MASS MEETING VOTES AGAINST CITY CHANGE

City Manager Government Opposed Overwhelmingly

MUCH SENTIMENT FOR CITY PARKS

Groups Favors Bills to Change Town To City and Increase Pay of Aldermen

Of the several proposed changes in the Greenville charter, only those which would make it the City of Greenville instead of the Town of Greenville and increase the pay of the members of the Board of Aldermen from $70 to $120 annually were approved at a mass meeting in the courthouse last night attended by between 200 and 300 citizens.

Opposition which apparently was aimed principally at adopting the city manager form of government and making such an official a member ex-officio of the Water and Light Commission and of the School Board and increasing the present three-man utilities commission by two additional members, increased as the meeting progressed and the only proposals favored were the two.

Although the Park Commission received the most favorable comment and several speakers favored the establishment of such a board to look after what parks the city now has or develops in the future this proposal was voted down in the predominantly "anti" meeting.

The group also voted against the city manager form of government, the election of members of the Board of Aldermen by the city at large and the increases of the Water and Light Commission to five members.

The meeting was attended by Senator Arthur B. Corey and Representatives S. O. Worthington and J. W. Moore, with Senator Corey presiding. Col. E. G. Flanagan and Mayor M. K. Blount led the first group of proposals, with the former offering substitute bills to those previously drawn. Mayor Blount, although losing out on most of the proposals, made the most ringing speech of the evening in which he defended the city manager form of government, declaring it provided more efficient, lower taxes, faster growth and more prosperity for a city.

Mayor Blount declared that the plan had been adopted by 19 North Carolina cities and by cities in 38 states. He said it was nothing new, adding that several of our neighboring cities had adopted such a government. He explained that the mayor's job was a part-time position and, in answer from a previous question from the floor, said "there will be plenty for him to do even with an efficient city manager." The mayor said it had been claimed Greenville had voted all the bonds it could and could not raise a cent more. He said he was a mistake "you can vote all the bonds you want to, but I hope you do not vote more now." He contended that every big business had to have a manager at the head of the various departments and said this was exactly what the city manager form of government provided.

Jack Spain, candidate for mayor in the May election, made the principal address against the proposals. He recalled that he was the lone dissenter on the Board of Aldermen to the adoption of the city manager form of Government. He stated he was in favor of the people saying what kind of government they wanted. He declared that Patrick Healey, Jr., executive secretary of the League of Municipalities, had spoken before the board favoring the city manager form of government, in addition to several others, each of whom also made application for the position. He argued that no one had been asked to appear before the board to oppose the plan. Mayor Blount asked Mr. Spain if he ever had asked to have anyone speak against the plan and drew a negative answer, which also

Tar Dropping

The Tar river here was dropping today after having reached a crest of 17.2 feet yesterday afternoon, two inches higher than at first predicted. The stream had dropped to 16.8 feet by this morning and the fall continued at a fast pace throughout the day. Although the river went more than two feet above flood level, little damage was believed to have resulted.

ONE KILLED IN MARTIN WRECK

Six Victims of Highway Accident In South Car

Tarboro, Feb. 18.—(AP)—One man was killed and two others injured early today near Williamston when a car overturned as it rounded a curve. The dead man was identified as Coy Van Horn, 27-year-old married man from Drexel. His companions were listed as Vester Land of Elm City, who suffered a broken collar bone and Clyde Brown of Valdes, who had a severe scalp wound. The injured were brought to a Tarboro hospital. Land informed newsmen that the trio, who worked at Runnymede mill here installing machinery, were en route to Fort Landing for the week-end when the machine got off the pavement onto a wet shoulder and overturned. Van Horn, Land hold newsmen, was driving and was instantly killed. Van Horn is survived by his widow. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Six persons were killed and two others seriously injured when their automobile tumbled into the river and practically drove under a truck near here before dawn today.

The two passengers in the truck were not hurt. The dead tentatively identified by Thomas McAfee, Greenville mortician, in due. Mrs. Laura Reece, about 35, and daughter, Alva Jean Reece, 11, of Charlotte, N. C. The four others were from places in Georgia.

The injured, taken to a Greenville hospital, included Leonard Reece, about 12, head injuries, fractured limbs. Deputy Sheriff R. H. Bearden of Greenville county said Roy Eugene Miller, 27, of Claremont, N. C., was the driver of the truck owned by the Akers Motor line of Gastonia, N. C., which he said, had just begun to move after stopping on the side of the highway. The driver, occupant of the truck, Pearson said, was Murrell Deal, 20, also of Claremont.

Ward-Bryant Fued Still Rages With All Its Fury

By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Feb. 18.—The bitter feud between Victor S. Bryant and his successful rival for the Speakership, Libby Ward, is not over, but still rages with unabated fury. It reached a new peak of intensity Friday when the Durham man openly and bitterly charged that Ward "is taking a poor way to pay off political debts"—this charge, made in the lobby of the House, coming after two Senate bills had been taken from House Judiciary Committee No. 2, of which Bryant is a member, and referred to Judiciary No. 1, of which Wake's Bill Hatch is chairman.

The "politics" angle came in from the fact that one of the measures if the so-called "Fair Trade" act for which former Lieutenant Governor M. Sandy Graham has been lobbying steadily and powerfully for about two weeks. Mr. Ward was one of the strongest Graham supporters in the 1936 gubernatorial primary and leading Grahamites were exceedingly active in the Ward campaign for Speaker.

Intend To Preserve Self-Governing Way of Life

Key West, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt served notice on the world in two speeches here today that the Americas were "united in a common aspiration to defend and maintain the self-governing way of life" and to "lift democracy high above the ugly truculence of autocrat."

The twin addresses, one following immediately upon the other, were made from his automobile into a microphone just before he embarked on a cruise to the Caribbean to watch the American fleet test its strength to uphold the Monroe Doctrine in the new world.

One was a three-minute address opening the Golden Gate exposition at San Francisco. The other was in connection with the exposition at Tampa, Fla., commemorating the 400th anniversary of the landing there of De Soto, the explorer.

In the latter, the chief executive restated American foreign policy in even more succinct terms than he did at a recent press conference in Washington when he denied against entangling alliances and for the peaceful preservation of the political and economic independence of all nations.

He said the United States and other American republics were opposed to physical force "except to repulse aggression; but we say to the world that in the Western hemisphere, in the three Americas, the institutions of democracy, government with the consent of the governed, must and shall be maintained."

"Although the peoples of the new world are of many origins," he said "they are united in a common aspiration to defend and maintain the self-governing way of life. That way of life is instinctive in all the peoples of the Western hemisphere."

"To show our faith in democracy we have made the policy of the good neighbor the cornerstone of our foreign relations. No other policy would be consistent without ideas and our ideals. In the fulfillment of this policy we propose to heed the ancient scriptural admonition not to move our neighbor's landmarks, not to encroach on his metes and bounds." Elaborating on his recent four-point foreign policy, he said, "We desire by every legitimate means to promote freedom in trade and travel." (Continued on page six)

Meeting Attended By Doctor, Nurses

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county Health officer, Miss Mary Ann Crockett and Miss Emily Matthews Nurses of the Health department were in Raleigh on Wednesday where they attended the State-wide conference on "Better Care for Mothers and Babies."

The meeting was addressed by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, and a number of noted State and National physicians, and officers of lay organizations interested in maternal infant welfare. This was the first State-wide conference of this kind ever to be held in the United States and it was stated that North Carolina was chosen for this meeting on account of the outstanding work being done in this state in the matter of better care for mothers and babies. There were symposia on "Safeguarding the Infant and Young Child" and "Reduction of the Hazards of Childbirth to the mother and baby." According to Dr. Ennett, the meeting stressed the fact that the problem of "Better Care for Mothers and Babies" is chiefly a community product.

MANY AIDED BY FREE SERVICE

Ninety-four Placements Made Here In Last 10 Days

W. G. Cherry, Jr. in charge of the local Employment Service, declared today that business conditions are picking up and more people are taking advantage of the free service offered by the agency he heads. Mr. Cherry drew his conclusions from the fact that during the past 10 days 20 private placements had been made here, in addition to the public placements (persons found jobs on PWA projects).

"A lot of people have the mistaken idea that we find jobs only for domestic labor and the like," declared Mr. Cherry, pointing out that several of the private placements were office jobs, salesmen, collectors, etc. The private placements made during the last 10 days included: one salesman at a salary of $100 monthly; three office clerks at $80 monthly; one bookkeeper at $25 weekly; one collector and salesman at $25 weekly; one office clerk, $75 monthly; one cashier, $10 weekly; one service station attendant, $12 weekly; one house-keeper, salary not specified; one farm hand, to share crop; one cook at $3 weekly.

Public placements made included: three arc welders, $17.5 an hour; three structural steel workers, $125 an hour; two crane operators, $1 an hour; three brick masons, $1 an hour; two plasterers, $1 an hour; one concrete finisher, 75 cents an hour; fourteen carpenters, 75 cents an hour; two watchmen, 50 cents an hour; one mortar mixer, 40 cents an hour; one crane operator, 40 cents an hour and 41 laborers at 30 cents an hour.

Surveys Arranged By Youth Council

The Pitt County Youth Council, composed of local youth-serving agencies, met this week in Shepherd Memorial Library. The meeting was called to order by the Chairman, Bancroft Moseley, and minutes of the last meeting read. A motion was made and carried that a representative from the Negro race be included in the council. Mrs. Mattie Moye Gaylord, N. Y. A supervisor of Pitt County, gave a report of Youth Survey, now being conducted in Pitt County. The first census-taking, including 238 city blocks of Greenville, for the purpose of obtaining information in regard to youths from ages 6 to 25 inclusive, so that later workers can locate them for an interview, will be completed this week. The survey in Winterville Township will be launched next week. The interviewing in City of Greenville will begin February 27. This work will take approximately six weeks. C. E. McIntosh, Deputy Administrator of Research Projects, Chapel Hill, explained more fully the Youth Surveys now being conducted in the State and how a local council composed of youth agencies may assist in this capacity. G. W. Lovejoy, representing the Cooperative Personnel Study of the University of Chapel Hill was also a visitor at this very enthusiastic meeting.

Negro Arrested Here For Robbery of $16

Zeb Harris, Greenville Negro, was lodged in the local jail last night on a charge of having robbed the home of Mrs. George Hadley earlier in the week. Harris, employed by Mrs. Hadley, who runs a rooming house here, is alleged to have entered one of the rooms and to have stolen $16.50. He was missing from his home for several days, but officers found him last night. There are about 700,000 reindeer in Alaska, divided into 78 herds.

EXPECT SALES OF WARPLANES TO BE DEBATED

May Become Major Factor In Armaments Program

SENATE TO GET BILL NEXT WEEK

Capitol Speculation Centers on William O. Douglas to Succeed Justice Brandeis

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The disclosure that President Roosevelt overrode War Department objections in clearing the way for French purchases of American-made planes appeared likely today to become a major factor in Senate consideration of the administration's armament program. The first major item of military legislation, a $376,000,000 armament expansion bill, is expected to come in the Senate within two weeks. Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) said the military affairs committee would complete hearings on the measure, already approved by the House in "three or four days" next week. The expenditures this bill would authorize, including $399,000,000 to give the army air corps a strength of 5,500 planes and facilities to handle such a force, are not expected to cause so much furor in themselves. It is their relation to foreign policy that the planes' sales may cause considerable debate. Other developments: The Air Safety board "basic responsibility" for the loss of the United Airlines transport plane off Point Reyes, Calif., last November 29 on the "judgment of the first pilot, Captain Charles Steed, and on two Oakland dispatchers. Five persons died in the accident. The dispatchers were Thomas P. VanSchiever and Philip S. Showalter.

Reports spread in the capital that William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities commission, had the inside track for the forthcoming appointment to replace associate Justice Louis Brandeis on the Supreme court bench. The White House was said to be seeking information as to whether Professor Douglas, a former Yale law professor, would face substantial opposition in the senate, which must accept all nominations. The War Department announced the following appointments had accepted appointments in the Officers Reserve corps. North Carolina, Paul Green of Wilson and Donald Frank Wilson of Chapel Hill.

Bill Offered In House To Restrict Industries

Would Be Required Get Consent of State Council

Raleigh, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Three representatives introduced a bill today to make it unlawful for North Carolina to operate any manufacturing plant, quarry or mine without the consent of the Council of State. The measure sent forward by Park and Hatcher of Wake and Waites of Lenoir provides that the Council should consider the protest of any taxpayer or citizen affected, and give its approval of state operation only when it was in the best interests of the state and would not "seriously compete" with private enterprises.

The Senate authorized the printing of 500 additional copies of a wage-hour bill by Sen. Gregory of Rowan after he had said he was getting many requests for copies of his measure. Meanwhile, a state with growing pains searched today for revenue with which to meet expenses of the ever-expanding functions of government. The job of finding that revenue, as now tentatively provided in the money bills. The sub-committee may lower appropriations, but they or at least some of them, were reliable represented as being more concerned over the raising of new revenue.

What About Our Dollar?

By ROGER W. BABSON St. Petersburg, Florida, Feb. 18.—Since 1933, nearly every economist, including myself, has predicted that we would have money dollars in the United States. Yet, after six years of the widest spending spree on record, the American dollar is today the strongest currency on earth.

Furthermore, few economists are now worrying about it. Can it be that they were all mistaken? Will our dollar continue sound? Or have certain factors intervened to save us temporarily? I strongly feel that the latter is true. I am also positive that only spiritual revival can save us from eventual trouble. Here, however, are eight reasons why our dollar is still good, despite our mammoth spending programs: 1. Debt no greater than in 1929—Total debt in the United States is no greater today than in 1929. There has been a $30,000,000,000 gain in federal debt, but private debt has been cut an almost equal amount. Private debt, however, is a lesser evil. Private debt is a lien on definite homes, a mortgage on definite individuals. Private debt is paid off or settled because it is an individual's responsibility; public debt is seldom paid off for it is everybody's—and, therefore, nobody's responsibility.

2. Scarcity of Private Investments—The drastic slashing of private debt is one major reason why United States bond prices have held up in the face of our wild spending orgy. The money formerly invested in private loans must put to work somewhere else. Much of it has gone into government bonds. Compare our "life insurance companies' portfolios today with 1929. The percentage of funds invested in U. S. "Government" bonds has increased over ten times. Naturally, this scarcity of private securities has helped to push up prices of public bonds.

3. Public Bonds Tax-Exempt—Since 1929, taxes have been pushed sky-high in the wealthy brackets. But government bonds are free from taxation. (Continued on page three)

Police scrutinize All Suspicious Looking Persons

Rome, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Police tightened their always strict vigilance against loiterers around Premier Mussolini's villa and downtown office today following the arrest of a man who shot a Fascist militiaman Tuesday in the neighborhood of Mussolini's residence. A squad of plain-clothes men and the uniformed guard, always on duty outside the Villa Torlonia, where the shooting occurred, and the office building scrutinized all persons in the vicinity, although the authorities insisted the attack was made by a demented man.

Two communiques were issued. The first said: "The ministry of popular culture" declares the news about an alleged attempt against the head of the government to be false. The rumor rose out of an incident caused by a man who fired the shots. The second: "On 14 shortly after 2 p. m. a militiaman in plain clothing noticed an individual evidently out of his mind and behaving wildly and approached him to calm him. The man suddenly fired at him with a revolver, wounding him in the abdomen." "The attacker, immediately arrested, was identified as a mechanic, Bruno Simoni, (of a place near Bologna) already released twice from an insane hospital, the first time at Naples and the second time at Rome. The last time he was released he was dismissed from an insane asylum was during the past year."

One out of every 16 registered voters in Louisiana cannot write his name, but "signs" his ballot by making a mark. There are 35,000 such voters registered.

FEAR ATTEMPT MADE ON LIFE OF ROOSEVELT

Man Acting Mysteriously Seen Beside Roadway

GUARD IS PLACED ALONG HIGHWAY

Six Years Ago President Was Target of An Assassin Which Took Life of Chicago Mayor

Florida City, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Secret service agents and state police searched the underbrush beside President Roosevelt's special train this morning for a man seen moving mysteriously just before the President left for Key West by motor. The man, wearing a brown sweater and dark trousers, moved stealthily beside the roadside shortly before Mr. Roosevelt left the train at 9 a. m. but started into the bushes as police started up. The secret service men and police immediately placed a heavy guard along the roadside where the man had appeared and still were searching for him when the President left.

It was on a Florida trip six years ago that Roosevelt was the target of an assassin, Giuseppe Zangara, who professed "hate for all rulers," fired five shots at him as he departed from a fishing trip at Miami, February 15, 1933. All of the bullets, however, went wild as Mrs. W. F. Cross of Miami seized the gunman's arm. Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, companion of the President was wounded fatally, and four others were struck by the fire. Cermak died two days after the President was inaugurated. The President's motor car and seven others in the official procession got underway today in just three minutes after Mr. Roosevelt descended from the train which brought him from Washington.

Nautical Academy Backed By Bailey

Raleigh, Feb. 18.—Senator J. W. Bailey hasn't had time from his duties at Washington to look in on the present legislature, but he expressed by letter his support of the bill authorizing establishment of a nautical academy in this state. Senator Bailey's letter stated that the amendment offered some time ago by Senator Bob Reynolds to the present law, making it possible for North Carolina to share in federal aid for such schools, is now before the commerce committee of which Bailey is chairman, and that he heartily approves the amendment and the proposed school for this state.

Besides Senator Bailey's letter proponents of the measure offered the support of Col. Harrison, dean of administration of State College, and Capt. Glover, a retired naval officer who gave "expert testimony." The senate education committee would like to approve the bill and, perhaps will; but it carries some appropriation and there isn't the proverbial Chinaman's chance of getting it by the money allocators on appropriations.

During the session at least four of the eleven national representatives have looked in on the Raleigh law-makers, and put in a judicious word for or against certain legislation pending. Senator Reynolds asked for a speaking date, but had to cancel it because of pressure of business in his office at Washington. Senator Bailey hasn't been here, and so far as can be learned, hasn't before expressed in any manner his sentiment on pending bills.

The Woman's Council of the Christian Church meets on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Members are asked to bear in mind the three following reasons for their attendance and plan to be present. Miss Zoe Anna Davis, student worker of the Methodist Church, will be the speaker; our parts in the World Day of Prayer will be presented; the council's share in making the preaching mission a meaningful spiritual experience will be given prayerful consideration.

Resolution Adopted.
"We, the executive board of the Woman's Auxiliary, representing the women of the Episcopal Church all over the world, desire to express our grief and dismay at the persecution of the Jewish people in Central Europe.

"We call upon the women through out the church to prove their love for the Master by showing in simple, friendly ways their sympathy with their Jewish neighbors and by making welcome, into their communities, schools and homes, refugees who have come to this country.

We also urge them to promote international government action for the relief of refugees and to work for a larger measure of justice and consideration for all Jews and other minority groups in our national life.

"The above resolution was adopted at a recent meeting of the executive board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church. Some of the Jewish leaders and organizations have written letters of appreciation, some of them very touching. They make one remember Rabbi Wise's wife's statement that Jews are not afraid to live in a Christian world, that it is an un-Christian world they fear.—Reported.

Memorial Study Class.
The Memorial Baptist Mission study class will meet at the home of Mrs. W. Z. Morton on Fifth street, Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock for mission study. The book to be studied is "Go Forward," by Burton. The Winterville W.M.U. members will be guests for the day. All members of the Memorial W.M.U. are urged to be present.

Tobacco Road.
Few plays in the entire history of the American theatre have received as hearty endorsement from literary celebrities as that accorded Tuesday evening, Feb. 17, by the Greenville audience. The minutes were read and approved.

After the collection of dues, the treasurer gave her report. A few bills were reported and voted to be paid at once.

Other reports on squares, plates and other plans to make money were heard, which met the approval of the circle. The meeting adjourned and being St. Valentine's Day, two contests were entered into.

Mrs. Randolph won in the hearts contest and Mrs. E. W. Harvey in the city affair. All then turned attention to Chinese checkers. Mrs. Della McGee won at that game. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. A. Bowen, served hot chocolate and ice box cookies. The circle reported a fine meeting and loads of fun.—Reported.

Folk Song Recital.
The folk song interpreter, Engel Lund, who will give a program in the Austin building of the college Monday night, Feb. 20, not only has been working for a number of years to collect these songs, but has as her fellow-collector and accompanist, Dr. Ferdinand Rauter, also an authority on the songs of the people.

Dr. Rauter, an Austrian, has his Doctor's degree in chemistry from the University of Dresden because of the insistence of his parents. As soon as he had obtained his degree in fulfillment of a promise made them, he turned to the field he had always wanted to work in—music.

He was for a time a conductor for various musical groups abroad, but his interest in folk music brought him and Miss Lund together, and they decided to collaborate.

These two musicians will begin their program at 8 o'clock.

College Vesper Services.
Miss Susan Evans of St. Paul's, who conducted the vesper service Friday night at the college, spoke on "Who Touched Me?"—Mark 5: 21-34. One woman, among a great throng of people, said Miss Evans, touched the hem of Christ's garment, and he recognized and acknowledged the faith of that afflicted woman by asking, "Who touched me?"

Miss Evans pointed out that prayer is an important means of keeping in closer contact with God. "Do we remember and appreciate

A Grain Mill
One of Greenville's best citizens was in the Reflector office this morning to talk over some things that will be of benefit to Greenville.

He says he knows of no town as large as this that is without a grain mill and he thinks one would pay well here, and also be a great convenience to the people. A good mill of this kind ought to be established here—one that will make both meal and flour as well as cut and grind feedstuffs for stock. It would take no large capital to start one, and by running it with gasoline power the operating expenses would be very small.

Besides giving people the opportunity to get their grain ground, such a mill would stimulate farmers to more wheat raising which in itself would be a great benefit and saving to them.

Between the courses of the meal a delightful program consisting of toasts, popular songs and speeches, was enjoyed. The toast of welcome to the seniors was given by Lorraine Moore, president of the junior class; and Mavis Smith, president of the senior class, gave the response. Short talks were made by several of the teachers. Mr. H. H. Deaton, Mr. Richard Matthews, Miss Thelma Peel and Mr. M. L. Farrior. Accompanied by Miss Belle Kearney at the piano, Lorraine Moore, Rosa Stokes and Robert Clark sang several songs.

After the banquet the entire group went to the Pitt Theatre to see "Brother Rat."

Those present were: Inez Hathaway with Johnnie R. Wooten; Christine Tyson with Robert Stancill, Rosa Stokes with Robert Clark, Susie Morgan with Horace Leonard, Charlotte Dudley with Vernon Tyson, Eula Mae Cox with J. B. Sullivan, Mary L. Bland with Dick Brewer, Rolf Jones with Virginia Smith, Ethel R. Meeks with Cleve Westbrook, Nettie Kay Smith with Bill Denton, Mary Moye Murphy with Herman Walright, Blanche Crawford with George Teel, Charlie Harris with Frances Joyner, Lorraine Moore with Atlas Wooten, Earline Smith with Glenwood Wooten, Graham Parker with Nellie G. To Preach Here

The Rev. Fred W. Helfer of Hiram College, Ohio, will be the guest speaker at a Preaching Mission to begin in the Eighth Street Christian Church on Wednesday night at 7:45. Mr. Helfer rendered a similar service in the local church three years ago and delighted those who heard him.

He is a graduate of Bethany College, West Virginia, and of the graduate school of the University of Chicago and has held pastorates in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Eureka College and Hiram College. He has been active in the work of the Youth Conference movement among the Disciples of Christ as teacher, director and speaker, and has rendered valuable service in bringing about a wide participation of the church in the Ohio cooperative movement. The force of Mr. Helfer's preaching lies in the earnestness of the speaker, his clarity of thought and simplicity of expression. The absence of denominational bias gives to his messages a note of friendliness which is appreciated by representatives of all church groups. The people of Greenville are cordially invited to attend the services of the Preaching Mission which will be held each week night at 7:45, except Saturday, and at 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., on Sunday, Feb. 26.

Guest to Preach at Local Church Sunday

Rev. G. J. Harris, Pitt County Free Will Baptist Minister will speak at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church Sunday evening at 7:30. At a Union meeting service held at King's Cross Road Church, Rev. M. Harris preached a sermon directed to the youth of today. The pastor and delegates from the Greenville Church, were so much impressed by the message that they invited the minister to the sermon in this church.

A special invitation is given to all persons in Greenville and community to come and hear this special measure.

BUREAU BACKS STATE SERVICE

J. E. Winslow Heads Delegation Before Committee

Raleigh, Feb. 17.—What was supposed to be an executive session of the joint sub-committee on agriculture studying duplications, became a public hearing and almost turned into a Farm Bureau rally yesterday.

Fifty or more Eastern Carolina Farm Bureau members, led by President Winslow and Secretary Arnold, walked into the committee room and asked to be heard. Speaking for the group, President J. E. Winslow of Pitt county, charged that Commissioner Kerr Scott had violated and ignored his campaign promise to cut out duplication of activities, and then continued by asking that the legislature clearly define the duties of the Department of Agriculture and State College.

Several times he highly praised the work of the college forces and criticized that of the department. While he dodged answer to the direct question, his clear inference was that the Farm Bureau wants all of the functions except collecting the money transferred to the College.

Dean I. O. Schaub, who besides heading the school of agriculture at the college, is also director of extension work under the federal government, and acting director of the experiment station, had just answered a question from the committee by saying that he did not think the State ought to buy or establish a single other test farm. Almost the same group of Farm Bureau members had appeared before the full legislative committee last week requesting the purchase and equipment of a new peanut test farm. The dean's statement yesterday would seem to be a death blow to that request.

The joint sub-committee was meeting specifically to consider the final reports of the committees from the college and department on their agreements and disagreements as to proper division of activities. All sides admitted that the main issue was money. The department has it and the college wants it.

But more important than the actual money involved, according to private expressing of one of the committee members, is the desire to control personnel. Under working agreement now in effect between the two institutions, the experiment station and the college handle virtually all of the research work on the test farms, which comprises from 75 to 90 per cent of the total activities. Dean Schaub doesn't like the idea of the man doing the work being largely on the payroll and reporting to somebody else; and the department officials don't like the idea of having to collect the money and not have any say-so about who spends it. So it is personnel, which just high brown for "organization" that is the real issue.

Net result of the committee deliberations up to date was appointment of a sub-committee. This group is composed of Senators Eagles and Bruton, Representatives Blacklock, Everett and Rasberry. What they will do is difficult to predict. Judging from the kinds of questions asked during previous committee hearings, observers conclude that Senator Bruton favors the department retaining the test farms. Representatives Everett and Rasberry definitely favor turning them over to the college and the experiment station, while Senators Eagles and Representative Blacklock are classed as "open minded".

New evidence presented yesterday consisted principally of reports by Washington agencies recommending more authority for the college. And it is just that tie-up with the federal government that some North Carolinians fear.

Jew-Baiter Premier Finds He, Too, Jew

Premier Bela Imredi (top) of Hungary had launched a program for drastic curtailment of the political and economic rights of Jews—but at the peak of the campaign he started his followers by resigning with the announcement he had discovered that he, himself, was partly Jewish. It was believed Count Paul Telesi (bottom) would be asked to form a new cabinet.

from normal tax and certain short-term treasury notes as on a 1 per cent treasury note as on a 3 per cent top-grade corporate bond. One of the best ways to curb public spending would be to throw out this tax-exemption feature. Without it, public borrowing would become difficult. If the politicians cannot easily borrow money, they will have to spend less money because they cannot push taxes much higher.

4. Control of Bank Investments: The biggest prop for public credit so far has been the new federal control of bank investing since 1933. Banks have been encouraged to buy governments. They have taken the lion's share of the $30,000,000,000 of new bonds. A banker's only obligation is to pay dollars. He does not have to worry about how much food and clothing the dollars he pays out will buy compared with the dollars which were deposited. As government bonds are now exchangeable into paper dollars, one can easily see why bankers buy these bonds.

5. Destroying Confidence in Business: Investors' confidence in private bonds and stocks has been undermined by attacks on business by politicians; by burdensome taxes; by the fostering of labor troubles. Such actions have forced huge sums of timid capital into savings banks, trust funds, annuities—and from there into government bonds. High prices have created the impression that United States Government bonds are the safest investment on earth. Yet their ultimate value will depend on the ability of business to make money in order to pay taxes.

6. Increase in Raw Material Supplies: Another reason that the buying power of our dollar has not declined is because there are huge surpluses of nearly all raw materials. Since 1933, our output of copper, cotton, wheat, etc., has increased spectacularly. At the same time there have been feverish efforts by other countries to boost their production. For instance, the amount of foreign cotton grown has jumped 60 per cent since 1933.

7. All Nations Have Abandoned Gold: If all nations had been solidly on gold when the United States abandoned it in 1933, I believe the effects here would have been far more inflationary. However, the entire world drifted away from gold together. The government of every major nation is today spending far more money than it takes in. Our fiscal policies, have been unsound but the policies of most other nations have been even less sound. Actually there is more gold behind the American dollar today than there is behind the pound, the franc, the yen, the lira, or the mark.

8. Unsettled Foreign Conditions: When all is said and done the United States and Canada are the soundest countries in the world in which to invest or to live. Billions of dollars of foreign "fear" money have been sent across the Atlantic—creating the biggest credit reserves in our history. Indentures of loans of one European country to another are now substituting a "dollar clause" in the place of the old "gold clause," (such as in a recent Dutch loan to a French railroad). This means the world recognizes that the dollar is the strongest of all currencies. It may also mean a lack of faith in gold!

Despite eight years of dangerous policies, the United States and Canada are still the strongest nations financially. In a world where government credit generally is rotten, our credit is 100 per cent acceptable. Moreover, this precious asset can be maintained if reckless spending is stopped now!

Strong Credit Best Defense Let me remind those who urge continued spending and who shout about the necessity of arming against the dictators of Europe of a famous conversation between an eminent Japanese and Theodore Roosevelt. The Japanese said: "No nation would dare to attack you.

How To Live Happily Ever After

What Sort of Person Should I Marry?

There are some 26,000,000 couples living in various degrees of marital bliss in the United States. And there are several million more people who want to marry, but are cautious. To help such perplexed individuals, we asked psychologists, ministers, physicians and marriage counselors to reply to the questions these cautious ones most frequently ask. Their answers will be presented in 12 articles, of which this is the first.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW (AP Feature Service) Marriage may be a fine institution—but there are plenty of people who aren't cut out for it.

This may shock the true believers who think anyone is better off married than single. But Dr. Ira S. Wile, New York psychiatrist, admonishes them to face facts.

"We no longer are living in an age when we believe marriages are made in heaven," Dr. Wile asserts. "We know they're made on earth by humans who only recently acquired the privilege of self-selection. But they still haven't learned to select rightly."

They would be attacking the strongest military machine in the world—the United States Treasury.

This statement is just as true now as 30 years ago. We can provide ourselves with far more protection against attack by stopping political raids on our own Treasury than by building naval stations on Guam Island, 6000 miles out in the Pacific Ocean.

WARD-BRYANT WUED STILL RAGES WITH ALL ITS FURY

(Continued from page one) to Judiciary 1. Ward said, according to Uzzell that it had been sent to Judiciary 2 by mistake.

Thereafter, in the Uzzell opinion, there was nothing to do but ask transfer of No. 75 also and so later the Rowan man rose and made such a motion.

That brought Mr. Bryant to his feet with a bitter protest. He said that arrangements for a public hearing had been already made by Judiciary 2 for a public hearing and expressed more than a little astonishment that it was being so unceremoniously jerked away and handed over to another committee.

What he might have said further will not be known as Ward broke in with the crisp statement that the bill had been transferred by the House, at the Speaker's wish, to Judiciary 1 and, in effect, that that was that.

Mr. Bryant sat down but, obviously aroused, he stalked into the lobby behind the Speaker's desk a few minutes later and quite clearly and definitely expressed to your correspondent and to Mr. Uzzell, who had also gone behind the desk, the opinion that Ward had made the transfer solely because he thought the Fair Trade Act will get a more sympathetic hearing in Judiciary 1 than in Judiciary 2.

It was then that he said, very bluntly and without any qualification: "It's a mighty poor way to pay off political debts."

He did not go into details or elaborate, but it was evident he referred to alleged political debts due from Ward to Graham.

So if anyone thinks that Bryant and Ward have made up, just think again.

Don't Marry A Man Who Wants Dinner on The Dot

Six Types to Avoid.

According to Dr. Wile, who has made many statistical studies of divorced individuals during his years of mental hygiene study, there are six types of individuals to avoid if you're thinking about matrimony. First, the one—male or female—who thinks so well of himself that he doesn't dream he has any flaws. The other person is always wrong. He is always right. If he marries—Heaven forbid—he'll be the domineering, aggressive type, who lords it over a weaking wife (or husband), squabbles about trifles, always has his own way.

The individual who realizes his wants are so numerous that never will he be able to find any person able to fill them is another tough character. He's super-meticulous, fussy. Must have his dinner on the dot or seven or his day is ruined. Or can't stand an ash tray out of place—if a lady. No good for a marriage partner.

The Psychopaths. As difficult as either of these is the person who thinks he's quite average, but has something so bizarre in his nature that he'd be impossible to live with. Maybe it's a case of not shaving for a couple of weeks, just to be different. Maybe

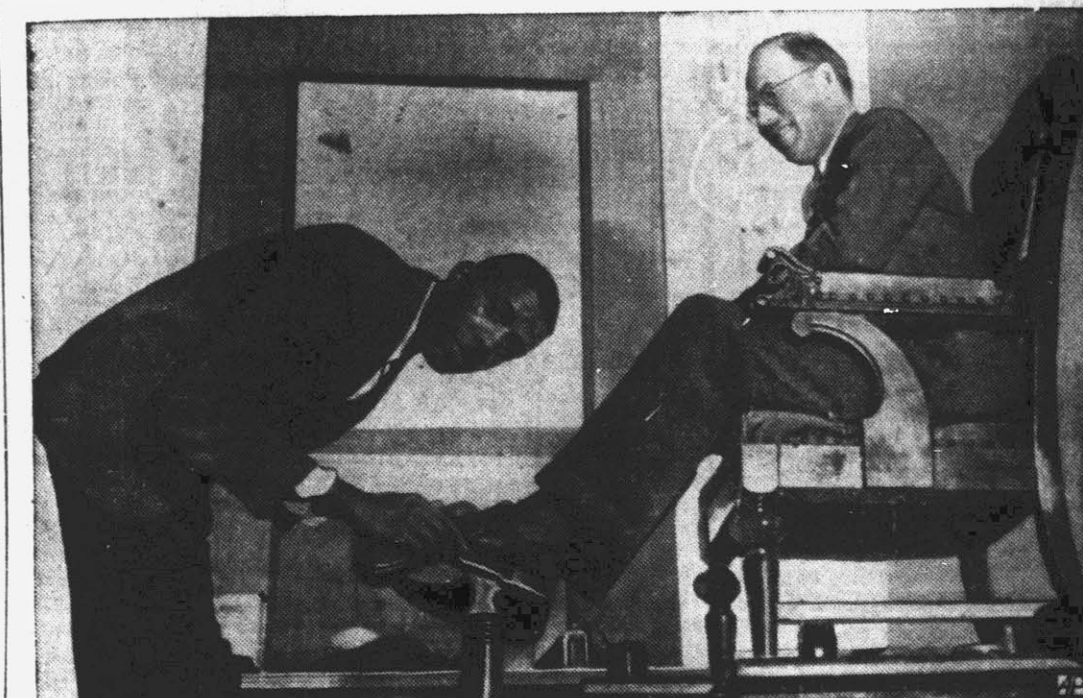

DON'T WED YOUR IDEAL WOMAN TELLS WOMEN

Dr. Madeleine P. Grant of Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N. Y., suggests these pitfalls for women to avoid when picking a husband: Don't marry your ideal. You'll always try to fit him into a picture he can't get into. Don't marry a man to reform him. It can be done. Don't marry the first man you fall in love with. Don't marry a man to prove you can get one. Don't forget a man usually puts his job first, his wife second. Don't forget it takes imagination to fall in love—and stay in love, again.

Washington Daybook By Preston Grover

Washington. — Nearly every President has had a good quarrel with the senate — and just about every time he loses, sometimes tragically. Some of the exceptions are more tragic than the others.

President Roosevelt is having his quarrel over the appointment of Floyd H. Roberts of Virginia as judge of a western district in Virginia. Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia declared the President had made the appointment to embarrass them politically, so they relied on the age old senate tradition of complaining that it was to them both personally objectionable and obnoxious. The senate supported their right to one by rejecting Roberts.

The scuffle is not ended yet, of course, even though there has been a biting exchange of letters. The vacancy still exists. When another appointment comes down Glass and Byrd will attack it again if, as they expect, the appointment again is "personally objectionable" to them. Senator Ashurst of Arizona, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, views the disputes philosophically.

A large number of Presidents — Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Tyler, Lincoln, Johnson, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, and Woodrow Wilson — had their quarrels with the senate, but quarrels between the President and the senate, like the quarrels of the Medes and the Persians, admit of neither inquiry nor explanation.

Washington Was Furious. Every President, in his second term, says Ashurst, can expect such a battle. "The reasons are many," he says, "and would take hours to summarize."

Washington came to the senate to defend an appointment and underwent such rigorous questioning that he left in high Virginia anger, and sower he never would visit the place again.

Perhaps most tragic was the battle between President Garfield and the two New York senators, Conkling and Platt. Garfield won the battle, says Senator Ashurst but lost his own life as a result.

The two senators joined with Vice-President Arthur and the governor of New York in writing a letter objecting to the appointment of Mr. Robertson as customs collector for the port of New York. The President made the appointment, however, and the senate confirmed it.

Conkling and Platt immediately resigned in protest and went to the state senate expecting reelection as further mark of disapproval of the action. But the state senate stood by Garfield after one of the most scintillating controversies in years. A fanatic was so stirred by the affair, says Senator Ashurst, that he assassinated Garfield.

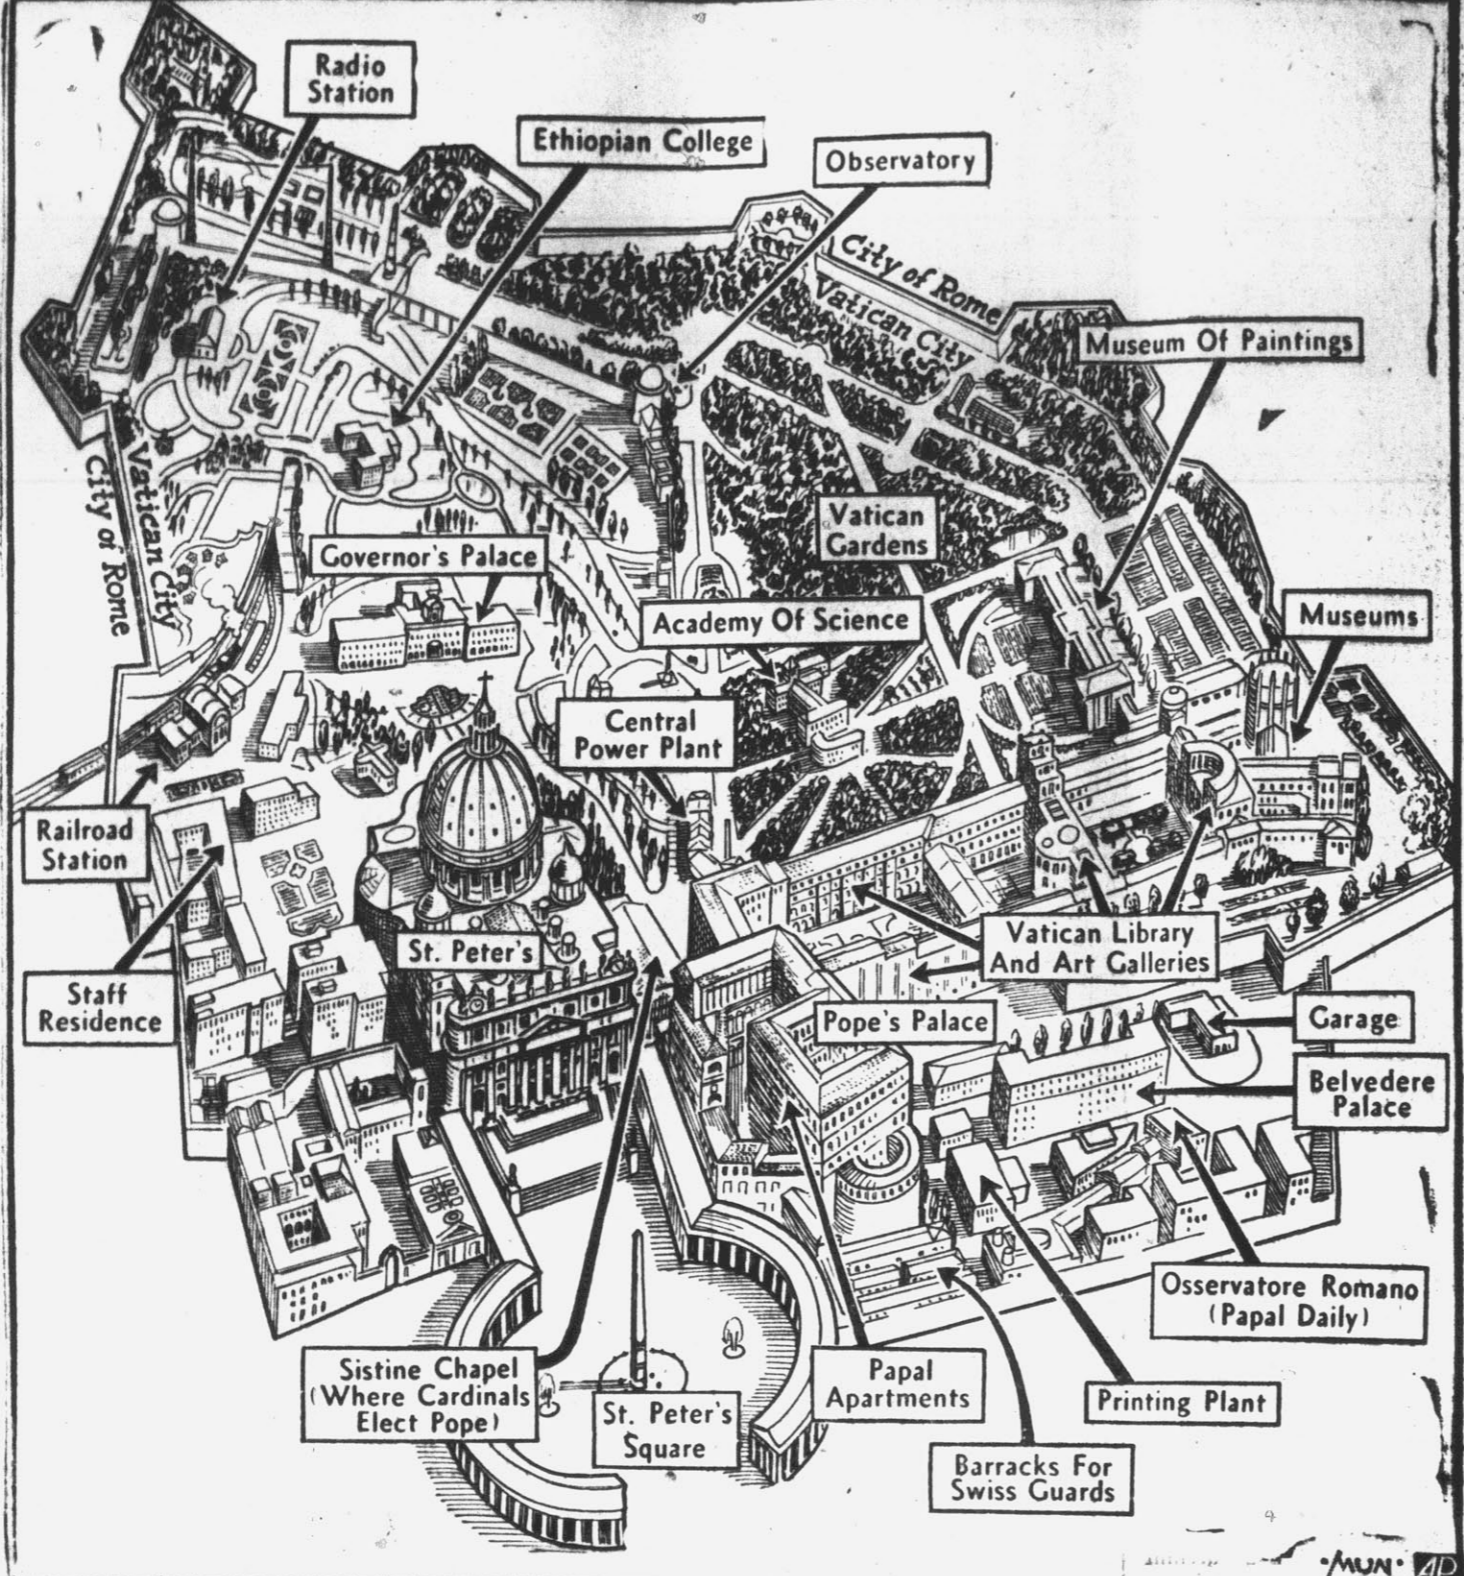

Conkling, an outstanding statesman never regained his seat in the senate and Platt was out for 16 years. Vice-President Arthur, who had joined in protest, succeeded to the presidency — and then refused to oust Robertson.

Elder Taft Deplores. President Johnson, successor to Lincoln, escaped impeachment by only one vote after the senate questioned his right to remove a cabinet member, Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton.

William Allen White, Kansas editor, in his current book on President Coolidge, relates that Chief Justice Taft discussed at length with Coolidge his hopes of exempting judicial appointments from senate patronage. His efforts were recorded in a long series of letters to his son, Robert Taft. And just to add to the confusion, the son, Robert — now a senator and presidential prospect — voted against the President to sustain the objecting senators.

New Pope To Have Power Over Independent States

The new Pope will not only be spiritual ruler of the world's 331,500,000 Roman Catholics but also temporal ruler of the world's smallest independent state—Vatican City. The Vatican, where St. Peter's tomb is located, symbolizes in the minds of all Catholics the authority and power of the church. Since Constantine I began construction of a magnificent basilica over the tomb of the first Roman Bishop, St. Peter, in the early fourth century, new buildings and additions have added to the size and splendor of the site. Once a hill where Christians were martyred, the Vatican now is a city of medieval splendor and renaissance art. It has its own government, its own police and courts and its own railroad and radio stations. A treaty negotiated by Pope Pius XI with the Italian kingdom in 1929 established the Vatican as an independent state and the 1,000 persons living on its 108.7 acres are Vatican citizens living under the Vatican flag—a white and yellow banner charged with crossed keys and triple tiara. The residents live in Belvedere Palace at the rear of the papal quarters. They spend Vatican money — first coined in 1931 — and use Vatican postage stamps.

Governor Runs City. Although the Pope is temporal ruler of the domain, he appoints a governor charged with the protection of property, the maintenance of public order and hygiene, and ordinary relations with the church. The Secretariat of State acts as the Vatican's chief political organ. Four branches of the colorful Pontifical Armed Corps carry out the Pope's duties. They are the Noble Guards, chosen from nobility; the Pontifical Swiss Guard, the Palatine Guard of Honor and the Pontifical Gendarmery. The impressiveness of the huge St. Peter's Square at the main entrance to the city carries on throughout the entire state. No building is more awe-inspiring than St. Peter's basilica, built and decorated during the 16th century to replace the original Constantinian basilica. Its huge coffered dome represents Christ opening his arms to receive in a protective embrace his millions of children spread all over the world. Several Palace Additions. The 1,000-room papal palace, although the chambers of the Pope are relatively simple, has been added to and beautified since the papacy finally was transferred back to Rome from Avignon in 1367. The Sistine Chapel where Cardinals elect the Pope is one of the most famous buildings in the city. It's beauty enriched by the famous frescoes of Michelangelo.

The famous Vatican gardens are a major item of interest to visitors. There the late Pius XI often walked. Pope Pius XI, during his 17-year pontificate, earned the reputation as the greatest Vatican builder. During his time the radio station, H.V.J., which carries out programs from the Vatican for rebroadcast, was set up. Another modern addition was the office for the Osservatore Romano, papal daily, which has a circulation of 50,000. A central heating and power plant was another major addition along with a railroad station, the School of Mosaics, the Governor's Palace and Museum of Paintings and barracks for the Swiss Guards. Pius also modernized and catalogued the vast Vatican Library and had another entrance built for the city.

ently governing governors, the Charlotte invitation includes three axes—Merrison, Gardner and Ehringhaus. Much has been said about the Governor of North Carolina having no veto power. With a total of seven governors, ins and exes, to tell the lawmakers how to do their job would seem superfluous to give one of 'em the last word. Several persons were in the office of the Senate clerks Friday when Senator John Larkin, Jr. of Jones county breezed in and reached for the telephone—one of the oial contraptions connected with the capitol exchange. "How do you get out," he asked, meaning to ask how to get the central exchange down town. One loiterer grunted "First time I ever knew John Larkin to get in any situation that he had to ask help to get out of."

SHORT SHOTS By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Feb. 18.—The senate has lots of trouble with the bill governing illegitimate children, commonly called the "bastard bill." It has been to committee and back several times, and has been amended many times. A veteran senator commented yesterday that he did not understand why they had to bother with bills like this every session. Senator Ballentine, a second-term, was standing near by, and answered, "That's because there is a new crop of bastards around here every two years." S.elah.

"Would like to ask the good looking gentleman from Nash a question," said Pete Murphy in the House Friday. Bill Fenner and Claude Abernethy looked sheepishly at each other. After several seconds of utter silence, Fenner arose "I don't mean you," said Pete. "Is the other I want to interrogate." Bill sat down, Claude got up, the question was asked and answered. The tedious processes of making laws for three and a half million people was under way.

If Governor Earl D. Rivers of Georgia accepts the invitation extended yesterday to address a joint session of the North Carolina general assembly, he will be the fourth governor to address the 1939 session, which ought to be some kind of record. First address was by Gov. Hoy. Then Governor Chandler of Kentucky spoke to both houses here for the Jackson Day dinner. Invitation has been extended and accepted for Governor Maybank of South Carolina to speak to the assembly at its Charlotte meeting next week. Besides these four pres-idently governing governors, the Charlotte invitation includes three axes—Merrison, Gardner and Ehringhaus. Much has been said about the Governor of North Carolina having no veto power. With a total of seven governors, ins and exes, to tell the lawmakers how to do their job would seem superfluous to give one of 'em the last word. Several persons were in the office of the Senate clerks Friday when Senator John Larkin, Jr. of Jones county breezed in and reached for the telephone—one of the oial contraptions connected with the capitol exchange. "How do you get out," he asked, meaning to ask how to get the central exchange down town. One loiterer grunted "First time I ever knew John Larkin to get in any situation that he had to ask help to get out of."

Anti-sales taxes lost a skirmish Friday without even protesting, when the Senate accepted with exceeding calm a Finance committee report killing the Greedy proposal to exempt from the three per cent general sales tax all foods used in home consumption, horses, mules, farm implements, fishing nets and twine. Introducer Gregory did not change expression.

During the liquor warehouse hearing before the joint finance committee Robert N. Simms of Raleigh Bar, recognized as one of the leading orators of the state, made the ceiling echo with his eloquence. Next door the Appropriations committee was meeting, and Representative Claude Abernethy of Nash was over there. But he couldn't stand it when the Simms' ebullience reverberated through the entire building, and the loudest voiced member of the legislature had to duck his own committee to come over and see who this man was who could out talk him. As Mr. Abernethy listened, there came over his face a look of yearning envy. Fellow legislators were having their fun with W. C. Taylor of Caswell, when newspapers reached the House carrying the picture of the Caswell member in connection with the story about the resignation of Wayne C. Taylor as assistant secretary of the treasury. Only explanation which the Caswell member could give was that the newspaper must have had his photo filed under the initials, and when the Washington Taylor story broke they just got the wrong picture.

Chapter 27 'Thou Art My Woman'

PETER had taken her almost everywhere, thought Petrel. Tony would try to protect her.

If Aunt Maisie were here, thought Petrel. She smiled. Aunt Maisie had had such a very simple way of solving problems.

She nodded. 'Subject to about a hundred questions receiving satisfactory answers, I'm crazy about you, Mr. Lance!'

'I feel different. But I can't believe you won't suddenly come to your senses. Let's have the first of those questions.'

'Number one. Is it your idea that I should travel with you—go where you go?'

'I may be sent back to China. I shouldn't take you there. But to get fat while I was away. Weeding is thinning. And it might not be for long.'

'Fat Housewife'

'I'd half-wring your pretty, your lovely neck, and put you on the next ship home again. Honestly, you couldn't see much of me, even if I left you in some headquarters.'

'I see,' said Petronella, still rebellious, although his tenderness pulled at her heart, urging acquiescence.

'You're quiet tonight, Petrel. What do you think?'

'Well, Egypt doesn't seem particularly happy as it is. There must be something wrong.'

'Masters turned to Tony, smiling. That's the way she shuts us up, when she's thinking about something more important.'

falls upon it. Biologists knew this reflex was fast because it was quicker than measuring instruments.

The Stanford biologists devised an electrical method of measuring the speed they pressed the leaf against an electrode, of platinum or mercury, maintained at a negative potential of half a volt when light flashed on the leaf.

They have a "reflex" which apparently is as quick as the speed of light. The instantaneous nature of the reflex was discovered at Stanford University, by Professor Lawrence R. Blinks and his research assistant, Royce Skow.

Chapter 28 Drive in The Desert

'OUR other lady isn't very talkative. What made you invite her to the table, Petrel?' asked Tony.

'The Baroness?' Petronella glanced to the other end of the table. Fleur von Cratz sat crumpling her roll, and staring abstractly at, and through Rogers, so that she looked quite discomfited.

'Thank you, it has been simply fascinating. You have been very kind.'

'Am I permitted to wish you both great happiness? Mr. Lance has told me he hopes to make you his bride. You are well matched. You are adventurous enough, even for him.'

'What did he mean by that, Tony?' he asked, when the lights of Fayum were golden pinpricks in the distance.

'Only that I have promised him some information he doesn't believe it possible for me to get without considerable trouble.'

'Why is there? Tony. I can keep secrets,' she insisted.

'You shall keep this one because you don't know it! It is safer for you not to know, then no one can frighten it out of you. They'll probably try that. This fellow behind here, is being paid to check up on my movements. He knows I'm waiting for some information that hasn't yet arrived. When it comes, he's out to get it. That is all I can tell you. Shall we give him a run for his money?'

'I do hope it is René,' Petronella told him. 'Fleur is worrying about him. He seems to be coming down.'

'Will you forgive me if I leave you for an hour or so? I'll be with you for dinner.'

'Of course,' he kissed her, sweetly and hard. 'Bless you. Other girls would make a fuss and ask questions, and say I didn't love them, if I treated them the way I treat you.'

'Then other girls would be very silly. I know I'm not your only responsibility,' Petronella said.

'You're right. And it is important. So important to hundreds perhaps thousands of other men and women, that the happiness of a few individuals must not be allowed to matter much. If they have to be sacrificed—well, they have. That's all! It can't be helped.'

MONEY GROUPS UNABLE TO AGREE

Rift Develops Between Legislative Committees

Raleigh, Feb. 17.—Legislative tempers are getting just a bit frayed at the edges as times passes and the goal of a balanced budget seems to get farther and farther away instead of nearer and nearer.

As a result it is not at all difficult to detect a widening rift between the two money committees—Finance and Appropriations—which rift is just as much emotional as financial.

Members of each committee are beginning to blame members of the other for all the ills, ailments and difficulties of the General Assembly, the budget and mankind in general.

Likewise and as to be expected corollary to this feeling there are also evident signs that some members of both committees are getting decidedly sore at Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

Of course none of this has yet passed the bounds of legislative courtesy and it isn't possible for this correspondence to quote Senator Joe Doakes of the Appropriations committee to the general tenor and effect that Representative Elmer Zilch of Finance, is a fathead, a toll of the interests, a horned toad, or almost anything except a gentleman and a cedar tree.

It is also possible, though not so easy to find members of both groups who lay a large share of the unbalanced budget blame on the shoulders of the Governor.

And, going just a step further, there are within each group, smaller cliques whose members take apparent pleasure in blaming other cliques and knots for the difficulties with which they find themselves surrounded.

In fact about the only thing that is nearly impossible to find is a legislator willing to admit that maybe it's as much his own fault as that of any other person or group.

What it really amounts to is that the committees are not finding the road to legislative glory as smooth and palm-bedecked as might be. The lawmakers are beginning to learn that there are almost as many views as there are members, and that in this particular Assembly no leadership—either Administration or Anti-Administration—has developed strong enough to drive through any given program.

Many had believed that Senators W. B. Rodman, Jr., head of Appropriations, and H. P. Taylor, big shot in Finance, would be able to force the Budget Commission's recommendations through almost without change; but recent events have given this belief a series of tremendous jolts.

In fact, Taylor appears to have, temporarily at least, completely lost control in Finance—the most glaring instance of this being his complete and dismal failure early this week to have the committee reopen the matter of applying the sales tax to basic building materials.

The Auditor man fought manfully to get that $400,000 anticipated revenue back in the bill, but was so badly beaten on a voice vote that nobody even asked for a division.

And that's typical. Senator Taylor hoped the railroad franchise tax would not be put more than five cents. A sub-committee recommended a 20-cent slash and the whole committee voted for a 15-center.

So no Appropriations committee members are inclined to sniff at the Revenue committee's leadership and intimate that the play has been completely taken away from the big shots of record.

Of course, it works both ways and Finance committee members are pointing scornful fingers at Senator Rodman and at House Chairman John Caffey, assailing them for not cutting a couple of million or so out of the proposed appropriations in order that the decreased Revenue estimates would be sufficient to balance the books.

Even within the Appropriations group Senator Rodman is getting a bit of criticism. The capable, but cautious, Washington man is quite obviously wishing to find out what Finance will do before moving to report out the Appropriations bill. There are members who think this is the wrong attitude. They think the offensive should be taken by prompt reporting of spending bill, and even its enactment into law just as soon as possible. This would pass the buck squarely to Finance, leaving that committee with a big spending baby in its arms and faced with the dire necessity of finding pap enough to feed it.

LEGAL POLICY IS ABANDONED

House Action Makes State Liable In Tort Actions

Raleigh, Feb. 18. The House of Representatives yesterday afternoon abandoned a governmental policy which has been recognized since the state was established, in voting to pay property and lost-time damages to a victim of an accident with a school bus. The amount involved was insignificant, being less than $350.00, but the principle involved is vital, according to several members who spoke against favorable action.

Some two years ago a school bus in Nash county ran over the son of W. S. Williams, and also destroyed a disk harrow and badly injured a fine mule. School authorities investigated and admitted that the accident was entirely the fault of the bus driver. The school folks expressed sympathy, but said that only legislative action could reimburse Mr. Williams for his losses. The claim was presented, was heard by the appropriations committee, was approved, and came to the floor for final passage. Messrs. Abernathy and Fenner of Nash championed the bill.

Frank Taylor of Wayne, Rupert Clegg of Guilford, and R. W. Pipers of Moore, pointed out that passage of the bill was going much further than the state had ever gone, and that it would mean an avalanche of similar claims. Mr. Taylor suggested that a fairer thing would be to pass a general act permitting the state to be sued in such cases and pay damages upon judgment of courts of competent jurisdiction.

While wall street had a fairly optimistic brand of news for inspiration, trading forces apparently inclined to step lightly in the matter of enlarging commitments pending more assurance the Spanish Civil war will end without a general flareup between the so-called Democratic and Distator nations of Europe.

Stokes Enters Finals In College Tournament

Green Hope and Dunn Girls Clash Tonight At 7 O'clock

By JAMES WHITFIELD
 Stokes high school's boys will tangle with Jamesville for honors in tonight's play finals at East Carolina Teachers College tonight at eight o'clock, with the Green Hope-Dunn girls' controversy being settled in a hard-fought duel carded for seven o'clock.

Green Hope's girls clinched a place in tonight's finals berth by going on a scoring spree to the tune of 34-21 over the Jamesville girls in a top-notch morning classic. Green Hope boasted a 16-9 half-time advantage.

Captain Dot Beal and Grace Lee Dowd, with 10 points apiece, took the winners' scoring laurels. Captain Marjorie Martin guided 11 points through the basket to feature Jamesville's offensive onslaught.

Dunn high school's girls were assured of competing with their rival in the finals of tourney play here—Green Hope, by fading Beulahville 31-28 in another breezy morning girls' game. Dunn moved away from a 20-19 advantage held by Beulahville at the half and the game was sparked with action the rest of the route.

There was no halting Dunn's Mary Lincoln Tart, who sank 11 field goals and made five out of six free throws for a combined total of 27 points. Dorothy Bostic with 12 and Captain Della Kennedy with 10, were pace setters for Beulahville.

Jamesville boys shoved Washington's Pam Pack out of the finals picture with a 35-19 verdict. Jamesville led 19-5 at the half. Captain Edward Martin scored 10 points and Edward Brown 2 to feature Jamesville's attack. Capt. Billy Duke had 10 for Washington.

Stokes battled Plymouth for a 32-27 decision in the last and most thrilling affair of semi-final play. Stokes was ahead 19-10 at the half, but Plymouth turned on the heat and gave the Pitt county boys a

Machine To Put On Pants Saves Men From Stooping

Charleston, W. Va.—Men who are fat, men who are feeble and men who are just plain tired at long last can put on their pants by machinery.

A "pants putter-onner" is the latest brainchild of Auburn Taylor, Charleston newspaper press man whose inventive mind has produced among other things a marketable, portable color fountain pen press.

"Uncle Bill" Dyer, 92, stepfather of Taylor's wife, wanted Auburn to turn his brain to something useful.

Why don't you invent a machine to put on my pants," said Uncle Bill whose arthritis makes bending over a painful job. The result is the "Valet Cabinet," which Auburn's son demonstrates. To eliminate any bending, the user would merely press a button to raise the platform waist-line.

Then the trousers are slipped over two pedals and chains are hooked to the belt loops. The user drops the platform, steps onto the pedals, presses a button—and his pants are on. A device for putting on socks also is built in. It is a long stick with a shoe horn arrangement. And it works.

Taylor said he will install a torque motor instead of the weights used in this unfinished model.

But he still hasn't figured any way to slip on your suspenders.

CAGE THRILLS ON TAP TONITE

College Boys, Girls To See Action Here

Besides the action-sparked finals scheduled for tonight in the East Carolina Teachers College Invitational High School Basketball tournament, two other cage thrillings are on tap.

Coach Gordon Gilbert's Pirates will collide with the strong Chowan College of Murfreesboro in a game scheduled for 10 o'clock. This is off basketball activities at the college for the present week.

In a game starting at 9 o'clock Coach Lucille Norton's East Carolina Teachers College girls will tangle with the sextet of the College of Charleston, Charleston, S. C. in a game that is slated to be a thriller.

The game will conclude the local girls' home schedule for the present season.

The Pirates' game will be exceedingly tough, in that the Chowan cagers have made enviable stride in their schedule this season. Howard, a forward, is particularly good. Thus far this season, he has racked up a combined total of 170 points. Although they lack a reserve center, the Chowan boys are tough.

Due to a rest period since Tuesday night of this week, the local should be able to progress nicely. Several regulars for the Pirates have officiated in the basketball tournament being played at the college this week, but this has not handicapped their playing ability.

The boys' game in the finals will be played at 7 o'clock with the girls' final game reeled off at 8 o'clock.

MASS MEETING VOTES AGAINST CITY CHANGES

M. R. Long said he favored Mr. Flanagan's proposal to name aldermen on a city-wide vote, declared he did not know much about most of the other proposals, but said it looks as if the board has the right to name commissions without a legislation act.

"But," he pleaded, "don't tamper with the Water and Light Commission. We have a good manager and the commission is working efficiently, so what is the need for a change unless we are to put it in politics?"

Various persons present then began talking of deciding the proposals by popular vote, with a separate vote on each. Mayor Blount stated that it was not the desire of the board to do anything the people don't want done and raised the question of whether the proposals should be submitted at a regular or special election.

D. J. Whichard, Jr. then moved that the bills be enacted providing for a popular vote at the 1940 city election. Before the motion received a second, L. G. Cooper moved that no bill be introduced to put a city manager form of government in effect for Greenville at this session of the legislature. Mr. Cooper's motion was presented as a substitute to that offered by Mr. Whichard and the latter withdrew his motion. Senator Corey announced that Mr. Cooper's motion was carried and a vote then was called on each of the proposals suggested, only those increasing the pay of the aldermen and changing Greenville from a town to a city were carried.

J. E. Winslow remarked that "there is a lot of merit to all of these questions" and added that they were being considered in an altogether too light manner. He suggested that the people be given an opportunity to study them and another mass meeting be called. Mr. Flanagan remarked he was not so heartily in favor of the suggestion, but added "I don't think it would do any harm."

W. E. Hooker befriended the Park commission and added that "we have allowed mob psychology" dominate the meeting and added "we are taking our parks and city planning questions 'very lightly'."

E. L. Henderson also defended the Parks Commission adding that he favored the people voting on whether or not they want to levy three, five or ten cents on the $100 for Park development and maintenance but added he opposed to levying such a tax by legislation. He added he would vote and work for such a proposal if it were put to a vote of the people.

Declaring that the sentiment of the citizens present had been made clear, Mr. Cooper moved that the meeting be adjourned and adjournment was carried.

William McHenry Speaks to Kiwanis

William H. McHenry, superintendent of the buildings and grounds at East Carolina Teachers College and who also is developing an industrial arts department at the institution, was the principal speaker at last night's meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club.

Mr. McHenry reviewed the history of industrial arts in the schools of this country and related its usefulness and how the work is related to various subjects studied in school. He said that industrial arts taught a student something of the origin of wood, paint and various other materials which went into the make-up of articles.

Since the department was established at the local college, a year ago, he said, 161 students have enrolled in the course. The bleachers used in the college gymnasium were constructed by a group of students who took them for their project. Mr. McHenry declared he believed the bleachers to be the best to be found. The students designed and made the bleachers.

Miss Helen Phelps entertained the club members and guests with vocal selections, with the group joining in.

Guests, besides those on the program, were George A. Snyder, who recently opened an architect's office here; Harold Staton of Bethel and Greenville; and Ed. S. Williams.

Compounds and vegetable cooking fats averaged three-tenths of a cent a pound lower than refined lard at Chicago during 1937, but they were a cent a pound higher on the average in 1938.
