HOUSE REFUSES AGREE CHANGE MARKERS BILL

Declines To Let Officials At Polls Act As Markers

TO RECONSIDER PHYSICAL TEST

Biennial Revenue Machinery Act Ratified Into Law Without Word of Discussion

Raleigh, March 29.—(AP)—The House refused today to accept a Senate proposal that election officials be permitted to act as markers in primaries and elections.

There was no discussion of the motion, by Rep. Cherry of Gaston, that the House refuse to concur in the Folger amendment written in the bill to prohibit professional markers.

The bill is regarded as a keystone in the election reform program of the State Elections Board and will now go to a conference committee.

Without a word of discussion the Senate ordered the biennial revenue machinery act ratified into law. The House took up its unfavorable calendar and sent to the Welfare committee the Senate bill to require physical examinations before persons may secure marriage licenses.

Rep. Bryant of Durham, who asked the re-refernce, told the House that the marriage bill was regarded as vital to the state's anti-syphilis campaign. "Now 164,000 persons are being treated for syphilis in North Carolina," said Bryant, "and every child has a right to be born with a healthy body and free of this disease."

Hope Revived For Pitt Road Claims

Reports on the progress of a bill to reimburse counties for roads taken over by the state brought renewed hopes here today that Pitt might get at least part of its claims of $1,300,000.

The measure authorizing the governor to appoint a special master to study the claims was reported to have been unanimously approved by the Appropriations committee after it had been re-referred to that committee because it carried an appropriation of $2,000 to pay expenses for the investigation.

The hope of Pitt county officials, as well as officials of other counties having legitimate claims, that the bill will pass the House and also the Senate.

Commission Seeks Additional Check

The Water and Light commission is making application for an additional 10 per cent of the PWA grant for the $376,000 improvement and extension project of the local utility.

The sponsor's fund already is in the bank, prerequisite to securing the 10 per cent in addition to the 25 per cent already released by the federal agency.

The PWA 25 per cent check, amounting to $54,000 was received here last week. The commission now has all its money available and is asking for an additional payment of 10 per cent which would amount to approximately $35,000.

Escaped Convict Is Caught In Alabama

Word was received here today that Sam Shadis, 29, who escaped from Pitt prison camp last November had been taken into custody in Birmingham, Ala. State prison officials will bring tonight for the Alabama city to leave the escapee back to this State.

Franco Soldiers Welcomed In All Cities Occupied

Forced in Crime

City Attorney Joe Balch (above) of Chanute, Kas., was sitting in his office when he walked John Thornburg, an old school chum, with a dynamite bomb strapped to his stomach. Under threat of death by explosion, Balch said he was forced to go along and hold a sawed-off shot gun while Thornburg robbed the First National Bank of $4,860 and escaped in a stolen taxicab.

SEEK CUT TAX SLOT MACHINE

New Effort Made To Make Operation Easier in State

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, March 29.—Members of the Wake county House delegation have introduced a bill to reduce the $1,000 tax imposed on slot machine operators by the 1939 revenue bill to $100.

The bill, if passed, would be quite a help to those interests wishing to flood the state with the machines which were supposedly completely banished by the Flanagan act of 1937, but which in this Assembly have come to life again under protection of an asserted necessity for revenue to balance the budget.

Representatives of the Fayetteville concern which manufactures and distributes the slots have been busy for the full two years in making contacts with members of this Assembly in efforts to convince them that the machines should be licensed.

It is perhaps the first case on record of an industry (or should it be called that?) not failing to object to taxation but pleading to be taxed.

In every debate on the subject in the present session it was conceded, albeit grudgingly that action of the legislature does substantially weaken the Flanagan act, despite provisions which set out that gambling devices "per se" are not legalized by the Revenue provisions.

Measure Calls For Two "Advisory" Commissions

Raleigh, March 29.—The General Assembly has received in the last couple of days two bills authorizing the Governor to appoint "advisory" Commissions which shall report to the General Assembly.

One, introduced by Gaston's Senator Separk authorizes the Governor to name a commission to study a Fair Labor Standards Act for North Carolina and report back to the 1941 General Assembly. The other was introduced in the House by Jim Vogler of Mecklenburg who would set up a Commission on Unjust Imprisonment and define its duties.

Hungry Inhabitants of Madrid and Other Cities Greet Nationalists Bloodless Conquest, Bringing Peace and Food; Church Bells Signal Entry of Conquerors

Madrid, March 29.—(AP)—Church bells rang joyfully today to signal Nationalist General Franco's bloodless conquest in coastal and inland cities and towns where Republican Spain made its last hopeless stand.

Madrid's hungry inhabitants after months of near starvation rejoiced in the peace and food brought them yesterday with the entry of Franco's troops into the metropolis.

The will to fight that sustained Republicans during the months of civil strife ended with Madrid's submission. Nationalist soldiers moved to complete the occupation of the rest of enemy soil. Nationalists formally took over Valencia this morning without meeting resistance.

Travelers arriving from Valencia said that everywhere village church bells were ringing to celebrate the arrival of the troops.

Except for the clean-up the war was over. Thousands of Spaniards, Moors and Italians under the red and gold banners of Franco were garrisoned in Madrid.

Until yesterday the metropolis was the principal citadel and symbol of Republican resistance.

General Maja, head of the surrendered National Defense Council, the best organ of Spanish Republicanism, had fled to Valencia ahead of the Nationalists' march into Madrid.

Burgos, March 29.—(AP)—A radio message to Nationalist headquarters today said Nationalist sympathizers had risen in Alicante as well as Valencia to take control of those last important Republican seaports for General Franco.

Nationalist said an army corps of north central Spain had occupied Guadalajara, capital of the province of the same name.

New Assault Case In Movie Capital

Hollywood, March 29.—(AP)—Delia Bogard, a 17-year-old motion picture juvenile, was slugged and critically injured today by an attacker she told police stepped from behind a building as she walked near her home.

Radio Policemen E. M. Rinehart and W. R. Harley said they feared she was a victim of the same assailant who brutally wounded Anya Sosoyeva, blonde Russian dancer on the Los Angeles City College campus February 25.

The girl had recently played in several short subjects and was at work in Jackie Cooper's new picture, the Los Angeles Times said.

Incoherent and only partial conscious, Miss Bogard told the officers she was on her way home from a movie when the attack took place. They found her lying on a lawn after answering a call that a woman was screaming.

Beside her was a piece of timber which the police described as similar to that used by Miss Sosoyeva's attacker.

BRITAIN PLANS FOR EXPANSION OF FIELD ARMY

Strength of Territorial Force to Be 340,000 Men

STUDY QUESTION OF CONQUEST

Chamberlain, However, Declines Compulsory Service Promised in Talk with French Envoy

London, March 29.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in Commons today that the strength of the British territorial field army would be doubled, giving it a total of 340,000 men.

The announcement of Chamberlain came shortly after a cabinet meeting which considered conscription and other measures to fit Britain to take the lead in efforts to unite several nations against Nazi German expansion.

Previously, Chamberlain had told the House that compulsory national service in Britain had been discussed with French leaders during President Lebrun's state visit.

When pressed further on this point, the Prime Minister refused to deny reports that he had promised French Foreign Minister Bonnet to introduce compulsory service in Britain.

Referring to the French conversations, Chamberlain said "I can not divulge what took place at a private conversation."

Diplomatic circles said the Prime Minister in those conversations had indicated he personally favored some form of conscription, but had to consider serious domestic obstacles, such as the attitude of trade unions.

Chamberlain was asked for assurance that the government would "maintain the closest contact and cooperation with the government of the Soviet Union."

Chamberlain replied that London was "in touch" with Moscow.

CITES SAVINGS ON SIDEWALKS

Citizens Can Erect Walks for Two-Thirds Cost

Mayor M. K. Blount issued a formal statement in which he called attention to the fact that local citizens may secure sidewalks now at about a saving of one-third the cost.

The saving is made possible by a WPA project.

Mayor Blount urged the citizens to take advantage of this opportunity to erect needed sidewalks adjoining their property.

His statement in full follows: "Under a present WPA project, the town is in position to provide sidewalks for property owners at an approximate saving of about one-third. All property owners who desire sidewalks and are in a position to pay cash for the completion thereof, will please notify the Clerk to this effect. Of course this is not necessary where the property owner has already signed an agreement and request for this work."

It is not the desire of the town to work any hardship on anyone in this respect. The sidewalks are necessary to provide safety and a place for pedestrians to walk rather than in the streets. It is hoped that all property owners will co-operate to this end.

GIRL IS SAFE AFTER 90 MILE BOAT TRIP

Memphis, Tenn. March 29.—(AP)—Police Inspector Clegg Richards said he received word today from the sheriff of Helena, Ark., that Miss Hope Brewster, missing since Monday and believed to be paddling down the Mississippi in a $2 skiff had been found safe.

At Helena, the clerk at the hotel said Miss Brewster registered there yesterday after arriving about nine a. m. The beautiful brunette, a 24-year old violin teacher, ate breakfast shortly after reaching Helena.

CORRIDOR LOOMS AS NEXT BONE OF CONTENTION

While the world waited to see what Adolf Hitler will do next, DNB, the German news agency, reported anti-German "insidents" in the Polish Corridor (the narrow neck of land carved out of old Germany under the Versailles treaty to give Poland an outlet to the sea). The DNB reports led some observers to believe Hitler's next expansion activities might be aimed at the Corridor which is indicated by the criss-cross lines on this map. Gdynia is a Polish port. The black area on the map denotes the free city and territory of Danzig, which is dominated by the Nazis.

CITY ABSENTEE VOTING BANN'D

New Law To Apply Elections This Year

Raleigh, March 29.—(AP)—Attorney General Harry McMullan ruled today that absentee voting can not be permitted in municipal elections this year.

McMullan ruled that the new law ratified by the legislature last week prohibits use of absentee votes in anything except general elections also applied to municipal voting.

"A municipal election" McMullan ruled "is not a general election in the sense as—as used in this act."

Dozens of North Carolina counties hold their primaries and elections during April and May. Most of them are conducted under provisions in the municipal charters or in special municipal election laws and are not generally general by the state-wide election laws.

The new absentee act, McMullan said, "repeals all existing laws relating to voting by absentee ballot in conflict with it. This strikes out provisions in the charters or elsewhere for municipal absentee voting."

Crowds Attending Revival Services

An audience that filled the Memorial Baptist Church last night heard Dr. Forrest C. Feezor, pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church, Raleigh, deliver a message on "The Conflict of the Ages."

The revival being conducted at the local church, with services at 8 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., daily, is progressing and much interest is being shown in the meetings by church members and others.

Dr. Feezor declared that the conflict of the ages was the strife between God and the devil, with every individual a subject of one or the other. "But," declared Dr. Feezor, "God is determined to win in the end," as he urged his listeners to follow in the path of the Almighty.

A solo by Mrs. Lucian Pinnix added much to the effectiveness of the service. Rev. Mr. Pinnix, pastor of the Jacksonville, N. C., Baptist Church, is conducting the music for the services, which will continue through Sunday.

Sentimental Songs.

Jefferson City, Mo.—(AP)—In choosing state songs, the sentiment is more important than the music, the Missouri house of the legislature has decided, Rep. Oliver Schick of St. Louis criticized a proposed "official state song" as "melodically and harmonically" unsuited for the honor but the house approved it anyway.

Bill Authorizes Vote On ABC Stores In Any City

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, March 29.—Quietly and without clash of cymbals or beating of tom toms, Senator John Umstead and A. B. Palmer have introduced into the Senate a bill which would permit any municipality of more than 2,500 persons to hold an election on the question of setting up liquor stores under the ABC act.

It's title simply says that it is "To amend Chapter 49 of the Public Laws of 1937 relating to the Manufacture, Sale and Control of Alcoholic Beverages in 'This State.'" Under its terms any municipality of the required population would be authorized to hold its own ABC election on resolution of its governing body or petition of 15 per cent of the voters.

Approve Answer

Paris, March 29.—(AP)—The French cabinet approved today France's answer to Italian colonial demands which Premier Daladier will broadcast to the world tonight.

Extraordinary precautions were taken to prevent any leak of the contents of the Premier's speech before it is delivered at 7:45 p. m. (2:45 p. m. EST). Aside from cabinet members and confidential experts, the only person believed to have seen the copy was the British ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps.

Sources close to the government said that the more than two hour cabinet meeting was devoted almost entirely to the speech and its possible effect on the international situation.

NEW TRIAL FOR CARTERET MAN

State Supreme Court Hands Down Only Six Opinions

Raleigh, March 29.—(AP)—A new trial was granted by the State Supreme court today to J.W. Watson, Sr., convicted in Carolet county of manslaughter in connection with the death of his son, J. W. Watson, Jr., and sentenced to 18 months to two years in prison.

In one of six opinions, the tribunal held as a "prejudicial error" the solicitor's comment to the jury that Watson had not called his wife as a witness in his behalf.

The defense objected to this argument and Trial Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill overruled the objection. "We are of the opinion that this objection is well taken," the court said in an opinion by Associate Justice Wallace Winborne.

In another case the tribunal ruled that Warren county could collect 1937 taxes on property held and used by the town of Warrenton as a hotel.

GERMAN PAPER WARNS POLAND

Tells Her to Turn Deaf Ear to "Foreign Sirens"

Warsaw, Poland, March 29.—(AP)—An authoritative German admonition "that Poland turn a deaf ear to 'foreign sirens'" was regarded in some Polish quarters today as a signal of an approaching change in relations with Germany.

Warsaw morning papers published the full text of the admonitory article, carried yesterday in the newspaper which is the mouthpiece of the government.

Many poles regarded the article as a hint of German intentions regarding the Polish corridor and Danzig Free City, former German territory which now constitutes Poland's outlet on the Baltic.

In Berlin it was believed that by "foreign sirens" the newspaper meant Britain and France in their overtures to Poland to join an "anti-aggressor" bloc of nations to deal with German expansion. Unwaveringly over Germany's intentions, despite formal assurances, and the fear that Germany might turn next to Polish spheres of influence have brought about a drive for "psychological mobilization" in Poland.

Poles were uneasily aware at the same time of internal difficulties revolving about demands for cabinet resignation to put up an all-party front in mapping Poland's future course.

Thomas Roundtree, Negro, about 19 years old, who allegedly hit J. Thomas Bland of East Ninth Street on the head with a thrown rock last Thursday night shortly after the two had "brushed" into each other and an ensuing argument, is being held in the city jail, having been arrested yesterday afternoon.

The Negro is charged with secret assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Officers said they had seen the Negro on previous occasions, but that each time he ran and escaped before they could catch him.

According to the officers, the Negro went to a filling station at the corner of Reade and Fifth streets, and when Bland passed by he jumped from behind a car and threw the rock at him. Bland was taken to the hospital for treatment of a gash on his head.

Kiwanians Attend Inter-City Meeting

Twelve members of the Greenville Kiwanis Club attended an inter-city meeting held in Jacksonville last night and participated in by Greenville, Jacksonville, Wilmington and New Bern.

William J. Bundy, lieutenant-governor for this district, made one of the principal talks, and E. B. Sugg, local club past president, responded in behalf of the visiting clubs to the address of welcome.

The meeting was called to order by Morris Margolis, president of the host club, but the meeting was turned over to the Wilmington club, which presented the program.

One feature of interest to Greenville members was the induction into membership in the New Bern club of Dr. R. S. McGeachy, former Pitt county health officer, more recently of Weldon, but now of New Bern.

FIFTY MILLION IS LOPPED OFF WPA REQUEST

House Committee Disregards Estimate of Needs

FUND IS REDUCED TO $100,000,000

Economy Leaders Expect Help On Floors From Disappointed Farm State Congressmen

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—The House Appropriations committee disregarded President Roosevelt's estimate of relief needs today, voting $100,000,000 to run WPA until July 1.

The President had asked $150,000,000.

Referring to the chief executive's request, the committee said in a report criticizing some WPA operations that "it feels that its proposal is on the side of liberality."

Committee members said the vote for the $100,000,000 bill was 25 to 13. Shortly after the Appropriations committee action, Chairman Sabath (D.-Ill.) of the Rules committee, said at the White House that he had asked the President how he could get along with the reduced appropriations. The President replied, Sabath asserted, that his aides had reported that $150,000,000 was needed, but that if the smaller sum were finally approved the WPA would have to stretch it out and do the best it could.

The $100,000,000, the committee said, would make the total available for WPA in the present fiscal year $2,163,888,406, compared with $1,427,701,994 in the preceding year.

Congressional economy leaders counted on support of disappointed farm belt members in their efforts to hold down the WPA appropriation to some figure less than $150,000,000 when the measure reaches the floors of the House and Senate.

Other developments: President Roosevelt made a final check-up on foreign and congressional matters before leaving this afternoon for a 10-day stay at Warm Springs, Ga., by conferring with Secretary Hull, Postmaster General Farley, Senator Barkley (D.-Ky.), Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) and Representative Doughton (D.-N.C.).

Secretary Perkins informed the House Appropriations committee that the CIO-AFL controversy handicapped virtually every function of the Labor department.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee ordered hearings beginning next Wednesday on a half-dozen proposals for changes in the neutrality act.

The House completed congressional action on the executive reorganization bill and sent it to the White House for the President's signature.

Albert Einstein. Exhibitions from fifty-eight foreign countries, thirty-three states, fourteen hundred exhibits, ten thousand trees, and millions of flowers, two hundred buildings—the expenditure of a hundred and seventy million dollars make this fair a superb exposition. For miles around and from every point of the attention of the visitor is arrested by the towering Theme Center, the Trylon and Perisphere; the Trylon pierces the sky seven hundred feet above the earth, like some giant three-sided obelisk, and adjoins a huge hollow globe, two hundred feet in diameter—the Perisphere, which is, so far as is known, the largest globe ever built by man.

The entire fair has been divided into zones, radiating from and dominated by the Theme Center of the fair; this enables the visitor to escape much of the mental confusion and physical exhaustion which have previously hindered his attempts to see and understand a great exhibition. These zones and focal exhibits are: Amusement, Communications and Business Systems, Community Interests, Food, Government, Medical and Public Health, Production and Distribution, Science and Education, and Transportation. Each of the main avenues radiating from the Theme Center has been assigned a primary color, and buildings, murals and plants are all in harmony.

Miss Spangler described a great many individual exhibits, among them one by Henry Ford, and the "Children's World," also North Carolina's exhibit in the state area. Miss Elizabeth Smith was hostess to the club in the "Y" hut. At the conclusion of the program she served delicious refreshments to the club members and three guests, Mrs. Thomas Rivers, Mrs. James R. Gulledge and Mrs. Fullilove of Winder, Georgia.

Committees for the coming year were appointed, and Miss Helen Spangler was appointed to represent the Clio Club on a joint committee of club women who are sponsoring the Fine Arts Festival.

Speaks at College Assembly. Dr. Forest C. Feozor, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church in Raleigh, who is holding services at the Memorial Baptist Church this week, spoke at assembly at the college yesterday on Life as a Voyage.

Dr. Feozor said that life is often pictured under various symbols, sometimes as a race, sometimes as a voyage, a pilgrimage, or a warfare. He chose to consider life as a voyage, and the students as ships carrying cargoes. The ancient peoples, he said, would throw cargo overboard if it impeded their voyage. Coming to port was the most vital thing. Man is making a voyage from the port of Birth to the port of Eternal Destiny.

"Have you cargo that is impeding or making perilous your voyage?" asked Dr. Feozor. "Perhaps there are things which you have that should be thrown overboard. If there is pretense in your life, jettison it out. If you have hurtful habits, such as over-critical attitudes, for example, towards your professors or your meals, or if you have the injurious habit of drinking alcoholic beverages, you should throw such habits overboard."

But there are certain things one should keep. "Keep a sense of humor if you have it, and hold fast to your prayer life and your faith in God."

"If you do these things," concluded the speaker, "you can feel as did the poet who wrote 'Crossing the Bar,' that it will be your privilege to see the Pilot face to face when you have crossed the bar."

Dr. Feozor was introduced by Dr. J. D. Simons of the Memorial Baptist Church. Also he introduced to the college students the Rev. Lucia Pinnix, pastor of the Baptist Church in Jacksonville, who is directing the music at the Memorial Baptist Church this week.

Birth Announcement. Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Combs, Jr., announce the birth of a daughter, Ruth Marie, on Friday, March 24, at Rex Hospital, Raleigh. Mrs. Combs was formerly Miss Ruth Waddill of Hendersonville.

To Lecture at College. Dr. Sherwood Eddy, author, lecturer and world traveler, who will speak Thursday night at 7:30, in the Austin Auditorium to people from both town and college, is the author of twenty books on social, economic and religious problems.

Each year he visits Europe to study conditions, and has made personal contacts with such men as Gandhi and Chiang Kai-Shek as well as official leaders in the leading European countries.

Lecturing and speaking almost constantly before many types of audiences, he has addressed hundreds of college and university audiences, and a similar number of Kiwanis and Rotary clubs and civic groups of all kinds.

He comes to Greenville and East Carolina Teachers College under the auspices of the college Y.W.C.A.

In Memoriam. A tribute of love to the memory of my dear brother, Walter Harris, who departed this life suddenly one year ago today, March 2, 1938. We never thought when you left home That you never would return. That you soon in death would sleep. And leave us here to mourn. We do not know the pain you bore. We did not see you die. We only know you went away. And did not say good-bye. Our hearts still ache with sadness. Our eyes shed many a tear. God only knows how we miss you. At the end of one sad year. —Written by his sister, Mary Harris. Greenville, Route 3.

Inter Se Book Club. At the meeting of the Inter Se Book Club held at the home of Miss Louisa Hooker on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. E. H. Stancill presented the program. Her subject was "Cabinet Makers Up to 4900." Afterwards the officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Mrs. Stancill confined her subject to colonial furniture which can be seen in the fine collection on display in the American wing of the Metropolitan Museum in New York City. It is interesting to note that this furniture was not produced in colonial times, but because of them. Hard work and simple living influenced the style of furniture. More elegant pieces were made when men had time to rest and be at leisure.

Our most outstanding cabinet maker who created his own style was Duncan Phyfe. He brought into vogue the use of the dog-paw legs, the acanthus leaf motif, and the use of the lyre for chair and sofa backs. In his small workshop in New York City, he produced the lovely pieces so highly prized today.

At the conclusion of the program the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Wyatt Brown; vice-president, Mrs. Jack R. Edwards; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Joe H. Taft; librarian, Mrs. Tyson Bilbro; custodian, Mrs. Marvin K. Blount. They will assume office the first meeting in May.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Troy Burnette, served delicious refreshments. She invited the members to take a walk through the garden, which looked so beautiful with its vari-colored flowers and shrubs. —Reported.

Mrs. Moore Hostess to Club. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore was hostess yesterday at one o'clock at luncheon to members of the Woman's Club at the clubhouse.

The members were greeted by Mrs. Moore and invited into the spacious club room, made unusually beautiful with its charming arrangements of early spring flowers. Covers were laid for over one hundred guests and a delicious two-course luncheon was promptly served.

Following luncheon, a brief business session was held, over which Mrs. Moore, the president, presided. In a few well-chosen remarks, Mrs. Moore welcomed her guests collectively and expressed her thanks for the splendid club work which was carried on so ably during her recent absence in Florida.

Mrs. W. I. Wooten, treasurer, gave a very fine report which members considered most gratifying. Though Mrs. B. F. Bullard, chairman of the house committee, was not present to give her report, it had been noted previously that the clubhouse recently has been done over inside and that it, as well as the members, was wearing a new spring outfit which was most becoming to it.

In the absence of Miss Frances Wahl, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Moore read a letter from the American Humane Association in which it was asked that the Woman's Club of Greenville go on record as deploring the mistreatment and killing of animals during the making of moving pictures, as actually happened during the filming of the Jesse James picture. A resolution to this effect was read and heartily endorsed. A letter from the state chairman of Art was also read, in which the local club was given high

CYCLONE AT BETHEL Church Demolished and Much Other Damage Done

Tuesday night the town of Bethel was visited by a terrific cyclone that played havoc with buildings in its wake. The Baptist church building was leveled flat to the ground and completely demolished. The roof of Blount Bros. store and also J. C. Taylor & Co.'s store was blown off, a house occupied by a colored man was torn all to pieces, and Blount's livery stables blown down. The colored Baptist church and colored Odd Fellows hall were also devastated, and many other buildings more or less damaged. It was a fearful storm and filled the people of the town with terror, but no persons were injured, though one house was blown down over a colored woman and children.

Further announcements regarding the Fine Arts Festival to be held this year the entire week following Easter, were made, and the entire program outlined.

Dr. Dorothy Snyder, of the college faculty, who is in charge of many of the artistic features of this year's festival, said in a short talk about her plans, that she thought Easter Sunday a particularly appropriate time for the beginning of our Fine Arts Week, and that there would be, in addition to the showing of a fine collection of oil paintings, interesting exhibits of grade, high school and college art. There would be also, she said, a collection of fifty large prints of flower arrangements which would quite adequately show how beautiful art in nature can be.

Mrs. Travis Hooker then told of the plans for the festival, and of the garden tour to be held on the 12th and 13th of April, when several local

Then Mrs. Perkins presented Mrs. Moore, mother of the new club, with a huge arm bouquet of exquisite red roses, praising her fine club work and splendid citizenship. Mrs. Moore was very touched by this lovely gesture on the part of the new club and her acceptance speech showed the emotion which she so deeply felt.

Washington Daybook

Washington—Every 20 years the United States gets riled at Germany. It has been going on for about 80 years. Now we are at another peak of anger. The cause is approximately the same as before. Germans when on the march, often seem to us overbearing. And situated as we are, separated from Germany by France, England and the Atlantic ocean, we are not obliged to pacify them. After a time tempers cool and good relations are restored.

If you can look at the thing in the philosophic light of 80 years it may help to keep your dander down. Based on previous experience, we probably will be on "speaking terms" with Germany in a half dozen years, perhaps less; that is, if we don't get mixed up in a war meantime.

We had our first tiff with the German empire over the Samoan Islands. The Samoan Islands are the Bahamas of the South Seas. Germans got there first but in 1839 our exploring sailor, Captain Wilkes, put in at capacious Pago Pago Harbor, explored it, negotiated with the natives—and established U. S. relations there.

Things ambled along for about 30 years with the Germans not caring much whether we took the islands or left them alone. Then the German empire pulled together after the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and began reaching out tentatively for colonies and naval bases.

Unfriendly For 20 Years
By 1875 the Samoan business had advanced far into diplomatic stages and we bickered back and forth with Germany until 1889, before reaching an agreement to divide the islands, we taking a pair and giving a pair to Germany.

All during that 20 years we had fairly good relations with Germany, and only slightly better with England. But by the time of the Spanish-American war we really were at loggerheads with Germany.

Partly out of sympathy for Spain and partly to restrain the United States, Germany tried valiantly to keep this country from going to war. Germany—didn't know just how much we would claim of Spain's colonial possessions in the Pacific. Germany negotiated a sub-rosa treaty with Spain to buy for $5,000,000 all its Pacific Islands except the Philippines, even while we were at war.

That affair between Commodore Dewey and the German Admiral Von Diederich in the Manila Harbor drew out of the German plan to grab the Philippines in event we should not take them.

Friendly Once Again
At one point Admiral Dewey and Admiral Diederich virtually squared off for battle right there in the harbor. It might have turned out badly for Admiral Dewey, for the German ships were heavier and the American ships were low on ammunition after defeating the Spanish fleet.

But just at that time England was in need of a new friend and did a good turn by shoving its fleet in between the U. S. and German fleets. This country has liked England pretty well ever since.

After that Germany too began to see that she might need a friend across the Atlantic and became more friendly. Relations improved at once. Germany sent a load of statues to Harvard and we sent one of Von Steuben to Germany. We exchanged students.

There was a momentary tiff in 1892-4 when Germany threatened to occupy Venezuela ports in order to collect a debt, but Theodore Roosevelt squelched that by threatening to send the fleet down there. Germany agreed at once to arbitrate.

Every school boy knows how 20 years after the Spanish war we were again at outs with Germany, actually going to war about it. But 10 years later we were all friends again and fairly mobbed a bank in order to buy German bonds. It is now 20 years after the peace of 1918.

Maharaja's Bride?

Miss Margaret Lawler (above), Union Pacific railroad stewardess and nurse who was born at Fargo, N. D., met the Maharaja Yeshwant, Indore, India, when he visited Los Angeles in 1939. A new announcement from the Maharaja that he recently married an American girl of the same name in order to get 'mental peace.'

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, March 29—Everybody picks on a fat man—at least the Senators seem to take particular delight in playing pranks on stylishly stout "Doggie" Hatcher. Yesterday the plump Burke law maker rose to do his usual stuff in reporting that the Journal has been examined and found correct and "I move that reading of the Journal be dispensed with and that it stand approved."

When the question was put by Lieutenant Governor Wilkins Horton there were unquestionably groans, or at least louder "Noes" than there were "Ayes" as a group of Doggie's friends decided to razz him a bit.

Wilmington's delightful and beautiful Greenfield Park will have to be developed in its present status as being outside the city limits. A bill introduced by Senator Emmett Bellamy to include it within the boundaries of Wilmington was reported unfavorably by the Calendar committee, which decided to "include it out."

Bills to permit fishing "with hook and line and at any time in Gowampus county" might just as well not have been put into the legislative machinery. The Senate Calendar committee is killing them as fast as they bob up—and they bob up like clay ducks in a shooting gallery.

Senator Boyette of Moore county would make Pinehurst and Southern Pines safe for liquor loving visitors in the house of representatives yesterday. The little tot was much interested in the proceedings, and applauded with as much vigor as any of the members when they recognized her appointment as page-ette.

Susan Dale Ross, charming three-year old granddaughter of Representative Joe Ross of Randolph was made an honorary page-ette in the house of representatives yesterday. The little tot was much interested in the proceedings, and applauded with as much vigor as any of the members when they recognized her appointment as page-ette.

George Uzzell does wish folks back home would read the papers or find out what he has done before they start writing and wiring him. A day or two ago George introduced a bill permitting the commissioners of Salisbury to sell certain property which the city owns in fee. Mr. Uzzell thought, and still thinks it is a good bill. But he has received several telegrams "bawling him out" for authorizing the city to sell property for past due street paving assessments.

Speaker Ward recognized Chas. B. Park of Wake county as the gentleman from State College. When Representative Park got up to explain the features of a bill which he had introduced affecting the college.

When the Murphy bill awarding a pension of $90.00 a month for life to W. Dan Terry for 46 years of faithful employe of the state, and for most of that time keeper of the capitol and its grounds, passed the house without a dissenting vote, an elderly ex-school teacher sitting in the lobby mumbled, half to himself, and half to whoever would listen, "and yet the state will not pay a school teacher who has devoted as much time at teaching as this man has at supervising the lawn, and when the old teacher is willing to pay half the pension him self." But there was no criticism of the merits of the Terry bill. Mr. Terry was stricken with paralysis just before Christmas.

BURY BILL FOR AIDING VICTIMS

License Plate Fees To Pay Hospital Bill Is Defeated

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, March 29—Branded as a certain step toward socialized medicine and as unduly favorable discrimination in the interests of one group, the Senate Long bill providing for collection of 30 cents fee with each license plate to pay hospital bills for victims of motor vehicle accidents was tabled in the house by a standing vote of 53 to 38.

The tabling motion of Mr. Seeley came after John White of Chowan had sent up an amendment which would have levied another sixty cents additional on each license plate to be divided between the lawyers and the garages.

As soon as the bill was called on the calendar Clarence Stone, chairman of the roads committee and arch foe of diversion of highway money, took the floor against it. He declared that it was contrary to the established policy of the state, which was constantly working toward lower license plate costs, and that it was but diversion in another form.

Representative Pat Kinsey raised the point of socializing medicine. He said that doctors and hospital officials threw up their hands in horror at the very mention of socialization of medicine, and yet this bill was nothing else. He like Stone explained by one of its sponsors, Representative Greg Cherry, the bill was made to appear a very fine thing for a county to have. One or two of the fellows doubted it, and sent up amendments to have their counties taken out.

The wise-cracking Cherry over-shot the mark somewhat when he began to ridicule some of these ex-emptors, and in a brisk little play between him and U. S. Page, they both lost some friends.

Started by Taylor of Caswell the procession of exemptions continued steadily until nineteen counties had removed themselves.

"Don't you think each one of us knows as much about what his county wants as you know?" Mr. Page asked Mr. Cherry. "I don't think you have sense enough always to know what you need," restored Cherry. Later both gentlemen admitted that neither of them knew much about anything and the incident war was over.

After being so thoroughly riddled with amendments as to leave it applicable only to about three fourths of the county the bill passed. Those counties can insure deputies, if the counties want to. They don't have to.

BEATEN AFTER SCORNING JOKES

Charles Gollob, Austrian-born, naturalized American, said he and his wife were beaten by two men after they walked out of a radio broadcasting studio in Hollywood because they didn't like the jokes Comedian Eddie Cantor was telling on Adolf Hitler and the Nazis. They are shown following the attack which they said occurred on a street corner.

$200,000 FIRE HITS CHARLESTON

Great clouds of smoke billowed skyward and covered sections of the city as a stubborn fire swept through the yards of the Centry Wood Preserving company on the waterfront at Charleston, S. C., doing damage estimated at $200,000. Firemen, fireboats and United States marines battled for hours to bring the flames under control.

PAPA KEEPS HOUSE, MAMA WORKS

W. W. Douglas of Louisville, Ky., used to earn $5,000 a year. But of late he hasn't been able to find a job. And so he has taken on the job of housekeeping and cooking while his wife works as the family breadwinner. Here they are relaxed with their daughter, Blair, who calls him "Mummy."

out it sent him into exile, crying in his battle flags. He never learned that you can't ignore nationalism.

The mighty British empire learned its lesson as it went along. Today the British seldom buck nationalism. They compromise with it. As late as 1931, they passed the famous statute of Westminster, under which no dominion can be summoned into war without its expressed permission. But the dominions remain loyal. In a sense, they exchange loyalty for the protection of the British fleet.

There's the key to what Hitler has done and is doing in the Balkans. Caught in the hurricane of nationalism that his own agents fanned too soon into flame, Hitler is trying to repair the damage by calling his acquisitions "protectorates," and granting them autonomy.

He has cut a leaf out of the British book, and pasted it up on his office wall. But will nationalism in the Balkan states give him time to make good in the solid, British way?

The historian tells you that his record is against him. He works too fast.

WHAT IT MEANS: Nazi Coup Raises Age-Old Problem

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)
WASHINGTON—If you're inclined to take the headlines at their face value, and get the idea that nothing can stop Hitler—consult a historian.

He'll tell you that Hitler has come to a hurdle—a hurdle the Reichsfuehrer would have done well to avoid for a year or two at least; a hurdle that may get his undoing, come peace or war.

In short, Hitler has run into the handicap that always confronts empire builders once they get going—the handicap of nationalism.

Nationalism works two ways. It tears up empires, or it binds them together. Or it may do both at the same time. Thus Nationalism may help the wise empire builder; or it may wreck his plans like a runaway hurricane. In either case, no man can explain just what happened.

Until now Hitler has achieved all his success within the orbit of his own German nationality. Nationalism, therefore, was no handicap to reckon with. Rather it was his greatest asset. His appeal to Germans to be loyal to their racial and cultural fatherland always brought a naturally sympathetic response. No man likes to turn against his heritage.

But Trouble's Ahead.
But once Hitler creates the so-called protectorates of Bohemia-Moravia and Slovakia, and tucks them under his wing, he begins to mother a chick of another color. It's the same chick that brought up the first great empire of modern times—the empire created by Charles V. of Flanders, almost exactly 300 years ago.

It is historically accurate to say that Charles V retired to a monastery without knowing what hit him. Ask Dr. Lowell J. Ragatz of Geo. Washington University, an outstanding authority on central European history.

"Charles V inherited a large European empire," explains the historian. "His genius made it even larger. Until finally, he ruled over more of Europe and the world than any of his contemporaries.

"At the pinnacle of his power he had Austria, Hungary, the Netherlands, Burgundy, Spain, most of Italy, and the lion's share of the Americas. But the whole thing practically fell apart before his eyes in 1547.

"When Charles V stepped down and divided the empire between his brother and son, he wrote a letter to a friend. He told how he had never spent more than five days in one place, so busy was he fighting wars, attending peace conferences, and otherwise trying to hold together what he had accumulated. He reckoned his empire was too big for one man to handle, but he didn't know why.

In the perspective of the industrial age, historians explained the situation. It sprang from the new capitalism of the Sixteenth Century, on which was to arise the great power age. Capitalism grew and thrived in a nationalistic atmosphere. It took several kinds of cement to make up a health nationalism. A ruler needed territorial, racial, cultural or religious unity. One of these was absolutely essential, all should be present.

Other great rulers tried empire building without the natural unities. Louis XIV, for instance, created an age and a culture. But so simple a trick as the Dutch people turning the dikes on his soldiers wrecked his whole plan of empire, and taught Louis the lesson of nationalism—too late.

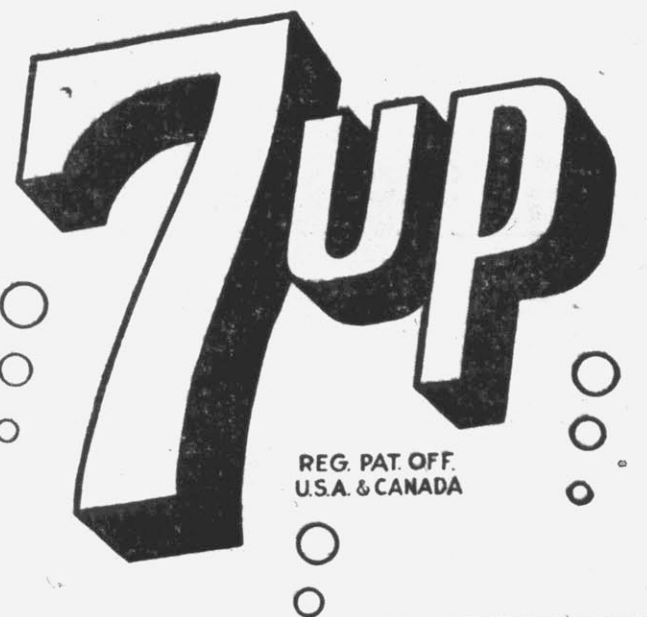

Likewise Napoleon, the military and political genius, tried to build an empire without consulting the spirit of nationalism abroad in Europe. He got by with it for a while, but finally, it got him, too.

An Invisible Destroyer.
It started in Spain, in 1812 and in two years it tore down everything Napoleon had built, like a hurricane devastating a countryside. That catastrophe was inescapable.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Mike Slade, pociferous artist.

Yesterday, when Asey and Kay return to the Leaches' house, a fight is going on, with Slade participating.

Chapter 21
Bedlam

SARA, what's your version?" asked Asey.
"Someone screamed," Sara said. "Eloise, it must have been, for she's gone to pieces entirely—n-drods somewhere. I told Jane where the spirits of ammonia are, and she and Jeff are working on her. Jeff's awfully handy with hysterics. His mother had them regularly. Monotonous, I thought, but people always tore around and did things for her—"

"Slade," Asey said, "it looks like you had to provide the explanation yourself. What was the underlying idea behind your human fly act?"

"Oh, go to plazes!" Slade said disgustedly. "You've busted my collar bone with your tricks! If I could move, I'd make hash of you—"

"It shouldn't be broken," Asey said. "Just sort of wrenched. But you r'sisted, an' I'm sort of stale at that stuff, an' that all makes—Kay, what are you slickerin' about?"

"Don't mind me, I'm the audience," Kay said. "And I do think this is pretty funny—hey, look out! Slade's trying to trip you!"

Asey moved back. "Trooper, you an' Zeb cart this fellow into the house, Sara, how about you take a hand with Eloise? I never heard anything so bloodcurdlin' as them screams! Kay, trail along, will you?"

By the lord Harry, I don't know what a fozz over folks Brinley, are you back to normal yet? Where do you come in?"

"That man, that man is a menace!" Brinley spoke with difficulty. His lip was swelling and it gave him a slight lisp. "A menace! A menace! He came to our house while we were all in bed—"

If J. Arthur hadn't looked so desperately miserable, Asey would have finished it up. "And you took a marrow bone and hit him on the head? But he only nodded, and told Brinley to go on."

"I was on the back porch," Brinley said, "I'd just come back from the clothes yard—that's where we keep our oil tank because it's handy, but out of sight. Anyway, I'd forgotten the oil before I went to bed—really, it's been a very tiring day! And I remembered it when I woke up, so I went out and filled the stove tank, because Mrs. Brinley likes plenty of hot water, and we have company anyway, so we had to have it, and Mrs. Brinley is particularly about the hot water when we have company. Madame—uh—the soprano, you know, is staying with us, and she—"

"You was on the back porch," Asey reminded him.

"And it seemed to me I heard a noise. I looked around, but I couldn't see anything, and—"

"Didn't happen to see any state cops, did you? No? Nice fellers, but not such hot guards. Go on."

"Well, I happened to look up, and there was this man climbing down the Paul's Scarlet! Down the trellis, I mean. Well, Mrs. Brinley would rather die than have anyone break her Paul's Scarlet, you know. It's—why, everyone knows about it! You must have heard about Mrs. Brinley's Paul's Scarlet!"

"My fav'rite rose," Asey said. "What did you do?"

"Well, I thought rather quickly. Brinley was quite pleased at the rapidity of his thoughts, and I said to myself, if I stop him now, he'll break the Paul's Scarlet. And I didn't want to wake Bessie, or Madame—uh—the soprano. They've had a hard day, too, and I knew Bessie would get worked up, and it's so bad for her heart, to get worked up. So I waited until he got down on the ground, and then—well—"

"Wade On, Brinley!"

"WELL, what? What happened?"

"Well, Brinley dabbed at his lip. "He seemed like quite a big man. And he didn't seem to be carrying anything, and I looked up, and the screens were in place, so I knew he hadn't got in, and besides, he hadn't waked anyone, and he would have if he'd got in. Mrs. Brinley is a very light sleeper—"

"So, you let him go?"

"For all I knew," Brinley said. "He might have been armed, and I only had the oil tank. And in my bedroom slippers, and just my pants on over my pajamas, and my sweater, like I am now—"

"Uh-huh. But you turned up here. Now let's get into that side of it. Sort of wade on, Brinley."

"Well, I waited, and he slid around to the side of the house, and then I knew who it was. It was Slade, because he had a bicycle. Slade doesn't have a car, you know. He's against the car manufacturers. He says they exploit—"

"Slade got on his bike," Asey said, "and you did what, exactly?"

"Why, Madame, the singer's bike was there, so I followed. He came way up here, and left his bike, and I came after him and followed along. He cut through the woods, and then he came up to the house, and climbed the maple, and then that came, and—"

"Thanks," Asey said. "You done a nice job, an' I shuld expect it took considerable courage. Now, the cop'll attend to Slade, an' I'll take you home myself—"

"Not," Brinley said with a show of spirit. "I know what's going on here! Not until I am sure that menace, that maniac, is properly restrained! Taken into custody! Mr Mayo, what is going on?"

Asey sighed. If he told J. Arthur, Mrs. J. Arthur would know, and that was equivalent to telling the whole town of Billingsgate.

"And this trooper here," Brinley said. "A lot of funny things are going on! Troopers at the hall, I saw them with my own eyes!"

"And—"

"You want to know," Asey made a desperate stab. "It's all account of Slade. You know how he is. He wants publicity. That's why Weston had me come over, so none of Slade's stunts would get into the papers. Bad for the town, that girl reporter! She knows she she ain't written a word—"

He rambled on, and the more involved he got, the more inclined J. Arthur seemed to believe him. Just as Asey was beginning to feel that he had won, a car slewed up to the front walk, and Mrs. J. Arthur Brinley tumbled out and rushed up to her husband.

"Arthur—oh, thank Heaven! Madame Meaux said that Mr Mayo would know where is she? Madame Meaux, come quick! Come, show him that letter! Let him see it quick! It's about a murder, and that awful Slade, he did it! He says so—"

Comparative Calm

THE ensuing quart hour at the Leaches' house was never entirely clear or coherent to any of the people who somehow lived through it. As Sara said the next day, it was the sort of thing you used to date things by, like the night the old ice house burned down, or when the hurricane washed away all those cottages.

Even when a comparative state of calm arrived, the confusion and uproar were considerable.

Eloise emerged from it tied hand and foot on the living room floor, with the state trooper and Zeb trying to silence his roars of rage and threats of what would happen when he was set free. Before he achieved his recumbent position, he succeeded in breaking three chairs completely, and in rendering three others quite unfit for occupancy. The excited Eloise had run the entire gamut of hysterics. She had screamed and sobbed and laughed and cried, separately and all at once, and now she showed every sign of beginning at the beginning and repeating the exhibition. Jane, white-faced and tight-lipped, tried to soothe her. The process reminded Asey of old Barney Snowden, who decided one day that he disliked the Atlantic Ocean, and thereafter spent his time removing it, a teacupful at a time. Jeff, in a cambrie night-shirt, with his whiskers askew, had appointed himself caretaker of the ice bags and cold cloths for Eloise. As fast as he got one in place, Eloise promptly threw it as far as she could send it. When she began to aim for the mantel, and Sara's pet collection of Toby jugs, Sara had removed them to a place of safety. Then, rather grumpily, she stood on guard between Eloise and the rest of her bric-a-brac.

Mrs. Brinley pattered futilely around from Slade to Eloise, fuming at the former and giving advice as to the latter, and at intervals she stopped to embrace J. Arthur and sob on his shoulder. He was still nervously dabbing at his lower lip with the spotted handkerchief; it happened to be his upper lip which had really suffered, but he was beyond the stage of caring much about details.

After the first flurry, Kay had disappeared with Bertha in the vicinity of the kitchen. Madame Meaux had followed them, and then drifted back to the most comfortable arm chair she could find. She sat there, surviving things with interest, and occasionally grinning.

"Where've you been?" she asked Asey after he made a third trip to the hall. "What's going on, out there?"

"You ain't missin' a thing," Asey said. "I'm tryin' to get Cummings on the phone. He's out on a call, an' they're tryin' to locate him for me. Eloise is in too much of a state to be handled by amateurs. What are you havin' such a lot of fun over?"

"Billingsgate Beautiful," Madame Meaux said. "Look at Sister Brinley. She makes me think of a turtle. I don't know why."

"She looks," Asey said critically, "like a full ash can the day after Christmas."

Continued tomorrow.

CALL IS MADE FOR SOFTBALL

Persons Wishing To Play Urged to Register at Once

All young men—and those not so young if they feel they are equal to the task—who wish to play softball this summer and are not already lined up with a team, are urged to register at once with M. P. Fox at Tadlock Mutual Insurance agency or with J. D. Simpson at the Railway express office.

Directors of the Greenville Softball league met last night and decided on this and several other matters, the most important of which was definite decision to play night ball at Third street park.

Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Greenville Water and Light Commission, attended the meeting and explained the various methods of lighting the park. An opening date has not been decided on as yet, but several committees were named last night and this and other details will be worked out later. Another meeting probably will be held next week, at the call of President J. D. Simpson.

The following firms have agreed to sponsor teams this year: Water and Light; Blount-Harvey; Nehi Bottling Co.; Tadlock Insurance Agency; W. L. Allen, Gulf distributor; Carolina Sales; Carolina Dairy.

The following committees, with the chairman of each listed first, were named: Finance, B. D. Johnson; M. P. Fox; O. P. Matthews; Publicity, Roy Campbell, Matthews and Johnson; Rules, Withers, Harvey, W. F. Evans and Campbell; Schedule, Fox, Evans and L. T. Jones; Grounds and Concessions, Evans, Howard Waldrop, Harvey; Tickets, Jones, Evans and Fox.

Directors stressed the importance of persons wishing to play this summer registering with either of the two persons mentioned. It is not necessary for a person to have played last summer to make application this season.

GREENIES HOLD 1ST PRACTICE

Workouts Scheduled To Be Held at 11 A.M., Daily

With the grounds in "fine" shape according to Skipped Rube Wilson and the park well toward final completion, lights and all, several members of the Greenville baseball club held their first practice of the season this morning.

Most of those taking part in the drills were pitchers, among them being Robert Glover of Gastonia and Hoodie Briggs of Bessemer City, both newcomers to Greenville, and Don King, ace left-hander with the Greenies for the past two years. Wilson and catcher Vincent Smith also were in uniforms and took part in the practice.

Several other players have arrived, but were not in uniform this morning. They are Ralph Simpson, outfielder here last year; Red Christy, last year's second baseman; and Jack Cochrane, new outfielder.

The Greenies' pilot announced that he had received word from Freddie Calcutt that he had a bad cold and would be delayed several days in arriving here, but would be here in short order.

Manager Wilson also announced that two catchers had been signed for a try-out with the Greenies. They are Shalley, who comes here from the University of Alabama, and Eddie Steek of St. Louis, Mo., both rookies.

The Greenies will hold practice sessions each morning, scheduled to be on the field by 11 o'clock each day.

KINSTON WINS OVER GHS, 7-2

Coast to Victory After Five-Run Rally in First Frame

By "SMUT" BURKS

Opening fast with a five-run first inning, the Red Devils baseball first defeated the Greenies high school coasted to a 7-2 victory over the local nine of Greenville high school in a game played at the Third St. Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday's game was the first Eastern Conference test for Coach Bo Farley's baseballers.

In a practice game last Tuesday the Greenies jumped over the Winterville Bobcats by a 13-2 score to give the G-Men an even break in their first two games.

In the big frame the Kinstonites touched Pitcher Waylan Tucker for three singles and two three-baggers for their five runners. After the first outburst, McGowan, Clark and Gibson sandwiched hits around a walk and a wild pitch to tally their only two markers.

Chapin, Pratt, Pittman and Stalling each got two safeties to lead the Kinston hitting attack. Pratt's triple in the first inning was the big noise in their spree.

Snag Clark, diminutive second-sacker, dumped two hits over the infield to head Greenville's offensive tactics. Clark drove in the first Greenie run with a single in the third inning with two on base. Edgar Gibson's booming double was the other big gun in the locals' scoring.

Jesse Jones hurled well for the winners in limiting the Greenies to seven bingles. He was backed up well by his teammates who played errorless ball and handled several difficult chances with ease.

The Greenville team was held at bay except for a two-run spurt in the third inning. McGowan, Clark and Gibson sandwiched hits around a walk and a wild pitch to tally their only two markers.

What Makes a Nation Great?

Land? Timber? Minerals? Other nations have them—but of what value are raw materials without human resourcefulness?

Because our pioneering forefathers had the courage to match their dreams, America became great. Their stout spirit was the plow that broke the plains. Their staunch faith sharpened the edge of their thundering axes. Their high hope harnessed the waters. Their will to win probed the earth below.

You and you are America's pioneers, for Today is always Yesterday's frontier for the American spirit. The true measure of a nation's resources is the ability of its people to face life with the spirit of youth.

BEAUFORT CITY TO GET OFFICE

U. S. Engineer Sub-Station To Be In Washington

Washington, March 29.—Representative Lindsay Warren announced today that he has been informed by Major George W. Gillette, U. S. district engineer of Wilmington, N. C., that a sub-office of the U. S. Engineer's office will be established in Washington, N. C., effective April 1st.

On the same date all of the North Carolina territory now under the U. S. Engineer office at Norfolk, will be transferred to Wilmington, and the sub-office at Washington is being established to afford better service to the new area. The force will consist of an engineer, a typist and a draftsman, a survey party with an engineer and assistant in charge and ten rodmen, boatmen and laborers. It will also include four or five motor boats with crews of two to each boat.

There will also be assigned to the jurisdiction of the Washington office dredge boats on the Tar river, Roanoke river and Belhaven break-water projects. All positions are Civil Service and no additional personnel outside of those now in the service will be taken on.

It was through Mr. Warren's efforts that the North Carolina territory under Norfolk was transferred to Wilmington and he was greatly pleased today that his home town had been selected for the sub-office of the district.

maintained after gains in an early rally largely had been eliminated when the fourth hour neared. Dealings slowed almost to a standstill. Bonds were uneven.

County Regulation Of Wine Provided In Bill

Raleigh, March 29.—During the present session of the legislature there have been a dozen or more bills offered exempting certain counties from the statewide wine and beer bill. Each of these bills was referred to the finance committee and there all of them were chloroformed to death. However, the committee brought out a substitute for one of the bills, which embraced them all, and the commissioners can refuse to issue license for the sale of wine or beer for consumption on the premises. That seemed to satisfy most of the dry counties. It put the burden on the local governing authorities.

Three Schools In Dramatic Contest

Finals in the county-wide high school dramatic contest will be staged at the Farmville high school auditorium tomorrow night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Grimesland, Fountain and Ayden are the three schools which will participate in the event. Each school will put on a one-act play, the winner to be awarded custody of a plaque. The plaque now is held by Ayden, the dramatic team of that school having won the contest last year.

Dry Cleaning Row Flares Once More

Raleigh, March 29.—Virgil Wilson of Forsyth, who has set as the main goal of his legislative career, removal of Forsyth county from the state dry cleaning commission, caught John Caffey, highly paid attorney for the commission, in the speaker's chair yesterday to revive his fight. Four or five times he has almost won, but Caffey has always saved the day by getting the bill re-referred. This time Wilson was trying to get it out of committee and on the calendar.

Mr. Caffey asked him to wait until he could get back to the floor, but Wilson said he had been waiting ever since early in January and the wanted action. Then Mr. Caffey ruled that Mr. Wilson had lost the floor when he yielded for a question, and refused to let him speak any more. Finally on a standing vote, Wilson won 44 to 30. But all that the victory meant was that the bill is on the calendar. When it will come up for action remains to be seen.

Speaker Ward For Firemen Benefits

Raleigh, March 29.—Roll calls in the House always start with Mr. Speaker," but the speaker seldom votes. One of the few instances of this session in which Mr. Ward sought the opportunity to record his vote was on the question of the state volunteer firemen's association and the provisions for a benefit fund thereunder. Mr. Ward's vote was the loudest vote of the whole roll call.

The proposition permits volunteer firemen, and in that category come all paid city firemen when answering calls outside the city limits, to provide a mutual benefit fund from which compensation may be drawn in case of injury while in line of duty. Many cities have such arrangements, but the fund could not be touched if the accident occurred beyond the city limits.

REFUSE TO PAY FOR LOST HATS

House, However, Has Fun For a While on Proposal

Raleigh, March 29.—Every session at about this stage, a bill is introduced increasing the pay of legislative committee clerks, stenographers, and all other employees, down to the pages. It came Monday night from Representative John F. White of Chowan.

Would Boost Pay Of Assembly Employees

Raleigh, March 29.—Every session at about this stage, a bill is introduced increasing the pay of legislative committee clerks, stenographers, and all other employees, down to the pages. It came Monday night from Representative John F. White of Chowan.

Mr. White proposes an extra dollar a day for all clerks and committee clerks, and fifty cents a day for pages and other employees. The added pay would apply from the opening day of the session and would include Sundays. The total amount involved is not large, as compared with the state budget, and the legislators are usually in a generous mood toward the last. But such a resolution was voted down last year.
