COMPROMISE IN CIVIL ACTIONS IS CHALLENGED

Board Again to Consider Cases Against Former Sheriff

DOUBT LEGALITY OF RESOLUTION

Pointed Out only Two of Five - Man Board Voted for Compromise Settlement

A petition has been filed challenging the legality of the action of the Board of County Commissioners in proposing a compromise settlement in the civil actions brought against former Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst and the board will further consider the matter at a later meeting it was learned today.

The move challenging the legality of the board's action was started by Harding and Lee and Jesse Jones, counsel employed to represent the county in these special suits.

A compromise judgment has been filed proposing to settle the seven suits seeking to recover approximately $170,000 from the former officer and his sureties.

It was pointed out by one of the petitioners challenging the board's action that only two members of the five-man board voted for the resolution proposing to settle the seven suits for $1,070.91. Only four members of the board were present, D. T. House of Bethel, only member of the board to be re-elected, was not present at the meeting. Commissioners W. O. Jolly and G. H. Pittman voted for the resolution. Commissioner G. S. Porter did not vote and Chairman J. Noah Williams asked that he be recalled as voting against the proposal.

Two Defendants in City Court Today

Jack Colville, Pitt county white man, was convicted in Municipal Recorder's court this morning on three charges, driving drunk, crashing a red light and damaging personal property.

He was fined $50, taxed with the costs of court and lost his driving license for a year on the driving drunk charge, ordered to pay the costs for crashing a red light, and also pay the court costs and $3 for property damage caused by J. E. Pierce's filling station on the Falkland highway when the defendant threw pop bottles through the window.

The only other case tried at this morning's session was that of a charge of reckless driving against Mrs. W. R. Smook. The defendant was convicted of failing to keep on the proper lookout and ordered to pay the costs of court and $15 property damage to the automobile of Clyde Mewby. Mrs. Smook appealed and bond was set at $50.

Gift to Czechs

London, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The British and French Governments today signed an agreement presenting about 8,000,000 pounds ($37,360,000) to Czechoslovakia as an outright gift and lending her another 8,000,000 pounds to use in caring for refugees.

The agreement was signed in the Foreign office by Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London and Dr. Pospisil, Czechoslovak's financial expert.

Mr. Leonard has been an active Kiwanian for a number of years. He was a charter member of the Wilson club, organized in 1920.

HOEY INVITED TO MAKE TALK

Will Explain Position On Highway Fund Diversion

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The legislature invited Governor Hoey today to address a joint session next Tuesday night when the chief executive will make a talk over a state-wide radio hook-up explaining his position on highway fund diversion.

The diversion fight is the main topic of legislative conversation. The budget recommendation is that up to $7,000,000 may be diverted from highway funds during the next 30 months if necessary to meet the general fund expenditures, by application of the sales tax to gasoline. The governor has pointed out that the law now permits such a transfer, but that note has been made.

Senators received from Joyner of Iredell a bill to enact an "unfair sales law." The measure would condemn sales of items below cost to attract patronage. It would make the advertising, offering for sale or selling by any retailer or wholesaler of articles at less than cost with intent to unfairly divert trade injure competition or deceive consumers prima facie evidence of violation of the law and persons convicted would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

The House enacted into law a bill re-writing the statute on a benefit fund for law enforcement officers, which extends to justice of the peace courts the provision that one dollar be added to court costs in criminal actions with the proceeds going into a state fund for the benefit of officers killed or injured in line of duty and to support a Bureau of Investigation and Identification.

Senator Bain of Wayne offered a bill to prohibit sale or discharge of fireworks in the state between mid-October and mid-March.

Wants Chance to Examine Governor About Diversion

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Jan. 26.—"I would like to hear the governor amplify his position on diversion of highway funds," said a Senator yesterday afternoon who asks that his name not be used, commenting on the morning story that the Governor would appear before a joint session if invited, and explain his position. "But if he wants to get the matter clear, why doesn't he come before a legislative committee, so we can ask him questions? In formal session we can do nothing but sit back and listen. Almost any man can make a good showing for his cause, if he is protected from interruption or questioning."

Capture Village Six Miles from Fallen Capital

DRIVING TOWARD FRENCH BORDER

Thousands of Spaniards Milling in Northern Catalonia Hungry and Homeless

Barcelona, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The conquering Spanish Insurgents, flushed with their success in capturing Barcelona, pushed up the coast today and seized the village of Badalona in the offensive designed to wipe out Government forces from Catalonia.

Badalona, approximately six miles by road northeast of the fallen provisional capital, lies on a main highway which follows the coast to the northeast more than 30 miles and then cuts inland due north and to the frontier with France.

There were hundreds of demonstrations, led by truck loads of women who were celebrating the end of hunger, privation and the bombings of war.

The spearhead of General Franco troops had pressed beyond the city in a "catalonian mop-up" drive toward the French frontier, 70 miles north in a straight line.

A tour of Barcelona's port sector showed an extensive area had been ravaged by air bombings. Vessels and warehouses were included in the wreckage.

A special unit of 18,000 men rapidly swung into action to impose order and discipline on the city and effect restoration of normal municipal functions.

Brilliant parades with the red and gold insurgent banners flying swept through main fares and thoroughfares in celebration of the triumphant army.

Perpignan, France, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A cold, drizzling rain added another touch of misery today to tens of thousands of Spaniards milling about in Northern Catalonia, homeless and hungry after having been evacuated from the Barcelona area.

When an Associated Press correspondent left late yesterday streams of travel-worn bewildered refugees still were pouring northward in one of the most tragic phases of the Civil war.

The Government of Spain was slowly re-organizing after the stunning blow it received when General Franco captured Barcelona.

Still Destroyed In Belvoir Township

Pitt county ABC officers and members of the sheriff's office yesterday destroyed a still found in the all-pine woods in Belvoir township. The plant was not in operation when it was found and officers had been watching it several days. It hopes the operators would show up.

When no one appeared at the scene to "make a run" the officers went ahead and destroyed the entire plant.

The still was a 50-gallon capacity steam plant. Two hundred gallons of beer found at the place was destroyed.

FOREIGN REACTION AWAITED BY FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The French Government looked today for some peaceful signs for the Fascist powers to justify going ahead with its proposals for an international conference to banish the fear of war from Europe.

Both Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet announced in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that the Government was ready to call an economic and disarmament conference if it found support in other nations.

At the foreign office, however, it was said no official call for such a conference was envisaged tonight the reaction of yesterday's speeches was studied and inquiries made through diplomatic channels.

An indication of Nazi and Fascist intentions was expected from Chancellor Hitler's speech before the Reichstag Monday and Premier Mussolini's speech Wednesday.

The French Government main tained a close contact with Great Britain on the Spanish situation and stuck to its firm policy against Italian encroachment on French interests, which won a vote of confidence in the Chamber last night.

CHEST PLEDGE FUNDS NEEDED

Daily Demands Being Made Emergency Relief Sum

Directors of the Greenville Community Chest today called attention to the fact that daily demands are being made on the funds allotted for use in emergency relief work and asked that contributors give the fullest possible co-operation in the matter of payments on pledges.

It was pointed out that some deferred payments on pledges run throughout the year, making the final receipts from such pledges due next October. But relief work has to be done now while the need is here. This makes it necessary that payments on pledges be made promptly.

In many cases anywhere from two to five notices of payments due have to be sent before collections are made. Each of these reminders necessitates four cents postage, since it has been found to be imperative that stamped envelopes be enclosed if reply is expected. The more money spent for postage the less there will be for relief. Also, this additional work makes unnecessary demands upon those who are trying to direct this community work.

Total Of $50,000,000 Requested Immediately To Build New Airplanes

Appropriation Asked In Letter From The President

WOULD PROVIDE 565 NEW PLANES

Republicans Want To Hear Views Of Hull on Military Developments in Guam

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for an immediate appropriation of $50,000,000 to be spent largely for new airplanes in the administration's national defense program.

He submitted the request in a letter to Speaker Bankhead which asked that the money be made available for expenditure during the remainder of the current fiscal year and through the year starting July 1.

Mr. Roosevelt said the money would provide in part for the defense program he recommended to Congress January 12. At that time he suggested a $300,000,000 army airplane procurement program and said approximately $50,000,000 should be made available immediately. Today's request for the air corps was $46,442,829. The administration said that would obtain 565 new combat airplanes.

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt requested $1,499,971 for radio equipment for the signal corps and $2,067,100 for armaments for the 65 airplanes.

Meanwhile, a Republican attempt to bring Secretary Hull before a Congressional committee to discuss foreign policy in view of proposed military development of Guam encountered strong opposition.

Also, the Senate Labor Relations board advised the Ford Motor company that it would direct the company to stop discouraging membership of its workers in CIO's United Auto Workers union at its Dearborn plant and to reinstate 29 workers, unless it were proved within 30 days that the company was not at fault.

The board made public a proposed order against the company which will become effective thirty days from today, provided the company does not convince the board that charges made against it are untrue. Under the proposed order the 29 workers would be reinstated with back pay.

The board said its order also would direct the company to refrain from recognizing as a collective bargaining agency the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., and to cease organizing or supporting "vigilants or similar groups."

Jury Deliberates Leslie Cox's Fate

Goldboro, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A Superior court jury returned at 12:24 p. m. today to deliberate upon the Ford case of Leslie Cox, 26-year-old Wayne county Negro, charged with fatally shooting State Highway Patrolman Ike Moore the night of June 17, 1937.

Judge Walter Bone's charge required an hour.

The defense contended the State failed to prove the defendant guilty of the slaying.

Proposed Cuts In Revenue Threaten Balanced Budget

UNIFORM FUND IS COMPLETED

Extra Dollar Starts Drive to Send Band to World's Fair

The complete fund of $1,500 to cover cost of sixty brand new uniforms for the Greenville High School Band has been raised and there is already one dollar in the fund to send the band to the New York World's Fair in June to represent Greenville in the big parade on North Carolina Day.

The campaign to raise funds for the uniforms was launched at a luncheon meeting of a group of local business men last Friday and shortly after noon today, just one week from the beginning of the campaign, the fund for the uniforms had been oversubscribed. There are still some local business firms, organizations and individuals who were contemplating gifts to the uniform fund but now the uniform fund has been completed, all additional donations will go into the World's Fair fund.

When tabulation of the donations this afternoon revealed that the fund had been oversubscribed, J. H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools, said:

"I am gratified at the fine spirit of helpfulness for the school organizations displayed by our citizens in the speedy and generous manner in which they responded to this appeal. The students of the school are delighted and I am sure the realization on their part of what the citizens have done for them will cause them to strive harder than ever to accomplish great things in their school work and achieve the goals expected of them."

In announcing completion of the drive for the funds with which to pay for the uniforms, committee members urged that all those who did not get the opportunity to give.

ECONOMY BLOC WINS BY VOTE OF 47 TO 46

Administration Loses Senate Effort to Up WPA Fund

Appointment Of Rep. Amile to Interstate Commerce Commission is Opposed

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Administration forces lost their fight in the Senate this afternoon to add $150,000,000 to the $725,000,000 relief appropriation bill. The vote was 47 to 46.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, predicted today the Senate would grant President Roosevelt's request for $875,000,000 for relief, by from three to six votes. Barkley's prediction was made as the Senate prepared to vote on an amendment to increase a proposed $725,000,000 relief appropriation to the $875,000,000 figure.

The smaller amount was voted by the house and was approved by the Senate Appropriations committee.

One prominent Republican, who asked that his name not be used, also said that "it looks as if the administration will be victorious."

Senator Adams (D-Colo.), floor manager for the $725,000,000 allocation refused to concede defeat, however.

"We are still hopeful," Adams told reporters. "We may retain the $725,000,000 appropriation by a margin of three votes."

Another matter of importance before the lawmakers was the appointment of former Representative Amile of Wisconsin to the Interstate Commerce Commission. A Senate Commerce sub-committee ordered a public hearing on the Progrester's nomination after the Wisconsin legislature protested the appointment.

Chairman Wheeler (D-Mont) of the Interstate Commerce committee appointed a subcommittee of three Democrats and two Republican Senators to conduct the hearing.

Lenoir Defendant Tells Of Slaying

Kinston, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Leon Cody testified today he shot Noah Rouse, aged recluse, for whose death four men are on trial in Superior court here.

Cody told the jury he shot the aged merchant in the back after Lacy Cade, another defendant, had struck Rouse on the head with an axe and knocked him down.

Cody said he shot Rouse after Lacy and Parrot Cade, Lacy's brother and also a defendant, had ordered him to do it under threats against his life.

The body then was taken to a wood nearby where it was left, apparently still alive, Cody said.

Details of Cody's story resembled in some respects those given yesterday by Dubell Langston, the fourth defendant.

Although a psychiatrist testified yesterday Cody had the mentality of a small boy, the court decided to permit him to testify.

Langston testified yesterday that he saw Lacy Cade strike Rouse down with an axe after the four men had met at Rouse's store-dwelling.

After the axe blow, Langston said, he fled from the store and then he heard a shot inside. The state contends the recluse was shot in the back after his skull was crushed with an axe and he was robbed of $300.

The Western States have shown a 5990 per cent increase in the number of milk cows since the 1870's, while the North Atlantic States have shown only a five per cent increase.

Berlin (AP)—Finger-print cards are the latest addition to the multitude of personal papers which the average German has to carry about with him, to show that he is not posing as somebody else.

Many of the songs of Foster still find their way in the repertoire of the great artists. On the radio program "The Circle" on Sunday night, Jan. 15, Lawrence Tibbett chose for one of his selections, "I Dream of Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair." Other Foster songs that the chorus will sing as part of the opera are: "Way Down Upon the Swanee River," "My Old Kentucky Home," and many others. You are invited to come and bring your friends.

"Sacrifice" Topic of Father King's Sermon

Last evening at St. Peter's church Father King spoke in the "Sacrifice of the New Law."

"Sacrifice," said the Dominican missionary, "is the basis of all religion. You may have a beautiful edifice, a striking structure, but if within the building there is not an altar that is symbolic of sacrifice, then it is but a meeting or gathering place and not truly a temple dedicated to Almighty God. There has never been a primitive race discovered that did not have some form of oblation to a supreme being. Go command Adam and his sons to offer the first fruits of all that they possessed. The chosen people of all their offerings, felt that the paschal lamb was the most important. To them God sent the propitiety who stated that this was but a sign and symbol of the true lamb of God who would lay down His life and shed His blood for the transgressions of all mankind. But the Jews would not give ear, even when Malachi exclaimed: 'From the rising of the sun even to the going down, My name is great among the Gentiles and in every place there is sacrifice and there is offered to My name a clean oblation.'

"Then came the Savior. When He began His public ministry, His very first miracle was to change water into sparkling wine at the wedding feast in Cana, and on at least two occasions He increased corporal bread to feed four thousand and again five thousand men, not including the women and children present. It was not alone to relieve the embarrassment of the host at the wedding feast or to nourish the bodies of those who had been with Him for a number of days that the Master wrought these wonders, but to indicate that He who could change water into wine could by His omnipotent power change wine into His precious Blood; and that He who increased corporal bread could multiply spiritual Bread for the nourishment of the souls of men, women and children.

"Therefore it was that the Redeemer said as we read in the Gospels, labor not for the bread which perishes but for that which endures unto life everlasting. I am the living Bread which came down from Heaven. For the Bread which I will give is My Flesh for the life of the world. He who eateth my Flesh and drinketh my Blood abideth in Me and I in him. This promise to give Himself for the spiritual strength of mankind the Savior kept on the night before He died. Into His sacred hands He took bread, and having given thanks to His heavenly Father he blessed and gave to His Apostles saying 'take ye and eat, for this is My Body.' In like manner, grasping the cup or chalice of wine, He gave to them to sip with this expression, 'take ye and drink ye all of this, for this is My Blood of the New Testament which shall be shed for you and for many unto the remission of sin.' He then added the memorable words, addressed to His followers, the Apostles, to do this is a commemoration of Me.' It is therefore our best part of these words our Savior, unadvised and authorized His Apostles and those who would come after them, unto the end of time for He had said, 'I shall be with you all days, even until the consummation of the world' to take bread and wine and consecrate or change them into His sacred Body and precious Blood. This takes place in the sacrifice of the New Law, the mass or offering by the Son of God through the hands of His priests to His Father above of His own Body and Blood in atonement for the sins of the world. Every moment of the day and the night in some place on this globe this sacrifice instituted by the Savior is being offered, fulfilling the prophecy of Malachi, 'from the rising of the sun to the going down, My name is great among the Gentiles and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered in My name a clean oblation.'

Mission exercises continue to-night and tomorrow evening at 7:30.

Items From THE DAILY REFLECTOR Friday, January 27, 1899

A Fight Over A Tobacco Bill
H. B. 281 entitled "An Act to Protect Buyers and Sellers of Leaf Tobacco" was re-committed to the Judiciary committee.

The bill is an unusual one in that it makes the violation of a certain verbal contract a criminal action, punishable by fine or imprisonment. It provides that drummers for tobacco warehouses who offer tobacco to growers a certain price for their tobacco before reaching the warehouse, for instance, and then fail or refuse to pay the amount stated after the load has been dumped on the warehouse floor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $50 or imprisoned for thirty days.

Mr. Davis of Franklin, explained the object of this bill is to cover the cases of unreliable drummers or agents of certain warehouses of none too good repute who would offer large prices and after the weed had been delivered would disappear and the warehouseman proper would disclaim all liability.

SEED LAW OUT OF COMMITTEE

Reflector Bureau

Coletrane Says Bill Will Cripple Pure Seed Work

Raleigh, Jan. 26—Reported favorably for the second time, the house committee's substitute pure seed license amendment will get approval of the house, and though not satisfactory to the senate will probably be accepted in the interest of speed and harmony—the two things of which the current session has most frequently boasted.

The amendment does not affect any of the provisions of the pure seed law, which was written in 1937, except the rate of license tax to be paid by dealers. That is made more favorable to cut off state seed producers and to merchants within the state, but leading members of the agricultural committees doubt that it is at all helpful to the farmers.

Under the amended law every case or package or packet, vegetable or flower seeds, containing 48 packages or less, retailing for five or ten cents, must bear a revenue stamp of the value of one dollar, said stamp to be bought from the department of agriculture and to be good for the calendar year in which issued. Dealers in bulk vegetable or field seeds, whose business is not more than $100 a year will also pay a license of one dollar. All other retailers and wholesalers will pay the same as last year—$10 and $25, respectively. It is believed that the packers of the package seed will absorb the $1.00 stamp tax.

It has been shown that most of the opposition to the pure seed law has been inspired by large seed packers outside of the state. If they are required to absorb the dollar item their feeling for the law will not be any more kindly than it is.

Assistant Commissioner Coltrane of the department of agriculture estimates that the reduction in license tax for small dealers will reduce the seed laboratory's revenue by at least $10,000. Further, it will increase the number of dealers requiring inspection and so will operate from both directions to lower efficiency of the pure seed work.

Chairman W. W. Eagles of the agriculture committee, and Representatives Everett, Blalock and Mull of the committee, advised to the fact that the committee and the whole legislature has spent a great deal of time on this one question. They insisted, however, that the importance of the matter justifies all the thought that has been given it. The original bill, several times modified in committee, is No. 5 and was introduced during the first legislative day of the session. Committees have worked on it ever since.

Reports coming from the conference of the North Carolina Crop Improvement Association in Rocky Mount Tuesday and Wednesday had some influence in hastening action on the amended seed law. That association is the certifying agency for pure seed, after the state seed laboratory in the department of agriculture has tested for purity and germination. Taking no formal action on the issue, the farmers and dealers attending the Rocky Mount meet let it be known that they desired continuance, and if possible enlargement of the laboratory's work. This strengthened the committee members in their determination not to completely wreck the set-up, not to lose all that has been gained during the past few years.

Emphasis was also placed at the latest committee hearing upon the fact that one farmer selling seed which he has himself grown to another farmer for planting, must attach a tag showing purity and germination tests. He is not required to pay any license fee for the tag; but the merchant who offers seed bought by him and paid for either in cash or in barter, must attach the tag and pay the license fee.

Raleigh, Jan. 26—Abolition of the tax on bulk lime for agricultural purposes, or a change in the method of levying and collecting it, was suggested by Assistant Commissioner Coltrane of the Department of Agriculture yesterday.

The 1937 legislature for the first time taxed lime, levying five cents a ton. Experience has proven this to be the hardest thing to police that the department has to handle, said Mr. Coltrane. This is due to the fact that so much lime comes into the state in trucks, either bought in another state by the farmer who hauls it or bought and sold by the trucker. In the first instance no tax is due, and in the second it is virtually impossible to collect. Lime shipped into the state by the federal government for soil erosion projects also complicates the situation. The five cents a ton tax yields hardly enough to pay for its collection, and the department suggests either not requiring its collection or making the tax easier.

LOCAL BOXERS TO SEE ACTION

ECTC Team To Engage Duke Freshmen Next Week

The Athletic Department of East Carolina Teachers College will give sports fans of North Carolina a treat next Thursday night, February 2, when they meet the Duke freshmen in boxing here.

The boys are rounding into good shape and Coach Ad Warren of Duke, advises that he will have men in every weight division which will mean that there will be a card of eight fights.

The feature bout will probably be between Joe Williams, ECTC captain, and Orval Lyttton, former Charlotte high school star.

It is hoped that David Breese will be back in condition for this meet after suffering from an infected jaw.

The Duke team is coached by Addison Warren, highly known for former professional boxing and one of the most popular athletes in North Carolina. Warren has developed a number of outstanding stars and every indication is that this year's freshmen team will be no exception. Fans are sure to get an abundance of action.

Woodrow Long, Leggett heavyweight, will be introduced to local boxing fans on this occasion when he meets Eddie Senter, Duke's 210 pound battling giant.

TO TALK MUCH ON DIVERSION

Predicted, However, Assembly Will Divert Just Same

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—The current legislature is almost exactly the same position that we were in 1935, remarked a member of the long-drawn senate who was here attending the municipal league meeting this week. "My prediction is that they will sashay at diversion, and sheer off; then sashay at reducing appropriations and sheer off; then come back and divert—about the middle of May."

This is in line with the prediction of the veteran observer, Tom Bost, that the legislature will be here until June. It also agrees with sentiment becoming more and more vocative about the capitol that finance and appropriation committees are not accomplishing as much as bare news stories of their meeting would indicate.

Two or three prospective sources of additional revenue have already been abandoned actually if not theoretically. It is virtually certain that there will be no upping of tuition charges for state students; the railroads are almost sure to get some reduction in the tax proposed to be collected from them; and sales tax estimates are based upon an anticipated fifty million dollar increase in retail sales, an estimate believed by many legislators to be too high. Counties are resisting heavier ABC store levies on the one hand, and demanding greater share of the intangible tax receipts on the other.

Some strong anti-diversionists admit that they can see no other source for money to balance the budget than the highway fund, unless appropriations are materially cut. This position gives color to the suggestion made exclusively in this correspondence, that there is an undercurrent of sentiment for compromise, whereby reasonable diversion will be permitted in return for withdrawal of administration opposition for submission of an amendment prohibiting in the future.

Ask More Money For Adult Schools

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—Most controversial item is the request of the department of public instruction as presented to the appropriations committee yesterday afternoon.

With the pitiful sum of $25,000 allocated for this purpose last year, the department has obtained cooperation from WPA and from 27 counties. Representatives from each of these counties spoke most highly of the good accomplished. Such opposition to the request for additional money, or at least for restoration in the budget the same amount as spent last year, as developed was based upon the idea that most of the pupils in these schools had one chance at free education when children and freed it.

The average age of pupils was given at about 35, though many of them are more than 60. Indictment of administration of the compulsory attendance law in its earlier days was injected into the discussion, as was also the race question. Representative John Kerr, Jr. of Warren, emphasized the point that more than half the work is with and for Negroes. The most attractive showing was made by highly industrialized counties and by the sparsely populated counties of the east.

Seek Manager

The Tarboro baseball club is seeking a pilot for the ensuing baseball season.

Larry Merville, who played in right field with Portsmouth last season, was recently employed by the Tarboro club as manager. He was suspended for a period of one year in Durham, June 29, 1938, for assaulting an umpire.

Judge W. G. Braham, baseball executive governing leagues in the Coastal Plain division, has ruled that Merville will not be reinstated until June 29, 1939. Hence, Tarboro is seeking a new manager.

PHANTOMS TO MEET EDENTON

Tonight's Conference Game Will Start at Earlier Hour

By "SMUT" BURKS

The Phantom cagers of G. H. S. held a final drill yesterday and are in top shape for tonight's game with the Edenton high school basketballers. The varsity game has been moved up to 7:30 so as not to conflict with the game at the college tonight. This means that the preliminary game will have to begin at 6:30 promptly instead of 7 o'clock as was announced earlier. Tonight's main event will be an Eastern Conference test. The G-men will be defending their record of four wins against a lone defeat; and Edenton will be striving to improve their record of three Conference losses. With so much at stake this court exhibition should be a lively one, full of thrills and excitement. Although inexperienced, the Edenton players are scrappy cagers and will be putting out all they can to upset the favored locals.

The G-men's close defensive tactics have been very effective against their court opponents in previous games this year—they have held rival teams to less than 20 points per game with the exception of Roanoke Rapids. This is an unusual record and is greatly responsible for the Phantoms' showing this season. With this advantage the Phantoms should hand the Edenton team their fourth Conference setback.

Coach Farley will probably start John Lautares and Ford McGowan at guard positions, Tracy Jordan at forward, Larry Jordan at center, and George Sakae and Marvin Stocks at forward.

The preliminary contest at 6:30 should also be full of fun and enjoyment with the Junior team pitting their strength against the varsity scrubs.

Opposes Assembly Serving As Court

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—Several members of the legislature do not look kindly upon attempts to set up additional fact-finding agencies in state departments, and make the findings binding upon Superior court.

Representative Bost of Cabarrus started a young revolt in the meeting of the joint committee on unemployment compensation yesterday when he said that he was growing tired of taking the job of determining facts in civil actions away from a jury. He was joined in his protest by Representative Clegg of Moore and Senator Rodman of Beaufort. Result was the naming of a sub-committee to rewrite the unemployment compensation commission's amendment to the present act, hastily adopted in the special session of 1936.

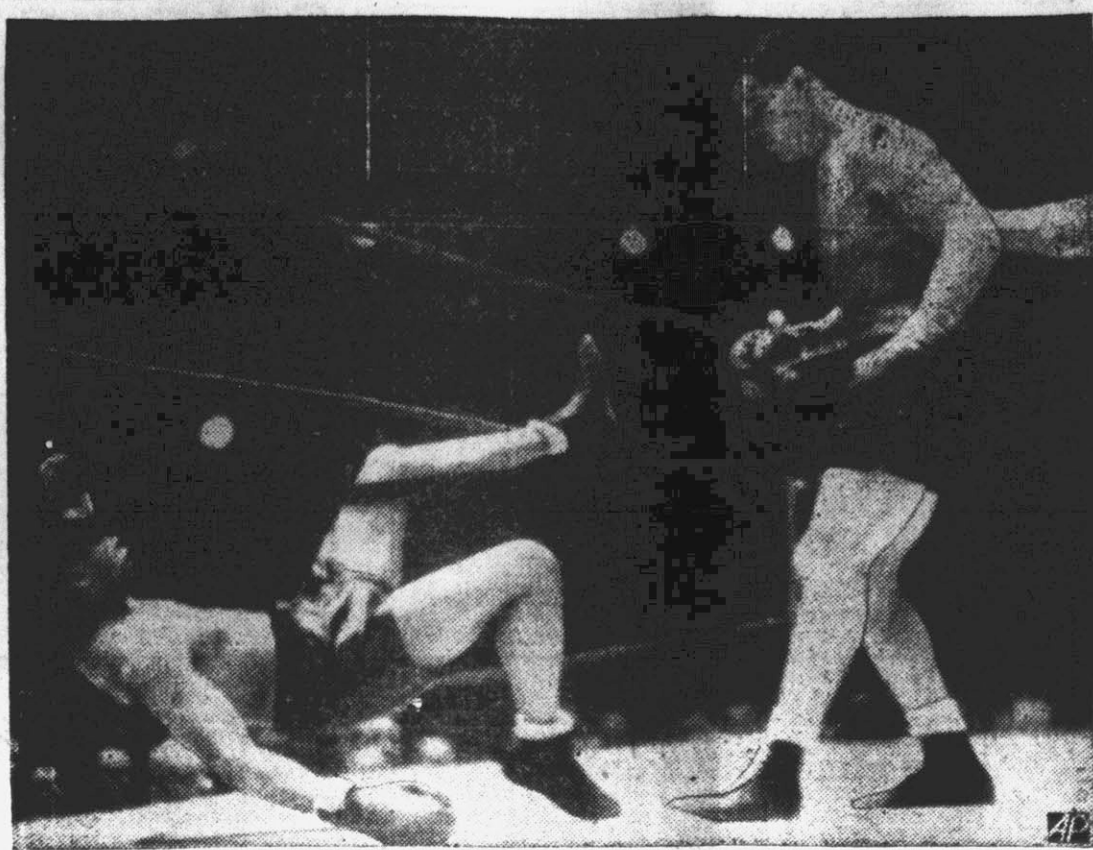

The commission amendment precipitating the argument provided that in hearings held by the commission to determine liability of the tax-paying employer, the findings of fact should be binding on the court, if appeal is taken from the hearing. The subcommittee composed of Senator Rodman, Representative Cherry and Bost are ready to report today a new section which will make all trials in Superior court de novo, leaving it up to a jury to decide facts after the judge has interpreted the law.

Other commission amendments to the act were unprotected, and the entire lot will be reported favorably and speeded through the legislature. Most of them have to do merely with the mechanics of record-keeping and with necessary changes to conform to federal statutes. Explaining the amendments Senator Rodman, who is a member of the advisory council for the commission, declared that the original act is most complicated piece of literature ever written, and that the proposed changes make it more workable and understandable.

JOE LOUIS EASILY RETAINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Virtually untouched himself, heavyweight Champion Joe Louis made quick work of challenger John Henry Lewis during their short bout at Madison Square Garden in New York. Pirates Open Two-Game Series In City Tonight

East Carolina Teachers College and West Carolina Teachers College, both long-time rivals, will tangle in the local gymnasium tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the first of a two-game series.

A preliminary affair will feature the Windsor All-Stars and the E.C.T.C. reserves in a game that promises to be a thriller. Tip-off for this game is 7 o'clock.

There will be a double preliminary feature for the Saturday night activities. Bath high school will contest the Stokes high school contingent. The County team is one of the fastest teams in the county and should triumph over the Bath entry. The Outlaws play Farmville high in the other game.

With the two-way preliminary scheduled for Saturday night, the regular contest between the major teams, the East and West, will not get under way until 8:30 o'clock.

TIME TO TURN BACK TO COMMON SENSE

The showdown on future spending policies for this country is scheduled for this afternoon when the Senate is to vote on the $150,000,000 cut in relief appropriations. The House has already voted for expenditures of $725,000,000 instead of the $875,000,000 requested by the President, and administration forces are using every means possible to have the appropriation changed to meet the original request of the President. While the $150,000,000 involved in this issue is but a "drop in the bucket" when it comes to government expenditures, hope that the Senate will stand by its guns and hold the appropriation down to the figure already passed by the House.

Cutting down on government extravagance and waste has got to start some time, and we feel that the sooner it starts the better for the country.

We realize it is a far cry from our present plan of operation to a balanced budget and our return toward the goal of a balanced budget must be gradual, but certainly it is high time we were setting our course in that direction.

No drunkard has ever been able to drink himself sober and no government or individual has ever been able to spend its way out of the "red." Even though it be gradual there must be a tapering off process for the spending spree the same as the drinking spree, if we are ever again to attain that goal of sober and sane government policies.

BAN MARKERS, TOO

The legislature should not only do away with the absentee ballot feature of our present election laws, but official markers at the polls should likewise be banned. Markers at the polls opens the way for a lot of crooked business in the elections and there is no doubt that it has been used to the advantage of certain candidates in both primaries and elections. By an act of a former session of the legislature, the absentee ballot in primaries in Pitt County was done away with, and if the present legislature does not do away with the official markers it is to be hoped that our members of the legislature will seek the adoption of a special act that will do away with such markers in Pitt County. Even if there are certain sections of the state that want the absentee ballot and official markers in order that they might manipulate elections, certainly we would like to see honest primaries

WHAT IT MEANS: Sharecroppers' Sit-Down Strike

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)
Washington — The highway encampment of cotton workers in Southeast Missouri turns out to be a new kind of sit-down strike obviously inspired by the country's car for another story of injustice to the underdog in the deep South.

For the first time in history a group of Southern farm workers has laid a case before the public via the nation's front pages without arousing violence.

That's important for the South and the nation, because it means modern methods of labor agitation (by their right or wrong) have finally invaded the deep South's rural sections and emphasized again the problem of cotton.

Briefly, here's the situation:

From the workers' point of view:

1. Pay in the South is lower than any place else in the nation, on the average. Farm sharecroppers average a net income of $312 a year, tenants, $209, and day laborers in the cotton fields $180. Add to that 200-odd dollars in annual expenses represented by home-grown provisions, and you have the total gross income of the lower run of the cotton ladder.
2. Mechanization of cotton farms is gaining ground gradually, but surely, especially on the big corporation plantations.
3. The government's cotton acreage reduction program is also reducing the number of tenants, requiring each year, leaving more of them to roam the countryside as day laborers.
4. Farm owners are tempted to do away with tenants and sharecroppers and turn to day laborers in order to keep their government benefit checks. The law now provides that checks must be shared with tenants or croppers.
5. The local AAA committee agrees to allow a farmer to switch to day labor. The local committee naturally are filled with owners.

From the landlord's point of view:

1. The total average income per plantation in the cotton belt is extremely low, no more than six per cent of the total investment, leaving plantation owners themselves an average of only $830 clear for their year's labor. And what a year's labor a plantation requires from an owner.
2. Nearly one-half of the landlords in the South have a long term debt ranging well over 40 per cent of their holdings.
3. Interest rates on short term loans run extremely high on a seasonal basis, 10 per cent on Government loans, 15 per cent on bank loans, and 16 per cent on merchant accounts.
4. Marginal owners are constantly and elections in our own county. Getting rid of the absentee ballot in our primaries was a step forward and now if the markers could be banned it would be another move toward more honest primaries and elections.

BEE-KEEPER N. Alexeev, shown in the reading room of a collective farm in the Chuvash republic along the Volga river, is a typical peasant profiting from Russia's educational program for the masses—says a Russian official.

Petronella: His young sister, and staunch supporter.
Tony Lance: Famous foreign correspondent.

Yesterday: Tony comes into the canteen Petrel is running. He offers to take her home.

Chapter Nine

The Nightmare And The Dream
THEY were driving through quiet, residential roads. The moonlight was so bright that she could look up suddenly into his face and meet his eyes. He was telling her, she realized, with a pounding heart that he liked her. "If only he could have missed his ship they would have seen a great deal of one another."

Suddenly Tony Lance's arm slipped round her shoulders. He bent his head. His lips brushed her forehead. Their escort was oblivious of them, starting out into the shadows cast by the trees.

"Yes, it's a great pity, Petrel. But 'I'm sorry, too,' she whispered. She brushed her forehead against the roughness of his cheek. 'Fate—fate—fate' throbbed a voice in her brain. She felt very cold. She was shuddering from the thrill of that light caress. She wanted Tony Lance to put his arms round her, and hold her tightly, to tell her that he loved her, suddenly and blindingly certain that she had loved one another, that she had been made for him. She wanted him to change his plans completely for her. She did not want him to sail for China tomorrow. But she could not speak. All she could do was to grip his hand tightly, clinging to it, and look at him with desperate, revealing eyes.

They had reached her gate. He jumped out after her. He took her arm, tightly, up the moonlight drive.

"We may never see each other again," she said lightly, hardily. She was praying that he would protest. The moment he spoke, she could have laughed at her fears, in exultation. For he did not pretend to misunderstand. He disregarded her casualness, as completely as he overlooked the unimportance of time. They had seen one another for less than half an hour. But they were in love. He said:

"Tomorrow you'll think I was just part of tonight—of its wild improbability. It's what was made for you to think you'd never meet me again. You'll be thankful when it is over, when life is peaceful and sunny and settled again. You'd better think of me as just—part of the nightmare."

She stood facing him on the doorstep. "I can't," she whispered.

"You mustn't say that. You will be going to remember you've met me, and you'll never forget me." He was telling her that he did not want to be remembered, with words. But his eyes commanded her never to forget.

"I'm afraid I'm going to remember, whatever you tell me."

"Funny, for the moment, I'm afraid of the same thing. I'd move heaven and earth to miss that ship."

"We Shall Meet Again"

If it is your job you must go," she told him. "It won't matter. We shall meet again."

"I feel that, too. As if we can't help ourselves. But that's a mad idea. Good night, Petronella. You'll be thinking of me, and I'll be thinking of you. That was all he had said, and she realized that it meant a great deal more than if he had kissed her lips. But the pull of their attraction for one another was too strong for resistance. In a moment she was in his arms, he was kissing her, and she was clinging to him, her arms round his strong neck, his hand on her shoulder, his lips on her forehead. In her whole body there was wild joy. For the first time it mattered, desperately that a man loved her. Tony Lance was her man. This was the love for which she had waited. She had seen him and had lived only that they might meet, and that she might go on through life with him. If he could, of course he would miss that ship tomorrow. She thought confidently. If it was impossible, there would be letters. They would meet again in London. Or she would go to his home, literally at the end of the earth, to China, if he called her. She had never dreamed that living in love meant such ecstasy.

The police car gave two polite raps. They broke apart. He took her again, for one long, gentle kiss, then released her. "Good night," she thought. "I shall always remember this moonlight garden in Burma, the scent of the flowers, the set of his shoulders, standing there, his eyes."

"You must go now."

"Yes, Petrel. Good night, my dear. The nightmare and the dream are over. What did it mean? But she was so happy to care.

Bending his dark head he kissed her hands. She watched him walk out to the police car. At the gate, he turned. He stood looking back at her for a moment before he entered it, and slammed the door. He leaned out slightly. His face, and the hand he waved, were white in the bright moonlight.

Petronella tried to call "Good night, Tony!" but there was too much emotion trembling in her for anything but silence.

She went slowly indoors. She telephoned Mallone's chummary: "When Mr. Mallone comes in, will you tell him to call Miss Mallone?" She asked the butler. She could not keep anything as important as this to herself. She must tell Peter.

She could not sleep, so that the telephone did not wake her at half-past six. She threw back her mosquito net and ran to it.

"Peter? Are you terribly tired, dear?"

"Pretty dead. What is it?"

"Peter, the most romantic, exciting thing happened to me last night. I've fallen in love. Who do you think with? Tony Lance, who bowled against you that last match at Sutters. Remember?"

"Yes, but my dear girl—how?"

"His voice was rough."

"Peter, I'm so happy!" Her words tumbled over one another as she explained. Peter answered her brusquely. "But you can't meet a person once and be sure you feel all those things about him," he objected. "And you say he said this morning for China—"

"Oh yes, you can. Peter," she laughed. "And I don't think he will sail. He's probably calling the Daily News now for permission to stay here a few extra days. But even if he doesn't, it can't make any difference."

Stunned

"WELL, it's certainly very exciting and romantic. If you're happy, so am I. I think he's probably a darn fine chap. Only don't count on it too much. I mean, make sure you feel the same way about him before you fall headlong."

"But Peter, I've never felt surer about anything in my life."

Even as Petronella replaced the receiver she saw a messenger ride up the drive on a bicycle, carrying an armful of vivid, exquisite flowers. She waited, trembling with happiness, for Ay Maung to bring them to her; Tony's first present!

But when she glanced at the card her heart turned suddenly afraid, and cold. The flowers were from Crumpling.

After that Petronella was no longer sure. Minutes passed in an agony of waiting. In a moment, she told herself, Tony would telephone. Everything would be all right. She would laugh at her doubts. Or another messenger would cycle up the drive, bearing a note, more flowers. But Tony Lance did nothing. But Tony Lance did nothing.

The paper came at seven. Opening it feverishly Petrel found a central column devoted to her father. "British Girl Runs Riot Canteen" had he done that for her? She believed so. It was dramatic. I really think, she thought, I should have been troubled to read it. She had done nothing to deserve it. She had faced no actual danger. It had been preferable to staying quietly at home, enduring suspense. Surely, surely that telephone must ring!

Her father came in at eight. He looked ill with tiredness. He was hungry, and in need of a bath and shave. But the paragraph had mollified his anger.

"Since they seem to think you a public heroine, it's no use saying that. I really think, Mrs. Grant promises to care and trouble to help you tonight if the trouble continues." He kissed her.

But Petronella was no longer thinking of her canteen. All she could do was watch the telephone drive, and sit near the telephone. Her mind was so restless that she would not hear another word from Tony, struggled for masters again, a most incredulous optimism. She did not treat you like that; as good as admit that they loved you yet hold love as if it were an insignificant thing of no importance. She must know, for certain, she determined. She telephoned Tony Lance's hotel.

After minutes which seemed years, the clerk told her that Mr. Lance was not in the hotel. He had gone out earlier, but he would be back by ten. She heard a faint, sad, sad hope. He was on his way to see her.

But when she sat opposite her father, the orange-colored papaya fruit between them or the table her coffee cup empty, she knew that she was mistaken.

She eleven in a state of hurt pride and misery and anger. How dared he? He had taken her happiness. He had escaped with complete freedom. (Or would the telephone still ring?) She felt shackled, helpless, to make any move. If she had been made differently, she might have taken the cable driver to the quay to see his ship sail. But pride forbade it. If he had wanted her to see him off he would have asked her to come. All she could do was watch the clock in the dining room until the last minute, eleven. That was the time his ship sailed. She heard a faint, sad, sad hope. He was on his way to see her.

She felt stunned. Tony Lance wanted to kill something gawking and beautiful for her, when she could never feel again. Going to her room she threw herself on to her bed, and sobbed. He loved her, but he had gone. She was a fool to have believed he meant to seek her out again. He hadn't. She did not fit into his scheme of things. So he had cut her ruthlessly out of his life. Even though she was condemned to love Tony Lance she hated him for his callousness.

HORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 27—In the Bible there is note of the wild rejoicing in Heaven over the finding of one sheep which had strayed from the fold—such rejoicing far exceeding any slight uncar about the ninety and nine which strayed not.

All of which leads up to the fact that North Carolina's railroads ought to be shouting a few "hurrahs" and perhaps a "viva" or two over the conversion of J. Allen Taylor, Wilmington wholesaler whose influence down around the Cape Fear section is not to be sneezed at.

Long noted as one of the anti-railroad leaders, Mr. Taylor has just written Senator E. H. Bellamy, Representatives John R. Morris and J. Q. LeGrand:

"Taxes are laid upon the assumption of ability to pay, equality of treatment and public need. Ability to pay is measured by income and in the last analysis public stability predicated business solvency, which in turn rests upon net income.

"Conceding these premises, I think the Railroads have sustained their contentions and are entitled to relief."

Recipients of floor "courtesies" Thursday included Mayor M. K. Blount of Greenville.

On motion of George Uzell of Rowan the new grandson of "my youthful colleague" was made an honorary page of the House. The youngster is Peter Bruce Henderson, the "youthful colleague" Walter Murphy, dean of the House.

County after county is sought to be exempted from the absentee ballot law. Clay and Moore are the latest pair.

"We invited the legislature to Charlotte on February 22 because that is a holiday and the bills will be closed," said Representative J. B. Vogler yesterday. "We could not risk having the legislature in town with the banks open. Any member of the legislature can get a check cashed that day if he needs it; but since we are going to furnish transportation, food and entertainment, I don't see what a fellow will do with money if he has it."

Mr. Page of Bladen wanted his homefolks to see him in action yesterday, but the House wouldn't let him perform. There were several dozen Bladenites in the lobby, here to act as joint hosts with their representative at the Polk prison farm barbecue. Mr. Page had a local bill which he wanted passed under suspension of the rules, and he started a speech something like this: "Mr. Speaker, in the year 1789 the great county of Bladen, from which many counties have been made—" If the gentleman is attempting to speak on the merits of his bill, the bill is not before the house," ruled Speaker Ward, "and the gentleman is out of order."

Mr. Page got to say part of his speech a little later in asking that privileges of the lobby be extended to his homefolks crowding the lobbies. The suggestion was seconded by the veteran Murphy of Rowan, who recalled that Rowan county used to be a part of Bladen, along with most of Western North Carolina and all of the state of Tennessee.

Long-time desire of some folks to see the legislature in jail was gratified Wednesday when the Assembly turned out en masse, together with attaches, employees and newspaper men, for the Bladen county barbecue which was served in the dining hall at Camp Polk prison farm near Raleigh. 'Twas an unusual sight to see several hundred people jamming the doors of a prison "dining room" rather than out. Incidentally, several good news photos of dignified senators, were made behind prison bars.

Displays Exhibit On Modern School

In the exhibit, The Modern High School, now on display at Sheppard Memorial Library, are several items which are considered of special concern to the parents of the local high school students.

The Southern Association Study, composed of statements of tentative plans from the participating high schools, is one. Greenville, Goldsboro and Asheville are the only North Carolina schools included.

A brief account of the experiment in Goldsboro, published by the faculty, in the December issues of Progressive Education, is another pertinent article.

Directed Learning, by experts in education, and Were We Guinea Pigs? by a high school senior class, discuss many questions that are provoking thought today among students, teachers, and parents—questions about the social activities in school, student government, reports, and the methods and means of instruction.

MAUI, Hawaii (AP)—A group of swimmers has been formed here to restore the island swimmers to their former high place. Members of the "Three-Year Club" must sign a pledge to practice daily, be in bed by 10 o'clock every night and abstain from smoking and from alcoholic beverages for the next three years.

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair, 80, good.

1. Who is this ex-senator who succeeds Arthur E. Morgan as director of TVA?

3. British Prime Minister Chamberlain has made how many trips to Europe in connection with "appeasement"?

4. Is Jose Mijala (a) noted muralist, (b) concert pianist, or (c) Spanish general?

HOLDS BILL ON 'SYNDICALISM'

Ritch Backs Off From Act Because of Labor Angle

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—Mecklenburg's temperate Representative Marvin Ritch has backed off on his "Crime Syndicalism" bill because of the labor angle, he told your correspondent today.

The Charlotte lawyer, who loves nothing better than a wild, woolly political battle, said his measure is aimed solely at bigshot racketeers in the criminal world and not at labor or any organization.

"What I really want to do is help labor," he said, "by catching and squashing the fleeces which now prey on the public."

Ritch said positively Tuesday that he was going to introduce his drastic measure on Wednesday, but it has yet to start through the House mill and its author now has no definite date in mind for its introduction.

There is no doubt whatever about its all-inclusiveness as to labor and labor organizations in its form as related in this correspondence a day or so ago. It would cover almost anything from telling your wife to park the family car too close to a fire hydrant up to and including conspiracy to commit a nuisance, murder or treason.

"Advising" or "affirmatively approving" the commission of any "violation of the criminal law" is in.

But it was the second section of "sabotage" which caused even the staidest of conservative labor leaders to shy at the bill.

Such men as C. A. Fink, president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, and others of similar moderate views were aghast at the drastic provisions of the proposed measure, and left no time in letting Mr. Ritch hear about it.

So now the measure is being re-drafted by its author. Next time it comes out of the Ritch pocket for public display it will doubtless be considerably toned down.

PROPOSED CUTS IN REVENUE THREATEN BALANCE BUDGET

Tar Heel students in state colleges. While this may not affect the Finance group technically, the practical effect is that the revenue raisers will have to think up some way to raise approximately $350,000 annually to meet appropriations for the institutions of higher learning.

Adding these four items, a total of $1,460,000 per year is the probable shrinkage in revenue from the budget estimates.

And there are other reductions quite possible, though not probable. For instance there may be certain sales tax exemptions voted by the committee. If any exemptions are voted, there will be an even greater gap between budget and finance committee revenue figures.

And that's only taking into consideration the obvious and likely actions of the committees.

But while the Finance committee is thus losing revenue from budget estimates, the Appropriations committee isn't making any corresponding slash in estimated expenditures. On the contrary, it is being pressed for more and more funds from almost every state Department and agency.

Thus budget estimates of revenue for the coming biennium are coming down and budget estimates of expenditures are going up if they are moving at all.

It takes no expert in the Finance theory of relative to figure that the result is a bigger and bigger gap between income and outgo and a more and more unbalanced budget.

And if a still further step is taken and the matter of diversion of highway funds taken into consideration, the General Assembly members are quite likely to wake up some fine morning and find there is a little matter of five million dollars a year needed to balance the budget.

Let's look at the budget estimates and show in figures the practical effect of all these things.

For the General Fund the budget estimates estimated for the fiscal year 1939-40:

Unappropriated Balance $2,200,000
Estimated Revenues 40,398,514
Total Availability $42,598,514

Estimated expenditures for all purposes $40,790,034 which would leave an estimated surplus of $1,808,480 to start the second year of the biennium.

Now look what will happen if the mill and a half revenue slashes are carried out.

That estimated surplus of $1,808,480 will have almost vanished as the figures look like this:

Unappropriated balance $2,200,000
Estimated Revenues 38,893,14
Total Availability 41,093,14

Subtracting the estimated expenditures of $40,790,034 there would still be a balance of $307,580 with which to start the second year of the biennium (1940-41). But look what happens to that.

Unappropriated balance $307,580
Estimated revenues 39,918,094
Total Availability 40,225,674

Now put against this the estimated expenditure of $42,872,491 and the only reason the resulting $2,646,817 isn't written in red is because there's no red ribbon on this typewriter. It's a deficit, right on.

It should not be overlooked that these figures include in estimated revenues for general funds the $4,500,000 of highway funds if it is proposed to transfer during the first biennial year $2,000,000 at the start $2,850,000 at the end and the further $2,500,000 transfer at the end of the second year.

And so the Assembly is headed straight for a general fund deficit of $3,000,000 if diversion is permitted no less than $100,000 if the anti-diversionists succeed in defeating Governor Heeb and his Administration forces.

other went away.

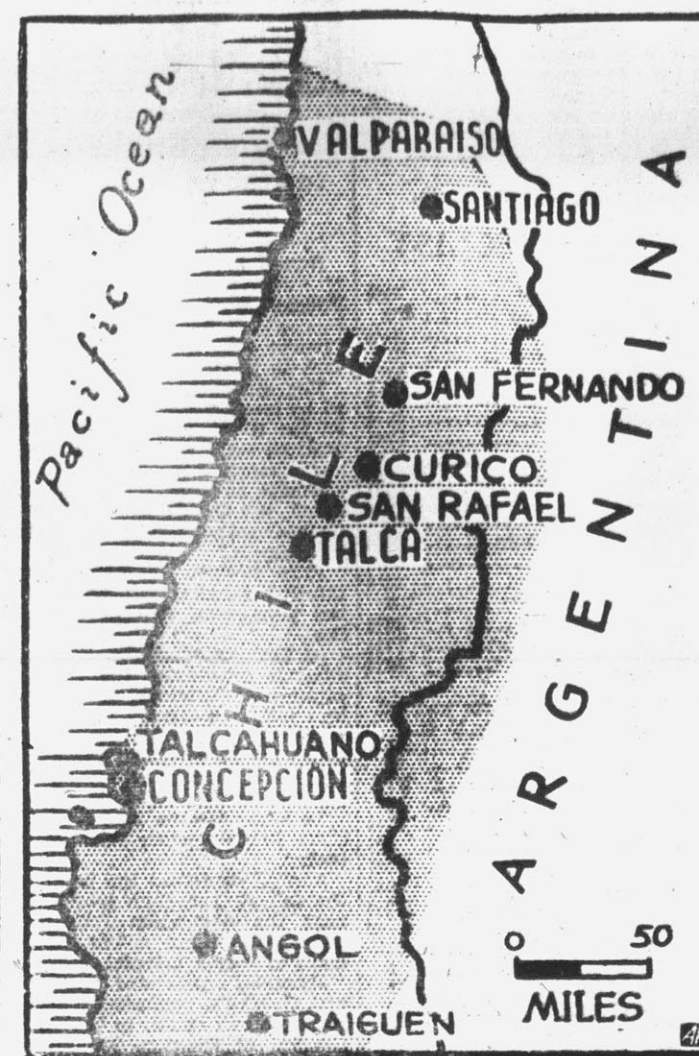

He didn't go to China, or join the French Foreign Legion, or anything like that. As a matter of fact, he remained in New York, and he's here right now. But he didn't go to see our New York any more and he couldn't see his ex-pal for the smoke in his eyes.

It was in all the papers, the wedding, I mean. The society photographers were there and the society columns were full of it, and the shy little chorus girl and the rich man's son sailed away on a two months' honeymoon in Europe. They're back, and very happy I understand.

The point I wish to make is this: the papa of the young man she married is worth a million dollars, but the papa of the young man she spurned is worth two millions.

Didn't I tell you she was just a poor little girl who didn't know her way around?

Man About Manhattan
By George Turber

New York—There was once a shy little Broadway chorus girl who didn't know her way around at all—and boys have wings.

She never went out with the stage-door johnnies because it wasn't proper for a young girl to go out with just anybody, and she never encouraged the attention of young men because her mother had taught her that nice young ladies never accepted anything except candy and flowers from young gentlemen.

In all there must have been a hundred young swains who wanted to meet her and take her out dancing, but she always managed her refusals in such a way that they thought she was doing them a favor.

Then one night two young men were introduced to her and on some impulse she let them persuade her to accept an invitation to attend a late show. Now by a curious coincidence both of these young men were the sons of millionaires, but of course our little heroine knew nothing of this. So they went to a late show and then they had breakfast at a breakfast club, and they eventually drove her home in a cream-colored limousine a half-block long.

Next day one of the young men came back alone, and that night the other young man met her at the theater. She was so surprised when she found him waiting there and it almost broke her heart when she had to inform him that the other young man was going to take her to visit his mother.

That was the beginning of whirlwind courtship that ended a friendship and held the Broadway observers entranced for some time. For of course the two young men were pals, and of course they fell out. They couldn't see each other because of the smoke in their eyes.

For a time the shy little chorus girl let both of them come to see her, because she was tender hearted and couldn't stand the thought of bringing distress even to a poor little rich boy, but the time finally came when she had to admit that her choice had been made, and the

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 27—(AP)—The stock market ran into rallying freezes today and recently weak leaders were lifted one to three points. While the pace was fairly fast at the opening, momentum slackened later. Despite some quick-turn profit taking on the upward reversal, prices were around their best near the fourth hour. Bonds improved with stocks.

ITALIANS HAIL REBEL VICTORY

Cheering Students Attempt to Reach the French Embassy

Rome, Jan. 27—(AP)—A crowd of students shouting "down with France" tried today to reach the French embassy after cheering Premier Mussolini, but was turned back by police. The students, their ranks swelled by many fascists, raised a clamor for Il Duce under his balcony until he twice answered by appearing to salute them. Unable to reach the French embassy, the throng marched to the Spanish embassy in Rome to cheer "free Spain." (The Spanish insurgents maintained embassies both to the Italian government and to the Holy See.) At Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, students celebrating the insurgent capture of Barcelona paraded past an upturned steel helmet into which they dropped contributions to a fund being raised through Italy for the return of Italian war dead from cemeteries in France. To many fascists France has become Italy's number one potential enemy. Foreign expressed the belief that the fall of Barcelona had brought near the day when Italy would present to France a bill for payment of fascist colonial claims. Mussolini promoted Brig. General Gamba, commander of Italian troops in Spain, to the rank of General of Division, for his part in the conquest of Barcelona, which the Fascist celebrated as their own victory. Many in the foreign colonies thought that Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler would advance demands for appeasement simultaneously, possibly within the next week.

night December 23 and midnight, December 25, each year. Representatives passed on a second reading a bill to levy a state tax on package seed and to lower the license on seed dealers selling less than $100 of bulk seed annually from $10 to $1. The Senate suspended its rules, adopted and rushed to the House a joint resolution offered by Senators Long of Halifax, Joyner of Iredell and Gregory of Rowan, memorializing the President of the United States to create a national park in the ravines along the Quanky creek in Halifax county. Senator Smith of Stanley and Clark of Edgecombe offered a bill to provide that certain funds unclaimed for as long as two years should go as escheats to the University of North Carolina and Senator Larkins of Jones sent in a bill to permit state and counties to make tax compromises with railroads in which the state owned a majority of the stock, such as the Atlantic and North Carolina.

Hitch - Hiker Bill Is Dead For Keeps
Raleigh, Jan. 26—Once raised from the tomb of the unfavorable calendar and re-referred to a committee, Ashby Robinson's bill to exempt motor vehicle owners from damages for injuries to hitch hikers and other "guests" is dead again—this time for keeps, in all probability. The United States each year produces 105,142,000 pounds of milk, equivalent to approximately a quart a day for each man, woman and child.

IN the big Buick factory in Flint these days the long assembly line is running smooth as oil.

Not in ten years has production been steadier—and not in the memory of man has the work been better or the car so fine and full of dollar value.

Which is one reason we ask, man to man—what are you waiting around for?

With the first bright budding weather a flock of folks are going to itch to start traveling behind this power-packed Dynafash straight-eight.

They're going to hear the call of the open road—and hone to answer it in smart Buick style, with BuCoil Springing to cushion them along.

They're going to come pouring in on us wanting Buicks, wanting them fast—and in spite of all we'll be able to do then, somebody may have to wait.

But the smart buyers will be all set—will be on their way looking at spring-fresh greenery through Buick's new "visibility unlimited."

They'll be having glorious fun behind this supple giant of a Dynafash power-plant, taking their steady ease in the comfort only Buick gives.

That's why we hope you're making your decision now.
