that she sings "Alice Blue Gown" for her radio audiences, and she has sung it by request many, many times, she wears a new blue dress that has been chosen with great care.

Now that she is on a concert tour, Miss Dragonette selects one costume for each recital, one that will be in keeping with the theme of the program.

Miss Dragonette is known as one of the best dressed women in America. She was given the Fashion Academy Award of 1937 for the Best Dressed Woman in Radio.

Atheneum Book Club.

Mrs. D. J. Whichard, Jr., was a charming hostess to the members of the Atheneum Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Ninth street. The house was beautifully decorated with exquisite roses.

Mrs. D. M. Clark, the president, presided, and Mrs. H. L. Ormond acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. K. B. Pace. The club elected the following officers to serve for next year: President, Mrs. S. M. Crisp; vice-president, Mrs. H. L. Ormond; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Cummings; librarian, Mrs. W. H. Bradsher. Mrs. C. H. Edwards led the discussion of current events.

We were delighted to have our hostess' husband, Mr. Whichard, give our program, which was one of the most interesting ones given this year. His subject was "Silk and Precious Stones." Mr. Whichard in his able manner, told us the history of silk, dating as far back as 2640 B.C., when Hugan-Ti, then Emperor of China, assigned to his beloved Empress, Si-Ling-Chi, the task of experimenting with the product of Wild Silk Worm. As the legend goes, the Empress chose her favorite ladies from three palaces and together they entered upon the task that resulted in the beginning of an industry that makes possible the finer silk of today. From that crude beginning the Chinese then learned the art of weaving, stenciling and later printing designs of their silk fabrics. The silk industry was later introduced in Greece, Italy, and reached France in 1147. The industry was begun in England in 1251. Queen Elizabeth might also be classed as a silk addict, and in 1593 she was delighted to be the first lady to wear a pair of knitted silk stockings. The industry coming to America proved not as profitable as in the Orient. The artificial silk industry received a great boost in this country during the World War and has continued to grow since that time.

So great is the number of precious stones that only the twelve birthstones were mentioned, giving the ones for each month and what each stood for. Many of the stones are found in North Carolina. The largest diamond found in our state is in New York in the Museum of Natural History.

We were pleased to have as our guest Mrs. Hugh Ragsdale.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Clark, served a delicious salad plate with ice tea, followed by strawberry shortcake, having on the plates lovely sweetpeas.—Reported.

The bride and bridegroom, unattended, entered the church together. They approached the altar which had a setting of ferns and greenery, with floor baskets of roses.

The franc opened on the Bourse at 33.15 to the dollar, only one centime more than yesterday's official closing of 33.14, but the pound was quoted at almost five francs more than yesterday.

A cabinet statement was promised late today and the Premier was expected to address the nation tonight.

Chapter 44

Just One More Chance

IF JUDITH had been harassed and uncertain before she wrote to Reuben, she was swept into an avalanche of bewilderment now. Had she acted too hastily? Would Reuben be disgusted by her lack of restraint? Had she been too humble? Suppose he didn't answer? Suppose—

Then there was Gary to be reckoned with. Not that she had any illusions about Gary—the last one had died, struggling—but it had died. Gary would be furious because he was not to have his own way, but grieved?

She couldn't associate great distress or deep grief with Gary unless the mishap was physical and purely personal to Gary; however, Gary must be reckoned with.

Time dragged like a snail—it flew on hummingbird's wings. There were three days left until Christmas. There were two days. There was one day. It was Christmas Eve—no word from Reuben—no word!

Jim came down the hall, stood looking at the bravely bedecked pine. "The prettiest tree we've ever had. The kids will adore it."

"Yes," Judith agreed tonelessly.

Jim shot his sister a quick appraising glance: "Want to go with me for crow's-foot? They—" he indicated the gilt framed Goodloes, "must be decorated. It's funny a man must die before he gets a wreath of living green." He turned away. "Want to come?"

Judith came down the ladder. "Wait 'til I get a coat."

Outside the world was softly gray, with sharp little gusts of wind and soft little flurries of snow. A day that seemed to proclaim the world was doing its best to make ready for the blessed peace that was to descend upon it at midnight.

Peace! There was none of it in Judith's heart. None in Jim's. Saying little they walked side by side across frozen fields, climbed a rail fence and entered a dim, stark wood. The path ran between hills. There was little wind here. A dry, woodsy smell. Dead rustling leaves—

"Don't you love it, Jim?"

"The place? Better than anything, I guess."

She followed him across the little stream. Thin ice bordered its edges. On a sloping hillside, almost hidden by dead leaves, creeping cedar made a bright green carpet.

Ah—here was a tiny root of bitter-sweet—And suddenly, she was back three years. Was in Fordney's Gulch—the deepest, muddiest part of it—with Reuben. They were searching for bitter-sweet, pine cones, spruce tassels—anything that would relieve the drabness of their first Christmas in the despised little house in Casper Street. The afternoon had been warm, sultry. The ground soft. She had slipped in the red mud and Reuben had caught her, held her close.

'Eat Humble Pie'

JUDITH'S busy fingers tightened around the crow's-foot. If just once more she could hear the steady beat of Reuben's heart. Feel his arms—a protecting wall—

An unbidden tear trickled down her nose. Ashamed she brushed it away; looked up quickly to meet Jim's worried, dark eyes.

"You, too, Judy?"

She nodded.

For a long moment they busied themselves with the evergreen. Jim said: "I've made ducks and drakes of my life."

"I've messed mine up, too, Jim."

Another silence. Judith said hesitantly: "Debt again, Jim?"

"Debt again," bitterly.

"Personal?"

"Not entirely. Gran is involved, too. My fault." His slim brown hands became suddenly idle. A shadow darkened his face. "I can't figure it out, yet. That stock deal looked sound as Gibraltar."

"They always do."

"I've learned my lesson, Judy. If I could only have one more chance."

"One more chance!" She echoed it prayerfully. "I guess we miss heaven by just one chance."

Jim stuffed crow's-foot into the burlap bag. He avoided looking at his sister. He said: "It's Oliver's fault?"

"Mine."

"Then eat humble pie, old dear. Make it up."

"I've tried. Too late."

"I didn't guess. I was afraid maybe—it was Gary."

"It was—at first. I had a—a sort of obsession for years. I'm cured." She wound a handful of the creeper into a bundle and stuffed it into the bag. "I'm home to stay, Jim. You'll have to help me raise the children."

"You think I'm fit, Judy?"

"I know you are."

"Gosh! I'd like to teach them to avoid my mistakes."

"Maybe we had to make them, Jim. We'll not shield the babies as we were shielded. We'll put responsibilities upon them."

"Poor little tads! With me at the helm I guess they're in for plenty."

"They must not grow up believing all the soft spots are theirs by divine right while all the rocky ones are the other fellows' share."

"I get you." Jim arose from his knees. "Hold the sack, Judy."

He took a piece of twine from his pocket and tied the bulging bag carefully. He said: "I'm sorry you're unhappy, but I can't help being glad you're here and that you need me. I've never been needed you know."

It was pitifully true. Judith said nothing.

Jim said: "If you need me, I can make a new start, Judy. Run myself and my affairs differently. Make Gran see I must turn dirt farmer—Make the land pay instead of eating up itself—and us. Watch me!"

There was a new look on Jim's dark face as he swung the sack to his shoulder. "I guess there's always another chance if we hunt for it. You'll find yours, too, Judy."

'Losing Your Nerve?'

CHRISTMAS Day. Its routine never varied at Goodloe's Choice. On this day there were never dinner guests. Just the family sat down to the beautifully appointed table—Irish linen, thin old silver, vivid poinsettia. Amos in livery waited. Jim carved the turkey. Amanda lighted the plum pudding. When the last dish was cleared away she toasted the family in egg nog of her own making: "To Goodloes—past, present and future!"

She looked regal in soft white. Amanda always wore white on Christmas day. She had been a Christmas bride. Standing, Jim and Judith drank the toast down: "To Goodloes—past, present and future!"

Jim's dark eyes twinkled above his glass. Jim had real work ahead—two kids to raise. He was happier than he had been for years. Judith tried to return the twinkle. Her drink was gall upon her lip—Reuben hadn't answered—not one word.

Maybe he hadn't received the letter—she had to cling to that—maybe he had gone to Warder. There wasn't any mail today, but tomorrow—

Laughing, talking, praising the lovely old pin Gran had given her from her treasures, making a bet with Jim on Paddy O'Hare—Paddy was to have his try out this afternoon—Judith got through the dinner hour. Maybe Reuben hadn't got the letter—

Dick Blout arrived and—Gary, ready for the cross country ride. The former looked like Santa Claus—pockets pulging, ruddy face beaming. Greedily the twin fell upon him, while Judith and Gary started for the paddock. The hour of reckoning had arrived.

Gary was in fine fettle. "I'm a living bureau of information on Reno, darling. I know the name of a fine lawyer. I've located a swell small hotel where you can be comfortable and obscure. The wheels are going to move so easily you'll hardly know you're getting a divorce. Just do your act well tonight—Want me to drop a hint to Gran?"

"No." She was looking at him intently, but Gary felt she didn't see him, hadn't heard him. He said: "What's the matter? Losing your nerve—again?"

"No, I was wondering about that timber deal."

"Timber deal! Wake up, Judith. I was speaking of our future. This is no time to bother about timber."

"I just wanted to know if those pines were cut—the ones that caused the trouble between you and Reuben."

"They were cut," grimly. "I put the deal over. Did you think I wouldn't?"

"I was afraid you would."

"Those trees were unfit."

Sudden searing anger stained Gary's face. "The time has come for you to decide definitely whom you believe—Oliver or me."

"I have decided. Reuben told the truth."

"You take the word of that—that nobody against mine?" He couldn't believe his ears. "You're stark mad, Judith! You're morbid. Upset about going to Reno—"

"I'm not going to Reno."

"Throwing me down?" banteringly. He couldn't believe she was serious.

"I'm sorry."

"Sorry?" Rage threatened to choke him. "If you're hoping to go back to Oliver—"

"I am," hating herself for admitting it.

"Snap out of it, darling! Cissy Rogers and Clem are at the Curtis Camp. Cissy told me Reuben was arriving there today, from wherever he's been hiding."

The blood drained from Judith's heart. It was just a numb lump of ice in her chest. Reuben was with Cissy—He didn't care for her; for the babies—

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington— Whether through panic or principle, Congress has always fought shy of making its own salaries subject to state taxes. And the members are not throwing bouquets at that part of the President's plan to end exemptions.

Within the last few days the House again rejected a proposal to permit the District of Columbia to tax congressional and other federal salaries. They know there is no question about a District of Columbia income tax on federal salaries being constitutional, because Congress itself fixes the amount of the District tax.

"If you are going to have our salaries taxed by the states," says Representative Short of Missouri, "you are going to have Missouri taxing us perhaps 20 per cent, Iowa 10 per cent and Maine none."

But Representative Celler of New York worries about another phase. "The Supreme Court," he says, "has found that the power to tax is the power to destroy, and if the federal government were empowered to tax willy-nilly the securities of states and municipalities it would have power to destroy them."

On that subject, however, the late Justice Holmes said:

Boys Will Be Boys

This town is full of high school seniors from a dozen states hereabouts. Bus loads of them come in for a sort of graduation frolic clad in sweaters and high school letters. They travel in mob formation and eat in the same way, sometimes taking over a whole dining room in some of the smaller hotels. One crowd started off dinner in a local hotel with a school yell. We yelled, too. Darn it, why not?

The group medical association which started here in the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has spread to 35 government agencies; its membership totals 28000. The group has its own clinic with seven physicians, but because of opposition of the local medical society group members must hire an outside physician before they can enter local hospitals for surgical treatment. The group has both friends and enemies in Congress and three is prospect for a first-line flareup about it.

Credit Where Due

Columbia Broadcasting System has flooded Washington with a handsome colored document on how it reported the German absorption of Austria. After complimenting European networks for assisting, and commending advertisers for giving up time on the air to permit the news broadcasts, Columbia concludes with a brief three lines saying:

"All the news flashes came through the offices of the Press-Radio Bureau, directly from the typewriters of Associated Press, United Press and International News Service correspondents."

From our own library of aimless information:

Senate page boys, all under 16, bet about $112 a month and must attend a part-time school conducted for them in the capitol..... George Washington vetoed a bill for the Washington monument and it didn't get started again for years.

TYPICAL AREAS

The following typical areas furnish examples of dual occupations of agriculture, fishing, mining, manufacturing and other industries: Worcester County, Mass.; Hartford County, Conn.; Westmoreland County, Pa.; Columbus area, Ohio, including Columbus metropolitan and non-metropolitan areas; St. Louis County, Minn.; Dorchester County, Md.; Somerset County, Md.; Dickenson County, Va.; McDowell County, W. Va.; Pike County, Kentucky; Rowan County, N. C.; Greenville County, S. C.; Clackamas County, Oreg., and San Bernardino County, Calif.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, May 4—In a list of all candidates for the State Senate, sent out by this bureau yesterday it was stated that William B. Rodman, Jr., and D. Bradford Fearing are without opposition in the Second District. This, it now appears was an error caused by failure of the Pamlico county election board chairman to include the name of Mrs. J. J. Purdy on a list of candidates mailed this bureau.

It is now learned from Raymond C. Maxwell, Chairman of the State Board of Elections, that Mrs. Purdy paid her entrance fee and is a duly qualified candidate for the State Senate from the Second district.

Continuing a spin of the House candidate wheel from where we left off in our last—which was at Macon county:

Madison—A hot Republican fight between incumbent J. M. Baley, Jr. and Dr. J. H. Hutchins who represented the district in the 1937 Senate.

Mecklenburg—Independent Grocer and Anti-Sales Tax Leader J. B. Vogler, one of the 1937 incumbents and one of his colleagues, E. L. Mayhew, are joined by nine other Democrats to make it an eleven-way scramble for 3 seats.

Nash—Only county with 2 seats and only two candidates—Bill Fenner, who wants to be Speaker, and Claude Abernethy.

Orange—Strictly a University affair, with two profs out for the House—Roland McClamrock and Raymond F. Stainback. Last time the county sent a minister.

Pamlico—More candidates for the one seat than in any other in the state. Seven are running, including one woman, Mrs. O. C. Daniels.

Perquimans—In 1937 Tom Brown was sergeant-at-arms and tried to keep the representatives in their seats. Now he wants one of his own to sit in. He is running against the incumbent J. T. Benton.

Richmond—Three are after this seat, but neither present Representative Bob McNair nor Thomas H. Leath is going to be gentleman enough to give it up voluntarily to Mrs. Archie McDougald, of Hamlet.

Rowan: Walter (Pete) Murphy, Old Roman of the House, wants to come back again. So does his 1937 colleague Young promising George Uzzell. They face a real challenge from Harold Q. Sides and A. A. Hurley who have come out on a "dry" platform. Both Murphy and Uzzell were for ABC county option.

Sampson—Enoch Wilson, 1937 Representative, had to promise he's switch to the dry side of the fence in order to get the Democratic nomination. He has no primary opposition, but at that is no heavy favorite to beat Republican James B. Barefoot in November.

Wake—Three who sat for the county in 1937 liked it well enough to try again, but they have six others who'd like to oust them.

Warren—John Kerr, Jr., son of the Second District Congressman, gets in here without any opposition, primary or in the general election.

Washington — Carl Bailey filed for the nomination very late Saturday deadline day. Early Monday morning he told the election board he wanted "out" thus making about the shortest House campaign on recor. Four other deserving Democrats hope to prove they are—three will not.

Wilkes—Three Republicans are looking for the nomination of their party in Wilkes, and the one announced Democrat used to be sheriff of the county when he called himself a Republican. Two years ago the Demo. either beat the G. O. P's or counuted them out of the county commissioner majority, so there'll likely be a hot time here in November.

IT'S ODD, But It's Science

Minneapolis—Introducing the diatreme.

The word is Greek, meaning to hole through. It defines a small hole blown through a rock by gases.

Nobody makes diatremes nowadays. Only volcanic gases have the power. But mining engineers have found a use for them.

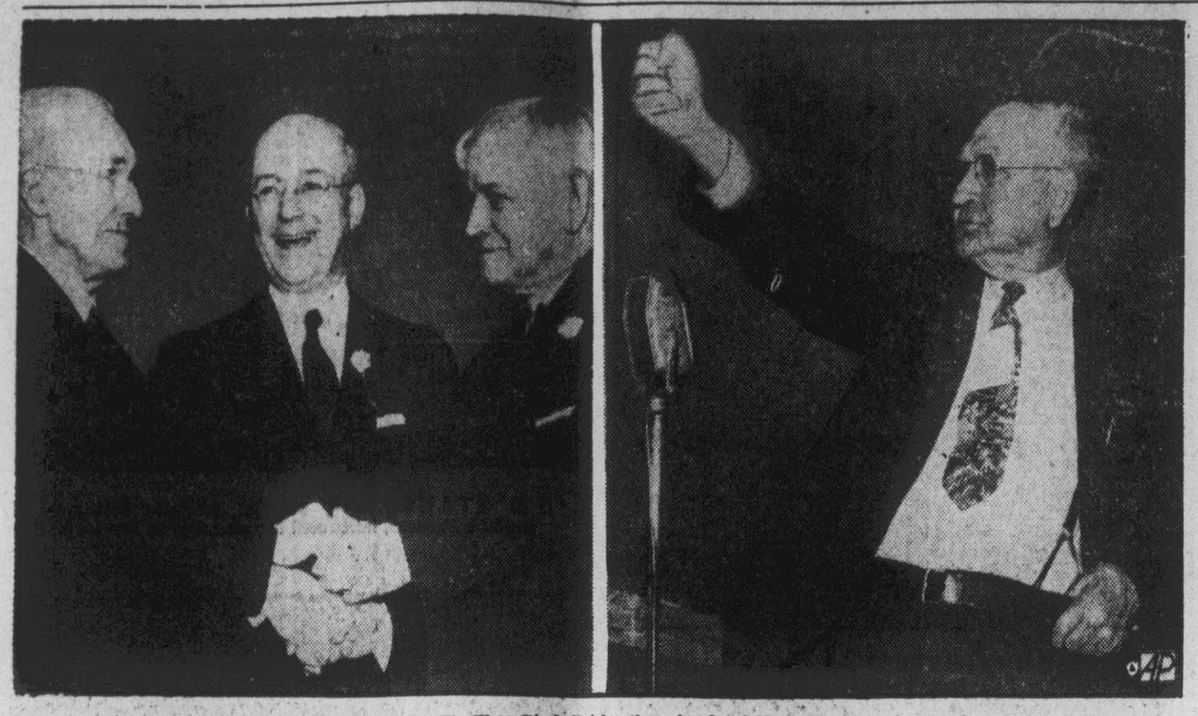
W. H. Emmons, director of the Minnesota geological survey, explains them in a report to the American Society of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Where there are diatremes is a good place to look for mineral wealth. There is gold in them there diatremes, literally. There also is silver, tin, bismuth, copper, zinc, lead and other metals.

Into the holes after the gases blew through, seeped many different minerals in liquid form. In some instances, geologists think, the minerals even were deposited as gases.

The power behind the gas has been computed. One source is the cooling of silicate and water, underground. A drop of 80 degrees figures to make enough gas to lift a mile thickness of granite.

THE LAST CHAPTERS OF METHODIST UNIFICATION



With convention delegates singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," the three heads of Methodism join hands after the convention meeting in Birmingham, Ala., cast an overwhelming vote in favor of unification of the three branches of the denominaton. The picture at right shows Dr. T. D. Ellis of Louisville, Ky., general secretary of the board of church extension and floor leader for unification forces in the Southern Methodist church, as he delievered the closing argument for unification. The picture at left shows, left to right: Bishop John M. Moore, Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (South); J. H. Straughan, president of the general convention of the Methodist Protestant Church, and Bishop Edwin Hughes, Senior Bishop of he Methodist Episcopal Church (North).

Williamston Martins Wallop Greenville's Greenies, 12-4

HAND LOCALS WORST DEFEAT

Playing Art Hauger's Boys Here This Afternoon

Greenville's Greenies made a feeble effort in the ninth inning yesterday at Williamston to overcome a 10 run lead, but were unable to score more than two runs and the game ended with the Greenies going down in defeat, 12-4, the second loss of the season.

Today—Williamston at Greenville.
Thursday—Greenville at Snow Hill.
Friday—Snow Hill at Greenville.
Saturday—Greenville at New Bern.
Sunday—New Bern at Greenville.

It will be recalled that Williamston gave the Greenies so much trouble at the beginning of the 1937 season.

Greenville's second loss of the season provided Williamston with its second win of the eeason. The locals lost to Goldsboro Sunday, the same team which stopped New Bern's Bears yesterday.

The Greenies were able to get only eight hits yesterday while the Martins were garnering 14, nine of which were for extra bases. Manager Horner hits a circuit blow in the second frame with the bases empty. The manager accounted for three of the local's eight hits. He was the only Greenie to make more than one safety for the day.

The other Greenville run, before the two scored in the ninth, was made in the third, but this appeared to start the Martins and they scored two in the last half of the third, added three in the fourth, two in the fifth, were blanked in the sixth, scored four in the seventh and one more in the eighth.

Caliguiri started on the mound for the Greenies, but gave way in the fifth with two men out. Hardison finished the game for the locals.

Goldbugs Snap New Bern's Winning Spree

New Bern, May 4.—Clarence Roper's Goldbugs evidently make a specialty of snapping winning streaks. The Bugs halted Greenville on Sunday after the Greenies had won five in a row, and yesterday the Goldsboro boys handed New Bern's Bears their first setback of the season. The locals had won six.

The score was 5-4 and the visitors stayed n front after a four-run flurry in the third. The winning Margin was Hahn's fifth-inning homer.

There were squabbles galore, with Plate Umpire Lawton the cause of ti all. He let the game get away from him in the early innings, and each club kicked plenty as play went along.

Lawton won some sort of a prize with his reversal of a decision in the ninth. This caused Manager Roper of the Bugs to issue notice that his club was finishing the game under protest.

The prize-winning business by Umpire Lawton came in Godsboro's ninth. With Hahn at bat, Flythe threw a pitch—and Lawton called "Ball." Catcher Millard Parrish kicked, claiming that it was a caught foul tip. Hahn, evidently a quick thinker, suddenly decided he had been hit on the arm. Lawton decided that evdently Hahn was right—he ruled that Hahn was entitled to go to first base. The Bears squawked and squawked. Lawton went into conference with Base Umpire Williams. And then Lawton reversed his reversal—he ruled that, after all, it was a "caught foul tip" and, since it was the third strike, Hahn was out. This retired the side and left two runners on bases—Dirmann, who had doubled, and Jans, who had walked.

Ayden's Win Streak Now Runs To Three

Ayden, May 4.—Ayden's Russell Gurth charmed Tarboro's Snakes yesterday afternoon as the Aces registered their third consecutive win. The score was 3-1. It was Gurth's second victory.

Danny York was Gurth's pitching opponent. The visiting star stayed on even terms until the eighth and then the Aces took the tricks which won the pot.

With the count deadlocked at 1-all, Jack Gasaway put Ayden in front by poling a homer over the left-field fence. The hit came with one away in the eighth. Benny Bullock drew a walk and Milton Jirak cracked a double. Yent was sent in to replace York. On a pitchout, Catcher Dick threw to third to catch Bullock but Maynard errored and Bullock scored. Walks to Gimmarco and Purcell filled the bases, but Yent pulled out by fanning Gurth and Schuerholz.

It was a good ball game but ran more than two hours because of the inability of pitchers to stay ahead of any batters. Gurth struck out five; Yent two.

The fielding stars were Tarboro's Solly Myers and Ayden's Milton Jirak. Each was very, very busy and each included a couple of nice plays in his afternoon's collection.

Myers, with two for five, led Tarboro's hitting. Bullock with two for two and Gasaway with two for four were the big boys for Skipper Frank Siddle's Aces.

Kinston Eagles Hand Billie Healthy Defeat

Snow Hill, May 4.—Allen Gettel, tall righthander of the Snow Hill Billies, is off to a good start for the "Strikeout King" title in the Coastal Plain loop.

Gettel whiffed 13 today as he hurled six-hit ball in a 9-3 win over Kinston. Yesterday's 13 strikeouts brought to 31 the Snow Hill star's strikeou total for three games. He whiffed eleven in the season-opener with Goldsboro, and he fanned seven in a game with Williamston last week.

Snow Hill made all of her hits off the flinging of Wentz, Hamlet youngster. Horse Mewborn's single and Harry Soufas' homer started the Billies with two runs in the initial frame. Harbins single, a wild pitch, and Bistroff's two base knock added one in the third.

In the seventh an error and singles by Bistroff and Soufas brought in one run, and then Charlie Gadd homered.

The Eagles tallied one in the second, on Billy Southworth's homer. They were blanked until the ninth, when they made two on Patton's double, Stringfellow's triple, and an error on Sandfoss on the throw to thrid to head off Stringfellow.

WILSON TRIMS HIGHS 6 TO 0

Six Greenville Errors Help Visitors To Victory

A play-off between Wilson and Raleigh for the championship of the Eastern Class A conference became more probable as Wilson defeated the locals, 6-0, yesterday at Third Street Park.

The victory was the eighth in nine conference starts for Wilson. They have lost only to Raleigh. Benton and Bissette pitched for the visitors and allowed six hits. Hodges Grenie pitcher, pitched nice, allowing eight hits.

In the first inning Wilson scored one run on a walk, a single, a fielder's choice, and an infield out. They added another in the second on two errors and an infield out. They tallied twice more in the third on two more errors and an infield out.

In the fifth, Hearn led for Wilson with a single, Davis followed with a two-bagger to left field, scoring Hearn. Abbitt then hit a single into left field and Davis scored. Benton and Pruitt grounded out to retire the side.

Davis, with three for five, and Abbitt, with two for four, led the Wilson offensive. Bill Taylor, with two singles in three trips to the plate led the locals.

Wilson finishes its schedule Friday with Greenville playing a return engagement in Wilson, Greneville finishes its schedule next week, meting Kinston in Kinston and Wilmington here.

Hollywood
Sights And Sounds
By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—"Four Men and a Prayer," is a globe-trotting adventure. It sounds notes reminiscent of "Beau Geste" and again of "The Three Musketeers" but winds up on its own power as a pretty good movie.

The four men are George Sanders, David Niven, William Henry and the new English young man, Richard Greene. The prayer is not, as one might assume, the beauteous and heavily wardrobed Loretta Young, but an earnest resolve to "get" the intriguers who discredited and later murdered the boys' army officer father (C. Aubrey Smith).

Loretta Young

Jumping back and forth from England to America to India to South America to Egypt, the story packs a great deal more power and suspense in its early and middle stages than at the end. But it offers excitement enough, and there is a good deal of light comedy supplied by Niven, Bill Henry and Miss Young. Director John Ford seldom lets Loretta or her wardrobe hide the adventurous aspects of his tale, and he presents one whale of a sequence in which J. Edward Bromberg shows the kind of acting Hollywood isn't using enough.

The new boy, Greene, was taken to the ladies' hearts for his looks as well as capable performance, but in the acting department George Sanders is the stand-out, with David Niven uncommonly good in a blend of serious and comic characterization.

More Melodrama

"Stolen Heaven" is unusual in its combination of classical music with a fast cops-and-robbers melodrama. Gene Raymond and Olympe Bradna play the jewel thieves who, making their escape from pursuing police, seek refuge in a wodoland home which turns out to be the abode of an aged concert pianist (Lewis Stone). Over Olympe's soft-hearted objections, Gene persuades the faltering old man to stage a comeback, a plan which would give Gene and company a chance at money to make good their escape.

Director Andrew L. Stone's use of music—Liszt, Chopin, et al—to further his story is interesting. Miss Bradna acts more like Snow White than a tough adventuress, but she has charm and sings and dances well.

A Musical

"Doctor Rhythm," one suspects on sober reflection, is really not Bing Crosby's best picture but it seems so at very frequent intervals in its running. Based on an O. Henry story, "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon," it sometimes forsakes plausibility for convenience as when a hunted crook (Fred Keating) appears at a policeman's benefit to get the girl (Mary Carlisle) whom he doesn't really love. This makes it possible for O'Roon (Andy Devine) and the young doctor masquerading as O'Roon (Bing) to capture him in a garrison finish.

Frank Tuttle's clever direction helps, but what sets "Doctor Rhythm" apart for us is the distinctive comedy of Beatrice Lillie, here making a triumphant return to pictures where once, nine years ago, nobody understood her. When Miss Lillie goes shopping for "two dozen double damasak dinner napkins," and the clerk is Franklin Panghorn, the house is likely to react as the preview audience did, with sustained hysteria.

Bing himself goes pleasantly through the usual romance with the leading lady, croons to his fans' taste, and breaks precedent by kissing the girl—once.

BOARD FORCED LAY OFF MANY

Unemployment Compensation Commission Budget Cut

Raleigh, May 4.—Reduction of personnel of the N. C. Unemployment Compensation Commission was started as of May 1, to meet the budget requirements of the Washington offices of the Social Security Board, from the maximum number of employees which reached 634 in March and April, Chairman Charles G. Powell said today.

The hope of the commission is to eliminate at least one, and probably later two of the late night shifts which have been in operation since January. The commission has three shifts, working 24 hours a day, for about four months, the hours having been from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m., from 3 p. m. to 11 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. Eventually, the hope is to eliminate all late shifts so the workers can work normal hours, 9 to 5 in winter and 8:30 to 4:30 in summer.

The maximum of 634 included 472 in the central office in Raleigh and 162 attached to the field offices of the State Employment Service Division. Included in the 634 were about 175 who were put on the payroll as temporary employees in January and February, in order to help the commission catch up with the huge number of claims filed. Since the commission has been up or "current," except in a comparatively small number of irregular claims, and has figured the fourth quarter earnings of all covered employees, the number of workers in the office can be gradually reduced.

In the numbers of workers for the commision, Wake county led with 157 at the peak, many of the temporary employees, put on for a month or two, having been in that number. Pitt county had 21 employees, Johnston, 20; Granville, 17; Durham, 16; Halifax and Nash, 15 each; Guilford and Wayne, 14 each; Buncombe, Craven, Franklin., Mecklenburg and New Hanover, 12 each, and Beaufort, Chatham and Cleveland, 10 each.

On file in the office are 3,075 applications for jobs with the commission, of which 814 are from Wake county. Several other counties have from 50 to 90 on file. Pitt county, the records show, had 21 employees of the commission, either in the central or field offices, and had 94 applications of residents of the county on file in the office.

Rainer's Acting Begins With 'Hands Up'

While expressing an emotion with her face, eyes, lips, the two-time Academy award winner lets her expressive hands increase the effect she wishes to convey, as in these scenes:

In 'The Good Earth'

Man About Manhattan
By George Tucker

New York — Conversation piece at midnight: Roy Howard, the publisher, is sitting at a table adorned with spreading cocoanut blossoms, imported from Hawaii. He is chatting with Commander Bailis of the coast guard, and with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sutton, of the Sutton news agency; with Charles Rochester, the hotel man, who is host for the evening, and with Mrs. Rochester, and a number of people whom your correspondent cannot identify.

Out in front, in a pool of light, three girls in skirts made of Ti (tea) leaves are swaying softly to the strains of a murmuring tropic lullaby. And the man at the microphone is singing softly a song which runs like this: "To you, Sweetheart, a lo-ha—from the bot-tom of—my heart—Keep the smile—on your lips—Brush the tears—from your eye . . . " It goes on like that, and when Ray sings, the best is singing.

* * *

It is homecoming, and much of New York is here to welcome him back. . . . They are jammed at tables over which hang vast palm fronds. . . . It is, of course, the Hawaiian room at the Lexington hotel . . .

Meanwhile busy waiters are placing before guests glasses that are the tallest in town . . . They are about 14 inches high. They are served sitting in a deep, hollow plate, which is necessary, because five or six inches of crushed ice has been frozen about the glass. . . . It clings to the glass like a frosted pineapple . . . This frosted pineapple . . . . This re- . . . . and it will stab you and wound you if you are not careful. . . . It is of rum and fruit juices and, to the palate, is reminiscent of daiquiri. . . . Those waiters handle so many "Daggers" they could qualify as knife throwers.

Suddenly Charles Rochester rises casually and strolls over to one of his aides. The man nods understandingly, catches Kenney's eye and Kenney gives him an answering nod. Rochester returns to his guests and sits down.

* * *

It is one minute of midnight. As Kenney and four of his men leave the orchestra stand and wander over to Mr. Rochester's table, an attache of the room plugs a telephone into the wall. He hands the telephone to Mr. Rochester who takes it and turns to Roy Howard.

"Roy," he says, "here's a call for you."

"For me? Thanks." He takes the phone, speaks into the transmitter. At first incredulity comes over his face. He is surprised, then amazed. Finally his countenance is wreathed in smiles.

For Rochester has arranged a surprise call for Roy Howard, publisher. It is from his daughter in Honolulu, who is working on one of the newspapers there. And so, midnight strikes for Roy Howard. And while he talks with his daughter, Ray Kenney and his men serenade her softly in the background. She tells her father that she hears every word, perfectly. The happy man talks a few moments longer, says aloha, and hangs up.

It seems to me that this surprise Charles Rochester had arranged for his friend is one of the nicest, most genuinely thoughtful things he could have done.

CHURCH COURT UPHOLDS DECISION ON UNIFICATION

will have on the broadening "secession" movement was not immediately apparent, as the general conference of the Methodist church, which voted 434 to 26 for the merger last Friday, today was moving swiftly toward adjournment.

The conference elected seven new bishops yesterday. All said they favored unification.
