WOULD EXTEND INVESTIGATION ANOTHER YEAR

House Votes to Continue Committee on Un-Americanism

DIES SUPPORTED IN 344-35 VOTE

Warren Announces Approval of Additional $334,000 For N. C. Coast Air Base

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The House voted overwhelmingly today to continue for another year an investigation of un-American activities and propaganda.

Speaker Bankhead announced the roll call vote was 344 to 35.

That action brought to end, at least for the time being, one of the bitterest controversies of the new Congress.

Opponents had leveled accusations of unfairness and un-Americanism at the committee which handled the inquiry last year under the chairmanship of Representative Dies (D-Tex).

Speaker Bankhead already has announced his intention to reappoint Dies chairman and name to the committee again the members who served in the last Congress. There is one vacancy.

At the outset, the issue of continuing the life of the Dies committee had reached the House floor with Representative Cox (D-Ga.) joining the inquiry as having been "misrepresented" by its critics.

The resolution provides no funds for a further inquiry, but Chairman Warren (D-N.C.) obtained permission for the accounts committee to hold afternoon sessions next week to discuss a measure to supply more funds.

Dies has asked for $150,000, but the House is expected to compromise on $100,000.

Bankhead told newspaper men that the House probably would spend three days next week considering the regular appropriation bill for independent offices of the government.

Representative Warren announced a supplemental appropriation of $34,000 for a coast guard air base at Elizabeth City, N. C.

Warren expressed belief the House would approve the new fund which would bring to more than $1,000,000 the amount of federal money for the base.

The additional money would be used to construct an underground drainage system, runways and to pave roads and walks.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt told his press conference he would not withdraw the nomination of Lloyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia. He added that if the Senate refused to confirm the nominee, already rejected by the Judiciary committee, he would write a letter to Roberts which would be right interesting.

Reports got about Capitol Hill yesterday that the President probably would withdraw the nomination, which drew opposition from Virginia Senators and a 15-3 rejection of the Judiciary committee.

ABC Officers Get Pitt County Still

Pitt county ABC officers today arrested K. G. Williams of Pactolus township on a charge of having material in his possession for the purpose of manufacturing liquor.

The man was arrested in a woods near his home. Officers said they found a 50-gallon new copper kettle, copper connections and three 50-gallon barrels. Nearby a new axe, shovel and some brick were found.

Yesterday afternoon the ABC officers destroyed a still which was found in a woods back of the Stone Mills farm. The still was a 150-gallon capacity plant. No beer was found, but fermenting containers with a total capacity of approximately 10,000 gallons were at the scene. Officers said it was probable that the owner was preparing to move the still.

Craft Warned

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau warned small craft today to stay in port from Cape Hatteras south to Jacksonville on the Atlantic seaboard and from Tampa Bay northward to Carabelle on the Gulf coast.

The warning said there would be fresh to strong south and southeast winds today, shifting to northwest tonight or Saturday morning.

President Terms 'Lie' Statement He Had Said U. S. Frontier In France

Asks Operation

Norman Williams (above), sentenced to die in the electric chair Feb. 14 for murder, is shown in the county jail at Atlanta, Ga., where he awaited a physician's examination to determine whether he should have his tonsils removed beforehand. Williams, complaining of a sore throat, requested the operation. The sheriff said he would ask a court order granting the request provided jail officials considered it necessary.

MAYOR BLOUNT IN STATEMENT

Tells Board He Will Not Seek Another Two-Year Term

Mayor Marvin K. Blount, announced to the Board of Aldermen last night that he would not be a candidate for re-election in the May election.

Mr. Blount was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Mayor H. C. Flanagan in 1935 and was elected to a two-year term in 1937.

In connection with his decision not to seek post again, Mr. Blount issued the following statement: "I have decided not to become a candidate for re-election to the office of Mayor in May. In making my decision I have had to consider my personal affairs. The office of Mayor is one of great responsibility, and particularly has this been true during the past several years due to the fact that both Federal and State Agencies have been active in aiding municipalities in the construction of public works."

I want to express to the citizens my appreciation for the honor bestowed upon me and the co-operation which has been given my administration by the public. I will have completed almost four years when my term expires July first. It has been a great pleasure to serve in this capacity, and while it has been a great deal of my time I have enjoyed it to the fullest.

Greenville is a growing town and has made great progress during the past several years. Since the last census in 1930, there has been an increase in population of 60 per cent. At the present time, through the aid of the Public Works Administration, we have under construction a Municipal Building. Fire (Continued on Page Three)

Liquor And Prohibition Not Dead Issues By Far

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Feb. 3.—Along with the groundhog and his weather forecasts, there were obvious signs of dry weather in the House yesterday.—have been for the past several days, in fact.

Several months ago this correspondence forecast there would be no general or intensive drive in the General Assembly for a statewide referendum on the liquor question but rather that the drys had abandoned all plans for a large-scale campaign and would concentrate on "booring from within" tactics in the form of local bills prohibiting the sale of even beer and wine in numerous counties.

This forecast is now being amply borne out by the event, as bills seeking to make Sabaras of Avery and Madison counties have already been introduced and at least one other—from Odus Mull for Cleveland county—is considered a certainty.

Informally Re-States Foreign Policy At Press Parley

HOLDS REPORTS 'MANUFACTURED'

Blames Legislative and Newspaper-Owner Agitators for 'Misrepresentation'

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt termed a "deliberate lie" today a statement that he had said the American frontier is on the Rhine.

The President at a press conference, at which he related American foreign policy informally, also described as a lie the report that he had said the American frontier was in France.

The Chief executive declared some reports of his conference with the Senate Military committee last Tuesday had given an erroneous impression of this nation's policy. He added most of them had been manufactured by some legislative and newspaper-owner agitators, and they were a deliberate misrepresentation of existing facts.

This nation's foreign policy, the President said, has not changed and would not be changed. He reiterated it to be:

1. Opposition to any entangling alliances; 2. maintenance of world trade for all nations, including ourselves; 3. we are in sympathy with each and every effort to reduce or limit armaments.

As a nation, we are sympathetic with the peaceful maintenance of political, economic and social independence of all nations in the world, he said.

That, the President emphasized, was every simple and there was absolutely nothing new in it.

Mr. Roosevelt said the people were beginning to realize that the things they have read from agitators of the legislative and newspaper-owner variety in connection with the defense and foreign policy programs were pure bunk.

School Destroyed By Hendersonville Fire

Hendersonville, N. C., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Fire early today at the Blue Ridge school for boys here destroyed the entire main section of the school.

Cause of the blaze was unknown, but it was believed wires blown down last night during a storm ignited the structure.

The fire was discovered as the students were leaving the assembly hall. Orderly evacuation followed and no one was hurt.

J. R. Sandifer, owner of the property, said he was unable to estimate the damage. Some insurance was carried, he said.

Negro Girl Injured When Struck By Auto

Carrie Emma Grimes, six-year-old Negro girl, was critically injured about 12:30 this afternoon when she was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. E. G. Flanagan, Jr., on West Fifth street.

The child was taken to the hospital with a broken arm and fractured skull.

Soil experts estimate that approximately 7,000,000 acres, of 18 per cent, of the land in cultivation in the United States, is too poor for profitable crop production.

FEARED EIGHT LOST LIVES IN SYRACUSE FIRE

Firemen Buried When Walls of Building Collapse

EIGHT PLUNGED INTO BASEMENT

Three Men in Hospital with Injuries Sustained in Fighting Office Building Fire

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The plight of eight firemen buried for more than five hours in the fire-scarred ruins of a five-story office building was described by rescuers as "hopeless" when the structure's two remaining walls fell inward today.

"We've just about given up hope of getting any of them out alive," declared the district fire chief.

Collapse of the two side walls of the building piled tons of additional debris upon the trapped men who were fighting the blaze from the third floor when the roof collapsed and carried them with it into the basement.

Three other firemen lay injured in hospitals.

Fire department officials, quoting rescue workers as saying earlier they had heard voices emerging from beneath heaps of smoking debris which hid the basement, held out hope that some of the missing men still were alive.

Efforts of rescue crews, however, were hampered when a rear wall, weakened by the flames which raged through the structure during the early morning hours, came crashing down.

Police, fire and public works departments forces were mobilized by the city to speed the rescue work.

One man, identified as Fireman William Moore, was removed thru a side wall grating an hour after the collapse and taken to a hospital critically injured.

Alderman Tadlock Resigns Position

A. C. Tadlock, one of the two representatives on the Board of Aldermen from the fourth ward, last night resigned from that body because he was automatically disqualified when he moved his residence from the section included in the ward.

The board accepted Alderman Tadlock's resignation "with regret." A successor to serve until the May election will be named by the board at a later date.

The terms of the mayor and four aldermen expire June 30. Mayor Blount announced last night he would not seek the office for another term.

The terms of Aldermen Tadlock, fourth ward; L. B. Fleming, first; Jack Spain, second; J. D. Simpson, third; and Troy Burnett, fifth, expire this year. Hold-overs will be J. A. Watson, second; J. M. Tait, second; and Dr. M. B. Massey, fourth. Wards one and five have only one alderman, while each of the other three have two.

EXPLOSION IN TWO SUBWAYS

Blasts in London Signal Renewal of Outrages

London, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Bomb explosions in two subway stations near the center of London today signaled the renewal of a series of anti-English outrages attributed by Scotland Yard to Irish Republican agitators.

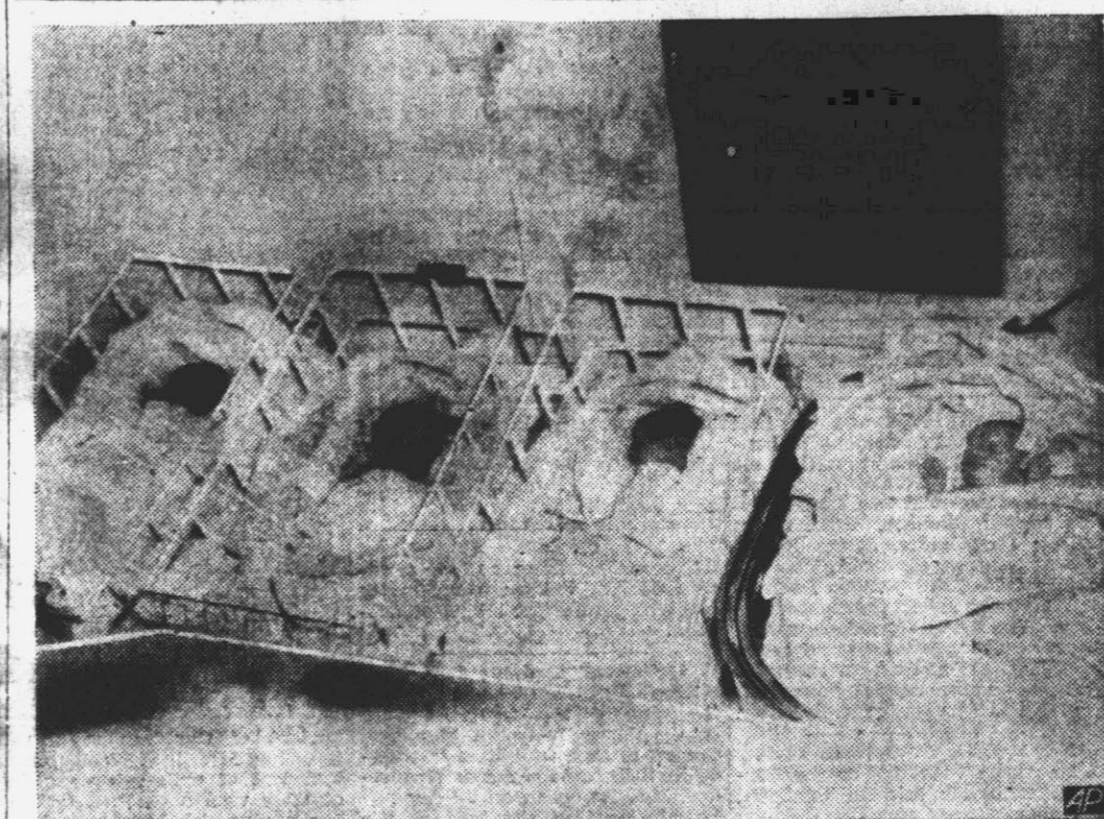

The blasts occurred almost simultaneously about 6 a. m. in the Leicester Square and Tottenham Court Road subway station, about a quarter of a mile apart. Apparently the bombs were timed to go off before the rush hour began.

Squads of Scotland Yard detectives and police hastily blocked the entrances to both stations, turning away thousands of puzzled office workers. London's complex transportation system was thrown into a snarl.

A ticket collector at the Tottenham station was seriously injured and five persons were hurt at Leicester Square.

So strong was the blast in the Tottenham station that telephone receivers in a long row of booths were blown from their hooks. Dynamite had been placed in the luggage room, the walls of which were shattered.

PAPA'S REPORTED DOING WELL, TOO!

Here you see the four reasons why Papa W. E. Badgett, 35, of Galveston, Texas, is smiling so broadly these days. He was prepared for triplets but Mrs. Badgett presented him with quadruplet daughters—Joyce, Jeanette, Joan and Geraldine. Sorry we can't give you left to right identification, but your guess is as good as ours. Mrs. Badgett, the girls—and Mr. Badgett—are reported doing well.

CITY CHARTER TO BE CHANGED

Legislative Program Adopted by Board of Aldermen

A legislative program for the city of Greenville was one of the main topics of discussion at last night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

A bill to change the charter to set up the city manager form of government is being drafted by Harding and Lee, city attorneys.

Under the plan the Board of Aldermen would be replaced by a city council, to be employed at the will of the council and to serve the council in an administrative capacity at the head of all city departments.

It also is proposed by the board to amend the charter to provide for the establishment of a planning commission and a park commission if such bodies are desired. Each commission would be composed of five men, with one member retiring each year.

Another proposal would make the city manager a member ex-officio of the Water and Light Commission and of the School board.

A five-member Water and Light commission instead of the present three-man is planned.

Numerous other matters were taken up by the board.

Mayor Blount, City Manager Marvin Westmoreland and the baseball club officials on a contract for use of the athletic field this season.

A committee reported that furniture and fixtures had been selected for the new municipal building.

The clerk was instructed to pay bills, after they have been approved, when a discount can be saved. All bills heretofore have been held up pending approval by the full board.

TWO CONVICTS FLEE IN TRUCK

Break Lock on Garage Door and Steal Prison Vehicle

Two prisoners who stole a truck and escaped from the Pitt County prison camp last night about 7:30 o'clock were still at large this afternoon although the various law enforcement officers were conducting a thorough search for the pair.

The two men are Simon Garris, 27, sentenced March 22, 1937, in Halifax county to from four to six years for larceny; and John Williams, 23, sentenced to from one and a half to two years for house breaking and larceny in Mecklenburg county.

WORTHINGTON FOR ECONOMY

Local Solon Leads in Fight to Cut Appropriations

S. O. Worthington, one of Pitt county's two representatives in the lower House of the General Assembly, is one of the leaders of the economy bloc in the joint appropriations committee, press dispatches indicate.

Representative Worthington was active in debate yesterday on a move to slice the State ABC Board appropriation from $126,620 to $26,420.

During debate the Pitt solon told the committee that F. Webb Williams of Pasquotank, a member of the State board, received $3,828.10 in expenses and per diem for attending board meetings since the board was established by the 1937 legislature.

Representative Worthington also declared that Thomas J. Murphy, another member of the board, received $1,506.50 and W. C. Feinster, another member, $416.

The committee's economy bloc, headed by Representative Worthington, Rupert Pickens of Guilford and D. Lacy McBreré of Cumberland, dumped off with honors again yesterday. Cuts for 1939-41 during the afternoon totaled $142,900 and brought to $509,659 the total cut since Monday when budget revision began.

Yesterday also saw the first increase of the week, a yearly appropriation of $4,500 for credit union promotion. That two-year allotment, backed by Senator Ballentine, brought the net cut for the week to $509,659.

N.C. Agricultural Program Endangered By Jealousy

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Feb. 3.—Latent fear of those really interested in progressive agricultural program for North Carolina, that inter-departmental jealousy might jeopardize that program was brought into the open by Chairman "Cap" Eagles of the House committee at a joint session of the group which has been considering duplication between State College and the State Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Eagles was very earnest. He called attention to the urgent need for more money for research and regulation, mentioning specifically hog cholera and Japanese beetle control. And he warned that members of the legislature were not taking kindly to so much discussion of duplication and wasted money, and that all this talk was making large appropriations extremely doubtful. (Incidentally, the Tompkins bill appropriating $30,000 for Japanese beetle control was taken from the appropriations committee and re-referred to agriculture just a few

WANTS FRANCE TO HELP SPAIN

Socialist Party Begins New Campaign To Secure Aid

Paris, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The French Socialist party, encouraged by the avowed determination of the Spanish Government to carry on the civil war, began a new campaign today to win French aid for the Loyalists.

Former Premier Blum's party published "an appeal to the people of France," urging that war supplies be rushed to the Spanish Government forces to end "the prospect of war" which would arise from Insurgent triumph.

This action came at a moment when semi-official overtures were being made to Insurgent General Franco for inaugurating relations between France and Insurgent Spain.

Senator Berard was traveling to Burgos for a conversation with his friend Franco and was understood to have the approval of Premier Daladier.

The Senator's immediate aim was to negotiate safe transfer through Insurgent Spain of Spanish Government troops who fled into France after Barcelona's fall.

Barcelona, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Insurgent Military Intelligence Service, with Barcelona's famed "fifth column" supplying information for arrests, is rapidly rounding up the enemies of the Franco regime.

The "fifth column" is composed of Insurgent sympathizers who during the two and a half years of war have risked their lives in espionage activities under the nose of the Government.

Auto Owners Warned To Get City License

Assistant Chief of Police J. L. Whitchard today warned all Greenville persons owning automobiles and had not purchased their 1939 license tag to do so at once or face possible arrest and cost of court in addition to the price of the tag.

Through January 31 this year 1,148 city plates had been sold, compared with 1,188 on the same date a year ago. The tags may be secured at the City Hall at one dollar each.

minutes after Mr. Eagles issued his warning.

Yesterday's meeting of the joint sub-committee was in great contrast with that of the previous day when tempers flared and ill-advised statements were made by both college and department men. The committee has come into fuller realization of the very important task before them. At the last meeting there was no foolishness. Consequently members felt that some progress has been made, and these concrete results can be given.

The sub-committee thinks highly of the suggestion made by Mr. Coltrane, assistant to the commissioner, for a joint committee to be selected from and by the state board of agriculture and the trustees of State College, with the governor as chairman, to consider all questions of overlapping activities. But there is fear that this process may be too slow.

The need is for immediate action that will convince members this (Continued on page three)

VOTE TO HOLD OPEN HEARING ON CROWN TAX

Debate Scheduled Next Tuesday Before Joint Group

FIRST ELECTION LAW IS ENACTED

Committee Debates at Length State-wide Absentee Law, But Defers Any Action

Raleigh, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The joint legislative Finance committee announced today it would hold a public hearing Tuesday on a proposal to impose a crown tax on bottled soft drinks.

The committee is engaged in a hunt for revenue to offset budget recommendations for tuition increases for North Carolina residents at state-supported colleges. The tuition proposal is expected to be defeated, though prices may be raised to out-of-state residents.

Representatives passed and sent to the Senate a bill to give the Governor continued authority to appoint up to six special Superior court judges. The measure went to the Senate.

House members debated a Senate-passed bill to tighten laws on indecent exposure, then re-referred the proposal to committee, after Representative Clegg of Moore had argued that, as drawn, "this bill is absolutely prohibitive and destructive of human rights." Representative Pickens of Guilford sought to amend the act to make it unlawful to disclose in a "public" place in the presence of a third person, contending that the bill as drawn applied to any place.

The Guilford solon contended his amendment was not intended as a "joker" when such charges were made by Moore of Pitt.

The first bill to change election laws to pass either house got approval of Representatives today and went to the Senate. It would put Burke county under the state primary law.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill to permit governmental units to compromise tax claims against any state-controlled railroads. The measure is to benefit the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad.

Representatives Butler of Burke, Sealey of Currituck and Moore of Wilson, introduced a bill to create a five-member commission to study the feasibility of erecting an institution for the feeble minded in Western North Carolina.

Representatives on the election laws committee debated at length a proposal to repeal the absentee ballot law for primaries, but left the question open.

Oregon Statesman Claimed By Death

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Frederick Steiwer, who served 11 years as a Republican Senator from Oregon, died early today at the age of 65.

Near the end of his second term he resigned from the Senate January 31, 1938, to practice law here. He had not been in the best of health for the last three years.

Steiwer delivered the keynote address at the Republican National convention in Cleveland in 1936 and had been mentioned that year as a possible presidential nominee.

SHORTEST MONTH And These Are The Shortest Items

The comic Valentine will soon be along. Warm weather today, but look out tomorrow.

It is easier to catch the gripe than it is to turn it loose.

Thursday night's rain nearly finished the snow.

Many people are imagining their heads have reached double size. It is bad colds.

The bad weather has continued so long now that everybody would be glad to see something better.

We have not heard of any steps being taken by Greenville merchants looking to the repeal of the merchants' purchase tax law.

Meet Too Soon. Some folks can see a long way ahead, and are already predicting that this will be a good crop year. Before there is even a seed planted, too. They can guess better about next August.

Mrs. E. R. Goodhall. The Inabell Coleman Circle (business women) will meet on Monday night because of the school of missions.

Officers' Training Day. The officers of circle leaders of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville were instructed in their various duties Wednesday, Feb. 1st, when an all-day fellowship meeting was held at the home of our new president, Mrs. J. H. Blount.

Prior to the arrival of our out-of-town guests, Mrs. Blount held an executive board meeting. Several items of special business were quickly dispatched. Every member of her cabinet save two, were present.

Mrs. E. L. Hillman of New Bern, our conference president, presided, and presented Mrs. W. C. Chadwick, conference secretary, who gave us a splendid devotional taken from Matt. 7:26. She told us that a threatening curse of this age is its shallowness with regard to things fundamental. This is not true of the material world where we build skyscrapers, railroads or bridges, but we face that danger when we turn to matters of the soul. The practice of veneering is employed everywhere. Building on the rock is our only assurance of stability and peace in the midst of life's temptations.

After this very inspiring message, Mrs. Hillman brought to us some of the challenges of women. She assured us that the work in our missionary auxiliaries is one of the most important of our church activities and it was a great privilege to have a part in helping to build God's kingdom around the world. She closed this splendid message by asking us, first, to test our motives; second, test our intelligence, and third, test our giving.

Mrs. B. F. Boone of Zebulon, our conference superintendent of study, was the next speaker. She outlined the three studies for the year and complimented our local superintendent, Mrs. W. C. Vincent. She brought along four quarterly reports she had received from Mrs. Vincent and classed them as perfect reports, of which all of us were very proud.

Mrs. Brown of Ayden, our conference superintendent of publicity, told of the vastness of her duties and the work kept her so busy that she didn't even get the time to read the material she was sending throughout the conference.

Mrs. Gerie Matthews of New Bern, our district secretary, instructed our circle leaders in their duties. She jokingly stated that the secretaries had been classed as "pack horses," and it was the opinion of the circle leaders that they belonged in that same class. We are very fortunate in having two of our conference officers living in Greenville and these were the next speakers, Mrs. H. L. Rivers, superin-

College Professor Writes Biography

Dr. R. L. Hildrup, of the History Department of East Carolina Teachers College, has just completed a biography entitled "The Life and Times of Edmund Pendleton," which will be published soon by the University of North Carolina Press. In its final form the book will contain about 325 pages, including illustrations, bibliography, and index.

Of particular interest to North Carolinians is the fact, brought out in this book, that Pendleton permitted John Penn, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence for North Carolina, to study law in his office. When Penn, who was poor, began to practice, Pendleton gave him a law library.

Dr. Hildrup began to collect material for this biography in 1935, shortly after completing a dissertation on a convention over which Pendleton had presided.

No life of Pendleton had ever been written, though at least three persons had made the attempt without getting to the printers. Moreover, no one had ever collected all his papers. Consequently manuscripts were found scattered all over the country, the one farthest away being in California.

Other letters in the handwriting of Pendleton, Dr. Hildrup located in the following libraries: the Library of Congress; those of the Maryland Historical Society, the Massachusetts Historical Society, the New York Historical Society, the Virginia Historical Society, the Wisconsin Historical Society, and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania; the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania; the Virginia Library and the Library of the University of Virginia.

Without the valuable assistance rendered by librarians of these institutions and by Librarian J. R. Gullidge of East Carolina Teachers College, the author feels certain, he says, that he would not have been able to collect these manuscripts.

In all, Dr. Hildrup has copied or purchased photostats of about two hundred of Pendleton's letters and he believes that he has in his folders more copies of them than exist at any other single spot in the world; but he isn't too sure of that for, "after all" he says "the world is a mighty big place and there are a lot of 'critters' in it who are inclined to do many queer things. The main thesis of the book is that Patrick Henry and his Radicals have been given too much credit for the Revolution in Virginia that it was Edmund Pendleton, at the head of a Moderate Party, who holding the balance of power between the Radicals and the Conservatives, successfully guided the American Revolution through some of its most important phases. While Henry was uttering many wild and extravagant oratorical phrases, Pendleton was striving to keep the Ship of State on an even keel.

He succeeded well, according to Dr. Hildrup, if the number of high offices to which he was chosen is any indication of success. In addition to being one of the most prominent lawyers and legislators of colonial Virginia, Pendleton was a delegate to both Continental Congresses, chairman of the Committee of Safety (which was equivalent to being the governor) and president of two Revolutionary Conventions in Virginia. He subsequently became the first chief justice of the Supreme court of his state and presided over the Convention held in Richmond in 1788 which ratified the Federal Constitution.

"The life and times of Edmund

Pendleton should be a valuable contribution to the understanding of the part played by Virginia in the Revolution.

Dr. Hildrup came to the History Department of East Carolina Teachers College in 1936.

What a comfort to know that VapoRub goes to work right away to relieve the misery of his cold without "dosing"—without risk of stomach upsets. And what a comfort to know that long after restless sleep comes, VapoRub will still be working—two ways at once—direct through the skin like a poultice, and direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. You'll find that often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

STILL FIGHTING ON DIVERSION

Cats and Anti-Diversionists Have Nine Lives

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb 3—Cats and anti-diversionists have nine lives. Defeated in their very first House test, 62 to 38, on a question of what committee should get the "Good Roads" bill; smashed so badly in the Senate Finance committee on the same measure that there was no official minority report—only a "statement" in writing by three dissenting members—and apparently in full retreat on all fronts, opponents of the Administration's $7,000,000 diversion program are still shouting threats of defiance and threatening to put legislators "on the spot" by means of a definitive and conclusive roll call vote somewhere along the line.

Perhaps these threats will prove in the same category as those of the Spanish Loyalist radio men who were still broadcasting that Barcelona would be defended to the death while Franco's men marched gaily into the city; but as a matter of cold, legislative fact the Antis can get that test in any of several ways.

Action of the Senate committee, to be technical about the thing, doesn't even connect with the specific provision of law over which the battle has been waged—those provisions are in the Revenue bill and a record vote can be forced on it when reached—always provided that those who seek such a record vote can muster one-fifth of the members present for the vote. These are legislative rules.

The Antis seem clearly whipped on the main issue, but in the "written statement" filed with the Senate's unfavorable report, three of them (Senators John Umstead, "Doggie" Hatcher and Willie Lee Lumpkin) in effect claimed "victory in defeat."

They claimed that two of the Good Roads Bill objectives have been reached, or are in sight, at least—first, through action of the Appropriation committee in slashing proposed expenses for the coming biennium in such fashion as to give hopes that there will be no need to divert funds from the Highway department, and second, because Governor Clyde R. Hoey in his address to the legislature pledge adequate support and maintenance of the secondary roads of North Carolina.

They threaten to fight on unless and until these objectives are completely attained; but the observers are practically unanimous in belief that the backbone of the anti-diversion has been broken.

There were some strange and surprising things about that Senate committee vote. For instance there was the fact that the unfavorable report for the Good Roads bill was moved by Senator John D. Larkins, Jr., who prior to convening of the legislature made a number of public addresses in which he opposed diversion and predicted passage of a Constitutional amendment banning it.

Then there was the bald misstatement of Senator Joe Blythe's vote which appeared in the Raleigh News and Observer. This paper listed the Mecklenburger as voting for the unfavorable report, when on the contrary he voted against it. He assured your correspondent of this yesterday and reiterated his unchanged opposition to diversion.

Then there were several other Senators who were expected to vote for a favorable report and did not do so among them Gold of Guilford, McIntyre of Robeson and Thomas of Harnett.

And most surprising of all why were Umstead and Lumpkin absent when the vote was taken and why couldn't Hatcher get even one Senator to second his motion for a favorable report? Maybe there will be adequate answers to these questions sooner or later as the "inside" stories get a bit more general circulation.

Station and Street Department, all of which when completed will mean much to the efficient operation of one City Government. These improvements, along with others such as the paving program just completed, are financed in the budget by a 55 per cent of the cost by the City and 45 per cent as a gift from the Federal Government. There are many other improvements in contemplation, some of which have been approved, and work thereon will begin in the near future.

These embrace, principally, our streets and highways in and near the city. Even with these improvements there will be no increase in our present tax rate of $1.00. This is made possible on account of our increase in revenues to the Water and Light and taxes from increased building activity. With efficient operation of our City government the present rate can and should be reduced within the next few years. In the growth of Greenville, I have found that its citizens appreciate progress, and it is my hope and wish that Greenville will continue to go forward and that its citizens will co-operate to the end that we may grow and become better in every way. We have many fine civic organizations which are working for the progress and welfare of all of our citizens.

The duties and responsibilities of the city require the best business management possible, and the board of aldermen, after mature consideration and study, has voted to recommend legislation to our Representatives and the General Assembly for the establishment of a City-Manager form of government. There is nothing new about this system of government. Already in North Carolina there are nineteen towns, including our neighbors, Rock, Mount, Wilson and Goldsboro, which have this form of government. This form of government would require an amendment to our Charter, authorizing the Council to employ an Agent to be known as City Manager. This person shall serve and subject at all times to the will of the Board and if his services prove unsatisfactory he may be discharged at any time. If Greenville is to go forward we must put business into our government. If this is not done, we cannot have economical government and the inevitable result will be higher taxes. Our Tax rate now is reasonable and we hope to keep it such. Surely we would not undertake to operate a large business without a competent head. No corporation could long exist without a business manager, and the City-Manager form of government merely gives to the Council or Board of Aldermen the power to designate a person as manager and who will be charged with the duty of executing the orders and decrees of the Council. At the present time there is no executive head of our government, except the Mayor, who is a part-time employee and a man in many instances, as myself, not trained in municipal government. The City Manager will be charged with the duty of supervision of all departments within the city and to see that they function properly. He will be selected by the Board for his qualifications and training in municipal affairs. There will be the same aldermanic representation of the Board, but the name of the governing Board will be changed to City Council, instead of Board of Aldermen. The exercise of all administrative authority will be concentrated in this appointive executive who is accountable to the Council. He provides the Council with information which enables it to determine municipal policies, advises the Council in matters of policy, if the Council so desires, and executes the policies determined by the Council. He introduces the best principals of advanced administrative organization and practice and is held responsible for the proper co-ordination of all administrative activities under his direction. He is to keep the public informed through reports to the Council regarding the operation of the city government. Let us remember again that Greenville has many possibilities and with this set-up there will be great improvement and many savings to the taxpayer. Our present form of government is the same we have been operating under since the town was first chartered as a municipality. As we grow we need to adopt modern methods, and this form of government is being offered to the public by the present Board after serious thought and study. After it is once understood it is my belief that the public will overwhelmingly favor this improved method of handling the public business.

It is time now that we go slow in voting further bond issues. Our present program has in it many wonderful improvements, and it was made possible by Federal aid which we could hardly afford to overlook, since in a very few years the improvements we are now making would have to be made to take care of the growth and progress of the City. Never before have the Federal Government and State Agencies been so much concerned with local problems, and it is necessary that the executive head of the government be a man of experience and knowledge of these existing agencies in order to avail the City of the advantages and aid that come from this source. Much has been secured for Greenville, such as Tenth Street, the Underpass, the Armory, a large part of the cost of the Athletic Field, and other projects. Again, I wish to say that I have given my best to the service of the citizens of Greenville, and thank all for their co-operation and assistance.

legislation that the extension forces at State College and the department of agriculture are more interested in serving the farmers than in the question of who shall do the serving—and get the credit therefor. No more of the sub-committee doubts member of the sub-committee doubts the sincerity of either group but undeniably there are legislators who do doubt it.

As a sort of temporary stop-gap provision was made for appointment of three specialists each from the college and the department to confer with Commissioner Scott and Dean Schaub right away, and to present in writing to the sub-committee next Thursday their findings upon two questions: First are those items upon which all parties are completely in agreement; and second, those upon which they do not agree. On the last named item the specialists are to offer their differing suggestions and proposed solution. The sub-committee will take these recommendations into executive session and work out the committee program. Finally, if the committee program can be made agreeable to both college and department, serious thought will be given to the setting up of the permanent super-joint committee proposed by Mr. Coltrane.

Whatever solution may ultimately be found for the problem, the raising of the issue at this time and the argument about it has done the cause of agriculture no good at all. There may continue to be difference of opinion as to the precipitated row. Whoever it was must bear responsibility for possible lower appropriations for research and control.

North Carolina cultivated three per cent less land in 1938 than in 1937.

LET UP LIGHT UP A CAMEL

SMOKERS FIND THAT CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

101 STORIES UP on the world's tallest building, Sidney Evert swings in the wind with only a frail scaffold between him and—well, it's 1100 feet to the street. His work is to repair windows in the tower of the Empire State Building. Nerve straining, you bet, but as Sid Evert says: "A fellow with jumpy nerves wouldn't last long on my job. So I ease the tension on my nerves whenever I can. I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels are soothing to the nerves." Smokers in a wide variety of nerve-nagging occupations, nerve-straining sports turn to Camels for the same reason. They find it pays to ease nerve tension often. So they let up—light up a Camel!

"TRAPPED ON A BLAZING WRECK," Captain Hans Milton displayed courage and nerve-power that won him head-lines from coast to coast. He says: "On the schooner Pioneer, afire 400 miles out of Halifax, we had a little food and water and some Camels. Those Camels were a great comfort through the nerve strain of worry and danger. It's a rule with me, whenever I feel my nerves getting tense, keyed-up, to let up—light up a Camel."

(above) A GORDON SETTER is pictured here—a handsome, muscular dog to be proud of. It's a thrill to watch his flashing action. And it's a valuable lesson to observe that after strenuous activities, this dog suddenly halts... relaxes! Though his nervous system is high-strung like our own, the dog responds quickly to the instinctive urge to rest. We don't usually look after our nerves that well. Perhaps you have often willed yourself on... hour after hour at a task... ignoring nerve strain. Try breaking that nerve strain occasionally—pause now and then—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic.

DO WE NEED A CITY MANAGER?

Frankly, we are not sufficiently familiar with the City Manager form of government as proposed before the Board of Aldermen last night, to say that it should or should not be adopted, but we do feel that the proposed changes in the town's charter to provide for several commissions including a Park Commission, Planning Commission and Zoning Commission are a lot of superfluous that will in the end add to our tax bills without equivalent value in return.

Until we can give careful study to the plan we hesitate to take a definite stand on it, but we do urge our people to likewise give careful study to the proposed changes and let their opinions and wishes in the matter be known to our legislators before the bill is introduced in the General Assembly.

If a city manager means what the dictionary terms it we are for it, for the dictionary says that a manager is "a skillful economist," and we certainly feel that if any town ever needed such Greenville has needed one for a long time.

At this time Greenville is in the midst of a public building program financed by bond issues and federal grants and it is our opinion and that of many of our local citizens that the program is extravagant and that our taxpayers are not getting value received for the part of the bills they must foot, to say nothing of the public grants.

We don't know whether a city manager can bring about the needed changes in our finances or not, but we do know that within the past several years Greenville's bonded indebtedness has increased over half a million dollars while its tax reserves have decreased fifty per cent, with the result that on December 31 just passed the city's bonded indebtedness stood at approximately one and a half million dollars with uncollected taxes of only $65,000. Based on these figures we see no way out without an increase in the local tax rates, despite the fact that each time there has been a bond issue before the people they have been advised by the sponsors that no tax increase would be necessary.

We repeat, we don't know whether "a skillful economist" can improve our present situation or not, but we do know that Greenville at this time certainly needs "ECONOMY" in the operation of its affairs.

Pitt's John S. Moore and S. O. Worthington sit on directly opposite sides of the House chamber as far apart as it is possible for two legislators to get; but there is nothing significant about it.

Mr. Moore says it came about because he was determined to get an aisle seat at this session. "Two years ago Clarence Stone just about wore my knee caps off while I was trying to get by him."

When the repeater from 1937 bid for seats he got an aisle, but there wasn't one immediately next to his, and so Mr. Worthington later on was assigned the far-off one he now occupies.

Zeb Vance Turlington, who gave his name to the famed North Carolina bone dry law hasn't the slightest intention of introducing any measure about liquor at this session.

"In fact," he told your correspondent, "if I introduce any legislation at all it will be to permit rabbit hunting in the snow."

First tie vote in the House came Thursday while, rather oddly, Libby Ward, the Speaker, wasn't in the chair and so the duty of breaking it devolved upon Nash's bull-throated Claude Abernethy, temporarily presiding. Moore's C. R. Clegg had offered an amendment permitting confiscated liquor to be donated to "county homes and other charitable institutions" as well as to "hospitals." A teller count showed 43 for, 43 against. Claude voted "no" and the amendment failed.

Among former legislators to get floor "courtesies" Thursday were Malcolm McQueen of Cumberland and Tom Smith to Robeson. The Senate bill inviting England's Royalty to visit North Carolina had reached the House calendar with a favorable report from the committee on propositions and grievances.

Two records were established in the senate at its brief Thursday session: The longest bill of the session and the bill with the longest title were offered. Senator Bain introduced the "administration" wage-hour bill providing for regulation of workers as to hours, wages, etc., and bearing a title 112 words long.

Sitting exactly opposite Bain on the west side, Senator Gold sent up a bill of 142 full typewritten pages, introduced at the request of the Governor. The Gold bill is to amend and revise the laws relating to the estate of deceased persons, to conveyances by husband and wife, to the transmission of property by wills, to the administration of estates, to guardianships, and the repeal of statutes in conflict therewith.

Almost immediately Senator Gold announced a thirty-minute meeting of his Judiciary committee for this morning, and members began asking if he expected to dispose of that 142 pages in 30 minutes. He didn't.

Senator Separk asked for printing of 1,000 copies of the wage-hour bill; but no one tried to impose upon the printing fund for the Gold book.

Representative John Kerr, Jr. of Warren, active on the appropriations committee, thinks the committee has been going too fast in lopping off suggested appropriations to state institutions and departments. He had considerable hand in checking the "economy bloc" and insists upon consideration of each case on its merits. Conditions change so rapidly, he said, that items which were necessary two years ago may not be needed now, while others not now important may assume tremendous importance during the next two years. Mr. Kerr is, therefore, opposed to any horizontal cutting or any recommendation without very careful study.

One of the nation's earliest strikes developed at New Orleans in 1706. Woman of the tiny colony threatened to leave because they were obliged to eat cornbread.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 3.—Grady Withrow had introduced a bill changing the name to Hampton, a Rutherford municipality, to Ruth when up rose "Pete" Murphy to inquire whether the town was being renamed in honor of the Ruth of Biblical fame or of the slugging Babe of baseball immortals.
"They just want to make a lady of it," replied Withrow.

Mr. Murphy, the Salisbury veteran, referred to in the paragraph above, found himself temporarily outranked on the House floor Thursday when "courtiers" were extended to Wilson's W. R. Dixon, who sat as a member of the 1895 legislature and returned again in 1897, the year "Pete" did his first legislative hitch.

The House took the Japanese Beetle bill away from Appropriations and referred it to Agriculture, and now observers are wondering: If the latter committee argued for nearly three weeks over turnip seed, how long will it take to agree on Japanese beetles and a $30,000 appropriation.

Columbus county's Raymond Malord hasn't any use for the Department of Conservation and Development and doesn't hesitate to say so. He declares himself ready "on or off the record" to call it the "biggest graft in North Carolina." "Why they even get more money to protect the lives of fishes than the State Board of Health gets to protect and save the lives of people," he boiled.

Pitt's John S. Moore and S. O. Worthington sit on directly opposite sides of the House chamber as far apart as it is possible for two legislators to get; but there is nothing significant about it.

Mr. Moore says it came about because he was determined to get an aisle seat at this session. "Two years ago Clarence Stone just about wore my knee caps off while I was trying to get by him."

When the repeater from 1937 bid for seats he got an aisle, but there wasn't one immediately next to his, and so Mr. Worthington later on was assigned the far-off one he now occupies.

Zeb Vance Turlington, who gave his name to the famed North Carolina bone dry law hasn't the slightest intention of introducing any measure about liquor at this session.

"In fact," he told your correspondent, "if I introduce any legislation at all it will be to permit rabbit hunting in the snow."

First tie vote in the House came Thursday while, rather oddly, Libby Ward, the Speaker, wasn't in the chair and so the duty of breaking it devolved upon Nash's bull-throated Claude Abernethy, temporarily presiding. Moore's C. R. Clegg had offered an amendment permitting confiscated liquor to be donated to "county homes and other charitable institutions" as well as to "hospitals." A teller count showed 43 for, 43 against. Claude voted "no" and the amendment failed.

Among former legislators to get floor "courtesies" Thursday were Malcolm McQueen of Cumberland and Tom Smith to Robeson. The Senate bill inviting England's Royalty to visit North Carolina had reached the House calendar with a favorable report from the committee on propositions and grievances.

Two records were established in the senate at its brief Thursday session: The longest bill of the session and the bill with the longest title were offered. Senator Bain introduced the "administration" wage-hour bill providing for regulation of workers as to hours, wages, etc., and bearing a title 112 words long.

Sitting exactly opposite Bain on the west side, Senator Gold sent up a bill of 142 full typewritten pages, introduced at the request of the Governor. The Gold bill is to amend and revise the laws relating to the estate of deceased persons, to conveyances by husband and wife, to the transmission of property by wills, to the administration of estates, to guardianships, and the repeal of statutes in conflict therewith.

Almost immediately Senator Gold announced a thirty-minute meeting of his Judiciary committee for this morning, and members began asking if he expected to dispose of that 142 pages in 30 minutes. He didn't.

Senator Separk asked for printing of 1,000 copies of the wage-hour bill; but no one tried to impose upon the printing fund for the Gold book.

Representative John Kerr, Jr. of Warren, active on the appropriations committee, thinks the committee has been going too fast in lopping off suggested appropriations to state institutions and departments. He had considerable hand in checking the "economy bloc" and insists upon consideration of each case on its merits. Conditions change so rapidly, he said, that items which were necessary two years ago may not be needed now, while others not now important may assume tremendous importance during the next two years. Mr. Kerr is, therefore, opposed to any horizontal cutting or any recommendation without very careful study.

One of the nation's earliest strikes developed at New Orleans in 1706. Woman of the tiny colony threatened to leave because they were obliged to eat cornbread.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

The Characters.
Petri Mallone: An adventurous young reporter.
Petronella: His loyal sister.
Tony Lance: Famous foreign correspondent.

Chapter 15
Michael's Party

THREE months had passed. It was springtime of 1932. Tomorrow, Petronella must start work again from 9:30 till 6 o'clock. The Trilight Insurance Company was not bad, she supposed. But it was far from good. If only Martin Rowdon would hurry up, and offer her a post at the News office! In the meantime, she must type dull letters, among pleasant dull people. She supposed that was partly why she felt so depressed this evening. That, and other things. Nothing seemed very right these days. Aunt Maisie was not well. She had had to see a specialist just after Christmas, but the famous man's diet, and prescription, did not seem to be doing her much good. Then there was the quarrel with James. He seemed to ever come near her, since their fight about Colin coming to live at the flat. Colin was not with them any longer, but James still believed she had felt more than friendship and sympathy for him. Peter and Petri climbed the narrow, dark staircase, to the flat. They let themselves into the tiny hall. It smelled airless. Petronella threw down her book and parcels, and opened the nearest window. Outside, lay mist-blue darkness. faint stars, above bright lights.

"What about a new frock and hat for you?" suggested Peter, unexpectedly and brightly.
His sister turned. She looked at herself dispassionately in the hall mirror. So Peter thought that she was looking dowdy, and unattractive. What did it matter, if she wore old clothes, so long as they were good clothes, and she looked neat and fresh? Tony Lance was not here to see new clothes.
A strange sound from the sitting-room startled Petronella. It began like the last creak of a tuckered, and ended with a shout.
"Petri! Here's a letter from Rowdon! Come and read it. Quick!"
He was standing there, dazedly. She took the letter, but the words danced before her eyes, after she had read the first few lines.
Peter was not entitled to a holiday, but if he liked to pay his expenses when he arrived there, the News would pay his return fare to Germany. He could be gone two or three weeks. It would "help him in his struggle with the language."
"I'm to visit Berlin, Munich, the Rhine, the Ruhr!" cried Peter. "I can write some articles on my impressions of the troubled state of the country, and bring them back with me. If I get the chance, I'm to hear Hitler and Goering speak. Rowdon says he probably won't use them. But, as was the case in Burma, I may strike lucky. It is my chance! Don't you see?"
"Peter! Oh, Peter! Have we anything in the place to drink?"
"Yes, the sherry Colin sent us." Solemnly they toasted Peter's luck. They were wildly excited. The future, thought Peter, seemed suddenly to be opening up.
"Seems a pity you can't come with me."
She dismissed the possibility instantly. "Of course you'll do better alone! What is happening in Germany now? I shall like standing on the edge of your newspaper racket, darling, looking on."
"Working up for the elections. Von Hindenburg should get a majority. The people trust him. But the Nazis are climbing all the time. There's going to be a lot of trouble, if the Communists try to stop them."

No Premonition
Peter act without thinking. Carry the things you want to write in your head, rather than on paper. When will you go?
"Rowdon suggests next Friday, the ninth. Petri, since I'm going, there's something you've got to know. It'll save you a having a shock. It was the reason I was telling you to buy some new togs, really. The reason I'd like to stand you a new hat, if you'll let me. Because though James is a darn nice chap, I know you're not really caring much, if he does take Molly about occasionally."
Petronella stiffened. "Quickly, what are you trying to tell me?"
"That you might run into Tony Lance some day soon. He has left the staff. He has left China. But he came into the office the other day. You'd want to look nice."
"Where is he?"
"In London, for all I know."
Petronella saw Peter off from Victoria a week later. Her own luggage was in the cloakroom. She was going home, after Michael Brane's cocktail party.

"Well, Mike, I'm sorry to miss it, but that'll drink his health in dunkel beer," said Peter.
"Yes. Take care of yourself, darling. Goodbye." She fled in the time, till the party, by shopping. Father had sent her five pounds. She bought a wide brimmed straw hat, which suited her. It looked nice with this new white linen suit, she thought, pleased. It made her look cooler than she felt. It was so close, and thundery, in London streets. She had almost decided to catch an earlier train home, not to go to Mike's beautiful all-white apartment. But the next two weeks would be very quiet. She liked meeting friends. She decided to stay for the party.

No feeling of fate, no inkling of premonition warned Petronella that, when she was shown into the sitting-room, the first person she would see would be Tony Lance.
He was leaning against the mantelpiece, talking to a girl in a gray suit. When he saw her, he straightened. He forgot to listen to what the girl was saying to him. His eyes met Petronella's, and his straight mouth spoke her name, soundlessly. She raised her hand, and gave him a casual little wave, across the crowded room. What else could she do? He looked at her. He smiled, very faintly. Michael was busy at the bar.
"Hello, Petri! So Peter is off to Germany, I hear? Sorry he couldn't come. You're looking very nice, my dear. Cocktail, or sherry? Do you know—?" he commenced introducing her to the people nearest them.
She did not hear their names. She smiled, and talked to them. She was apparently calm, even she believed, natural. It was as if this shock had frozen her. Tony Lance was over there, behind her. She was waiting. In a moment, he would make his way through the babel. She would have to speak to him.
But he did not come. Gradually, Petronella felt her first control ebbing from her. She was no longer numb. Her power to feel was returning to her. She was acutely alive, acutely miserable.
"But surely," said the man to whom she was talking, "you don't really think that?" What didn't she really think? But it was all right. She heard herself answering him.

No Escape
STRANGE, how your mind was divided into parts, and the parts could work separately. What a fool she had been, for certain. Tony would come. He was with that girl, the girl in the perfectly tailored gray flannel suit and the little slouch hat. Misery enveloped her. Her head throbbled. She was young, and inadequate. Completely incapable of handling a man like Tony Lance. That girl was sophisticated, lazily sure of herself, and of her own attraction. "My clothes are all wrong," thought Petri. That girl was the right accompaniment to a man like Tony. The kind of woman he could take anywhere, to Moscow, or Alexandria, or Budapest, at a moment's notice. She would arrive looking immaculate. "Whereas!" thought Petri, "white linen, white straw hat, creases, limpness, little girl clothes!"
She was not looking at them, but she was fiercely aware of them. They were laughing together. She felt as if, for certain, if Tony had hit her across the face. Fool, fool, fool, she upbraided all this time, she had been imagining that he had loved her. In reality, he went everywhere with another, a more suitable girl. This party was a nightmare. She must escape. He must never see her, for certain, what she had felt, the suffering she had endured for him. Unless she got away now, he would read it in her eyes, her foolish, untutored eyes.
"Michael, thank you for a lovely party. I have to go early."
Goodbye, Petri. Sorry you didn't talk to Tony. Love, that girl was sophisticated, lazily sure of herself, and of her own attraction. "My clothes are all wrong," thought Petri. Washington—In surroundings as ornate and costly as Herr Hitler's new palace, a group of Americans and Germans are trying still to end the "war-before-the-war."
The war with Germany officially ended in the early twenties, when we signed the peace treaty. But the war-before-the-war never has been settled. It dates from the years before we entered the World War, when every major accident was attributed to German spies. It is a tempting case for American claimants if they are sure of their pay—In cash—if they win. The money, some $20,000,000, is in the Treasury, the receipts from sale of German patents and property seized here during the war.

On a hot July night in 1916 flames suddenly blazed up on a barge loaded with TNT near New Jersey's Black Tom peninsula, that juts into New York harbor. It was at a terminal of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, the present principal claimant. There were several other barges and some railroad cars there loaded with high explosives awaiting shipment to England.

Two For $25,000,000
For two hours, into the early morning, the fire burned. It spread to other powder-laden barges. A brave tugboat captain hooked onto two of them and towed them out to sea where they burned without exploding. Another barge floated toward Ellis Island, sending immigrants and officials into a panic. It also burned without exploding.

But one barge near Black Tom let go. The blast sent a baby into fatal convulsions three miles away. A million dollars worth of plate glass was blown out of downtown New York windows. The Statue of Liberty was pock-marked. Strangely enough, most New Yorkers were off the streets then—it was around 2 a. m. Otherwise there might have been a staggering loss of life. Barely half a dozen were killed.

Six months later, in the midst of a January cold spell, fire started in the huge shell-making plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry Co. at Kingsland, across the harbor from New York. In a trice the plant was a battlefield. Millions of dollars worth of shells being manufactured for Russia began exploding in a series of blasts which sounded to New Yorkers like a bombardment.

The two explosions caused damage of nearly $25,000,000, but no claim was entered at once. Four months later we entered the war. TOBACCO ROAD
Last summer my grandson, in his club work, visited several of our towns. Wilson, Goldsboro, Raleigh and others. After his return he remarked to his mother that none of the towns he had visited were as clean and as attractive as Greenville. A boyish comparison—still it appealed to me as a fair estimate of conditions. Since old enough to notice the differences in places, I have always been pleased with Greenville's record—but for some time now I have heard of breaches in her rectitude with sorrow and shame let me add.

And now it is announced that two performances of "Tobacco Road" are scheduled for Feb. 27 and 28, and of all places it is to be presented at the college.
In Sunday's issue of the News and Observer for Dec. 4, 1938, Judge Robert W. Winston gives a review of "Tobacco Road." In his lucid style he reveals this shameful attack upon a much maligned people who are not in a position to defend themselves.

Nothing but a sordid desire for notoriety and money could have induced the writer to give such a work to the world.
Is the fair name of our beloved city and county to be degraded by the presentation of this horrible misrepresentation of life on our Southern farms?

Stadium To Be Dedicated At Duke-WFC Game Here

NO OBJECTION BY LOCAL CLUB

Aldermen Approve of Plan Subject to Approval of Club

The new Greenville stadium will be dedicated at a baseball game here on Saturday, April 15 between Wake Forest college and Duke university, according to tentative plans.

The game is being sponsored by an organization of young business and professional men of the city.

The Board of Aldermen last night gave its approval for the game to be played at the new field and also for the day to be set aside for dedicating the stadium subject to the approval of the baseball club.

A spokesman for the club said that it was a great sacrifice to allow the stadium to be dedicated with a game in which the Greensies would not be a participant, but added they would agree to the Duke-Wake Forest game being played on the date of dedication.

Reynolds may appear before the Board of Aldermen to ask permission for the game a dedication exercises.

VICTORIES WON BY FARMVILLE

Two Wins Added To List; Play Saturday Night

During the past week both the boys team and the girls team added two more games to their long lists of victories. This eleven triumphs for the boys and six for the girls. Last Friday the boys almost scored a complete shut out when they defeated Chocod High School by the score of 26-1.

The only time the boys from Chocod scored was in the second half of the game when the Farmville second team was playing against them and they made good on a foul shot that was awarded them. In the preliminary game the girls team defeated their opponents by the decisive score of 32-9. The high light of this game was the excellent teamwork displayed by the three forwards, Frances Caraway, Olive Taylor, and Dorothy Clarke. None of these girls will graduate this year and by next year they should develop into one of the best combinations that has ever been seen on a girls team in this county.

The next evening the boys traveled to Greenville to put up a very good contest against a much larger and more experienced team from ECTC reserves only to be nosed out in the closing minutes of the game.

On Tuesday night of this week the girls opened up the program by scoring another very impressive victory against Grifton to the score of 20-3. The boys then proceeded to hand the opposition a defeat by the score of 27-8. The interesting feature of this game was the appearance of a third team. Up to this time Mr. Harrel had only been using two teams in the games. Last night a total of fifteen boys participated in the game. This third team is composed of younger and less experienced boys with the hope of developing as many players as possible for the future. It is composed of J. A. Taylor, Bill Baskin, Hume Paskell, E. C. Carr, and Billy Orelby.

Tomorrow night the boys and girls will both travel to Grimesland and next Tuesday they will travel to Bethel. They have defeated both of these teams before. The next home game will be next Thursday when Bethel will be here for a double header. The first game will start promptly at 7:30 in Fountain's warehouse on West Wilson Street.

New Drug Supplies Firm Opens In City

Earl Brown, well known in Greenville where he worked a number of years in the Charles O'H. Horne drug store, has opened a new drug supplies store at 712 Dickinson avenue, here.

Mr. Brown, originally from Maclefield, will carry a complete line of drug supplies, cosmetics, medicines, fountain drinks, tobaccos, etc.

The new merchant operated a similar firm in his home town for a number of years and is known throughout this section.

Jake Hadley Offices In Flanagan Building

Jake M. Hadley, local insurance man, who has recently moved into his new offices in the Flanagan building, today called attention to the fact that his company, the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, is celebrating its 96th anniversary.

Mr. Hadley stated that the company he represents in Greenville and surrounding territory, issued the first life insurance policy ever written in America. The policy was written on February 1, 1843. The company now is one of the largest in the country.

Operators controlling 7,500 acres of land in the vicinity of Sanford, N. C., announced early in 1939 that large scale coal mining would be resumed in that region.

Locals Trounce Dukemen 6-3 In Pugilistic Classic

Fans Hotly Oppose Decision in Feature Scrap

By JAMES WHITFIELD

David Breece, one of the best scrappers to go the rounds in local intercollegiate boxing history, lost an unpopular decision in the feature bout last night as East Carolina Teachers College defeated Duke University's Blue Devil freshmen pugilists 6-3 in a nine-way fight card.

Coach J. D. Alexander's boys started their punching spree with a two-point advantage, which was allotted by the forfeit route. Captain Joe "Dynamic" Williams fasted the fruits of victory by a default in the 85 pound weight class and Norman (Peg) Fleming won by a forfeit in the 129 pound division.

Beginning his first round with a cool head and the technique of a professional, Breece opened a bag of punches, tricks and made a number of effective drives, reach their destination. David's foe, Bill Sem-hanser, tipping the scales at 6-12 pounds more than Breece, was unable to chart a successful punching course in the second phase.

Breece, former Raleigh boy, combining scientific procedure with muscle bound drives, banged away at his opponent during the three rounds. Charged with holding while hitting Breece was declared to be the loser. Simultaneously the opposing voices of disgruntled fans threatened to raise the roof.

Duke University's Allen Johnson and E. C. T. C.'s Woodrow Long, kept the fans chuckling in an un-limited heavyweight battle. Long, dubbed by the spectators as "Papa" before the scrap ended, landed several powerful wallops to drive home an impression in his decision.

Morton Smith, a new gift to the local boxing circle, lost an unpopular decision to the Blue Devil's Jeff Maulsby. Smith was handicapped by lack of experience, but could take what his opponent could hand out. Smith made a striking comeback in the second round and widdled an iron-laden glove against the Duke freshman's anatomy. When this battle was concluded, crimson dished out several Maulsby's nostrils and Smith had a slashed lip and a cut over the left eye. The fans failed to show no favoritism whatsoever about the decision.

Harvey Braddy, 137-pound local scrapper, realized the joy of victory last night as he decimated Duke's James Martin, a 133-pounder. In two bouts heretofore, Braddy was knocked. Braddy did a fine piece of leather-slincing, throughout and left the ring with cheers of hilarious spectators peppering his ear drums.

Charles E. Finn, a Roper product displaying color as well as a beautiful punch with his right, was the sparkplug in a decision over the Blue Devil's Dick Newsham. The second round was a thriller. Brinn dished out several lightning jabs to Newsham's jaw, which sent him against the ropes. As the going ended the affray, Newsham was almost overpowered by Brinn's sleeping potentia and staggered to his corner.

Greenville's Herbert Walkerson, turning in his fifth triumph in a half-dozen starts, gained a nice decision over the Dukemen's Harvey Gardner in the card-opener. Gardner was able to defend himself with a sure left in the first and lapped several blistering punches. The local youth use his foe's strategy in the second and reversed the order.

Tom Dennis, another Greenville product, took the count twice in a three-round affair with Mike West of Duke. Blows containing the lethal element were exchanged in the first round. Taking the count

Outlook Good For Building Activity

"On the whole, the outlook for 1939 with regard to home building activity is that it will be an improvement over 1938."

The year 1938 has been a very satisfactory one from the building and loan viewpoint. Public confidence in real estate as an investment has continued to increase. There has been a steady demand for many properties formerly held by the purchase of homes, and mortgage companies have found their way back into the hands of individual home owners. While a good many people lost their homes during the depression because they had bought or built beyond their ability to pay, a great many others who had proceeded more cautiously have completely liquidated their indebtedness despite the depression and other obstacles.

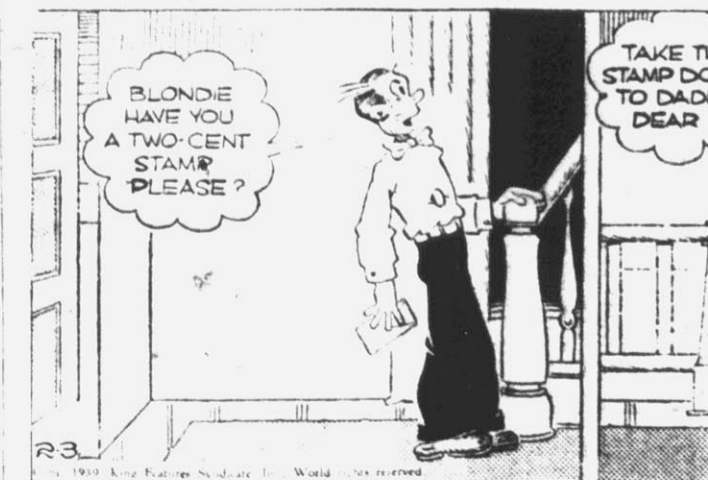

"New home construction has shown marked improvement in '38 and this improvement now bids fair to continue for some time to come."

As a word of caution regarding long-term loans, the secretary of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greenville, Mr. A. C. Tadlock states that many executives with long experience in home financing feel that too much emphasis has recently been laid upon long-term loans. The first thing anyone should have when buying or building a home is to pay for it as quickly as possible. Most people are not prepared to undertake building until they have reached their 30's, and when loan terms extend beyond 15 years, they are apt to extend beyond the peak of earning power of the borrower. It is wise, therefore, for those who contemplate home financing to consider that every small monthly payment now pays means the extension of the loan beyond their ability to pay.

PHANTOMS VS. PACK TONIGHT

Washington To Try To Upset High-Flying Greenies

By "SMUT" BURKS

Washington high school's basketball five will pit their strength against the G.H.S. Phantom quint for the second time this season, when the teams clash in the high school gym tonight. In their first contest Greenville emerged the victor by the score of 20-10 in a rough game played in the Washington armory.

The preliminary game will start at 7 o'clock with the Greenville high school juniors fighting it out with the Washington juniors.

At the present, Coach Bo Farley's G-Men are in a two-way tie with Tarboro for top honors in the conference standings with six wins and one loss on their record. If they beat the Pam Pack tonight they will have sole possession of the top rung.

The Phantoms are expecting a harder fight from the visitors tonight than the game in Washington. Pat Holloman, star cager of the 1938 varsity Pam Pack, has returned to the Washington line-up and has been the main cog in Washington's recent victories over Tarboro and Goldsboro.

Starting for the Greenies will probably be John Lautares and Ford McGowan at the guard posts, Tracy Jordan at center and Larry James and George Sakas as forwards.

Coach Kelly will be pinning his hopes on Holloman, Duke and Kelly to upset the G-Men. This game will be the eighth conference test for Greenville and will probably go low, way towards deciding the champion of Northeastern competition.

Pulpwood Concern To Abide By Laws

Raleigh, Feb. 3.—Published reports that an out-of-state concern had been "chiseling" on North Carolina's pulpwood by making its "unit" larger than permitted by state regulations brought immediate results in a promise of complete compliance, Assistant State Forester F. H. Claridge said today.

Buyers for the Southern Forest Corporation of Mobile, Alabama, and Georgetown, S. C., will adhere to the N. C. regulations and buy pulpwood only in established units of 100 cubic feet with sticks five feet in length, Mr. Claridge said.

Assurance of this was given the forester by J. E. McCaffray, general superintendent of the corporation and by A. A. Donham, division superintendent in Georgetown, who came to Raleigh this week to confer with forestry weights and measure officials.

A week or so ago, Forester Claridge announced that a pulp concern was insisting that its contractors buying wood in North Carolina purchase units of 160 cubic feet with thick five feet three inches long. Although state regulations prohibit units of more than 160 cubic feet or lengths of more than five feet.

Officials of the corporation assured Mr. Claridge they did not know the state regulations, and said they are notifying all their contractors to use this unit in the state.

They contended that even when buying the "oversize" unit they were not "chiseling" as they were paying $5 per unit of 168 feet, delivered to the car, with 50 cents of this going to the contractor.

The United States Forest Service sold $3,066,694 worth of timber in 1938.

LADY GREENIES PLAY KINSTON

Girl Phantoms in 4th Start of Season at Kinston Tonight

In their fourth regulation game of the season, Coach Robeson's sextet of Greenville High girls journey to Kinston tonight to engage the lady cagers of Grainger high school.

The Lady Phantoms have two wins against, one loss to their credit, having beaten Kinston and Goldsboro. Washington handed the locals their only setback.

In a game played in Greenville earlier in the season, the Phantomes swamped the Kinston girls by the one-sided score of 41-10 and are favored to bring home another victory tonight.

Coach Robeson will be counting on Betty Tyson, Joy Flanagan and Audrey Leggett to lead Greenville in the offensive part of the game. Lib Wells, Jane Harrison and Doris Roberts will probably be the guards that will start.

The Greenville lassies have been showing constant improvement in daily practices and are in top shape to defeat the Kinston ladies.

Exhibit Attracts Interest In City

The journalism exhibit which has been on display at the Sheppard Memorial Library all week, has attracted considerable attention from a number of visitors.

Sponsored by the A.A.U.W. and the journalism class of the high school, the exhibit was planned as a medium of informing the public what the high school is doing. The next department to be featured in a similar exhibit is the social science department. Work of this department will be placed in the library tomorrow.

The routine of editing a school paper is illustrated in the present exhibit through samplings of each type of work. The assignment book begins this series which includes original copy, typed copy, galley proof, corrected galley proof, dummy page proof, and finished copy.

In addition cuts, books, pamphlets, school papers and posters giving a history of the tri-weekly publication from its beginning four years ago are on exhibit also. The growth in size, the change in form, and the general improvements made in "Green Lights" in the four years may be observed by studying this phase of the display.

Significant among the honors received by "Green Lights" is one awarded by the Quill and Scroll, international journalistic society. This organization rated "Green Lights" with "an international first place award."

An effort is made in the journalism laboratory at the high school to emphasize a sense of value for accurate, concise news; to stress the importance of promptness, reliability and tactfulness in the newspaper game," stated V. M. Mulholland, advisor. The chief work of the journalism class is the publication of "Green Lights," yet in doing so 34 students are learning to appreciate good and poor papers, to distinguish between partial and biased news, to write for themselves stories, items, features, interviews, editorials, special columns and even ads. Over 80 per cent of the ads for "Green Lights" are done by student business managers. "Most important in the scheme of things is this class is the fact that students are learning by doing," added the advisor.

Addresses Women On Youth Survey

"We do not want to just make it another survey, but to find out what the problem of youth in Greenville and Pitt county is and what the solution is," declared John A. Lang, director of the North Carolina National Youth Administration in discussing before the Woman's Club this afternoon the survey of youth being carried on in Pitt county right now. He announced that Mrs. L. W. Gaylord, director for Pitt county NYA had advised him the survey was half completed.

Mr. Lang opened his remarks with the statement that most of the criminals in North Carolina were among young people from one to 25 years of age—most them at 21 years of age. This, he maintained, was due in a large part to the disappearance of our geographical frontiers in the United States and the sick condition of our national body politics. He said Pitt county and Greenville, along with six other counties, were chosen for the survey because they are best known for their cooperative community spirit.

Youth Drowns As He Falls from Boat

Washington, N. C. Feb. 3.—J. A. White's Cannon, 18-year-old resident of Seventh street, was drowned in the Pamlico river early last night when he slipped from the deck of an oyster boat some two miles from this city.

Young Cannon, returning with Capt. Johnnie Hodges, skipper of a 50-foot vessel, from a week of dredging in the Pamlico Sound, was said by Coroner Richard Cherry, who quoted Hodges, to have slipped into the 35-foot channel when he lost his footing while attempting to close a number of hatches covering the catch of shellfish.

Attacks Royalties On Canned Music

Reflector Bureau. By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, Feb. 3.—A bill, that if enacted into law, might result in taking phonograph and music rolls off the market in North Carolina was causing some interested comment last night.

Offered by Senator Separk the bill would prohibit collection of any producer's royalty or fee on any phonograph record or other form of recorded music used in this state, whether in private homes, public resorts, radio broadcasts or elsewhere.

Prompting the introducer was his ire at the rule of the national musical composers association that any copyrighted composition used on radio or phonograph for public dancing, etc., must pay a fee to the owner of the copyright, even though the phonograph record itself becomes the property of the purchaser.

The bill specifically states that it is not to be construed as conflicting or interfering with any national copyrights, but applies only to N. Carolina.

What disturbed some legislators discussing the measure last night is the fear that owners of copyrighted music might refuse to offer it for sale in North Carolina if the Separk bill goes through. They admit that the present system is unjust and imposes too heavy burden on small public places which furnish "canned" music for the entertainment of guests. They further recognize the right of the state to enforce a law such as that proposed. They also know that while any concern may be prohibited from doing business in North Carolina, there is no way to enforce them to offer their merchandise for sale.

And they fear the net result of the law would be to make it impossible for North Carolinians to buy phonograph records at all.
