WILSON BEGINS ON NEW DUTIES IN WASHINGTON

Berlin Ambassador to Serve in State Department

UTILITY DECLINE SEEN BY WILLKIE

New Consultant Confers with FDR; Will Offer Advice on the German Problems

Washington, Nov. 26. (AP) — Acting Secretary Welles of the State Department said today Hugh Wilson who arrived here today from his post as ambassador to Berlin, will be assigned to the State Department for an indefinite period.

Welles said Wilson would take up his duty as a consultant as soon as he returns from a conference over the weekend with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga.

Welles said Wilson's duty would be to advise state department on officials on German affairs.

Although no further information was given it was indicated this action might be preliminary to Wilson's permanent transfer from his Berlin post.

It is probable that the German Ambassador Dieckhoff who sailed this week for Berlin will not return until Wilson's study is completed.

Other Washington developments: Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation predicted that the utilities soon would be in "as bad shape as the railroads" if present administration power policies are continued.

The policies of TVA and PWA have destroyed the market for utilities financing preventing needed expansion.

STATE RETAINS BUILDING BOOM

Increase in Volume For October Is Recorded

Raleigh, Nov. 26.—North Carolina's building boom increased in volume through October, report of October building permits, issued by the North Carolina Department of Labor reveals.

In 21 principal cities the number of buildings authorized increased to 700 from 588 for the same month last year, a rise of 19.1 per cent.

In estimated cost of construction the increase was even more marked. This October's reached $2,007,946 against $1,034,393 last, a jump of no less than 94.1 per cent.

Biggest increases by far were in residential buildings which jumped to 284 at cost an estimated $1,311,853 against 156 last October which cost $463,595, giving increases of 82.1 and 183 per cent, respectively.

Non-residential building authorized decreased in number from 111 to 83, or 25.2 per cent, but estimated cost rose from $154,493 to $428,873, or 208 per cent.

The October totals also represented sharp increases over preceding month of September, with residential building up 40.6 per cent in number of structures and 101.3 per cent in estimated cost. Non-residential buildings dropped 7.8 per cent in number but rose 138.8 per cent in cost. Total both types including repairs and alterations showed an increase of 15.7 per cent in number and 98.4 per cent in estimated cost.

Raleigh was far ahead in the increases. Residential construction jumped from $18,600 in October, 1937, to $573,339 last month, while for non-residential structures the increases were almost as marked—from $24,175 to $260,950.

POPE REVIVING AFTER ATTACK

Passes Calm Night Without Disturbance Physicians Say

Vatican City, Nov. 26.—(AP)—An official communique said today Pope Pius XI had "returned to a more or less normal condition" after a heart attack which had caused grave concern.

The communique said "The Holy Father passed a calm night, resting without any disturbance. Improvement which was noted yesterday evening continued, happily, so that this morning His Holiness has returned to a more or less normal condition."

Vatican sources said the 81-year-old pontiff although still weak, was able to get up from his bed and receive Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state.

He first received Pacelli in his bedroom sitting in an arm chair which had been brought in. Then he had himself carried in the chair from the bedroom to the library on the lower floor of the palace, where he continued his conversations with the secretary of state.

UNITED STATES WEED EXPORTS SHOWING GAIN

Unmanufactured Tobacco Offers Best Prospects

LEAF EVALUATION ON AN INCREASE

Sales abroad for First Ten Months of 1939 Best Realized in 10-Year Period

Washington, Nov. 26. (AP)—Unmanufactured tobacco stood out today as one of the brightest spots in the nation's export trade picture.

Commerce Department figures disclosed the value of leaf exports for the ten months this year through October was the highest in a ten year period dating from 1929.

During these ten months $79,680,000 pounds brought in $122,000,000 or about $12,000,000 more than the January to October period in any previous year from 1929.

The second best year of any in the ten was 1930 when exports of 459,500,000 pounds brought in $110,000,000. The reason for the lower volume and the higher value in 1938 is a price increase.

About three fourths of the nation's tobacco exports, most of which is of the bright leaf type, grown in the Carolinas and Georgia, goes to the United Kingdom.

SHIFTING WIND CHECKS BLAZE

Danger Still Prevails, However, in California Regions

Los Angeles, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Shifting capricious winds which for three days alternately have fanned them almost halted the spread of Southern California, two disastrous forest and brush blazes today seemed to be aiding fatigued fighters in Santa Monica and San Bernardino mountains.

Neither conflagration was under control, but officials who late yesterday feared additional millions of dollars damage was inevitable took encouragement from reports of progress in several areas.

The most dangerous point apparently was in upper Mandeville Canyon in Santa Monica mountains west of Los Angeles. Ralph Scott city fire chief ordered concentration of 800 men along a six mile front to keep blaze from breaking across Mulholland High Way and into the fertile San Fernando valley.

Lower in the same canyon a numerous expensive homes but Scott said none in immediate danger.

Three firemen burned when a blaze trapped them in a track in a nearby canyon returned to the lines after emergency treatment.

CANADA'S FUTURE BRIGHT

Basson Sees Dominion As Future Center of The British Empire

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Canada has the brightest future of any nation in the world today. She is already the fastest growing of the larger nations as far as population is concerned. Few people realize that her business in 1937 set new all-time highs, surpassing even the 1929 peaks.

Today, Canadian business is only 15 per cent below the top and is rising vigorously. Meanwhile, each succeeding wave of unrest that fans out across Europe makes her prospects look even brighter.

It is an ill-wind that blows nobody good" is trite but true. The unfortunate Jews of Germany are getting a horrible mauling, but their plight is actually a bullish factor in Canada's outlook. It becomes increasingly apparent that England must be prepared to fight aggressor nations such as Germany and Italy. Mind you, I am not predicting war

YOUTHS LINKED WITH 3 THEFTS

Chief Clark Smashes Two-Man Robbery Ring Here

Chief of Police George Clark today revealed that a two-man juvenile theft ring, responsible for recent robberies within the Greenville city limits, was smashed last night.

Chief Clark said that Woodrow Peyton, 14, and Chesterfield Hawkins, 13, both Negroes, confessed to having robbed three Greenville business establishments during the last two weeks.

Robberies attributed to the Negroes were those occurring at the Golden Leaf, New Carolina warehouse cafe, and Cozart's filling station. Chief Clark said the Negroes might be responsible for robberies at two other local firms, but he has not definitely linked them with these thefts.

About $15 in cash, cigars, cigarettes, and other merchandise, according to the police chief, were taken from the Golden Leaf. Only a small amount of merchandise was taken from the cafe. Cigarettes and other general merchandise were stolen from Cozart's.

Chief Clark said that both Negroes have theft records. The Negroes were sent out of the county some time ago and returned to the city about a month or two ago. Peyton stole $75 in cash from a local home about two years ago.

The Negroes will be placed in the custody of juvenile authorities Monday.

It was explained by Clerk Duval that similar payments are made eight times per year. These payments fall due on the first of October, November, December, January, April, May, June and July.

While payments are heaviest during the month of December, the lightest months are April and October, according to the City Clerk.

WEED RETURNS MAKE HISTORY

Years of 1933-37 Exceed All Other Periods

County Agent R. R. Bennett today released statistics showing that farmers of North Carolina growing flue-cured tobacco have received nearly one-fourth more money from the five crops of bright tobacco, 1933-1937, than for any other five-year period in history.

Preliminary estimates, it was explained, indicate that the 1938 North Carolina bright crop will average around 23 1/2 cents per pound, and that the total income for the State will be around $127,000,000, the third highest annual income on record.

According to the figures, from 1933 to 1937, under the AAA farm programs, North Carolina flue-cured tobacco growers received an average annual income of 112.7 million dollars as compared with 66.9 million dollars during the period, 1927-1932. The 1933-37 income was the result of an average annual production of approximately 511 million pounds and an average price per pound of 22.4 cents.

It was shown in the statistical review that, because of the increase in price, the average annual income of North Carolina farmers from tobacco during these years was raised at least 31 million dollars a year above what it would have been without a program. These estimates do not include payments under AAA programs.

Present plans are that acreage allotments and marketing quotas for 1939 will be announced prior to the referendum to determine whether marketing quotas will be in effect with respect to the 1939 crop. Commitment will review the acreage allotments and marketing quotas, making such adjustments among individual farms as may be necessary to smooth out any differences which might have existed between the acreage allotments and marketing quotas in 1938.

It was pointed out that the present supply is somewhat large even in relation to the increased demand of flue-cured tobacco. Continued marketings in excess of consumption would mean less-favorable prices than those received for the last five crops.

NOT TO VISIT WORLD'S FAIR

Dionne Quintuplets to Remain At Home in Canada

Toro, Canada, Nov. 26.—By The Canadian Press)—Olivia Dionne commenting on the report his quintuplet daughters may appear at the New York World's Fair next year, said today that "under no circumstances" will the five girls be removed from northern Ontario.

Previously World Fair officials in New York said the way had been cleared for exhibition of the children and that the parents had given informal permission.

Dr. Allen Brown, consulting physician to the quins, is also opposed to the New York offer. "I am confident the guardians would not make the grave mistake of sending the children to the World's Fair. After all, they are not exhibits," he said. He admitted, however, this was a question for the guardians to settle.

84 LIVES LOST AS COLD WAVE COVERS NATION

Good Weather Speeds Great Task of Mopping Up

TRAFFIC MOVING RATHER SLOWLY

Blizzard Area Covers Roughly from New England to Alabama and to Great Lakes

Clearing skies and slowly rising temperatures today speeded the task of mopping up after the nation's worst November storm in years—tempest, wind and snow that claimed at least 84 lives.

Airplanes and trains moved again on schedule. Bus transportation still slowed somewhat by snow-drifts in the east but main highways in all states were open. Communication network suffered relatively minor damage.

Traffic accidents on icy streets and deaths due to overexertion added to the toll of lives. The storm caused 25 deaths in New York, Newfoundland counted 22, New Jersey 12, Pennsylvania 7, the south five, Ohio four Maryland 3 Michigan and Indiana 2 each and Nebraska and Missouri one each.

Hundreds of automobiles remained stalled in the blizzard area, stretching roughly from New England to Alabama and as far west as the great lakes.

The Poor Made Glad
The ladies of the King's Daughters went out to the county home Friday to take a feast to the inmates. The Bible teaches that giving to the poor is lending to the Lord, and these noble women who carried the feast as well as those who helped provide it, were indeed laying up for themselves treasure in Heaven. It was a time of gladness for the poor inmates, and the gratitude they expressed for being thus remembered made those who went feel more than repaid for the trip to the home.

Washington - The recent election returns indicate that the country can take a turn to Roosevelt liberalism or modified Republican conservatism by a shift of five or ten per cent of the votes.

Statisticians have computed before this that a five per cent switch of votes to the Republican side in 1936 in certain key states would have returned Roosevelt's electoral majority very sharply while a switch of ten per cent in other key sections would have defeated him.

Now a switch of five or ten per cent of the vote in certain of those fairly well balanced sections has given the Republicans a resounding gain in the house and an emphatic and more important gain among the governorships.

Where party success is concerned, governorships are far more important than house or senate places.

A New Deal Blow-Out In the house, both Democrats and Republicans alike who had held their places since pre-New Deal days - before 1932 - survived the recent election with scarcely an exception.

All of which means that in spite of temporary losses the two parties are pretty well bed-rocked, each in its own ballistics.

New Hopes For 1940 Also, the Republican gains put a new value on the G. O. P. Anybody who attended the 1936 Republican national convention could tell that the party considered its presidential nomination wasn't worth a dime then, except for a paragraph in history.

And Here's Something Else And that brings up another thing. From all appearances, Pres. Roosevelt believes, and his friends and many critics alike agree, that his personal popularity still continues on a high level.

Now comes a resurgence of Republicans and an increased proportion of independent Democrats remaining in Congress because of the defeat of New Dealers.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Nov. 26 - Speaking of money - as most of us do at times - have you compared one of the new Jefferson nickels with the old Indian head five-cent piece? All Uncle Sam has done is turn the nickels profile the other way and give him a different way of wearing his hair.

No historian has written that the famed T. Jeff was an aborigine, but the artist who drew him for the coin either thought so or couldn't draw anything else. Forehead, nose, mouth and chin on the two nickels are practically identical.

Still speaking of money, a welcome though scarce commodity in practically all quarters. Don't let any city slicker pass off any California "Ezemunny Certificates" on you.

Your correspondent has seen for the first time one of the certificates opponents of the Thirty Dollars. Every Thursday plan circulated in California during the campaign there. It's quite interesting.

On the face are such cracks as "E Pluribus Kiddem," "This Certificates that there is on deposit in the pot at the end of the rainbow, 20 wooden nickels."

It is titled "One Thursday Buck" and is signed by "Pass De Buck Comptroller" and "Ham N. Eggs, Treasurer."

"Oh, just a lot of Hoey," said the news man.

The Supreme Court was in a much more than ordinary "reversing" mood this week. Among the 18 opinions handed down last Wednesday were no less than eight in which the justices disagreed with the presiding judge below and either reversed his decision forthwith or sent the case back for a new trial. The usual percentage is about one reversal in three cases.

There will be two terrific battles in Wilmington within the next week - one political, the other athletic.

On Monday two of the most prominent members of Congress will cross verbal swords in a public forum debate. The advance, or liberal, school or political and economic thought will be represented by U. S. Senator Robert M. LaFollette, the conservative by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of President Roosevelt's New York district.

The athletic battle will find State's Wolfpack making its final bid for one more football victory. Newton's charges will engage the Light Brigade of the Citadel on Saturday, December 3.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters

Katherine Cornish, myself, rising Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter.
Adam Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: The sanitarium bills of Ethel Curtis were paid through a law firm. The murder gun belongs to Elizabeth.

Chapter 20 Searching

"I THINK you all know by now that another girl has been murdered."

Adam was standing by a round wicker table that was laden with magazines, with ash trays, with empty coffee cups. The rest of us were distributed in chairs around the lounge, listening, waiting. I glanced from face to face, seeing fear, horror, hostility. Nowhere could I recognize guilt.

"We do not know who this girl is," Adam continued evenly. "We know that she called herself Ethel Curtis, which may or may not be her name. We know that she was ill—that she had recurring attacks of epilepsy. She had one tonight. We know that she left a sanitarium in Illinois yesterday—that before she left she received a letter from someone on this post."

"Do any of you know such a girl, or know of her?"

He waited during a breathless, lengthening silence that weighed so heavy that it seemed to me anyone who knew must scream his knowledge, must somehow break the listening stillness.

I glanced fearfully toward the balcony and again fearfully at the window beside me. Someone had closed the front door, and though the air was stifling there had been no dissenting voices.

Adam's pleasant, conversational tones resumed.

"Very well. We know that she was murdered just before or after the lights went out for a minute. Please—"

A babble of voices had interrupted him.

"I'll ask you for your alibis later. But first I want to settle something else. We know that she was stabbed by a long knife with perhaps a two-inch blade—and probably double edged. I want to find that knife, and I'm going to ask you all to submit to a search. You women go into the powder room and lock the door. Search each other, then search the room and the lavatory. Stay there until I call you. You don't mind?"

He added with a winning air of asking their permission.

Mrs. Orpington stood up, regarded her pierrette costume complacently and chuckled.

"Anyone can search me that wants to; I've got nothing to hide."

"If you have, you didn't bother to hide it tonight, did you, Lou?"

It was Mrs. Flower again.

They had almost forgotten how to laugh. The tentative experiment in mirth died guiltily. Silent, the women filed into the dressing room.

I was the last. I shut the door and turned the key and stood for a moment looking at that room—at the chaise longue against the left-hand wall where Anne had lain, at the long metal coat rack opposite the door where four or five dejected garments were still suspended and where I had seen Mrs. Flower hang her black velvet, violet-scented wrap upon our arrival after dinner. To my right the stairs went up to the balcony. Beyond, on the right-hand wall, a swinging door led to the lavatory.

I remembered the outside door by which I had left in search of Adam. Crossing the room, I turned that key, too, then found a chair and sank into it.

Pointedly Ignored
MARY SHAW had fled to a mirror and was making anxious dabs at her face. Elizabeth and Annie were soberly searching each other. Then Elizabeth was in front of me, looking apologetic and obviously waiting for me to rise.

"We may as well get this formality over with," she said.

I stood while she poked and patted diffidently at the blue silk pajamas. I wondered if she was thinking about the mandarin coat. Neither Adam nor I had mentioned it, and she was too well bred ever to ask me where I had left it. But I could not face telling her yet.

Annie had advanced, terrierlike, on Mary Shaw and was giving her a going-over that would have done credit to a Chicago policeman. I must admit that I would have liked to prod the stays of her Elizabethan dress—assure myself that nothing was concealed under them.

But Shaw had alibied himself and her.

We found nothing of course. I took little part in the search, but I tried to keep everyone in view; and if there was any knife undiscovered in those two rooms it could have been no larger than a nail file.

It was afterward, when we sat down to wait, that I was aware that Mary Shaw and Lou Orpington were pointedly ignoring my presence. They did not succeed in being very obvious, for Elizabeth was beside me, and Mrs. Flower persisted in carrying on her aimless chatter. I listened, because I couldn't tell when I might pick up a scrap of information. But all the time I was conscious of the Shaw and the Orpington conversing in undertones and not quite seeing me when I glanced their way.

I wasn't particularly bothered by it at first, because by now they must all know that I was in Adam's confidence—at least to a certain extent. I wasn't sure myself just how much he had failed to tell me. That about the gun. . . .

They were jealous, of course. But that realization did not weaken the effect on me of Lou Orpington's spiteful expression and Mary Shaw's air of cold dislike.

A woman is afraid of the members of her own sex: when they turn against her. I sat there feeling chilly, thankful for the presence of Elizabeth; thankful, too, that Adam had taken me under his wing. Had he expected this to happen?

I remembered suddenly what he had said hours ago on the veranda: "In time of trouble it's the Outsider who takes it on the chin."

Frozen Horror
I SHIVERED involuntarily, realizing that these people were like a large, involved family, with feuds and counterfeuds within the group—and that, like any family, they preferred to lay crime at the door of someone to whom they were not related. Anything to keep the scandal out of the family.

Well, that protected Charlie at least. Or did it? Well, I to be the Master Mind and he my reluctant accomplice?

I was beginning to lose what sense of proportion I had left when Adam rattled the doorknob and called to us to come out.

In the lounge Barney was peering hopefully under chairs and Shaw was riffling the pages of magazines.

"That's enough," Adam told them. "It's not here, obviously. And it's not upstairs. It must be either backstage or out of doors, and we can search both places later. Now for the alibis."

We found chairs again and Adam questioned us in turn. Shaw repeated what he had said on the balcony, that he and Mary had been together in the lounge when the lights went out. Barney, called upon, corroborated this. He had brought their coffee and gone back after sugar which he had forgotten the first trip.

"I wondered what was the matter with my coffee," Shaw interjected plaintively.

"Then you were in the kitchen with Elizabeth?" Adam asked Barney.

"I was in the corridor backstage. I could see the lighted doorway."

He hesitated, went on steadily, "I could see Elizabeth bending over the stove. Suddenly the light went out. I thought for a minute she had turned it off, then I heard the commotion out front. I raced back to the door by the stage and looked out. It was pitch dark everywhere. Women were screaming and I heard Shaw's voice. I realized there was nothing I could do there, so I went back to the kitchen. I could hear Elizabeth moving around—I asked her if she was all right and she said yes, she was trying to find some candles. I lighted some matches, finally found the switchbox and was working with it when Shaw arrived with a flashlight. And that's all. I didn't see or hear anything unusual, and I was not out front after the lights went out."

"You didn't glance up at the balcony as you crossed the dance floor from the lounge?"

Barney considered. "No, I didn't. I remember thinking I heard a woman groan as I went past the ladies' room. In fact I paused for a minute at the door to listen. I didn't hear anything more, so I went on. But I wasn't thinking about the balcony."

Mrs. Orpington was looking at him with a kind of frozen horror.

"Then there was someone in there," she said through lips that looked stiff.

"Wait a minute," Adam interrupted. "Where were you?"

The Greenbrier mentors describe the local boy as an unselfish play, who is able and willing to do his share of the work. He accounted for plenty of good gains for his team.

Two Champs For Class 'A' West Beats East For 'B's'

High School State Duels Are Settled For 1938

If we had a "C" to combine with our "A" and "B" you could read about the ABC of high school football competition. Since the A's and B's were the only one to do anything in the junior sports world in North Carolina yesterday, and they did do something, we'll give you that!

Durham and Greensboro high schools, doing the battling in the Class A championship clash, duplicated a feat they launched back in 1934 when they played to a deadlock. Both teams recorded an even half dozen points apiece yesterday, and as far as a victory goes, neither was any better than when the game started. The big news of the game is: "Both Teams Are Champions!"

It took only six minutes for the Durham boys to cross Greensboro's goal line after the contest got under way. Greensboro wouldn't permit the Bulls to do additional scoring during the remainder of the game. Before the nightcap, after an exceedingly tough duel, the Greensboro entry garnered 6 points. Last year's score was 12-12 in favor of both teams.

Championship laurels in Class B competition went to the West, which was represented by Mount Airy. The East, represented by Whiteville, went down under Mount Airy's attack, which produced a 28-8 rout.

The Whiteville boys took the lead in the early part of the game. Shortly thereafter they began running nip-and-tuck. At half time the final victory was in front with a seven point advantage. Leading Whiteville 13-6. When third quarter was ended, the Mountaineers were still holding a lead; this time by a 13-12 score. Two more touchdowns did the trick for Mount Airy.

That's a general conception as to what the leading players in colleges of tomorrow did in next year school competition this year. Next year there will be new faces, different scores and different talent. The game will be no better, however.

By decentralization of cities, of industries, and of food supplies.

Few realize it, but the bombing plane will actually revolutionize civilization. People are moving into the country. Instead of big homes on high knolls, they are building modest homes in wooded glens. Factories are being erected in the country, camouflaged and hidden by trees. Duplicate sets of books are being kept by British firms—one in the city and one in a secret hiding place in the country. If the city of cities' records are destroyed, there will be a duplicate set in the rural hideaway. But even such drastic measures as these are just makeshift safeguards against the bombing plane.

England's Storm-Cellar
Hence, England is looking across the sea to Canada. North America is practically immune to bombing attacks provided an enemy cannot establish an air base on this side of the Atlantic. Canada is in the geographical center of the Empire. Therefore, it is only logical that England should look to Canada as the storm-cellar for her reserves. For instance, the government is already shifting her valuation manufacturing activities to the New World. It is reported that England is now investing $100,000,000 in Canadian aviation plants. Hence, I look for the nerve center of the Empire to shift across the Atlantic.

The coming visit of the King and Queen is another step in the program. Then should come a constant flow of English capital into Canada. Tremendous reserves of foods, minerals, and munitions can be built up in Canada, where they will be safe from the ravages of the bombing plane and yet ready for use by the Old Country during any death struggle with Russia, Italy, or Germany. The formal government seat or the King and Queen's palace may never be moved to Canada, but the industrial and financial nerve center may well cross the sea.

Possibilities Only Scratched
Canada is a young country. She has untold natural resources. Her mineral deposits are mammoth. She has adequate waterpower. Her forests are almost limitless. She has millions of fertile farm acres. The only three things she needs more of are: (1) Character, (2) Money, and (3) Men. That is why the surface of her possibilities has hardly been scratched. Yet, despite this, Canada's progress has been phenomenal. The growth line of her business is rising at the rate of over two per cent each year. Activity today in Canada is double the level of 25 years ago, while United States business is up only 50 per cent.

Canada's population has more than doubled since 1900. Her industries have been transformed from back-yard shops to efficient modern plants. Her steel building and petroleum businesses are thriving, while her mining industry has mushroomed up overnight. Moreover, the splendid future of Canada

TENNESSEE SMOTHERS KENTUCKY; WINS LOOP TITLE

Mighty Tennessee took possession of the Southeastern Conference title and hoisted her position as a Rose Bowl prospect with a crushing 46-0 victory over Kentucky at Knoxville, Tenn. Len Coffman, Tennessee fullback, is shown crumpling through the line for an 8-yard gain over a field made muddy by a driving snowstorm. Man About Manhattan

By George Tusher

New York—It is pretty generally agreed that 18-year-old Brenda Frazier is the debutante of the year. Last year it was Gloria Baker, half-sister of young Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, the racing enthusiast. And the year before it was Eleanor Young, who came to New York from Texas via Newport.

There are many elements which enter into the unofficial election of any young girl as the debutante of the year. The photographers have a lot to do with it. If she photographs well, if her personality lends itself to exploitation, if she has money in her own name in addition to being the daughter of wealthy parents, she may awake one morning to find herself monopolized by the magazines, the newspapers, the nightclubs, and the Metropolitan world.

New York debutantes, almost without exception, have a desire to earn money, no matter how well off financially their families may be. That is why you will find this one endorsing face creams and that one bath salts in the advertising sections of leading publications. The New York papers recently carried the picture of a socially prominent woman who is lending her testimony as to certain products.

What Canada Means To The U. S. What does all this mean to citizens of the United States? Briefly it means better business, more jobs, higher wages. There are not two countries in the world which are closer knit economically than the United States and Canada. The Dominion's business cannot grow without boosting business in the United States and vice-versa. This is why the new reciprocity tariff—announced last week—should be of mutual benefit to both nations as a whole, although it nerts certain communities. Canada's bullish outlook should mean some good investment opportunities in the securities of Canadian banking, industrial and utility concerns. They should give American investors an anchor to the windward from the unsound trends in the United States.

Most important of all right now, the British movement to Canada means greater protection for both United States and Canadian citizens against foreign aggression. Here is a unique case in modern history where a stronger neighbor means a better ally rather than a worse enemy!

Muncie, Ind.—(AP)—Rusty Baston's model gas airplane flew longer and farther than he thought it could.

A farmer found it in his pig pen, a mile away he plane was undamaged, but the pigs were jittery for days.

Melvin Kittell (above), friend of Mrs. Marie Burkhalter, was held as a material witness and was questioned about his presence in her home four hours before police found the body of her husband, Eugene, at White Plains, N. Y. Officers told Mrs. Burkhalter she helped her husband commit suicide.

Held in 'Suicide'

Melvin Kittell (above), friend of Mrs. Marie Burkhalter, was held as a material witness and was questioned about his presence in her home four hours before police found the body of her husband, Eugene, at White Plains, N. Y. Officers told Mrs. Burkhalter she helped her husband commit suicide.

"This," she explained, "is money I won't have to ask my mother for."

This ambition to earn money and to economize frequently manifests itself in humorous fashion. The department stores, for instance, are in the habit of offering special debutante lunches at a reduced figure—say 25 to 40 cents cheaper. Wherefore the debts hastily pile in—to taxis and spent $1.50 in fares to save the extra quarter at lunch.

Nevertheless, the life of a debutante is anything but easy. She must spend hours each day at fittings, for she must have a new dress for every party. She invariably participates in charity work. Today I saw a pretty, bronette young woman at the Stork club dressed in the uniform of a Red Cross nurse. She was sitting at a table with a cup, accepting alms for a Thanksgiving charity dinner. At her elbow was a champagne cocktail. Mothers of debutantes do not mind their daughters drinking champagne; they only really considered drinking. But they can't have anything else.

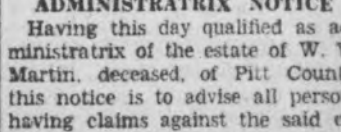

Year after year stories hit the papers of $50,000 being spent for this or that coming out party. Pay no attention to these figures. Say there were 300 guests. It would be impossible for 300 people to consume $50,000 worth of the finest champagne and food in an evening. A good guess is that $25,000 is an history-making party.

Some debutantes have three or four parties but the usual figure is two. The first one is just a tea, a "brushing off" party, as they say, for this gets rid of the nice old aunts and relatives. A real party, the main event, is something else.

gain. It gets under way about 11 p. m. and last until 6 or 7 in the morning.

How's Your Health?
Sole for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Iago Goldston, M.D.

BODY ODORS Now that the word "halitosis" has become a respected member of the average man's vocabulary, perhaps as much may happen to "bromidrosis", which means no more than sweat secretions having an offensive odor.

Although not among Job's afflictions, this condition can plague one, especially since, without much warrant) it may cast reflections on the sufferer's personal hygiene.

Bromidrosis occurs in areas of the body where sweat is likely to be secreted in large amounts. Bromidrosis of the feet is particularly common. The condition is the result of the excessive secretion of sweat; the decomposition and the chemical changes of the sweat following excretion; and the operation of certain bacteria upon the fat content of the sweat.

The sweat glands are largely affected by the smallest of the blood vessels which in turn are under the control of the sympathetic division of the nervous system.

Increase in perspiration may be caused by a variety of conditions ranging from nervousness and heat to constitutional and infectious diseases. Some persons naturally perspire more than others.

When the condition (hyperhidrosis or excessive sweating) is really troublesome a physician should be consulted. It may point to some underlying disease.

If the hyperhidrosis is not due to any morbid process, it may be counteracted by frequent bathing with soap and hot water. The water should be as hot as the individual can stand, and the patient should remain in the water for 15 to 20 minutes. The body is then to be rinsed and dried thoroughly, and a dusting powder such as zinc stearate or talcum powder, should be applied.

Excessive sweating of the armpits, palms and soles may be checked by expert x-ray radiation.

When the feet are affected initial treatment consists of scrupulous cleanliness. Alternate the shoes worn, allowing the used ones to air. Shoes should be roomy.

The feet may be immersed daily for from 5 to 10 minutes in a solution of 1.2 ounces of potassium permanganate and water; or a solution containing 2 drams of formaldehyde in 8 ounces of water may be applied to the soles and allowed to stay on until it evaporates.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds
By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Gary Cooper, the Montana cowboy, goes back home this week on the screen. And it's about time.

For years now Gary has been closer to a horse than he came in the ancient Chinese hos'opy of "Marco Polo." He has dabbled in the whimsy of "Mr. Deeds" and he has flirted in the Lubitsch boudoir of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." But this week he's on a horse again—where he began—and everybody should be happy.

The picture is "The Cowboy and the Lady." It is not so wild, however as the title indicates. Cooper plays a rodeo rider who goes to Palm Beach, with the show ostensibly, but actually on a personal prow for a bride. By happy chance Merle Oberon, daughter of Henry Kolker, a gent with presidential aspirations, is down there in temporary exile after a youthful fling.

A HAT FULL OF COAL OVERNIGHT
KEEPS FIRE
1/3 fuel 1/3 saving guaranteed

When you buy a Cole, you are getting the lowest cost heat in America due to the savings you will make on fuel. Cole heaters do create a very definite and guaranteed fuel economy.

In the first place the Hot Blast feature effects perfect combustion. In addition, a Cole remains air-tight as long as used because it's made without the use of bolts, rivets, cement or putty. For that reason it will hold fire from 24 to 36 hours, and fuel waste is eliminated.

Millions of Cole heaters are now in use. Millions of owners are saving money through Cole economy. Why not make your next heater a Cole?

All her life, daughter Merie has played second fiddle to papa's ambitions. For excitement she joins her maids (Patsy Kelly and Mabel Todd) on a blind date with three rodeo-riders. Kelly draws Walter Brennan, Todd gets Fuzzy Knight, and Merie gets—well, you guess now.

But they lead a storm life, especially after she marries the fellow without letting on she's an heiress.

Nicely directed by H. C. Potter, tastefully produced, "The Cowboy and the Lady" is strictly for amusement, of which it provides plenty.

I'm still not sure when "The Shining Hour" struck but I do know this: it starts out as the best vehicle Joan Crawford has had in many a year (and now she needs a good one!) . . . and then Poof!

In Joan plays a Broadway cabaret star who tires of light love and marries Melvyn Douglas, member of a long-established, wealthy and smug mid-western family. Joan right away puts her foot in it; before she reaches her new home the hatred of Melvyn's elder sister (Fay Bainter) is set against her; to make matters worse, she has to fight against a fatal fascination for her brother-in-law (Robert Young) who returns the passion although he's married to a charming gal of his own (Margaret Sul-lavan).

The situation smoulders with emotional conflict, and Director Frank Borzage, aided by the convincing work of his exceptional cast, manages to hold a spell of sultry tenderness over the proceedings for a good part of the way. Then suddenly it all blows up; the house of cards is stacked too high and it collapses.

There's a scene in which Joan and Margaret talk and talk, and the only thing that stops the conversation is the cry of fire. Joan's new house is burning down. Then there's a gem in which Margaret (self-immolating) runs into the fire, to be rescued by Joan.
