Favors Reduction In N. C. Sales Tax

Sen. Bain of Wayne Would Reduce Levy to Two Per Cent and Remove Present Upper Limit of $10

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Jan. 6.—There is likely to be a stronger fight on the sales tax issue than most people are inclined to believe, in the opinion of at least one veteran member of the State Senate, Edgar H. Bain of Goldsboro.

Senator Bain is, in general, an Administrationist, willing and even anxious to go along with the program of Governor Clyde R. Hoey, but he is at odds with the executive on the sales tax matter.

Hoey's Message Praised For Frankness On Issues

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Jan. 6.—Comment around the capitol and hotel lobbies yesterday afternoon on the message which Governor Hoey delivered to the joint session of the general assembly at noon was highly commendatory. Frequent comment was heard to the effect that it was a timely paper, thoughtfully prepared and ably delivered.

Review Their Stand On the Whitehurst Matter

Members of the Board of County Commissioners who retired in December today issued a statement in regard to recent developments in the former Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst case, explaining their stand on the action taken by the new board in voting to offer to settle seven civil suits pending against the ex-officer for approximately $100,000.

The suits allege the former sheriff is indebted to the county approximately $7,000 for alleged shortages in his accounts during the 12 years he was in office. The suits were brought by the old board.

The offer of the new board to settle was made upon the recommendation of County Agency S. O. Wortham after the former officer had offered to settle for $821.02, alleging this to be all that Mr. Whitehurst owed the county which was collectable.

The statement by members of the old board follows: "We are not for the fact that the Press has asked us for a statement, and were it not for statements given to the Press by Mr. John A. New member of the Board of County Commissioners, which clearly reveals the fact that he has not acquainted himself with the facts and has not, as yet, had sufficient experience to guide him, we would not feel it our duty to make any statement. In justice to ourselves and out of consideration for the wishes of our friends and the many."

STATE SOLONS HEAR TALK BY GOV. CHANDLER

Kentucky Executive Lauds Roosevelt's Defense Plan

COMMITTEES OF SENATE NAMED

Corey of Pitt Selected Chairman of Group on Propositions and Grievances

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Governor A. B. Chandler of Kentucky told the North Carolina legislature today that the nation should "actively applaud" the President's defense program, but warned against the invasion of states' rights by the federal government.

After Governor Chandler spoke, Lieutenant Governor Horton announced senatorial committee appointments. He placed Senator Rodman of Beaufort in the chairmanship of the appropriations committee and Senator Taylor of Sampson as head of the finance group.

House committees are expected Monday night, when the biennial budget message is due to be delivered.

Both divisions got bills to restore electrocutions as the means of inflicting capital punishment. Representative Volger of Mecklenburg and Senator Gregory of Rowan offered the measures.

Senator Frink of Brunswick sent in a bill to set up a Josephus Daniels nautical academy somewhere on the coast as a part of the University of North Carolina. Volger told the House that "the quickest way" is "the most humane way" of execution and that the governor's penal authority and newsmen said electrocutions were the quickest. "There is no question," he commented, "but that electrocution is the quickest."

The legislature adopted a resolution inviting Governor Chandler to speak to it tomorrow, but he talked to both houses this afternoon. He is to speak at a Jackson day dinner tomorrow night.

Lieutenant Governor Horton announced the committee appointments which are:

Senator Gibbs of Warren, head of the Senate group of constitutional amendments, which will likely get a bill proposing an amendment to prohibit highway fund diversion. The governor yesterday urged the legislature to refuse to submit such an amendment.

Other senators named to chairmanships and their committees include:

Clark of decombe, Agriculture; Bantline of Wake, Banking and Currency; Umstead of Orange, Counties, Cities and Towns; Eagles of Wilson, Insurance; Bain of Wayne, Military Affairs; Corey of Pitt, Propositions and Grievances; Larkins of Jones, Roads.

Regular Term Of City Court Held

Boo Parker, Negro, was convicted in Municipal court this morning of transporting whiskey and given a nine-months sentence, but appealed to Superior court and bond was fixed at $200.

Lindwood Warren and Mrs. Florence Gaskins were cited to court as the result of a traffic accident, but the charges were dismissed against Warren. Mrs. Gaskins was ordered to pay a $5 fine and costs of court.

Adrian Johnson pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was given a 30-day road sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs. Charlie Barnhill, Negro, was convicted of being drunk and disorderly and given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior for one year.

Bill Wiggins and Catherine Wiggins, Negroes, were acquitted of a whiskey charge.

Attempt Made To Deprive WPA Chief Of Authority In Allocation Of Quotas

Members of Senate Committee on Unemployment Agree Informally on Proposal to Earmark Future Distribution Of Federal Money

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Members of the Senate Unemployment Committee agreed informally today to attempt to earmark the future distribution of federal funds with a formula which would strip the WPA administrator of virtually all discretion in the allocation of state quotas.

Senator Byrnes (D-SC) said the committee would meet next week to go over various suggestions to be made by members with the hope of evolving a simple formula that can be inserted in relief appropriations bills.

Senator Murray (D-Mont.), an administration supporter, said he favored placing such a formula in the proposed $875,000,000 emergency relief appropriation bill, taken under consideration this morning by a House appropriations sub-committee.

President Roosevelt, in requesting the emergency funds yesterday, specifically asked that any changes in the methods of distributing relief be delayed until Congress has given the matter careful consideration. At the same time he requested that the emergency funds be appropriated post-haste.

"I am in favor of taking away from the WPA administrator the discretion he has had in allocating funds to the states," Murray declared. "I think we can work out a simple formula that will guarantee each state its just share, and I see no reason why it shouldn't be put in the emergency bill."

Other developments: Congress is going to wait while before considering President Roosevelt's request for "moderate tax increases" to meet greater farm needs and defense costs.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) said the House Ways and Means committee, which originates revenue bills, would want to look over the March income tax receipts before tacking any general tax legislation.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh has given government officials a confidential report on Germany's air strength. It was learned authoritatively.

Army officers declined to confirm receipt of the document, but it was assumed here that Lindbergh submitted it voluntarily.

President Roosevelt said at his press conference he had not received such a report from Lindbergh.

Yearly Fire Loss Fixed at $68,826

Greenville experienced a fire loss of $68,826.67 during 1938, the annual report of Chief George Gardner of the local department released today, revealed.

The loss was the greatest since 1932 when the loss was $236,555.87 for 1937. The Webb warehouse fire was responsible for $162,000 of the 1938 loss and in each year since 1930 one large fire has been responsible for a large percentage of the total loss. A total of 93 calls were answered in 1938, compared with 84 in 1937.

Peak losses were reported in 1931 when the damage was estimated at $293,834, of which $218,000 was accounted for by the McGowan and Cannon and the Star warehouses fires; and in 1932 when the Co-operative warehouse, filled with stored tobacco, was responsible for $185,000 of the total loss of $236,555.87. The $18,817 loss in 1937 was the least reported in the past eight years.

For the month of December, loss was estimated at $955, with the fire at the offices of Drs. Barrett and Ward accounting for $750 of the total damage.

Nine fires were reported in December. Approximately 7,000 Four-H club boys had small tracts of tobacco in cultivation in Kentucky in 1938.

ALASKAN VISITOR GETS WISH

"Orchid to you," Don G. Abel, Washington WPA administration, might have said, handing one of the rare plants to Mrs. Helen Strazier of Fairbanks, Alaska. On her first trip "outside" since a plane crash she viewed modern skyscrapers and streamlined airplanes but she said: "If only I could see an orchid." She did, in a greenhouse operated as WPA project in Seattle.

New York Negro Woman Seeks Entrance At UNC

President Graham Says Question Up To Legislature

Chapel Hill, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina believes the question of Negro applications for admission to the state institutions of higher learning is something for the legislature to decide.

He declined today to comment on the application of a Negro woman of New York City for entrance in the graduate school of the University. Some observers saw in the application the forerunner of a number of applications by Negroes to enter Southern institutions on the strength of the recent United States Supreme Court decision in the case of the Missouri Negro.

That opinion held that the Negro had the right to enter the University of Missouri's law school, where equal facilities were not provided in the state for the education of Negroes in that field.

Dr. Graham pointed out that Governor Hoey had a commission working on the whole matter of the question of Negro education and that this commission would recommend a state policy. That, he said, probably would result in action at the current session of the General Assembly.

Governor Hoey at Raleigh declined to talk on the subject of the application of the New York Negro woman pending further information.

Talk Fenner And Bryant For Two Big Committees

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Jan. 6.—Some pressure, though it isn't sufficient to be classed as particularly "high" is being brought on Speaker Libby Ward to name his two rivals for the post—Victor S. Bryant of Durham and W. E. Fenner of Nash—as heads of House's two most important committees, Finance and Appropriations.

Both Ward and his principal advisers have been so tight-mouthed regarding appointments, however that there appears no real basis upon which any safe forecast can be made.

JUSTICE DEPT. WILL CONDUCT INVESTIGATION

Alleged Violations by Communists Also To Be Probed

CERTAIN OTHER GROUPS NAMED

Action Comes As Result of Report on Investigation of Un-American Activities

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today the Justice Department had undertaken an investigation of alleged violations of the criminal statutes by Nazis, Communists and certain other organizations in this country.

The President told a press conference Attorney General Murphy had informed him to this effect by letter.

The letter was not made public, but Mr. Roosevelt said the alleged violations were submitted to the department by the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

The chief executive would not comment on reports he opposed a request by Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) of the committee for an additional $150,000 to carry on its inquiry. The committee has exhausted its $25,000 original fund.

The President, in response to other inquiries, reported progress in formulating details of the emergency defense program at a conference yesterday with a dozen officials from the State, War and Navy departments.

Asked to comment on Rear Admiral Arthur Hespburn's report recommending 25 additional ship and air bases for the navy, the President merely said this was a report requested by Congress.

Housewives Unite In Fight on Taxes

Mrs. J. T. Little, of Greenville, today was named chairman of a local unit of the National Consumers' Tax Commission, a women here moved to join the commission's "nation-wide crusade against taxes that penalize the consumer."

Her appointment was announced from the commission's national headquarters in Chicago through Mrs. Kenneth C. Frazer, national president.

The commission is described as a non-political organization conducting a drive by housewives of the nation against all taxes that add to the burden of the consumer. The drive is led in this state by Mrs. William T. Hannah, of Waynesville, the commission's North Carolina state director.

Propose Air Route For Eastern N. C.

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Representative Lindsay G. Warren of Washington, N. C., awaited today action of a special North Carolina committee studying the possibility of a proposed air route from Norfolk, Va., and Elizabeth City, N. C., to the west.

Warren explained the committee, headed by Joseph Horne, Rocky Mount, N. C. publisher, was attempting to interest an air transport company in establishing a passenger air line over the route.

The representative, expressing a deep interest in the proposal, said so far there was no phase of the matter here. Later, he explained the Civil Aeronautics Department and the Postoffice Department would be considered.

HOLY'S MESSAGE PRAISED FOR FRANKNESS ON ISSUES

(Continued from page one) Senator Blair of Wayne "An excellent state paper, and one in which I concur as to general recommendations. I am afraid, however, that the absentee act cannot be adequately safeguarded. If it can be, then it may be best to retain it. Without committing myself to the support of any particular measure, I can say that I regard the Governor's program as sound and constructive." Representative George Uzzell of Rowan: "It was a thought provoking message, and will be of tremendous value to the General Assembly in solving the problems of this session. I cannot say until I have had opportunity to study it just what my position will be on specific recommendations." Representative John Morris of New Hanover: "I liked it, and am particularly pleased with the Governor's recommendation to restore the electric chair as the means of executing capital felons. My experience as sheriff enabled me to understand the handling of felons other than the average man. I do not believe in being unnecessarily harsh or cruel, and I certainly am not in favor of the death penalty. I am in favor of Governor Hoey on that part of his program. The rest of the speech was thought provoking." Representative Marvin Rich, of Mecklenburg: "It was a fine speech. If diversion of highway funds can be prevented without a constitutional amendment, that will be all right. But I am certainly very strong for whatever it will take to prevent diversion. Nor is there any way I can see to reform the absentee ballot act."

Senator Lumpkin of Franklin, also expressed approval of the message as a whole. "I have sometimes been called an anti administration candidate he said, but that isn't true. I have never opposed or favored any measure just because the administration was for or against it. So such portions of the Governor's present program as I approve I will support, and those which I do not think good for the state I will vote against. The message certainly will be of great benefit and help to the legislature."

Representative Bost of Cabarrus: "A fine state paper, and as a general program probably will be adopted." Senator John W. Umstead of Orange: "The best message to a legislature I have heard in years. With one or two exceptions I shall support his recommendations."

Senator R. B. Morphew of Jackson: "I don't know what he means to do with the absentee ballot law. It isn't so bad now if the law is enforced. As for his reference to market roads, it looks like the state could supply these roads since the L. & R. is furnished free by W.P.A."

Representative Richardson, of Union: "For the most part I can go along with the Governor's recommendations. I feel very strongly that money derived from gasoline and ad license taxes should be used on roads. At this time the situation has not been made clear enough for me to say whether I will support a constitutional amendment looking to that end, or depend upon statutes to take care of it."

Dr. T. W. M. Long, senator from Halifax, and his wife, and your correspondent heard him say, sotto voce, when the Governor was discussing the absentee ballot, that "his position is exactly right on that."

State Officials, as well as legislators, were highly pleased with the message which had been kept more secret perhaps than any other such paper in a long time. Secretary of State T. H. Eure said it was the best message delivered by a Governor to the legislature in a generation. Dr. Clyde Erwin, superintendent of public instruction, congratulated himself with the smiling observation that "the Governor's pronouncements on education were entirely satisfactory."

It was clearly evident to one watching the joint session during the reading of the message, that the members of the General Assembly were listening with more than casual attention. An occasional smile or frown indicated the attitude of the particular member toward the matter currently under discussion, but indicated also that the member was really listening and knew what he was hearing.

DANISH ROYALTY TO VISIT N. Y. FAIR Copenhagen—(AP) Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark and Iceland plan to visit America next year during the New York World's Fair.

NEW YEAR GREETING Everything Talked About Today Is New

Pythians meet tonight. Keep your weather eye out. With so much smallpox as nearby as Norfolk people had better be vaccinated.

It Was Fine.

It was a delightful audience that assembled in the opera house on Thursday night to attend the concert given by the Ocoola concert band. The program was carried out excellently and every number was charming. The concert opened with a grand overture by the full band of twenty pieces and they presented a handsome appearance arranged in a semi-circle on the stage their instruments shining like silver. The overture as well as every other selection rendered by the band, was a gem, and showed that they had made most wonderful progress in the month they have been organized.

EX-PITT BOARD IN STATEMENT

(Continued from Page One) good citizens who are seekers for truth, we feel compelled to call to your attention a few facts. It was very noticeable in the Board's action on Monday that Mr. J. N. Williams, who had been long service as a commissioner than any other member, voted "No". Citizens will at once recognize that he was too well informed to vote differently. Mr. Porter, who had served for two years, was not willing to vote on the information at hand, and refused to cast a vote. Mr. D. T. Hoey, Jr., who was a member of the immediate preceding Board, was in California. We feel sure that in the light of the information he had he would have voted "No". We therefore think we can understand the action of Mr. Jolly and Mr. Pittman. Both are mighty fine men, but evidently they were rushed before, but they could govern the audit with the Auditor, or review the testimony of Sheriff Whitehurst himself, when on the stand in the Ouster proceedings. As to our new County Attorney, Mr. Worthington, we feel sure his pre-campaign actions justify his unwarranted counsel in this matter.

As to the Statute of Limitation applying, we were informed by our County Attorney, who has been legal counsel that the Statute of Limitation runs only from date of discovery. Most of us have been taught that the Statute of Limitation does not apply to an honest man. We wish to call your attention to the fact that the very competent firm of D. R. Hollowell and Company, who made the Special Audit in Sheriff's office for us, has been employed by the present Board of Commissioners to make Audit for the County for year 1938 and 1939. Do you think they would have employed this concern if it had made an unfair or incorrect audit of the Sheriff?

The statement quoting Mr. Jolly, to-wit: "I am convinced that the whole thing has come about as the result of the inadequacy of the County's bookkeeping and auditing system" is not borne out by any facts in his possession and it is contradicted by the auditing firm which they have recently employed to make the 1938-39 audit. On the contrary this firm, D. R. Hollowell and Company of Greensboro, in two separate audits, reports stated that the County accounting system was adequate and well kept, but the system did not properly reflect the income in some offices, due to the fact that a full record of receipts was not kept by those in charge. The following statement is taken from their report for the year ending June 30th, 1934: "The accounting system in use in the office of the County Accountant was found to be adequate to meet the legal requirements of the office, though, as pointed out elsewhere, it was in need of being supplemented with more effective records in reports from the other offices."

The following statement appears in the report of audit for the year ending June 30th, 1938: "The system of Accounting in use in the office of the County Accountant, in our opinion, was adequate to meet the requirements and demands made upon it and as a whole the records in the office have been well kept." Monthly statements which showed the cash and budget position were found to be available in sufficient detail to provide the Board of Commissioners with the essential information necessary to intelligent management of the affairs of the County. In our opinion, the financial affairs of the County, in all major particulars, were ably administered during the year under audit."

All county officials are required, as we understand the law, to keep adequate records of all receipts in order that they may be checked and they are required to make monthly itemized statements of receipts to the Board, which shall be verified. It is clear that this responsibility rests upon the various officials or else for what purpose were they elected? No where is the responsibility for the proper keeping of records by the County officials placed upon the Board or the County Auditor. They are charged, however, with the responsibility for checking the record of receipts kept by the various officials and seeing that they are properly accounted for. Our effort to live up to this responsibility brought about the situation which is now before us.

Now let us give you a bit of hisory; bring out the reason why it was our unpleasant duty to act as we have in this matter: None of the Audit Reports on file, beginning with 1922 and extending through June 30th, 1931, show that any office other than that of the County Auditor, reports of taxes collected and records of these uncollected and unaccounted for cash balances, had ever been checked by those paid to make County Audits. During the early part of 1934 a Grand Jury investigation according to the report made, revealed that the audit for the year ending June 30, 1932, did not satisfactorily verify the records except those in the Auditor's office and the Tax office. The same Grand Jury then called upon the Board (J. N. Williams of the present Board and Roy T. Cox of the preceding board were members) to see that Audit contracts in the future covered all functions of the County's affairs. As a result, the next Audit Contract made required a thorough check of all affairs and the report revealed conditions ranging from lack of proper records to actual failure to turn over funds belonging to the County. Further, this audit convinced the Board (Mr. Porter having then become a member) that special audits of offices as well as the installation of a system which would accurately reflect all receipts was necessary. The Auditor's engaged recommended the centralized control or Cashier system. The Sheriff and other officials were informed by the Board that the installation of such a system was under consideration. The Sheriff stated to the Board that any effort on the part of the Board to install a system in his office, without his consent, was an infringement on the constitutional rights of his office, and that he knew the duties of his office and was capable of keeping adequate records of all transactions. He stated further that he would not consent to the installation in his office of a system which the board had under consideration. If this controversy is the result of "inadequacy of records and antiquated systems" as has been charged, the Sheriff himself in the above statement voluntarily assumed the responsibility. The Sheriff has taken the position in all his negotiations with us that certain records in his office were his property to be kept by him and the Board nor the Coun-

Sheriff himself is responsible for the conditions revealed by the Special Audit made of his office. Mr. Williams and Mr. Porter having served during a part of the period in question are fully aware of the problems which we have referred to herein, and they shared with us the sincerity of purpose with which we tried to meet them. Mr. Jolly and Mr. Pittman have not been in position to acquire the true picture consequently we recognize that their views may justly differ from ours in this matter.

HONOR WRIGHT FOR SERVICES

The ninety-six page booklet, condensed from carefully collected material sufficient for a three-hundred-page biography, was prepared by a faculty committee appointed by President Leon R. Meadows all members of which were in close contact with Dr. Wright during his years at East Carolina Teachers College and know well the background of North Carolina life from which he came.

Miss Marie E. Jenkins, of the department of English, one of the "charter members" of the faculty and one closely associated with the young president from the beginning, was chairman of the group. To be sure other members of the committee, should go most of the credit for the biography; for she collected much of the material, did practically all of the writing, and supervised the publication.

Two other of those first faculty members and close associates of President Wright served on the committee: Miss Sallie J. J. Davis, a member of the History Department and authority on North Carolina history and a teacher who has had an active part in the development of the College and Miss Kate Lewis, head of Public School Art, one of the original demonstrators and one which has contributed much to the school system of the State by its pioneering in its field. The two other members of the committee were men who had worked in close contact with Dr. Wright for many years before his death. Mr. R. M. Deal, head of Modern Languages, and Mr. M. L. Wright, head of work in Sociology. They came to the College when it was in its transition period from the normal school to a teachers' college. This condensed account of contributions of Robert Herring Wright to the State covers his early years, his success as an educator before coming to East Carolina Teachers College, his years of work to realize his vision of a great teacher-training institution, and his other contributions to educational progress; and it quotes some of the many tributes paid by leaders in the State to his ability, his leadership, and his character. Another of its features of interest to many is its account of the establishment of the College comes to be written.

BIG CAGE GAME HERE TONIGHT

High School Boys To Meet Kannapolis YMCA Five

By "SMUT" BURKS
If you have anything else planned for tonight you had better forget it and come to the high school gym at 7:30. There is going to be a mighty good basketball game between the G. H. S. varsity cagers and the Y. M. C. A. quint of Kannapolis.

There will be no preliminary contest in tonight's program and the game will be called promptly at the scheduled time.

The Phantom five is entering the game as the underdog but is expected to put up a game battle. Their opponents are older players with more experience and are reputed to be able to hold their own against mediocre college teams.

However, Coach Farley has been daily whipping the squad into shape for the game and the G. H. S. cagers might upset the dope and emerge victorious.

But, there is one sure thing about tonight's contest—the game will be packed with thrills and excitement and should send the fans home with a satisfied feeling.

Coach Farley is counting heavily on John Lattures and George Sakas, veterans of the 1937 five, in this game. The other starters will probably be Tracy Jordan, Larry James and Ford McGowan. Marvin Stocks and Leslie Babcock will probably see much action also in the game, which should be a hard battle.

Awarded Trophy For Most Outstanding ECTC Gridder

William Shelton, East Carolina Teachers College junior, today was awarded a silver trophy at the college assembly for an outstanding scholastic record made during the fall term by a football player. Shelton's record for last term of three 1's (same as "A") and two 2's ("B") having put him among those doing outstanding work in the classroom.

The trophy, which was presented at assembly today by Attorney Hoover Taft of Greenville, was the gift of the Tadlock Mutual Insurance Agency of Greenville.

Shelton, formerly of Danville, Va., but now living in Greenville, has done honor work in his studies from the time of his entrance as a freshman.

In presenting the award, Mr. Taft spoke of the pride of the town in the college, saying that time and time again in other sections of the state people had said to him of Greenville—"Oh, yes, that is the site of East Carolina Teachers College." He spoke of the great development of the athletic program of the college within the past few years.

"A good athlete," said Mr. Taft, "is one who has the physical capacity to play the game, the wits to outsmart his adversary, and the honesty to play the game fairly." He said that Shelton had been awarded the trophy because he exemplified those qualities.

M. F. Fox, of the Tadlock firm, was presented to the student body at the edge of the program. Coach Alexander introduced both Mr. Taft and Mr. Fox.

PREPARE HOLD PARTY DINNER

Gov. and Mrs. Chandler Expected in Raleigh Tonight

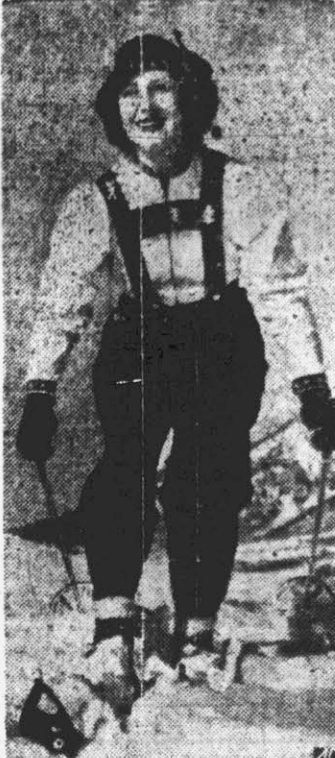

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Jan. 6.—Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky and Mrs. Chandler are expected to arrive in Raleigh late this afternoon or tonight. Governor Chandler will deliver the principal address at the Jackson Day Dinner at Sir Walter Hotel tomorrow night.

Senator John D. Larkins of Jones county, general chairman of the dinner, wore a broad smile as he opened his mail and found in almost every envelope a sizeable check. More than one third of the counties in the state have reached or exceeded their quota of plates at $25 per, and another third has signified that they will have in headquarters office checks for their plates before the deadline at five o'clock this afternoon. Senator Larkins has been fooled in times past but he isn't going to get fooled this time. He doesn't count anything until he gets the cash in hand.

Telegrams and letters announcing that somebody else has the money please him, but he doesn't turn on his real campaign smile until he gets it. Incidentally, if he doesn't get it by five o'clock this afternoon the guest does not get his name printed on the program which will be distributed at the dinner.

The dinner is being held on Saturday, January 7, because the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans in which the patron saint of democracy so distinguished himself falls on Sunday. The price for plates is fixed at $25 because the Democratic national committee needs the money. At that, guests will get their money's worth either in eats or wisecracks and oratory.

Selection of Governor Chandler to make the address is generally approved around Raleigh. In view of the fact that he has an excellent New Deal record but was opposed by the President for the U. S. Senate last summer, the President favoring Barkley, he is expected to satisfy both the New Dealers and the mild ants.

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germs laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

JOIN FIGHT ON ANY DIVERSION

Filling Station Owners Organize to Oppose Action

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Jan. 6.—Former Senator R. A. Patton of Macon county is heading up an organization of filling station operators and retail gasoline dealers for the purpose of fighting diversion of gasoline and auto license taxes to any purpose other than highway construction and maintenance.

Senator Patton arrived in Raleigh yesterday and will join the already considerable forces fighting for an amendment to prevent any future diversion of such funds.

The Petroleum Industries Institute, with former Senator Gilmer Spencer as executive secretary, has conducted a statewide campaign for the adoption of such an amendment without cost to any retail dealer. Sentiment against diversion of highway funds has grown rapidly during recent weeks and there is very indication that advocates of a constitutional amendment will put up a very vicious fight in the assembly. They argue that there is nothing to be lost by submission of the matter to a vote of the people. If the people want to provide money for the general fund that way it is their privilege. Certain it is that the two organizations mentioned above will protest any use of money collected for gas or license plate taxes to any use other than road work.

There is apparently no connection whatever between the filling station association and the Petroleum Industries Institute. They have the common aim of protecting highway money, with the difference that the filling station boys are asked to contribute to the campaign chest.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—It was nice seeing Lynn Farrell again. I hadn't seen him in over a year. Lynn used to go about the country in the interest of Sam Goldwyn. He doesn't do much gadding any more. He sits in an office on the 15th floor of a big tall building on 7th avenue and does things for United Artists.

He said, "Come on over and meet the countess. And see some pictures." The countess was Countess Keller, who used to be Eleanor Sawyer, the opera singer. The pictures were an interesting series of travelogs in color. She and her husband made these pictures in the forbidden city of Peking in the Holland in the strange, picturesque Arabian desert.

One of the scenes that appealed to me was of the Bedouins, who soon around and let the women do all the work. The men just made coffee. You saw them brewing their famous coffee over hot coals, and partaking of it in a ceremonious ritual which is a daily custom with them. It looked so good I wanted some. Suddenly I was overwhelmed with an acute craving for coffee.

Then the lights came up and Lynn said, "Come on in the next room." There was a Turk making real Turkish coffee. There were trays of sandwiches and scotch, too, if you wanted it. But I hung around the man with the fez until he came up with a steaming cup of brew. I was heavy and hot and delicious. I wanted a second cup but didn't dare ask for it because there were a lot of people waiting their turn. There were some reporters and motion picture people, and the Countess. The room was pretty crowded.

So when I finished my coffee I set the cup down and edged out the side door. I didn't even congratulate the Countess on her pictures, and I should have, because they are worth any man's time. They are not faked. They are not just news reels. They are authentic travelogs but they show imagination. I think they will be released under the title of "World Windows."

This coffee reminds me of a party I attended recently where someone was ingenious enough to invite me. Everything went beautifully until refreshments were served but then the coffee turned out to be bad. I don't know whether my hostess is an habitual bad coffee maker or not, but it was pretty bad this time. No body.

Also in attendance was a hostess, whose name I don't recall. She felt similarly distressed about the coffee. He threw me a significant look and then slipped toward the kitchen door. Presently I got up and gattered out. He came shortly after that. Then Lynn he said, "I found the coffee." He said, "Harry, I think we can make it."

I dimmed the pot and filled it with fresh coffee, and Lynn over the fire. It seemed an age before it began to percolate. Of course, the waitamps our nervous system.

But it got some presently and I turned out the fire. I was wonderful in the kitchen, rattled our cups and went out to join the party.

"Where have you been?" the hostess demanded. "We've been looking for you."

Doc looked her straight in the eye. "Well, I'll tell you. This is the best coffee I ever had. It was so good we just had to sneak out for another cup."

SHOULD BE ABOLISHED

Already one bill aimed at correcting some of the evils of the absentee ballot law in this state has been introduced in the legislature and it is expected that there will be others and a real rumpus over the matter before it is finally settled. From the crookedness we have seen result from the absentee ballot in North Carolina primaries and elections, it is our opinion that the repeal of the absentee ballot law and abolition of the privilege of voting except in person is the only way to do away with the evils that absentee balloting has injected into our politics.

And while the legislature is about the matter of trying to assure more honest primaries in this state, it should likewise abolish the present plan of permitting markers at the polling places. It is our opinion that every person who goes to a polling place to vote should be required to mark and cast his ballot unassisted. It is true there are a lot of voters who do not know how to properly mark a ballot and they might vote contrary to their intentions, but no doubt there would be as many such voters in the various political camps to even things up and no candidate would be the loser. At any rate, a voter who does not know how to mark his ballot or who cannot read and write, has no assurance that the ballot marked for him by a ticket marker is according to his wishes. Like the absentee ballot, the presence of ticket markers invites crookedness in our primaries and elections, and if our legislature is sincere in wanting to provide more honest elections in this state it can aid the cause greatly by abolishing both the absentee ballot and the ticket markers.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover
Washington—One of the multifarious duties of this government is to starve 14 caveticks to death, slowly.
Undoubtedly the government would starve the ticks faster if it could but they don't starve on a speed-up basis. For five years now they have had nothing to eat, they seem reasonably alert, and more to the point, they continue to harbor venomous supplies of the bacteria which cause relapsing fever that should be of especial interest to Texas and California, where the ailment is best known.

It now is almost a question which will survive longest, the ticks or Dr. Edward Francis, germ specialist of the bureau of public health, who is starving the ticks.
Dr. Francis, who for 38 years has been experimenting with ticks and other bearers of miasmatic germs, recently returned from a Baltimore Hospital where he survived one stage of relapsing fever contracted while handling ticks of the starved variety.

well into their sixth year of starvation. Originally there were 119, but the others died. All survivors are females. By an odd quirk of government organization, the report is published by the treasury which, like the ticks, is also a bit hungry these days.
Dr. Francis is not likely to die of old age before the ticks die of starvation, as he is a robust person of 66 and utterly happy about his experimental work. But he has often been afflicted with the diseases he has studied, and most of them are of a type which makes an attack a real hazard.
Already Dr. Francis has had two attacks of relapsing fever and has survived psittacosis (parrot fever, often fatal), dengue (in the orient seeds die of this) typhus (which he personally identified years ago), and undulant fever (from milk of ailing cows). He has worked with cholera, spotted fever and yellow fever without contracting them.

"Human Test Tube"
His associates refer to him as a "human test tube," a title which annoys him as he objects to any intimation that he voluntarily infects himself for experimental purposes.
The reason for starving the ticks is to find out how long they will survive and still harbor the infections, spirochetes. The ticks starve in caves and burrows for years and then attach themselves to some luckless rodent or human and get a new lease on life at the same time they spread the infection. Control methods (thus must reckon with an almost famine-proof disease spreader).
Incidentally, Dr. Francis is not the only one in the bureau of public health who has been afflicted with dangerous diseases while studying them. Dr. Charles Armstrong recovered from psittacosis and a half dozen years ago was able to donate a pint of blood to use in preparing serum to administer to Mrs. Borah, wife of the senator, who contracted the disease from one of a pair of lovebirds she had purchased. With the aid of the serum, she recovered.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 6—First of the "city limit extension" bills went into the House hopper yesterday when Ralph Flowers, from Catawba introduced a measure to enable the town of Newton to enlarge its corporate area. Such large cities as Raleigh, Wilmington and Charlotte are presently in the throes of internal conflict on the extension proposition, with almost everybody trying to duck and dodge all the taxes possible.

Speaking to Representative J. B. Vogel's bill to have the assembly meet one day in Charlotte in commemoration of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, the Dean of the House, "Petey" Murphy, of Salisbury, said:
"Gentlemen of the House, I am not opposed to meeting in Charlotte, but I do want to make a few observations. There is an old description of North Carolina as 'a Valley of Humility between two Mountains of Conceit—Virginia and South Carolina. In Roman, we find ourselves very much in the same position, with Guilford and its Battlefield of Guilford Courthouse on one side and Mecklenburg with its Hornet's Nest Riflemen and Declaration of May 20, 1775 on the other."

locked just a bit more, anxious yesterday when the Governor's sleek, powerful limousine with State License No. 1 drove up the roadway back of the Capitol and had to stop some hundred feet away from any entrance because parked squarely by the door was a ramshackle one-horse dray and immediately behind that a heavy-gauged painted truck loaded with cases of a well-known soft drink.

Ambassador Josephus Daniels, home from Mexico for Christmas and the legislature, was one of the most popular men on the floor of the house during the joint session for the Governor's message. He was the only man who rated having his picture made standing between two very charming ladies. Amid all the flash light snapping of the governor, the lieutenant governor, the speaker, and legislative leaders, who had to content themselves with male companions, the distinguished ambassador stood between Mrs. Hoey and Mrs. E. L. McKee, former senator from Jackson, and had his picture made. Younger men wondered "how does he do it."

Representative U. S. Page of Bladen, who claims that he had to beat seven machines to get to the legislature, doesn't like the idea of making a road site combination filling station and grocery store pay $10 to sell a few packs of garden seed. He claims he could have gotten his bill to reduce that license to $1 through the house yesterday under suspension of the rules, but consented to let it go to the committee on agriculture when that committee is appointed. Mr. Page liked the governor's message, all except his recommendation on the absentee ballot. Page is a direct-action man, sometimes called "Two Gun" Page, and he thinks a voter ought to have to walk up and mark and cast his vote in person.

Representative Turington of Iredell, who won fame fifteen years ago with his "Turlington Act," which made it almost illegal to sell liquor was apparently just a little disappointed that the Governor did not mention liquor in his message. However, the Iredell veteran expressed general approval of the recommendations made by Governor Hoey and declared that he would support most of them.

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Lorden

The Characters

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
Allan Collins, the man she loves.
David Norris, the man she is going to marry.

Yesterday: Allan returns.

Chapter 20

'I've Missed You'

ALLAN offered his case to Noel, took a cigarette for himself. As he lighted the match, his hand shook a little. The brief flare threw his face in bright silhouette. Noel looked at him calmly.

Strange, how suddenly everything had changed for her. One moment ecstasy with his arms around her; now, she could reason. He had kissed her passionately—and apologized, already regretting the impulse.

"For a moment you almost convinced me," Allan's voice was tense.

Yes, ran through Noel's mind, a second more and you would have known what a fool I could make of myself over you. She didn't answer him; she had no opportunity. His words took a cynical note.

"I almost forgot—you're an excellent actress, Noel."

"That's not fair—" Noel's words were studied and low. Inside she was seething. "At least give me credit for sincerity." She smiled too sweetly as she added, "Let's forget it, Allan. You're giving it undue importance."

The taxi stopped in front of the hotel Allan got out, turned to help Noel. They went into the lobby toward the elevators, neither saying a word. Better to end this way, thought Noel, finally get him completely out of my mind. Noel was thinking Allan was stern and quiet, she couldn't fathom his thoughts.

At the elevator he stopped, offered her his hand.

"Don't let's finish the evening this way," Noel pleaded. "Let's be friends. Come up for a moment and we'll talk—as we used to."

Allan hesitated. The door opened. He followed her into the lift.

In her living-room Noel turned on the low table lights and asked him: "Would you like a drink?"

"I think I need one," he replied sheepishly.

Noel went into the pantry, fixed a Scotch and Soda for Allan, poured some white rock for herself.

It wasn't much use, though. They tried to converse pleasantly, picked up half a dozen topics to drop them after spasmodic attempts. Allan nervously twisted about in his chair, got up once and walked around the room then sat down again.

"When are you being married, Noel?" he asked suddenly.

She wanted to say, "Why do you ask that?" Instead, she replied, "We're planning on June."

Allan didn't answer her. He seemed to be thinking a moment, then he announced abruptly: "It's late, and you're tired; I think I'll be going."

'I Had To'

NOEL went to the door with him. "Goodnight, Allan." She offered her hand. "We're friends again, aren't we?"

"Yes," Allan said it slowly. Then more eagerly, "And we'll be seeing each other soon?"

He was still holding her hand, seemed to realize it at once. He let it go, went out the door and came back.

"Noel, I want you to know what happened in the cab was no passion, mood on my part. I didn't mean to kiss you—I had to."

He was gone down the corridor. Letting me off lightly, Noel thought bitterly—saying my pride wasn't that easy to be friends. It wasn't that easy. Through the following days, they didn't see each other.

Mrs. Marchand called Noel. "I'm staying in town until summer—to be with Allan," she announced happily. Then she wanted to know: "Why don't we see you, my dear? I miss you very much."

Noel made her excuses. She was busy, the play took most of her time, and there were so many other things coming up. Yes, she'd phone Mrs. Marchand the first time she had a few hours.

"Something's wrong with you these days," David suggested one night at dinner. He loved her so much, he could read her every mood or supposed he could.

"Belated spring fever, I guess," Noel answered him cryptically.

play, you know—and he's keeping it open all summer."

David took it calmly. "We'll fix that easily," he assured her. "Swanstrom will be wanting more help next year."

"Would it be fair?" Noel knew she wanted to put it that way. "We must consider you first, darling."

A few nights later Allan came backstage. He was sort of shy or embarrassed at first when Noel greeted him.

"I only stopped in for a moment to see you," he explained. "Look, Noel; mother misses you dreadfully. She wonders why we don't see you any more."

He stammered a little, twisted his hat round in his hands. "If it's because of what happened—when I made a fool of myself, I thought you agreed to forget it."

"You're mistaken," Noel interrupted quickly. "We've both forgotten it. And I've missed seeing your mother." Her heart said, "And I have missed you, Allan."

"Then when will it be?" Allan wanted to know. "How about dinner tomorrow night? We could make it early, in time for you to get back here."

Noel thought, for a moment. "Dinner's difficult, Allan; it's always such a rush. But I'll call your mother in the morning and see if we can have luncheon together tomorrow."

"You'd rather have it that way?" Allan moved across to the door. Noel followed him. She was composed. It doesn't hurt so much, seeing him go away from me now—she reasoned. "Yes, I think so," she replied.

'One Month More'

WHEN Noel and Mrs. Marchand met for luncheon the older woman berated her affectionately. "I thought you'd forgotten us dear, I've wanted to see you so much."

Noel patiently explained there were so many demands on her time. She couldn't very well say to this woman, "I couldn't bear seeing your son, after what happened."

"He's been doing some shopping," she told Mrs. Marchand instead. "David and I are going on a cruise to the North Cape. It's only a month away—my marriage, you know."

Mrs. Marchand's eyes were appraising yet kindly. "You've decided you love David, then?"

"Yes," Noel made it convincing. "He's the most wonderful man I've ever known." She had to say this for David.

The waiter brought their food. Noel toyed with her luncheon. She wasn't hungry at all. Before they left, Mrs. Marchand said casually: "Once, before Allan went back to South America, I hoped that you and he—well, might fall in love."

Noel turned scarlet. She listened frantically to the next words: "I thought for a time you were—shall I say—fond of him."

"I was, and I am—as a friend." There, she'd managed it beautifully. That was all she connected with the past. Noel said to herself, what that would have meant to me.

But you couldn't tell a woman like this: "I loved your son; too bad it wasn't reciprocated. But he happens to be in love with Elaine Schuler, and going to marry David Norris. And right now I'd like to cry."

She didn't cry, though; not then, nor later. Not even when pictures of Elaine and Allan, taken at social functions together, appeared in the papers. She was sweetest to David these days, as though she were deliberately trying to make up to him for the secret thoughts she had held for Allan.

"Just one month more," David's voice filled with emotion when he talked of their wedding. He had persuaded Swanstrom to cancel Noel's contract from that time. Rita would go into the lead temporarily.

They were in Noel's apartment, after the theater. David had just slipped a wide diamond bracelet around Noel's wrist. For some time now, she'd been wearing the emerald on her left hand.

"It's too gorgeous to wear!" Noel exclaimed as she touched the large glittering stones. "You're much too extravagant, dear."

"I'm not, I see for you, my dear," David's voice was husky. He took Noel in his arms. His ardor left her unmoved but she kissed him placidly. After she was married, I'll learn to love him, she told herself over and over.

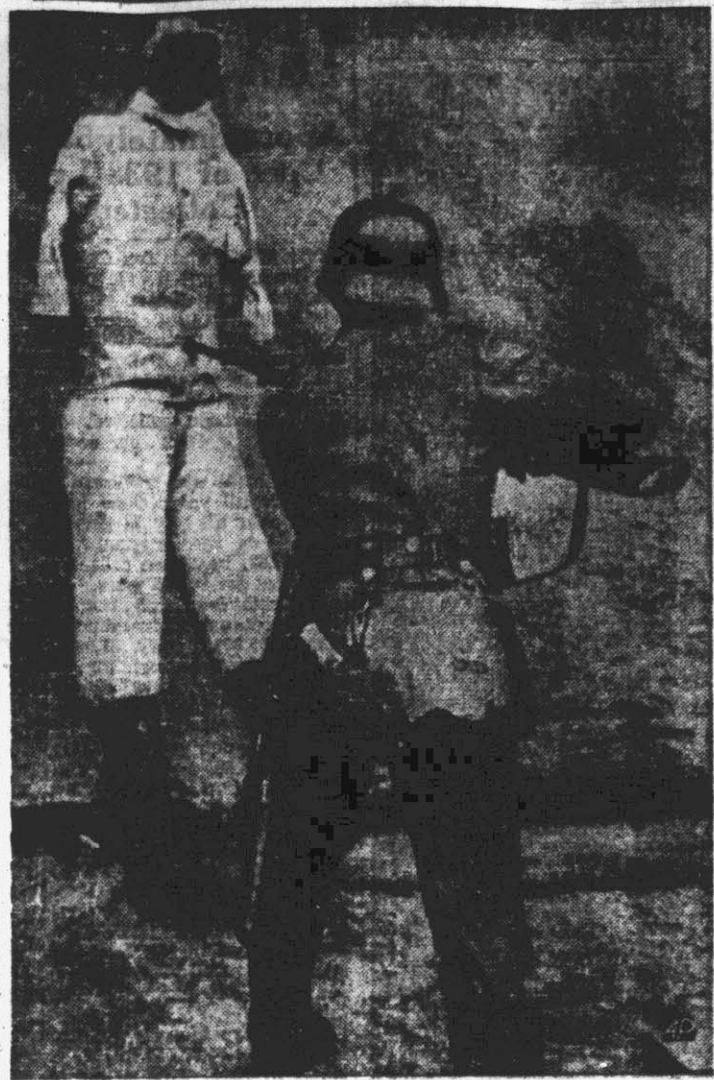

David whispered endearments. He was grateful for the slightest display of affection from Noel. He loved her so much, he never seemed to tire of saying it. His reiterations were interrupted by the ring of the telephone.

"Don't answer it," David suggested. He seemed to resent any intrusion on Noel from the world outside.

Noel pulled away from him. As she went over to the desk, she lifted the instrument and before she took the receiver from the hook, she explained: "I must answer. It might be important." She looked frightened a moment. Then as though repeating some subconscious suggestion: "I have a feeling—it's very important!"

AMERICAN VERSUS NAZI BRAND OF DIPLOMACY

DOCTRINE OF FORCE that enabled Hitler, leader of the Fascist dictators, to grab Austria and Sudetenland, traces its strength to the German military machine. This Nazi started the new year with bayonet practice at Doberitz camp.

TO 21 AMERICAN REPUBLICS whose diplomats found peaceful means of agreeing on a defense pact against threats to their Republican institutions or territory, do Secretary of State Hull (left) and Peru president, Benavides, drink a toast.

PLEASED WITH WARD VICTORY

Win is Regarded As Balm to Graham Supporters

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—The chaps going around with the widest grins and the loudest cheers for Lobby Ward's election as Speaker of the 1939 House are quite likely to be revealed as the earnest and ardent supporters of Sandy Graham in the 1936 gubernatorial primary.

Not that the Ward-Bryant-Pender triangular meet was any outstanding or re-eman of the political simon that kept the state hot with its fevered oratory and embittered whisperings. It wasn't. There were Grahamites for Bryant and for Pender and there were Hoey henchmen for all three.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding there is a very general impression that it was in the nature of a Graham triumph, and certainly those folks who went all the way down the line with a Hillsboro statesman in his galling, if unsuccessful, race are whooping it up as such.

It's about the first chance they have had to do any really rampant rejoicing, as they have fared none too well in the matter of Administration appointments. Perhaps they shouldn't have expected to get the really choice plums, but there has undoubtedly been a feeling among them that Governor Clyde R. Hoey owed them a bit.

more of a political debt than he has paid off.

All of which isn't to be construed as meaning that either the newly elected Speaker or any of his friends and associates of the Graham campaign are going to make the General Assembly the reason or the arena for doing a bit of scotching of Administration plans by way of revenge or reprisal.

It only means that the Graham campaigners are genuinely proud and glad that one of their comrades has attained the post which ranks second only to the Governorship in importance and authority.

NOTICE OF SALE OF LAND UNDER MORTGAGE

English Hope There'll Be No More Giving In As Chamberlain Prepares To Visit Dictator

BACKGROUND

Little more than three months have passed since Munich, now Prime Minister Chamberlain is planning another trip—this time to Rome. In those months Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy have swelled with power and pride. What of the great democracies—England and France? Here William McGaffin tells how England has fared and what she is thinking. Tomorrow he will tell of France in a dispatch written from Paris.

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN (AP Feature Service Writer)

London—"I'm ashamed to be British!"

You heard that frequently after the Munich deal. And Leon Blum, the French political leader, expressed not only his own feelings but those of the average Englishman when he said, "I feel myself divided between cowardly relief and my sense of shame."

But at the same time there was resignation and acquiescence among the English. "Distasteful as Munich was, after all, what else was there to do? Britain was in no position to take on Germany. After all, the prime minister did give us peace of a sort—though it cost a sickening price."

Once a Hero—But Not Now. Neville Chamberlain was a hero. But Neville Chamberlain is no hero as he sets out for Rome to do some more "appeasing," at conferences starting January 11th. His whole policy of appeasement, as opposed to the sterner attitude of ex-foreign minister Anthony Eden who once went to Rome himself with unhappy results, will be at stake. At present Italy is making faces at France. No one expects immediate war but some think the campaign is one to create a "second Goebbels," requiring the attention of Britain's "honest broker" when he arrives.

Critics are afraid also that in the Spanish war discussions, Chamberlain will "sell out" Loyalist Spain as he did Czechoslovakia.

There is a growing feeling against "giving in" to the dictators a growing distrust that it will bring peace, or be interpreted as anything but a sign of weakness.

Indications of Possible Revolt. The new reaction was expressed by the news placard of a popular two-penny weekly: "To Hell With Hitler!"

Even a section of Chamberlain's own Conservative party is quarreling with his policy. He is keeping them in line with a heavy hand. Luckily for the prime minister, the opposition is disorganized. There are many, however, who feel that Chamberlain will be unable to quell a political revolt if he continues to "cheepen" British prestige.

"Things, indeed, have reached a sorry state," the average Englishman indignantly explodes, "when countries which wouldn't have dared after the war are crowding each other for position to twist the British lion's tail."

Much Twisting, Little Roaring
The principal countries he has in mind, of course, are Japan, Italy and Germany.

Japan was the first to twist the tail when she invaded Manchuria in 1931 on a campaign which by now has gravely undermined British prestige and markets throughout the Far East.

Japan's aggression also started the British-dominated League of Nations on the path to oblivion—and encouraged Italy to give the tail a spin by grabbing off Ethiopia.

Next, Italy and Germany teamed up in Spain. British merchantmen were bombed and torpedoed. Britain replied with the non-intervention committee and tried to believe that British and French colonial "lifelines" would not be critically endangered by a Fascist victory.

Finally, in 1938, Germany demonstrated that she had become a "grown-up" power again by knocking off Austria and breaking up Czechoslovakia.

Additional Difficulties. Britain has had other headaches. Britain is laboring under an adverse trade balance, and there has been a considerable depreciation in the pound sterling.

Rearmament to make Britain, as Chamberlain says, "strong enough so that her diplomacy will be generally respected" has increased the income tax to 27 1/2 per cent, and the public debt to 8,144,128,417 pounds (roughly $40,750,000,000).

And there have been assertions that the British empire may be breaking up.

But Chamberlain says now that rearmament is far enough advanced to enable Britain to fulfill her obligations to empire and allies.

When England Would Fight. Chamberlain's answer is, he would infinitely prefer not to, but that he would fight if necessary:

1. To defend England and the empire and imperial communications.

2. To defend France and Belgium against unprovoked aggression.

3. To fulfill treaty obligations to Portugal, Iraq and Egypt.

Undoubtedly, many observers say, Chamberlain hopes to sit on the sidelines while Hitler's regime either blows up internally or engages in a death struggle with Communist Russia. Some critics say the prime minister fears Communism even more than Fascism and hence regards Hitler not so unkindly because he sees in him "insurance" against the westward spread of Communism.

More and more English are beginning to feel that things may not work out as neatly as Chamberlain envisaged.

Much as they abhor war, they are beginning to say: "We'll have to go over there yet and clean up those bloody blighters." This year, perhaps this spring, should prove whether they are sincere.

"Til we meet again" might have been the remark. Here Chamberlain and Mussolini clasp hands after the Munich agreement as Daladier of France looks on. Englishmen wonder what kind of accord the two will "shake" on after the Anglo-Italian conference.

REPORT SHOWS TAX RECEIPTS

Approximately 59 Per Cent of 1938 Levy Collected

City Clerk and Tax Collector J. O. Duval reported at the regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen last night, the first of the year, that 58.88 per cent of the 1938 taxes had been collected as of December 31.

A total of $92,497.54 was levied for the fiscal year. Of this amount, $395,011 has been collected, leaving $38,102.53, or 41.12 per cent, still outstanding.

Mr. Duval also reviewed collections for all years since 1927, for which year all but 74 per cent, or $1,024,750 of the original levy of $1,444,473.52, has been collected.

Figures for other years, showing the original levy and the amount and percentage outstanding, follow: 1928—$155,803.18 levy, $1,683.03, or 1.09 per cent, outstanding; 1929—$145,315.59 levy, $2,393.24, or 1.65 per cent, outstanding; 1930—$135,435.47 levy, $2,442.31, or 1.81 per cent, outstanding; 1931—$111,571.15 levy, $2,934.19, or 2.63 per cent, outstanding; 1932—$94,868.78 levy, $1,541.04, or 1.63 per cent, outstanding; 1933—$66,191.94 levy, $1,004.10, or 1.52 per cent, outstanding; 1934—$65,984.97 levy, $1,418.73, or 2.16 per cent, outstanding; 1935—$74,948.45 levy, $1,713.55, or 2.29 per cent, outstanding; 1936—$76,973.52 levy, $3,359.21, or 4.37 per cent, outstanding; 1937—$94,143.18 levy, $944.02, or 0.84 per cent, outstanding.

Observers will notice a drop in the levy from $155,803.18 in 1928 to $65,984.97 in 1934. This is due to two things: different tax rates and a reduction in the assessed valuation of property put into effect throughout the county.

In 1927 and 1928 the city had a tax rate of 1.50; in 1929 a $1.40 rate; in 1930 a $1.30 rate; in 1931 a $1.11 rate; in 1932 a $1.00 rate; in 1933 a 96 cents rate; in 1934 a 95 cents rate, and in 1935-36-37-38 a $1.00 rate.

The 1938 levy was below that of 1937 because of the fact the state took over all the collection of taxes on intangibles, such as mortgages, bank deposits, etc. This cut about $3,000 off the levy for 1938, but the state turns back to the city a percentage of the amount collected from this source.
