REICH FUHRER BACK AT HOME FROM MEMEL

Returns to Berlin Following Triumphant Journey

NO CELEBRATION AT HOME-COMING

Incorporation of Memel and Treaty with Rumania Leave Only Friends To The East

Berlin, March 24.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler returned to Berlin today from his triumphant journey to Memel, his latest acquisition, entering the capital of his expanding realm without the fanfare of previous home-comings.

The special train which brought Hitler from Swinemunde, his Baltic naval base where he had landed a pocket battleship, reached Berlin at 1:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EST).

His Nazi followers saw in developments of the two days since Hitler left for his battleship dash across the Baltic to Memel significant new accretions to the strength of greater Germany.

Incorporation of Memel land into Greater Germany and negotiation of the Rumanian trade treaty have clinched the last links in a band of friendly neighbors along Germany's eastern frontier as a buffer against her potential foe, Soviet Russia.

For the first time since the World War Germans held today that they had only friends on the immediate east, from the Baltic to the Black sea.

Adolf Hitler, Fuehrer of eight million persons in 245,000 square miles of territory, has had Germany's Central European position not only by solidifying the Empire in the last year, but also by diminishing the old German worry about a possible sudden destructive attack from the East.

Convict Continues To Elude Officers

Frank Gaddy, escaped convict and object of an all-day search by the various law enforcement agencies here yesterday, was still free today.

Officers, with the aid of bloodhounds conducted a search for the Negro who was sentenced to from 19 to 20 years for robberies in Pitt county, all day yesterday after he had been reported seen on the Norfolk Southern tracks near Perkins mill.

Gaddy's companion, Charles Carr, meanwhile is being held in city jail, following his recapture yesterday morning. The two escaped from the Union county prison camp Saturday night after rushing a guard and taking his pistol. Officers said Gaddy had the guard's gun now.

Member Of Faculty Gets Distinct Honor

Miss Mary H. Greene, Abbeville, S. C., who has been a member of the English faculty at East Carolina Teachers College for a number of years, has recently been notified of her election to Phi Beta Kappa honor scholarship fraternity, on the basis of her record in scholarship at Agnes Scott college in her student days and her professional achievement since graduation.

Phi Beta Kappa is the oldest of the Greek-letter societies of American colleges, having been founded at William and Mary in 1775 and having continued uninterruptedly through the Revolution and Civil war in the work of encouraging scholastic achievement.

Miss Greene will be a member of the Beta chapter of Georgia, which was approved for Agnes Scott college Decatur, Ga., by the national organization after her graduation.

She will go to Agnes Scott in June for initiation into the society.

Tag Day

Tag Day will be observed in Greenville Saturday and the recently reorganized Girl Scouts will be out to sell a tag to everyone they see.

Miss Virginia Boerger, captain and instructor, declared this was one way to supplement the Girl Scouts' meagre budget and called upon every citizen approached to help the organization.

Boy Scouts have been unusually active in Greenville for years and a move is underway to have a wide-awake Girl Scout organization here, but Captain Boerger explained, "we need your aid to carry on our proposed program."

Dispatch Says Madrid Will Be Surrendered To Gen. Franco Tomorrow

Populace Prepares For Capitulation of City

PLANS ARRANGED FOR CELEBRATION

Madrid Newspapers, Meanwhile, Undertake Campaign For Favorable Atmosphere

Rome, March 24.—(AP)—The newspaper Il Piccolo in a dispatch today from Burgos, Spanish Nationalist capital, said the surrender of Madrid to General Franco was planned for tomorrow.

Hendaye, France, reports meanwhile said the Spanish Nationalists made ready to accept a virtually unconditional surrender by the Madrid government which would end the 32-months-old Civil war and the long siege of the Republican capital.

It was reported that a Madrid radio speaker had said that surrender of Madrid was but "a question of minutes" but this was denied in Madrid by Defense Minister General Casado.

Obvious plans for transfer of Madrid's authority from the hands of the defense council under General Miaja, which seized power March 5, were being made by both Republicans and Nationalists.

In Madrid a newspaper campaign was started to create a favorable atmosphere for the surrender. The press called peace the greatest of victories.

A dispatch from Burgos to the Italian newspaper Il Popolo in Rome said a Republican mission and flown there secretly to negotiate the surrender.

Plans for capitulation of Madrid were reported so complete that arrangements had been made for erection of loudspeakers in the principal plazas to provide music for dancing in the streets.

Workman, which went to the post at the odds of 100 to eight, finished three lengths in front of MacMoffat after running with the leaders.

Small Chicks Lost In Early Morning Blaze

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Edwards, who live about four miles from Greenville on the Washington highway have reason to believe that hard luck was on their path last night.

Mrs. Edwards was aroused about 1 o'clock and saw three Negroes trying to get in the smokehouse. They were frightened away and Mr. and Mrs. Edwards thought everything was all right, but about 5 o'clock their chicken brooder house burned down, destroying a large number of small chicks.

The couple was quoted as saying they believed the would-be meat robbers, set fire to the chicken house.

Taxation, Beautification Go Hand In Hand In State

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, March 24.—Taxation and beautification, seldom associated together, will go hand in hand in North Carolina under a new rule of policy laid down in the pending Machinery Act which will come before the General Assembly for consideration within the next day or so.

For the most part, the 194-page bill is full of pains and penalties, levies and assessments and the means and methods of extracting the same from a more or less recalcitrant and resistant citizenry; but along about page 31 there is let into it a bit of illuminating sweetness and light, as a "policy" is announced as follows:

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of this state so to use its system of real estate taxation as to encourage the conservation of natural resources and the beautification of homes and roadsides, and all tax assessors are hereby instructed to make no increase in the tax valuation of real estate as a result of the owner's enterprise in adopting any one or more of the following progressive policies:

"1. Planting and care of lawns, shade trees, shrubs and flowers for non-commercial purposes.

Workman, which went to the post at the odds of 100 to eight, finished three lengths in front of MacMoffat after running with the leaders.

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Ten ticket holders in the United States won prizes of $150,000 each today in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes when Workman crossed the line first in the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England.

Nine of the winners were from New York City and vicinity and the tenth from Philadelphia.

SIX EXECUTED AT S. C. PRISON

Columbia, S. C., March 24.—(AP)—Six white men who killed a prison guard in an attempt to escape from the state penitentiary 15 months ago, died for the crime today shortly after dawn.

The prisoners were unemotional as they walked to the chair to pay for the slaying of Captain Olin Sanders December 12, 1937.

George Wingard, 19, youngest of the sextet, was the first to die. He sat in the chair at 6:28 a. m., and was pronounced dead three minutes and 22 seconds after the switch was thrown at 6:31 a. m.

All made brief statements, all except Wingard saying that Sanders was not harmed until tear and nausea gas shells were hurled into the captain's office, where the prisoners held him as hostage in hopes of gaining their freedom.

William E. Woods, alias Gentry, 25, of Biloxi, Miss., who testified at the trial that he was the one who stabbed the penitentiary guard, said "I can only say that five men in this case have received an injustice at the hands of the State of South Carolina."

Looking straight ahead at Captain C. A. Sullivan who succeeded Sanders, Wood said calmly, "You should know about the prisoners' testimony. You participated in it yourself."

The other four men, Roy Suttles, 29, of Simpsonville; Herbert Moor-man, 42, of Detroit, Mich.; Clayton Crans, 29, of Rochester, N. Y.; and J. V. Bair, 28, of Sumter, died in that order in the largest mass execution in the state since 1937.

Measure Providing For Armament Plans Fund Approved By Committee

$1,000,000 Added for Experimental Research Work

MONEY PROVIDED FOR NEW PLANS

Nomination of Douglas to Supreme Court Is Unanimously Approved by Sub-Committee

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee approved today a $513,189,782 army supply bill providing some of the money for the administration's armament program.

Add one million dollars for experimental research work, the committee left otherwise unchanged an appropriation of $94,737,281 plus contract authorization of $19,505,988 for the army air corps.

Included in this amount were funds for a construction program that will add 1,590 fighting and training planes to the air corps' present equipment by June 30, 1940.

All told the Senate committee boosted the bill $13,330,938 above the sum voted by the House.

The total appropriation compared with $460,201,254 for the War Department for the last fiscal year.

Other developments: A Senate Judiciary sub-committee unanimously approved the nomination of William O. Douglas to be an associate justice of the Supreme court.

The committee voted to approve the nomination after less than five minutes of discussion.

Secretary Morgenthau, speaking in behalf of "business recovery," proposed to lift from "American productive enterprise" the burdens of tax increases in the old age pension system. He suggested to the House Ways and Means committee that "it might be well to change the payroll tax schedule to keep the levies lower than had been scheduled for the next three years."

Secretary of State Hull said recent developments in Europe "have been of a nature seriously to threaten the peace of the world."

Hull, who returned this morning from Florida where he spent two weeks recuperating from a cold and gripe, said at his press conference "these new evidences of international lawlessness make it all the more clear that never before has the support of all nations for law and order and sound economic relations been more urgently needed than at present."

The House Judiciary committee agreed unanimously that there were no grounds for impeachment in the charges filed against Secretary Perkins in the Harry Bridges case.

Chairman Sumners (D-Tex.) announced after a three-hour committee session "we have agreed unanimously that there are no grounds for impeachment. There will be some minor views, but they will not be on the question of impeachment."

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club, in regular session last night, decided to sponsor a Girl Scout troop in the city.

The club also discussed the possibilities of the entire membership attending a meeting of the Goldsboro club for the purpose of observing the organization there while in session. The local club was only recently organized.

Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, president, presided at the meeting.

Free Ballyhoo Is Sought For Politicians Of N. C.

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, March 24.—When North Carolina politicians speak of "freedom" of speech, they mean they want it to be truly "free" in the sense of "without cost" according to the terms of a bill introduced in the Senate yesterday.

They not only want it gratis and for nothing, but they want to make it as loud as they please without being troubled or hampered by any local Anti-Noise ordinances.

In short, the bill provides that there shall be no restrictions upon the use of loud speakers in North Carolina where these devices are employed in political campaigns and for the benefit of political candidates.

Under it, this freedom of ballyhoo would prevail notwithstanding any and all local laws or ordinances which prohibit the use of loud speakers in cities or towns or which levy license fees therefor.

There is no direct evidence that it was inspired by any particular person, or for the benefit of any particular purpose or cause; but presence in Raleigh of Wilmington's Mayor Thomas E. Cooper at the time the bill was introduced has given rise to more than a modicum of suspicion that he is behind the bill.

Certainly it would not hurt the campaign of sound and fury which the New Hanoverian is said to be planning for next year's gubernatorial primary. According to these reports Tom plans to hire himself not a hall, but a fleet of sound trucks and a quartet or two and go touring of the state after the fashion of Texas Lee O'Daniels who rode right into the Lone Star Governor's chair by means of the Hill Billy Band.

Teachers May Get Twelve Pay Days

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, March 24.—Unless it gets lost somewhere in the shuffle before final enactment, there will be provision in the School Machinery Act whereby it will be possible for school teachers to get their annual salaries paid in twelve, rather than eight, installments.

The stipulation is permissive, not mandatory, and putting it into effect will depend upon securing the "governing board," a superintendent and a majority of the teachers' in any given administrative unit.

The twelve pay day provision of the act follows:

Teachers may be paid in twelve equal monthly installments in such administrative units as shall request the same of the State School Commission on or before October first of each school year. Before such request shall be filed it shall be approved by the governing board, the superintendent, and a majority of the teachers in said administrative unit. The payment of the annual salary in twelve installments shall not increase or decrease said annual salary nor in any other way alter the contract made between the teacher and the said administrative unit, nor shall such payment apply to any teacher who is employed for a period of less than eight months."

The twelve pay days a year problem is one on which there has been considerable disagreement among teachers; themselves with many contending for the innovation while about as many seemed willing to continue on the present "get paid as you work" plan.

In outlining the new provision to the House, Mrs. Johnston, chairman of the Education committee, explained that it is a "compromise" which the committee hoped would be satisfactory to all those concerned.

'DRY' SOLONS STILL AT WORK

Advocates of Arid Areas Refuse To Admit Defeat

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, March 24.—Those legislators who desire to make real Sahara's out of their localities by means of prohibition of beer and wine sales are not yet ready to admit complete defeat in this session of the General Assembly.

They are also laying the foundation for a dry campaign based largely upon refusal of the lawmakers to concede to them the "local option" that has been according counties under the State ABC act.

So far every effort to ban the sale of wine and beer in any county or other local unit has been balked by the finance committee upon the plea that such a ban would cause a loss of revenue to the state.

That issue was fought out to the bitter end, which was defeat of a Dan Tompkins bill for complete aridity in certain areas.

Now the Drys are taking a new tack. They are beginning to plump for local referenda on the question of forbidding the sale of wine and beer.

Yesterday, for example, Avery's Republican Representative Pittman introduced a "bill to be entitled an act to allow the voters for Avery county to express their will as to the sale of beer and wine in Avery county."

Others along the same lines are expected to follow. If the legislature declines to enact them, the dries plan to tell the State in no uncertain terms that the very people who have been howling the loudest for "local option" on the matter of intoxicants, have turned completely around and are refused to grant the same option to others.

It's going to be a potent argument, too, even the most ardent of ABC supporters admit. In fact, minds of ABC supporters there is beginning to stir in the thought that maybe they are helping rather than hurting prohibitionists and state-wide referendum advocates, by refusing to grant exemptions from the sale of beer and wine.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters

Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth. Konrad, a trooper.

Yesterday: Asey finds the trooper guarding the Randall house gagged and bound. A man is inside.

Chapter 17 Tertius Prettyman

THIS time the man started to walk toward the sound before putting his light out. The instant he did that, Asey entered by the door and snapped on the trooper's torch.

"Reach," he said. "Reach, an' stand still."

To make it emphatic, Asey squeezed the trigger of the forty-five, unintentionally presenting a black eye to an unframed Currier and Ives lady cackled on a cross beam of the raft.

The trooper came dashing back. "Take your gun," Asey said. "It's on top of the desk. That's right. Continue to reach, feller, an' turn around."

It was not Mike Slade, or anyone he had ever seen before.

"Know him?" Asey asked the trooper.

"No," the trooper's voice was choked and hoarse, "but you can bet I will before I get through with him, the—"

"Delve in the gent's pockets," Asey said, "an' see if he happens to have any callin' cards with him."

To Asey's surprise and to the trooper's utter amazement, the first object to come from the man's breast pocket was a tooled leather case of calling cards.

"Ah," Asey said interestedly. "A socialite. What's the name?"

The trooper held the card up to the light. "It says—oh, but it's a fake. That can't be right! It says, 'Tertius Prettyman.'"

"Tertius Prettyman. Asey thought back. That was Eloise Randall's boy friend. Old man Prettyman's son, at the point.

"Well, well, how do you do, Mr. Prettyman?" Asey said cordially.

"My name is Mayo an' this gentleman you was so abrupt with—what's your name? Konrad? This is Konrad, Mr. Prettyman. Konrad, take some of Mrs. Randall's mailin' cord an' tie up Mr. Prettyman, will you? There's a nice yard stick over there, an' if you was to put it under Mr. Prettyman's knees, Konrad, an' then lash his wrists an'—ah. You know. That's fine."

While Konrad turned up Mr. Prettyman, Asey tossed on two lamps and drew the curtains.

"Cosier, I always think," he said pleasantly as he strolled around the barn. "Now you know, Mary Randall has some fine stuff here. That's a good piece of early Israel Trask, that pewter. Too good to be kicking around here. And she's got good chests, too. He paused for a moment in front of one and surveyed the sewing basket on it. "You much of a hand for old chests, Mr. Prettyman? I got a corker home. Not a family piece. I found it in the dump, an' brought it home, an' they tell me it's seventeenth century—Prettyman, just exactly what is your basic an' underlyin' motive, anyway?"

"Just exactly what do you mean?" If his cool calm voice was any indication, Asey thought, this fellow was going to prove difficult, more difficult than he had first imagined. It was not the voice of anyone easily moved or easily bluffed. In fact, the fellow was definitely amused.

"What did you come after, Tertius?"

"Really, that's none of your business, don't you agree?"

Weak In A Blurred Way

Asey pulled out the forty-five and twirled it by the trigger guard.

"Wa-el," he drawled, "it depends largely on your point of view," he looked down at Prettyman, "an'—when did you write that policy?"

"Put that thing away," Tertius said. "It might go off again. What did you say? When did I write that policy?"

"You know," Asey said, "you look awfully like a trussed chicken down there on the floor. In fact, you look plain silly. I asked you when, more or less, you wrote that policy for Mrs. Randall?"

Tertius smiled, but plainly the answer was beneath his dignity.

Asey looked at him thoughtfully. Someone had said—probably it was Zeb Chase, that Tertius was around fifty. You had to look twice to believe it, for he was slight and wiry. His hands and eyes gave him away, and so to a certain extent, his face.

Asey studied the face. In general it was weak, weak in a blurred way, as though the mould had been used too many times. But there was nothing pliable about it. Mr. Prettyman, he guessed, was the sort of person who would probably pursue the wrong course, but he would pursue it with vigor to the end.

Old man Prettyman—Asey tried to remember about the family. He knew something about them, if he could only drag the details from his mind. Old Prettyman had made a fortune from some patent medicine. Everyman's Elixir, that was it. And he'd lost the fortune in some scheme like getting gold from seaweed, or silk purses from goldfish, or something. Asey wished he had paid more attention to gossip, and to Billingsgate gossip in particular. Anyway, this Tertius had inherited a lot from his mother, and still more from his father's people. But Zeb Chase had said that he sold insurance, which meant that his inheritances had probably long since disappeared. He looked like the sort whose inheritances would disappear.

"Want him to talk?" Konrad inquired with a certain grimness.

"Don't bother, he'll get to it," Asey said.

"What's about a policy?" Konrad asked. "Whose policy? Wha policy? Where?"

"The policy our pal Tertius was hunting," Asey said. "Only he went hunting like a man, an' Mary Randall's a woman. She didn't bother to put it in her desk, or anywhere else special. She just stuck it in her sewin' basket, over on top of that oak chest there. You see, Konrad, Tertius sold her a nice life insurance policy, only it was a fake."

"It was a splendid policy," Tertius corrected him pleasantly. "A sterling policy. Mayo, you wrong me."

"Then why were you after it?" "Say, I'll make him talk!" Konrad unstrapped his belt and prepared to remove his coat. "I'll show this—"

"Wait. Tertius, tonight you've busted into town property, you've assaulted a cop, stole his gun, an' you've c'mitted armed robbery. You—what's that? You didn't rob anything? Oh, don't be finicky with details. We'll fix that. You see, Tertius, despite your poise an' nonchalance, you're hardly in the driver's seat. Far from it. Now, will you talk? If you don't feel like it now, Konrad an' I can take you to the barracks, an' I'll almost guarantee you'll talk there. Much easier to break down right now. Konrad, bring that policy over to me, will you?"

The Beneficiary

TERTIUS smiled. "Don't bother reading it, Mayo. I'll tell you something that'll make you wonder if you are in the driver's seat as much as you seem to think. The beneficiary is your little friend Jane Warren."

"So," Asey said, "so it is." "Your little friend Jane. Oh, aren't you and Zeb Chase going to be sorry you happened in here tonight? Twenty-five thousand, double it for death by violence. Who's in the driver's seat, Mayo? Fifty thousand dollars does make such a nice motive, doesn't it? Roll it over on your tongue. Jane gets fifty thousand if Mary Randall dies by violence."

Asey smiled back at him, but the smile was somewhat forced.

"Saturday," Tertius went on, almost dreamily. "She gets the policy Saturday, because I bring it over then."

Asey flashed through Asey's mind that the shotgun had first gone into action Saturday night.

"On Monday," Tertius said, "she's killed. Life is a strange uncertain thing at best, isn't it? One never knows, does one? Here, as the saying so cheerily goes, today, if you an' you was going to walk back, but you got curious about the cars parked outside, an' so you looked into the matter. Guessed what was up, an' decided to make sure, so you go to Weston's desk where you know he keeps that ledger. Not findin' any ledger, you smirk like anything an' come here for the policy. Shall I guess why?"

"Could I have a cigarette? It's a bit awkward here, trussed up—don't you think you'd better stop playing games and let me go? Oh, I do. Definitely, my dear Sherlock."

"Why?"

Asey knew exactly what was coming. He had guessed it ten minutes ago, but he wanted more than anything to play for time.

"Well," Tertius said, "I'll tell you. You pretend to be a bumpkin, but old Captain Porter left you comfortably off. I've heard him and father talk about you. You're a Porter director, aren't you? And even if you weren't so richly endowed, your friend Bill Forter, isn't he? Yes. And Master Chase has all those beans. And you and Master Chase are keeping a murder secret, aren't you? Because of Jane Warren. Zeb likes Jane Warren. Need I really go on? It seems such a waste of time."

"How much," Asey inquired, "do you want?"

"Call it—oh, fifty thousand will cover it nicely," Tertius said. "I think fifty thousand will do."

Asey nodded. "An' your plan, of course, I'm puttin' it a awful crude, an' I know it'll hurt you, but you had a nice plan, didn't you? You come to get the policy an' change the name, an' send in a notice dated—yes, I suppose you could of managed it somehow. An' after makin' Eloise the beneficiary—honest, that was a brain wave, Tertius. Eloise wants to be Mrs. Somebody, an' I shouldn't wonder if she hadn't jumped at you like a starvin' dog at a bone. An' then you'd have had fifty thousand to blow. Tertius, that was smart."

For Parties In the Spring

Gay Cracker Tidbits Can Be Served On a Dozen Different Occasions.

To begin the informal dinner—to serve as the main course of a smart little luncheon—to go with a cup of iced tea or tall frosty glasses at five o'clock parties, there is nothing more appropriate than a tray of gay tidbits and tempting appetizers.

With your pantry shelf well stocked with fresh crunchy golden brown crackers and plenty of spreads, there is no limit to the canapés and snacks you can make in a jiffy.

One cracker—known as America's favorite—is baked to a glorious crispness and then specially sprayed so that when used with spreads it stays crisp longer. This, of course, is a boon to the busy hostess for party snacks can be made up in advance without fear of the crackers becoming limp and soggy.

Ritz Appetizer Tray

Mix cream cheese, a little Roquefort cheese and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce. Spread on fresh crunchy crackers. Remove pimiento from stuffed olives, refill with caviar, top with pearl onions. Place on cheese-spread crackers. Chop pimiento and use as garnish.

Mix cream cheese, a little Roquefort cheese, a few drops of Worcestershire and use as a cracker spread. Top with anchovy curl and garnish with bits of pimiento.

Mix cream cheese with a little minced onion. Spread on round crackers. Dot small amount of caviar in the center. Garnish with pimiento.

Mix devilled ham, small amount of mayonnaise, few drops lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Chill for a few minutes. Spread on crisp golden brown crackers. Sprinkle with grated egg yolk. Garnish with strips pimiento.

Mix a sharp cheese spread, small amount of butter, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Spread on crackers. Garnish with stuffed olives.

Sprinkle cleaned shrimp with lemon juice, dip in cocktail sauce and drain. Place on buttered crackers. Garnish with sprig parsley.

Whip cream, mix with anchovy butter and a few drops lemon juice. Heap onto crackers.

Ritz Tea Tray

Cream butter with lemon juice and onion juice. Spread on crunchy crackers and garnish with coarsely chopped watercress.

Blend cream cheese with enough orange juice to moisten. Add grated orange rind. Spread on crackers and garnish each with a dot of orange marmalade.

Mix mayonnaise with small amount of prepared mustard and chopped crisp bacon. Serve on crackers.

Blend grated American cheese with butter. Add a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Spread on round crackers. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) fifteen minutes until cheese is puffed and browned. Serve immediately.

Warren Sponsors Tobacco Pest Bill

Washington — The Agricultural Appropriation Bill on which debate started in the House yesterday contains a provision offered by Representative Lindsay Warren for an increase in appropriation of $25,000 for investigation of the tobacco moth and tobacco weevil.

Thirteen thousand dollars has formerly been appropriated for this purpose, the investigation being carried on in Richmond, Va.

For the first time the tobacco moth appeared in the pack houses on farms last summer and has worked great havoc on tobacco just before it is placed on the auction floor. Members of Congress from North Carolina and Virginia appeared before the Appropriation Committee and strongly urged the increase, which is greatly desired by farmers.

Mirrors For Rush Hours

New York — (AP)—Designer Frank Shepard says he placed long glass mirrors at each end of a new subway car in an effort to attract riders away from the car entrances, ordinarily the points of greatest congestion.

There are 3,075 counties in the nation of which 2,900 are "agricultural counties" employing county agricultural agents.

Stoker Sues Admiral

Portsmouth, Eng.—(AP)— Sentenced to 90 days for allegedly refusing duty, a stoker filed suit for damages against his captain and against Admiral of the Fleet, the Earl of Cork and Orrery who confirmed the sentence, on grounds of illegal arrest.

IF YOU'RE PLANTING FOR PROFIT BEWARE OF THE SPACE-TAKERS

By The AP Feature Service Before you plant vegetables in your backyard this spring, decide whether you're doing it to save money, to build your health, or for fun.

Knowing the reason for your garden will help you plan the kind of vegetable plot you want.

The utility gardener, out to save money, grows things he likes to eat and picks crops with high food value—like beans, peas, tomatoes, turnips, carrots and beets. He probably won't plant cucumbers, muskmelons and watermelons because they take lots of ground. Besides, department of agriculture experts don't rate them high in food value. (But the person who's gardening for fun may want to try them.)

Kohlrabi is a good utility garden crop. So are onions. And you can grow lots of tomatoes per square foot of garden space if you stake them up.

Greens for Health. The person looking out for his health may take up gardening just for the exercise and the fresh air.

These three methods of staking tomatoes are used with success: 1. Four 2x2-inch stakes places around each plant are connected with barrel-hoops or twine; 2. High single stakes, at least six feet high, are used for single plants placed in next to the plants and slanted away from them and are connected by slats space nine inches apart.

Early and late varieties solve the problem in some vegetables, peas for example. You can also plant early, medium, and late varieties in cabbage, tomatoes and other vegetables.

No matter what kind of a garden you plant it will probably be fun and you're a cinch to get exercise.

The old Stielwail house near Concord, N. C., built in 1820 and still standing, once housed the first pipe organ made in America.

What Price this Glory? Less than You Think!

The model illustrated is the Buick Special model #1 four-door touring sedan $996 delivered at Flint, Mich.

YES, it looks like a million—and if you've ever put hand to this brisk beauty's wheel, you know that it handles and travels and behaves the same way!

And it rides like a cloud, serene and buoyant, with the rough road's hard realities gentled by the "full float" action of BuicCoil Springing.

But is this trim Buick the premium-priced package you might expect just from looking at it? Quite the opposite!

This year you can drive a great straight-eight—a Dynaflex straight-eight with gas-saving cyclones in each cylinder—for actually less than some sixes would cost!

This year you can ride in Buick's staunch steadiness—at lower cost than prevailed even a year ago.

This year you have a car that's complete with all the little things—dual windshield wipers, dual sun visors, Flash-Way direction signal, Hand-shift transmission, lighted luggage compartments, locks on both front doors, even Knee-Action that banks the curves for you—and spend less, when all that's counted, than for some cars with lower advertised prices!

So open up your mind, sir! Before you decide this glory's not for you, find out what the model of your choice delivers for—at your door!

Look into what you get for your money—you may be surprised, for instance, at the gas-mileage figures owners report—and figure out where the value lies!

For any new car's going to cost you something. And you'll be money ahead, even if it does cost a trifle more, to get the car and the value of the year.

Your Buick dealer's waiting to show you which car that is!

"Better buy Buick!"

Washington — The President is having word trouble again, and no wonder. Half the troubles of the country arise from mistrust and misunderstandings generated by words and phrases that some people understand one way and others a different way, and some that some people don't understand at all.

Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which handles tax matters, joined the President in urging the press to find a substitute for the word "appeasement" as representing the administration's new policy toward business.

The word appeasement came into general use after Prime Minister Chamberlain explained what had happened at Munich. The democrats had to "appease" the totalitarian nations to keep from having a fight.

"Who's Afraid Of?"
Well, said Harrison, coming from the White House, if anybody wants to get in the President's hair let him continue to use the phrase "appeasement" as representing Mr. Roosevelt's attitude. Maybe it is appeasement but it isn't the kind that comes from being "scared" as England and France at Munich. Or, at least, it won't do any good to carry on the idea that the President is so scared that he is going to give business everything it wants. That is what Harrison intimated.

The President promised to go to his thesaurus to find a better word and told the press to "go thou and do likewise." Anyway, he said, the press invented the word, not the President.

Well, there are others having word trouble. Jerome Frank, Securities and Exchange commissioner, said that certain words stirred up bad associations and prevented clear thinking. So he invented a trio of new ones and said others could be designed.

He was discussing monopoly. Monopoly, he said, sounds like a crime, but certain monopolistic systems are socially desirable, notably telephone and water systems. To such monopolies he applied the name Ugwug.

In turn, he said regulation of industry seemed to mean excessive governmental intervention or regimentation. Yet some regulation is highly desirable. He calls it Agwag.

FAIR PLANNED FOR ENGINEERS

Miracles of Modern Science Be Shown At NCS

Raleigh, March 24.—Miracles of modern science will be displayed in dazzling profusion at State College April 14 when the annual Engineers' Fair, an event that attracts thousands of visitors to the campus.

President Arthur G. Raymond of Moorehead, N. J., announced today the fair, which will extend through every engineering building on the campus, will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Unique exhibits and demonstrations will show what the young engineers are learning, and some will point the way to future marvels of science. Several thousand people braved a torrential rain last year to visit the fair.

Service with Raymond as officers of the Engineers Council are Walter R. Jones of Haw River, vice-president, and John P. Sawyer, Jr., of Elizabeth City, secretary.

Each department in the School of Engineering is represented by two students on the county, which is the governing body for student engineers.

Exhibits will be entered by all the departments, and keen competition for the awards given to outstanding displays already has arisen among the various groups.

The fair will continue until midnight, with engineering students all ways on hand to explain the workings of the exhibits and to be of any other help to visitors. The route of the fair will be conveniently marked so visitors can see the entire show without confusion.

The Engineers' Brawl, one of the most colorful dances on the college calendar, will be held Saturday evening, April 15, with Isham Jones and his orchestra providing the music.

Man About Manhattan

New York—People who are close observers will note, when turning from 50th street into Rockefeller Plaza, a brass plate in the sidewalk and a similar one in the center of the street which says: "Property line of the Trustees of Columbia University. Crossing is by permission only, which permission is revocable at will."

It seems strange to think that personal property can and does extend through the thoroughfares of New York. Rockefeller Plaza is a street connecting 50th and 51st streets.

Those 50-foot elms being transplanted to Fifth avenue aren't very "stately". The Rockefellerers are having a row of them planted on the avenue-breasting the Center, and the project is well under way.

People here gape for hours at steam-shovels or any mechanized excavator—gadgets the outlander sic. Art Raymond will reign over the Brawl at St. Patrick with the young lady of his choice being Princess Pat.

Outstanding engineering seniors will be knighted into the Order of Saint Patrick, named after the Irish saint who "invented the first worm drive" and thus became the patron saint of the engineering profession.

Summer Welles (left), acting secretary of State, is shown in his office at Washington as he made public to newspapermen the contents of the United States note to Germany on the Czech-Slovakian situation. Reports Monthly Loan For Homes

The home loans made by building, savings and loan associations in North Carolina during February of this year were practically the same amount as those of January 1938, but represented an increase of more than $300,000 over February of last year.

A total of 1,003 loans were made to the amount of $1,623,000, according to Wheeler Martin of Williamston, vice president of the North Carolina Building and Loan League.

SCHEDULE SET FOR TEACHERS

Pirates To Play 24 Baseball Games During Season

Those East Carolina Teachers College Pirates, slated to whittle 24 games from a baseball schedule during April and May, are practicing daily to prepare themselves for the grind.

Coach Gordon Gilbert said that three right-handers, Kelly Martin of Conway, Ed Wells of Greenville and Willie Phillips of Macclesfield, and two left-handers, David Bruce of Greenville and Frank Roebuck of Stokes, probably would compose the hurling staff. These players saw action last season. In addition to his hurling assignments, Breece, who played with Raleigh High three years before coming to Greenville, is being eyed for first-base duties.

Regulars returning to infield catching this season, are Roy Ayers of Greenville and Floyd Hinton, first base. Lester Riderhour, second base; Bill Shelton, short stop and Earl Smith third base. Newcomers seeking infield jobs are Norman Mays, Plymouth, Eugene Carson, Bethel and Charles Brinn, Plymouth.

Joe Hatem of Greenville will occupy the left field zone. Hatem is the only veteran outfielder and is powerful with the stick. Candidates trying for other positions in the outfield are Walter Moritz, Long Island, N. Y.; Bill Dudaab, Messemia, N. Y.; Jack Nee, Bath; Charles Pittrell, Greenville; Harry Riddick, Gatesville, and Ben Harris, Greenville.

Mickey Northcutt, another left-over, will have most, if not all, the catching this season. Few Ayers of Rocky Mount will not return to the catching fold this season because of injuries received in an automobile accident some time ago.

Bill Holland, Pirate hurling ace last season will be missed by the locals this season. Bill has been training with the Washington Senators at Orlando, Fla. He was lost through graduation.

Coastal Plain Officers Hold Meet In Greenville

All Eight Coastal Plain League Teams Represented

By BERT MOYE
 A dinner meeting of the directors of the Coastal Plain baseball league was held in the private dining room of the Proctor Hotel here last night, with all eight clubs of the league being represented.

The meeting was called to order by Dave Moore, secretary and treasurer of the Greenville club, who after a few brief remarks welcoming the various club officials, turned the meeting over to President J. B. Eure.

President Eure then called upon League Statistician Aubrey Shackelford of Tarboro, for a report on the scorers' meeting which was held at Goldsboro recently. The statistician gave a detailed report of the meeting and told those present that the scorers were indeed fortunate in having L. D. Adington of Judge Brannam's office present. Upon a motion made by the statistician, the league unanimously adopted a resolution to the effect that all scorers would be under the jurisdiction of the president of the league and the league statisticians. Therefore the scorers in each club were hired and paid by each club, but under the new resolution adopted last night the scorers will be under the jurisdiction of the league president and statisticians and each scorer will be paid through the office of President Eure with all scorers to receive an equal pay for all home games of the various clubs.

Another change in rules brought about for the ensuing year was that the league president was given the power to pass on the status of the classification of ball players in the league, whereas heretofore the status had been left to the board of directors.

The problem of the correct classification of various players, including rookies, classified and unclassified, was discussed pro and con. Following the discussion a motion was made and adopted that definitely decided these various classifications which were to the entire satisfaction of all those present.

President Eure then called attention to a letter received from Judge Brannam's office to the effect that he had no data on players prior to 1933. When it came to classifying a player who had no record available prior to 1933, then the fireworks broke loose. This question was discussed in various ways by those present, but when the meeting adjourned, the question had not been settled and the matter was left as unfinished business.

THAT STRANGE MAN, VAN MUNGO, MAY RESPOND TO $$ DIPLOMACY

By DHLON GRAHAM
 (AP Feature Sports Writer)
 Clearwater, Fla.—Mr. Van Lingle Mungo is a very strange man. He is a man of moods. On occasions, too frequent occasions, he is a very sullen gent. Mungo is a temperamental as an opera singer.

When the spirit moves him he is a very hostile guy. He has been known to break up hotel furniture and swing at teammates, or whom-ever might be handy. At times, he is not such fine company for little Willie, aged 9.

VAN LINGLE MUNGO $15,000 for Four Wins

But Mr. Mungo, the squire of Pageland, South Carolina, has one thing in common with many of us. Like Joe Doaks, of Hot Coffee, Ark., or his cousin, Bill, of Roche, Calif., Mungo likes to reach around to his hip pocket and feel a walter bulging with greenbacks.

That desire to collect bank notes may make a pitcher out of Mr. Mungo. At least, that is the fond wish of Larry S. for Stags MacPhail, the freckled-faced major domo of the Brooklyn ball club.

A Major Operation.
 Mr. MacPhail has been around long enough to know that country boys adore spending money they can flash at the general cross-roads store. So what does he do but amputate two-thirds of Mungo's salary check at one swipe. Not wanting to be too technical about it, I nevertheless would venture the opinion that the cutting of an annual wage from $15,000 to $5,000 at least on par with an appendectomy.

Mungo has been a Brooklyn pitcher since 1932. You've probably heard it said that he slings the fastest ball in the National League. And that he's got plenty of stuff. And that maybe he should be the best pitcher in the loop.

But he's never won 20 games and that's the test for a crack hurler. In fact, for the last three years he's lost more games than he's won. Last season Mr. Mungo won the astonishing total of four games. Fifteen grand is a lot of dough to pay for four victories.

Other methods to make Mungo the pitcher he apparently can be having failed, Mr. MacPhail decided to pitch to his weakness. So he whittled his pay check down to a mere pittance. And the only way Mungo can get back in the big money circle is by going out and chucking up some 20 victories.

"Everything I've Got"
 "I'm going to show them some real pitching this year," Mungo

WINTERVILLE HIGHS WIN OVER KINSTON

Winterville High Wins First Baseball Contest

Winterville, March 23—Winterville defeated Kinston High here today 11-4 in their first home game. Hitting honors for Winterville were divided among Corey, Jackson and Kittrell, who got 2 for 4 each. Stallings and Chaplin with 2 for 4 each paced Kinston's attack.

Batteries: Winterville, Hobgood, and Kittrell; Kinston, Faulkner, Hall and Nesbit.

"I'm going to give 'em everything I've got, and that's plenty," Mungo reported to the Dodgers' camp in crack shape. He's about 10 pounds lighter than a year ago. He says his arm feels strong again. Last year he complained too much about it that the Dodgers packed him off to Pageland before the season was finished.

Chances are the Brooklyn pitching will be better all around. MacPhail roped in some minor-league beauties, such as Whitlow Wyatt, who won 23 games and lost 7 for Milwaukee; Bill Crouch and Russ Evans, who won 21 games in the Southern Association; Jim Winford, who copped 17 for Houston and Hugh Casey, who won 13 for Memphis. Ira Hutchinson, who came from the Bees, should be a help, and Luke Sewell, the veteran catcher obtained from the Chicago White Sox, should be a great aid to the young tossers.
