MAY USE GUNS FOR AVENGING FRENCH INSULT

Italian Press Attack Follows Insurgent Victory

EDITOR CHARGES HATE BREEDING

Settlement of Dispute With France Not To Come Until Spanish War is Ended

Rome, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Italy's anti-French campaign gained new impetus today with newspaper threats that Italians might avenge French "insults" with guns.

The press attacks came as Italy made an insurgent victory in the Spanish civil war the price for settling her quarrel with France over colonial influence in the Mediterranean.

Newspapers unanimously published defiant protests against a statement attributed by a Paris newspaper to an anonymous French officer that ten Italian soldiers were badly enough to fight one retired Frenchman.

Virgilio Gayda, one of Italy's most responsible editors, wrote that French hatred of Italy was breeding Italian hatred of France until "finally the rifles will go off by themselves."

Italy's determination not to settle her quarrel with France until the Spanish war ended successfully became apparent with publication by the foreign office of a bulletin outlining what Mussolini told Prime Minister Chamberlain in their conversations last week.

Some diplomatic circles thought that the stiffening Italian attitude was a consequence of encouraging insurgent advances in the Barcelona offensive. They also saw again a danger that the Spanish conflict could become a general European fight.

Mussolini told the British Premier, said the foreign office bulletin, that specifically the Italian quarrel with France could not be settled until after the Spanish war because "the Spanish question has divided and still divides profoundly the two countries."

High School Girl Slain By Intruder

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Eight hours after the battered and partially nude body of 16-year-old Ruth Scott was found tied to her blood-stained bed today, a Milwaukee man arrested at Racine signed a confession that he slew her with a hatchet during an attempted burglary, Sheriff Miles Hulet of Racine county said.

Hulet announced that Ernest John Mahr, 24, willingly admitted the confession after his arrest by two deputies.

Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—Ruth Scott, 16-year-old high school student, was killed with an axe early today by an intruder who broke into her home and slew her after tying her arms together and partially stripping her of clothing.

Mrs. Scott, who is hard of hearing, woke up and saw the shadowy figure of a man standing in her bed room, a hand-axe in one of his hands and a butcher knife in the other, she told authorities.

He struck Mrs. Scott on the head as she struggled with him and then one of the passes he made with the knife hit her right hand, gashing it.

The woman broke away and ran into the kitchen, where she turned on the light and saw the body of her daughter lying on a blood-stained bed in the adjoining room.

Ruth had been struck on the head several times. She was lying face upward and arms tied above her head to the back of the bed.

PITT RESIDENT KILLED SUNDAY

John Stepp of Marlboro Allegedly Shot By Neighbor

John Stepp, 42, of the Marlboro community about one mile from Farmville on the Snow Hill highway, was instantly killed early Sunday morning at the home of J. A. Jones, also of Marlboro, who is charged with the shooting.

Stepp is alleged to have been at the home of Jones earlier Saturday night and to have returned about 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Stepp was said to have been drinking and to have started an argument over some money he supposedly lost or had stolen from him. Jones was declared to have ordered him away and when Stepp refused to leave and continued in a threatening mood, Jones shot him on the back porch. Bond for Jones was allowed pending the inquest.

Legislative Trend Turns From Administration Aim

Reflector Bureau By G. LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 16.—As the General Assembly enters upon its second week of actual work tonight, the program outlined in the governor's biennial message and in the budget commission report will find much more definite opposition than had been anticipated.

Outstanding developments of last week indicate clearly that members have minds of their own on many of the items which had been expected to go through smoothly.

Chief among these are the sales tax, higher tuition in the State University and the seed license law. There developed during the week sufficient sentiment in the legislature itself, supported by a powerful student-parent sentiment that is statewide, to virtually force the administration to abandon its intention for higher tuition rates. In his message the governor declared: "The state is confronted with

TWO APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Appointment of Murphy, Frankfurter Sanctioned

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Senate Judiciary committee approved today the appointment of Felix Frankfurter to the Supreme Court and Frank Murphy as Attorney General.

This action sent President Roosevelt's appointments to the Senate floor for expected confirmation early this week.

The full Judiciary committee acted at a closed session after subcommittees had conducted hearings and unanimously approved both appointments.

Murphy, former governor of Michigan, who was defeated in the November election, was named Attorney General to succeed Homer Cummings who resigned.

Frankfurter, a noted liberal and Harvard law instructor, was appointed to the vacancy resulting from the death of Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo.

Very Few Arrests In City during Week-end

"Very little doing" was reported by the various law enforcement agencies in Greenville in regard to activities during the week-end.

Members of the Pitt county ABC form of the sheriff's office, State Highway Patrol and city police officials, experienced a "quiet week-end."

Only two persons were booked on the police blotter yesterday, both of these being Negroes traveling through Greenville and desiring a place to sleep. Four persons were booked on Saturday, one on a whiskey charge and three for assault. Not a single arrest was made by the department on Friday, January 13.

Only two cases were tried by Recorder L. C. Skinner in Municipal court this morning, both defendants being Negroes and both being charged with a deadly weapon.

A verdict of not guilty was rendered in the case against Herman Gaynor, but Bertha Obeys was convicted of the charge and given a 30-day sentence, suspended on payment of a $5 fine and costs of court.

Visibly nervous, 69-year-old Dr. Dodd entered a plea of innocent when the indictment was read at his formal arraignment. He attempted to explain his plea, but at the repeated insistence of his attorney, Leon Bazile, Dr. Dodd took his seat after the plea.

SNOW BLANKET COVERS STATE

Fall Recorded All the Way from Mountains to Coast

A snow fall of two and a half inches was recorded here last night but it was rapidly disappearing this afternoon as the sun began shining. The snow started falling in the early morning hours following rain, and continued until about 8 o'clock. Numerous citizens in Greenville reported hearing a loud clap of thunder just about the time the snow started falling here, the first of the season.

Raleigh, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Snow blanketed most of North Carolina today except on the coast, where it rained.

Weatherman Lee A. Denson said the snow was recorded all the way from Asheville, in the mountains, to Elizabeth City and Norfolk, Va.

The Airways Weather station here reported scheduled flights were being maintained in this area, but that flying at most stations north of Raleigh was by instrument as snow was continuing.

Around two inches of snow covered the ground and roofs here this morning when the fall stopped, but it quickly melted from pavement and streets. A low temperature down to 30 degrees was listed by the Weather Bureau, while the Army station five miles from here recorded 29.8.

Elizabeth City reported heavy snow falling this morning. Fayetteville got two inches during the night but as at Raleigh the sun melted this morning. Wilson reported five inches.

Charlotte had its first snow of the winter and Winston-Salem had an inch last night. Rocky Mount had four inches of snow and the fall was continuing at 10 o'clock.

Hatteras reported 1.39 inches of rain and the storm which brought the snow centered off that point this morning, Denson said.

Only two Cases Tried In Municipal Court

Only two cases were tried by Recorder L. C. Skinner in Municipal court this morning, both defendants being Negroes and both being charged with a deadly weapon.

A verdict of not guilty was rendered in the case against Herman Gaynor, but Bertha Obeys was convicted of the charge and given a 30-day sentence, suspended on payment of a $5 fine and costs of court.

U. S. Proposal To Fortify Guam and Wake Islands Causes Much Concern in Japan

Tokyo, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The newspaper Kokumin declared editorially today that "the Japanese people are determined to smash the American fleet" if the United States intends "to get a political foothold in China" by fortifying the Guam and Wake islands.

The article, which caused a sensation in Tokyo, demanded to know "the real intentions of the American people in the western Pacific, not those of the President or the State Department."

Washington reports last week listed among proposals for new naval bases the long demilitarized island of Guam, 1,500 miles from Japan, and said an air and submarine base there would outflank any Japanese advance to the south or west, but would call for a basic decision on national policy in view of resentment likely to be aroused in Tokyo. Plans have been drawn for improving the lagoon at Wake island for service craft of tonnage under cruisers.

The newspaper, which has considerable circulation in military circles, said that if the United States wants only to increase trade with China, then Japan would assist, but if America seeks to interfere with Japan's China policy, even resorting to arms, then Japan must be ready to smash the American fleet.

Cabinet Post Proposed For Military Control

Army-Navy Would Be Under Secretary of Defense

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A proposal to reorganize American military control by placing the army and the navy under a single cabinet officer was revived in Congress today in connection with the President's $52,000,000 defense program.

A Democratic senator, who declined to be quoted by name, said he was drafting legislation to create a Secretary of National Defense. Several house members also have been advocating such a consolidation.

Although similar bills heretofore have met objections from army and navy leaders, the senator continued in the projected strengthening of the military force was a propitious time to make the change. The administration's attitude has not been disclosed.

Senate and House committees were ready to begin a study of the armaments program this week, Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House Military committee disclosed he was considering including in the program a system of "super highways" across and up and down the nation.

In addition to being invaluable from a defense standpoint, he said, these roads should stimulate economic development.

FRANCO DRIVE GOES FORWARD

Insurgent Command Reports Capture of Important Town

Lerida, Spain, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Generalissimo Franco appealed to lay down its arms, warning that an insurgent victory was now inevitable.

Franco's message was broadcast by the insurgent radio. He declared that insurgent troops were marching against Barcelona, Government capital, "not to destroy her, but to save her."

Hendaye, France, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent command today reported capture of Cervera in a swift drive toward Barcelona along the center of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's 100-mile front in Catalonia.

Cervera, an important town of 4,000 inhabitants, lies within 50 miles directly west of the Government capital on the highway from Lerida. Roads connecting the Lerida-Barcelona highway with Government territory to the north and south join at Cervera.

Franco's central Catalonian column laid siege to the town yesterday. His commanders reported that Government defenders were smashed this morning, clearing the way for a new eastward thrust to the next immediate objective, Igualada, about 29 miles nearer Barcelona.

The insurgent lower Catalonian forces, which had captured Tarragona at the coast and pushed into Barcelona province inland at Bellprat, were reported veering northward to combine with the central column for a mass drive on Barcelona.

FDR PROPOSES EXTENSION OF SECURITY ACT

Warns Against Turning to Untried, Unsound Panaceas

FOR BEGINNING BENEFITS SOONER

Program Called For Also Includes Liberalizing Payments To Aid Dependents

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt recommended to Congress today wide expansion of the Social Security act and warned against "turning to untried and demonstrably unsound panaceas."

The expansion program he called for included beginning old age insurance benefits sooner and liberalizing them in the early years, affording greater protection to dependent children, extending unemployment and old age protection as rapidly as possible to all our people and increasing in some instances federal grants in aid to states.

His message made no direct reference to old age pension proposals.

The President emphasized the desirability of affording greater old age security. He described as sound a "two-fold approach" recommended by the Social Security Board on this point.

"One way," he said, "is to begin the payment of monthly old age insurance benefits sooner and to liberalize the benefits to be paid in early years."

"The other way is to make proportionately larger federal grants in aid to those states with limited fiscal capacities so that they may provide more adequate assistance to those in need. This result can and should be accomplished in such a way as to involve little, if any, additional cost to the federal government."

He also mentioned a method embodying a principle that may well be applied to other federal grants in aid.

Dramatist To Appear Here. Maud Scheerer, actress and play reader in a class by herself, will give at the college Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, her one-act production of the much talked-of comedy "You Can't Take It With You." This comedy, by George Kaufman and Moss Hart, is not only uproariously funny but it was considered a piece of work worthy of the Pulitzer Prize award for the best American play of the year a season or two ago. As one critic says of it, "It says something important with laughter."

When asked how long it would take her to read this play, Miss Scheerer replied, "That depends on the audience. When I read it in practice, it takes an hour and twenty-five minutes. At the University of Minnesota, with 4,000 people in the audience, it took an hour and fifty-five minutes (because of the laughter of the audience). At the University of Wisconsin it took an hour and fifty minutes." So it does literally depend on the audience. The philosophy of Grandpa Sycamore and his brood seems impracticable and even a little crazy to the hard-headed business man, but even when he laughs at the Sycamore family, he learns something from them. Miss Scheerer's production will begin at 8 o'clock instead of the later hour, sometimes used for college entertainment.

Y.W.C.A. Vesper Services. Rev. Clarence Patrick, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, spoke on "The Parable of Proverbs" to the Y.W.C.A. vesper group at the college Sunday evening.

He began by stating that proverbs are often used to evade an issue, to cover up something, or to shift responsibility. For instance, in the proverb "Where there is smoke, there is fire," there is often not even any smoke. "You are, besides, dealing with fire and smoke, but with people," he said. He illustrated further with "You can not teach an old dog new tricks. But we have adult education in our country today." And again one is dealing with people, not with dogs.

In Ezekiel he found this passage: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are sharp on edge." The children of Israel while in Babylon, believed they were doomed because of the sins of their fathers, just as the people of our nation believe themselves reaping the sins of the World War, always absorbing the individual responsibility. "There are great forces that play a part in our life, but there is great danger in blaming things in our lives on the sour grapes our fathers have eaten," he said.

"I want you to recognize your own responsibility," he continued. "It is your own personal life. A person may contribute something to a Christmas basket, or employ someone to do a tedious task that must be done, but it is necessary that he accept responsibility for himself." He said it is necessary to accept responsibility in group life. This proceeds only as the individual accepts responsibility in that group. The third responsibility is in the realm of one's spiritual life. "Some people will even leave that to others," he said. He told of a man who took all his problems to his preacher and church to solve for, according to his belief, that is what they were for.

Religion has a social aspect, but it is considered primarily personal. "Our lives are really our own and we are responsible for them. What we are depends on us and not the sour grapes of our fathers," Mr. Patrick concluded. A duet entitled "Service" was sung by Misses Betty McArthur and Harriette Lawrence.

Christian Science Church. "Life" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, January 15.

The golden text was from Prov. 12:28 "In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof is life; and in the pathway thereof is life; and in the pathway thereof is life."

The lesson-sermon also included the following from the Bible: "And this is the record that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." (1 John 5:11-12)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The continual contemplation of existence as material and corporeal—beginning and ending, and with birth, decay and dissolution as its component stages—hides the true and spiritual life, and causes our standard to trail in the dust. If life has any starting point whatsoever, then the great I Am is a myth. If life is God, as the Scriptures imply, then life is not embryonic, it is infinite."

GREENVILLE City of Sunshine

Greenville certainly bespoke our motto—the city of sunshine—during the Christmas season. We can all be rightfully proud of the rare and unique beauty that twinkled from the open door of each home greeting friend and stranger alike.

But now that the holiday festivities are past and we have become somewhat settled down and rested, we must busy ourselves in our necessarily neglected gardens in order that Greenville may step forth again with the first days of spring in a coat of brilliant sun rays.

And have you seen the tulip leaves well above the ground? Yes, it is early, but among our garden friends we find some who have picked panicles or tell of the forsythia being in bloom. But these blooms are truly early birds and you need not worry if yours are not as far along.

All the very late fall gardens should be well cleaned away now. Flower beds should be fertilized and soil turned over. It is well to refresh the soil by adding new acid or black soil. If you are planning new beds or borders for spring, dig the ground now and leave it turned rough enough to let the frost penetrate as deeply as possible. To those burning wood in the fire places, sprinkle the wood ashes mixed with good compost over your bulb beds. This will help to improve color as well as the size of the blooms.

Which reminds me, all roses do not like the same soil. The hybrid perpetuals and the hardy climbers do best in a fairly heavy, well

MUD PUDDLES Only Few Items Float On The Surface

January a little more than half gone. Tomorrow meet tonight. Visiting brethren invited.

Several car loads of cattle have been shipped from here this winter. We hear that the case of smallpox reported in Plymouth a few days ago, turns out to be a case of the grippe.

Sunday gave us beautiful weather which was greatly enjoyed after the disagreeable spell of the previous week. But it looks now like being bad again.

drained clay. Teas, hybrid teas and the bourbon like a clay and sandy third well rotted cow manure, one-third compost and one-third soil almost any variety will thrive.

For those of us who are late, let us consider the problem of Edgings for our borders and beds.

Mrs. Lawrence of Raleigh gave so many useful suggestions in her recent Garden School broadcast. I am sure she will be only too happy to pass on her ideas to those who did not hear her. Mrs. Lawrence warns us that while most edgings are spring blooming, still it is possible for us to have an edge to the border all the year with only a little extra thought and work. So many of the plants that are advertised as everblooming cannot withstand our long, hot and usually dry summers, but many of the perennials are lovely in form and foliage even if they are not in bloom. Plants with gray foliage are supposed to be drought resistant. Santalina, or lavender cotton is one of the finest of the gray plants, but has to be carefully clipped.

One of the best of edging plants is ivy. It is a little difficult to get started, but give it plenty of manure when it is planted and when it once begins to grow it grows apace. The Abbey variety is used especially for borders.

Slow growing box bushes are also used to edge patios and beds. For an old fashioned garden oxalis just seems to suit the setting. This increased rapidly and can be divided. There is a lovely white oxalis with pretty foliage, but this will not bloom as long or increase as readily as the pink blooming oxalis. Sweet alyssum will bloom almost all the year in this region. If soon early in the fall it will bloom in early spring and it soon again in spring it will bloom all the fall if sheared.

We must not overlook our most common edging plants, the hardy candytuft and the blue oxalis which are so often seen together. Other plants familiar to us all and which we must not overlook for they always prove most satisfactory are yellow cowslips (primula veris) is the best variety here, pansies, violas, annual forget-me-nots, arabis cock cross) and cerastium tomentosum. In the case of the cerastium tomentosum the gray foliage is most attractive as a border for cuttings. Pertulaca, both single and double, is for summer bloom as is plumbago corpaental, which must be sheared to keep it in bloom. Baby blue eyes will make a lovely strip of china blue. One of our native plants, chrysogonum which has no common name, will bloom all summer. It will do much better if planted on stones.

I am sure we could continue with still as many plants left to suggest as we have already enumerated on but all are familiar to each and every one.

And now while we may be somewhat tardy about our garden planting, make just one more resolution for yourself, your garden, and your community. And that is—"I shall work earnestly in my garden until I am one jump ahead—for I want to do my part in helping to make Greenville the city of sunshine during the garden pilgrimage in April."

Chapter 28
Screen Test

AS NOEL was lying in the clouds over the Alleghenies she was still wondering why she had let Mike Howe inveigle her into this ridiculous trip. She was on her way to Hollywood for the auspicious screen test—expenses paid by Criterion.

Howe, she realized by now, had been a high pressure salesman—getting what he wanted, rushing her down to New York, putting her on the transcontinental plane, before she'd had time to say she wasn't particularly interested in Hollywood right now.

No one met her at the airport. That, too, was in accordance with her uninitiated calculations. She took a taxi to the Beverly Wilshire. Because there was nothing else to do, she went to bed. The hour was one a. m.—just ten o'clock New York time.

"I'm Noel Marchand. Mr. Howe arranged a screen test for me," she explained patiently to Mr. Feigel's secretary at Criterion the next morning. Mr. Feigel was in charge of productions—Howe had told her all about him.

"Please spell the name," Mr. Feigel's secretary answered impatiently.

Noel spelled it out. "I'm at the Beverly Wilshire."

Mr. Feigel's at Palm Springs. I'll get in touch with you Wednesday."

Noel hung up on the mundane answer. This was Monday. Two days to waste in Hollywood!

By Tuesday she was desperate. After a breakfast of coffee and green figs—how she loved them—she asked the hotel clerk:

"Is Mrs. Douglas Swanstrom registered here?"

"Yes, ma'am, I'm sure if she's in," the impersonal voice answered.

In a moment Anita's high notes were sailing over the wire. "Noel, darling—how wonderful! Of course, we'll have luncheon. I'm sorry I forgot—I've an engagement. Well, there's dinner. Now, sweet child, don't make any engagement. We'll go places. I'll show you Hollywood. Be ready early. I'll call for you."

Anita, like a flutter of bat's wings was off the telephone.

"Da-a-aring! You're ravishing!" Anita exclaimed when she stopped at Noel's suite just before dinner. Noel was wearing the old white crepe dinner gown—it was still good. Her rural brown skin gave the white a soft fleshy tint.

"We're going places—wait till you see!" Anita promised.

They went, augmented by several other guests. Anita had corralled the Hollywood favorite he-man—tall ears and false teeth. Noel thought as he listened to him exuding platitudes in the Trocadero. Afterwards she met several other celebrities at the Clover Club—Bill Herrick, the big director, so dreamy that he always forgot his wife was with him. He started Noel arching with futuristic passes. She said suddenly to Anita:

"I'm tired—do you mind if I slip out?"

It was noon Wednesday when Mr. Feigel's secretary called Noel at her hotel.

"Please be at the studio by two o'clock—and bring a sports costume and an evening gown," the efficient voice told her. Noel wondered what they expected of her—skiing, or tennis, or golf. And what kind of acrobatics.

Anita had put her wise. She arrived at the studio in a long limousine—it was rented by the hour. And a maid carried her wardrobe.

"Not Pretty—Beautiful"

FEIGEL was even shorter and faster than Howe. Noel thought he was a dumb little man. But she smiled sweetly at him. They'd arranged, so Feigel told her, to have her take the test with one of their best actors. Noel again smiled obligingly. She knew important contract players didn't submit themselves to screen tests with unknown quantities.

"I'm sorry—I don't recall your name," she said—too sweetly—to the gigolo who was to support her in the screen test. He was some fourth-rater, she knew. She was putting on her act for Feigel. He seemed to enjoy it.

"Now, Miss Marchand—" he pronounced it with a "tee," tooting the words—"Alberto is good."

"I see—was all that Noel replied. She didn't care much. She wanted to get it over with. The set was a discarded one, the director a fourth-rater. Noel was willing to go through with it.

"We'll do the last scene from 'Susan is Waiting,' the filler-in at the megaphone suggested.

"I'd much rather do the first act curtain, if you don't mind." For once Noel was asserting herself.

In the end that was what they did. Alberto was a poor excuse for Foster, as he fed her the lines. But Noel, once in the mood—she was thinking of farewells that had to be spoken—forgot the man opposite her, the cameraman, the sound technician. She forgot everybody; she only remembered she was speaking lines to an audience—she was saying goodbye to Allan.

"I think you make your women too pretty," she said later, after the test was made. Feigel was watching her with more than passing interest.

"You're not pretty—you're beautiful!" the producer responded with emotion in his voice.

There would be several days before she would hear from the screen test. In the meantime—there were any number of people she could call. The directors she'd worked with, the players who'd snatched at movie contracts—the writers she'd known in her struggling days back East. She didn't want to see any of them.

Most of the time she had her meals in the hotel suite. When Anita called she was always busy. All the time Noel waited she had a feeling she wouldn't like to stay in Hollywood. But it was security—that was important! Saying it to herself, she realized that in the past years she'd snatched at different kinds of security—and thrown them away.

Perhaps that was what made her decide. One morning she awakened, disturbed, restless. She called Criterion Studios, was connected with Feigel's secretary.

"I'm flying back East today," she announced.

Jealous protests assailed her from the other end of the wire.

"But, Miss Marchand," the girl protested, "we haven't a report yet on your test. You can't do that!" she shouted.

"I'm leaving," Noel was serious. Without saying goodbye to Anita Swanstrom, Noel took the plane back to New York. She landed at Newark Airport early in the morning, with no one to meet her. As a matter of fact, there was no place, especially, for her to go. She drove to the Plaza, registered, was shown to her room, and waited—for nothing.

She had some coffee and toast. The room was warm, so she put on her hat and went down in the street, walking across the plaza to Fifth Avenue. The wide street seemed deserted. People walked along—yes, but as though weighed down with summer inertia. Noel walked block eastward and stopped in front of Denise's shop. She had a sudden desire to talk with Elsie Grant.

Weakness And Strength

SHORTLY afterwards they were sitting together in a small tearoom. Elsie was so imbued with her own thoughts she forgot to ask Noel about herself. After they'd ordered, she confided to Noel:

"I'm going to be married next month. He's not making much money—but he's so brilliant."

"Who is he?" Noel wanted to know.

"Tommy Sheldon," Elsie explained with a glow in her eyes, which Noel envied.

"Tommy? How wonderful!" Noel was seeing Tommy in someone quite different from Elsie, the stoic. Tommy with his weaknesses—Elsie with her strength.

"I think it's grand," she told Elsie.

After she left her, Noel was lonely. Elsie had Tommy; Anita had Douglas. Everybody in the world, except her, belonged to someone. She was so alone now.

Because Noel had promised Feigel's secretary, she called the Criterion offices in New York. Told them where she was staying—and thought how silly, as if anything would ever come out of that stupid screen test.

After a dull evening alone in the suite—eating her salad for dinner, wondering what to do with her time. Noel awoke to a hot summer morning. She wished she were back in Gatona. At least it was cool there—and peaceful.

The morning papers carried no advertisement for "Susan is Waiting." That was strange! On impulse, Noel took a cab down to the Dryden Theater. The house had a deserted look, as if hopelessly waiting for a new tenant. The sign for "Susan is Waiting" was still there, a bleak dusty outline in the unlighted bulbs. Old Joe would be at the stage door. A strange man loitering in the alley looked at her suspiciously as she approached.

"Are any of the 'Susan is Waiting' company inside?" Noel asked politely.

"It closed last week," came the indifferent reply.

Suddenly Noel knew she had to see Douglas Swanstrom. He would be able to help her. She would tell him about seeing Anita in Hollywood—about the screen test she'd taken at Criterion Studios.

On the way over Noel met Gerald Foster.

"Hello, Noel!" Gerald was obviously delighted at the meeting.

"What about the play?" Noel had to know quickly.

"Just one of those things," Gerald had the actor's pretense of philosophical acceptance. "One week the business was swell. Suddenly it just petered out—and there we were back on the pavements again. I suppose we should be grateful for having it last as long as it did."

At the Swanstrom offices, Douglas's secretary greeted Noel cordially, not hiding her surprise at the unexpected visit.

"Is Mr. Swanstrom in?" Noel asked casually. Douglas spent most of his days and nights in the office, she knew.

"He left for Hollywood on this morning's plane," was the dismaying news.

PLAYER PRICES, SALARIES CLIMBED IN RUPPERT ERA

(By The AP Feature Service)

The late Col. Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, was perhaps the first millionaire to turn to baseball as a hobby. And the thrills and prestige he derived from the game...

Ruppert liked to sign Babe Ruth personally. Photographers always were around when the Babe ended his holdout sieges and accepted a contract worth a small fortune.

Yawkey of Boston's Red Sox and Walter Briggs of Detroit's Tigers are other wealthy sportsmen who followed Ruppert into baseball.

The high sale prices, big salaries and holdouts of recent years also can be traced to the Yankee brewmaster. Back in 1919 Ruppert paid the Boston Red Sox the then fabulous sum of $125,000 for Babe Ruth.

Players' salaries began to rise all over the major leagues

The Colonel enjoyed the Florida training camps where he could with rookie prospects develop. Ruppert signs Joe DiMaggio, his latest great star, as Business Manager Ed Barrow looks on.

as word of Babe Ruth's huge pay spread. Athletes gathered new ideas of their own worth as Babe's check rose and rose until it reached $80,000 in 1930-31.

Following Babe's lead dozens of the players adopted holdout tactics in the spring. There had been previous holdouts, stubborn holdouts, but the strategy of the holdout as a publicity stunt as well as a lever to force larger salaries came from Ruth.

Both players and club owners discovered the publicity value of holdout maneuvers as Ruth and Ruppert claimed thousands of sport page columns through their annual disagreements. And the happy picture of the Babe and the Colonel finally reaching an amicable understanding, generally signing a contract under the Florida palms, is familiar to every sport addict.

While intensely interested in and personally acquainted with most of Yankee players, Ruppert left the operation of the club strictly to his managers, Miller Huggins and later Joe McCarthy, and the business director, Ed Barrow, and backed them unreservedly in their every act.

PIRATES AGAIN SCORE VICTORY

Shelton Leads ECTC In Win Over Norfolk Naval Base

The East Carolina Teachers College Pirate Basketball club romped through the United States Naval base team at the Naval base gym in Norfolk Saturday night to win by a margin of 44-35 with the second stringers playing a lot of the second half.

The Pirates led most of the way and at half time were out in front by 23-14 margin.

Bill Shelton resumed his scoring possibilities by chalking up six field goals and five fouls for a total of 17 points. Don Brock contributed 12 points to the E.C.T.C. score. Smith contributed 4. Ridenhour 6, and Hinton 1.

Harvey, Naval Base center led the scoring for the Naval base with 8 points while Woodward took second scoring honors with 7 points. E. C. T. C. (44)

Canvass of the membership, particularly in the House of Representatives, shows much stronger anti-sales tax sentiment than had been expected so early in the session.

Whether the presence for several days of the energetic Paul Leonard, arch foe of all taxes felt by merchants to be discriminatory, had anything to do with it is problematical. Certainly he did the sales tax folks no good.

The new legislators remaining in Raleigh over the week end are mostly those from distant points, and live close to other state lines. Some of them were laying plans to get all the support possible for the "use tax" item in the revenue act, which requires payment of the sales tax in this state of merchandise bought in other states. Two motives prompted this action. First, these men think application of the tax will help borderline merchants; and second, they believe enforcement of its provisions (though Commissioner Maxwell says it is not meant to be enforced) will make the whole idea of the sales tax so repulsive as to bring about its repeal.

Unescapable conclusion from expressed sentiment the last of the week is that the general membership of the House has no disposition to accept in its entirety the finance committee's endorsement of the sales tax as a permanent policy of the state.

Lines were more clearly drawn on the two questions of highway diversion and election reform. Indications are that the governor's idea on election reform might prevail, but opposition to diversion is stronger than it was when the General Assembly convened. Even then it was recognized as dangerous to the administration program. No reversal of position on absentee ballot repeal has been noted. From the first, sentiment for outright repeal has been strong but in a minority.

Not directly connected with the Legislature but of statewide interest and possible influence on subsequent legislation was the warm meeting of the rural electrification administration, at which representatives of Federal REA advised that they were preparing a "model" bill to be sent to North Carolina for enactment into law.

TWIN BILL ON HERE TONIGHT

Greenville High And Junior Squads Meet New Bern Fives

By "SMUT" BURKS There's a doubleheader basketball program on tap for the enjoyment of Greenville fans tonight with the undefeated five of G.H.S. and the visiting quint of New Bern high school providing the excitement. The game will be played in the local high school gym and there will be a preliminary affair between the junior visitors of the two schools. The first game starts at 7 o'clock sharp.

In last Saturday's Reflector it was stated that Rocky Mount high was playing the Phantoms tonight, but this was an error and New Bern will provide the opposition for the Greens.

Coach Farley's proteges are fresh from a 20-10 victory over the Pam Pack of Washington high school and will be out to make it five in a row over high school competition.

New Bern's court record is unknown around Greenville but the Bears will probably give the Phantoms plenty of trouble. The Bears will be out to avenge a humiliating 19-0 defeat at the hands of the Green Phantom football aggregation last fall.

The G.H.S. cagers are in top shape for tonight's tilt, having held a strenuous practice last Saturday morning following the game with Washington. Coach Farley will probably start John Lautares and Ford McGowan at the guard posts. Jordan, dependable first man, will start at center and Sahas and Marvin Stocks at the forward positions.

Under and by virtue of the authority contained in that certain deed of trust made by Pearl Sugg and husband, Sam Sugg, on the 21st day of February, 1938, and of record in Pitt County Registry in Book E-22, page 486, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness therein secured, the undersigned will offer for sale, and sell to the highest bidder, for cash before the court house door in Greenville, N. C.

Saturday, February 18th, 1939 between the hours of 12:00 o'clock, NOON, and 1:00 o'clock, P. M., those certain tracts of land lying in Pitt County, described as follows:

ECTC TO MEET ACC'S BOXERS

Local Team at Work In Hopes of Avenging Defeat

The East Carolina Teachers college boxing team has gone to work with vengeance to get in condition to retaliate for their loss of three and one-half to two and one-half to two and one-half decision to Atlantic Christian College last Friday night and boys are looking forward to being able to win a decisive victory over the ACC group here Friday night when the two teams meet for their second engagement of the year.

Fighting ECTC fly weight fighter, will probably prove to be the night's feature attraction as he ties up with Herbert White, ACC feature boxer.

David Breese is in an avenging mood and wants to win a decision over Holiday to retaliate for the tie decision that he got in the previous meet.

Pete Perkins, 135 pound veteran from last year is hopeful of being in condition for Friday night's fray. Perkins is shifty, fast, and a clever fighter and his presence will add much to the strength of the Pirates squad.

committee other than Roads. Roads is the logical group to get such a resolution, however, and it isn't likely that Speaker Libby Ward will be pliant enough to shunt the measure somewhere else.

Assuming that efforts to prevent introduction and, next, to get it before a pro-administration committee which will slit its throat; then the next big push will be to keep the resolution dormant in the Roads committee at least until after the Revenue bill with confidence made practically certain by statement of Budgeteer certain part has been adopted by the House.

Predictions are being made on every side that the diversion fight is going to be "nasty" before it comes to an end, and all outward

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A few utility and specialty stocks posted modest advances in today's market, but steels, motors and rails generally were unable to overcome profit-taking inspired by Saturday's run-up.

Utilities were among the liveliest before the convening of the Supreme court at noon when, it was hoped, a decision of the constitutionality of TVA would be handed. The court, however, rendered only one ruling and adjourned for two weeks without passing on the power authority case. Utility issues then slipped.

Progress Of 1939 Session Reported

About As Much Has Been Accomplished So Far as Had Been Marked Up Same Time 1937

Raleigh, Jan. 16.—The current session of North Carolina's General Assembly has accomplished as much and seems to be about as far along its normal path as the 1937 Assembly at the corresponding period of its session, in the opinion of most legislative leaders and observers.

Typical of this view is the view of Victor S. Bryant, Durham, who was Finance chairman in 1937 and who has taken an active part in outlining and explaining this session's fiscal policies.

"I don't think we're much, if any, behind our 1937 pace," he said.

Mr. Bryant said this session should be concluded in reasonably short order, provided there is no drastic departure from the Revenue and Appropriations bills as outlined in the Budget recommendations.

When his attention was called to the fact that there is quite likely to be a very intensive fight on the proposal to divert $7,000,000 from the Highway fund during the next biennium, Mr. Bryant said that if this effort should prove successful. "There's no telling when we'll get away."

Dixon of Fountain; James Foreman and Mary Bland Gorham of Falkland.

In an explanation of the Revenue proposals recently, the Durham man stressed the $7,000,000 as "imperative" in order to keep the budget in balance.

From many other legislators came views similar to Mr. Bryant's on the progress already made—many feeling that even more rapid progress has been made by the Finance committee, in particular, than was the case two years ago—though this has been primarily accomplished by passing over all controversial sections for consideration later.
