

CHINESE SCORPION AIR VICTORIES AGAINST JAPS

Defenders Gain In Battle Along Upper Yangtze

CHINESE AIRMEN CONTINUE RAIDS

Fairly Well Established that Several Japanese Craft Damaged Past Few Days

Shanghai, July 15.—(AP)—The tide of battle appeared today to be turning to favor the Chinese along the upper Yangtze river, after damaging attacks by Chinese war planes.

Chinese announced their airmen continually were raiding Japanese forces, both military and naval, below Kiukiang, which the Japanese have been unable to conquer in two weeks of bitter fighting.

Kiukiang is 135 miles from Hankow, seat of General Chiang Kai-Shek's government and the ultimate objective of the Japanese offensive.

For three days now the Japanese have made no marked advance, and Chinese insist their drive has been brought to a halt.

It is fairly well established that the Chinese aerial force in recent days has damaged several Japanese craft. Some in damaged condition were seen being towed down river.

The Chinese high command in Hankow asserted 45 enemy war vessels had been sunk or damaged in the last two weeks, and 19 of the ships were reported towed to Shanghai for repairs.

Japanese put forth counter claims that their bombers had unshipped Chinese over a wide area. In a twilight raid on Hankow yesterday, Japanese said they bombed 10 Chinese planes on the ground, seriously damaging all.

Ten Face Trial In City Court Friday

Ten defendants faced Vice Recorder L. C. Skinner in City court this morning, a majority of them on charges of drunkenness, on each count of which judgment called for 30 days or costs of court.

Levi Evans, white man charged with drunkenness, was freed when a nolle proes was taken.

Alex Dupree, Jr., Negro, was convicted of assault and given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior for one year.

Louise Whichard, Negro, was convicted of engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct and with using vulgar and profane language and was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Tom Bell and R. K. Williams, white men, were charged with engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct. Bell was acquitted, but Williams was convicted and ordered to pay the costs of court.

Four white men and one Negro, convicted of drunkenness, were given 30-day sentences, suspended upon payment of costs. The defendants were Baxter Carson, Charlie Landen, Richard Mills and Johnnie Green, all white, and Billy James, Negro.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Tillery

The funeral for Mrs. Paul A. Tillery, who died suddenly at the Rex Hospital yesterday morning, will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock from her home at 904 Vance street, Hayes-Barton, Raleigh. Interment will follow in Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Tillery was born in Greenville in 1884, in the old Moore home on Evans street, where the T. A. Person home now stands. She spent most of her childhood here. When her family moved to Washington, she spent a great deal of her time with her aunts, Mrs. R. M. Hearne and Miss Bettie Warren, at the Sheriff Warren estate "Riverside."

In 1906 she was married in Washington, N. C., to Paul A. Tillery of Scotland Neck. Soon after their marriage they moved to Newark, N. J., where Mr. Tillery was sent as an electrical engineer. Two years later

J. Frank Harrington Returns From Parley

J. Frank Harrington was back at his desk as clerk of court today after attending the annual state conventions of the North Carolina Clerks Association in Charlotte and a few days vacationing in the mountains.

Mr. Harrington declared the meeting was "a very successful one." After attending the convention Mr. and Mrs. Harrington went on to the mountains where they spent several days.

Weed Scrap Law Upheld By Frizzelle

Raleigh, July 15.—(AP)—Attorney-General Harry McMullan announced today the constitutionality of the state law levying a license tax of $1,000 on dealers in scrap tobacco had been sustained by Judge Paul Frizzelle.

Judge Frizzelle signed a judgment, McMullan said, holding the law was valid in ruling against the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco company of Greenville in a suit against Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell.

At the hearing before Judge Frizzelle it was indicated an appeal to the Supreme court would be taken, regardless of his decision in Superior court.

RELIEF ROLLS DECLINE HERE

Unemployment Compensation Claims Sharply Cut

Increased business activity in Pitt County has reduced the number of claims for Unemployment Compensation by more than one thousand within the last few weeks.

It was learned today from W. G. Cherry, Jr., manager of the local office of the North Carolina State Employment Service.

During just the last two weeks of June, approximately 500 workers were taken off the unemployment rolls and put back to work, Mr. Cherry stated.

Pre-season activity in local tobacco factories, an increase in building and construction work, the resumption of full time work in a local textile mill, and the housing of tobacco accounted for most of the employment, he stated.

The persons transferred from the unemployment rolls to jobs had practically all been drawing unemployment compensation since April 1, and some of them for a longer period.

Opening several weeks before the usual season, one local tobacco factory has already re-employed more than 300 stemmers.

The general re-opening of the tobacco processing factories here, when tobacco begins to arrive from the Georgia market and later from the border and local markets, will just about eliminate altogether Greenville's lists of unemployed, Mr. Cherry prophesied.

"When the whistles start blowing at the tobacco factories in August, practically 98 per cent of our colored applicants will have jobs," he declared.

Statistics compiled by the State office of the Employment Service in Raleigh show that North Carolina business in general is unmistakably swinging upward, Mr. Cherry stated. This information is based on accurate and widespread reports from branch offices covering the entire state. Reports from nearly every section of the state indicate encouraging increases in business activity and, as a consequence, unemployment is rapidly diminishing.

Vernon Parrish Saves Bird By Killing Snake

Vernon Parrish this afternoon related how he saved a bird from a snake by shooting the reptile while riding along in his car on the way home from Kinston this morning.

Mr. Parrish said he espied the snake, threw his car out of gear, and while he was stopping opened fire on the reptile. The shot reached its mark, killing the snake and freeing the bird.

Maxwell Sees No Trouble Over Collecting Gas Tax

Raleigh, July 15.—The fact that gasoline expands in volume as the temperature rises has raised some question about the exact manner and methods of collecting the state's tax on the fuel that makes so many automobiles go so many miles; but Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell doesn't think there is going to be any trouble settling the issue.

"The gasoline tax has been collected by the state with greater ease than any it ever levied," said the commissioner, "the oil companies have cooperated splendidly and there never has been any controversy."

"There isn't going to be any now," he added.

He explained that the law permits payment of the gasoline taxes in either of two ways, at the option of the companies—either they can pay the 6 cents a gallon levy on sales actually made by them to distributors, or they can pay it on the volume of gasoline shipped into the state in bulk, less one per cent allowance for evaporation.

Until about a year ago, practically all the big companies paid on the

HUGHES GIRDLES GLOBE IN THREE DAYS, 19 HOURS

This picture shows Howard Hughes' bi-motored monoplane landing at Floyd Bennett field, New York, starting point of a record-shattering round-the-world flight, three days, 19 hours and 16 minutes after the beginning of the successful attempt to better the record of the late Wiley Post. WAGE CUTTING CHARGES MADE

South Accused of Initiating Cuts Up To 20 Per Cent

Providence, R. I., July 15.—(AP)—E. P. Walker, secretary-treasurer of the Rhode Island Textile Association, charged today that "widespread" scattered, but important groups of southern cotton mills have initiated within the past two weeks "wage cuts averaging from 16 to 20 per cent."

Walker said this apparently had been put into effect "for the purpose of reducing all wages to a point approaching the minimum of 25 cents per hour, provided in the new wage bill" before that act becomes effective.

Walker said the Rhode Island Textile Association membership represents 80 per cent of the textile business in the state. He made the charges in a prepared statement.

Groups named by Walker included the Proximity Manufacturing Company, operating a chain of mills in and near Greensboro, N. C. Textile officials said there were others.

"This activity is in line with predictions made by many Northern manufacturers before the bill was passed," Walker said. "These Northern mill owners called attention to the fact that the minimum wage ordered under the cotton code during NRA of $12 per week in Southern mills, in many cases became all intent and purposes the maximum as well, in many Southern plants. This experience was apparently forgotten or overlooked by proponents of the recent wage-hour act."

In the Boston fire of 1872, 60 acres were devastated, with a property loss of over $60,000,000.

Hughes Accorded Official Welcome

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Back from the greatest conquest of space ever made by man—around the world in less than four days—tactically Howard Hughes felt the gathering fervor today of a thunderous half-hysterical Broadway welcome.

The official greeting was along the typical "Welcome home, Hero," line that New York has reserved as an accolade for the brave since the 1927 day when a blonde young man named Charles Lindbergh came back from Paris.

The pattern prescribed a start from the battery, on the southern tip of Manhattan island, with the fliers in open automobile. They were routed through the sky-scraped canyons of the financial district to City Hall, there to receive the official welcome of the city from Mayor LaGuardia.

After the ceremonies there, the parade route lay up Fifth avenue, through showers of the traditional ticker tape and the shouts of the populace, to the Metropolitan Club and luncheon.

Hughes brought his monoplane, his mighty motors thundering, over Floyd Bennett field at 1:45-10 p. m. EST, yesterday, three days, 10 hours, eight minutes and 10 seconds from the time he left that airport last Sunday evening at 6:26 p. m. EST.

Thus, the great adventure was ended and thus the record made solo by the late Wiley Post in 1933 of seven days, 18 hours and 49 minutes was more than halved.

As Hughes, a quiet Texas multimillionaire sportsman, appeared high aloft the thousands who had awaited him set up a shrieking prelude to the parade from the battery planned for noon today to honor him and his four comrades.

TEXAS NATIVE CLUB SPEAKER

Dr. Posey Declares Texas No Longer in Pioneer Stage

Dr. M. N. Posey, instructor at the University of Texas, who is teaching at East Carolina Teachers College during the summer session, told Kiwanians at a luncheon meeting today that Texas no longer is in the pioneer stage, but is of age and that the lingo of the cowboy and cowgirl is no more familiar than the Harvard accent in sections of the state.

The bi-weekly meeting was held at 1 o'clock so that members desiring to do so could attend the divisional meeting tonight at Wrightsville Beach.

Prefacing his remarks that if his talk was to have a title it could be called "Texas in Ten Minutes," he remarked that such a task would be a big one since Texas was a big state.

The English instructor said that when he went back to his native state and told the boys of the "ladies break" dances held at the college here, the male population of Greenville probably would be increased.

The speaker explained the origin of the name Texas was listed in history books as being derived from the word "Tejas," which means friends. "There are many, however, who contend it is merely the word 'taxes.'" He said this could hardly be true since the state has no sales or income taxes. "We have a $15,000,000 deficit in the general fund instead," he said.

He traced in brief the history of the state from the pioneer days and recalled that Texas has been under six flags.

TWENTY DIE IN WILL PROTECT ITALIAN PLANE MILL WORKERS

Worst Civilian Tragedy in the History of Italy

Rome, July 15.—(AP)—Wreckage of an Italian air liner which plunged into the sea 70 miles off Sardinia, carrying 20 persons to their deaths was found today by searching planes.

Victims of the biggest disaster in Italian civil aviation included six women and a girl among the 16 passengers and four crew men.

The plane, "I-Volo," of the Ala Littoria line, left Cagliari, Sardinia, for Rome at 7:35 a. m. (1:35 a. m. EST), yesterday and its last radio signal was received at 9:06 a. m.

The official report of the accident said the sea was blanketed by thick fog and blamed the disaster on "a forced landing without visibility."

The girl victim was a 14-year-old niece of Undersecretary of Aviation Valde. The women passengers included her mother and aunt, sisters of the undersecretary.

The plane was piloted by Capt. G. Braccini, veteran flier.

Idle Mill Worker Declared Suicide

Elizabeth City, July 15.—(AP)—Thomas C. Trueblood, 50-year-old unemployed cotton mill worker, blasted his heart out here today with a double-barreled shotgun, after dressing himself for breakfast, Trueblood walked over to the corner where his shotgun sat, and emptied a charge into his body just above the heart.

He had been living at the home of his sister for three months.

State to Send Officers To Greensboro If Necessary

Raleigh, July 15.—(AP)—Eighteen men who said they represented more than 3,249 of the 4,591 or so regular employees of the closed Cone Textile Mills at Greensboro, received assurances from Governor Hoy today that they would have the protection of the state if the local authorities failed to protect workers when the mills reopened.

The mills closed Monday when workers protested against a wage cut.

The Governor said the workers told him they had petitions signed by 3,249 of the regular employees of the four plants asking that the mills reopen and that two of the petitions had only been in circulation since late yesterday. He said the workers stated they had been "well treated."

"I told them," said the Governor, "that in North Carolina every person has a right to strike or quit work individually or collectively, but that those who wanted to work had a right to do that."

"If the majority wants to go to work the State of North Carolina will afford them protection, if the local authorities are unable to adequately protect them."

"I told them that applied to the whole state. That I was not considering the merits of their case. Any majority of the employees of a firm in the state will be protected if it wants to continue work."

Major Arthur Fulk, commanding officer of the Highway Patrol, attended the conference, but Governor Hoy said no plans had been made to send patrolmen or national guardsmen to Greensboro.

The number of men in gainful occupations in 1930 was three and a half times the number of women.

Allot Sum For Snagging River to City

Word has been received here that a $75,000 allotment has been made for "snagging" the river from Tarboro to Greenville. The funds were allocated by the War Department, $25,000 of which came from a Rivers and Harbors appropriation and the remainder from a surplus on other projects already completed.

The work will be carried on as a flood control project and will include removing of sunken logs, cleaning ditches leading into the river and clearing brush from the side of the stream.

CITY PROJECTS ARE DISCUSSED

Board of Aldermen to Meet Tonight to Take Up Budget

The Greenville board of Aldermen last night discussed at length and made several changes in three new projects under consideration for Greenville—a municipal building, street department yard and fire stations.

It had been planned to erect one new fire station in the business section of the city and a sub-station in the residential section, but this idea was abandoned last night for one central station to be located near the business section. The new station would be large enough to house five trucks.

No material changes were made plans for the new city hall building, but the street department yard project was cut to about half of the original plans.

George A. Snyder, associate of Frank W. Benton, Wilson architect, attended the meeting last night and went over plans with the mayor and aldermen. He will return Saturday with his plans changed in compliance with recommendation of the board.

The Board last night authorized the mayor and clerk to proceed with details on making application with the PWA after the plans have been changed to meet recommendations.

If the PWA approves the application for a grant of 45 per cent of the total cost, the next step then would be the calling of a bond election, at which time the citizens would decide for themselves whether or not to proceed with the projects. It is estimated that the city's part of the projects would amount to approximately $135,000 including funds for some additional needs for which no arrangements have been made.

The Board last night also discussed the question of employing a finance officer and purchasing agent, a possibility that has been under consideration for some time, but upon which no definite action has been taken.

The Mayor called another meeting for tonight for the purpose of discussing the 1938-39 budget. This problem was not even reached last night, due to the press of the other matters of business.

ORDERS PROBE OF CAMPAIGNS IN TENNESSEE

Revealed That Investigator Had Been Sent to State

RELIEF OUTLOOK APPEARS BRIGHT

WPA Administrator Hopkins Optimistic Despite Year's Peak Now on Rolls

Washington, July 15.—(AP)—Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) announced today the special Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee was investigating charges of political abuse in Tennessee.

Sheppard told reporters after a two-hour closed committee session this was the "undisclosed state" to which a special committee investigator had been sent.

The chairman, who had previously refused even to name the state, declined to detail the causes of the Tennessee investigation. Earlier he had said charges of misuse of public funds were involved.

Senator Berry (D-Tenn.), is opposed for renomination by Tom Stewart, Winchester; J. R. Mitchell, Cookeville; J. R. Neal, Knoxville, and E. W. Carmack, Murfreesboro, according to the committee records.

The committee delayed final action on complaints from Maryland, Pennsylvania, California and North Dakota.

Meanwhile, WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins is optimistic over the employment outlook, despite a year's peak of 2,853,354 persons on the relief rolls.

"I don't want to be a Pollyanna, but there are signs that the relief rolls might come down," Hopkins said at a press conference.

Other developments: The names of a handful of lawyers and jurists from beyond the Missouri river came to the front in capital speculation over a successor to Supreme Court Justice Cardozo.

Included in the westerners mentioned in unofficial discussions was Justin Miller, 50, of California, formerly on the Board of Tax Appeals, one-time law professor in western schools. Miller at one time was dean of Duke University Law School.

Shows Where Seal Sale Money Spent

Mrs. K. B. Pace, Treasurer of the Pitt County Seal Sale Fund today released through the Pitt County Health Department the following statement on the expenditures from the Seal Sale Fund from January 1st to June 30, 1938.

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health officer, expressed much satisfaction at the large number of X-rays which had been made. He stated that all of the physicians in the County were privileged to ask for free chest X-ray for any of their poor patients. He stated that most X-ray diagnosis meant that the patient was in the early stages of tuberculosis, the stage which, when given proper treatment, usually results in a cure.

He also called attention to the fine co-operation given the Health Department by the County Commissioners in the control of tuberculosis by providing Burr cottages

Man About Manhattan

Robert Sisk, now a movie producer; Willard Keefe, the playwright; Jack Barron, drama critic; Jack Milley, sports columnist, and they all invested a share of the necessary capital to produce the play.

Rehearsals started and were getting along fairly well when Barron showed up one day with a negro actor who had been a member of the cast of "Porgy" when Barron had taken that play to London at the time he was an executive of the New York Theater Guild. The actor had also written a play called "The Son Of Old Black Joe" which Barron argued they should produce before the Washburn play because it was filled with Negro songs and therefore should have a better chance of succeeding.

So "Little Lost Sister" was temporarily shelved while the boys took up another assessment among themselves and rented a rehearsal hall in Harlem where they began to cast "The Son Of Old Black Joe." They rehearsed and rehearsed for four weeks when there arrived the night to open the show, but the amateur producers discovered that they had been so enthusiastic about rehearsing the music and singing, they had forgotten to rehearse the story plot.

By this time, too, they had been trying to write most of Washburn's "Little Lost Sister" into the plot of "The Son Of Old Black Joe" until it had become an irreparable mixup.

So they took up another assessment among themselves, bought a case of gin for their Harlem actors and went back to their several journalistic and theatrical jobs, convinced that being Broadway producers was a merry-go-round of too many assessments.

ADVERTISING NETS RESULTS

Campaign For North Carolina Attracts Attention

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, July 15—North Carolina's advertising campaign is getting results on a number of fronts; with at least three instances coming to the attention of Paul Kelly, assistant director of the Department of Conservation and Development, today.

The developments, all indirectly the result of the advertising program, are:

(1) Visit to North Carolina of approximately 15 members of an Appalachian Tour of the State Normal School at Oswego, N. Y.

(2) Recent broadcast over a New York City station of facts about North Carolina as a "golfer's paradise."

(3) Publication in the August issue of Field and Stream, national sportsman's magazine, of an article "The Surf Calls," relating the story of fishing off Hatteras, by F. A. Mitchell-Hewes.

The visitors from the North have entered North Carolina almost at its extreme western tip—from Knoxville—and will cross the entire state to Elizabeth City and Roanoke Island. Monday night they will be in Raleigh, where an appropriate welcome is to be given them at a supper, with Mr. Kelly or some other representative of the Conservation Department as principal speaker.

The New York golfing broadcast was unsolicited and cost the state nothing at all. It was by Larry Nixon, travel commentator, who drew for his facts on O. B. Keeler's treatise, recently prepared under auspices of the Department. He wound up his talk: "So I guess we golfers had better check up on North Carolina pretty soon—it's a summer (and winter) golfer's paradise."

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

PRONTOSIL'S POSSIBILITIES

The original drug, prontosil, from which the now widely applied sulfanilamide was derived, was produced in Germany in 1932.

Its medicinal effects were first generally disclosed in 1935, and during the last three years the drug, as well as several of its derivatives, has been extensively used in treating a number of conditions.

The publicity accorded these chemical compounds in the press has been enormous. The work of studying the curative and preventive values of prontosil and its daughter drugs has been done at a feverish tempo. And yet an immense field for new and for further study remains.

Prontosil has been a great stimulus to chemotherapy. For a long time it was believed that artificially produced chemical compounds were useless in treating diseases caused by bacterial agents. Their effectiveness it was thought was restricted to the protozoal organisms (those belonging to the animal kingdom). While the protozoal agents are the causes of some very destructive diseases—syphilis and malaria—the vast majority of infectious diseases are due to the organisms of the vegetable kingdom, the bacteria.

Prontosil has been found effective against certain bacteria, and does not seem to have any effect on experimental syphilis.

Since the discovery of prontosil, more than a thousand related compounds have been made synthetically by its discoverers, and many of these are now being tried out.

Similar work is being done in many of the world's chemical laboratories. It is hoped that some of these new compounds may prove effective against certain of the bacteria which are not affected by prontosil, or by any of its available modifications.

One of the fascinations in chemotherapy is that even slight variations in chemical structure may profoundly alter the effectiveness of a compound against a given organism.

The chemotherapist is like a locksmith who, mainly by trial and error, must fit a key to a cylinder lock of many tumblers. The promise is good, and we may soon have new chemical compounds with which to overcome other bacterial infections.

New York—Press parties for the famous in New York seem to be divided into two types: the garden variety and the ultra-ultra.

This classification is decided not by the setting nor by the refreshments—east or west, it's caviar and fireworks—but by who attends. For the garden variety the second-string celebrities represent their seniors. For the ultra-ultra the first-stringers take the field.

But what I had a mind to report was not parties but the New York triumph of Walt, the diffident Disney.

An Honor Guest

Walt came east to pick up a couple of sheepskins at Harvard and Yale, and on his way back west he ran slap-bang into one of the most famous of press parties.

He was, moreover, the guest of honor. Walt has been guest of honor times enough before, but never by his own design.

This time it wasn't Walt's idea either. It was W. G. Van Schmus's. Mr. Van Schmus is chief high mogul of the Music Hall, and he wanted to honor the greatest man in pictures today.

Disney is one of the best talkers, when he gets under way, that I've ever met.

Walt's Favorite Dwarf

About the most shocking admission he made, under the barrage of questioning, was that Grumpy was his favorite dwarf. To this Dopey fan, such honors for Grumpy amounted to high treason—but then you have to put up with Disney's ideas some times. Shirley Temple's papa has a blind side where Shirley's concerned, too.

"Am I going to frame those diplomats? You bet I am," said Disney. "I want my youngsters to point with pride at a college daddy. No, I never went to college. It was funny, but some of those kids who got sheepskins with me had worked six years for 'em. I got by more easily than most, didn't I?"

Meanwhile, as Walt Disney was being the perfect guest of honor in the reception hall, they were showing some of his new fantasies in a nearby projection room. They also showed a newsreel clip of his "graduation."

Watch for that one. You'll see the real Walt Disney. He's all smothered in dignity of cap and gown. He's adjusting his academic cape, and the tassel gets in his eye, with a Mickey Mouseish antic, he blows it back in place.

That's it. Walt Disney is Mickey Mouse.

HUGHES RETURNS TO NORTH AMERICA ON WORLD FLIGHT

This map shows the stages of the Howard Hughes flight as compared with the 1933 flight of the late Wiley Post. Hughes plane landed at New York airport yesterday.

GROVER WHALEN GREE TS HOWARD HUGHES

Not at all unhappy over having lost that dapper lock is Howard Hughes (center)—he of the heavy whiskers—as he walks away from his plane with Grover Whalen (left), president of the 1939 World's Fair, at Floyd Bennett airport, New York. The wealthy sportsman-pilot rounded the world in just a little more than 91 hours.

HUGHES: PORTRAIT OF TIRED MAN

Here is the picture of a tired man: Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman-pilot, usually a dapper figure, who went without sleep and without shaving in order to fly around the world in the record time of three days, 19 hours and 16 minutes. This picture was made at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, shortly after Pilot Hughes and his four companions left the cabin of their bi-motored monoplane.

Pays Penny: Saves Lives
 Southend, England—(AP)—Two men clinging to an overturned dinghy were saved by a telescope recently. Another man on the pier saw them through a telescope and raised an alarm. He had paid a penny.

Clock Goes Berserk.
 Olney, Ill.—(AP)—The clock in the county courthouse tower struck 523 consecutive times the other day, thereby setting a new record for itself. On April 21 it struck 496 times.

RECORD-BUSTER HUGHES RETURNS NEEDING SHAVE, SLEEP

Having more than halved the round-the-world record set by the late Wiley Post in 1933, Howard Hughes returned to the starting point, Floyd Bennett field, New York, to find a wildly cheering crowd on hand to welcome him and his four companions. He is shown (wearing hat) just outside the plane immediately after landing. He lost sleep and fell behind on shaving—but he circled the world in three days, 19 hours and 16 minutes.

ERSKINE SMITH LEADS FOR JOB

Rated Favorite For President Pro Tem 1939 Senate

Reflector Bureau.
 By HENRY AVERILL
 Raleigh, July 15.—W. Erskine Smith of Stanley county, a legislative veteran and wheelhorse for all that he wasn't in the 1937 Assembly, rates as an odds-on favorite in the race for president pro tem of the 1939 State Senate.

From what political talk your correspondent hears this hot weather the thing can hardly be called a race—it bears more nearly the appearance of a walkaway.

Hailing from a county located on the sunset side of the dividing line which severs North Carolina into two sections, East and West, it might be thought that some Senator from the sunrise sector would be the favorite of the Easterners; but among "Erk" Smith's most enthusiastic supporters are numbered many, if not most, of the long time and influential Eastern Senators. It is this factor which makes Smith look such a certain winner.

Against the Stanley Senator stand the announced candidacy of Senator W. I. Halstead of Camden, returning for his sophomore term in the upper chamber; and the somewhat nebulous prospect that Tom Gold, High Point wheel horse, may enter the race.

Practically the only substantial prop of the Halstead candidacy, is the fact that the 1937 President Pro Tem, A. Hall Johnston, came from the West—Buncombe to be exact. In reply, however, it is pointed out that for a number of consecutive sessions prior to 1937 the post went regularly to an Easterner. For this reason—and perhaps also because the place is more honorary than influential—the Eastern members seem disinclined to put forward their geographical claim and make an exhaustive fight for one of their number.

Washington Daybook

Washington—The voice of the Lead of the Democratic party sounds like the voice of the President of the United States.

It has the same agreeable comely, even though Mr. Roosevelt said that he would not talk as President in the primaries but as head of the Democratic party would fight for his loyal Senators.

Never does Mr. Roosevelt seem as happy as when he can cut loose without restraint as he did at the Latonia race track at Covington, Ky., in his effort to rescue Senator Barkley from the toils of Governor Chandler. Not since 1936 has the Roosevelt zest for political battle been so obvious.

The President is at his speaking peak when he has a crowd before him pitched to politics and there is no need to trim sail. The President knows that his "fighting speeches" always are before audiences shaped to his liking. When he is compelled to hold himself in because of nettlesome political conditions, his enthusiasm is dampened.

It's The Bounce

Thus, in the entangling political situation in Ohio and Oklahoma, where the President had to pull rein his commendation of the New Deal Senators was so restrained that by comparison with the speeches in Kentucky they sounded like damning with faint praise.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, the President's sea-going physician, has a word for the President's zest. He says when the President is healthy, rested and doing something he likes he has "bounce," a certain mental resilience and responsiveness which is absent when he is exhausted. He had it at Covington.

Some repercussions to the President's participation in state primaries were immediate. The President made Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky unhappy with his gibes. He twitted the governor about his boasted balancing of the budget, telling his chuckling and laughing audience that Chandler came often to Washington and ably aided himself by never coming away empty-handed.

But Chandler's supporters responded in their own way. Kentucky long has had a tradition against interfering with primaries. Where Barkley posters said "Roosevelt wants Barkley," Chandler posters retorted "Kentucky wants Chandler."

That Roosevelt Luck

That sharply pointed up the arguments made by critics of the President's primary invasion, that state primary elections are strictly a state affair. In pre-purge days that was emphasized by another head of the Democratic party, Postmaster General Farley.

As the President left for his combination vacation and political cruise, the "Roosevelt luck" gave him a send-off. The stock market that had sagged sickeningly all spring took an upward spurt and continued to climb.

Things like that happen to President Roosevelt. His itinerary calls for a stop at Coco Solos Islands, reputed resting place of buried pirate treasure. Roosevelt probably will find it.

BUTTONS, BUTTONS—WHO STOLE THE BUTTONS?

Chicago, (AP)—A boy who wanted to make his old 12-key accordion look like one with 48 keys had the city hall jittery for five weeks.

Police, WPA workers and city employees spent a hectic time trying to catch the person who unscrewed elevator signal buttons on the fourth, sixth, tenth and other floors during that time—avenging a button a day. Finally an elevator operator nabbed the lad and turned him over to the police, but he was not arrested.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, July 15—If farmers and others who attend the Fertilizer Conference at the Oxford Tobacco Experiment Station on July 22 don't learn something, it will not be for want of hearing from experts.

The program for the affair reads very much like a list of "Who's Who" among the argiculture and fertilizer specialists and experts of this section—with some from other sections thrown in for good measure.

Listed for talks of one sort or another are: Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott; D. S. Murphy, administrative assistant, the National Fertilizer Association, Washington, D. C.; Dr. H. P. Cooper, dean and director, Clemson College, Clemson, S. C.; Professor T. B. Hutcheson, agronomist, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.; Dr. J. J. Skinner, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; Dr. E. R. Collins, agronomist, State College, Raleigh; Dr. R. F. Poole, pathologist, State College, Raleigh; J. E. McMurtree, Jr., U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; and Dr. W. W. Garner, in charge of tobacco investigation, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

And, of course, F. E. Miller, director and E. G. Moss, assistant director, of the test farm.

June saw one of the largest decreases in recent months in North Carolina's prison population, which on the first stood at 9,372. By July 1 it had fallen to 9,250, a substantial reduction of 1922 over the period.

During the month 39 prisoners paroled, and the time of 1,526 expired. A total of 74 were received at Central Prison from courts which had sentenced them, and 1,388 were received by road camps from the courts.

North Carolina's newspaper fraternity is losing one of its finest as Henry R. Emory, managing editor of the Wilmington News, quits to become manager of Wilmington's Housing Commission.

"Hank" has been everything from printer's devil up to sole owner, proprietor, copy boy and compositor of an independent weekly publication; and in every post was a credit to the profession.

This correspondent knows, having worked for several years with the new commission executive.

This year's bulletin and report of the Department of Public Instruction is going to be "streamlined" and packed with pictures. Those in charge have decided that the report ought to be made something in which Mr. and Mrs. Alysius Y. Zilch, the average North Carolina couple, can take a real and abiding interest.

They've probably got something there. Most governmental reports are drier than dust an dfit only for use in making fires.

Anyone who thinks that Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell, who is ex officio head of the Highway Safety division, is through with his safety campaign, has quite another thing coming to him.

The commissioner recently laid down a six-point program which attracted statewide attention. It will not be long before he follows up with other ideas, including further suggestions that much of North Carolina's present highway system is obsolete and dangerous for use under present "high speed" conditions.

News is among those on vacation in Raleigh in the unanimous opinion of those charged with keeping up with what's going on.

ANCIENT CHINESE GOT MUSIC FROM AIR, TOO

Chicago, (AP)—Long before radio filled the ether with swing tunes and symphonies the Chinese enjoyed music from the air by attaching whistles to the tails of pigeons. They released the birds over their cities.

The Field Museum, Chicago, has acquired a collection of these whistles made from reeds and small gourds. The whistles contained from two to eight pipes each.

COPS BARKED ORDERS—BUT NO ONE HEARD THEM

Paris, (AP)—Paris policemen have found that they can't contend with the barrel-chested Norman farmers who hawk their wares in Paris' central markets, so loud speakers have been installed at the markets to aid the officers.

Traffic in the market zone has been in a hopeless tangle for years because the policemen couldn't make themselves heard above the bellows of the farmer merchantmen.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

By NELSON C. NYE

The Story So Far

Under the name of Abe Streeter, quick-fire Ankrom takes a job on the troubled Rafter T ranch to help lovely Lee Trone. Colonel Struthers and his daughter Betty come to visit, and Ankrom recognizes Struthers as an impostor, Kelton Dreen, Ankrom is shot at in the dark, and Dreen is killed. Betty tells Ankrom she killed Dreen to save him, and slips him her gun. Ratchford, the sheriff, is keeping them all in the ranch-house, including Claydell, a neighboring rancher.

Chapter Thirteen

Why's And Wherefore's I've a notion to go to bed," Ankrom yawned. "If you want me for anything you can find me in the bunkhouse."

"Take one step out of this room, by golly, an' I'll put you under arrest!" Ratchford growled. "You or anyone else! There's been a killin' here tonight an' I aim to find out the whys an' wherefores of it—an' who done it!"

A hush closed in upon the room as the sheriff ceased speaking. Ankrom saw that these people about the sheriff glanced covertly at one another. There was something sinister, something evil in the hush.

"Streeter," the sheriff's voice broke in upon his thoughts, "I'd like for you to give the same spiel you've got Struthers? Mind if I see it?"

"Struthers did not carry a gun, so far as I can learn. What made you think he had one? Were you an' him o' friends? Like him an' Streeter, here?"

Ankrom stared at the sheriff; he did not like the tone in which the sheriff had delivered those last few words linking himself and Struthers.

"An old friend?" repeated Claydell. "Hardly that, Tom. I had only met the colonel this afternoon. There was something fine about him though, I thought," he smiled.

"A great nobility of mind—a thing seldom found in the characters of gamblers."

Ratchford's lips were white, so closely did he press them. In the eyes behind those sleepy lids Ankrom saw that clouds of caution gathered. Then Ankrom's glance passed to Old Man Trone to see how he was taking Claydell's ironic words and the revelation of Kelton Dreen's actual calling; a revelation which, if Trone believed it, must have shown him that Struthers was an impostor.

Trone's face held an odd expression. The dread which Ankrom had before noticed in his eyes was more pronounced. His gaunt form seemed to be shrinking. But he was sober, now; cold sober.

Electric Silence

RATCHFORD was leaning forward. There was a danger-

Every eye in the room focussed on Ankrom's feet.

to these folks you gave me awhile ago when we found Struthers' body." "Why, I was standin' by the bunkhouse," Ankrom said, thoughtfully. "I remember rollin' a cigarette an' had just struck a match when a gun went off an' a slug took the smoke right out of my mouth. I whirled, dragging at my gun, not knowing what was up. The shot had come from a little to one side, I guessed—from under that big pepper tree. Before I could get my gun out I heard another shot—"

"Did you see the gunflash?" Ratchford asked.

"I think I saw the first one. I couldn't see the second," Ankrom paused, then said, "As I looked toward the tree I saw a blur of movement among the shadows. I ran forward with my gun held ready. I had just got there when you came up behind me. One of the puncher's brought a lantern and we saw Struthers' body lyin' in the sand."

Ratchford drew a blue-barrelled .45 from his belt and held it out. "Is this your gun?" he asked.

Ankrom nodded. "You ought to know. You took it out of my hand." Claydell laughed. "That wouldn't mean anything to a suspicious devil like Ratchford," he grinned.

'Have Your Fun'

RATCHFORD'S frame went tense, his hand half dropping to the weapon sheathed upon his thigh. Then a sneer crossed his lips and he chuckled maliciously. "Have your fun, Claydell. Have your fun," he drawled. Turning toward the girls he said, "I sure am sorry about all this, Miss Struthers. Wouldn't have had it happen for the world. I'll do all I can to bring the killer of your father to the end of his rope."

Betty eyed him silently, her dark eyes round and moist-looking. A fold of her dress lay clenched between her hands; so shocked by this tragedy did she seem as to be unaware that her grip of the fabric pulled it slightly above a pair of dimpled knees.

But Ankrom saw, and so did Claydell, Ankrom told himself. He watched Claydell cross to where she sat and pat her shoulder. "You can count on my help, too, Miss Struthers."

"The altruist," jeered Ratchford, sneering. "Thank you," Claydell said, and bowed. "By the way, sheriff—among the collections of guns you've been making, I suppose ous droop to the corners of his mouth as he eyed Claydell. "Just what," he asked portentously, "did you mean by that last crack?"

Claydell raised his bushy eyebrows, shrugged. "Wasn't it evident," he asked.

Betty's voice crossed the silence recklessly. "My father was not a gambler!"

Claydell's brows shot upward. He looked surprised. "I did not say he was, Miss Struthers. Perhaps you misunderstood me in your overwrought condition. I am sure you would be better off in bed, young lady," he smiled. "This affair tonight must have proved an awful shock to you."

Ankrom could not be sure, but he believed that in the rancher's last words he had caught a touch of sarcasm. But a glance at Claydell's suave face was enough to convince him that he had not. Only sympathy was registered there.

"Do you think I could sleep after what has happened?" she flared.

"Sleep? Perhaps not. But lying down would rest you."

"I guess she can manage to sit up with still daylight," Ratchford's voice reached roughly out. "She ain't so bad shook up as all of that. She was around when the colonel crossed the line. She may have seen something. When she gets a little stronger I'm goin' to question her, and until I do I aim to see she stays where she can't be got at."

Claydell made a clucking sound. "What makes you think she might have seen something, if I'm allowed to ask?"

"I," said the sheriff heavily, "saw a woman duck out from under that tree as I came up—the pepper tree where we found Struthers' body."

Once again the silence was electric. And then it happened—

Some heavy object struck the floor with a metallic clank. Every eye in that room seemed to focus at Ankrom's feet. Ankrom had no need to send a glance downward to reveal the cause of the accusing looks he read in those staring eyes—he knew. He had felt that cold metallic thing go slithering down his leg; the gun that a half hour ago Betty had forced upon him.

In plain sight the weapon lay upon the floor!

Greenies Whip Snow Hill, 8-5, In Hit and Run Contest

LOCALS MAKE KNOCKS COUNT

Every Player in Line-up Got at Least One Safety

Sam Lankford, Greenville hurler, had Snow Hill completely baffled for four innings yesterday afternoon, and then allowed only one run in each of the fifth, sixth and seventh innings while the Greenies were marking up six runs. The locals defeated the Billies 8-5 at Third Street park.

Snow Hill batters began to get on to Lankford's puzzling delivery too often to look safe for the locals and in the sixth he was pulled in favor of Caligiuri, who allowed only one hit during the remainder of the game. The Billies got 12 hits of the starting hurler before he was relieved with two men on base with none out. Errors by the locals helped Lankford get into the hole.

The first man to face Caligiuri hit into a double play, and the scoring for the Billies was over for the day. Snow Hill had garnered two runs, in the eighth before Caligiuri went in to halt the rally.

Birch Douglass suffered an injury to his left knee when he collided with the Snow Hill catcher while scoring all the way from second base on Morris' fly to deep center. Douglass practically stole this run. He drew a walk, stole second, then raced home, diving over Baker at the plate, who dropped the ball. Birch took his place at first when the inning was over, but owing to his injuries, asked to be retired from the game. Manager Wilson held down the first sack the remainder of the game.

Monk Joyner, outfielder of the Billies, fell on the grass in left after making a nice stop of a safe hit, and injured his leg. He was obliged to leave the game.

Each team used two pitchers. Cicerales giving way to Sddol in the fifth for the Billies.

The Greenies outdid the Billies by a margin of only one, 14 to 13, but the locals' hits came at more opportune times and the Greenies were better at getting extra-base knocks. Heavener garnered three for five and Smith two for three to lead the locals at bat. Every Greenville player getting at least one hit.

Goldbugs Beat Aces In 7-Inning Contest

Goldboro, July 15.—Goldboro collected a dozen hits, including three home runs, in the first three innings of yesterday's game with Ayden. The Bugs were returned victors, 9-4 in a contest stepped by rain as Goldboro came to bat in the seventh.

The Bugs introduced a new hurler, Flint Rhem, for big league pitcher. The newcomer yielded 11 hits in 6 2-3 innings. Lefty Flora retired the last batter in the seventh. Earl Carnahan and Bill Herring hit homers for the Aces. Carnahan also batted 1.000—he also connected for a triple, a double and a single.

Burt Watson, Frankie Dirmann and Dright Morris hit homers for the Bugs. Watson's homer, with one on in the second, ended the afternoon chores of Russel Gurth, Ayden chucker.

Score by innings: R H E Ayden 0 0 0 11 1-4 11 1 Goldboro 234 000 x-9 12 0 Gurth, Webb and Baba; Rhem, Flora and Overton.

Eagles Bunch Hits To Whip the Martins

Kinston, July 15.—Kinston made three runs in the second inning—on three hits and an error—and those tallies proved more than Lefty Muhlenbein needed to get a victory over Williamston. Final score was 4-1.

Muhlenbein held the Martins to five hits, all singles. The locals reached Charlie Wry for 10 hits, including three doubles.

Williamston's run came in the first inning—on Earp's single, a sacrifice, and Stanley's single. Floyd Patton cracked a double, with two out in the second, to start Kinston to victory. Crouch's single scored Patton. Wright then reached second on an error and Pitcher Muhlenbein delivered a two run single.

Howard Earp, with two for five, led the Martins Patton, with two doubles for three tries, and West and Wrosteck, each with two for four, led Kinston.

Serps Wake Up And Lick New Bern Bears

Tarboro, July 15.—Fred Henry's Tarboro club fought uphill to a 4-3 victory over New Bern yesterday.

A home run by Buster Maynard in the second—his second Ruthian of the day—lifted the scrapping Serpents into a tie, and they won in the ninth when Pinch-Hitter Al Lehman hit one to the far parts of the park to score Jim Tatum from second.

It was a pitcher's battle in which Big Ben Mooney won over Durden Archer. They were about even in everything except strikeouts—Archer fanned eight, Mooney four.

Maynard's first homer came in the third inning. Two hits and an error brought a run for Tarboro in the fourth.

The Bears went ahead by scoring three times in the sixth—on a hit batsman, a triple by Burge, a single by Harper, an error and a fly ball.

Tarboro's players showed plenty of aggressiveness today.

Auto Dealers topped Blount-Harvey, 16-5, and Furniture Dealers defeated Carolina Sales 17-4, in the two softball contests played yesterday.

Carolina Sales was scheduled to have played the Professionals, but by agreement the auto men played instead of the Professionals.

Standings are growing closer in the softball loop, with the exception of the lowly Professionals. Both Blount-Harvey and Water and Lite are pushing Trans-Nehi for the lead.

In the Furniture Dealers' victory over the Carolina Sales yesterday T. B. Lupton pitched for the winners and also homered with three men on bases. Phillips also hit good for the winners.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 15.—After plodding through the slowest four hours in a month, the stock market put on a burst of speed in the closing lay of today's session and leaders shot up fractions to two points, with a few wider swings in evidence.

The list advanced at the start, but met sufficient profit selling to out top marks in half shortly after the opening. Activity slowed from then on, with little pick up in prices until the closing period when buyers gave steel, motors and assorted favorites a fast whirl.

Transfers failed to reach a million shares.

New York Cotton

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened three to five lower with Liverpool cables partly offset by trade and commission house buying.

October recovered from 8.58 to 8.63 and late in the first hour was 8.60, when the list was three to four points lower. July was an exception 11 lower at 8.52.

October sold off to 8.56 and was within a point of the low at noon, when prices were four to eight points net lower.

Futures closed one higher to one lower. Spot quiet, middling 8.69.

WAITRESS FREED IN STRANGE DEATH OF BOY

Mary Kent, former waitress in Harvey Nelson's roadhouse at Waycross, Ga., is shown leaving the Waycross jail following a commitment hearing at which she was ordered released but was held on her own recognizance as a material witness against Nelson and another of his former employees, Verna Mae Fowler, at their forthcoming trial for the death of his 12-year-old son, J. C. Nelson. Nelson (left in picture at right) is shown with Solicitor General John S. Gibson who quoted the roadhouse operator as confessing the women drew straws to determine which would shoot the boy in their triangular plot to collect $900 insurance on his life. Gibson said Nelson told him Miss Fowler drew the role of executioner and killed his son when he came home from school.

Bachelor Head of N. Y. Stock Exchange Pans Rich Girls, Goes to Theatre Alone

W. M. MARTIN, Jr.: A "Regretful" Bachelor

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
AP Feature Service Writer

New York—William McChesney Martin, Jr. the 31-year-old president of the New York Stock Exchange, sat down in his guarded air-conditioned office, hunched his knees against the desk, and confessed to a weakness for the simple life.

"I haven't any expensive habits," he said. "He neither smokes nor drinks; doesn't keep a car in New York." I like to go to the theater, but I go by myself and usually sit in the balcony. I used to play tennis three or four times a week at Forest Hills. Lately I've been too busy."

Martin, the first paid president of the Exchange, gets $48,000 a year.

A friend for work, he doesn't act like a go-getter. He moves slowly, speaks slowly, smiles often—but slowly. His clothes are common place.

A "Regretful" Bachelor
Social life doesn't interest him but he's been asked around quite a bit, now that he's in the limelight. Says he's a "regretful" bachelor, doesn't look regretful.

He did say, "I'd like to travel every day of my life."

At that, he's done a pretty good job of touring the United States—has been in every state but Florida. Last March he went on a Mediterranean cruise. He had been putting in 20-hour work days helping draft the Exchange's new constitution, he said, so after it was over he went aboard ship and spent the first three days sleeping.

Kept To Himself
"I didn't speak to anybody for seven days," he reflected, "I ate at a table by myself. I was pretty sick of talking to people by then. One night toward the end of the cruise, I asked a girl to dance, then couldn't get away until 1:30. I was completely worn down."

It was his second trip abroad. In 1937, after his junior year at Yale, he went on a European tour.

Mr. Martin has never come to consider New York home, though he's been here seven years now—ever since he purchased a membership in the Stock Exchange. He lives at the Yale Club, because he likes to think he's here only temporarily. St. Louis is home, but he doesn't get out there more than once a month.

The son of well-to-do parents—his father is president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis—Mr. Martin says he gives most of his money away. Sometimes the very rich disturb him.

"Barbara Hutton," he says, "has done more to destroy American capitalism than any other individual."

That's pretty heated for an individual as gentle as Mr. Martin. He gets cross, too, about rich girls who take jobs just so they can say they're earning money.

The government, he says, must lay down the broad general policies by which the Exchange is to function, but the Exchange should do its own policing job and see that those policies are carried out.

Only half the age of most of the past leaders of the Exchange, Martin's in office "as long as the board wants me."

LAST RITES TODAY FOR MRS. TILLEY

they moved to Raleigh, where Mr. Tilley became president of the Carolina Power and Light Company, which position he held until his death in 1933.

Mrs. Tilley was a devoted member of the Methodist Church during her early life, but when her children became old enough to attend Sunday school she joined the church of her husband, the Episcopal.

Her gifts to charity and religious causes were many, but always with the modest request that they be listed as given by "A Friend." She was a devoted mother, and her friends were numbered by the scores from every walk of life, from the social celebrities that frequent the Governor's mansion, to the lowly unfortunates that find food and shelter mid the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Tilley is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James Elvey Thomas of Raleigh; one son, Paul A. Tilley, Jr., of Maxton her mother Mrs. Martha S. (Pattie) Moore; three sisters, Mrs. Samuel B. Etheridge and Mrs. L. M. Howie of Washington, N. C., and Mrs. A. R. Stallings of Portland, Oregon; one brother, John Harold Moore of Portsmouth, Va., and a grandson, James Elvey Thomas, Jr., of Raleigh.
