SENATE SENDS SPENDING BILL TO COMMITTEE

House Passes Revenue Bill, 99-2, on Second Reading

FINAL APPROVAL DUE TOMORROW

House Approves Bill To Require Immunization of Every Child Against Diphtheria

Raleigh, March 15.—(AP)—The Senate today sent to its Appropriations committee the biennial spending bill passed by the House yesterday after addition of around $570,000 to the allotments approved by the joint committee.

The rumor was reported that there was real gold in the revenue bill. Senator Rodman of Beaufort commented, "but it is said this was a hallucination from the headache powders swallowed by the Senate Friday night."

Rodman, chairman of the Appropriations committee, referred to a stamp tax of one cent on a 10-cent package of headache powders voted by the Senate Friday night and then removed Monday.

House Judiciary committee number two amended and reported favorably a Senate-passed bill to define newspapers and require that a paper shall have been published regularly in 25 of the 26 weeks preceding insertion before a legal advertisement may be put in it.

The House passed, 99 to two, on second reading the biennial revenue bill. The action was necessary because of a minor Senate amendment permitting the municipalities and counties to levy a tax on peddlers.

The measure will go back to the Senate for concurrence in an amendment providing that "wilful" violators may be fined not more than $50 or sentenced to not more than 30 days in jail.

Rep. Cherry of Gaston told the House the bill was "a bad one" and ought to be killed but it was favored by Paige of Bladen, McNair of Richmond, Everett of Halifax, Wallace of Lenoir, Fenner of Nash and Fulghum of Johnston and others in brief speeches.

Most of the representatives planned to go to Fayetteville this afternoon to a shad dinner and a yacht drive on the Cape Fear.

Rep. Seely of Cartersville introduced a bill to give four-year terms to all county commissioners in the state.

The Senate passed and ordered ratified into law a bill to permit split-ticket voting in elections.

The House tabled a bill which would have completely changed the method of selecting justices of the peace.

Many representatives sought to exempt their counties and a committee handling the bill had already approved more than a dozen, so the measure was killed. It would have provided for election of a limited number of justices each two years, and ended gubernatorial appointments, except to continue those now serving.

B. and L. Officials Get 'Courtesies'

Raleigh, March 15.—While the revenue bill was on its second reading in the Senate, Senator Fred Folger offered an amendment that would have cost building and loan associations or their paid up shareholders more than $50,000. The word got out and the B. & L. boys converged on Raleigh Monday. Immediately upon opening of the session Monday night Senator Folger got to his feet, and said:

"Mr. President, I have never asked the courtesies of this floor for anybody other than a former member of the legislature, and I have seldom asked the courtesies of the gallery for my friends. But when you send for somebody it's different. I move you, Mr. President, that the courtesies of the galleries, the lobbies, the floor and the seats of this house be extended to all the directors and officials of all the building and loan associations in North Carolina."

The courtesies were extended, the Senate laughed, the Folger amendment was killed, and the shareholders didn't have to pay the state all of that money.

The 1938 hay crop of 92 million tons was the largest the United States has had in 10 years.

This radiophoto shows Dr. Joseph Tiso (lifting hat) as he arrived in Berlin to confer with Chancellor Adolf Hitler a few hours before Slovakia declared itself an independent state and named him first premier of the new nation. Dr. Tiso, a former parish priest, has the influence of the German Nazi government behind him and it was thought by some that he will be named president of Slovakia.

Germany Tells France Keep Hands Off Crisis

HUNGARY ACTS TO GET SHARE

Government Backs Armies in Carpatho-Ukraine

Budapest, March 15.—(AP)—The Hungarian government today backed its armies which were occupying Carpatho-Ukraine by sending an ultimatum to the local government of the territory demanding that defacto powers there be given to Hungarian general staff by 8 o'clock tonight.

Hungarian troops were within 13 miles of the Polish border in Carpatho-Ukraine when the Budapest foreign office sent the demands to the Premier of Carpatho-Ukraine at Chust, the capital.

The ultimatum demanded that he hand over all actual powers to the Hungarian general staff and said that prompt acceptance would "prevent bloodshed."

This was the first hint that Hungarian troops, who started their steady advance yesterday, might be meeting some resistance from the Carpatho-Ukrainians themselves.

Budapest sent a 24-hour ultimatum to Prague yesterday demanding the withdrawal of Czech troops from the easternmost section of what until yesterday was Czecho-Slovakia.

That demand, however, was termed unsatisfactory by Hungarian officials who declared last night that "immediate measures will be taken" to protect Hungarian residents of the area.

Local Project Approved

Raleigh, March 15.—(AP)—State WPA administrator George Coal allocated $384,060 for 11 projects today, including a project in Greenville for $27,033 for improving streets.

Appropriations Boosted $600,000 On House Floor

Raleigh, March 15.—(AP)—The Senate today begins consideration of a House-approved appropriations bill which carries an increase of more than $600,000 from the recommendations of the committee which totaled $154,390,000 for the biennium which begins next July 1.

The upper chamber goes to work where the House left off, which is to say right after the lid was almost completely blown off the whole bill.

It was with considerable difficulty and more than a bit of quick vote putting by Libby Ward that the House leaders yesterday restrained the rank and file from completely abrogating and tossing into the waste basket the so-called "compromise" with the Governor which was outlined Monday night and under which $519,000 was added in funds for school teachers and the University of North Caro-

Domestic Allotment Program for Wheat And Cotton Sought In Place of Present Farm Act.

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—William H. Bixby, superintendent of William Filene's Sons Co., Boston, said today he had been informed that $120,000,000 of Massachusetts money went out of circulation last year for deposit in various Social Security funds.

This money represents consumers' spending power, he told the House Ways and Means committee, which is considering changes in the Social Security system.

Bixby and L. E. Kirstein, representing retail merchants associations of all the New England states except Connecticut, testified in support of a proposal to limit the taxable payrolls under federal unemployment insurance levy to the first $3,000 of a person's annual wage.

This proposal would place the tax on a basis similar to the old age pension tax, Kirstein said, make possible consolidation of tax reports as well as a tax reduction.

Senator Lee (D-Okla.) proposed that Congress approve a domestic allotment program for wheat and cotton as a substitute for the present farm act.

Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.) predicted that any WPA cuts would be made on those in most trouble "for the purpose of creating pressure on Congress." Taber is a ranking Republican on the House Appropriations committee.

The Senate restored a $177,000 item in the Treasury appropriations bill for an additional long-range airplane for the coast guard air base at Elizabeth City, N. C.

The House Appropriations committee had eliminated this expenditure, contending that one plane of this type would be sufficient for rescue work.

Rep. Warren (D-N.C.) expressed hope a conference committee, which will be named to adjust differences between the Senate and House, would approve the additional expenditure.

Chairman Norton (D-N.J.) of the House Labor committee, predicted after a conference with Elmer Andrews, the Wage-Hour administrator, that the fair labor standards act would be amended at this session of Congress.

New York, March 15.—(AP)—The Italian liner Conte di Savoia, which stood by the disabled Norwegian freighter Belnor 700 miles east of the Virginia capes all night, wireless its line officers here today it had left the freighter at 6 a. m. and was proceeding to New York.

Captain Albert Ottino gave no details, but Italian line officials presumed the freighter was no longer in need of the liners aid. The Belnor ran into difficulties in a gale. Her number one hatch was stove in and she reported her cargo was shifting.

The liner turned back 150 miles to stand by and to take off the Belnor's crew of 25 if necessary.

Officers for the major student activities of the college for the coming school year were elected yesterday with a number of Greenville students included in the list chosen.

Miss Juanita Etheridge of Whiteakers, was elected as president of the Women's Student Government and Miss Sarah Ann Maxwell of Pink Hill, president of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Miss Dorothy Hollar of Greenville, was chosen editor-in-chief of the Tecco Echo, and Miss Helen Flanagan, also of Greenville, is to be business manager.

Harvey Deal of Greenville, unopposed candidate for the place as editor-in-chief of the Tecco, had already been formally named to the post in mass meeting.

Miss Prue Newby of Hertford, is to be business manager of the annual.

For other Y.W. officers the following were chosen: vice-president, Miss Annie A. Wilkerson of Roxboro; secretary, Miss Virginia Whiteley of Nashville; and treasurer, Miss Doris Blalock of Micro.

Other officers for the Women's Student Government were Misses Doris Blalock of Micro, vice-president; Harriet Marshburn of Wilmington; secretary; Miss Sara Gorman of New Bern; treasurer; and Miss Millie G. Dupree of Angier, chairman of campus committee.

House presidents are Misses Iris Davis of Lumberton; Ida F. Davis of Burgaw; Doris Burney of Lumberton; Hazel Laura Beale of Pendleton; Annie Owens of Fountain; Bettie Blanchard of Wallace; Ida R. Knowles of Roper; Rebecca Shanks of Oxford; and Mamie L. Boyd of Lane, S. C.

Hitler Enters Shattered Czecho-Slovakia Capital

HITLER'S TROOPS MARCH AGAIN

The arrows on this map indicate the routes that probably were followed when Germany's Chancellor Adolf Hitler again sent troops into Czecho-Slovakia as a consequence of the crisis which resulted in Slovakia tearing itself away from the rest of the nation and declaring itself an independent nation. Slovakia is denoted by the shaded area. The cross line indicates territory Czecho-Slovakia lost to Germany, Hungary and Poland by terms of the Munich pact in September.

OBJECTION TO 'COMPROMISE'

Some Resentment Over Intervention by Governor

Raleigh, March 15.—The intervention of Governor Clyde R. Hoey in the battle of Appropriations Bill which had been raging in the House for several days was at least temporarily compromised in that it caused Greg Cherry to dump his deskful of amendments into a figurative waste basket; but it also aroused considerable resentment in some quarters, at least.

How deep and abiding this resentment will prove to be remains to be seen, but it was made immediately evident in the House action yesterday in increasing the appropriations recommended by the Appropriations Committee for Vocational Education.

Only open mention of this resentment on the floor came from Frank Taylor of Wayne, who attributed this feeling to those who signed the amendment, which he termed "Round Robin Legislation."

"If this amendment was introduced because of any spite aroused by the compromise of Monday, night, then this amendment ought not to pass," he said.

But it did pass, and by a whopping 94 to 19 margin, with only a few hardy souls standing firm for going not beyond the bounds of the gubernatorial recommendations.

And the resentment was unquestionably present. Many of those who had stuck manfully with Speaker Ward, Appropriations Chairman John Caffey and other leaders in resisting attempts of the Cherry bloc to increase appropriations felt that they had been sacrificed to appease the Gentleman from Gaston and prevent him from further hacking of the committee progress.

One member, who asked that his name not be used, characterized the compromise as the "biggest blunder administration."

Marriage License Dated Dec. 17, 1832

F. E. Brooks has in his possession a marriage license issued in December 17, 1832, and bearing the signature "Arch Parker, clerk by R. L. Blount."

Mr. Brooks said the certificate was found in an old bible in his possession. The bible was brought over here from England and was published in the 17th century. He said he happened upon the marriage license while looking through the bible and noted the date on the old document.

The certificate reads as follows: "State of North Carolina, Pitt county. To any regular minister of the Gospel, having the Cure of Souls, or whatever denomination, or Justice of the Peace of said county.

"You, or any of you, are hereby licensed and authorized (spelled with the s instead of the current use of a) to celebrate the rites of matrimony, between James Nelson and Annie Moore of said county, and join them together as man and wife.

"Witness, Arch Parker, clerk of Pitt county the 17 day of December in the 57th year of our American Independence, anno domini, 1832."

The record was signed "Arch Parker, clerk by R. L. Blount."

U. S. Affected

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—The final break-up of Czecho-Slovakia posed two direct questions today for the United States government:

1.—What will be salvaged of the trade promise in the reciprocal agreement concluded last year between the United States and Czecho-Slovakia.

2.—To whom can the United States look for the 165 odd million dollars owed it by the post-war republic.

State Department officials were watching developments closely, but it may be some time before the answers become apparent.

WRECKS CLAIM SIX IN MONTH

Total of 54 Accidents In This Area in February

Six persons were killed on highway in the northeastern North Carolina counties embracing Troop A of the State Highway Patrol during the month of February, it was reported at the offices of Lieut. Lester Jones today.

The officers in the troop investigated 54 accidents, in which 34 persons received non-fatal injuries.

During January of this year the patrolmen investigated 51 accidents, which resulted in death to eight persons and non-fatal injuries to 39.

Arrests during the month totaled 343, of which 28 were on charges of driving drunk. During the previous month 395 persons were arrested, 28 for drunken driving.

Of the 343 arrests made, 339 defendants were convicted, only four being acquitted. Sentences totaled four years and five months. Fines amounted to $2,975.80 and court costs $2,379.61.

The officers recovered stolen property valued at $6,150 and, in addition, collected $3,859.63 in highway taxes.

Meeting Held By Merchants' Board

A discussion of a proposed garnishee law for North Carolina and the appointment of several committees by President O. P. Matthews were features of last night's regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Greenville Merchants Association.

The board agreed to collaborate with other local merchants associations and the state organization in attempting to secure a garnishee act for this state.

President Matthews filled the following committee posts: Trade promotion, Oscar Vatz, G. C. Honeycutt, C. P. Earhart; Legislative, H. L. Ormond, Martin Swartz, W. H. White; Membership, L. A. Stroud, D. J. Whichard, Jr., Ed Batchelor.

CZECHS SHOUT BITTER 'PFUIS'

Bohemia and Moravia—Shorn of Even a Common Name—Probably Be Less Independent Than Most Protectorates; Year Ago Yesterday Hitler Marched Triumphant Into Austria

Berlin, March 15.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, protector of Bohemia and Moravia, sponsor and guarantor of Slovakia, joined his vast cavalcade of soldiers pouring into shattered Czecho-Slovakia today while Czech guards cried bitter "pfuis" at his tanks rumbling through the streets of Prague.

The Swastika flies over Bohemia and Moravia, which have become in effect, merely parts of the Greater German Reich and probably will be less independent than most protectorates. They were shorn of armies and power over their foreign affairs and lack even a common name.

Before the day is over Hitler is expected to proceed like a conqueror of old into Bratsovy castle, Prague's famous fortress, residence of Czecho-Slovakia's presidents and the burial vault of men who made glorious Bohemian history.

His soldiers were in Prague in the snowy morning. They had occupied the castle. Their war machines on wheels pushed through streets packed with hostile men and women who jeered or were grimly silent—and some cheered.

Hitler planned to duplicate his grand entry into Austria just a year ago yesterday.

When he followed his troops in the Austrian annexation he was hailed by Nazis as "the great liberator." Today his avowed role was that of "protector."

German soldiers had already reached Prague, capital of the fallen republic, and their comrades goose-stepped into other sections of Bohemia and Moravia, which formed the Czech part of Czecho-Slovakia.

The Czech government had been dissolved and as Hitler proclaimed today, placed under the protection of the German Reich.

The occupation of Bohemia and Moravia was decided on and the proclamation issued at a three-hour conference between Hitler and Czech President Hacha at the Berlin Chancellery.

DMB, the official German news agency which first disclosed Hitler would make his dramatic entry into the Czech protectorate, announced no specific destination.

W. and L. Project Showing Progress

Rapid progress is being made on the local power plant improvement project, with the boiler already here and being erected.

The coal-treating extension already has been completed and other work is showing progress. The turbine and condenser will be shipped in the near future, Supl. Martin Swartz said today.

"We are running on schedule with the new work and up to the present time have encountered no hitches," Mr. Swartz declared.

A large number of citizens have visited the plant to view the improvements being made, and the superintendent said the public would be welcomed at all times.

 Eighteen members answered to roll call, and the minutes of the last meeting were read, after which the program was turned over to Mrs. Herbert ReBarker. She gave a most interesting paper on "The Southern Temperament."
 After the program, a business

Prompt Help For A Listless Child

Scolding won't help a boy or girl who is listless, dull or cross from constipation. But, here's something that will!
 If sluggish bowels have your child headachy, bilious, upset, give him a little Syrup of Black-Draught tonight. Like the original famed BLACK-DRAUGHT, its principal ingredient is an intestinal tonic-laxative. Helps impart tone to the bowel muscles.
 Children like the taste of Syrup of Black-Draught. It is an all vegetable product. When simple directions are followed, its action is gentle, but prompt and complete. Comes in two sizes: 50c and 25c.—(Adv.)

meeting was held, in which the slate for officers was presented. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Howard J. McGinnis; first vice-president, Mrs. H. E. Austin; second vice-president, Mrs. T. A. Person; recording secretary, Mrs. E. L. Henderson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Hearne; treasurer, Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald.
 The meeting then adjourned to meet with Mrs. C. W. Hearne on March 28th.
 Mrs. R. C. Deal, Mrs. Julius Eldridge, Mrs. E. W. Griffin of Kinston, Mrs. L. B. Thornton of Buffalo, N. Y., and Miss Lelia Higgs were guests of the club.—Reported.

Clio Book Club.
 The Clio Book Club met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. F. B. Haar at her home on Ninth street. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Dink James. Following the roll call, the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.
 Following the business session, Mrs. James turned the meeting over to the new officers who were installed which were as follows: Mrs. Roy Barrett; Mrs. Jesse R. Moyer, vice-president; Miss Annie Shields VanDyke, treasurer and librarian; Miss Elizabeth Smith, secretary.
 The club gave Mrs. James a rising vote of thanks for her splendid services rendered last year. Another vote was given to the incoming officers in which each member pledged their wholehearted support.
 The meeting was then turned over to the hostess, who introduced Miss Annie Shields VanDyke and Miss Jane Hadley, who were in charge of the program for the afternoon. Miss VanDyke gave a talk on Yellowstone Park and Pike's Peak. The thing that was most impressive about Miss VanDyke's talk were the geysers and lakes in the park. She said that there were not enough words in the English language to describe the beauty and splendor of Pike's Peak. She stated that Yellowstone National Park contained the largest lake in the entire United States.
 Miss Jane Hadley gave a talk on Yosemite National Park in California and Grand Canyon. Yosemite Park is a great summer and winter resort which is enjoyed by thousands of guests during the year. Grand Canyon was described by the speaker, as being noted for its hugeness and vivid color.

 Following these two splendid and instructive talks, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Needham Ward and Mrs. Jesse R. Moyer, served a delicious salad course.

Athenaeum Book Club.

A most interesting meeting of the Athenaeum Book Club was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. M. Clark.

Upon arrival the guests were greeted by the hostess and invited into the living room, where the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. S. M. Crisp.

In answer to the roll call each member gave a current event, after which a short business session was held, and the meeting turned over to Mrs. Clark, the speaker for the afternoon. Her subject was "Industries of North Carolina," which she illustrated most attractively with a miniature theatre with sliding pictures showing in detail the beginning of the rapid growth of the chief industries. She was ably assisted by David Clark and Jack Whichard, who in a charming manner, told the history of rayon and turkish towels, two of North Carolina's leading industries, second only to tobacco.

At the conclusion of the program the guests were invited into the dining room where Mrs. W. H. Woodard, Mrs. J. D. Simons and Mrs. W. A. Darden served a delicious salad and sweet course from an artistically decorated dining table, carrying out the St. Patrick's Day idea.

Guests of the club for the afternoon were Mrs. W. David Mosier, Mrs. W. A. Darden, Miss Louise Carter, Mrs. J. D. Simons, Mrs. W. H. Woodard and Mrs. James Umphlett. On departing each person was presented an attractive and useful souvenir.—Reported.

RED OAK NEWS

For the past four or five years the forward-thinking people of Red Oak community have realized the great need for a larger community building. We have our little log clubhouse but it is entirely too small for our Home Demonstration club which numbers sixty-five women. The Sunshine class of Red Oak Christian Church met in this building every Sunday and with an enrollment of around fifty-five young boys and girls this building is still too small. We do not have a building anywhere in the community large enough to meet the recreational needs of a community whose people like to get together as much as the people of our neighborhood do.

We have thought this matter over very carefully, and plans have already been perfected for a building thirty-two feet wide and sixty-four feet long. The log-house will be used as a kitchen. Work has already begun in earnest on this project. Early Monday morning six men began felling trees and clearing underbrush. These men were Messrs. Clyde Bright, Billy May, Hazard May, Zack Whitford, Morris Hall and H. R. Allen. Every man in the community will be given an opportunity to help with this building.

We voice a sincere note of appreciation to Mr. Louis Garris of the Garris-Evans Lumber Company for the confidence placed in the people of Red Oak community. We are also grateful to Mr. John Clark of Greenville for the load of sand he so graciously donated and placed on the grounds for us. We also thank Mr. John Cannon who has offered to render any help we might need. We shall make a report from time to time as how the work progresses on this building which is so dear to our hearts.

So many folks are sick in our community. The list includes Miss Inez Allen, Mrs. Sam Pollard, Mr. R. R. Tyson and daughter, Jane, Mr. N. W. Tyson, Mrs. Frank Elks, Alton Bright and Mrs. Lizzie Vandford. We hope they all will soon be well.

A large crowd attended services at Piney Grove Sunday. Reverend Pelt of E.C.T.C., is the pastor. Mrs. Pelt rendered a solo which was enjoyed by all present. Rev. and Mrs. Pelt were guests of honor at a linen shower recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Tyson.

Preparation Offered To Fight Blue Mold

Farmers throughout every county where tobacco is grown in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and elsewhere will be interested in the testimonial offered today by farmers in North Carolina and Georgia who have been troubled with blue mold on account of weather conditions this season.

A. S. Johnston of Smithfield developed 'Kno-Mold' after three years testing and experimental work. It was finally perfected last year. The use of this preparation requires only a compression sprayer which is owned by every farmer.

Judging from testimonials out of Georgia as well as North Carolina where some experimental work was done last season, "Kno-Mold" is going a long way towards helping tobacco growers get rid of this fatal disease to young tobacco plants, the manufacturer says. This preparation is a tester treatment for the preventin and cure of blue mold.

The Johnston Chemical Company of Smithfield has been organized to manufacture this preparation for blue mold and has gotten off to a good start. Without an exception "Kno-Mold" is recommended by farmers everywhere who have used it to kill the dreaded disease blue mold that is so widely known by tobacco farmers everywhere, the manufacturer reports.

ROY GARDNER ARRESTED AGAIN

Less than a year after his release from Leavenworth penitentiary, Roy Gardner (right), notorious mail robber of two decades ago, was arrested at San Francisco on a federal indictment charging him with sending an obscene letter to a California newspaperwoman. Arrested as he ate breakfast in the grill room of a hotel, Gardner here reads the warrant and Deputy U. S. Marshal Joseph Kennedy snaps on handcuffs.

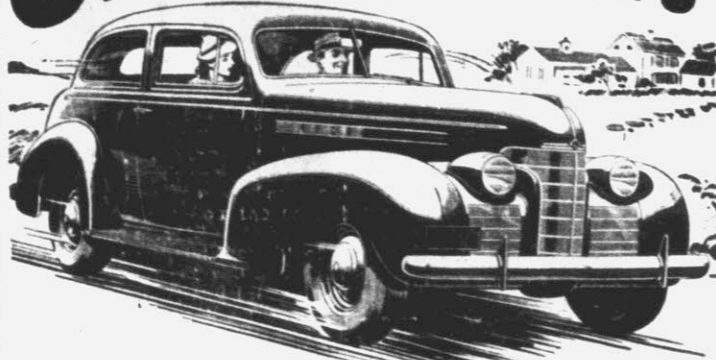

FORDS OPEN KINDERGARTEN

Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, and his wife, who is seldom photographed, are shown visiting the kindergarten they opened recently on their Richmond Hill plantation at Ways, Ga., for children of the community. Two of the young pupils are welcoming their benefactors without sign of embarrassment.

URGES USE OF STATE SERVICE

Employers Have Advantages of 56 Employment Offices

Raleigh, March 15—North Carolina employers are asked to use freely the 56 State Employment Service offices and 160 itinerant points when in need of employees, skilled or unskilled, by Charles G. Powell, chairman of the State Unemployment Commission. The Employment Service is operated as a division of the Commission, with R. M. Albright as director.

The State Employment offers employers a catalogued and classified service of competent and tested workers, and a highly trained personal in the division stands ready to aid both the employers and the employee in North Carolina, Director Albright said.

"Interviewers in our offices develop the job possibilities of each individual registering for work and classify them accordingly to their ability in their particular line," said Mr. Albright. The Employment Service does not try to dictate to an employer in hiring an employee. The applicant is sent to the employer on a strictly referral basis for the purpose of an interview and the employer determines whether or not the man or woman is qualified for the position to be filled.

In order that the employer may not be limited in his field of selection, Mr. Albright explained, two or three of the best qualified applicants are referred to the employer.

The Employment Service has functioned successfully in North Carolina for several years and has been of great value to employers in all kinds of industry. Since it was placed under the Unemployment Compensation Commission more than two years ago, the service has been greatly expanded and it is hoped that employers and employees alike will take full advantage of the free service offered by the enlarged organization.

Six Secure Licenses To Wed During Week

The six marriage licenses issued during the past week, all of which were granted on Saturday except one, brought the total for the year to 111. Of the six last week three went to white couples and three to Negroes.

White: Gordon W. Wilson and Lina Frances Sutton of Green county; James Edward Cannon of Ayden and Estelle Evelyn Lynn of Kinston; Hinton E. Fornes and Virginia Dare Cox of Greenville.

Colored couples: James W. Carmon of Ayden and Josephine Blount of Winterville; David O'Neal and Adell Smith of Winterville; James A. Barrett of Farmville and Alice Gilliam of Green county.

Missing

Bebe Blake (above), 15, daughter of Superior Judge Samuel R. Blake of Los Angeles, disappeared mysteriously after leaving home for school. To Push Bill For Cape Fear Valley

Raleigh, March 14—Representative Lacey McBryde returned to Raleigh yesterday from a week-end at his home in Fayetteville with renewed determination to press for passage of his Cape Fear Valley Authority bill. McBryde introduced last week the bill authorizing appropriation of $10,000 to perfect the organization of authority which would develop a gigantic hydroelectric, flood control and navigation program on the Cape Fear River.

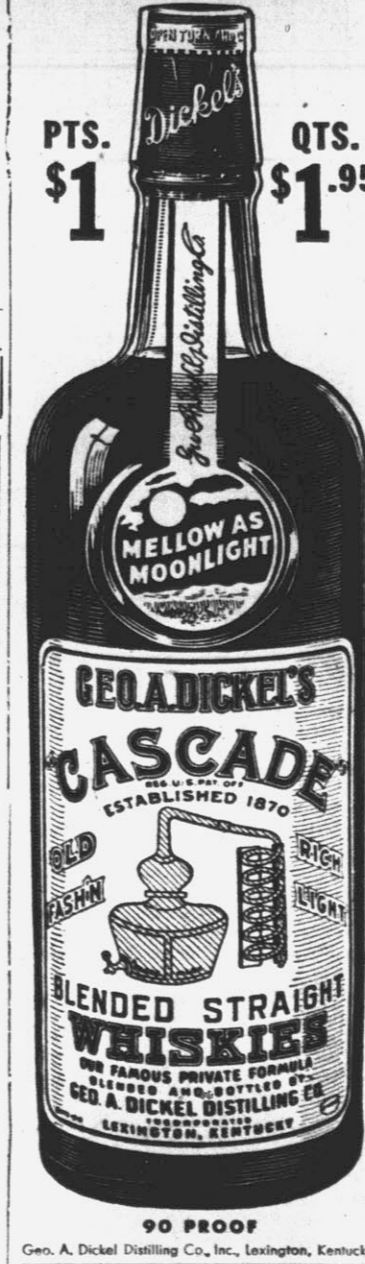

The Cumberland representative has been in touch with army engineering corps and he expects to have Major George Gillette of Wilmington to appear before the legislative committee when his bill comes up for consideration. Major Gillette has been in charge of most of the surveying done on the Cape Fear with respect to navigation and electric development as a war defense measure.

Mr. McBryde makes no secret of the fact that he thinks public utility companies are charging too much for electric current. He credits his bill with some influence on the recent reduction in rates announced by the power company serving southern North Carolina. Flood control and navigation are included, but the real purpose of the Cape Fear Valley Authority bill is to bring about lower power rates in that section of the state.

The CFVA would be a self-liquidating bond-issuing corporation to work on a loan and grant basis in co-operation with the federal government, almost exactly upon the same plan as the Santee-Cooper authority in South Carolina. The only possible cost to the state, according to sponsors of the scheme, would be the initial appropriation for surveys and estimates.

More than "making the motions"

when you change to OIL-PLATING

...the oil-change plus

Dump Winter-fouled oil. Whatever you do, drain and refill now with something. But drain and refill with Conoco Germ Processed oil and then your engine's OIL-PLATED. Then it's got more than swell fresh oil down in the crankcase—it's got another big plus all the way up... It's got fresh surfacing... OIL-PLATING. That comes from the actual union of this patented oil direct with inner engine surfaces. Conoco Germ Processing gives this oil so much "power of attraction" that it cannot drain down and leave engine parts bare, though your car stands by the hour or speeds by the hour.

Never all Spring and Summer, with Germ Processed oil, can your engine suffer rasping "dry starts"... not with every square inch always oiled in advance by drain-proof OIL-PLATING. Nor will four to five thousand revolutions per minute whirl away this implanted OIL-PLATING. It stays on. It helps the oil-level to stay up. Your OIL-PLATED engine and Germ Processed oil will both be giving you plus mileage. Change today to Your Mileage Merchant. Continental Oil Company

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Tightly as he is now cloistered in the midst of a totalitarian state, the new Pope, Pius XII, will have a recollection at least of a brief period over here where democracy does a better job of it.

He came to the United States two years ago while he was Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state and, among other things spoke before the National Press Club.

He was a dignified and gracious person, although probably not in his whole experience as a cardinal had he ever such a close up experience with a buoyant free press in a democracy. He was invited to speak at a luncheon and the place was packed to the doors.

Like 'One of the Boys'
He took his place at the head table without the slightest ceremony and chatted with newspapermen who sat at his elbows. Probably never again in his lifetime will he be able to meet so casually either with news men or with any other group for that matter. From now on he is a person set apart.

Photographers blazed away at him to record in pictures one of the few instances in which he ever availed himself of an opportunity to address a gathering where so many churches, or creeds, or lack of creeds were represented. There were all sorts, from observant Catholics to Communists. The Press Club bars no faiths or following—and there are reporters here from Communist papers in this country as well as in Russia, together with representatives of newspapers in the totalitarian states.

He is a moderately tall man, and decidedly spare. Strong cheek bones stand out prominently. He wears glasses with noticeably heavy lenses. His eyes were brown and his skin olive-toned in the hue native to Italians.

He had a thin, high bridged nose, from which deep lines descended to the corners of his mouth. Such lines characterize men who speak publicly often. Such lines are deeply etched in the face of a dozen senators who have heven out legislation under the hammer of debate.

His dress was a simply black robe and he wore a long gold chain supporting a crucifix.

Typical Secretary of State.
He spoke off-the-record, although—as we remember—little was conveyed in his message that might not have been published without creating an special disturbance either in this country or abroad. Secretaries of state are a reasonably reticent group, wherever you find them.

He spoke English clearly, altho with a decided accent, his voice a note higher pitched than common. His speech was given extemporaneously and was most memorable for its manner of choosing precise words to express thoughts he undoubtedly was thinking not in English but in Italian. It is an intriguing experience to see a scholarly man, speaking in an unfamiliar language, search around diligently in his mind and finally come up with exactly the word you had in mind he should use.

Some 22,000,000 Catholics in the United States as well as others here have an interest in knowing that a man occupying such a vital place in the world has had at least a quickie tour of the United States.

Blue mold, a tobacco plant bed made its appearance in...

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, March 15—First honorary page to make a speech upon being so named in the House at this session was little Tom Greer, son of the Gentleman from Watauga.

The tot, whose diction wasn't all that it might have been, lisped: "I'm a Democrat born. 'And a Democrat bred. 'And when I die 'I'll be a Democrat dead."

At the other end of the age scale the House extended all its courtesies to Gibson James, who sat in the legislature with Rowan's Pete Murphy no less than 42 years ago.

Murphy pointed out that they were members of a Democratic minority. Incidentally, Pete is the only Democrat in the legislature who ever was a minority member, something which perhaps for his sturdy defense of the right of the present minority Republicans to represent their counties with all the rights, privileges, etc of other House members.

Victor Bryant walked out toward the door of the House, stopped inside and near it for a moment.

"The Chair takes great pleasure in extending the courtesies of the lobby to Mr. Bryant, the distinguished member from Durham," cracked Speaker Libby Ward.

The North Carolina is a bi-cameral legislature, but it lacks a lot of being a bi-partisan one. There are a few Republicans in its members—six in the House and two in the Senate. But when the 162 Democrats gang up on them they had just as well be at home.

Monday night Senator Cowles pleaded with the senate to kill a House bill which put Wilkes county in a category by itself for election of welfare superintendent. Far western Democrats saw a change to get even with Republicans for past injuries and insults and the pleadings were ignored. Now Wilkes is the only one of the one hundred counties in which the welfare superintendent is elected only by the board of public welfare. Chances are pretty good that the Wilkes superintendent will continue to be a Democrat.

Another evidence of the bi-cameral nature of the general assembly came in debate over the revenue bill when certain senators voiced alarm at the way the House of Representatives was boosting appropriations. Senator Tom Long wasn't ready to vote on third reading of the bill unless Finance Chairman Pat Taylor would say that he as chairman of the committee was satisfied it would balance the budget.

Senator Taylor fidgeted a little and tried to avoid a direct answer, but Senator Long insisted. Then President Horton interposed the observation that the action reported from the House was certainly indicative of the trend of legislative sentiment, but he reminded the senators that one branch of the assembly was not bound by any action in the other. Mr. Horton further suggested that if necessary a supplementary revenue bill could be passed later. With that observation both Senators Taylor and Long expressed satisfaction, and the 1939 revenue act passed its third reading in the Senate.

Conversation overheard at a lunch counter in a capital city all night cafe during the wee hours of Tuesday morning, between John White of Chowan and Frank McNeill of Robeson, members of the House of Representatives, both of whom sport fifty little hirsute scoundrels of the upper lip. Both said comments are inclined toward the red side. "If I couldn't grow anything but a red mustache I would shave every morning," remarked one of the gentlemen. "And if I couldn't produce a red one I wouldn't have any," came back the other. Thus was compromised one of the major legislative problems of the session.

HINTED McDONALD TO GET APPOINTMENT BY HOEY
beat you, trade with 'em." Both Clyde Hoey and Ralph McDonald are good politicians. McDonald couldn't beat Hoey, but he almost did; so it would seem that "jinning" and "trading" is in order.

To this point the rumors are rather definite. From here on they are speculative and suggestive, but there is a wide field for speculation. There is a fine job waiting for someone on the industrial commission. That job needs a lawyer, and Harry Sample, now head of the probation commission, is believed to have the inside track for it. That would leave probation open, and Dr. McDonald would not be a bad selection.

If the legislature enacts wage-hour legislation based on either of the pending bills, there will be at least one good job and maybe more than one, in the application of that law.

If none of these materialize, the situation is still not hopeless for the doctor, because with $75,000,000 a year to spend and more than 12,000 jobs of various kinds to fill, there can always be found a place for a good man if the search is prosecuted vigorously enough.

Official confirmation cannot be had, but signs around Raleigh this week indicate that Dr. McDonald would like to have a job if he can get it, and that he will be given one if he will take it. There is but one inevitable answer to a situation like that.

Speaker Ward, Appropriations Chairman John Caffey, Frank Taylor, Economy Bloc Headliner Rupert Pickett and a few other stalwarts stood by the compromise, but others deserted in droves. Even Bill Fenner, Finance committee head, voted for the increased vocational aid.

Original budget recommendations for this item were $75,000 for each year of the biennium. The Appropriations committee raised these to $305,000 for the first year and $325,000 for the second. The Round Robin amendment of yesterday put the figure at $350,000 for each year.

After this had been put in, Jim Vogler of Mecklenburg managed to get an increase for the Weights and Measures division, giving this agency $13,800 for each year of the biennium instead of the recommended $10,000.

R. H. Underwood, Clarence Stone and Irvin Johnston got through amendments increasing per diem allowances from $7 to $10 for Highway Commissioners, Members of the Advisory Budget Commission and a few others.

That ended the successful efforts to upset the Appropriations bill. Other amendments—a flock of them by Clarence Stone—were defeated, after which the bill went through second and third readings with no difficulty whatsoever. On third reading not even one feeble chirp of "no" was heard.

That puts the thing up to the Senate again, with the balance almost so badly disturbed as to require even more than a casual bit of re-estimating by the eminent Commissioner for Revenue Allen J. Maxwell.

Exempt Aged from N. C. License Levy

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, March 15—The last amendment offered to the revenue act before the Senate sent it back to the House for concurrence was offered by Senator Watkins of Granville. It exempts from payment of professional license taxes all men and women who have reached the age of 75 years.

While there are a few lawyers and doctors still earning good money though over 75 years old, the great majority of these real old people do not earn enough to pay the license, but still have a pride in going to their offices. There wasn't a dissenting vote against the amendment.

Government figures indicate 61.2 per cent of the farmers in Oklahoma are tenant farmers.

DAD LEARNS A LESSON...

LATER THAT SEASON
WELL, DAD, I MUST SAY I DON'T AGREE WITH THE WAY YOU BUY YOUR FERTILIZER.
OH! I SUPPOSE YOU'RE GOING TO TELL ME THERE'S A DIFFERENCE IN FERTILIZER. NO SIR—I BUY WHAT I CAN GET CHEAPEST.
WELL, DAD, I THINK THAT'S WRONG. YOU FARM GOOD, BUT THE ORDINARY FERTILIZER YOU USE DOESN'T LET YOU GET ALL YOU SHOULD OUT OF IT.
HOSENSE WHEN THE SEASON COMES ON, I'LL SHOW YOU YOU TAKE A TEST ACRE, AND SO WILL I. I'LL OUTGROW YOU ANY DAY.
I HOPE SO, DAD, BUT I DON'T THINK YOU WILL. I'M GOING TO USE S-D GOOD FROM WHAT I'VE HEARD. I THINK THEY'RE THE FINEST MADE.
WELL, THAT'S ONE THING I THINK I'VE LEARNED. DAD, I PAYS TO BE MIGHTY PARTICULAR WHEN BUYING FERTILIZER.
BOY, I MUST ADMIT YOU WERE RIGHT ABOUT S-D FERTILIZER. WE'VE MADE MORE MONEY THIS YEAR THAN EVER BEFORE.
I'M SORRY, DAD, BUT YOU LOSE. MY ACRE BROUGHT ME 50% MORE THAN YOURS—AND IT'S THE S-D FERTILIZER THAT DID IT.
WELL, YOUNG MAN, I AVERAGED PRETTY GOOD ON MY ACRE I GUESS I WILL.
WHEW! 50% MORE RETURN AND THAT S-D GOODS COST YOU A FEW CENTS MORE MAYBE I WILL GET SOME BENEFIT OUT OF YOUR MONEY I PAID FOR YOUR SCHOOLING.
I HOPE SO, DAD, THAT S-D FERTILIZER SURE PAYS IT'S WAY.
FARMERS EVERYWHERE KNOW THAT S-D GOODS GROW QUANTITY AND QUALITY
When you buy S-D goods, you are getting the finest fertilizers it is possible to make. You can get some ordinary brands for less sometimes, but it's hard to find anything at any price that will do as well as S-D Fertilizers. Try them once—you'll be convinced.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Sara Leach, a power in the town of Billingsgate.
Jane Warren, the murdered woman's ward.

Yesterday: They break the news to Eloise, Mary Randall's daughter. It is decided to keep the murder secret.

Chapter Nine Walk In The Night

AT HALF-PAST-FOUR the following morning, Asey and Zeb wearily returned to Aunt Sara's. Jane and Eloise had been brought there earlier.

"Asey," Zeb said as they undressed, "did you understand any of this? Things at first seemed to be directed against the town, but this—what's anyone got to kill some one like Mary for? It's a maniac—remember that laugh?"

"Yup, I heard it 'night."

"When?"

Asey told him. "It's all the same thing, Zeb. Shotgun—course, it was deer ball an' not buckshot, but that don't matter much. The first shootin' was just a warnin'. This was meant to be—an' was—final. It's all part of the same muddle."

Zeb didn't believe it.

"Oh, come now," Asey said. "Member what Jane said tonight, that Mary was anxious to see me about somethin'? My guess is that Mary Randall found out somethin' by accident, somethin' more'n you an' Sara an' Wes an' I ever knew. Someone discovered that she found out, an' someone seen to it she never had a chance to tell. She—say, hear that? Listen!"

Asey snapped off the light.

"What—"

"It's our friend, givin' us the razz. No, we ain't goin' out, neither. Not on your tinfoy!"

"Why not, Asey? It's that laugh—"

"Do you want a deer ball through your head? He's hopin' real hard we'll fall for it, but we ain't goin' to. When anyone taunts you like that, you can be sure you'll lose the tag game. Roll over an' get to sleep, I am."

He turned over on his side, and within ten minutes he was producing light but convincing snores. Then he half sat up in bed and made some experimental sounds, but Zeb was too fast asleep to hear them.

Grinning, Asey picked up his rubber-soled shoes, and Zeb's sweater, and slid out of the room.

The window at the end of the hall was open. He unhooked the screen, leaned out, and gripped the branch of the maple tree that rested on the slant roof. The window was small, but he squeezed through and swung onto the branch. Slowly he edged down the branch to the trunk, propped himself there some twelve feet above the ground, and waited.

The breeze rippled through the leaves and swayed the branches above him. Over the swamp, frogs were croaking. Far away on the shore road an automobile horn barked. He could just hear the buzz and smash of the breakers on the outside beach—Asey opened his eyes wide. Someone was coming, up from the swamp. Someone had just crossed the narrow wooden foot bridge over the creek.

He leaned forward and peered through the branches, but it was still too dark to distinguish anything.

The footsteps came nearer, scrunched a cross the gravelled space by the garage, tapped on the flagstone walk that led from the garage to the house. If the person, whoever it was, stayed on that walk, he would have to pass directly beneath Asey.

Quietly, he pulled aside a branch, and waited.

No Mistaking

ASEY'S hand flashed under his sweater and his borrowed pajama top to the old forty-five nesting in his shoulder holster. Then his hand dropped.

It dawned on him belatedly that the person was a woman, and that the tapping on the stones came from her high heels. And now he could hear the swish of silk, and see a skirt swirl in the breeze.

The woman strolled past the tree, and Asey very nearly fell on top of her. There was no mistaking that white hair. The woman was Sara Leach.

Open-mouthed, he watched her walk to the front door, open it, and disappear inside the house.

Asey slid down the tree trunk, jumped and noiselessly followed.

"See here, Sara," he demanded, "what's the idea of this? What—wha—"

Aunt Sara finished locking the front door, put the key carefully under a jade vase on the hall table, walked past him without saying a word.

Keeping just behind, Asey followed her upstairs and along the hall to her room. The door closed softly as she went inside.

Asey leaned against the wall and wiped his forehead against the sleeve of Zeb's sweater.

Only once before had he ever encountered a sleepwalker. That was on the "George P. Cram"—no, it was the "Joshua N. Cram," and he had waked up just in time to wrench a machete from the hands of the West Indian cook as the latter swung at the second mate.

With a shrug, he tiptoed back into his own room and crawled into bed.

It was unthinkable that Sara had anything at all to do with this business, with the shotguns Saturday, or the killing of Mary Randall, or anything else. But her wandering around made him uneasy. Very likely it was a regular habit of Sara's to take a stroll every night down by the swamp. But how long had she been there, and what about that crazy laugh? It was all serey.

Out of the whole mess only one real fact emerged; someone had something against Billingsgate. It might be a grudge against the town itself, or perhaps someone wanted to blank the celebration. Anyway, the person had issued plenty of warnings about how he felt, and now he was getting right down to business.

Why, Asey wondered, all this paying of the way? Apparently the fellow had nothing against Brinley or Weston or the Leaches. The selectmen didn't figure. If they did, why hadn't the fellow shot at them instead of just aiming to one side of them with buckshot?

Anyway, by some accident Mary Randall had become aware of whatever this person had in mind, probably stumbling nearer to the truth than she comprehended. At least, she understood enough to want to see him and tell him things. But someone anticipated that, and took good care that nothing of the sort happened.

That led to Jane.

Thorn In The Flesh

HE DIDN'T know about Jane Warren. She had been a bit soft on the antique business that afternoon. What was that crack of hers—"All work and no play." Something to do with the Randalls or the antiques had annoyed her. But if she were as destitute as she claimed, and if she was supported solely by Mary Randall, it hardly seemed that Jane would deliberately kill her benefactor and employer. Perhaps in some way she would benefit by Mary's death. Maybe she inherited the antique business or some money. Perhaps it was something more indirect; clearly Eloise was too scatterbrained to carry on by herself, and Jane would profit thereby.

With the radio going, and the static and the fireworks, it was possible that she had not heard the shotgun. Offhand, it wasn't very credible. And most people when they were confronted with a murder, promptly began to tell how innocent they were. Jane had taken the other attitude and offered herself up as a sacrifice.

After cleaning up Mrs. Randall's room and fixing the window, Asey had gone over the entire house from attic to cellar, and investigated Zeb's shotgun in the shed. It was covered with the chips and sawdust and dirt of the woodpile, and the barrels hadn't been touched for a month or Sundays. He could find no trace of any other weapon, nor could Lane. But that didn't mean that there wasn't any.

After Jane and Eloise had gone to Sara's, he had even read through Mary Randall's diary, but that cast no light on the affair. From it he picked enough to know that Mrs. J. Arthur Brinley was more of a thorn in Mary's flesh than anyone guessed, and that Jane cared far more about selling antiques than rubbing or restoring them, or tracking them down. Mrs. Randall had been rather plaintive about Jane's lack of what she called "stick-to-it-iveness." There were numerous items about Eloise. A lot dealt rather resolutely with her clumsiness, like breaking some Stiegel glass, and smashing up the beach wagon's fenders again, and once or twice she mentioned Eloise's inability to take a stand or make a decision. Asey remembered one sentence, "She is so good to me, and works so hard, and means so well, but she does clutter, with the things she says as much as the things she does."

Asey thought he knew exactly what Mary Randall meant.

Well, Jane would have to be looked into. For fun he would check up on Aunt Sara, although he knew it was a futile gesture. Zeb didn't enter into it, or Eloise. That ferris wheel was a rock-bottom alibi, if ever one existed or was needed.

He turned over, closed his eyes and slept soundly until Aunt Sara banged on his door at nine o'clock.

"Asey, Jeff and I have to go," she called to him. "Zeb's already driven the girls to the hollow, and gone to work, but he said he'd leave any time if you wanted him. Sally or Bertha'll be here all day long, and get you any meals you want. I'm leaving a program for you—"

"Hey," Asey scrambled out of bed, "wait till I—"

"I simply can't wait. Really, I'm the sheep and lamb sorter for the Old Returning Settlers! Bye—"

Asey looked out of the window at the open car with its flying blue and yellow streamers in which Jeff and Sara drove off in state behind a uniformed chauffeur.

"All they need," he murmured, "is tucker tape."

Continued tomorrow.

RETAIN SET-UP OF TEST FARM

Agricultural Committee Refuses Make Change

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, March 15.—Perhaps the hardest lick hit the proposal to transfer six test farms from the department of agriculture to State College was struck by Representative Wilson Alexander of Mecklenburg, a real "dirt farmer." He said that when he was home over the week-end his county agent (an employee of the college extension division) came and asked him to transfer the farms to the college.

Then former Governor Cam Morrison, now a farmer, came and asked the same thing. But after they came more than thirty real farmers who earn their living out of the ground and asked him to vote to leave them wuss.

Alexander so voted, as did 22 other members of the committee, making a vote of 23 to 11 for an unfavorable report on the White bill providing for the transfer.

The bill had the ardent support

MOVING EARTH SLOWS DOWN TO A MERE CRAWL

California's moving earth mass, which has been sliding toward the main coastal highway near the town of Gilroy for a week, finally has slowed down to a mere crawl and highway officials now believe it will stop short of the road due to an expanse of flat land and a ravine in its path. Here's where the land started moving from the top of a high hill. Note the wire fence suspended in mid-air.

New Fertilizer For Tobacco Is Available

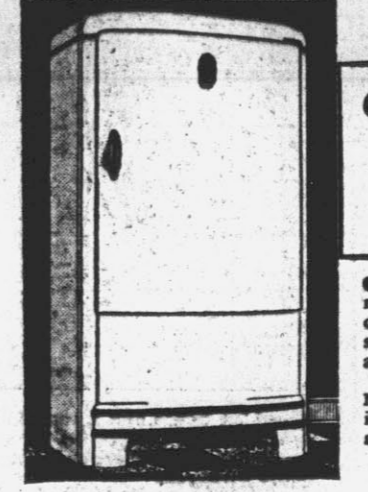

A great number of plant beds of tobacco farmers have suffered considerably from the recent wet weather. Farmers report their young tobacco plants are turning yellow from too much water and the leaching away of fertilizer. At the outset of this bad weather condition, Smith-Douglas Company, Inc., recognized that there would soon be a need for a top-dresser of quick-acting organics and minerals to replace lost plant foods. Production of the new product called Plant Pep has been speeded up and in light of this emergency condition which exists, this new fertilizer is available through almost every B-D Agent in the tobacco sections. The Company reports wide acceptance of this product and is using every means at its disposal to keep deliveries up to the demand.
