HOURS - WAGES BILL OFFERED IN TWO HOUSES

Presented in both Senate and House simultaneously

HALTS HEARINGS ON DUPLICATIONS

Statement Declares Minority Will Not Take Anti-Diversion Fight to Senate floor

Raleigh, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Labor Department's bill to fix wages and hours in intra-state commerce hit both divisions of the legislature today.

Representatives Uzzell of Rowan and Wilson of Davidson, and Senator Bain of Wayne, signed the bills. Some time ago Governor Hovey said he would be consulted about them before they were offered and it was understood he favored them in general.

A minimum of 25 cents an hour for the first year and 40 cents an hour after the seventh year is provided with a 44-hour maximum work week the first year and a 40-hour maximum after two years.

Senators received a statement from Umsted of Orange, Hatcher of Burke and Lumpkin of Franklin saying they would not see a minority favorable report on the anti-diversion "good roads bill" unfavorably reported by the finance group.

Representatives adopted and ordered a joint resolution already approved by Senators which asks President Roosevelt to create a national park in Halifax county.

The House refused 44 to 43 with Representative Abernathy of Nash leading the deciding vote as he presided as speaker, to provide that county commissioners may give county tax paid liquor to county homes. Clerk of Moore sought to insert the provision in a Senate approved bill to permit giving such whiskey to hospitals or sale of it to ABC stores. The bill in original form was passed and ordered ratified into law.

A joint sub-committee on agriculture suspended hearings on alleged duplication between services of the State College Extension Service and State Agriculture Department and directed that a special committee of technical men report to it next Thursday on the "agreements and disagreements" between the units.

Only 56 Arrests Here Last Month

Only 56 arrests were made by local police officers during January, compared with 69 in December and 107 in November. Last year, the monthly report of Municipal Court Clerk H. B. Drum revealed today.

Fines and costs during the month totaled $421.35, divided as follows: city general fund, $195.18; school fund $188.17; police pension fund $19; and State Department of Justice fund $19.

Flanagan To Address Local Kiwanis Club

E. G. Flanagan, former State senator, will address the Greenville Kiwanis club tomorrow night on the question of City manager form of government.

In accordance with action taken at the last meeting, the club will meet each Friday night during February as an experiment to determine whether to hold meetings weekly instead of alternate weeks, as has been the custom in the past.

Col. Flanagan will speak under the auspices of the Public Affairs committee, composed of Chairman M. K. Blount, W. H. Wooldard and Robert R. Taylor. The meeting will be held at 6:30 o'clock in the Woman's club building.

Woman Convicted Of Slaying Her Husband

Nashville, N. C., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Lillie Morgan, Nash county farm woman, charged with the murder of her husband, Henry Morgan, was convicted of murder by a Nash county jury this afternoon. The jury deliberated 25 minutes.

Morgan was killed on the morning of March 20, 1938, and a foster son, Jack Morgan, 16, is serving 25 years for the crime. The son was convicted last fall.

FRIDAY TO BE ELECTION DAY

House Elections Committee Anticipates Hard Day

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Feb. 2.—With one bill for outright repeal of everything that sounds like "absentee" and upwards of 20 local bills, exempting counties from the absentee voter law in primaries, the house elections committee is really going to work Friday morning. Anticipating a hard day, the committee starts early and will assemble at 9:30. If present plans are carried through, everything before the committee will be considered (two) and a sub-committee or two named to study special phases of proposed legislation.

If the absentee ballot survives that inquisition, there will be many surprised people hereabouts. Chairman George W. Phillips of the House committee on elections and election laws would not be displeased if the board of elections program was enacted in toto. He rather expects that his committee will eliminate the absentee in primaries and retain them in general elections. The effect of this will be, in the opinion of some legislators, to say that it is alright to steal from Republicans, but not from Democrats. Most of them may actually believe that but they haven't the courage of Elections Board Member Dell, who last week said the western Democrats had to keep the absentee privilege or get beat of.

Little Fountain Girl Dies From Pneumonia

Chloe Lovelace Thigpen, three-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fate Thigpen of Fountain, died at her home at 9 o'clock this morning from pneumonia.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. Charlie Hamilton. Burial will follow in the Webb cemetery near Macesfield.

The girl girl was the only child.

Farm Hand Dies As House Catches Fire

Goldboro, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Charlie Seymour, 17-year-old farm hand, died early today when his small house on the farm of Clarence D. Dues, near here, caught fire.

Coroner T. R. Robinson, Sr., who announced no inquest would be held, said Seymour apparently fell asleep with a lit cigarette in his mouth.

Wage-Hour Bill Offered In House by Rep. Uzzell

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Feb. 2.—Minus any idealistic preamble about low wages and sweatshops and making notable exceptions in favor of "mercantile and service" employment, a North Carolina Wage-Hour bill bearing the blessings of the State Labor Department was introduced in the House today by Representative G. O. Uzzell of Salisbury.

Principal difference between it and the Federal Labor measure introduced some time ago lies in the exceptions mentioned. The Uzzell measure provides, in principle at least, for a flat 48 hour week and 25 cent per hour wage minimum for mercantile and service employments, while the Federal bill puts all classes in strict uniformity with the Federal Wage-Hour measure.

There are also in the new measure provisions for exemption and a permanent Labor Advisory

Controversy Continues on Sale of Planes to France

FDR ATTACKED BY NAZI PRESS

Hitler's Own Newspaper Joins in Attack On What Was Interpreted in Germany as Pledge to Support European Democracies in Defense Against Fascists

Berlin, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler's own newspaper joined in the Nazi press attack today against President Roosevelt for what was interpreted here to be a pledge to back European democracies in defense against Fascist states.

Hitler's newspaper said of the President's discussion on defense with the senate military affairs committee on Tuesday: "At Roosevelt's behest North America is about to lose its head for the second time." Referring to American entry in the World war: "Is Roosevelt the American people's answer to the Fuehrer's will to peace?"

Some Berlin morning newspapers carried excerpts for former President Hoover's address in Chicago, but an official spokesman said it was too early now to comment.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover declared last night that President Roosevelt had announced a "new departure" in foreign policy which would prescribe measures which would provoke international ill will and possibly lead to war.

The use of coercion such as economic sanctions, he said, was an integral part of President Roosevelt's proposed expansion of foreign policy, and asserted any form of coercion "is the straight path to war itself."

"No hushy nation," said the former President, will stand such pressures without bloody resistance. Those who think in terms of economic sanctions should also think in terms of war.

N. C. Farm Agent Praises Program

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A North Carolina county farm agent praised the Agricultural Conservation program today for furnishing "the opportunity of getting farmers to put into practice what the extension service has been advocating for many years."

B. E. Grant, farm agent for Bertie county, N. C., wrote in the Agricultural Department's extension service review an account of how two carloads of legumes were seeded in his county as a result of an experimentation program.

He explained the extension service had carried on a program 15 years to educate farmers in the use of these soil building crops, but pointed out that the progress was slow.

Three Pitt Visitors Recognized By House

Raleigh, Feb. 2.—Courtesies of the galleries and lobby of the North Carolina House were extended yesterday to three visitors from Pitt county: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Whitthurst and Mrs. Dr. Reeves.

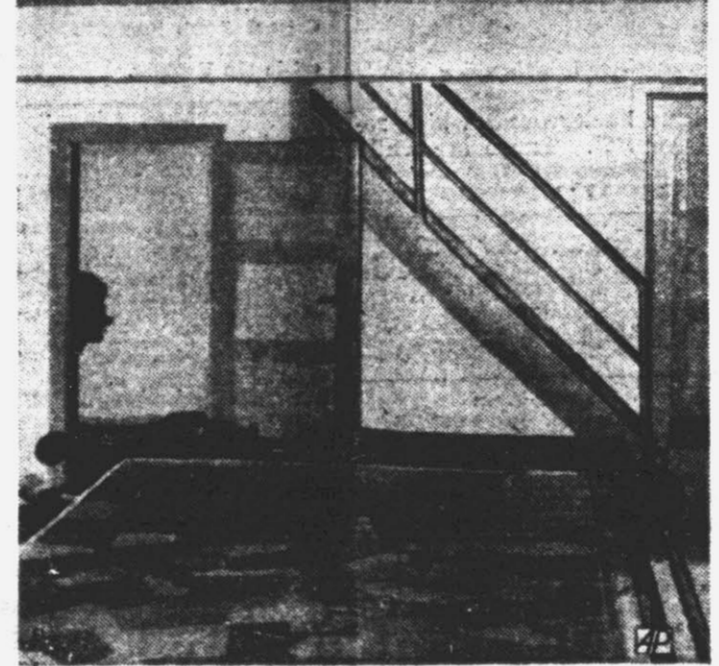

Motion for the courtesies was made by Representative J. S. Moore and were extended by Speaker Liberty Ward "with pleasure."

Board not included in the Federation act.

The measure went to the Labor committee of the House of which Representative J. B. Fogler of Mecklenburg is chairman. His chances for a favorable report without change are considered none too bright, but there is general agreement that in substance it will be the state Wage-Hour bill most likely to run the gauntlet of opposition from employer sources.

Its sponsor, Mr. Uzzell, was one of the co-authors of the State's existing Maximum Hour Bill, passed two years ago but which will be specifically repealed by his present bill, if adopted. General provisions of the act provide for minimum wages of 25 cents an hour for one year after effective date of the law, 30 cents per hour for the next six years and 40 cents an hour thereafter. TWO ESCAPEES ARE CAPTURED FRANCE SEEKS BORDER TRUCE

Movock, N. C.—Feb. 2.—(AP)—An intensified search was being conducted this afternoon just across the Virginia state line for the remaining pair of escaped convicts after the capture of John Henry Cloud, Negro, and Charlie Thomas, Negro, near Northwest, Va., at 9:30 this morning.

The two convicts remaining unapprehended also were Negroes. All four escaped from a road gang near South Mills Tuesday and were members of the Woodville prison camp.

Cloud and Thomas were caught by H. I. Fowler, prison camp guard when he saw all four of the escapees at the Richmond Cedar Works railroad crossing this morning between Wallaceon and Northwest, Va.

Fowler commanded the four to halt. Cloud and Thomas surrendered. The other two, Irvin Long and John Sanders, ran. Fowler fired and Sanders fell beside a tree, but got up and fled. The spot of the capture is about eight miles from the scene of Tuesday's escape.

French authorities considered the border truce idea a solution which might be acceptable both to France and the Spanish government.

About the same it was disclosed France was seeking a truce. Premier Negrin announced in Sigueras, Spain, the Government had decided last night at a secret session of the parliament to fight for the rest of Catalonia.

It was believed, however, negotiations for the truce depended on the outcome of the battle now raging about midway along the 86-mile line between Barcelona and the French frontier.

FRENCH EXECUTIONER GOES TO OWN DEATH

Paris, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Antoine Deibler, 75-year-old hereditary high executioner of France, died suddenly today.

The aged "Monsieur de Paris," whose family has given France her executioner since the Revolution, collapsed in a subway station on the outskirts of Paris and died shortly after he reached a hospital.

Deibler had executed more than 300 men on the guillotine since he inherited office from his father, Louis Deibler, just before the end of the last century.

A mysterious and sinister character to most of France, he was in reality a mild old man who always spoke in gentle tones of his gruesome job. "After all, I am a disciplined government employee," he once said, "a citizen who does his duty like the rest in accordance with his station."

SAYS U. S. FUND NOT INVOLVED

Secretary Morgenthau Denies Report Treasury's $2,000,000,000 Stabilization Fund Created in 1934 Used to Help France or Any Other Foreign Country

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau denied today the Treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund had been used to help France or any foreign country buy military supplies or other merchandise in this country.

Asked whether the stabilization fund might have been involved in the French plane deal, the secretary said: "The stabilization fund has not been used directly or indirectly, or in any way whatsoever, to help any country make any purchase of merchandise."

The stabilization fund, created out of the profits on dollar devaluation in 1934, conducts foreign exchange market operations in an effort to stabilize the dollar in reference to foreign currencies.

Morgenthau said secrecy was necessary to the fund's operations, adding that its usefulness would be lessened by the full publicity advocated by Senator Lodge (R-Mass) and others.

He declined to comment directly on a proposal of Lodge for an independent study of the fund, but said such a resolution would reflect on the integrity of three treasury employees who audit the fund's accounts every year.

Without identifying the trio, Morgenthau said each had worked for the treasury for 27 to 29 years.

High School Band Movement Praised

James C. Pfohl, of Davidson, president of the North Carolina Band Masters' Association, in a letter to The Reflector today, commended the work being done by local citizens in behalf of the High School band.

The letter follows: "It has just had brought to my attention the wonderful piece of work which is being done by a group of citizens in Greenville, known as 'Friends of the High School', in connection with the local High School Band. It is certainly gratifying to see such support being given to this organization and I am sure that all the efforts and money that is spent in furthering the work of the High School Band will bring great dividends. As President of the North Carolina Bandmasters' Association, I want to take this opportunity to commend this movement."

French troop reinforcements also began moving up to the border to block by force, if necessary, the threatened stampede. Three battalions arrived here from central France and officers came from a dozen regiments to prepare for the thousands more men.

Although official figures were withheld, France's present frontier force was understood to number 10,000, with a total of 50,000 ready to cover the border if the Spanish Government's Catalonian forces attempt to cross into France with their arms.

Negotiations were said by informed sources to have been started directly with the Spanish Government and indirectly with the Insurgents, through Great Britain, to halt the fighting if it comes much closer to the French frontier.

Chief George Clark Confined By Illness

Chief of Police George Clark is confined to his home on Fourth street after having been stricken with a sudden illness yesterday afternoon.

It is thought that Chief Clark possibly suffered a slight stroke, but his condition was reported "satisfactory" today. Although the symptoms indicate a stroke of paralysis, it was pointed out that if one was suffered it was believed to be only slight.

Joint Board Suggested In Row Over Duplication

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Feb. 2.—Charges of bad faith on the one hand and neglect of duties on the other, followed a suggestion of reviving a joint board for controlling overlapping of twilight zone activities of State College and the State Department, featured the joint subcommittee hearing yesterday. The heat engendered brought a motive by Representative Everett that the committee go into executive session and "try to find out where we are at" before holding any further public hearings.

Proposal for a joint board of control was made by D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the commissioner of agriculture. The plan is patterned closely after that in operation during the regime of the elder Graham as commissioner, when Dr. B. W. Kilgore was both state chemist at the department and director of extension under the college. It

Will Not Run

Marvin K. Blount, who will have served nearly four years in the office of Mayor of Greenville when his present term expires in June, will not be a candidate to succeed himself in the May election, it was learned authoritatively today, although Mr. Blount declined to affirm or deny current rumors to the effect that he would not announce for re-election.

MAYOR BLOUNT TO STEP DOWN

Will Not Seek Another Term as Mayor of Greenville

Marvin K. Blount will not offer for re-election as mayor of Greenville in the city election the first Monday in May, it was learned authoritatively today.

Mayor Blount, asked about frequent rumors that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself, declared he preferred not to make a statement just then, but indicated he would have an announcement for tonight's meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Blount was appointed to the office of mayor in 1935 to fill out the unexpired term of the late Roy C. Flanagan. He was elected at the May, 1937 election.

Immediately upon assuming the mayorality of Greenville, Mr. Blount began taking active part in the League of Municipalities, an organization composed of city and town officials in North Carolina.

At present he is first vice president of the League and, under normal procedure, would be elevated to the presidency this year should he retain the office of mayor of this city.

Mr. Blount also is chairman of the League's Legislative committee and has been instrumental in numerous measures designed to help the various municipalities in the state. Last week he made one of the principal addresses before the League of Municipalities biennial legislative banquet meeting and outlined the objectives of the League this year.

Ends Contest For Horlick Millions

Racine, Wis., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Judge J. Allan Simpson today admitted to probate the will of Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidney, ending a court fight involving a share of the Horlick malted milk millions.

William Horlick Sidney, only son of the milk heiress, had attempted to break the will on the grounds that his mother had been unduly influenced by W. Perkins Bull of Ontario, Canada, barrister, one of the beneficiaries. Mrs. Sidney died last July in Bull's home.

The judge admitted the document to probate after Sidney had withdrawn his objections and Bull had made a disclaimer of his one-third share of the residuary of the estate.

WPA MEASURE IS NOW READY FOR PRESIDENT

House Accepts Senate Compromise Provisions

STORMY SESSION OVER CRITICISM

Rep. Cox of Georgia Declares Sec. Ickes' Attack on Rep. Dies is "Outrageous"

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Congress gave formal approval today to a $725,000,000 relief appropriation to carry WPA through June 30. The measure now goes to the White House.

The House completed congressional action on the bill by going along with the Senate on compromise provisions designed to take politics out of relief and discarding an amendment it originally had accepted to provide WPA should make no differentials in excess of 25 per cent for the same type of work in different areas.

Representative Cox (D-Ga.) asserted in a stormy House committee hearing that Secretary Ickes' criticism of Chairman Dies of the House Un-American committee boomeranged to make the Texas Democrat an "outstanding national figure."

Arguing with Representative Hill (D-Wash.) before the House Rules committee, Cox said the cabinet member "went on the stump to attack Mr. Dies." This, Cox said, was "perfectly outrageous."

Told by Hill he had no right to criticize Ickes, Cox flared: "Why not, he certainly had a right to answer. Whether they meant to or not they have made Dies an outstanding national figure."

Ickes once called Dies an "outstanding Zany." They were then disputing the fairness of Dies' condemnation of the committee investigating un-American activities. The Rules committee is considering revival of the committee, and House approval of continuing its inquiry was considered a foregone conclusion on Capitol Hill.

Action was likely later today, after a closed session to hear Dies answer various criticisms.

Ickes, himself, contributed to the day's news with an assertion "The United States is not in danger of entering a foreign war under this administration."

President Roosevelt discussed "world affairs" and "technical developments" in connection with army defense needs in a White House conference with the House sub-committee which will frame the War Department's appropriations bill.

Also, Britain has given the United States permission to start a trans-atlantic air service whenever American companies are ready.

In a note dated January 28 and released by the State Department today, the British government waived a provision of the 1935 agreement between the two countries which provided air service should be started simultaneously by both of them.

The House Rivers and Harbors committee recommended meanwhile that Congress authorize improvements of the harbors and channel in the Cape Fear river at Wilmington, N. C., at a cost of $875,000.

Ladies of the Round Table Meet.

Mrs. ReBarker announced the topic for the afternoon "The Fine Art of Living in the South." This splendid paper by Mrs. Ed Higgs was read by Mrs. Closs Hearne. She spoke of the qualities of the Southern people. They are homogeneous. An important factor in Southern culture is that they always look to the land—since it is a dominating force.

One has only to see the fine old houses to see they excel in the art of living, and the spirit of the people is discerned in their children's children.

A typical Southerner always feels an obligation to all of his blood relations. A definite change in economic life threatens tradition at the present time.

Mrs. Taylor's guests were Mrs. F. Brooks, Mrs. Walter Taylor, Mrs. J. R. Clifton, Mrs. W. F. Kyser and Mrs. John Rice.

At the close of the social hour, Mrs. Horne assisted the hostess in serving a delicious salad course.—Reported.

The Inter Se Book Club.
The Inter Se Book Club held its regular meeting on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Burke Stancil. Mrs. William Taft, the president, presided over a short business session, after which she gave a very interesting paper on "The American Theatre."

The history of the theatre from the eighteenth century to the present time was very graphically portrayed.

As a result of puritanical prejudice, the early theatrical attempts in America were scattered and without permanent effect. The first theatre was built in 1716 at Williamsburg. Mr. W. M. Holloms from London, formed the first American company. In the quarter century prior to 1800 the Southwork Theatre in Philadelphia was the theatrical center of the United States. New York did not become the center until its population outnumbered that of Philadelphia.

Probably the most successful American play ever written is "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The minstrel which had its origin in singing and dancing of slaves on the plantations of wealthy Southerners were soon produced.

The Academy of Music was opened in 1854 and continued to be the home of Grand Opera until 1883.

The stage became engulfed in a wave of commercialism that gradually destroyed the art of acting. In 1896, six theatre men attempted to create a monopoly. This was the beginning of the theatrical syndicate.

The theatre had another rival, namely motion pictures, which were introduced in 1896. At the beginning of the 20th century, the old stock companies were extinct. Art found itself compelled to give way to big business.

Following the program, the hostess served a delicious salad course and coffee.—Reported.

End Of The Century Club.
On Tuesday afternoon members of the End of the Century Club met with Mrs. B. W. Moseley at her home on West Fifth street.

The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Jr. After the necessary business details had been reported, Mrs. J. T. Little as a representative of the Service League explained to the members of this community, the hospitalization project was discussed at length as to the need and benefit of such an objective in Greenville. The members of the End of the Century Club, realizing the worthy cause of this project and in full sympathy with the undertaking of the Service League, voted to contribute financially and to give the League full-hearted cooperation in the future.

After the exchange of club books, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Moseley who introduced the guest speaker, Dr. R. L. Slay of East Carolina Teachers College.

In a most beneficial and authentic manner, Dr. Slay gave a very worthwhile discussion on "Dietary Disturbances."

We all readily admit the fact today that we have become very food conscious. This is true because of promotional advertising schemes of new scientific theories newly discovered. However, this condition has really been in existence for some time. Some few of us will recall Fletcherism—the theory of thorough mastication. It was a Mr. Fletcher that promoted the thinking since we had 32 teeth so each mouthful of food should be chewed 32 times. Today we realize the importance of well chewed food in order to start digestion with the saliva which is secreted in the mouth. But since there is only a small amount of digestion there, this food was not substantially accepted.

Another widespread theory was that of "vegetarianism." There is abundant following of this diet which was introduced by Kellogg of Battle Creek, Michigan. It was through this diet that we got our first thinking that milk was not as essential for normal nutrition as previously accepted. We must recognize that this diet is minus of all protein foods and we do know the human digestive tract requires a nutritional balance of all foods to give real health. Also the circumstances of many raw vegetables containing very water soluble vitamins necessitates a balancing of other foods.

No doubt the first familiar fad to us all was the one which was carried very much too far. All advertisements stressed the necessity of a digestive tract. Such foods as bran, and other cereals were recommended. Many believed this theory until some kind person braved the multitude to show us that too much roughage was over-stimulating and destructive to the living tissues of the stomach.

And now today what do we talk eat and sleep? Some people have become mental addicts to the fad, to others it is a great anxiety and concern. We refer to the ever present subject—The Reducing Craze—To those who are prone to accept the necessity of stylishness rather than health, there have been an unlimited number of sure-to-lose remedies promoted:

1. Sun diet. Do not eat except when hungry. Should not eat a combination of foods at one time. Either all proteins, all carbohydrates or all starches.

2. Eighteen day or Hollywood Diet. Really consisted of nothing more or less than starvation of nothing more or less than starvation.

3. Grape juice diet—which according to present day advertising, only Welch's will do. This is a scientific method and is considered about the safest method. As you know citrus fruits give alkaline reaction which is the main precaution of diet.

4. Banana and Milk Diet. From a nutritional viewpoint this theory is the safest. However, the milk and bananas should be substituted for only two meals during the day. Another precaution is the use of only ripe bananas or those with brown specks on skins.

There are many results which will have to be accepted with loss of weight should that occur. First, the danger of acidity or commonly called acidosis. Alkaline is required in blood. Pure blood must be kept balanced and there is only a very narrow marginal limit to shift the reaction to acidity which causes coma. There are types of ulcers, sores, rashes and boils resulting from unbalanced diets.

As we all know so very well, Dr. Slay recommended that if we must reduce, it should be with a doctor's supervision and advice, for to keep healthy we must diet the nutritional way.

At the close of the program, Miss Beale Brown gave a most delightful program of selections, which included "Fris O' Ballyclore," by Turney-Maley, "I Heard You Go By," by Daniels-Wood, and "Bird Songs at Eventide," by Eric Coats. Miss Brown was accompanied by Miss Eva Hodges.

The guests were invited to the dining room where Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Mrs. J. T. Little presided over a beautifully appointed tea table. They were assisted by Misses Mary Harding and Elizabeth Winslow.—Reported.

If your sheets do not carry index tabs showing the size, make up some of your own. Write size of sheet on tape with indelible ink and sew on the edge of the sheet. This will save time as you can quickly find the right sized sheet for your bed.

Ladies' Day

Baseball is a man's game but the ladies are moving in—they own controlling stock in four major league clubs. Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and New York in the National League and now the New York Yankees of the American League are controlled by women. The late Col. Jake Ruppert left equal shares in the Yankees to three women. Most of the owners leave the directing of the club to men, but Mrs. Barney Dreyfuss takes an active part in shaping Pittsburgh's policies. The Giants were formerly owned by Mrs. Harry Hempstead. Mrs. Schuyler P. Britton inherited the St. Louis Cardinals and was president in 1916. Jim Dunn left the Cleveland club to his wife in 1922 but she sold her interests. Phil Hall left control of the St. Louis Browns to his widow and daughter but they disposed of the stock. Here are the present women owners:

MRS. JOSEPH HOLLERAN, Colonel Jacob Ruppert's niece, was willed a one-third interest in the Yankees.

MISS HELEN WINTHROP WEYANT, a former actress, was willed another one-third interest in the Yankees.

MRS. BARNEY DREYFUSS owns most of the Pittsburgh club stock with her daughter, Mrs. William Benswanger.

MRS. J. BASH MAGUIRE, another niece, was also bequeathed a one-third interest in the Yankee club.

MRS. CHARLES STONEHAM shares ownership of the New York Giants with daughter Mary and son Horace.

MRS. MARIE MCKEEVER MULVEY, daughter of the late Steve McKeever, holds a large portion of Brooklyn stock.

Try this "dessert method" for pancakes. Bake four large pancakes, quickly spread jam on each. Stack the cakes and sprinkle granulated sugar lightly on them. Surround with warm orange sauce, cut in wedge-shaped pieces and serve nice for a bridge club luncheon dessert.

Library News

"What is the most interesting book you have ever read?" During the past two years the American Institute of Public Opinions has made soundings among men and women in all parts of the country and in all walks of life, asking just this question. Some of the Institute's findings might have been guessed at. The Bible, for instance, has been the best selling book in the United States for generations, and no one will be surprised at the number of Americans who consider it the most interesting book I ever read. One fact that is scored and underscored in these studies is the tremendous influence of Hollywood on reading tastes. Another is the overwhelming preference for historical and romantic fiction. Nearly one voter in every five named the Bible as the most interesting of all the world of books. Twelve per cent of those voting mentioned "Gone with the Wind." Other books most often named are:

Allen—Anthony Adverse. Cronin—The Citadel. Buck—The Good Earth. Carnegie—How To Win Friends and Influence People. Then with only one or two exceptions, comes a parade of popular classics. The complete list of 20 books is as follows:

The Bible, Gone With the Wind, Anthony Adverse, The Citadel, How To Win Friends and Influence People, The Good Earth, Ben Hur, Northwest Passage, Little Women, A Tale of Two Cities, Les Miserables, Magnificent Obsession, Adventures

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Mushrooms and oysters blend nicely in a savory cream sauce. Served them scalloped, or as sauce for ham, rice cheese or tuna loaves.

If you want something real fancy for your Valentine party try this: Tint water green, freeze it and then crush slightly and place the ice in a shallow bowl. Fill glass cups with shrimp cocktail and set on the ice.

When serving a game dinner, a light dessert should conclude the meal. This can be fresh or canned fruit, a light gelatin dessert, melon or a tart sherbet—no cake, however, is needed with the latter. If a rather substantial fruit or vegetable salad is served, really no dessert is needed.

Be most alert in the kitchen and see that all gas burners are completely turned off. A little leak will cause a headache, a bad one can be fatal. Sometimes an apron will catch on the burner handle as you brush past the stove and turn it on accidentally.

Although famed as a mining state, Colorado's principal activity is agriculture.

CHANGE OF LIFE

Raleigh, N. C.—Mrs. E. H. Simon, 33 S. Swain St., says: "At middle-life, my nerves were bad. I could not eat or sleep and became weak. I took Dr. Pierce's Prescription and it stimulated my appetite and thus strengthened me. In no time I was enjoying life again. Buy it in liquid or tablet form from your druggist. See how much calmer and stronger you feel after taking this tonic."

SCORE IS TIED ON DIVERSION

Count Still Nothing-to-Nothing After Hearing

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Feb. 2—Opponents of diversion of highway funds think that they slammed out several home runs in their turn at bat Tuesday, and supporters of Governor Hoey's policy of "applying the sales tax to gasoline tax revenues" are undoubtedly sincerely of the opinion that His Excellency hammered Capus Waynick and others completely out of the box with his radio and joint-session of the Assembly address of Tuesday night.

But to the unprejudiced, inquiring observer the score at the close of that first inning is still nothing to nothing in so far as any change of votes either by committee hearing or gubernatorial oratory is concerned.

Those who opposed diversion before Tuesday are still denouncing decrying and viewing with alarm; those who on Monday thought the Governor right are of the same opinion still, perhaps even more so.

Just take the Mecklenburg delegation as a concrete example—your correspondent takes it because it is entirely characteristic and typical of all other delegations.

On Tuesday morning Senator Joe Blythe, Representatives Marvin Ritch and J. W. Alexander were all against diversion; Representative J. B. Vgler was noncommittal, awaiting action on his real legislative bugaboo, the Sales Tax.

The Antis spoke long and loud Tuesday afternoon. The Governor talked long and eloquently, if not loud, Tuesday night.

On Wednesday morning all the inquirer had to do was make marks under the already-announced views of the Mecklenburgers. There had been great argument but so far as they were concerned they had all come out the same door wherein they went.

Your correspondent found no one solitary Senator or Representative who would admit any change in his views, although he button-holed many of them.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tusher

NEW YORK—We're somewhere in Manhattan probably 30 feet underground in a mechanized tube that has light and air and heat and advertisements and uniformed attendants and people reading Russian newspapers, people reading Italian newspapers, people reading Yiddish newspapers, people reading German newspapers, people reading all the big New York dailies, printed in English.

Our tube is hurtling through the gloom of a subterranean channel and at irregular moments little jeweled cities flash past, cities garish in their amber lights, cities with numbers and names—Canal, Houston, Wall, Park—only they aren't cities. They are stations which lead to the streets above.

Most of these cities our tube ignores, for we are marked "Express," and sub-stations aren't considered on this quest of time and space—time saved, that is, and distance covered.

Here is a big Pole thoughtfully devouring a sandwich. The chin of the man next to him has dropped to his chest, and he is noring. Across the aisle a trim young woman is knitting a sweater. A musician in evening clothes, with his violin case between his knees, is talking with a cop who has a caged canary on his knees. What a cop would be doing with a canary I am unable to guess.

There are, to be exact, 44 people in this tube, and two of them are standing at the end, very much interested in each other. That is evident to everyone. He has his hands clasped around her arm, as if to steady her against the swaying of the tube. Suddenly he leans toward her and kisses her, very deliberately, on the lips. She kisses him back. Neither seemed hurried or the slightest bit embarrassed.

That is one of the things that has always astounded me about New York—the way people kiss. They kiss on the street, or in theater lobbies, or at drugstore counters, or standing in the middle of sidewalks. And nobody every seems embarrassed.

Their big moment is ended with a bang, however, as the tube flashes into the largest city of all—a vast, seething, many-peopled city—and comes to an abrupt halt. The suddenness of the stop throws them against the tube wall. They giggle, but no one else giggles. Everyone is bent on cramming through those sliding doors, which have noiselessly and magically opened. Everyone is in a mad rush to get out of this tube and get on other tubes or climb stairways that lead once more into the light.

So you put your best shoulder forward—and somehow you get out of there and are swept along in a human tide for perhaps 50 feet before you are spilled at the foot of a stairway. You take a deep breath, and adjust your hat, and your coat. Then you climb those stairs and emerge into the glare of Times Square.

That is a subway ride in New York.

James Phillips, of New Brunswick, retired fisherman now 103 years old, has finally decided to abandon a summer practice of rowing 15 miles to visit his son, Douglas, 79, at LaBee, Maine.

WARM SPRINGS PATIENTS CUT BIRTHDAY CAKE

HOW TUNA ARE CAUGHT OFF SICILY

WHEN TUNA ARE MIGRATING from the Adriatic sea to the Atlantic ocean, the fishermen off Trapani, Sicily, hurriedly lay down huge nets and wait until the tuna come along. They then close the nets at both ends, trapping the giant fish in a 150-foot square "cell" which means certain death to any tumbling fisherman. He's crushed by the tails. Above, men lift out tuna.

DEATH LURKS FOR 'UNCLE JOE' as his boat moves through churning waters of cell in which tuna are trapped off Trapani, Sicily. He calls orders to fishermen outside net.

REWARD FOR THEIR LABORS was this 1,000-pound giant being slit for skinning, canning. Tuna are also caught off both U. S. coasts, south of Nova Scotia and the Columbia river.

Washington—The nearer that the end of the Spanish Civil War comes with each consecutive rebel victory, the nearer comes the time for settlement of a mass of problems as difficult as those following the World War—and ten times more dangerous.

At the end of the World War further immediate fighting was undreamed of. But ending the Spanish Civil War, diplomats here say, will not insure peace.

What price must General Franco pay for the aid he has received from Italy and from Germany.

If he is willing to pay it (and that is by no means certain), will France and England and perhaps the United States be willing to let him pay it?

Will the price be commercial, or political, or both?

If the concessions Franco is asked to make to Italy and Germany, are commercial, who will be the loser among the other nations? About a half billion of foreign capital is invested in Spain, most of it British, French and American.

Germany is likely to demand a larger share in the control of Spanish mines, where formerly British and American investments are smaller, but International Telephone and Telegraph, virtually a communications monopoly in Spain, is a Yankee property.

Will Spain fall tightly into the German-Italian trade orbit?

Spain Will Need Money

Doubtless Spain will need rehabilitation loans. From where will come the money? England, France and the U. S. can lend Germany and Italy are well "broke" so far as international exchange is concerned.

Will Franco yield to German-Italian pressure for barter trade on one side, or to the appeal of loans and trade agreements with the money democracies? Can he compromise such conflicting pressures?

What will be done about refugees? Already thousands have been driven across the French border. Still other thousands have fled into Loyalist territory from areas now ruled by Franco. Will the French general staff reconcile itself to a different kind of neighbor across the Pyrenees? In Morocco? What if Italian troops are not withdrawn promptly?

Diplomatic flounders here see in those last items the largest seed of potential trouble. Hemmed in now on two sides, by aggressive German and Italian totalitarianism, France would be in bad straits if its like should rise to the south in Spain, as well as next door to her poorly protected Moroccan and Tunisian holdings.

France Talks War

What if Italy demands the important little Balearic Isles just off the French-Spanish coast in the Mediterranean as part of her price? They lie across France's lifeline to her African possessions. They could be used as a base for a threat to France's Japanese fortification of Catalonia Island near Los Angeles, could be to the United States. Already France has talked of war to prevent such a thing.

England, who never allowed Germany or Italy to have a port on the Atlantic might soon be confronted with a new threat as submarine and air bases, in time, past England has considered such things worth going to war about.

General the drain-pugh of the Mediterranean, already is reportedly menaced by rows of German guns on the Spanish coast, and Spanish Morocco is the neighbor across the straits on the African side.

For that matter, how would the United States look upon totalitarian submarine and air bases just across the Atlantic? And in the hands of totalitarian states?

Finally, how will the United States and England adjust themselves, if they must, to having the mother country of all Latin-Americans go totalitarian? Spain is closer to the Latin-American countries, both geographically and culturally, than the United States.

Strategically the war may be nearing an end. Diplomatically, it may be just beginning.

Contests Planned For High Schools

Chapel Hill, Feb. 2—The annual academic contests for students in high school throughout the State will be held in five subjects this spring, it was announced today by E. E. Rankin, Secretary of the North Carolina High School Debating Union.

The contests, open to all accredited North Carolina public high schools, are held under the auspices of the University of North Carolina Extension Division.

Subjects and their dates are as follows: second annual Physics contest, February 10, 15th annual Latin contest, February 17, 14th annual Spanish contest, March 10, 14th annual French contest, March 24, and 14th annual mathematics contest, April 28.

Final dates for entry, Mr. Rankin said, are: physics, February 6; Latin, February 13; Spanish, March 6; French, March 20, and mathematics, April 24.

Secretary Rankin, outlining rules for the contests, in his announcement to high school principals, said the students will participate under the supervision of their superintendents, principals, or teachers in their respective schools. The best papers will be submitted to the Extension Division for judging.

A survey indicates that seven South Carolinians left that state for every outsider who moved in during the decade from 1920 to 1930.

ROBOT BUSINESS TAKES A JUMP

By The AP Feature Service

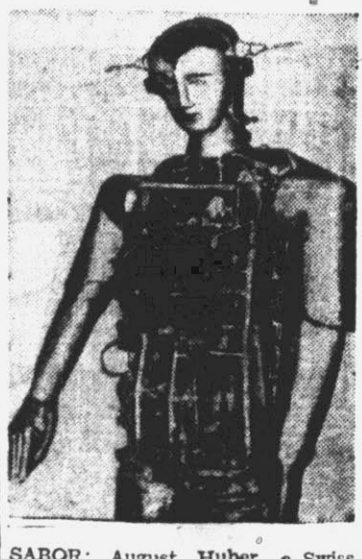

That mechanical man's here again—this time not so much in appearance as in voice. It's the voder, a machine which forms its own words in human tones. The mechanical voice-producer is shown with an operator at an organ-like key-board—built for business or pleasure—who might welcome this addition to their already amazing apparatus:

MAC: The gals went for Leighton Hillbert's invention in a big way when it appeared on the beach. Mac can't go near the water. His electrical apparatus, operated by buttons, might be short-circuited.

THE VODER: Bell telephone operator will make it talk at the two big 1939 fairs.

SABOR: August Huber, a Swiss, worked 10 years to perfect this robot, which can walk, open and close his eyes, eat and smoke, and pronounce his own name. He's directed by remote control up to 30 kilometers.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
 Peter Mallone: An adventurous young reporter.
 Petronella: His loyal sister.
 James Randall: Their childhood friend.

Yesterday, James tells Petrel he loves her.

Chapter 14
 Peter Goes Wild

"I have known, James," Petrel answered in a low voice. "I haven't wanted you to say anything, because, in a way, there is someone else. A career means nothing to me. Only Peter's career is important. All my life I've trailed along behind him. You know that. I think that's all I ask of life. To center my interest in the people I love. I'd like to make a home, James. I want to love you, but I can't. I'm tied."

"Tell me about him," Gently, he led her back to the car. They had left it at the entrance to the drive. Their footsteps shuffled softly on the red sand. The pine trees sent was strong, and the needles rustled.

"I've seen him only three times. Yet it is a kind of bondage? I don't believe he really thought much about me. But I've got to see him again, and find out," Petronella hesitated a moment. Then she told him "You introduced me to him, James. Tony Lance. Remember?"

"Turning, he stared down at her. "Tony Lance?"

"He was shaken. The moment he heard that name, he knew. "You fool—this isn't a light-hearted affair she'll forget. Petrel and Tony! Of course! This is serious!" Aloud he said:

"I would go and do a silly thing like that."

"I'm not particularly glad I met him either," James put an arm round her shoulders. He pulled her head to rest against the lapel of his suit.

"Go ahead, darling, tell me all about it."

Petronella awoke the next morning feeling happier about James. He loved her. He understood. He was going to wait a little while, until she felt certain that she could love him in return. She did not believe there was sufficient intensity in his feeling for her to make it an unfair agreement. She wanted to love him. Attraction and friendship were strong between them. Perhaps, in most ways, she was a little bit in love with him? But her spirit remained untouched.

"I don't want to come second, if there's a chance of counting first. I wanted you to be happy," he pointed out. "I've not been at Cambridge, before I can start working. We could only be unofficially engaged. There is plenty of time."

Time! This morning, with the memory of James' kisses, his massive niceness, Tony Lance seemed a long time ago, a long way away. He was in Mukden. Where was Mukden? She must look it up on her map. The Japanese were still advancing.

Dark Turbulence

ON THE Sunday after Christmas, Petronella sat in the train. It was crowded with people returning to town after the holiday; Peter was standing. They had had a grand Christmas. One always did at Ballfield. The snow, now lying everywhere, inches deep, in Sussex, had come just too late to complete the picture. That was the only fault she could find in the three days which had just passed.

But she was returning to her difficulties. She looked up at Peter. He was staring out of the carriage window, through a dark circle of glass which he had rubbed clear with his coat sleeve. He was unconscious of her scrutiny. His eyes did not seem to see the white countryside. They were filled with a dark turbulence, restless ideas. Oh, dear, what would he do next? He learned too fast. That was the trouble. By October, he had begun to slacken. He saw no purpose in rearing indefinitely the craved production. Temporarily the excitement of canvassing for the election had sufficed him. Petrel had stood beside his soap box in Hyde Park. The more the crowd had heckled him, the better he had enjoyed it. She had felt as proud as if his efforts had swung the election, when they sat in the Earnshaw's charming London drawing-room listening to the results coming through, over the wireless, and knew that they were victorious.

He had worked passably, until the end of November. Then that series of mysterious disappearances, Peter had leered gone first for one, then for two consecutive nights. She had never discovered where he had been. But she had not agreed with James' simple explanation. Again, for a time, she argued about with Gloria and quarrelled with Marigold. Peter had very little interest in women. Besides, she knew he had gone collarless and in his oldest clothes. She had been horribly afraid for him. She had believed that his absences had something to do with the Russian ship, lying in the Pool. But since he did not choose to tell her, she did not demand explanations. Once, she tried to follow him. He had dodged and evaded her in the crowds. Laughing, he had apologized for her this afterwards.

"December," thought Petrel wretchedly, had been hell. Peter could chatter quite well enough, he insisted, in five languages. That was a darn sight more than a lot of foreign correspondents he'd met could do. Perhaps old Judson had spoiled his chance of promotion, by sending up a bad report to Rowdow. Anyway, there didn't seem to be anything more exciting for Peter Mallone than an occasional suicide.

Thereafter, Peter had gone wild. He had taken to going out every night, drinking too much, skipping his work for pleasure. Petrel laid blame sometimes with Gloria, the actress, sometimes with two Burma friends, whose jobs had gone, owing to the depression, and who were cheerfully blowing their funds, before attempting the disheartening search for work at home. But they knew, grimly, lay ahead of them. Did it take brave men, or fools, to react that way to disaster, Petronella wondered.

Donkey Race

SHE was terribly sorry for the cause of their wildness, but she wished they would not endanger Peter's career. She was sorer still for Colin, who had not yet arrived in England. Colin would not have anything to squander. Easy going, long established Mallers had failed completely. The second week in December, his family had had to cable him money for his passage home.

Peter and she were doing their best to have some kind of job waiting for him, when he landed. But, so far, they were unsuccessful.

There were a great many men waiting work in London. In December, the telephone had a wakened Petronella at one o'clock.

A voice said, "This is Bow Street Police Station, calling."

Peter, driving the car he had once sold Gloria Gladson, and with his side, had hit it and was in Piccadilly. He had been arrested for reckless driving. He possessed the lucky gift of sobering quickly, so that the charge indicated that he had been giving too little attention to his driving, and too much to Gloria. It did not include drunkenness.

The next shock had been the donkey race. Petronella was not told anything about this, until Colly arrived at the flat and fetched her.

Peter had organized a crazy derby, with six starters. These had been hired from a number of respectable vendors, and were trotted docilely from Covent Garden. The race was timed to start at 2 a.m. The course was from Ludgate Hill to the end of Fleet Street.

"He didn't tell you because he was afraid you'd try to persuade him not to do it," Colly told her, apologetically.

Petronella grabbed a coat. "So I should. He's mad!"

They arrived just in time to see five dogged little animals, and five light-weight, half-ounce, young men, Peter leading, career past Ludgate Circus. There were shouts of laughter, and a police whistle blowing. Petronella was too late to do anything but stand on the empty street, gazing helplessly after them, not knowing, whether to laugh or cry. Spectators ran along recklessly, shouting encouragement.

Peter was again arrested. But, mercifully none of the animals had broken legs, or suffered injury. The morning papers published Peter's photograph, nick-naming him "the mad reporter." It was treated as a joke. The magistrate who tried the six riders enjoyed his own caustic comments, and fined them two pounds a head. Now, when she thought about it, it seemed very funny. Peter looked down at her.

"Why are you heaving with silent laughter?"

"The donkey race!" They both laughed. Peter had been very sweet and penitent since it happened. Otherwise, she doubted if she would be returning to town with him. She had finished her training. She was waiting for a job.

The News had no vacancies on their secretarial staff, at present. She was going into the "Trilight Insurance Company." She had come near to quarrelling seriously with Peter about the race, to feeling helplessly, that he was beyond her control. If Rowdow, and Judson, had not laughed at the exploit, the consequences might have been serious. But Peter promised this phase was over. He would turn his energies into worth while things, instead of stunts. If possible, he would offer himself for the Air Force Reserve, try to pass the eye test, and learn to fly. It was staggeringly big, and could not every bill introduced. He is W. R. Clegg.

He so informed all and sundry— but particularly Nash's R. H. Fenner after the latter has made an earnest plea for more light and explanation of statewide measures on the floor of the House.

Bill wanted the Speaker to do something about it (pass a law, or something) and was in dead, serious earnest. For his pains he received a mass of advice such as (1) Ask more questions, (2) Go to law school, (3) Read the bills himself and (4) Vote against those measures he doesn't understand.

Finally Mr. Moore rose and said: "If you want to know anything about these bills, just ask me. I make it my business to read every one of them."

Loudest applause of any routine House session greeted the remark of Mecklenburg's J. B. Vogler Wednesday when he said of the Mecklenburg delegation: "We are all in harmony on that and would like to see that bill 'a measure extending time for the Salvation Army to pay some taxes' pass." The boys weren't cheering the S.A. so much as the fact that the Mecklenburgers were for a change, all together on something.

"I've been told that this is the tail end of a controversy among the women of North Carolina, and that's why I'm interested in it," said Senator Spruill of Bertie at the cosmetologist hearing Wednesday. Locking over toward the roomful of beauty experts he continued: "I've been told that the women of North Carolina are interested in the money of Senator Gordon Gray, and the persuasiveness of Senator John Larkins. I would be willing for this hearing to continue throughout the session." It was said by some observers to be the longest speech Mr. Spruill has made in years without mentioning the "rippling waters of the silvery Chowan." Two hundred charming girls made him forget his first girl love.

He denied, however, that he had been "run over by the Governor's steamroller" Tuesday night when his Excellency gave the Stone views a very thorough going-over.

Speaker Ward evidently was overly impressed with progress in the Appropriations committee Tuesday day he referred to a bill to that group, Up popped Edgemoor's Cap Earles with a suggestion that it be sent to Agriculture instead in order that he (Earles) might talk about it. Snapped Libby: "You can go to Appropriations and talk all you want to. That's what they seem to be doing over there."

Three Bills Are Made Special Order For Next Monday

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Feb. 2.—Unemployment compensation, which got off to a flying start at the short 1936 special session, and got commission amendments by a joint committee last week, although more than half the members of the committee had expressed individual doubt about the wisdom of the amendments, hit a snag in the Senate yesterday.

Not only that but last week both houses quickly killed a bill exempting employees from the merit examinations required under the original law. Then the joint committee reported favorably on all changes asked by the commission. But there are still some sore spots.

gricultural work of the same kind or kinds that both the department and the college are conducting; especially shall this committee have supervision and control of all experimental and investigational work in agriculture of this state.

The state department of hog shippers had requested a hearing, and some fifty or more of them appeared to argue for their present co-operative marketing methods, which depend largely upon work of the various county agents. Hog marketing specialists from both the college and the department also appeared. Mrs. Fletcher for the department outlined its marketing policy, which is to co-operate with all existing marketing agencies, having no preference as between co-operatives, packer operated or individually owned markets.

After nearly two hours fruitless discussion, Mr. Coltrane offered his joint committee proposal, prefaced by reciting some of the dire needs of the state in production education, and the statement that "I cannot see how our extension workers can leave this work and enter the marketing field."

Dean Schaub replied by charging when the much talked of working agreement was signed by him and Commissioner Scott last year, he did not get the significance of the word service, but now he understands that the department was trying to put over something and take from the college an important function with respect to producer marketing. R. B. Etheridge, chief of the department's division of markets, got to his feet to answer, but acting Chairman Senator C-uncle ruled him out of order, and put a motion to adjourn and to meet today in executive session.
