FEAR FOR FATE OF TWENTY-ONE IN HOTEL FIRE

Twenty Others In Hospital at Halifax, Nova Scotia

FIRE DESTROYS HOTEL REGISTER

Believed, However, 87 Guests, 30 Employees in Building When Blaze Started

Halifax, Nova Scotia, March 2.—(Canadian Press)—Twenty-one persons were missing, many of them feared dead, after an early morning fire swept through the half century old Queen hotel today and then spread to adjacent buildings.

Twenty others were in hospitals suffering spinal injuries, compound fractures and burns. Many of the victims were hurt when they jumped from hotel windows before firemen could reach them as the flames roared swiftly through the old wood and stucco structure.

Unofficial estimates of the missing ran as high as 21 persons, but police said the hotel register had been lost in the fire and it might be days before a complete list could be compiled.

It was believed, however, that there were 78 guests and about 30 employees in the hotel when the fire started.

Among the victims admitted to Victoria General hospital was Miss Jean Sherwood of New York, ice carnival star. The extent of her injuries are not determined immediately.

Others missing or injured all were believed to be Canadians.

At 10:30 a. m. four hours after the fire was discovered, the flames still were shooting from the ruined hotel and from adjacent buildings, but it was believed they were under control.

Three business buildings in the same block were damaged by fire, fanned by a 25 mile an hour wind.

16-Inch Snow

Snow which began falling here today following a heavy downpour of rain, reminded citizens that exactly 12 years ago March 2, 1927, the city experienced a 16-inch fall, the largest snow on record here. The snow fell, although heavy for an hour or two, failed to stick to the wet ground, but 12 years ago at noon the city was blanketed under a foot of snow and by the time it stopped falling 16 inches were recorded. The snow, which began on the night of March 1, 1927, was so heavy that the roof of Forbes and Morton tobacco warehouse collapsed, leaving the building practically an entire loss, and also caused heavy damage to the Centre Brick warehouse.

Lands Donated By Ocean Dedicated To The Public

By LYNN NISDET Raleigh, March 2.—The problem in all the up country is to prevent lands washing away. Wrightsville Beach has a problem to know what to do about new lands made by the changing shore line of the Atlantic Ocean. Under the terms of a bill offered by Senator Emmett Bellamy of New Hanover all new-made lands in the Town of Wrightsville Beach shall forever be dedicated to the use of the public. No buildings will be permitted on it, and its uses will be restricted although in many instances actual title will vest in the owners of the water-front lots whose footage is increased by the action of the tides in shifting sands. The Town of Wrightsville Beach has underway a large program in cooperation with the federal government on a loan and grant basis.

CAFFY EXPLAINS APPROPRIATIONS

Detailed Study Of Spending Measure Deferred Until Action on Finance Bill

HOUSE Raleigh, March 2.—(AP)—North Carolina's proposed record-setting budget for the 1939-41 biennium reached the floor-discussion stage in the General Assembly today, and members of the House of Representatives promptly adopted the policy of "finding the money before we spend any."

The appropriations bill, calling for state spending of approximately $154,360,000 during the two-year period, was explained to the representatives by Caffey of Guilford, chairman of the Appropriations committee.

On motion of Rep. Cherry of Gaston, however, the House decided to defer detailed study of the pending measure until the Finance bill had been passed. Rep. Fenner of Nash, chairman of (Continued on Page Two)

HOSIERY MILL GETS STARTED

To Start Turning Out Fabric During This Week

The Davis Full Fashioned hosiery mill here will start turning out fabric this week, it was announced today by Adam K. Miller, superintendent, but it will be some time yet before the plant gets to running full force.

One of the nine leazers already in operation and other are being erected. All the equipment needed to start is here or in transit. The machines already installed are being tested and adjusted. Yarn is run through the machines last week, ready to start. The workers engaged man to train the workers. The superintendent hastened to explain, however, that he already had plenty of applications on hand, declaring that he had 200 and 300 on file now.

The mill will be modern throughout. The best machinery available has been secured and an expert is here installing it. The latest in lighting facilities also has been purchased, providing a blueish white instead of the blueish green light.

When complete the mill will have a maximum capacity of 2,000 dozen pairs of hosiery a week. For the present, however, the product will be sent to Burlington to be dyed and boxed, no arrangements being available here for these processes.

College To Stage 'High School Day'

Invitations to attend the fourth annual "High School Day" at East Carolina Teachers College on April 11 are going out this week to the seniors of all the high schools in Eastern North Carolina. Last year the occasion brought over 2,300 visitors to this campus, with delegations representing ranging in size from three individuals from one school to the 132 students, parents and teachers from the Charles L. Coon high school in Wilson. They came from 108 schools in 31 counties.

An even larger attendance is anticipated this year, say college officials, if one can judge from records of the three previous such days, eleven or twelve hundred visitors having attended in 1936, around seventeen hundred in 1937, and six or seven hundred more last year. The program will be substantially the same as last year. It will not only feature activities outside the class room, but will have the workshop, the nursery school, the laboratories, and the library open, and will show exhibits in various subjects.

SNOW FALLS IN MOST OF STATE

Flood-Swollen Rivers Sent Further Out of Banks

Raleigh, March 2.—Snow fell over most of North Carolina today, sending flood-swollen streams in the eastern part of the state even further out of their banks.

Lee Benson, Raleigh weather man, said that temperatures slightly above freezing prevailed over most of the state and that the snow was melting as soon as it struck the ground. Flurries were reported from Asheville to Elizabeth City and possibly extended throughout the state.

The lowest temperature here was 36 degrees early this morning. Fair and warmer weather is forecast for tomorrow. Heavy rains last month set an all-time record for February here.

The Cape Fear at Elizabethtown today was 29.9 feet, eight out of its banks, and was expected to rise slightly more than a foot. The Roanoke at Weldon was at 33 and one half feet, two and a half out of its banks, and was expected to rise to 37 feet by tonight or tomorrow.

The Neuse was at 17.8 feet, four out of the banks at Smithfield, and still rising. At Goldsboro, it was 17.4 feet, 3.4 out, and expected to rise to 20 feet by Saturday or Sunday.

High School Band In New Garments

J. H. Rose, city school superintendent, today said that fifty-two of the sixty band uniforms purchased with public donations had arrived and that a concert would be presented by the high school band in Greenville high school auditorium in honor of citizens who made donations.

"I think that action on the part of the citizen is a fine indication of the belief in our boys and girls in the school program they are trying to carry out," Mr. Rose declared. He said also that the students at the high school are delighted with the uniforms and spirit of the purchasers.

Eight uniforms are expected to arrive some time in the near future. The coats are green and etched in white; trousers, brownish with a green stripe down the side; and caps of green and white; encircled with a band the color of the trousers. The uniforms cost $25 each.

New Spiritual Head of 331,500,000 Catholics Visited U. S. in Oct.-Nov., 1936

Vatican City, March 2.—(AP)—Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli today was elected 262nd Pope.

The new Pontiff, papal secretary of state under Pope Pius XI, succeeded to the throne of St. Peter on his 63rd birthday. He will take the name of Pius XII.

The new spiritual head of 331,500,000 Catholics is an Italian Camillo Cardinal Gaccia Dominioni made the announcement of the election and the new name from the central balcony of St. Peter's.

The dean of the Order of Deacons appeared on the balcony at 6:07 (12:07 p. m. EST). The cheers of the great crowd in the piazza prevented him from speaking for several moments.

Then speaking in Latin he said: "I announce the glad tidings we have a Pope." As soon as he uttered the first name of Pope Pius XII, secretary of state the crowd understood that he had been chosen. Their cheers drowned out his next

Dodd Fined $250 After Tendering Guilty Plea

Admits Charge in Virginia of Hit-Run Driving

Hanover Court House, Va., March 2.—Dr. William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany, was fined $250 and costs in Hanover Circuit court today on a plea of guilty to a charge of hit and run driving involving an injury to a Negro child.

Dr. Dodd, 69, earlier withdrew his plea of innocence and pleaded guilty to the charge. Leith Bremner, a member of Dr. Dodd's counsel, announced the plea for trial.

Judge R. W. Coleman ordered the defendant rearraigned and the reading of the indictment. Dr. Dodd, after hesitating a moment, replied "yes" to the question "do you plead guilty?"

Leon Bazile, another defense attorney halted Dr. Dodd when he attempted to elaborate on his plea. When Bazile asked him to say no more, Dr. Dodd said "why not," but resumed his seat.

Judge Coleman then discharged jurymen summoned for the case and proceeded to hear a statement from Commonwealth Attorney E. P. Simpkins as to the circumstances of the accident.

Simpkins told the court after he had changed his plea, that the State could put on witnesses in support of its charge or he could summarize the evidence, whichever the court preferred. It was then agreed to summarize.

Simpkins said the change in plea was made without any recommendation from the commonwealth. The accident, in which Gladys Grimes was hurt, occurred Dec. 26 at 184 on a highway near here. Dodd pleaded innocent when arrested. (Continued on Page Six)

Two Weeks of Civil Court to Begin Here On March 20

Seventy-seven jurors have been drawn for duty here during the two weeks civil term of court to be held here beginning Monday, March 20, with Judge Clawson L. Williams of Sanford presiding.

Although there was some talk several weeks ago of devoting one of the weeks to criminal cases, this was abandoned and both weeks of the term will be devoted to civil cases. Lawyers met yesterday afternoon to prepare a calendar.

Following is a list of jurors, and their home townships, drawn to serve during the week beginning March 20:

Expenditures To Exceed Receipts Next Biennium

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, March 2.—Money committees of the General Assembly have labored for nearly two months and have brought forth a so-called balanced budget under which North Carolina will during the next two years, spend from its general fund at least $7,000,000 over and beyond what its general fund taxes will produce in the way of revenue.

Maybe it's the old fable in reverse—the mouse has labored and brought forth a mountain of trouble for the future. According to the best available figures the state will begin the next biennium with $2,300,000 in its general fund, will operate at an approximate $7,000,000 loss over the next two years and will emerge in July, 1941, with a general fund budget as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard. These figures show that in the first year (1939-40) revenues from general fund sources will be $37,880,514, while general fund expenditures will be approximately $41,000,000. In the second year estimated general fund revenues will be $38,586,514, while it is planned to spend practically $43,000,000 during the same period.

Revenue estimates are based on figures furnished by Representative Victor S. Bryant of Durham, who it is conceded on all sides has the most complete and authentic information now available regarding the revenue bill reported by the Finance committee Tuesday afternoon. Spending figures are on the basis of repeated statements that (Continued on page four)

BRANDS ACT AS 'GREEN LIGHT' FOR DICTATORS

Sen. Logan of Kentucky Attacks U. S. Neutrality Law

ARMY EXPANSION BILL SUPPORTED

House Begins Consideration of Half Billion Dollar Army Appropriation Bill

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Senator Logan (D-Ky) said in the Senate today the passage of the United States neutrality act "gave the green light to the dictator nations of the world to move on the democracies."

Speaking in behalf of the administration's $358,000,000 army expansion bill, Logan said that because neutrality legislation had given "much encouragement" to Germany, Italy and Japan, the United States must be prepared to defend itself against any possible attack.

The House began consideration, meanwhile, of a half billion dollar army appropriation bill, the largest since 1922, and was told immediately it would be asked to "add substantially" to that figure in the very near future.

Other developments: Senator Glass (D-Va.), veteran member of the Senate Banking and Currency committee, announced flat opposition to President Roosevelt's request for an extension of the chief executive's power to lower the gold content of the dollar.

Dr. Herbert Feis, representing Secretary of State Hull, told the House Military committee that one foreign government was discussing with this country the possibility of exchanging war materials with the United States and that another was about to do so. He intimated war debt revisions might be necessary to accomplish actual exchange.

Rep. Bulwinkle (D-N. C.) told witnesses before the House Interstate Commerce committee hearing the committee had its "mind made up already" and would "do nothing about" legislation to alter southern freight rates this session.

Army engineers advised Rep. Darden (D-Va.) present work on the North Carolina inland waterways under the Norfolk rivers and harbors district would not be involved in the transfer of jurisdiction to the Wilmington district.

Darden conferred with the engineers office on protest from Norfolk against the engineer's orders last week transferring jurisdiction over North Carolina works, now within the Norfolk district, to the Wilmington district.

The mind of this committee is already made up and there will be nothing done about it," Bulwinkle said, glancing about at his colleagues.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. C. A. Lawrence, who introduced the speaker, Mrs. J. M. Hobbard of Farmville. She gave a very vivid description of the founding of the "Mothers Council" in New York City, later developing into our modern Parent-Teacher Association.

Mr. Farrior, vocational agricultural teacher of the Bevoir-Falkland high school, gave a short talk on the kind of work he was doing in the school and in the community. Miss Mary Olive Ellenberg's room got the picture for having the largest percentage of parents present.—Reported.

Little Theatre Presents Plays. One of the outstanding successes of this season was Greenville's Little Theatre presentation of three one-act plays presented last Friday night at the high school auditorium.

The audience was large and the very attention it gave the players was a tribute itself to the interest which the players held from first to last.

In the first play, "Charleston Debut," which was written by Dr. E. T. Robinson of Greenville, Miss. Harriett Lloyd was a scintillating star with flawless support given by the other characters who were Miss Moselle Jones, Miss Elizabeth Kasey, Bancroft Moseley and Charles Woodward.

The second play, a tragedy, "The Lamphade," very nearly approached the professional with Richard Waker as the star, supported by Paul Fitzgerald and Mrs. W. L. Hall who were magnificent in their parts.

The third and last play, "He Ain't Done Right By Nell," a melodrama with Dr. James Hawes as the dashing villain, was thrillingly and splendidly portrayed. Miss Annie Laurie Askew as "Little Nell" also gave some of the finest work of the plays.

Marshall Starkey as the hero, Mrs. Vance Jenkins as "Granny," Miss Mable Beamon as the old maid, Mrs. Nina James Guy as the city girl, and Charles Whedbee, as her father, gave fine performances.

The entire effort was one deserving much praise for the Little Theatre group. It was a finished amateur production and a performance Greenville is proud of. This Little Theatre has found interested and enthusiastic talent in Greenville and in the future hopes to present other productions from time to time. The entire cast deserves much praise for excellent work and the Little Theatre is to be congratulated for its talent and management to have put on such worthy plays and having given our town such a delightful evening of home talent entertainment.—Reported.

HOUSE BEGINS DISCUSSION ON STATE'S BUDGET

(Continued from page one) The Finance committee said the tax bill would not be printed before tomorrow afternoon. Consideration of the budget is expected to get under way in earnest at that time, or early next week.

Speaker Ward of Craven complimented the work of the Appropriations committee, stating that the group had a difficult job to do because it was confronted with decreasing revenues brought about by a lower business level.

Caffey said the spending bill provided for these general increases for the biennium, as compared with 1937-39. Schools, $4,000,000; books, $400,000; departmental services, $1,620,000.

Senator Long of Halifax introduced a pure food bill which he said was sponsored by the State Board of Health, the Department of Agriculture and the North Carolina Association of Druggists.

The measure would carry no appropriation, but would prohibit the adulteration and mis-labeling of foods, drugs and cosmetics, and would outlaw false advertising. Long said.

Seven Senators sent forward a bill to reopen consideration of claims by various counties against the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

On Tuesday afternoon the Clio Book Club met at the Sheppard Memorial Library. The club president, Mrs. Dink James, presided over the business session, at which time the year's officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Roy Barrett; vice-president, Mrs. Jesse Mose; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Smith; and treasurer-librarian, Miss Annie Shields VanDyke. The new officers will be installed at the next meeting.

Mrs. Dean Tabor presented a very interesting and realistic paper on "Touring Canada." She told of the things for which the tourist should be prepared, such as the Canadian customs regulations, and the importance of the traveler's possession of his birth certificate and auto registration card for purposes of identification. Giving historical sketches and the characteristics of each, she called attention to the plans of greatest interest.

Montreal, the largest city of Canada, and America's leading seaport, after New York City, "has been called the 'City of Churches' because of the many beautiful houses of worship it possesses." Among them are Notre Dame, which is modeled after the famous French Notre Dame, and the Cathedral Church of Montreal, which is a replica of St. Peter's at Rome.

It is interesting to see Fort Chambly, which dating back to 1665, held a number of American prisoners during the War of 1812.

The Laramie Mountains, known as the "Switzerland of Canada," are said to be the oldest mountains in the world. These lie to the north and northwest of Montreal.

The quaint sights along the high-ways of the Quebec province give the traveler the impression of being in Europe although he has not crossed the seas. The houses and fences are neatly white-washed; the picturesque well sweep and the outdoor bake-oven are still in use; and the wayside shrines encountered every several miles bespeak the unquestioning faith of the French-Canadian.

Quebec is, after Annapolis Royal, N. S. America's oldest city. It is included in the list of the "Twenty Most Beautiful Cities of the World." It recalls a medieval French city and is absolutely different from anything to be seen elsewhere in America. Among the historical points of interest of Quebec is the Battlefield Park, where was fought the battle which made Canada a province of England.

Upon leaving this province, one may make his tour more complete by returning home by way of the "New York World's Fair."

Mrs. Tabor's excellent treatment of her subject gave the club members a vivid impression of traveling in Canada.—Reported.

SPRING SLIPS They Are Beginning To Sprout.

Today was almost warm. This is weather people love to see. Farmers can get to work now and they will make the days count. The skimmers are catching a good many shad in the river.

Prophecy For 1899 The following prophecy for 1899 has been made by Farmer Peter Smith who is well known as a prophet in the State of Wyoming. The Crown Prince of Germany will be dethroned. I see an overthrow of the Spanish government.

Queen Victoria will die and the Prince of Wales will be crowned with great magnificence. A wave of prosperity is coming for the United States, financially. Carriages will run without horses in every city in the United States.

GREENVILLE City of Sunshine

And our city has really been a ray of sunshine during the past ten days. Just to realize that so many bright and proud little blooms could be nodding so gaily this early in the season. The Greenville Garden Club greatly appreciates the cooperation which has been expressed with their slogan—'Greenville, the City of Sunshine.'

However, I feel certain that the present rays of sunshine will be multiplied ten-fold when our entire gardens burst into bloom for the spring garden show. This should be the week after Easter, but from all indications as to present bloomings, gardens will probably be at their best some earlier. If the present cool spell should hold another week or ten days, then we would predict that our gardens will bloom per schedule.

But we must keep several seasons ahead with our gardening. And while we are still in the thrills of our early gardens, but from all indications as to present bloomings, gardens will probably be at their best some earlier. If the present cool spell should hold another week or ten days, then we would predict that our gardens will bloom per schedule.

PLAN ELECTRIC PLANT IN N. C. Cape Fear - Yadkin Valley Program Proposed

Reflector Bureau. By LYNN NISBET. Raleigh, March 2.—Development of a gigantic hydro-electric program along the general plans of the Santee-Cooper project in South Carolina in either the Cape Fear or Yadkin river valleys, or both, is contemplated in a bill soon to be introduced by Representative Lacey McBryde of Cumberland and several others.

Sponsors of the legislation haven't completed details of the bill, but they are working toward the goal of putting it in the mill sometime within the next week. Its avowed purpose will be to reduce the cost of electric current, not only to customers of the proposed plants, but to the whole state by reason of competition.

More or less facetious dubbing of the proposition as a "Little TVA" brings quick denial from the sponsors that it is anything like the Tennessee Valley Authority. Roughly the plan is to organize a corporation with authority to issue self-liquidating bonds, almost exactly like the Santee-Cooper lay-out in South Carolina.

Opposition to the program is expected from two sources. The power companies will naturally oppose it, on general and specific principles. The State Department of Conservation and Development, as well as many state officials, will almost certainly oppose it upon the grounds that such a program would necessarily transfer to the federal government jurisdiction over the streams throughout the area. The State of North Carolina has consistently maintained that it has and means to retain control of its own waters.

Mr. McBryde and his associates profess less interest in the question of competition.

The delegation that left today was: Senator E. C. Flaegan, Mr. Noah Williams, Chairman of Pitt County Board of Commissioners, Mr. Bruce Sugg, Dr. W. I. Wooten, all of Greenville; Dr. M. T. Smith of Bethel; and Dr. N. T. Welch, City of Greenville Sanitary Inspector.

Following the meeting of Friday night, when a number of representatives of the different political and economic organizations of the County passed a resolution protesting the board by the legislature in the State Health budget, the following citizens have decided to go to Raleigh to urge the Pitt County representatives to do everything possible to restore the State Board of Health Budget. Japecumis, a member of the chrysanthemum family, are single and small, but will bloom in great profusion. Cottonseed meal is recommended as fertilizer and should be applied about every two weeks. A deeply prepared bed will assure healthier plants for they are good feeders. In preparing bed allow for good drainage. Peat moss in bed will help to take care of this. Just before plants start to bloom fertilize with nitrate of soda. Azaleums might be termed prolific. Since they grow but about 12 inches high, they are used as a border or bedding plant. Azaleums are a long blooming plant, usually showing flowers as early as June and lasting through frost. A commercial fertilizer should be applied about every two weeks. Azaleums are cultivated the same as chrysanthemums but the plants must be separated annually for their growth is very rapid. I am sure those starting fall gardens will want to allow for a cutting bed for during that season of the year nothing is more enjoyable in a home for our first bleak wintry days than the late blooming flowers. After a most delightful and informal program, Mrs. Pechlen asked the guests into tea. She was assisted by Mrs. Wicker and Mrs. Ragsdale. The tea table was centered with a most attractive arrangement of early spring flowers. May all your flowers bloom. POLLY LITTLE.

Arrangements Reached Assuring Night Games

CITY AND CLUB IN AGREEMENT

Fred Caliguri Signs Contract; Moye Made Scorer

Official announcement has been made that arrangements have been completed between the city of Greenville and the Baseball club for the installation of an up-to-date lighting system at the new athletic field and that the Greensies are expected to have a regular schedule of night games.

Manager Rube Wilson announced today that Fred Caliguri of West Hickory, Pa., had returned his signed contract, and would be here for regular mound duty again this season.

This will mark the hurler's third year with Greenville. Last season he pitched in a total of 33 games. He was credited with 10 wins against seven losses, despite the fact he was regarded as Greenville's "hard luck" pitcher. He struck out 129 batters during the season and issued 64 walks. Pitching a total of 201 1-3 innings, he allowed 194 hits.

Club officials also revealed that Bert Moye had been designated as official scorer for the Greensies.

Skipper Wilson is lining up his team and expects to start practice on March 29. In addition to most of last year's players several new players have been signed for try-outs with the Greensies. Outright releases have been granted W. Birch Douglas, Jr., first baseman, and Goidy Lowery, outfielder. Manager Wilson is expected to play first base this year.

NATURAL IMPURITIES ARE NEEDED IN FERTILIZER

As Necessary As Nitrogen, Phosphate, Potash, Says Authority

Because of their deficiency in the minor, or secondary elements, some doubt has developed as to the economy and desirability of the new, highly concentrated fertilizers. Until about 25 or 30 years ago, it was generally believed that nitrogen, potash and acid satisfied the crop's total need for plant food. At that time, however, nitrogen materials of high purity began to be used instead of the old style, natural fertilizers like blood, bone, scrap, stable manure and meal, which had gotten scarce and expensive. Since then, experience has revealed the value of many of the plant food elements as impurities and this, in turn, has raised the question regarding the economic efficiency of the pure fertilizers.

"It is a common complaint among farmers," says Professor L. G. Willis of the North Carolina experiment station, "that the quality of fertilizers has been lowered. It would seem that it should take less of the concentrated fertilizers to make a crop and that farmers would profit by using them. Actually, the reverse has been true. Farmers have had to use more of these newer fertilizers, but there is no evidence that crop yields have been correspondingly increased. As the analysis of fertilizers have increased, the rate of application also has increased, resulting in higher fertilizer costs."

Purity in fertilizers can only be attained by eliminating the impurities. Many of the impurities in natural fertilizers, however, are just as necessary to plants as nitrogen, potash, or phosphate. They cannot make a crop without them. In view of the rather unsatisfactory results thus far obtained with the new high-purity materials and highly concentrated fertilizers, it seems certain that part of the efficiency of natural materials is due both to the various other plant food elements contained in them as impurities, and to the combinations, the natural balance and blend, in which they are found.

HIGH TOURNEY GETS STARTED

Half a Dozen Games Reeled Off in Day's Program

Play for the Pitt County schools' annual basketball tournament was launched yesterday afternoon in Greenville high school gymnasium, with a half-dozen games reeled off to complete the program for the day.

Grifton and Pactolus' girls tangled in the opener with the Grifton girls emerging with a 25-15 victory. The Grifton entry kept their opponents in check throughout the entire game, holding a 13-5 half-time advantage.

Merle Chapman chalked up 15 points to feature for her mates in scoring ways, while Vivian Gray, losers captain, caused 7 points to be recorded for her colleagues.

In the first boys' game of the day, Arthur boys completely overpowered Pactolus 19-5 in a one-sided affair, as the store indicates. Although they made plenty of effort to score, the Pactolus boys went scoreless during the first period and Arthur garnered 11 points. Tyson bested Arthur with 6. Carson and Williams got a basket apiece to feature the losers' attack.

There was another verdict for the Arthur school as its girls turned back the Fountain girls, 33-15, in the final game of afternoon play. Arthur's girls were out in front 16-10 when the half rolled around. Louise Taylor led all afternoon scoring, as well as that of her mates, by chalking up 23 points for Arthur. Martha Carraway was pace-setter for Fountain with 8 points.

Grifton staged a last half rally to make a game with Stokes rather interesting, but the boys from Stokes emerged victorious to the tune of 41-32 in the first game of night play.

Stokes chalked up 21 points and permitted their opponents to bag only four during the first phase of the contest. At the end of the third period, Stokes held a 33-16 advantage.

N. C. PRINTERS FIND A FRIEND

Establishment School Is Bitterly Opposed

Raleigh, March 2.—This legislature may establish a school of printing at State College by moving the present print shop equipment from the State prison, but if it does it will be in defiance of the pleading of the man who has paid it the highest compliment possible.

James F. Barrett, speaking for the Typographical Union, the boys whom he dubbed "the working printers" as contrasted with the "big boss" printers, opposed removal of the plant and establishment of the school. He said the present plan wasn't so dangerous. What he and his clients fear is the increasing prestige to be given the school and the additional work to be done in the shop, which might be authorized by future general assemblies.

"If the Lord would just permit this legislature to sit forever I wouldn't open my mouth," he declared.

Mr. Barrett is no novice in capital-labor wrangling. He boasts, rather than blushes, about the number of towns he has been run out of and the number of jails he has investigated from the inside because of labor activities. At present he is a sort of roving ambassador for the Federation of Labor.

The only thing he dislikes more than legislation aimed to deprive organized labor of some advantage, is the rival CIO.

But Mr. Barrett wasn't the only spokesman against the plan to take the print shop away from State prison. The highway and public works commission which administers the prison opposes it just as strongly. In fact, Chairman Frank Dunlap said that printing for the State was one of the few markets left for prison labor, and that if the print shop is moved the prison will be ruined so far as any hope of being self supporting is concerned.

The master printers want the numbers and had a lawyer, Paul Irvin of Charlotte. They spoke of the difficulty in getting trained men for printing executive positions. The master printers have all along opposed the print shop at the college. The working printers suggested that the bosses are now asking for something that will grow into lots worse competition than prison labor.

Advertising to the statement that there were no printers at the prison, Mr. Barrett said that indicated either printers were pretty good or pretty slick. The prison shop doesn't offer serious competition to outside shops or their employees.

The proposed college shop wouldn't either. But Labor thinks it can control the prison situation much easier than the college set-up.

One of the union printers at the hearing hit a hard blow at another piece of proposed legislation to be sponsored by his own group when he said that he was just as much opposed to legislating the union label on state printing as he is to Nauman. That was M. G. Bogasse, former president of the Raleigh local. He evidently doesn't think much of the plan of his union to introduce a bill requiring that all state printing bear the union label and be paid for at prevailing union scale of wages.

It was apparent from the talks

made before the committee that employing printers and employed printers expect almost opposite results from the school if it is established. The boss printers want executives and salesmen who know something of the technical side of printing.

IN Duquesne-Bradley Tech game, Duquesne was two points ahead by two seconds to play. Duquesne got the ball out of bounds. Olson of Bradley Tech intercepted the throw-in, and sank a long shot to tie the count. Bradley Tech went on to win, 49-43, in overtime.

Washington—Thurs's romance in them that Legislative Halls.

Take Senator Smathers of New Jersey. Late last session he was sitting on the Senate floor with Senator Pepper of Florida.

"I know, I know," said Pepper. "It is Mary Jim Foley. She is a friend of my wife's and she is from Winter Haven. Come up to the gallery and I'll introduce you."

"But I can't leave the floor just now," said Smathers. He had a bit of legislation pending.

"Then I'll introduce you from up there," said Pepper, starting off. But he returned abruptly.

How D'Ya Do? Pepper went to the gallery, sat beside his wife and Mary Jim, pointed out Smathers and went through the business of making an introduction by pantomime.

And I am accepting, said Mary Jim. So they had dinner at the Shoreham that night and on several other nights, and present Senator Smathers went down to Winter Haven to prove to her parents that he was a man of sterling character and good repute.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERHIL and LYNN NISBET Raleigh, March 2.—The Finance Committee gave short shrift to an amendment by Joe Rose which would have had the practical effect of empowering county commissioners to make their counties bone dry.

The Randolph man, apparently innocent of any intrigue or design and probably aiming only at some peculiar local condition, proposed to change the Revenue bill section which makes mandatory the issuance of beer and wine licenses where certain technical conditions have been complied with.

Blowing both hot and cold with regard to governmental regulation, or what? Two headlines taken from the same page of the Charlotte News-Grocer: Tell Committee Wage-Hour Bill Would Run Them and Merchants Favor Bill to Ban Sale Below Cost.

When Senator Jewell of Richmond county sought to repeal a local act providing for election of county commissioners from districts instead of from the county at large, he failed to put in his repealer any provision for selecting them otherwise.

Members of this legislature have really worked harder and have engaged in less "socializing" than usual. But Tuesday night that of social and social occasions of half a dozen senators did conflict with the expected result: A public hearing before a committee was postponed to another date.

Speaker Libby Ward doesn't have time to attend committee meetings. When he shows up at one, observers perk up, because they know something important is in prospect. Mr. Ward straggled into the discussion and strolled out. If he expected anything to happen it didn't—and he didn't lift a finger to promote its happening.

Mr. Roland, vocational teacher of Ayden high school, told how he encouraged his boys to grow more corn by giving a prize to the boy who grew the most corn. It was also brought out by the county agent, Dennis DuPre, that Mr. Joe Daniel grew the largest yield among the adults (90 1-2 bushels per acre) in Pitt county. Harvey Lee Kilpatrick grew the largest among the 4-H club boys (65 1-4 bushels).

The day was well spent, everybody enjoyed Professor and Mrs. Anderson. 4-H club members and farmers spared no pains in making the visitors welcome.

Extension Bulletin No. 25, treating on good gardens, will soon be ready for distribution in the agent's office. The garden planting calendar for March is as follows: Beets, garden peas, carrots, cabbage, collards, celery, Irish potatoes, kale, lettuce, mustard, onion sets, peas, parsley, parsnip, spinach, tender greens, turnips, cauliflower.

A survey will be made of these gardens and reported on monthly. Please be able to make a round report each month. See if you can plant each vegetable each month the calendar calls for.

funds each year $2,500,000 and by using up the $2,200,000 general fund surplus with which we biennium will nominally open. Ever this surplus is based on the assumption that $2,000,000 will be transferred from highway funds at the end of the current fiscal year.

By means of this policy and with the aid of some highly acrobatic figure juggling and "re-estimates of yield" the budget as brought out of committee is just as balanced as was recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission—which budget and recommendations were also frankly built on the foundation stone of taking $7,000,000 from the highway funds under guise of sales tax on gasoline.

This approximation of Advisory Commission figures came about, however, only after long, arduous work; acid and at time acrimonious debate; and many changes from last commission estimates.

The net result is still the same—North Carolina is quite openly embarking on a two year period in which its expenditures are estimated to exceed its receipts—so far as the general fund is concerned.

Figures in the Appropriations bill are so numerous and there were so many changes, that there seems little point in re-hashing them item by item; but a review of the Finance committee's wrestle with the revenue bill might be timely at this point.

As already narrated, the grand total estimated revenues came to just about what the Budget Commission had handed the committee, but there are highly significant variations in varying categories.

Privilege Taxes: Here the committee made up for its losses in other schedules. A new slot machine section was enacted, taxing operators $1,000 and levying varying amounts on machines. The Revenue Department estimates this new tax will yield $150,000 annually.

An increase in the "spout" taxes on soft drink manufacturers will produce an additional $70,000, according to the Department and the committee. Also a new tax on machines automatically vending soft drinks is estimated to produce an extra $45,000.

Installation paper is to be squeezed for an added $110,000—installation paper being now purchased by finance companies from automobile dealers, electrical appliance dealers, etc. who sell on the installment plan. Banks have likewise been made subject to the levy, which was hiked from one-quarter to one-half cent levy on the $100.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

Chapter 38 Reunion

THIS was the strangest journey of her life, thought Petronella. She was fulfilling prophecy. As the gipsy woman, in her van at the Derby, had indicated she would, she was making her way, of her own free will, towards a besieged city. But fear had left her. She had never really had any power to choose peace, and security. When, temporarily, she had grasped it, she had found so little happiness that she was glad to let it go again.

In Valencia, she had had to wait for this train to take her part of the line way to Madrid. Later, where the line was in danger of being cut, a special car should meet her, if Rowdon's wires had reached Peter. For she had not wanted to see his answer. Peter and Tony might both be there; or only Peter. Petrel sat limply in her corner, trying to sleep. But her thoughts thronged too fast. Only now and then, they became fantasy. She had arrived. No one had met her. She had had to search in the darkness for them, and when she found Tony he was faceless; a cold, impersonal presence who did not speak to her. She woke, shuddered and saw he, traveling companions.

One of these was a young corporal in the red militia. He had stood, when she entered the compartment, with raised, clenched fist. "Salud, Comarada!" He had helped surprised when she thanked him in his own language. "You are not afraid to go to Madrid?" She had laughed. "No, I have a brother there. He will meet me at Albacete, unless he is in hospital by now!"

"If that case, hope you won't join him too soon! Our convoy will probably be bombed tonight. They are always trying to cut the road." He sat, now, peeping through a crack in the flapping blind at the dark, dry, serrated country through which they were passing. The train was ordered to show no lights for fear of an attack. In the other two corners of the carriage sat two new recruits. They were going to join the Government forces. Like the mercenaries of past wars, they had sold their services to a foreign country. They had taken to the Spanish about a week ago, for volunteering. One was a young Frenchman, enlisting because it had been dull at home, and he wanted adventure. The other, a dour fellow, was a South African of Scotch descent. He was a prospector, out of a job. He considered fighting better than unemployment.

Would Peter meet her at Albacete? This was the stop where these men would change into lorries, and where she hoped to find a car. Or would she be forced to ask for a lift? Suppose Peter and Tony had not wanted to act independently, obtain the help of the British Consul; perform Clare Horton's commission, and leave again. Every day, families were being evacuated to Barcelona, and Valencia. She would have to leave with them, if by any chance she did not meet Peter. Or, she admitted her real dread, if her meeting with Tony made it impossible for her to stay.

Sudden Death SHE leaned toward the young corporal. "Will there be cars, as well as your car, at Albacete?" He shook his head. "Only if they are ordered. At night they have too much to do. The government is urging civilians to leave, for the sake of the better defense of the city. Besides that, Madrid, has enemies inside, as well as out. When there are bombs, but by hand grenades, flung from windows, if you should not be met, you shall come with me. I will see that there is a place for you. But for your sake, I would rather you had a car. Those devils are sure to have heard that your movements are coming up tonight."

Slowly the train drew to a halt. He smiled, and shook his head. "No, we are not there yet; in half an hour! This is a small station." Petronella stood up, and went into the corridor. The air in her carriage was thick, and stifling. It was food to lean out and breathe in the warm, night air. Air which smelled of the dusty earth of Spain, which had lain baking in the sun, all day, and now was damped by dew. A dim lantern was swinging, and a hawkker sold scrawny chicken legs to the men who leaned from the windows. From the rest of the train came a burst of angry shouting. A porter passed below her. "What is happening?"

"The Cheka were searching the train for a dirty spy. They have caught him. He will be shot, the filthy swine!" She saw a young man marched down the platform. Watching, pitifully, she wondered whether Tony risked the same treatment, when he carried a number as well as a name.

The train was pulling out of the little station again. As it did so, the captive man made a sudden wild break. Dodging and twisting, so that he left half his coat in his captor's hands, he sprang on to the moving step. He was close to Petrel. She met his dark, desperate eyes. She started towards the step to help him. But a volley of shots splattered against the coach. He fell. It was better like that, she realized. To be shot down, hoping to escape, with your eyes filled by a vision of the free hills, of the village where the peasants would have given him food, of the shaggy pony, or mule that would have carried him to safety. It was better to die suddenly, than go through the suspense of imprisonment, the brutality of questioning, the hopelessness of a trial, of the breaking of Petronella heard the door open, and a deep, cheerful voice spoke her name. "Petrel!"

She started, turned. She gave a glad, amazed cry. "Peter!" There he stood, small, sandy, beaming, his arms held out to her. She flung herself into them. "Peter, how lovely!" Behind him, in the corridor, stood Tony. "He has come," she thought. To him she held out her hand. She did not dare to look at him, above Peter's hard shoulder. She could only wait. But Tony's hand gripped her. "Us overwelming to see you, Peter. Last week, I thought I never should again." "Poor old darling! I'm desperately sorry you had such a scare. How is Marigold?" his voice deepened. "Well! I've got a letter for you." "What's the idea?"

"SEE here, my sweet, Madrid is a spot most people are leaving just now. They have the chance. What is the idea?" Petronella took his arm. She had simply an overpowering wish to see him, she teased. Wasn't that good enough? And Martin Rowdon was complaining of his punctation, since he lost his secretary. Peter retorted, and more particularly, they could not talk in front of three strangers. "What is the state of the city?" asked the corporal. Tony answered him. "Unpleasant. You will probably arrive in an air raid. By day shells fall in the streets. There are also incendiary bombs drop like hailstones." "Knowing Madrid as it used to be, it's so surprising," Peter told her. "At first, it seems as incongruous as if someone dropped a bomb in Regent Street, on Saturday morning. But you soon get used to it. This can't happen here. It does happen. People run, gasping, from one street to another, and can't think of anywhere to hide. You'll have to go to the Embassy, till you can leave again. I won't be comfortable. Something like two hundred and fifty people sleeping in lines on mattresses, and feeding in shifts. But you'll be safer there. Talking of food my dear, are you hungry? Peter gave them the opportunity they wanted. "I remembered there was no restaurant car, and bought some athletic looking chicken's legs. Suppose I eat in the corridor and gnaw them?" "A lovely idea."

They all three went out together. They stood with their backs against the compartment. Petronella stood between Peter and Tony. Peter tucked one of her arms through his. "Never mind about the picnic for a moment. I want you to explain yourself, girl. What is all this?" Tony did not follow his example. He was still puzzled by her presence. She could feel the tautness of his arm which touched her shoulder. "Last week it became impossible, waiting quietly in Ballfield. Perhaps for the news you'd both been killed. I went to town. I met Clare Horton at Victoria Station." "Clare Horton?" Tony sounded as though, already, he understood. "She has been ill. But she wanted to come to Spain to establish a camp for refugee children, near Madrid. She asked me to do it for her."

"Now I understand," Peter sounded relieved. "We may be able to help you. But we really rather do it myself than risk you staying in Madrid, Petrel. I mean, I can't imagine what James had to say about it. Perhaps he doesn't realize what Madrid is like, what first hand war you'll see? But if anything happens to you, he'll blame me. Glad as I am that this brought you out to see us—" "Yes, James did try to stop me. But not for his sake. For mine." Petronella's voice was uncertain, but she knew that she must tell the truth. Tony was looking down at her. She raised her head and met his eyes in the half darkness. They gave her the courage she needed. For she knew "Nothing is changed. He loves me."

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons out of the blood. Most people pass about 30 to 40 ounces of urine a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent urination shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. If it's work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start annoying backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. You'll want to ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.
