HEALTH EXAM MARRIAGE LAW IS NOW SOUGHT

Measure Would Apply to Several Diseases

HALIFAX SOLON INTRODUCES BILL

Efforts Also Made to Abolish State Advisory Bank Commission

Raleigh, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The General Assembly received from Senator Long of Halifax today a bill to require that all applicants for marriage licenses in North Carolina must pass physical examinations.

The measure would require persons to be free of venereal disease and physicians could refuse them certificates also when tuberculosis, epilepsy or mental unbalance is found.

Senator Long also sent in a bill to require immunization of all children against diphtheria and one to require blood tests of all expectant mothers as a venereal control measure.

Each division received bills to abolish the present State Advisory Bank Commission and create a new state commission clothed with most of the powers now resting solely in the bank commissioner. The bank commissioner would become executive officer of the commission, which would consist of the state treasurer, attorney general, four bankers and a business man, with the last five being appointed by the governor. It was understood the bill bore administration backing.

House members got from Taylor of Wayne, Thornton of Forsyth, and others a bill to limit the number of justices of the peace. After this year one justice would be allowed in each township with an additional one allowed if the population is between 5,000 and 15,000. In townships with population in excess of 15,000 one could be elected for each 20,000 persons. Vacancies would be filled by appointment of clerks of Superior court. The governor's power of appointment would be terminated except for continuing in office "in the public interest" justices holding commissions January 1, 1939.

Give Washington Man Conference Position

Officials of the Eastern North Carolina Athletic Conference voted E. F. Ruble of Washington, N. C. secretary-treasurer, succeeding Burt Johnson of Goldsboro, at a conference here last night.

Washington was designated as a tournament center March 3 and 4. The four leading teams will be in the play-off. Trophies will be awarded the winners. A tentative baseball schedule was presented, but was not adopted pending adoption of the Coastal Plain League schedule.

Pitt Man Expects To Go To Congress

Raleigh, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Legislators got warning today from a Pitt county representative that he expected to "go to Congress." The House Education committee was discussing the Woodhouse bill to provide payment by the Yulkin County Education board of reasonable boarding expenses of Negroes going from the county to high schools outside, until the county provides them a school. The bill won a favorable report.

"I think we ought to do something for the Negroes even if it costs me votes," said Representative J. S. Moore of Pitt. "I expect to go to Congress."

Lindsay C. Warren of Washington, has represented Moore's district in Congress for eight years and recently has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor next year.

Gets WPA Funds

Representative Lindsay Warren today advised The Reflector by telegraph that President Roosevelt "has just approved an additional WPA project for the athletic field at Greenville with federal allotment of $14,122."

Alderman Joe Taft of the special athletic field committee, declared that the extra allotment would be used in the construction of a road on the south side of the field, for dressing rooms, extensions of the roof over the grandstand, a fence around the ball diamond, bleachers and ticket booths.

FLOODING 'OLD MAN RIVER' IN CINCINNATI

An aged resident of Cincinnati's East End calmly rows his house and belongings to safety as the Ohio river spread through the streets in that section. Rain continued in the valley at the time but weather bureau officials did not expect the river to go higher than 59 feet at Cincinnati.

Group To Oppose Slice In Advertising Program

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb. 8.—Organization of a military senate group to fight proposed slashing of appropriations for the State Advertising program is well under way, and there promises to develop one of the keenest skirmishes of the General Assembly's current session.

Logically interested in the matter by virtue of his post as chairman of the Senate Committee on Conservation and Development, State Senator Emmett H. Bellamy of New Hanover today announced that he will actively campaign to restore the $500,000 cut from the $250,000 recommended by the Budget Commission for advertising the state during the next biennium.

The Bellamy announcement brought immediate and favorable reaction from a number of Senators—among them D. B. Fearing of Dare and S. Bunn Frink of Brunswick, both from small counties

ORAL HYGIENE STRESSED HERE

Operations in Schools In Pitt Total 1-185 in Month

The Pitt County Health Department today released a report on the dental work done in the white public schools during January. This work is under Dr. E. A. Branch, director of the division of oral hygiene, State Health Department, is supervised by the local health officer and conducted by Dr. A. D. Underwood. At the present time, Dr. Underwood has an assistant, Dr. M. K. Evans, who has just come to Pitt county.

The schools are visited in rotation and dental service is furnished to such children as are unable to have a private dentist.

In addition to the actual treatment of dental defects the dentist instructs the children, in groups, as to the value of proper foods in building sound teeth and the importance of keeping the teeth clean. Dr. Underwood also lectures to clubs, parent-teacher associations, etc., on the importance of mouth health work.

Dr. Emmett, Pitt county health officer, when asked today for comment on the school dental work, said: "We regard good teeth as essential to good health. In our opinion, there is no phase of the public health program more important than the oral hygiene program."

"And," he added, "the school dentist deals so gently and so tactfully with the child that dental work, strange as it may seem, is probably the most popular public health work carried on in the schools."

The report for January is as follows: Examined, 533; treated, 249; total operation, 1,195.

Principal exponent of the measure and of the claimed manifold benefits to be derived from a national school will be Captain Horace Glover of Southport, a navigator of long and wide experience. He commanded an Eagle boat in the World war and served as an officer of the United States Navy for several years. In addition he has had vast guard and commercial shipping experience.

The Frink bill proposes to establish the academy in cooperation with the Federal government, which would furnish naval craft and assign naval officers as instructors in navigation, marine engineering and other branches of nautical science. Also of great importance, the Federal government would match any fund appropriated by the state for establishing and operating the academy.

Senator Frink points out that several nautical schools have been established along the coast and that not one of them, once opened, has ever been abandoned.

The art of ventriloquism was known to the ancient Egyptians and Hebrews.

FEAR DISEASE IN FLOOD AREA

Thousands of Kentucky Mountain People Immunized

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Health authorities immunized today thousands of Eastern Kentucky mountain people against pneumonia, influenza and typhoid—more feared than the overflowing streams which swept the hill country in flooded lowlands.

As rehabilitation progressed and the crest of the Ohio river slowly moved toward the Mississippi, the WPA was criticized by Representative May D-Ky. for its "indefensible refusal to cooperate" in aiding flood sufferers.

E. A. Marze, divisional WPA director here, said, however, that the agency's workers were assisting in evacuation of refugees, "cleaning polluted wells and cisterns and aiding in the repair of utilities, bridges and water lines."

Vaccine for 250,000 persons was rushed into the thirty flood-stricken mountain counties yesterday by Red Cross and Kentucky Health Department authorities.

The Ohio dropped at Huntington, West Va., and Cincinnati and rose slightly here and down-river points in Kentucky and Indiana. Scores were driven from their southern Indiana homes.

At Huntington the river was at 48 feet early today and dropping 1.25 feet an hour. The stage at Cincinnati was 58.25 feet and was falling at the rate of .01 foot an hour.

Nautical Academy Hearing Thursday

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb. 8.—First investigation into the necessity or desirability of adding a Nautical Academy to North Carolina's system of higher education will be made tomorrow morning by the Senate Education committee.

At 11 o'clock, the committee will hold a public hearing in its room (407 Revenue Building) on the bill offered by Brunswick's Senator S. Bunn Frink, which would set up as a part of the University of North Carolina a nautical school to be called the Josephus Daniels Nautical Academy, at some point on the North Carolina coast to be determined by a commission set up by the bill.

Principal exponent of the measure and of the claimed manifold benefits to be derived from a national school will be Captain Horace Glover of Southport, a navigator of long and wide experience. He commanded an Eagle boat in the World war and served as an officer of the United States Navy for several years. In addition he has had vast guard and commercial shipping experience.

HOUSE BLASTS GOP HOPES TO CRIPPLE NLRB

Appropriation For Next Fiscal Year Eliminated

BOARD DEFENDED BY REP. RAYBURN

Thomas R. Amle Testifies Before Committee Regarding Own Nomination

Washington, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The House overwhelmingly defeated a Republican attempt today to cripple the National Labor Relations board by eliminating its $3,039,600 appropriation for the next fiscal year.

The standing vote, announced as 188 to five, came after House Majority Leader Rayburn had taken the floor and appealed to the membership not to "assassinate" the board in such a manner.

Representative Taber (R-N. Y.) senior minority member of the House Appropriations committee, led the fight to strike out the item with the declaration that the fund should be withheld until the Labor Relations law can be amended so both industry and labor would be assured a "square deal."

Congress meanwhile awaited the introduction of legislation to provide the additional $150,000,000 asked by President Roosevelt for work relief.

The chief executive himself called to the White House for a luncheon conference Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) and Col. F. D. Harrington, WPA administrator.

Other developments: Thomas A. Amle told a Senate committee inquiring into his qualifications to be an Interstate Commerce Commissioner, that he had addressed the Congress against war and Fascism in Chicago in 1934, where he may have been introduced as "Comrade Amle," but he denied he was even a member of either the Communist or Socialist parties.

Secretary Perkins denied flatly agrarian charges that she had failed to enforce the deportation laws.

Appearing before the House Judiciary committee considering an impeachment resolution against her, the secretary said:

"I feel confident that whether examined minutely or at large, my record as Secretary of Labor will show a consistent purpose not merely to support the ideals of democracy, of orderly government and the freedom, but a purpose to assure all persons subject to the government, whether citizen or alien, that those ideals are being carried forward in actual day to day practice."

Needs Carpenters And Brick Masons

There should be no unemployment problem for skilled carpenters and brick masons in Greenville.

W. G. Cherry, Jr., in charge of the employment offices here, this morning sent out a "hurry call" to all persons skilled in either line who had not already done so to register at the office over the Railway express company on Dickinson avenue, to do so at once.

"We are getting calls every day for skilled carpenters and brick masons," declared Mr. Cherry, adding that the standing list was exhausted and more were needed daily.

He ascribed the demand for these workers to the many projects, WPA PWA and private, now going on in Greenville and community.

Mr. Cherry said there was absolutely no excuse for men experienced in these two trades to be out of a job at the present time.

John Edmondson Claimed By Death

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb. 8.—Earliest birds of the legislature are members of the subcommittee from the House Elections and Election Law Committee.

This group, headed by Guilford's Joe Curruthers is meeting each morning at 8:30 o'clock, and present indications are that it will have a report ready for the full committee by the end of this week.

Always barring more complications and arguments over the absentee ballot than are now looked for.

Already the seven-member unit (Curruthers, Odus Mull of Cleveland, Frank Taylor of Wayne, Lacy McBryde of Cumberland, J. B. Vogler of Mecklenburg, William Marshall of Stokes, John Kerr, Jr. of Warren) has about decided what to do with the matters of less controversial nature than the absentee ballot.

INJURY FATAL TO AUTO RACER

Wild Bill Cummings Fatally Injured On Highway

Indianapolis, Feb. 8.—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Cummings, whose daring prowess was well known on automobile race tracks from coast to coast died today of injuries suffered Monday night when his automobile skidded from a highway at the approach of a bridge, hurtled 50 feet across a creek and landed in the water 15 feet below the highway. We was 32 years old.

The accident occurred while Cummings was driving alone from Indianapolis to his suburban home south of the city.

His skull was fractured. An operation was performed yesterday to relieve pressure on the brain, but the race driver, winner of the 500-mile classic at the Indianapolis motor speedway in 1934 died this morning without regaining consciousness.

Cummings set a speed record for Diesel-powered automobiles by averaging 133.025 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1936.

Experiments at the University of Missouri indicated cows give richer milk during cold weather than they do in the summer time.

Cabinet Seeks to Keep Control From Germany And Italy

London, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A British cruiser arrived today at Minorca, disputed island in the Spanish Balearics, while the London cabinet considered measures to prohibit Italy and Germany from obtaining control of the island.

At the same time officials acknowledged that Britain had asked Spanish Insurgent General Franco to agree to a truce in the Civil war, but they declined to disclose if Franco had replied or if he had what his answer was.

It was officially announced that the 9,750-ton cruiser Devonshire had dropped anchor in Port Mahon, strategic and well-fortified harbor of Minorca, only island of the Balearics which the Spanish Government has held since early in the war.

Neither the admiralty nor the foreign office would discuss the Devonshire's mission at Minorca.

However, there has been report that British was willing to co-operate with Franco in measures to occupy the island, provided it was taken over exclusively by Spanish soldiers.

The Devonshire's move aroused speculation here as to whether she might not have gone to Minorca to make sure that any Insurgent attempt to seize the island was not sponsored by Germany or Italy.

It was explained that a representative of a press association, in checking up on the status of the radio station, took the action taken last July to have been a recent development and reported New Bern would get the station.

NEW FIGHTING BETWEEN FOES

Unexpected Conflict Engaged in by Insurgent Forces and Retreating Government Troops Following Breakdown of Peace Efforts Yesterday

Le Perthus, France, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Spanish Government Premier Negrin established temporary headquarters today in the "last house in Spain," which is one foot from the French frontier.

Accompanied by several members of his cabinet and a military staff, Negrin had to cross temporarily into France to enter his new headquarters, but when he walked inside the doorway he was again in his own country.

The house is on the Spanish side of Le Perthus and is known as the "last house in Spain."

Perpignan, France, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Unexpected fighting broke out today between Spanish Insurgent forces and retreating troops in the Puigcerda region near the French frontier.

The renewed fighting followed the breakdown of peace efforts yesterday and a declaration by Dr. Negrin, Premier of Government Spain, that he would fight to the finish rather than submit to Insurgent demands for unconditional surrender.

The action drew artillery and war planes into battle in the snow-covered Pyrenees from which Government militiamen, including cavalry and infantry units, were withdrawing into France.

Reports reaching the border said the battle started with an exchange of shots between the Government rear guards and Insurgent field units which were approaching Puigcerda.

Shortly afterwards Insurgent planes joined the fight, strafing the north-bound militiamen, while Government artillery poured shells into Insurgent positions.

Still Has Chance For Radio Station

J. J. Yhte, prominent Greenville business man who has an application on file for the establishment of a radio station here, said today the matter still is in the hands of the Radio Commission and no decision had been made.

Mr. White made the statement after getting in touch with officials this morning and following reports that the Greenville application had been denied and one by New Bern accepted. It was explained that the misunderstanding arose out of action taken by the Radio Commission last July when an examiner recommended the station be awarded to New Bern. A board now has to pass on the examiner's recommendations.

It was explained that a representative of a press association, in checking up on the status of the radio station, took the action taken last July to have been a recent development and reported New Bern would get the station.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and
LYNN NISBET

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 8.—First conference committee of the session came when the House of Representatives declined to concur in the Senate amendment to a bill introduced by Mr. Mull changing the corporate limits of the Town of Kings Mountain in Cleveland county.

The overworked Supreme court will have one worrisome job left.
The court has been charged with responsibility of confirming nominations made by the Raleigh Hospital. Just why duty should have been imposed upon the highest tribunal in the state has never been quite clear. Called upon to confirm appointments made for the specific purpose of furthering the political interests of Raleigh officials, the high court got tired of it. At the request of the justices, Senator Balentine of Wake has introduced a bill that will put that responsibility upon the resident judge of Superior court.

Speaker Ward's comment Monday night, in answer to "Pete" Murphy's criticism of Saturday, that legislators ought to go home for the week-ends, that they had earned the rest by hard work, and that they were thus available for their constituents, was greeted with a snort from the Rowan veteran who was just behind the speaker's stand. Almost immediately the philosophy of the speaker was justified. Representative Volger of Mecklenburg rose to ask that House Bill 84, abolishing
the Industrial Home for Women in Mecklenburg county, be recalled from the Senate and re-referred to a House committee. The entire Mecklenburg delegation had gone home for the week-end, attended a mass meeting at the Charlotte town hall, and been convinced that their people did not want the home for fallen women discontinued at this time.

Invitation was given all members of the legislature "and their wives" to attend the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce annual dinner.
Governor Horton announced that the committee wanted to know how many to expect, and suggested that Senators expecting to go alone hold up one finger, those expecting to take the wife along hold up two fingers. Almost before the announcement was finished Senator Jack Morphet (unmarried) lifted
two fingers and Senator Wayland Spruill (unmarried) one finger raised three fingers. Senator Will Graham, confirmed bachelor, didn't lift a hand. His friend "Cousin Willie" Clark came to his aid, and after the Edgecombe Senator's remarks sweetheart, were included in the invitation. Senator Graham smiled and straightened his tie.

Action of Mayor George Iseley of Raleigh in banning the road show
"Tobacco Road" from the municipal auditorium here was being discussed in the rounds this morning.
"Maybe the mayor doesn't want his class shown up," remarked one of the party. "I was talking the other night with Professor Taylor of the University," he continued, "and he said that he talked with the author of the play after seeing it shown in New York recently. He asked the author question if it was based on actual conditions among the tenant class in Georgia. The author said it was only partially true. The play is based on actual conditions, but not among tenant farmers. It is based on actual conditions among the 'country club class' in Georgia."

Meatime promoters of the Raleigh appearance of the troupe are going ahead with ticket sales. They argue that the show is a "must-see"
and a "must-hear" for it is a recapitulation of the life, and that the mayor has the authority to deny them the building now.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
Peter Mallone: Madcap journalist.
Petronella: His young, pretty sister.

Yesterday through the aid of a man she meets on the plane, René Howard, Petrel is allowed to see Peter in prison.

Chapter 19 Plan For The Future

PETER's one arm hugged her, marveling. Her hands touched his rough clothes. Her eyes were shocked. Their lids were red and swollen with weeping.
"I didn't think I'd ever get to
you. How is your shoulder? Painful?"
"Not too bad. However did you manage it? I was only jugged last night!"
"By air, from Croydon this morning. Martin Rowdon saw me off, Peter. He says—" He pulled her over to the window.

"Careful, that man speaks English. He's spying on me, and he's listening." She dropped her voice to a whisper. "He thinks he can get released, if you play 'mad English.'"
"Luckily I thought of that, too.
You'd be surprised at the way I'm forgetting my verbs."

"James and Marigold saw me off. They sent their love. She had read about it in the papers. She thought I'd left, and she drove straight to Croydon. She was awfully upset—"
Their eyes met. "Send the sweet wire, for me. Something light, and cheerful, and my love."

"Yes, I will." He could not understand why Petrel did not smile.
Was there something she had told him? He was not surprised they had let her in. She looked about fifteen, in that rather creased linen suit, that broad-brimmed hat, which had decided to turn back from her woebecone, rounded face. Nothing less like a dangerous spy's accomplice could ever have gained admission into the Fortress of Glatz. "Did you get in easily?" She shook her head.

"No. If it hadn't been for the help of someone called René Howard, whom I met in the plane coming over, and his aunt, the Baroness von Gratz, I don't think I should have discovered they'd moved you here, from the Mobit Krankenhaus. And they would have refused to let me see you. But this friend impressed upon them
that you were not seriously wounded to see me, because of your wife. Peter, it was lucky you sent that How did you?"

"A true friend, called Hans, sent it for me. He saw me arrested."
"He helped. So did the publicity about you. Anyway, at last there were two forms to fill in, and I was inside."

"You marvelous girl. Where is it, René?"
"Waiting for me." But still she did not smile, but buried her head against him. "I've got to tell you something so awful, Peter."

"What is it? I knew you had. Go on—shoot."

"Dead!"
"AUNT MAISIE. She died two hours after I left, James telephoned."

"Dead! I didn't even know she was really ill." He gripped her very tightly.
"And Peter, she knew, but she said she knew me away, and she died all alone." Petronella was sobbing.

"You poor kid. You've had a terrible time. Two shocks like that. I wish I could get out and keep you company. You must go home."
"I know where I know where to be released. I'll be all right. René is taking me to see the Palaces at Potsdam." She tried to smile. "I'll go home in time for the funeral.
The Randalls and Dr. Harris are arranging everything. Afterwards
I'll come back, if you're not free.
Then I'll meet you in London, wherever you like—but not at home, just for a little while. It is too awfully sad. It was cancer. She had known for three months. I must tell you the things she said.
Peter, it is almost as if she died to help us."

He listened to her. "Wonderful Aunt Maisie—she was a topnotcher all right," he said gruffly.
"But she was wrong. You ought to stay at home and marry James."
"I can't. The day you left England I met John Lance again. At Mike's party."

"What did he say? Did he explain?"
She shook her head. "No. He didn't say much. But it was just the same, Peter. I'm more likely to meet him, if I'm with you. He has some government job. He is in Moscow by now. From the way he looked at her, she knew that, in his opinion, her love was infatuation. It awakened his pity."
"In that case you'd better stick along with me old girl. I'll be glad to have you. You know that. Once I get out of this dump."

"You will. I'm sure of it. We'll go anywhere you like."

"Aufwiedersehen, darling," she breathed.
"Aufwiedersehen." A week after Maie's death, in a deep grave in Ballfield churchyard, the telephone summoned Petronella from upstairs.
She was busy preparing for her move to the cottage. At first, she could only part with one thing in her. She had reached the despairing point of discarding all but one thing, in twenty. Hodgson and his wife were going to live in the village.
The "Forest House" was to be sold by auction. The furniture Petronella was taking to the cottage was to be stored until the redecoration of Mrs. Hodgson's former home was finished.

She ran to the phone, and answered it.
"Berlin wants you, Miss Mal-lone," said Elsie at the exchange
it was Peter.

"At you, Petrel? I'm being escorted across the frontier in ten minutes by a couple of fellows who look as if they might burst their uniforms, if I told them a story and made them laugh. Understand? I'm coming home!"

"Peter! I just can't believe it.
Free! You'll be met by Movietone and Gaumont British, and half London at Victoria Station. Your very worst photo has been in every paper."

Not On The Program
FOR a moment there was silence.
Then, "Good Lord, that's terrible! Look here, I'm not coming
I can't face a show like that, Cal Rowdon. Tell him bad food and mild excitement have given me spits, and I can't face my public ill! go to Vienna. Lie low for a week or two. I'll be all right. I'll be a good murder to fill the headlines. I'll send him my complete story. If he wants to get in touch with me, he can write or wire. Got to go now. The boys are here."

"Peter!" she cried, to recall him.
"He is your shoulder!"
"Better. Are you bearing up,
dear? Sorry I couldn't be with
you."

"Peter, she left you—" But his gay goodbye cut her short.

A few days later, Petronella sat in the Strand, in the Strand, lunching with Martin Rowdon. She had commenced this lunch by balancing on the edge of her chair and mutilating her roll of bread, from nervousness. Now she sat back, at ease. Martin Rowdon, meeting her fear eyes, with friendly, appreciation, understanding, listened to her news. She did not need his job; she had inherited about seven hundred a year; Peter was still shy
of his publicity.

"Last time we met, it didn't look as if all your troubles would end so simply. The reminder, her. As it happened, I'm not sorry. She decided to stay in Vienna. I'm going to give him another chance, abroad. Of course, he's crazy but a lot of the best news getters are that. I believe he'll be all right. I shall tell him to stay there till his shoulder is not so sore. She had those nasty spots gone. He was chuckled, "then we'll see what's happening in other places. What about you, my dear? You'll miss him."

Mischievously, gaily, she pretended to misunderstand. "Oh, I don't think I'll leave a note at the post office, Peter. I'll be round at my hotel within a few hours."

So that was the plan they had for the future! He frowned, smiled.
He had half expected this. He could not think of it. It might be a good thing. But not for long. "Take care you don't get too restless to settle down in Ballfield with that fair-haired young man of yours. Europe is apt to get into one's blood, under one's skin, Petrel. Then, you can't stay at home."

"The fair-haired young man isn't on the program at all."
"So I'm sorry. He ought to be.
You won't want to racket around indefinitely, you know. And Peter won't be able to take you. Suppose your friend finds some other girl, while you're away?" Her answer surprised him. He had expected flippant incredulity, or a shade of fear.

"I rather hope he does. It might be happier for both of us," she said thoughtfully. He was watching her fair, lightly freckled face.
So there was someone else?
Women didn't give their men fingers away, unless they had substitutes handy. Or was this girl different? The thought disturbed him. If her accompanying her brother was to continue indefinitely, it would be unsuitable.

"I don't like the idea. If Peter makes good on the foreign staff, he'll become an official war correspondent; he'll be sent to some hotish spots. I don't trust him to look after you."

"What you are going to discover is that I can be trusted to look after him," she laughed, "you'll see!"

WHAT IT MEANS: Hitler's Speech

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Washington.—When Adolf Hitler read the riot act to the United States in the Reichstag the other day, he was challenging the Democratic nations to a long-term struggle for supremacy in the field of world trade.

At least observers here of the world economic scene view it that way.

They take the view that the German leader has labeled Uncle Sam his Economy Enemy No. 1. They don't think he did it because this nation is actually his greatest trade partner. They think he did it because this nation offers obstacles to the German idea of trade treaties made to serve the needs of state instead of individuals.

At the same time the richest, and therefore the strongest advocate of democracy, offered to Hitler a strong contrast to illustrate his recital of the case of the totalitarian "have-nots" vs the democratic "have" nations.

In a casual sort of way the trade struggle has been developing ever since the World War. The first sign of its coming was the ascent of Lenin and Stalin's communism, inaugurating, as it did, economic theories previously untested by any important world power.

After Lenin and Stalin, Mussolini burst upon the Italian scene, limiting private capitalism, and setting up the so-called corporate state. After Mussolini came Hitler and state socialism.

The State's The Thing
These phenomena of government are variously understood and variously defined. But one element stands out. The men who establish these systems succeeded by their own boast because they molded the individual to the will of the all-powerful state.

Meanwhile, beginning in 1928, the democracies, and Japan joined depression sapped the vitality of the totalitarian group as a "have-not" nation on the make. These two developments began the process of balancing the scales between the two forces.

As the experts view the world picture in retrospect, some kind of conflict was inevitable in the field of trade, since trade is controlled by the state in the totalitarian group, and by individuals in the democratic nations.

Rich Uncle Sam and poverty-ridden Germany unwittingly supplied the makings for the economic war as far back as 1933.

With little gold to offer for goods—German instituted the so-called barter system. Any nation trading with Germany is obliged to accept goods in payment.

About the same time, Trader Bull, as Secretary of State for President Roosevelt, set up his reciprocal trade program as a device to increase trade by spreading concessions in a sort of round robin of treaties.

How Struggle Developed.
Thus the lines were drawn between two theories, one blasting open trade channels, the other restricting them to specially arranged routes.

The struggle developed like this: The Hull plan guaranteed quality of treatment to all nations that signed up, with the single exception of Germany. The Reich was barred on the ground that Germany was the lone big power refusing to cooperate.

VARIOUS JOBS AID STUDENTS

Self-Help Students At ECTC Heard At Rotary Meeting

"One out of every four is a 'self-help' student at ECTC."
"The scholarship of 'select-help' students justifies ideas."
"Practice while earning."
"Character and demeanor of high type."

So spoke Dr. Howard McGinnis of the East North Carolina Teachers College Monday night before the Rotary club. His remarks were more than substantiated by the remarks of five 'self-help' students whom Dr. McGinnis brought along so they could tell the club about their thoughts on the subject, too.

Ann Laurie Keene, the first student, who is from Smithfield, gave statistics to indicate the extent of the self-help student at ECTC, the amount involved in his or her earnings for college expenses while attending college each year, the variety of occupation 'self-help' students engage in—everything from dishwashing to computing distance of nebulae from the earth as instructors' assistants.

Andry Sulka from Sea Level spoke next bringing out just how much the opportunity to secure work while going to college meant to 'self-help' students. She said it meant trained for entering a profession or life work "without it, we could not be trained."

Self-help involves real work but we look on it as play. The fact that 'self-help' students average higher than other students and have only one third as many failures was declared by Miss Sulka. "Most of our 'self-help' work through their college career," she said in conclusion.

James Whitfield, a Greenville boy attending ECTC and a 'self-help' student, remarked on the interdependence of Greenville community and the College. The College, he said, enabled Greenville boys and girls to go to school from the first grade through college right here in Greenville. Business men get trade from the college students. Former students continue trading in Greenville leaving college. The City's churches enjoy regular support by college students attendance, and Greenville business men looked on the placing on ECTC in Greenville as a good business thing. ECTC needs the continued support of Greenville's citizens in such matters as new buildings, keeping tuition from increasing, athletic activities, the continuance of the co-operation which Greenville has always given ECTC.

Doris Armstrong of Rocky Mount told of the interesting aspects of self-help work. She related how she enjoyed coming to school, the students better whom she served at tables, how she enjoys the privilege of learning how to lay table and serve for formal or informal occasions, the fellowship with other dining room workers laughing and singing and working.

This dining room work, Dr. McGinnis explained was the serving of one thousand meals three times a day which means were always over in thirty minutes some finishing their food in ten minutes.

Eunice Griggs of Wadesboro brought humor to the program by speaking very entertainingly on "The Trials and Tribulations of a Blonde in a College Hash House"—the subject was assigned and she met it with a dandy sense of humor. Under her handling the telling of the hard work done in the dining room became a humorous recitation though it told of beginning at six-thirty in the morning, making so many thousand strokes with a knife to prepare grapefruit for the students' breakfast, wiping up thousands of starchy juice from her eyes, trying to get enough whole cups for her table, trying to smile while chasing to the kitchen for seconds a separate trip for each one at her table, rushing through on Saturday night to get a seat for the movies given at the college, and smiling when anyone calls her "Blondy" never bothering to use the good name given her by her parents—yes she was really blond.

John J. "Sig" Sigwald of Wilson, East Carolina Council Boy Scout Executive, was the only visiting Rotarian Monday night. Guests of the club were little Miss Catherine Van North and a new supervisor of the Greenville tobacco market, Bob Rankin, Rotarian K. W. Cobb, who has just resigned after fifteen years as supervisor in Greenville, greeted the new supervisor who replied in a few sincere words as to liking of Greenville and his hopes of continuing the good work started by Mr. Cobb whom he characterized as the "dean of tobacco market supervisors." The program was presented by Rufus Keel, chairman of the Scholarship Fund Committee, John Winstead, Club president, presided.

nationalists, on the other by the second most popular recreation area, with the world's most magnificent highway (the Blue Ridge Parkway) funneling tourists into the state.

"I'm looking at this thing from a statewide standpoint, not from any selfish local angle. It is simply inconceivable to me we should seriously consider crippling a program which has already increased North Carolina's travel business from approximately $40,000,000 in the fiscal year 1936-37 to well above $60,000,000 in the fiscal year 1937-38."

Senator Frink said that the advertising progress of the current biennium has been of inestimable value to his county and in particular to

FEAR LOSS OF NATION'L PARK

Stock Law Repeal Threatens Serious Consequences

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb. 7.—It seems a very major conclusion to draw from a very minor premise, but it is not at all illogical to conclude that North Carolina is in danger of losing the potentially most popular National Park in America because of a "little local" bill introduced in the General Assembly by Representative G. C. Boswood of Currituck.

The measure (House Bill 221 introduced last Friday) would repeal the stock law so far as it affects the Banks section of Currituck and would permit the scrubby, ill-kept stock of those regions to roam at large. Boswood introduced the repeal, it is believed, because during his campaign against then Representative E. R. Johnson he promised some of his constituents he would do so.

What it is certain to do is to cause abandonment of all erosion work in Currituck county now being carried on by the United States Park Service and what it threatens is the entire Seashore National Park project—a program which if carried through to successful completion will give eastern North Carolina the only seaside National Park in America which Federal Park authorities estimate will attract more visitors than any other in the country.

A. C. Stratton, Park Service superintendent in charge of the erosion work in Currituck, has announced positively and flatly that this valuable project will be abandoned completely and immediately if the Boswood bill becomes a law.

He points out that it would seriously jeopardize the Seashore Park project as it would make a large area of the proposed park undesirable. Establishment of the park depends largely on acquisition by the government of sufficient acreage.

To Study U. S.'s New Deal

London.—(AP)—A party of twenty British writers, lecturers and others interested in President Roosevelt's New Deal will visit the United States in April.

Under the leadership of the Hon. Hubert Howard, son of Lord Howard of Penrith, former British Ambassador in Washington, the party will visit New York, Washington, the Tennessee Valley, Chicago and Detroit.

They will inspect New Deal projects, and have talks with leading politicians, business men, labor leaders, and other prominent supporters and critics of the President.

His home town of Southport.
"You can make me the Number One man on any list of legislators opposed to any cut in the Budget Commission's recommendation of $250,000 for the advertising program during the next biennium," the Brunswick Senator said.

"When all is said and done opposition to the advertising program amounts to this: We do not believe advertising brings results, or we do not think it is the function of the state to advertise or we do not think the travel business and new industries are worth going after."

"Merely to state these arguments is to answer them. Nobody seriously contends that advertising fails to bring results. It is hardly open to dispute that the state is a proper agency to advertise itself and all statistics show that the travel business is the biggest single industry in the United States."

Senator Fearing, who is executive director of the Lost Colony pageant and drama at Roanoke Island, was equally emphatic in his endorsement of the advertising in general and the state's program in particular. He said he intends to fight vigorously to restore the $50,000 tentatively cut out of budget estimates.

ELECTION SUB-COMMITTEE LEGISLATIVE EARLY BIRD

(Continued from Page One) members, and the final form of its recommendations with respect to them has not been completely decided upon.

It seems practically certain, however, that existing marker provisions will be radically changed and that the subcommittee will recommend substantially that in future elections (primary or general) no "professional" markers will be followed and that the only method by which voters will be able to get help in preparing their ballots will be by calling upon a member of the "immediate family" though there is a possibility that provisions will also be made for getting help from one or more of the election judges. In any event, it seems certain that there will be a sincere effort to stop prevailing practices of parties and factions from having markers on duty at the polls.

The subcommittee only this morning got down to the really serious business which faces it—the problem of working out an acceptable recommendation on the absentee ballot, its use and abuse. Members have been a bit reticent in discussing progress made in the early morning session, but it seems reasonably safe to forecast that substantial progress has already been made and that before the end of this week—or early next week at the latest—there will be a report to the whole House committee.

There are so many possible solutions, and so many varying viewpoints that any forecast or prophecy of eventual fate of the absentee is highly dangerous to the reputation of the forecaster, but it isn't exactly a wild guess to say that the absentee suggestions of the State Board, which would leave it, with safeguards, for both primary and general elections, seems to have the inside track as of today.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Early Symptoms of Mental Disorders

Mental disorders may have an abrupt beginning. Most of them, however, develop almost insidiously. The observant individual can often notice significant changes of mood and behavior in the person suffering the early stages of a mental disorder.

Certain of these symptoms are of a non-specific character. They "shade off" from the moods and behavior of the normal person. Among the non-specific early symptoms, as described by relatives and friends of the patient, are the following:

Nervousness (restless, tense) sleeplessness, worry (uneasy and apprehensive), nightmares, hypochondria, complaints, moodiness, impatience, fault-finding, and moralizing. The above belong to what is called a "hyper-active pattern," which is found in the individual who reacts aggressively.

The symptoms given below are of the hypo-active pattern, that is when the individual withdraws and is recessive rather than aggressive. These symptoms are: seclusiveness, day-dreaming, loss of friends, irritability, loss of interest and of ambition, depression, lack of energy and slump in work, fatigue, poor appetite.

These symptoms are presented to show the reader the fact that the presence of such symptoms whether within himself or in any of those near to him should arouse suspicion that something may be wrong which requires competent medical or psychiatric help.

On the behavior side, such a patient may appear to be dazed or dizzy, has odd sensations within his body, has lost the feeling of familiarity with his surroundings.

College Superlatives.

After the ballots of the senior class of East Carolina Teachers College had been counted in the recent poll to select the "Senior Superlatives," it was found that Miss Lucile Lewis of Wilmington, president of the class, had won four of the honors on the list, having been voted "the most versatile," "the most intellectual," "the best leader," and "the best all-round."

Twenty-three superlatives were chosen. Fodie Hodges of Grimesland, the only other senior to win more than one title, was chosen "the handsomest" and "the best-dressed boy." Hodges is president of the men's honorary educational fraternity, vice-president of the Men's Student Government Association and chairman of the student chapel committee.

The other seniors chosen were: Misses Emily Brendle of Booneville, "most capable;" Louise Freeman of Windsor, "most individual;" Doris Hollowell of Princeton, best athlete, girl; Lester Ridenhour of Coolee-mee, best athlete, boy.

Misses Pete Hill of Sanford, "most original;" Sellastine Hughes of Colerain, "wittiest;" Maude Melvin of Samburg, "most talented;" Rebecca Nicholson of Franklinton, "friendliest;" Lillian Parrish of Rocky Point, "most popular;" Cora Lee Patterson of Farmville, "prettiest;" Nell Perry of Bailey, "best personality;" Dorothy Steadman of Pinetops, "best-dressed girl;" Sue Speed of Franklinton, "most studious;" Sarah Stephenson of Willoughby Springs, "cutest;" Berge Sheppard of Wilmington, "best dancer, girl;" and Leo Burks of Greenville, "best dancer, boy."

To Inform Public How Money Spent

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Feb. 8.—Economy, which is the watchword of every political campaign and then is too often forgotten, is not to be carried so far as to cut off the public from information about how its money is spent.

Admittedly very few people read the financial reports of the various state departments, and still fewer understand them. But the logic of requiring them to be printed keeps officials "honest," according to majority sentiment in the House.

Under the guise of economy Representatives Stone and Garrett of Rockingham proposed to do away with printing reports of all departments except the auditor, the attorney general and the budget commission. Introduction of the bill didn't occasion a ripple. It went to committee on printing and came out with a favorable report. But it didn't get any further.

The idea of "open covenants openly arrived at" and of "pitiless publicity" had many champions in the House. Chief of these perhaps was Major Gregg Cherry, who put his right time fire into defense of the right of the people to have made available to them the disposition their officials had made of the money appropriated. The bill was tabled by overwhelming vote. This was the same House which a few days before had passed a purely political bill, aimed at a Republican newspaper, permitting sale of land for taxes without advertising. Only Democrats get the job of printing state department reports.

SHORTEST MONTH

And These Are The Shortest Items

It snowed a little this morning. Passenger train an hour late Tuesday night.

Plenty of water everywhere and the river is no exception. If February is to go on as it started we are glad it is a short month. Farmers have not had the chance to do any work since February got here.

The town that looks most after the interests of the farmers in an agricultural district like this, is sure to be the town whose interests the farmers will look after.

ANOTHER PEST OUT OF NORTH

Need $30,000 To Check Spread Of Japanese Beetle

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb. 8.—Unless the State of North Carolina immediately spends as much as $30,000 to match federal allocation in preventing spread of the Japanese beetle, it will be throttled by federal quarantine this spring, according to presentation of the need made by Clarence Brannon before the joint agricultural committee yesterday.

Already parts of New England, most of New York and Pennsylvania, in extensive areas in New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia are under quarantine and the infestation is spreading southward. Beetles have been found all the way from Winston-Salem to Wilmington.

Need for immediate action was stressed, at the same time notice was given that an appropriation of $50,000 a year will be asked as a permanent preventive measure. The $30,000 now requested to match available funds will be spent within the next six weeks and will stave off quarantine regulations for at least a year.

The sectional issue was raised when it was pointed out that the northern areas now under quarantine are anxious to have North Carolina placed in the same category so that the dealers in plants and seeds may ship their infested products into this state.

Prevention work includes forcing arsenate of lead solution into the soil by high pressure. The federal government co-operates to the extent of furnishing the high-pressure equipment and making the surveys. The state must buy the arsenate and supply the labor.

ARGUMENTS ON SCHOOL NEAR

About Time For Various Problems To Come Up

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Feb. 8.—For one reason and another, maybe several others, there hasn't been a great deal of noise about teacher salaries, year increments for teachers, the Twelfth grade restoration of salaries to pre-depression levels, and all the other more or less controversial angles of school affairs.

But it's just about time for these subjects to get more serious consideration from the legislature and it won't be long now before there'll be plenty of disturbance over all these subjects.

Nobody is making any flat statements about the chances of any of the many proposals. There is a general belief that schools and teachers will be lucky to keep what they now have in the matter of salaries, while there are those who see so many practical difficulties that a Twelfth grade at this time looks very, very dubious.

Nobody can be found who doesn't favor "in principle" every single solitary request of the school teachers and of the schools. Everybody, his brother, cousin and aunt, is for everything that the scholastic folks want, but when it comes to the very practical matter of how to finance them, the real humming and hawing begins.

GREENIES AND WILSON PAIRED

Open There April 27;
Close With Tarboro Sept. 1

Adoption of a 128-game schedule, to open on Thursday, April 27 and close on Friday, September 1, and unanimous approval of a resolution expressing regret at the departure of Ayden from the league were the two major, and, in fact, only matters of business to come before the directors of the Coastal Plain league at a meeting in Wilson last night.

The Wilson club, the latest entry in the circuit, was host to representatives from the various towns in the league.

The schedule, the second offered by the schedule committee, was adopted after much discussion. D. C. Moore, Jr., secretary of the Greenville club, offered a substitute schedule, prepared by his brother, a T. Moore, and although it received much favorable comment and was considered by some to be a better one than the one adopted, the directors voted to accept the committee's draft.

The schedule adopted was drawn along as asked by the directors at a meeting in New Bern about a month ago, when the first one prepared by the committee was rejected. It gives each team a home game on alternate Sundays, though most of each team's Sunday games will be played with only four of the clubs in the league. Greenville will meet Williamston on seven Sundays, four here and three there. The Greensies will play four Sunday games with Wilson, two here and two there; three with New Bern, one here and two there; and four with Snow Hill, two here and two there.

The Greensies, having had the opening date last year, will open the season with Wilson there this year and will play the final game before the play-off with Tarboro there.

Games will be played seven days a week, with all tie and rained-out games to be played as a double header the next time the two teams meet on the grounds of the team where the tie or rained-out game was scheduled.

Double-headers will be played on July 4th, with Greenville at Wilson in the morning and Wilson here in the afternoon. The schedule did not take into account night games, but it appeared last night that Snow Hill and Williamston would be the only two teams not playing under the artificial lights.

The motion to adopt resolutions expressing regret at Ayden's withdrawal from the league was made by J. R. Youngblood, president of the Tarboro club, and seconded by Greenville's secretary Moore. League President J. B. Eure, who is from Ayden, said he was certain the Ayden folks would appreciate the action and added he personally appreciated it.

Teachers Meet.
The Greenville district county teachers held their sixth monthly meeting at St. Peter's school on Tuesday, February 7th.

The speakers were Miss Holtzclaw, home economics instructor at E. C. T. C.; Mr. R. E. Jones, 4-H club specialist at A. & T. College, Greensboro; Miss Law, the subject matter specialist, and Mr. G. Roland, agricultural instructor at Ayden high school.

Miss Holtzclaw's subject was "Home Improvement." She stressed home as the basis of civilization, how to make it more comfortable and attractive, how articles of furniture may be made from scrap material, cheese boxes, etc. Miss Holtzclaw not only told how to make these articles, but produced them for inspection.

Food storage, sleeping quarters and social functions were discussed, arousing all to a sense of duty to eliminate within the rural districts such unhealthy and unsightly conditions that may exist.

Mr. Jones and Miss Law encouraged those present to put into practice what had been said by Miss Holtzclaw. Not be simply hearers, but doers, that a demonstration of the lecture show in and around the home.

The last speaker, Mr. Roland, urged planting gardens for a variety of vegetables, not collard, cabbage and salad patches. Some of the other points were loaction, preparation, how to destroy the rubbish, good tillage and kinds of fertilizer.

Miss Donnell, the supervisor, who has labored so hard trying to help others to use what they have and bring results, was much encouraged to continue her program of "Live-at-Home."

A nice luncheon was served by the members of St. Peter's Parents Club, which was much enjoyed.

Night Games

Six of the eight teams in the Coastal Plain baseball league hope to play at night, it was revealed at a meeting of directors in Wilson last night. Snow Hill and Williamston being the only two entries which are not trying to make arrangements to play under the arcs.

Greenville's club is "dickering" with a committee from the Board of Aldermen concerning a lease of the field and lights. Goldsboro, Tarboro, Kinston and Wilson representatives stated definitely they were contemplating night games. A meeting was held in New Bern last night for the purpose of attempting to provide for night games.

ELON COLLEGE IN 38-31 WIN

Shelton, With 20 Points, Leads Scoring

Playing in their roughest, toughest and hardest-fought game of the season, Elon College last night turned in a 38-31 verdict over East Carolina Teachers College.

Despite Elon's scoring threats in the opening, an 8-8 deadlock was established only seven minutes later. W. L. Hobson, Elon guard, broke the ice and his mates breezed to a 23-15 half-time advantage.

When the intermission relaxation was concluded, there was a different story. William (Bill) Shelton, Pirate scoring ace, turned on the pressure in this phase and bagged 11 points. Earlier Shelton created a 27-27 deadlock, but Lincoln Manzi broke the ice.

In many instances last night's affair closely resembled a hockey game. The contest was sparked with roughness, an indication of which will be shown in the fact that an even dozen personal fouls were charged against the winners and 11 against the losers.

Tom Parrish, ECTC freshman, who has become a varsity member since the Yuletide holidays, turned in a fine performance last night. He was dismissed by the foul route about six minutes before the final whistle, however.

Several disgruntled fans showed their dislike for the officiating at various intervals. Yet, with so many things happening on the court at once it was a hard matter for the officials as well as the spectators to keep an accurate check as to what was going on.

Elon boosted a top-notch defensive set-up. This was one of the factors that retarded the progress of the Pirates, who made the visitors stand up and take notice at their superb brand of ball handling.

Although not up to his top standing, Earl Smith, Pirate forward, played a good game. Donald Brock, another local scoring ace, played a hard-fought game.

Elon's Jack Gardner, the winners' scoring ace in last night's affair, and in other contests this season, shot 13 points to pace his mates. Gardner went in as a substitute in the first half. He also played rough and was charged with three personal fouls.

After the visitors took a new lead in the last half, they never held a safe advantage until the final minutes.

Line-ups and individual scoring:
Elon: Forwards, Flythe, Moss 5, Manzi 5, Gardner 13; Center, Fesmire 5; Guards, Pearce 6, Hobson 4, Zyrrh.

ECTC: Forwards, Shelton 4, Simpson, Center, Brock 5; Guards, Ridenhour 1, Parrish 1, Hinton.

Officials: Umpire, Atkinson; Referee, Mock.

PHANTOMS WIN OVER EDENTON

Defeat Conference
Foe By Score of 47-8

By "SMUT" BURKS
In a slow and unexciting basketball game played in Edenton last night, Coach Bo Farley's conference leading court contingent of Greenville high school crushed the Edenton Aces by a 47-8 score. In their first game the G-men took a one-sided 45-7 game from the Aces and had little trouble in repeating the feat last night.

Greenville jumped into an early 8-2 lead on baskets by Jordan, McGowan and Lautares and held a wide margin the rest of the game. At the halfway mark Greenville led 17-7.

Greenville came back strong after intermission and sprinted to a 32-7 lead midway the second half. George Sakas and Tracey Jordan were the main marksmen in Greenville's second half scoring spree. The G-men were guarding the Aces very closely and Edenton had few scoring opportunities. The Greensies held their opponents to a lone free throw the entire second half.

Substitutes were made frequently by Greenville and second-stringers offered a good brand of ball during their stay on the court. Their defensive work was about as effective as the guarding tactics of the first string.

Those close guarding Phantoms ran to four the number of games in which their opponents were held to ten points or less. Roanoke Rapids is the only team that has been able to score over 20 points against the locals, having made 29 points on the G-men in a game played in Roanoke Rapids.

Last night's victory gives the locals a record of nine wins and one loss, and leaves them at the top of the conference standings, with Goldsboro in the runner-up position.

The next test for the high-riding phantoms will be on Friday night, when the invading Earthquake Five of Goldsboro opposes the G-men on the local gym in their second class of the year. Goldsboro handed the locals their only setback of the season by a 16-14 score in an overtime game played in Goldsboro.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened unchanged to four higher on trade and commission house buying of near months and Bombay support of distant positions. New Orleans and southern spot interests offered contracts and there was some hedging.

About mid-morning prices were one lower to four points higher.

Around noon prices again were one lower to four higher.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Demand for steel, motor and aircraft shares pointed the stock market upward today in a resumption of the recent creeping advance.

Progress was hesitant, but most stocks showed gains of fractions to more than a point around the fourth hour. Dealings were among the smallest for a forenoon session in recent months.

Utility issues met renewed buying in a steady bond market.

IF STUDENT LACK MONEY THEY BARTER WITH HAMS

Pullman, Wash. —(AP)—A crate of pumpkins or hams from the old farm smokehouse can be the down payment on an education at Washington State College.

Possibilities of the barter system are offered needy students who live in the new cooperative dormitory. Farm youths can—and do—turn in vegetables, fruits or meats from home as payments on board and room bills. They get credit at the market price.

College Leather Pushers To Engage Louisburg

Boxing fans will have an opportunity to see some rough action tonight when the East Carolina Teachers College varsity leather shiners tangle up with Louisburg College in what promises to be one of the most thrilling meets of the season.

The teams made similar showings against Atlantic Christian College and according to pre-meet dope are about equal in material.

The Louisburg lads have three excellent fighters in the person of Elbert Ward, Milford Ginn and Wallace Gray. Ward is a former Goldsboro high school boxer and has made an enviable record in Eastern Carolina boxing circles. He will be fighting in the 155-pound division and carries a lot of power in his punches.

Louisburg has a well-balanced team and should make things quite interesting for the local boxers.

Fights will start promptly at 8 o'clock in the Campus building of the college.
