Accused of Increasing International Tension

British Press and Citizens, However, Welcome Britain's Increase in Armaments

London, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The announcement of the vast increase in Britain's rearmament drive was welcomed here today, but in Germany it produced a sharp thrust at the United States.

Chancellor Hitler's own newspaper scored the United States for "increasing international tension" by supplying materials to European countries.

Commenting on the announcement to parliament by Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer that British rearmament this year would cost $80,000,000 pounds ($1,200,000,000) and increase of 175 per cent in 1939, the paper asserted that the tempo of rearmament was determined by states whose national sentiment in the German view did not justify such means.

The paper said: "We are thinking primarily of the United States, which has not only under a deliberately false pretext of the 'threatening of America' increased its own armaments by leaps and bounds, but also today in the midst of peace the United States exports in Europe a large scale and thus increases international tension emanating from this wave of armaments."

RIVERS REACH HEAVY FLOODS

Goldsboro Plant May Have To Close Down

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Neuse river went into heavy floods today at Goldsboro as a result of rains yesterday when the river was already out of its banks.

Most of the state had additional rains as high winds did untold damage at many places yesterday.

The Tar river at Tarboro was still rising slowly flooding into Princeville but at Greenville the depth of 16.9 feet was expected to be about the crest.

A "moderate" second rise was developing this morning in the upper Cape Fear, Denson said, but the Neuse had dropped six inches at Smithfield after climbing five and a half feet above bank level.

Goldsboro reported overflowing waters of the Neuse closed three Wayne county roads and isolated a pupils of the Resewood school were number of rural homes. A dozen unable to reach the school house on account of the flood.

P. M. Edgerton, State Highway district engineer, there reported the Cox mill road, the Capps bridge road, near Ebenezer Methodist church in Fork township, and another near the Johnston county line closed by the water.

The river stood at 19.06 at 8 A. M., and the official forecast said it (Continued on page six)

WORK IS LEFT FOR CONGRESS BY PRESIDENT

Asks Measure on Conservation of Energy Resources

TWO MESSAGES ARE DISPATCHED

Chief Executive To Leave Tonight for Key West, Fla., to Start Caribbean Sea Cruise

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, his bags packed for a vacation cruise, gave Congress two more problems today to work on while he is gone.

Preparing to depart tonight for Key West, Fla., to board the cruiser Houston, for a sail into the Caribbean sea, the president sent special messages to Capitol Hill on the conservation of energy resources and the elimination of water pollution.

Both messages were accompanied by reports of the National Resources Committee and proposed studies and formulation of policies on the two subjects.

Capitol Hill, busy with several national defense matters, heard, meanwhile, from members of the Senate Military committee about testimony that the press overrode specific objections from General Main Craig, army chief of staff, to permit a French air mission to buy 100 American made planes of the latest type.

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) said Secretary Morgenthau told the committee that the president overrode Craig's objections after a conference with Morgenthau, Craig and the Secretary of the Navy.

Other developments: Senator Lee (D-Okla.) proposed a complete revision of the administration farm program for wheat and cotton, introducing a domestic allotment agricultural bill.

Francis Sayre, assistant secretary of State, urged the Senate Territories committee to make Philippine independence "secure and continuing."

White House officials said President Roosevelt would delay appointment of a successor to Associate Justice Louis Brandeis of the Supreme court until his return March 4 from his southern cruise.

Joseph Keenan, who frequently launches an attack with all available weapons, including aircraft, probably February 20.

Lieut. C. Commander Charles Jeff, commanding the U. S. gunboat Oahu, planned to leave Kiukaing tomorrow to arrange an escort for the foreigners who want to leave the Americans already were concentrating at the American school in the resort and other groups of foreigners were believed also to be gathering in other places.

HUNT FOR WATCH THAT SAVED KEMAL

SMYRNA, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A reward equivalent to $250 is offered by a Swiss watch manufacturing concern for the discovery of the whereabouts of a silver watch which is said to have saved the life of the late Kemal Ataturk on the Dardanelles front by stopping a bullet while in his breast pocket.

Kemal later presented the watch to a German general and it is believed that the latter's death his widow sold it to an American.

Miami Beach Hotel Looted By Daring Bandits

Mrs. Antonina Barco (left) of New York, a wealthy widow, reported to police she lost $75,000 in cash and jewels when bandits rifled safe deposit boxes in the Blackstone Hotel at Miami Beach. Some sources estimated the loot at between $150,000 and $200,000 but Chief of Police H. V. Youem said he had not been able to determine whether it would amount to $5,000 or $500,000. At the right are shown some of the boxes which were broken open by the heavily armed bandits, five in number, who trussed up five guests, a clerk, a bellboy and two housemen.

MASS MEETING 8 P. M., FRIDAY

Mayor Blount Urges Citizens of Greenville to Attend

Mayor M. K. Blount expressed the desire today that all civic clubs and other organizations in the city have their members at the mass meeting to be held in the dis-house tomorrow night for the discussion of proposed changes in the city charter.

Especially invited officials of the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants Association, Parent-Teacher Associations, Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs to advise their members to be present and they themselves attend and take part in the discussion. He further said he desired every citizen interested in the affairs of the city to be present.

The meeting is being held to inform the members representing Pitt county in the General Assembly of the sentiment of the Greenville people on the question involved—city manager form of government, park commission planning commission, etc.

Mayor Blount declared it was his desire and that of the Board of Aldermen to do what the people wanted done and invited them to discuss the merits and demerits of the bills.

Any person having other proposals affecting the city is invited to bring them to the attention of the city officials and citizens at the meeting and they will be given consideration.

Conditions Better In North Carolina

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Business conditions in North Carolina are improving, the State Employment service reasoned today on the basis of increased placements and fewer job-hunters during January.

Last month was 215 per cent better than in January 1938, in job opportunities, the service said. Placements rose 72 per cent in private employment and 181 per cent on public construction. There were 7,152 persons put to work last month.

There was a 36 per cent drop in job applications, as compared with January, 1938. Of the 32,765 applications, 15,742 were new and 17,023 were renewals. A year ago there were 56,890 applicants.

Trainmen Victims Of Head-On Crash

Amory, Miss., Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Sunnysland, fast Priscip passenger train, collided head-on with a north bound freight train in Quincy, nine miles east of here, early today.

E. L. Buren, Frisco agent here, said George W. Owens of Birmingham, engineer of the Sunnysland, and Laddie Ivy, porter, were killed.

The Gilmore sanatorium at Amory issued a list of seven who were treated for injuries there.

Attendants said the seven probably would remain in the hospital for treatment. Doctors there said they had treated "two or three others" for minor injuries.

Cold Weather Spread Over Eastern States

(By The Associated Press)

Arctic cold spread over the East today in the wake of freak weather conditions that claimed at least 13 lives in the eastern half of the United States.

Abating winds that had reached a 71 mile-an-hour intensity yesterday ended the threat of serious floods along sections of New England coast, not yet recovered from last September's disastrous hurricane.

Snow and swiftly dropping temperatures accompanied the storm as it moved eastward from the midwest, freezing rain-swept highways, but lowering the flood menace in the upper Ohio valley.

Effect of rainfall in the lower valley, still unreached by the floodwaters, remained doubtful. Lowlanders along the river and its unruly tributaries, hoped the cold and Cumberland, hoped the cold wave would check rising waters.

Red Cross officials, however, prepared to move many families. Ohio river waters, already seven feet above flood stage at Paducah, Ky., overflowed several streets there.

Gales which struck the mid-south yesterday, left two dead in Alabama. Five persons died in three auto accidents in central Pennsylvania, attributed to blinding snow and slippery roads. Other accidents cost two lives in New Jersey and two brothers drowned when a ramp swept away at Elmira, N. Y. One death from exposure was reported in Arkansas and another in Mississippi.

Chilling cold following a 65-mile-an-hour rain squall tumbled temperatures in New York City from 62—highest ever recorded for the date—to below freezing.

Snow to depth of six and eight inches covered western New York state and sent small streams brimming their banks.

New England, harassed by rains, gales, lightning, fog and abnormal tides, looked forward to more snow. Small boats along the coast were swamped, but no loss of life was reported.

PRINCIPALS IN MEETING HERE

Discuss This Year's Work; Plan For 1939-40

With the county schools scheduled to end their 1938-39 session on Friday, April 28, principals of the various units met in the offices of the County Board of Education here yesterday afternoon and made plans for winding up this year's work and discussed next year's activities.

J. B. Moore, principal of the Farmville school, was elected president of the Principals' club for the 1939-40 session. He will succeed G. P. Carr of Stokes, present chief executive of the club. The president is named early so he can draw up his committees and otherwise make plans for the coming year.

The various principals discussed several plans for next year in the hope that many details can be worked out for next session before the close of this year's term.

Several details relating to the closing of the 1938-39 session were discussed by the principals. The schools have experienced no interruptions on account of bad weather or epidemics or diseases and unless some difficulty is encountered during the last two months the sessions will be completed as scheduled on April 28.

Plans were perfected for a high school basketball tournament, to be held in the Greenville High school auditorium on March 1, 2, 3, 4, 6.

The principals also discussed methods for conducting the program for testing the students for scholastic achievements, the tests to be held some time in the latter part of March.

Plans were completed for a county-wide teachers meeting to be held in Stokes on the night of Monday, February 20.

The new method of electing officers of the North Carolina Education Association also was considered by the principals.

WOULD PERMIT LIFE TERMS IN CAPITAL CASES

Bill Grants Discretionary Power to Judges, Juries

LIQUOR BY MAIL BILL CONSIDERED

Another Effort Made to Prohibit Civil Suit Against Drivers In Automobile Accidents

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The administration's bill to permit judges and juries to impose life terms instead of death sentences in cases where first degree convictions are obtained, hit the legislature today.

Senator Boyette of Moore introduced it. It provides for discretionary life sentences for all crimes now punishable by death.

The Joint Finance committee held an afternoon hearing on the bill to permit mail order liquor shipments to dry counties.

Amateur and newspaper photographers would be exempt from the state law regulating photographers under a bill introduced by Sen. Gray of Forsyth.

Another effort to amend the laws on liability in automobile accidents came in a bill by Sen. Joyner of Irrel to ban suits by dependent relatives against persons having automobile accidents.

Representatives debated tentatively the bill to extend the powers of the labor department to promulgate anti-trust regulations.

Bryant of Durham told the House he opposed any measure which permits the bureau to make rules having the effect of criminal law.

"One of the most alarming tendencies of the time," said Bryant, "is the willingness of the people to give up the rights our forefathers fought and died for. It is contrary to the concepts of a free and unshackled people. I appeal to this house to stop this delegation of the constitutional authority."

Abernethy of Nash supported Bryant's position.

Cherry of Gaston and Johnson of Ashe spoke for the bill, saying it was aimed at "those who would chisel on labor" and it was "for the poor man."

The bill was defeated 70 to 37.

The State Farm Bureau Federation appeared before a joint agriculture sub-committee to deny it had stirred up a controversy over alleged deduction of farm services. It said its interest was the 301,000 farm families of the state. The bureau insisting duplication did exist, urged the committee to define clearly the duties of each and definitely allocate funds to the agriculture department and the extension service of North Carolina State college.

William H. McHenry To Address Kiwanis

William H. McHenry, superintendent of buildings and grounds and head of the Industrial Arts department of East Carolina Teachers College, will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock at the Woman's club building.

Mr. McHenry will speak on the topic "The Purpose of Industrial Arts Education." The program is sponsored by a committee composed of Chairman J. M. Barrett, C. D. Ward and J. Ficklen Arthur.

The original plan to leave the meeting open for a discussion of proposed changes in the city charter was dispensed with when it was learned that a mass meeting would be held at the courthouse for that purpose immediately following the club's meeting.

The ball is being sponsored by the Service League, all proceeds to go directly for the maintenance of a free bed in the local hospital. Providing this bed is one of the League's latest and most important projects. It is one that has had strong and widespread appeal. Mr. and Mrs. Britt Entertain.
Last evening at seven o'clock, at their home on Biltmore street, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Britt were hosts at a three-course dinner, honoring their niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Norman McCaskill of Kinston, and their cousin, Miss Helena Staton, who are leaving in a few days for McAllen, Texas, where Mr. McCaskill will be in spring training with the Tulsa, Oklahoma, baseball club, and from there they go to Tulsa, Oklahoma, for the summer.

A color scheme of red and white was used as a reminder of the Valentine season. The table was centered with a silver basket of red carnations, flanked with burning red tapers on either side. Valentine place cards directed the following guests to their places: Mr. and Mrs. Norman McCaskill, Miss Helena Staton, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, Mr. O. L. Miss Lund has been called "a singing Ruth Draper" because of the dramatic nature of her program. A remarkable linguist, Miss Lund is at home in a dozen languages. She comes of Danish stock, but was born in Iceland.

This singer explains each song before she sings it, thus giving her listeners the sort of background for the song that the E.C.T.C. audience enjoyed in the recent program of the opera trio here.

Miss Lund has as her accompanist Dr. Ferdinand Rauter, who is also an authority on folk music.

The program will be given in the Austin auditorium, instead of the auditorium usually used, and will be at 8 o'clock.

Card of Thanks.
Mr. and Mrs. Herman Buck kindly thank the people of their community for the help which they have received since their fire accident.

NEW ORLEANS CHEWERS KEEP CLEANERS BUSY
New Orleans—(AP)—It takes 17 men 2 nights a week to keep chewing gum cleaned up on Canal street, this city's main thoroughfare. A bucketful of gum wads is the nightly harvest.

Once while the gum cleaning crew was working away with putty knives, steel wool and scrub buckets up walked a buxom woman. "Cleaning up gum, huh?" she inquired. "Yes," a workman nodded. "Well," she said, taking a large wad from her mouth, "there's some more to work on."

The cleanup crew works in groups of three. One man pries up the gum wads with a putty knife. Another applies mineral spirits to remove the stick and a third mops up with a steel wool buffer.

THAWING OUT People Begin Stirring Around

Fred Forbes is laid up with his vaccination. Like as not some spring weather will follow close on the heels of the blizzard. Don't fret, spring will come a little later. Three years ago this morning the big fire visited Greenville.

Worthy Of Note
We believe there is less destitution in Greenville than any other town its size. The snow and blizzard were just as bad here as elsewhere, but there have been very few cases where help was needed. Such cases of need as became known were aided by individuals and there has been no public call for contributions.

Mrs. J. E. Koeger and daughter of Williamston, visited Mrs. Wm. McArthur a few days this week.

The Red Oak Home Demonstration Club will present a play in the Arthur auditorium Thursday night. We hope that as many as possible will support this organization by attending their play.

Work on the new Sunday school rooms of the Christian Church is progressing nicely. If nothing prevents steady work they will be ready for use in a short time.

In 1938, nearly 2,000 North Carolina farmers installed home water systems ranging in cost from $15 to several hundred dollars.

Mrs. Hugh Briley asked to have the next meeting at her home in Greenville.

keep in mind the fact that roses are living organisms affected by heat, cold, drought and hunger in their way, just like ourselves, and treat them accordingly, then you will have a fine chance for success.

Finally, summing up all the suggestions made, may I give just a few rose hints:

- Roses may be planted any time from November on through April. The important thing is the condition of the soil. Be sure that it does not stick to the spade; if it does, wait a few days.
- It isn't the freezing that kills the rose plants. It is alternate freezing and thawing—that's why we give winter protection.
- Be sure to apply liquid manures only where the soil is wet.
- Dry wood ashes, about two handfuls to each plant, are used by some as a preventative of mildew.
- Avoid sprinkling rose foliage after sundown. It may induce mildew and black spot.
- Never sprinkle roses. If they are watered, be sure that sufficient water is put at the base of the plants to thoroughly wet the ground around the roots.
- Cut your roses with nice, long stems, even though you take two or three sets of leaves with them. This will result in a second crop of flowers for the fall.
- Remember that newly planted roses must be pruned very low, and no commercial fertilizer used the first year.
- Success with roses depends greatly upon pruning.
- There is no "secret" about rose culture but a "routine" which it is well to know and to follow. They respond quite in proportion to the intelligent care and faithful, affectionate attention given them. Untold beauty and pure delight are in store for those who have and enjoy these precious jewels of the garden.

Best of luck.

Spectators saw a thrilling curtain-raiser yesterday as Arapahoe and Walstonburg tangled. Arapahoe trounced its opponent 23-15 after breaking the ice in a 10-10 deadlock that was created at intermission. James Broughton, completing his senior year with Arapahoe, shot eight points to pace the winners. Bill Hinson, a senior member of the Walstonburg varsity, got seven points to lead his colleagues.

Fairfield high school moved away from a 10-9 advantage held at intermission and breezed to a 23-15 verdict over Speed. Surry Winbourne forged ahead in Speed's offensive onslaught with 11 of his mates total points. Captain George Berry bagged 8 points to garner the winners scoring laurels.

Bethel high school went ahead of an early advantage piled up by Bath and came out on the big end of a 20-12 decision. Bethel was ahead 7-6 at the half and kept a one-point lead until the concluding minutes of the game. John Allen, a junior member of the Pitt County entry, with 11 points, topped the winners scoring. Gurganus, with 8 was best for the losers.

Belvoir high school, another Pitt County entry, turned in a 32-20 triumph over Creswell in the fourth affair of afternoon play. Belvoir was ahead 13-6 at intermission. Robert Stancill was credited with five field goals for the winners. John Collins, Creswell guard, led his colleagues with ten points.

Aurora's girls managed to turn in a 15-13 verdict over Maury high's sextet in the first girls' contest of tourney competition. Aurora boasted a 9-3 advantage at the half but Maury came through to deadlock the score 11 all. The ice was broken with a free throw and the lead was never relinquished. Mary Thompson shot nine points to lead the winners. Ruth Nethercutt with five and Reninnah Hughes with 4 led the losers.

Vanceboro high's sextet triumphed 21-19 at the expense of Walstonburg high's girl entry. Walstonburg was ahead 11-9 at the half. Adams with an even dozen points forged to the front for scoring honors in the winners' division. Captain Grace Biddy, forward, with nine was top-performer for the losers.

Grimesland's girl entry breezed to a 22-12 win over the Mangum high school sextet. The Pitt County girls boasted a 10-7 lead at the rest period. Fannie Clark scored 18 of her mates total number of points. Captain Myrtle Jefres with eight led Mangum.

Green Hope's girls, the team that divided final honors among the feminine entries in last year's tournament, last night showed indications of gaining prominence again this year by completely overpowering Lucama 26-8. Green Hope had piled up a 13-6 lead by intermission. Gracie Dowd, a junior, accounted for ten of Green Hope's combined total of tallies. Frances Aycock shot a half dozen points to feature for Lucama.

Beargrass fought hard and furious in the ninth affair of last night's pairings, but was faded 18-17 by the swift Mangum high contingent. Mangum was in front 10-7 at half. The losers deadlocked the score as 17 all five minutes before the final whistle. A charity toss by George Ellis broke the ice and gave his colleagues the verdict. Ronald White with 6 points led Beargrass.

Washington high school's Pam Pack concluded opening day activities by turning back Spring Hope's boys 30-22. Spring Hope held a 16-9 advantage at intermission. James Kelly, Washington guard, got 12 points to lead his team's scoring. Barbee, forward, with 9 was best for the losers.

GIRLS TO FACE BEAUFORT FOE

Ancient Rivalry to Be Revived Here Friday Night

By "SMUT" BURWS

The ancient rivalry existing between Washington and Greenville will be kindled Friday night when the Lady Phantoms of G.H.S. will entertain in the sextet of Washington high school on the local floor. The game will start promptly at 7:11. It is the second meeting of the two teams in the present season.

In their first encounter the Washington lassies won by a 25-18 margin to hand Coach Mary Shaw Roberson's girls their only defeat of the season. Louise Popperville was the point-making star of the Pamlico team and will be the spearhead of their attack tomorrow night. Mumford is another star who will bear watching.

Since their defeat at the hands of their arch-rivals, the local girls have registered wins over Kinston twice and Goldsboro twice and are given a good chance of upsetting their earlier conquerors. The Phantoms have improved steadily in their daily workouts and are all set to give the Washingtonians a tough battle.

Starting on the Phantom sextet will probably be Betty Tyson fancy shooting star of the team. Joy Planagan and Audrey Leggett, who has shown much progress since the season opener, at the forward positions. The defense will be capably handled by Jane Harrison. Lib Wells and Doris Roberts, all of whom are outstanding cagers.

Friday's game promises to be the most exciting girls game played here this season. In addition to the keen antagonism toward each other, the Greenies will be out for blood to avenge their previous loss to the Lady Pam Pack. The visitors however, hold a slight edge over the Greenville ladies on the strength of their first victory in Washington. Considering all these facts, the game tomorrow night should be packed with thrills and chills and should give the fans a real treat.

This game will be the next-to-last appearance of the local girls on the home court this year.

Their last test will be the following Tuesday night when they meet the Wilson sextet on the local floor.

JUNIORS LOSE CLOSE BATTLE

Defeated 18-16 By After Two Extra Periods

By KENNETH WOOLARD

The Baby Phantoms of G.H.S. went to Kinston Tuesday night and suffered a thrill-packed 16-17 defeat by the Grainger junior high school of that city.

At the end of the first quarter the junior Phantoms held a 5-1 lead over the Baby Red Devils. The contest was evenly matched throughout the first half, which ended with the fidget G-men holding an 8 to 7 advantage.

The junior Devils returned after the half to register 4 straight field goals, while holding the junior Phantoms scoreless during the third quarter.

Reversing their defense to offense in the final period, the locals scored 8 points while yielding only one point to their opponents. When the final whistle was sounded the game was deadlocked 16-16.

An extra period elapsed with no scoring by either team. In the second extra period, Roundtree dropped a difficult field goal, automatically ending the game.

Percy Wells and Wilfred Allen displayed fine defensive work for the locals throughout the entire game.

Game Called Off

Authorities sponsoring the Monogram Club basketball game were advised early this morning of an automobile accident in Missouri that resulted in serious injuries to two of the touring athletes and painful injuries to four others.

This will necessitate canceling, for the time being, the game with the Monogram Club of East Carolina Teachers College which was scheduled for Tuesday night, February 21.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Almost every day you take it in stride the same as a fire or a political rally or anything else. I think the effect of an experiential, are sustained against some offender of society, and he is executed. If this happens in New York State the convicted is taken to Sing Sing and there put to death in the manner prescribed by law. Now the legal taking of human life is not a pretty subject, and witnessing such an event is certainly nothing to brag about. But most newspapermen run into assignments like this at times, and when you do from the time he enters the cell to when the prison doctor officially declares "this man is dead."

Of course, if the man is a headliner who has evoked nation-wide interest the story is played up. But otherwise it is a few paragraphs. Sometimes I read where the official witnesses faint or fall to the floor—veteran newspapermen, I mean—and I have read also of sentimental chair-side confessions that had the witnesses in tears. I never saw anything like that. I am not proud of the fact that I have seen perhaps a dozen executions, but then neither am I ashamed of it, because those experiences fell within the routine of early training in a mid-western state, and I took them as I did state fairs and football games.

But I never saw a newspaperman faint. I never heard any sobbing chair-side confessions that had me and my colleagues in tears. I rarely experienced any emotion whatever, except that first time, and then the "relief" was so great when it was over that I couldn't believe it. I went around for days saying to myself "Is that all there is to it?" I mean by this, things happen so swiftly that you are hardly in the room before you are being ushered out.

whose executions I witnessed. The first one I will always remember, of course, because for days before the execution I went around, as any raw cub would, thinking of little else. The other was a celebrated professor, internationally known. But all the others are dim figures whose names are forgotten and with them the nature of the crimes for which they died. What brought all this on? I don't know, really. Except that the boy just brought in the papers, and under a small head in the second section I happened to see: "Murderer Executed." There's hardly a day that you don't read something like that.

Washington—Every piece of farm legislation that has been enacted in Congress for a half dozen years has had first to hurdle substitute legislation of some sort proposed by the famous team of Frazier and Lamke, and is so again this year.

Balanced Budget Takes Two Hard Pokes To Jaw

Reflector Bureau.
 By HENRY ABERNETHY.
 Raleigh, Feb. 15.—Kid Balanced Budget took two hard pokes to the jaw in yesterday's fight in the Finance committee ring.

To begin with, the committee roared down, without even demand for a division, a motion to reopen the Sales Tax section with a view to replacing basic building materials in the ever-lengthening list of goods, wares and chattels upon which Tar Heels must fork over that much-cussed three pennies on the dollar.

Then a bit later it fixed the franchise tax on railroads operating in the state at 75 cents per $1,000 instead of the 90 cents, the present rate, and the rate recommended in the Budget Commission's draft of the Revenue bill.

The first action stalled off temporarily at least, vigorous efforts of Senate Chairman H. P. Taylor to get back into the Revenue bill the $400,000 annual return estimated from the tax on basic building supplies.

The second took out of the estimated receipts for the next biennial something like $230,000 annually. At that the committee as a whole recaptured something more than $70,000 which would have been sliced off each year's prospective returns had the report of the subcommittee on railroads been adopted.

This report called for a slash of 70 cents on the $1,000.

In passing, it should be said that both these actions will be reviewed on the floor of both houses of the legislature, and that the committee's figures and findings are not at all certain of adoption in the final writing of the Revenue bill.

This is particularly true of the building material question, on which a terrific fight will be made. With such powerful support as can and will be swung to the tax by Senator Taylor, it would be foolhardy to predict in advance that there will be eventual exemption of these materials.

Result of the rail franchise cut will be reduction of the state's annual revenue from that source from $1,382,751 (actual collections for last fiscal year) to something like $1,152,293 each year.

In connection with the rail matter, Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell quot defugures which are calculated to dispel an impression that the carriers have been given no relief from taxation during the years of depression.

On the contrary, the Commissioner pointed out that since the depression set in some eight years ago, the rails have had successive reductions in valuation which has amounted in the aggregate to about 33-1-3 per cent—one-third their total pre-depression values. Of course, tax relief not only in amount of franchise taxes paid, but also in the ad valorem levies paid counties and other local units has resulted.

Mr. Maxwell indicated that the reduction in franchise tax, a previous reduction in valuation during the past year of five per cent, and proposed relief of lesser rails in a few specific cases, will amount to reduced tax collection by the state from rails of $396,000 each year. The estimate was made, however, on the 70 cent franchise tax basis and the committee's action in going up to 75 cents, reduced the reduction by about $70,000 or slightly more and left the total relief of rails figure for the next two years at something like $325,000 annually.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
 Peter Mallone: Adventurous newspaper correspondent.
 Petronella: His accomplished young sister.
 Tony Lance: British agent, the man Petrel loves.

Yesterday: Demonstrations against the British bring the Mallones to Cairo, and Michael follows Petrel. He bumps into Tony Lance.

Chapter 25

Almost Legendary

"PEOPLE call her 'The Petrel,'" Michael told Tony. Her brother is special correspondent on your old rag, the News. Name, Peter Mallone. You may have met him? He's a fine sleuth for trouble. Or else they both are. No one quite knows how much success he owes to Petrel. Whenever anything is going to happen, he and she turn up a full month or so ahead of most other journalists. People who know them say, 'Hello, something is up. Do you know who that is? The Petrel!' They're nearly always right. It's certainly a good name for her," Tony Lance sat listening, his face averted from the lounge. Michael did not notice that he was tense with interest. He was too much occupied with watching Petronella, until the elevator closed its doors upon her. He turned to Tony, and went on.

"She started going around with him when he was a war correspondent; went everywhere with him; saw him through fantastic scrapes. She used to ride a motorcycle. Once in the Balkans, she carried one of his dispatches to the frontier, dressed as a peasant girl, telephoned it to his paper, and arrived back in time for dinner with the censor! Of course, the stories about her have grown like rolled snowballs, but she's the pluckiest thing I've ever met. It isn't as if she enjoyed danger. She doesn't. She told me so. There was a time, during that shindy in Danzig, in 1933, when she nearly threw it up to go home and marry a man she didn't love. But she could not do it. She's in love with some man who doesn't seem to come up to scratch. She adores her brother, and was made faithful."

Tony told him, "I know her, Mike. I've met her. Twice, when she was very young. Then at a party you gave your flat in London." Michael looked startled, then curious.

"Why didn't you say so before? Why, of course, I remember! You commanded her and saw her to Victoria Station. That was before I realized she was out of black stockings and a gym dress I met her nearly two years later, in Rome, and fell flat for her. Tony, she's very sweet, a lovely person. Though she's sophisticated, she's childish, in some ways. That was why, last Christmas, I thought I'd landed her. She wanted to forget the other fellow. I thought she had. I was too sure of her. I let her go away. Now, we're just friends. Here they come. What did I say?"

Like grayhounds, when the shutters fly up, showing the track, and the electric hare before them, five men rushed out of the lift, and threw themselves across the lounge. Tony recognized Masters, of the Echo, of the Cooper, of the Express Mail. Peter, with his eager red head, and blue eyes, Petronella Mallone followed up the rear more slowly. Masters collided with a waiter, and sent two glasses flying. She apologized. Peter's hip sent a chair rolling on its side, and the contents of a lady's handbag spread themselves on the floor. He called back over his shoulder, "Terribly sorry!" Petrel helped recover the coins, powder, lipstick. She went into a corner of the lounge, and awakened a press photographer, who, camera at his side, dozed beneath a newspaper. She sent him stumbling out after them.

"You see," smiled Michael. He stood up. "Excuse me, will you? They seem so excited. I think I'll just ask her what's up, and perhaps go along."

"Go ahead."

"Petrel!" Michael went to meet her.

'Shock Of My Life'

"HELLO, Mike!" But even as she turned, she saw Tony Lance. Her hand went to the back of the nearest chair, and held it. She stood quite still, looking past Michael, straight into his eyes. For a moment, Tony thought she was going to faint. But in a second, her mind had adjusted itself. She smiled. Her lips said, "Yes, Mike?" He heard her telling him, "The police are trying to stop demonstrators from coming into the city over the Nile Bridge. There aren't enough of them. I think there is going to be horrible fighting, unless they are reinforced. I was at Shepherds, Mr. Wallis came in, hurt. He said the students were all armed with sticks and iron bars, and hitting the police over the head and shoulders, as they rode. He thought they would be forced to open fire." Michael listened, but he looked from her face to Tony's with a puzzled expression.

"You know Tony Lance, Petrel?" He spoke stiffly. "Something went up between these two. Petrel served devil, why couldn't he have said something just now, instead of letting him go fulsomely on about her? If he hadn't seen her since the day of his party, why couldn't they behave like normal people, and say something?"

"Are you coming along, Tony?"

HERE ARE BILLS PROVIDING FOR CHANGES IN CHARTER

 to be, and the same is hereby stricken out and the word "city" is hereby inserted in lieu thereof: Provided, this section shall not affect litigation.

Sec. 2. That Chapter one hundred fifteen of the Private Laws of one thousand eight hundred ninety-nine, and acts amendatory thereto, known as the Charter of the Town of Greenville, be and the same are amended as follows:

"No, I think I'll stay." He left them together.
 For a moment they stood facing one another. Then he took her arm. "Come and talk to me."
 "I'd rather not."
 "You've no choice."
 They sat down.
 "You've given me the biggest shock of my life, Petrel."
 "What do you think you've given me?"
 "But I haven't changed. You have. Let me sit and look at you. When you came in just now, Mike started telling me about you. I've been imagining you living quietly in England. Married, probably. Instead—"
 But he saw that she did not believe him. She was right. He had visualized her in England, but not married. Often, he had told himself, "she is probably married. She has probably made her life without you." But he had never been able to believe it. Her gray eyes met his, steadily.
 She ought to feel pride. She ought to tell him lightly of all the things her life had held for her, which he was not there; how easily she did without him. But she spoke simply.

"Tony, I'm very glad to see you again. I began to think I never should. I forgot what you looked like."

"I told myself you'd probably forgotten my existence. But I couldn't believe myself. Does that annoy you very much?"

She smiled and shook her head. "One thing about you, you always start a little in advance of where you left off!"

"What is the use of pretending humility I don't possess? Your eyes found me out just now. At once. It isn't any use lying to you. You know perfectly well the effect you have on me." She felt lost. This time she dared not believe he meant a word more than he said.

Rebellious
 "WHEN you see me!" she mocked. "Thank you for the roses in Moscow. Apart from that, you didn't take much trouble to remind me! No, humility isn't your failing."
 "I've been in Arabia and Abyssinia."

"I know."
 "But, Petrel, I thought of you as a different person. Saw your future differently. You used to be simple, with strong natural instincts. You were intended to marry a steady husband, and live amongst them in a peaceful English home and garden."

"Most women seem eminently suited for exactly the same things. But life doesn't work out so that they get them."

"I'd no idea, after you'd brought those cousins safely out of Russia, that you'd ever wish to leave home again. Somehow, I didn't hear the things Mike has just been telling me about you. Apparently you're almost legendary. The Petrel!"

"Michael exaggerated. They all do." But she could not help feeling the warmth of triumph. She met him now upon level ground.

"Funny! Do you know you called me that first? In Rangoon?"

He leaned forward. His eyes met hers searchingly. He wanted the truth. Truth which he guessed already, though Petronella resentfully.

"Yes, but it ought never to have been a prophecy. Whose fault was it, Petrel, that you grew to be the name 'Mine' or was it Fate?"

Why should she admit such a possibility, why should she trust him again? She was rebellious. He had left her before, when he was sure of her. He might do so again. Years had passed, but she still felt that she knew Tony Lance, utterly. Anything he had done, he might do again, to hurt her. She believed, like Peter when he let Marigold go, that Tony acted as he thought best, for them both. But he would never consult her. He rated the intelligence of women, in an emotional crisis, just as Peter did. Low!

She answered slowly.

"Not late, Tony—circumstances. At first, it was Peter's fault. He was imprisoned in Germany. I rushed over by air, and with the help of German friends, and British pressure, managed to get him released. The same Germans, who were so kind to me then are staying in this very hotel now. At least, the Baroness von Cratz is here. Her nephew, René, is arriving in a few days' time. He has turned out to be a very good pilot. He is flying here, from his last happy hunting ground. Somewhere on the Dalmatian coast, I think. You'll like René."

She watched him, but Tony's expression gave her no reason to believe that he knew, or had heard of René. Petronella had not even told Peter René's secret.

"After that, my Aunt, who brought us up, died and left me most of her money, Peter the rest. At first, Peter was only brilliant in patches. Tony. He could get a story in a marvelous manner. But he did not handle it properly, or see it through. I could just afford to travel with him, so I went along. I think I helped him. But for over a year now, he hasn't relied on me like that any longer. Now, I'm just his right-hand woman. I'm useful as a blind, when he wants to play the innocent tourist; useful as a hostess. He leaves details to me. But he knows the details he needs. Before, I told him, I suppose I've been considering leaving him, and settling in England again, for just about a year, now."

Looks like Dry Cleaners Taken to The Cleaners

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Feb. 6 - When figures showing collection and expenditure of money by the Dry Cleaners Commission were made public, a number of legislators began to wonder if the commission hadn't been given a pretty thorough cleaning itself. Representative Virgil Wilson of Forsyth thought so when he introduced the bill to abolish the commission. Figures presented at the committee hearing on the Wilson bill show that Warren McNeill of Red Springs, executive secretary, and John W. Caffey of Greensboro attorney, and current chairman of the house appropriations committee, got a good deal more than half the money spent by the commission. McNeill is listed as having received $5,885.00 in salary and $2,526.07 in expenses as secretary, while Caffey was paid $3,747.17 as fees for legal services and drew $452.94 expense money, a total for these two men of $12,576.18.

Meanwhile the per diem of the commissioners, the salary of the office manager per diem and expenses of four inspectors office equipment supplies, postage, telephone, including every other expense except the executive secretary and the lawyer, amounted to $10,186.91. In other words Messrs. McNeill and Caffey got almost exactly 55 per cent of the total money spent by the commission.

In spite of this heavy draft upon its resources, however, the commission had on January 31, 1939, a balance of $10,003.91 in its treasury. Mr. Wilson do not think that there is any justification for a commission collecting that much money and rendering no more service than this one has done, and he wants it abolished. Mr. Caffey, who sponsored the bill setting up the commission two years ago, is apparently well satisfied with the manner in which it has operated.

New York, Feb. 16 - (AP) - Stocks took the market hill in second gear today, but favorites managed to post gains running to two points.

Steels, aircrafts, motors, rails and utilities led the climb. Individual strong spots were in evidence elsewhere. The first hour's turnover of 240,000 shares was the largest in a week or so. Volume subsequently dwindled. Bonds were selectively higher.

PURE SEED ACT STILL A WORRY

Controversial Measure Has Not Been Settled Yet

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Feb. 16 - The pure seed law, which kept the house committee of agriculture and a sub-committee engaged almost constantly for the first three weeks of the session, has now got the senate committee in a worry. Another sub-committee was named yesterday to study the bill which finally passed the house, but which didn't quite satisfy anybody. This committee is composed of Senators Ballentine, chairman; Warren and Sprull. They are to report back to the full committee on Friday morning.

Several features of the house bill are objectionable to the senators. The dollar stamp tax on cases of packet seed is particularly bad, according to some of the senators, in that it imposes a tax of more than ten dollars on any merchant who sells more than ten cases of packet seed, while permitting any retail merchant to sell all the seeds he can for a license tax of ten dollars. It is admitted to some extent double taxation, but was justified in the house committee upon the theory that the out-of-state wholesaler would pay the dollar and affix the stamp.

Other objectionable features are scaled according to the amount of sales tax, and requiring inspection of books and records before the provisions that the tax shall proper figure can be arrived at. Members of the senate sub-committee are not favorable to any scheme predicated upon auditing books to determine the amount of license taxes.

Then, too, there is apt to bob up the same contest between bulk and package vegetable seeds, and between garden and bulk field seeds. The pure seed law has been the seed of much trouble ever since U. S. Page dropped in his amendments to the 1929 act on the first legislative day of the session, and gives promise of holding interest for some time to come.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coon

Hollywood - If you're writing letters to the editor about that English girl who was chosen for that Southern role (don't mention it!) I think you're just obliging the producer who made the choice. After all these years there's not much else to keep the subject alive.

The "westerns" are always with us but so are the jails. Occasionally, as now, studios splurge on "big flow of bread-and-butter little ones."

But always and forever, whatever the film cycle, the jail sets are busy. At Warner's, where today nearly a dozen flickers have at least one prison sequence, they keep the bars up all the time and the striped suits on tap in the wardrobe department.

Typically, the movies have explored cinematically Alcatraz, San Quentin and Sing Sing, and have come aboard in Hawaii, Island, but they've overlooked Terminal Island - which is too close to home (San Pedro) for a producer to see. If they're just waiting till Terminal gets a box-office name, Al Capone is there now.

Nobody at the moment is talking about the sulphur pit (in which Frankenstein's monster met his most recent death) and a trapdoor at the bottom. But from "Son of Frankenstein's" box office reception you can be sure that there WAS. They planted it clearly that you can't kill a monster, and why should boiling sulphur do it?

Crane Wilbur, one-time silent star, is making his first feature talkie "Hero for a Day." When this was "The Star Witness" a few years ago the heavies were galloping. This time they're a trio of unofficial private detectives - and newreaders will recognize some similarity to Los Angeles' recent, notorious Kynette romping case. Wilbur was hero to the late Pearl White in "The Perils of Pauline."

Lately has been doing those patriotic historical Americanism "shorts."

That dance which is one of the few light moments in "Wuthering Eight's" is the Roger de Coverley - named after the same who wrote the Papers - Merle Oberon, dancing it, looks like a pink taffy puff in that costume.

John Payne has gone into "The Roaring Road" which is James Cagney's old friend "Red-Hi Tires" in new guise. And Wife Anne Shirley has exacted a promise he won't "drive over a hundred" - which he won't, at least in the picture. Speed-lover or not, Johnny will have a double.

It's American inventors' year in the movies: Alexander Graham Bell at 20th Century-Fox, and Thomas A. Edison - two flickers, Edison the boy, Edison the man - at Metro. And some day they'll make a movie about the man who invented movies - if they can ever settle the argument.

Maybe it's old but Nigel Bruce (in "Hound of the Baskervilles") tells it like no one else. Seems he paid a visit to his native Enniskillen some years ago and found himself in a club frequented by retired army officers who spent most of their time there. Asked what he was doing, Bruce replied he worked in pictures. "O," inquired one, "in oils or water colors?"

SCHOOL BOY PATROL MEET TO BE HELD IN THIS CITY

Patroler Julius Williams saved Hayward Snell, training school student, from serious injury by pushing him from his bicycle which was in the path of an on-coming car. Although the bicycle was totally destroyed its rider escaped unhurt.

Though his name was not available, one member of the patrol is credited with stopping a passing motorist to enable a sick girl, Carrie Grimes, to be taken to the hospital.

James Teel, member of the Negro safety patrol, recently saved the
