CONTRACT LET FOR CITY HALL BUILDING HERE

Herman-Sipe to Erect New Local Municipal Structure

OTHER JOBS ALSO LET BY THE CITY

Conover Company To Erect Street Dept. Project; Fire Alarm System Bought

Contracts for the erection of the new Municipal building, fire alarm system and street department garage and yard were signed by the successful bidders and city officials late Saturday afternoon.

Herman-Sipe and Company, Inc. of Conover was awarded the contracts for general construction of both the Municipal building and street department building. The same company, which is doing much work on schools in the county, also was awarded the contract for the new fire station work upon which already has begun.

The contract for general construction of the Municipal building was let for $114,330, and for the fire station for $10,685, and for the plumbing to A. E. Chamber of Wilmington for $8,323. The total cost of the city hall will be $133,338.

Herman-Sipe's low bid for general construction of the street department garage and yard was $18,401. The contract for building was let to the Goldsboro Heating and Plumbing company of Goldsboro for $31,270, making a total cost of $133,338 for the project.

The contract for the fire alarm system was let to the Carolina Electric Co. of Raleigh for $7,000, and includes equipment and installation.

Although the contracts ran ahead of original estimates, certain changes will be made and savings effected elsewhere to bring the cost of the projects within the amount available.

City Clerk J. O. David Sunday afternoon received a check for $37,425 from the PWA representing 15 per cent of the total cost of the three projects.

Savings to be effected in order to bring the costs of the programs within the money available call for a fire station on granite to dark gray limestone, $600,000, of the practice tower at the fire station, $4,000, change of the base course of the city hall building from granite to dark gray limestone, $3,000, the acceptance of an alternate proposal for the street department project, $1,695 for a total of $11,100.

Sealed bids on all of the projects were received and opened before Christmas, but actual awarding of the contracts was deferred until January when officials studied possible methods of cutting down the cost of the projects.

The PWA is providing 45 per cent of the cost of each of the projects. The other 55 per cent will be provided by the city for which bonds already have been sold and the money received. Issuance of the bonds was authorized at election held in the fall.

Blue Devil-Trojan War Launched In California

TARIFF BATTLE IS ANTICIPATED

Historic Issue To Get Congressional Consideration

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—An issue over which many historic legislative battles have been waged, may be debated again during consideration of the farm problem by the new Congress.

Administration farm leaders have indicated they would use tariff protection on new accorded many products of American industry as an argument in favor of a proposal of Secretary Wallace that processing taxes be re-enacted.

Receipts from such taxes would be used to increase benefit payments to farmers co-operating with the agriculture department adjustment program.

Wallace prefers to refer to processing taxes as "tariff equalizing taxes."

They are levied made on the process of turning wheat into flour, cotton into cloth and tobacco into cigars and cigarettes.

The administration farm leaders contend that agriculture is not on a basis of equality with industry when it comes to prices received for products of each.

No one ever has measured exactly how much the tariff costs American farmers or other consumers who buy industrial goods, the department said in a report supporting Wallace's processing tax recommendations.

Whether farm income goes up or down, farmers always suffer from tariff inequality.

Man Jailed Here On Wreck Charge

Albert M. Boyd is being held in the Pitt County jail to await trial in the next term of Superior Court on charges of hit-and-run, causing personal injury, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and assault as a result of an accident in which he was involved Saturday night.

Boyd was given preliminary hearing before Magistrate H. L. Jenkins today and ordered held. Boyd was arrested on a charge of driving a motor vehicle operated by Boyd which struck an automobile driven by Raymond Evans. Riding with Evans was his wife and a young baby. Mrs. Evans was treated at Pitt General Hospital for both bruises and laceration. The baby escaped unhurt.

Patrolman Williams said the accident occurred early Saturday night at Bell's Park. He said also that Evans' car was practically demolished. Boyd escaped unhurt.

Crisp Weather Sweets Far West Football Titanic

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP)—Low hanging clouds obscured the sun and provided crisp cool weather today as Duke University and the Trojans of the University of Southern California collided in the Far West football titanic in the Rose Bowl.

Duke, the only team in 24 years of Rose Bowl football to enter the classic with an undefeated untied and unscathed upon record, found itself in the strange position of short-ender.

Before a capacity crowd of 90,000 spectators, these sturdy Blue Devils from Durham, N. C., were taking the field to prove that their record was no fluke and convince the majority of the tussling guests that they were wrong.

In their favor was the fact that the team on the left side of the odds has won all but one of its games in the last five years. Added to this was the edge of four victories to two that grid elevens from the South hold over the West in the wars of the Roses.

Yet few except the partisans from the South gave Coach Wallace Wade's team the nod.

Those men of Troy who broke the long victory string of last year's Rose Bowl winner were two to one favorites to add Duke's impressive scalp to their collection.

Meanwhile Pasadena opened a flower-bound memory book to celebrate the 50th Tournament of Roses with a five-mile parade of 65 blossom-decked floats.

"Golden Memories" was the theme of the 1939 rose festival, marking back before the days of probably a million on-lookers to the budding of a civil-sponsored beauty in 1889.

After horse-drawn vehicles and old-time bands playing old-time tunes formed a prologue in the bouquets of 50 years ago for the mobile.

No less a person than Shirley Temple, golden-haired seven-year-old, was grand marshal of the golden jamboree.

From Durham came three mechanical blue devils to tug the big Trojan war horse of the University of Southern California to its knees.

Statisticians estimated that six million flowers were woven into the floats.

Premier Answers Italian Clamor For Territory

DECLARES FLEET IMAGE OF POWER

Announced in Paris Italian Consul General at Djibouti Departs for Rome

Ajaccio, Corsica, Jan. 2.—French Premier Daladier today answered Italian clamor for Corsica, France's Mediterranean island department, by telling the islanders that France was strong and would protect them.

"France does not need to be aggressive or menacing," the Premier said. "She has no need to raise her voice. She must be strong. She is and it is that I have come to tell you now while this squadron circles your island."

He referred to a fleet of warships in the Ajaccio harbor which had conveyed him from France and which he pictured as an "image" of France's strength.

"Daladier spoke at the municipal building after a rousing colorful reception."

"While this squadron circles your island," he said, "I wish every farmer and every fisherman seeing it pass to return to his home with the calm of one who knows security. This squadron is the image of France's strength and her vigilant affection."

The thousands of islanders, many from interior mountain towns, jammed the water front cheering "Corsica is France."

Meanwhile in Paris a Harvas (French Newspaper Agency) dispatch from Djibouti said that the Italian consul general at that Somaliland seaport had left for Rome.

Djibouti, on the Gulf of Aden, is the only railway outlet for Italy's new Ethiopian empire and has figured prominently in recent Italian clamor for French territory.

The dispatch also said that Italian transport agents at Djibouti had been ordered to rush all food and other merchandise from Italian origin there into Ethiopia.

Whether this indicated an economic boycott of the French port or whether it was a levitate condition in Ethiopia itself was not made clear. However, the dispatch said that economic hardships were growing in Ethiopia and the natives were protesting.

Observations On 1939 Assembly

By J. S. MOORE

Wednesday marks another momentous day in the history of North Carolina. The General Assembly meets, by its acts we shall be called for another two years. Only God in heaven can accurately say what the General Assembly will do, but hope is the bright light of every one, and it is to be hoped that those of us who are privileged to be in that body will take our duties with great seriousness.

The first great step in the general set-up will be the selecting of the speaker for the House, and that is the place where none of us will have any great chance of making a bad mistake for all three of the candidates are outstandingly fine men; all three would make fine speakers. Bryant is great on analysis; Ward is as independent as a Jerusalem goose; and Penner is enthusiastic, personified; neither one is by any stretch of the imagination an orator, but each is clear and forceful in the presentation of his views; each has a fair spirit. Whichever fair, Legal Rights on one side of an attempt will be made to do away with absentee ballot. I shall be steady in support of that at-

Murphy's Confirmation By Senate Regarded As Practically Sure Thing

Arrives in Washington to be Sworn in For Cabinet Post

NO OPPOSITION BY VANDENBERG

Roosevelt's Choice for Attorney General to Succeed Cummings Seems Satisfactory

Washington, Jan. 2. (AP)—Frank Murphy, former governor of Michigan and firm adherent of New Deal policies, came to the capital today to be sworn in as attorney general.

"A difficult job, but I would not have it otherwise," Murphy said just after the White House announced his appointment.

President Roosevelt invited the red-headed 45-year-old Murphy to take the oath in the White House study where on Christmas eve, Harry Hopkins former WPA administrator, was sworn in as Secretary of Commerce.

A strong indication of Murphy's confirmation came today in a statement of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) that "I do not expect to oppose" the appointment since he believed such selection to be the President's "personal privilege and responsibility."

Customarily any confirmation fight is led by senators from the appointee's state. Senator Brown (D-Mich.) has supported Murphy. Vandenberg recalled that he and Murphy have been personal friends despite political disagreements and from a purely personal standpoint I am glad to commend him for his many splendid and engaging personal qualities."

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) said he believed the senate would confirm the nomination and Senator Green (D-R. I.) agreed with the prediction "he will make a good attorney general."

The President's choice to succeed Attorney General Homer Cummings who is returning to private law practice, came as no surprise to the capital.

DETROIT—Thin, red-haired Frank Murphy, who succeeds Attorney General Cummings had been in politics in Michigan some 10 years before his name became known nationally.

His rise to prominence seems to date from the time he attracted the attention of Franklin D. Roosevelt when Roosevelt was governor of New York and Murphy was Mayor of Detroit.

In the turbulent days of 1930-1933, Murphy was trying to whittle Detroit's $400,000,000 debt. He was reorganizing Detroit's social service—insulating several reforms similar to those to be set up later under social security by President Roosevelt.

Auto plants were shutting down, banks were closing, relief rolls were growing. Murphy called on Washington to help; care of the unemployed, he insisted, was a national problem.

In May, 1933, after Roosevelt had been President, Murphy resigned as mayor to accept a Roosevelt appointment as Governor General of the Philippines.

He had been in the Philippines three years when, in 1936, he was called back. Elections were coming up and Democratic leaders figured that Murphy-for-Governor would help carry Michigan.

Murphy won. He scarcely had taken office on January 1, 1937, when a sit-down strike in Flint inaugurated a series of labor troubles that beset his administration.

Amidst the clamor that the sit-downers be evicted, Murphy held his ground against bloodshed. He finally brought about peaceful settlement of the strike. But critics have said ever since that he did not know the importance of property rights.

After a witness before the Dies committee had testified that Murphy countenanced communist activities, Murphy replied, "They called me a boy and said they called me red now."

Last November he was defeated for re-election after a campaign largely concerned with his labor record.

He's a bachelor—says he never found time to marry. He's a worker, too; rarely finds time to play, though when he does he plays hard. Likes to gamble, and plays golf, but his golf is not so good. Enjoys the theatre, likes Katherine Cornell especially.

Murphy's confirmation came today in a statement of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) that "I do not expect to oppose" the appointment since he believed such selection to be the President's "personal privilege and responsibility."

BATTLE LOOMS FOR NEW DEAL OVER POLICIES

Immediate Clashes Seen Over Relief and Defense

CONGRESS BEGINS SESSION TUESDAY

Leading Democrats Predict Harmony Will Reign Within Party During Term

Washington, Jan. 2. (AP)—Immediate clashes over relief and defense policies were in prospect today as members of Congress began assembling for a crucial session which will put President Roosevelt's leadership to new tests.

Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead will call the session to order at noon tomorrow. The President will deliver his annual message Wednesday and the battle will be on.

Even before the formal opening, however, members of the strengthened Republican minority were demanding a reorganization of WPA activities and were urging caution in developing an armament program.

Democratic leaders, on the other hand, expressed confidence that their reduced majority would carry out the administration wishes on these and other major issues.

Rep. Rayburn (D-Tex.), unopposed for reelection as Democratic floor leader, commented, "I think our party is going to work together this session and be very harmonious."

Rayburn and other veteran Democrats were greeting new party members in advance of the house Democratic caucus this afternoon. Offices and capitol corridors were filled with legislators renewing acquaintances, discussing the November election and speculating on the 1940 presidential campaign.

Republican house members, whose total of 169 is nearly double their number in the 1938 session, will meet tonight to choose a minority leader. Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, far in the lead for the position, said "the rubber stamp days are over. Gone are days of court-packing, crack-down and purge. The American people once more are the masters of their own government and are therefore free."

Senator Bailey (D-N.C.), a frequent New Deal critic, told reporters he was preparing a bill to revamp the WPA, but would withhold it until he saw what the administration would propose.

New Construction Heavy In This City

Although no permits for new construction or repairs have been issued here since December 16, the combined total for the month of December reached $310,025.00.

A building program being launched at East Carolina Teachers College accounted for the major portion of the December figures.

Permits for the month of December follow: Joella Lock, erect a one-story five-room dwelling on Fifth street at an estimated cost of $800.

E. B. Hayes, erect a frame building on Myrtle avenue, containing a garage and one room, at an estimated cost of $100.

W. L. Latham, erect a frame building on Contentnea street at an estimated cost of $135. The structure will be used as a store and contain an extra room.

Annie L. Moore, erect a composition roof frame building on Eastern street. The five-room dwelling will be built at an estimated cost of $2,000.

Three individual permits were issued to East Carolina Teachers College. One of the permits, for $300,000 was for a new building on the college campus. A $4,000 permit was issued for a laundry and another for $3,000, which was for a brick building to be used as a garage.

MANY ORDERS FOR DIRECTORY

Much Interest Being Shown in Industrial Handbook

Reflector Bureau
 Raleigh, Jan 2—An increasing number of orders for copies of the new North Carolina Industrial Directory, just published by the Commerce and Industry Division of the Department of Conservation and Development, are coming in daily, according to J. T. Anderson industrial engineer and chief of the division.

Only a few hundred copies have been received from the printers so far and these have been snapped up as rapidly as they were received.

It is expected that the entire edition of 2,000 copies will be delivered within the next few weeks. The orders are being filled in the order in which they are received and when the 2,000 books have been exhausted, no more will be printed.

This is the most comprehensive industrial directory ever prepared in North Carolina and is actually the first and only one ever compiled. It consists of 932 pages and lists approximately 45,000 commercial and industrial plants now in operation in the state. Much statistical data are also presented, both about the state as a whole and about each county. An alphabetical list of the manufacturing plants in each county is presented, giving the names and types of plants, their location, approximate number of employees, etc.

Under the county break down, the area and population of each county is given, also the principal cities and towns, leading farm crops and their value; the number of automobiles, radios and telephones in each, also the railroad and highway mileage, number of public schools and the total enrollment. The tax rate and bonded debt of each county is also listed.

Dozens of letters have been received from those who have seen the Directory, commending it as a valuable reference work.

Poet Can't Get A Publisher So He Sets Up His Own Shop

New York (AP)—The poet, tradition has it, is a dreamy, impractical sort of fellow completely at loss when confronted with reality—but tradition hasn't heard about Clifford J. Laube.

Laube is a poet and a rather good one. He can climb down from the castle towers of poetry to the cellar of reality in nothing flat.

He's doing it now at considerable cost. This is a one-man, handcraft job, because publishers couldn't be persuaded to bring out the works of a comparatively unknown versifier.

When he decided to turn out a book of his verse, no publisher wanted a hand in it so Laube laid aside his quill and became a one-man publishing house.

In the cellar of his home at Richmond Hill, Queens, N. Y., Laube set up a printing press, lugged in some type and began work. This book, he decided, was to be a solo job from verse to distribution and so it has been.

Apprenticeship to a Colorado mountain printer in his boyhood had given him the skill he needed. Setting up in type the little book of verse was easy. But operating a press was an art he hadn't learned. He haunted the bookmakers of New York until he knew how to bind books.

Hand-Stitches The Books
 Slowly and with many delays, the book took form. Pages were completed and stored away. On a simple hand-stitcher, Laube began his binding. A publisher—interested in his work when it was too late

Clifford J. Laube
 Stitching one of his books

—assured him that the binding job he was doing was better than any being done in modern commercial binderies by machine. Things looked up.

Then Laube found that book covers are embossed. An embossing press was out of the question so he built one of scrap lumber and a gas plate. It works.

Laube now binds and embosses 20 copies of the book each week, all in his spare time, and has another book under way. The payoff, as they say in non-poetic circles, is this: In an era when unknown poets usually remain unknown and hungry if they work at it full-time, Laube figures his book "Crags" stands to net him a tidy profit after all expenses of setting up the printshop is paid. He is weeks behind in his orders but steadfastly refuses suggestions that he hire some help and speed up the edition.

This is a one-man, handcraft job, and he's going to stick with it, pompously slow processes until every order is filled.

WASHINGTON—It was Lord Louis of Bessborough or some such place who lately surveyed the city of London and regretted that the Nazis hadn't bombed the place level in a spot or two so the town could be built over to better ways.

As regards its statutory, this city never has been able to hit its stride. Of course the city is not really to blame because every statute built to a Union general or a deserving polar explorer has to be approved by Congress if any government money is to be used for it—so perhaps the country at large is at fault.

But anyway, at one stage of the city's development it was a spirit of gratitude for help the Germans and French had extended us in breaking away from England. The result is that Lafayette Square, across the street from the White House, is dotted with monuments showing beautiful European generals cutting the bonds away from the adolescent country which had draped Liberty shivers in the chill breeze of the Potomac.

Perhaps it is necessary that patriotic statuary must show all generals and admirals with jutting chins, stiff backs and menacing gestures. But if that is so, then each statue should be done over every few years. It is uncommonly depressing to come each morning face to face with the same forbidding glare from the eyes of General Logan or Admiral Farragut and compare your own wavering purpose with the unchanging determination of the men in bronze.

At least a few of the French generals came over to help us in the revolution because they wanted to pull old England's leg, and not because they wanted to see America free. Surely we are entitled to at least one foreign general with a sly grin to indicate that he understood the situation.

Room for Improvement And while we are at it, we hold that the Capitol interior could be improved, even with a paint-sprayer gun. The place was decorated by an Italian "naturalist" with the result that the walls are crawling with butterflies, prairie dogs, coonies, squirrels, lizards and other vermin. We once knew a photographer who cleaned up on a three year contract with a newspaper which paid him $1 for every case appearing in the pictures he made. The result was that no man ever posed alone in that town and every print was pock-marked with gathering Rotarians or protesting farm delegations.

And that is the general appearance of the Capitol. The place is littered with drawings of ancient plows, wheels, pistol, printing presses, leaves, cotton gins, flowers, arrows and trees.

One artist drew a picture of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado on a wall one flight up from Vice President Garner's office. By some chance he found one spot unoccupied by a rock, or cloud, or visiting tourist. He couldn't endure such a wasteful waste of space, so, honest to blazes, he drew in a rattlesnake.

ATATURK TO HAVE SPECIAL MAUSOLEUM Ankara—(AP)—Architects and artists of international repute are to be invited to take part in a competition for the erection of a mausoleum to shelter the remains of the late Kemal Ataturk. The cost is estimated at $175,000.

The federal government, with a $1,000,000 display, will have the nationalistic exhibit at the San Francisco exposition.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Jan. 2.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey will favor in his message to the legislature take notice of the two bills sponsored for this General Assembly Session by the North Carolina Bar Association.

He told F. E. Winslow of Rocky Mount, chairman of the Bar Committee, as much in a brief conversation Saturday.

The two bills sponsored by the state's lawyers are the Justice of the Peace and the Court Rule proposals. The first would go far toward cleaning up a situation which has been widely deplored all over the state.

The J. P. bill would set up an entirely new method of naming these magistrates in North Carolina. At present there is no limitation upon the number who may be elected in any township and all anyone who wants to be a J. P. has to do is to write in his own name as a candidate on the ballot.

First off the new bill would do entirely away with gubernatorial and legislative appointments. That would settle that.

Then as to elected Justices, the proposed statute would change the present provision which permits one to elect 1,000 inhabitants of a township. Under the first 5,000, another legally be one for the first 5,000, another for the next 5,000 and one more for each major fraction of additional 20,000's.

The Court Rules bill would give the Supreme Court of North Carolina full authority to prescribe rules for the conduct of all courts in the state. At present it has such power only for itself and the Superior courts.

It was a noticeable fact that at the recent meeting of the Atlantic and North Carolina directors, no proposal of any sort was presented by the Southern for operation of the Old Millie, either under lease or other form of agreement.

November '38 GOP Bobs Up With Big Gains; Paris Shot Starts Berlin Pogrom

By VOLTA TORREY (AP Feature Service Writer) Republicans went "woo woo" at the cofters and won in November, 1938. Elections hoisted their U. S. senate standing to 23 (a gain of 3) their house strength to 170 (a gain of 8), and gave em 17 out of 32 open gubernatorial jobs.

Front pages were unlined by new faces, such as those of Senators-Elect Taft of Ohio and Downey of California and Governor-Elect Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Vanderbilt of Rhode Island, James of Pennsylvania, Hell of Wisconsin, and Stassen of Minnesota.

Michigan's Murphy and other liberals lost. Downed, too, was California's $30-Thursday dream. Democrats still were supreme—in New York they defeated Dewey—but Republican Program Projector Glenn Frank found "the drift toward a virtually one-party nation" stopped, and the stock market perked up the day after the election.

Shot Heard 'Round the World The day before America balloted, Herschel Grynszpan, 17, a Jew, shot and killed a German embassy aide in Paris. And in Germany a super-pogrom ensued, so sucking that President Roosevelt "could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a 20th century civilization." Nazis cursed their crimes and fined the Jewish people $400,000,000 for Grynszpan's gunmanship.

American Ambassador Wilson was called home to report on the Reich's rioting and Der Fuehrer yanked his envoy back from Washington to explain Mr. Roosevelt's "queer attitude."

'NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Lorden

The Characters

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
 Allan Collins, the man she loves.
 David Norris, the man she is going to marry.

Yesterday: The play opens and is a huge success.

Chapter 16

When June Comes

'SEATS Selling Eight Weeks In Advance.'

That line heading advertisements in the daily papers was glorious reading for Noel. First night approbation developed into solid, dependable patronage. At the first Saturday matinee there was an S. R. O. sign hung out.

"You're never satisfied, Douglas," Noel said to Swanstrom after he had changed several bits a third and a fourth time.

"This is my baby," he replied. "And I want perfection." He was getting damn near it. Foster complained with tolerant humor. There was something about playing to packed, appreciative audiences which kept the whole cast on its toes.

"Susan is waiting" was Noel's whole life in those weeks into cold, rainy February. Occasionally she had dinner with David.

"Swanstrom says if business keeps good he'll hold the play open all summer." Norris remarked to Noel when he called for her at her dressing-room one night.

"That's music to my ears," Noel laughed gaily. "And it's money in your pocket, too, David."

David looked glumly at Noel. She was in street clothes, putting on a light touch of makeup. "I wasn't thinking of the profits, darling; but of us."

Noel, uncomfortable, made a pretense of busy herself at the mirror.

"When are we going to be married?" David persisted.

"Not now—" Noel turned to face him. "I haven't time for anything but this play. David. Can't you understand that? I wouldn't miss a single performance for the world—nothing this side of heaven could make me!"

"That's a presumptuous statement, my dear," David's disappointment showed on his face. "Are you sure, Noel, that after this play there will be another, and one after that? Why are you putting me off every time I mention our marriage? Didn't you mean your promise at all?"

Noel felt conscience-stricken. If it weren't for David, where would she be now? She thought a moment. David knows I don't love him but he still wants me—and I did make a promise.

"When June comes round, David—if you still want me—I'll marry you then."

David crushed her to him. "It's a long way off, my sweet, but at least it's definite. I guess I can live through the waiting."

They went out to his car and David suggested a club. "Not there, please," Noel asked. "I'm not dressed. Look awful and we're sure to meet people we know."

"You always look more lovely than any other woman in the world," David protested. Noel smiled at his extravagant praise but she was touched by his devotion.

"If you like then, we'll stop there for a little while."

The head waiter wanted to put them at a conspicuous table but Noel demurred. "Let's have that one in the corner," she suggested instead.

Elaine Schuyler

SHE wished now she'd worn her new brown suit with its beige caracul jacket. She slipped off her coat, the dress she was wearing was last season's black one. Fanny, she thought, when you've plenty of time for shopping, you don't dare spend the money, and yet when you're earning, you haven't the time to buy clothes.

Amusing, too, Noel thought later as she sipped her hot broth, the difference it makes with all these people—when an actress had a lead in a hit. They stopped by the table, those of her own world and socialite friends of David's Cordial, or extravagantly affectionate with words, after their own fashion.

"Good evening, Miss Marchand." She looked up on hearing the arrogant but not unpleasant voice. Elaine Schuyler was standing before her.

David arose. Elaine greeted him. No. 3 smiled up at her, noted the sly case over the glittering silver gown.

She's being the queen tonight. Noel thought, seeing the impressive tiara-like ornament in her hair.

Elaine presented her escort. "This is Vincent Schuyler, in my manner that of letting them in on something—very amusing. Noel said, "How do you do, Mr. Schuyler," to the tall dissipated young man by her side. No wonder she wants Allan, after marriage with him, went through Noel's mind.

Then Elaine said something Noel thought was unpardonable: "This is no romantic reunion—we're just being friends, in the modern way." Schuyler turned scarlet and coughed in embarrassment. Noel felt a sympathy for him in that difficult moment. But she was angry at David for asking.

"Will you join us?" making ready to pull out a chair.

"Oh, no, thank you—we're meeting some friends here," Elaine explained. She turned to Noel.

"Have you been up to Clairborn, recently?" There was something pointed in her remark.

"Not since Christmas—I've been busy working," Noel replied.

"Yes—your play, I must get around to seeing it." Her voice was deliberately casual as though merely mentioning something unimportant. She added in a different tone, "Allan told me about that amusing party. It must have been uproarious."

Noel was furious.

"It was delightfully pleasant," she corrected Elaine, who at the moment moved on with her ex-husband. But when he'd reached their table, she turned back and said nonchalantly to Noel, "I had a long letter from Allan this morning. The dear boy says he's counting the days till he gets here."

"A nasty, catty woman," David commented when Elaine had left them again. He was thinking of Elaine's remarks about being with Schuyler. Noel was remembering the mention of Allan.

'You're A Sick Baby'

MARCH came in with a biting N. E. wind. Some of the cast were sneezing. Foster brought a cold he'd contracted on Long Island and though he took every precaution he gave it to Noel.

"You must have the doctor at once," David insisted, alarmed at her cough.

"No—I'll just take some medicine, and stay in bed late tomorrow."

Noel realized next day she should have taken his advice. Her throat was dry, her voice sounded raspy. She gargled all morning. And at noon put in a call for Dr. Heaton.

"You're to stay in bed a few days," the medico announced after he examined her.

"That's impossible!" Noel was panicky. "I've got a performance tonight."

"Then they'll have to get along without you." The doctor's tone was serious.

"I wouldn't miss it, as long as I can walk to the elevator," finally to Noel's voice. "I'll take care of myself," she pleaded, "keep wrapped up and take your medicine—I'd die if I missed a performance."

"And tomorrow is Saturday," Dr. Heaton reminded her. "Your throat's quite sore and I don't want you to use your voice more than necessary."

Over his protests, Noel went down to the theater. She kept a warm wrap around her in the dressing-room. "I have a deep voice anyhow," she said reassuringly to Clarabelle who kept massaging her throat and making her drink honey and lemon juice.

Noel managed through the three acts but she was exhausted when she came back to her dressing-room. David and Swanstrom were waiting.

"Dr. Heaton tells me you're ill, dear," David's voice was filled with concern. "I'm taking you right home now and you're not coming back until you're completely recovered."

"Douglas!" Noel turned to the producer. "Will you make him see that I can't miss a performance—not now, with everything going so well!"

"Well—if you're ill, Noel," Swanstrom spoke hesitatingly. "Of course, I'd hate to see you out of the show on Saturday—but if it's absolutely necessary, I suppose Rita Dalton could go on in your place."

"Oh, no!" Noel was almost hysterical. Through years she'd fought and struggled for this part and not, no trivial cold was going to keep her away from the theater. "I'll be here tomorrow!" she promised Swanstrom and went out with David.

Noel wouldn't admit how badly she felt when she came to the theater next day. Every effort was agony. Her heart throbbed, her throat felt raw and she had to force her voice with every syllable. "You're a sick baby," Gerald told her sympathetically when he stopped in her dressing-room. But Noel waited her cue and went on to the lighted stage, determined she'd show them. She'd give her best performance yet!

The hoarseness she controlled wasn't unpleasant. She saved herself as much as possible and Foster did everything he could. In the curtain scene she threw herself into the emotional dialogue. She forgot her sore throat and her fever and she gave out her lines as she had on the first night.

For a matinee crowd, the ovation was unusually enthusiastic. But Noel was weak as she passed through the wings. Perspiration stood out on her forehead—her hands felt clammy.

"Get me a drink," she said to Clarabelle—and found the words were a hoarse whisper.

"My voice—it's gone!" she cried raspingly. "Get Swanstrom—get someone—I can't go on for the rest act!"

ECTC Continues To Win Stokes Highs Lose One

By JAMES WHITEFIELD

Erwin's Red Birds, a semi-progressive combination, felt the sting of defeat for the first time this season last Saturday night as Coach Gordon Gilbert's cagers recorded a well-earned 35-22 victory.

It was the Red Birds that gave the Teachers their first loss of the season. The Erwin contingent has played seven games and the locals eleven.

Eight minutes before the first half ended, the Red Birds were in front 8-7. Bill Shelton got a basket four minutes before half-time to deadlock the score at 11 all and made good two free throws a minute later to put his mates ahead.

Erwin trailed 17-16 at the half and Shelton got a field goal one minute after this period of play was started. Later, Shelton fouled Jas. Woodruff, who made his gift shot count, and the score was knitted at 23 all. Shelton and Walter Parker got a basket apiece and the score was deadlocked 25-25.

Donald Brock tallied and broke the tie three minutes later. About a minute and a half before curtain-time, the Teachers led 34-32. Lester Ridenhour fouled by Walter Parker made his charity toss count and gave the locals their last point. Parker was eliminated after this.

in that he was charged with four personal fouls.

John Wadburne, with 11 points was high scorer for Erwin. Bill Shelton shot 15 points to lead the locals. Earl Smith turned in an enviable performance.

Stokes Losses

One of the fastest high school games of the season was supplied by the Jamesville and Stokes high school contingents. Jamesville won 35-27.

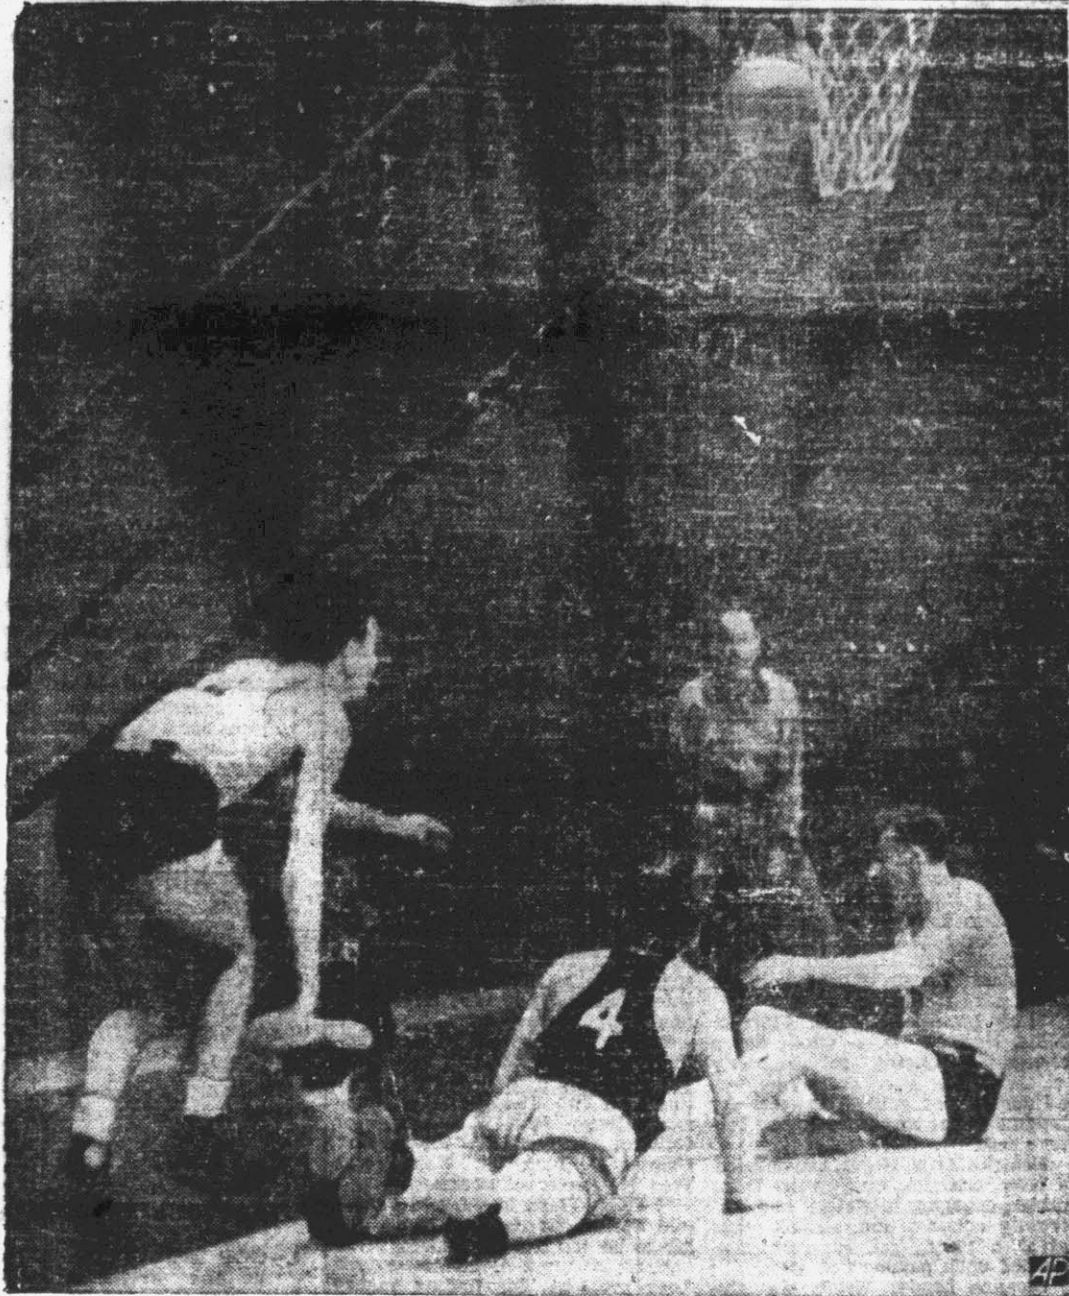

Although the Stokes boys played a hard-fought game, along with Jamesville, they could not get ahead of their opponents. Jamesville led 6-3 at the end of the first quarter and had a 17-8 advantage at the half. Then, too, they led 26-17 when the third period ended.

Tom (Spot) Martin got 18 points to pace his mates in scoring ways. Earl Fleming, with a hair-dozen cuts, bested the losers.

Lineups and individual scoring:

Erwin—Forwards—Wadburne 11; G. Parker, N. Parker 1; centers—W. Parker 7; Woodruff 5; Sewell 8; Teachers—Forwards—Smith 6; Glass; Shelton 15; center—Brock 10; guards—Ridenhour 2; Parrish 2; Hinton.

MANY DEFENDANTS TRIED HERE TODAY

to serve four months on the roads. Action was dismissed in the case charging Louis Seidel and Godfrey Oakley with operating a motor vehicle in a reckless manner.

Richard Briley was adjudged guilty in a case charging him with assault with a deadly weapon, but prayer for judgment was continued.

John Atkinson, Negro, adjudged guilty in a case charging him with operating a gambling house, was given a 30-day road sentence, suspended upon payment of $5.00 and costs.

Jack Cooper, Wilbur Johnson, Julius King and James King, all Negroes, were tried on gambling charges. Julius King was found not guilty. The others were sentenced to serve 10 days each in jail, suspended upon condition that the defendants remain of good behavior for a period of one year.

Mary Lou Jones and Florence Mills, Negroes, were tried on a charge of engaging in disorderly conduct. The first defendant was adjudged not guilty. Prayer for judgment was continued in the latter's case.

Beatrice Artis, Negro, convicted in a case charging him with being drunk, engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct and assault, was given a 10-day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Cloanne Lendar, Negro, was given a 10-day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of costs, after being convicted on a charge of being in a disorderly conduct and assault.

Jarvis Allen, found guilty in a case charging him with exceeding the speed limit, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE 1939 GENERAL ASSEMBLY

as between in-tak and cut-go. The Assembly should by all means make a sound, reasonable, and fair adjustment of this problem.

Salaries should be raised before other raises or other unnecessary expenditures are granted.

A self-perpetuating loan-fund replace outright grants for higher educational purposes. This piece of legislation is available for some future time. It would not be given a Chinaman's chance in Japan at this time.

Railroads are taxed, in my opinion, out of all proportion with other property in the state. Some relief should be given them. Great industries should bear their just portion of taxation, but they should not be discriminated against.

No law should be passed against a person's asking for a ride, but he should be forced to accept the courtesy and accommodation of the motorist at his own risk.

Something should be done to make penalties, fines, and forfeitures for drunken driving, and other motor violations more uniform.

Homestead exemption is much like taking a short-cut over a road that turns out to be a barricaded detour.

Highly controversial local laws should not be sought or passed unless they are clearly and unquestionably for the general welfare of the whole people.

The Legislature should go slow on making any great increase in expenditures at this time; the general condition of average income is too uncertain.

All labor laws are two-way problems and should be studied with prayer and strength before being enacted into the statutes.

Lateral roads throughout the state should be a deep concern to the General Assembly at this time.

No legislator should feel that in order to make his people back home think he is "doing something" he must pass a bunch of local laws. He might render far more service in getting a few repealed.

The Fair Seed Law of 1937 should be done away with; it works unfair hardships upon rural communities. I have promised to do all in my power to have the ten dollar tax on garden and flower seed removed, and from that promise I shall not be moved.

The legislator is but the servant of his county and state, and no man should feel too humble or too great to give the legislator the benefit of his views. It is my sincere hope that the people of my county will think enough of me to present their views; that they will be deeply enough interested in the work of the legislature to bolster good movement and backfire on bad ones.

I am going to the Legislature with but one purpose—that of giving the best service I can.

Incompatibility? Pooh!
London—(AP)—"Incompatibility of temperament" is a lovely phrase invented by a Victorian novelist, but it does not mean anything at all. So said Judge Langdon in the divorce court.

Hard Eggs To Crack.
Covington, Ky.—(AP)—A truck carrying 195 cases of eggs lunged out of control while going down a hill, overturned and came to a stop at the edge of the Ohio river. Only one case of eggs was damaged and the driver escaped injury.

HOT CAMPAIGN NEARS CLIMAX

Claims Lead in Race Claim Lead in Race For Speaker

By NOEL YACNEY

Raleigh, Jan. 2—(AP)—A hot campaign for speaker of the 1939 General Assembly's House of Representatives neared a climax here today as each of three candidates claimed he led a race only one can win.

The race will be finally decided at the Democratic caucus Tuesday evening. It appeared wide open.

Victor Bryant of Durham, D. L. (Libby) Ward of New Bern and Wm. E. Fenner of Rocky Mount had established quarters in the Sir Walter hotel and they and their adherents were busy lining up Assembly wardensmen who were arriving early.

Fenner and Bryant emphatically reiterated expressions of confidence they have made during the past few days, but were careful to appear neither over-confident or under-confident. Bryant for weeks was considered well in the lead, but observers say Fenner and Ward have picked up votes recently.

From Ward there came this optimistic statement: "There's been a definite swing toward me in the past few days. I think I'm going to win; and that's honest."

Ward's workers, too, appeared optimistic and more willing to declare their allegiance than the forces of the other two. These included Representative John W. Caffey of Guilford, William T. Hatch and Charles D. Park of Wake, and Fred R. Seelye of Carteret.

"I think Ward is going to win," said Seelye. "If he doesn't, it's going to be too bad for Seelye."

Early arriving legislators agreed that problems for finding money for an expanding state government of amending election laws dealing with the absentee ballot and liquor probably would cause them most concern in the session which begins at noon Wednesday.

At that first session winners of caucuses will be elected, including in addition to the speaker of the house, the president pro tem of the senate, Senators W. I. Haislip of Camden county and Erskine Smith of Stanley are the candidates.

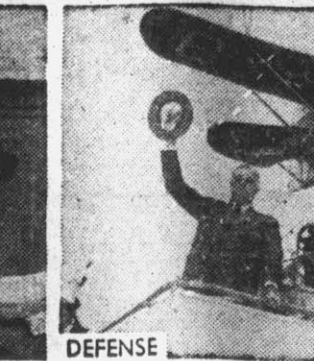

Congressional Preview

These Six Issues Are Probably The Hottest Ones That Will Face Congress When It Meets January 3rd

RELIEF AND PENSIONS

1.—The problem of taking care of unemployed and aged will be tackled anew by Congress. Republicans will demand that relief expenditures be pared by transferring part of the load to the states. The President has promised to extend benefits of the Social Security Act; many new Congressmen pledged bigger pensions to get votes.

DEFENSE

2.—The peace of Munich has brought more preparedness talk than any other event since the War. Congressmen will hear a lot about thousands of new airplanes (for which the President may ask) a two-ocean navy, extension of the Monroe Doctrine. They will hear also from constituents who see little need for spending millions on arms.

LABOR

3.—Republicans and some Democrats, too, are campaigning for revision of the Wagner Labor Act. AFL's William Green has joined in because he thinks the act favors CIO. The President is believed to oppose any revision likely to hamper the union movement. And amendments made probably won't effect the collective bargaining principle.

THE BUDGET

4.—GOP leaders have balked at the unbalanced budget ever since the New Deal started adding to the Hoover depression deficits. Now that the Republican delegation has grown up, louder cries for tax cuts to help the business man can be expected. The President has forecast some tax revision—though there's no chance of a balanced budget in fiscal 1939.

CROP CONTROL

5.—Dissatisfaction with Secretary Wallace's intricate acreage and marketing program to take care of crop surpluses accumulated with having swept Republicans back into several prairie state capitals. Now the new Congress must tell the harried Secretary what to do. Although GOP blasted the program it hasn't pinned itself down to a specific farm formula.

REORGANIZATION

6.—Some government employees will find themselves working in new departments if the President successfully revives his reorganization bill to streamline federal administration. New Deal strategists may cut his plan into several bills to head off the opposition from both parties which defeated the measure by a close vote last year.

COONS' CHOICE IS "DAWN PATROL"; IT SHOWS THE STUPIDITY OF WAR

As Hollywood correspondent of the AP Feature Service and the Daily Reflector, Robin Coons herewith selects another Movie of the Month—with reasons.

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—While the kiddies are playing with their new Christmas soldiers, machine guns and bombing planes, Papa and Mama can do little better in the way of movies than to see "The Dawn Patrol."

Papa and Mama won't be "escaping" from anything when they see it. But they'll see this war business as it is—and maybe they'll decide they ought to have Junior see it that way, too.

"The Dawn Patrol" is a beautiful, presented study of the stupid waste, the horror and tragedy of modern war from the skies. Depressing in theme, it offers a "lift" by presenting a courage that recognizes war's stupidity and yet remains unwavering in devotion to duty.

This particular war was fought by a depleted British air force in 1915. It has horrible, its unspoken implication is that this old war was just a foreshadowing of the war that may come. "The Dawn Patrol" was made by Warner Bros., recently peace and democracy.

The British Royal Air Force is in hard straits as the film opens. Its ill-equipped planes are manned largely by pitifully inexperienced young recruits. Each morning it is the duty of Major Brand (Basil Rathbone) to order these youngsters up to what he knows is certain death in combat with the veteran German fighters.

Brand is cracking under the strain. His job is made no easier by the unvoiced scorn of his two remaining veterans, Courtney (Errol Flynn) and Scott (David Niven). Brand's aide Phipps (Donald Crisp) is a philosophical old soldier, given of reckless doom, take a dare from a waiting German flier who poses over their base. They fly against Brand's commands to "scrate" the enemy. In exciting, terrific action the pair wreck untold damage, escape narrowly, and return to find that Courtney, as a reward, must take Brand's job. The major departs, gloating—and Courtney soon understands why.

Recruits keep coming, younger and younger, less adequately trained. The dawn patrol must fly; the youths keep dying.

Courtney and Scott break when Scott's younger brother arrives. Like the others, he must be sent up—and to restrained sentimentality.

Courtney and Scott, inseparable comrades and lay under the grim he too dies.

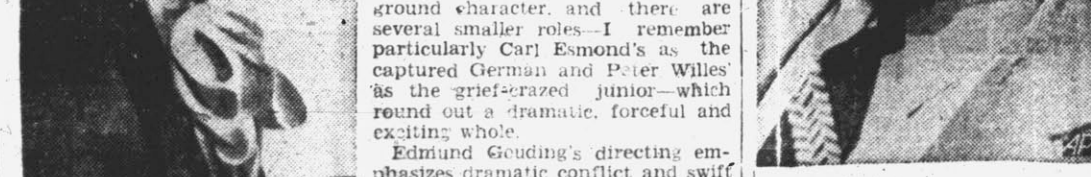

When orders come for a long solo flight over a strategic German position, Courtney permits Scott to undertake it. But by flying him with drink he is able to delay his departure, taking his friend's place. So complete is the mission—and lose his own life.

Flynn here comes into high place as a dramatic actor, conveying sensitively the hero's inner conflict. Rathbone gives a subtly shaded characterization, and Niven—often a picture saver—is splendid in a film that needs no rescue.

Crisp, as usual, is a potent "background character, and there are several smaller roles—I remember particularly Carl Esmond's as the captured German and Peter Willes' as the grief-stricken junior—which round out a dramatic, forceful and exciting whole.

Edmund Gouling's directing emphasizes dramatic conflict and swift pace. Even his wildest comedy scenes (some of them raucously funny) are made to become heart-breaking because of the sense to helplessness amid which they are played.

MERIT RATING BEFORE U. C. C.

Suggested for Unemployment Compensation Offices

Raleigh, Jan. 2—Merit rating, or as Washington officials prefer to call it, experience rating, is included in the several amendments to the State Unemployment Compensation Law as finally approved last week by the State Advisory Council, and submitted to the Unemployment Compensation Commission for any action the State body may wish to take. If finally approved, the amendments will be presented to the session of the General Assembly convening this week.

Washington authorities raised objections to the experience rating plan, in one respect, because the plan proposed places a premium on regular employment by a reduction of contribution rates by the employer, while it does not provide for a penalty increase for irregular employment by making the rate higher to make up for the reduction. Another objection is that the experience rating plan would be almost prohibitive in administrative cost, according to the Washington official view. Chairman Charles G. Powell and other members of the Commission realize it would be hard to administer. The plan would not become effective until three years of experience is accumulated.

Other amendments proposed provide for turning over, after June 30, 1939, proper amounts of contributions collected from railroads to the Railroad Unemployment Compensation Board; limiting waiting period to two full weeks in any calendar year; simplify the figuring of benefits by placing the amounts in brackets; making provision so employers may appeal to the commission from Commission decisions on liability for contributions; prevent injunctions restraining the Commission from collecting contributions assessed against employers.
