FRANCE MOVES TO STRENGTHEN HER DEFENSES

Views Seriousness of International Situation

GREATER POW'RS GIVEN DALADIER

Most Important Of Degrees Establishes Government Control Over Arms Supply

Paris, April 18.—(AP)—Premier Daladier told his cabinet today the continuing seriousness of the international situation made it necessary for France to take further steps to strengthen her defenses.

Both the Premier and Foreign Minister Bonnet gave long analyses of the foreign situation during a cabinet presided over by President Lebrun. The meeting lasted more than two hours.

Daladier was understood to have told his colleagues that negotiations for a British-Soviet Russian defense alliance to bolster guarantees given by France and Britain to Poland, Rumania and Greece were "progressing satisfactorily."

Indications in foreign ministry circles were that a complete agreement would be reached within the next day or so.

Lebrun signed seven decrees, the most important of which established detailed government control over the supply of arms, munitions and other war materials.

Supplementary decrees were concerned with increasing imports, particularly of military supplies, such as oil.

Other decrees indicated the government was particularly concerned with the colonial situation. One authorized an increase in the power of France's great "propaganda" radio station at Tunis.

Criminal Session Continues In Pitt

The case of A. L. Baker, charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, was being tried in the criminal session of Pitt Superior court this afternoon, after numerous charges had been disposed of yesterday and this morning.

Pharis Coward, John Wesley Darden and Charlie Bell, Negroes, were given eight months each for larceny at this morning's session.

The jury was out at the beginning of the afternoon session deliberating a charge of hit and run against Carl Laughlin.

Louise Whichard, Negro, was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, but sentence was not immediately passed.

Jimmie Harris has given four-year sentence, suspended upon payment of a $75 fine and costs on a charge of driving drunk.

Jimmie Ross pleaded guilty to driving drunk, but judgment was deferred.

Negro Held In Jail For Hit - Run Driving

James Clark, Negro, is being held in city jail on a charge of reckless driving and hit-and-run, after having been identified by officers as driver of the car which Sunday night ran into the Bun Mills filling station about a mile and a half from the city on the Winterville highway.

Patrolman C. R. Williams, who conducted the investigation, also said that Clark probably would be charged with stealing the automobile, which was registered in the name of Sam White, another Negro, who reported to officers that his car was stolen. The two Negroes, however, were said to have been together earlier in the evening.

Four Land In Prison By End of First Day

Before the criminal session of Pitt Superior court, being conducted here by Judge Clawson L. Williams of Sanford, had been under way but a few hours the sheriff's office took three men to State's prison in Raleigh for terms totaling a maximum of 50 years.

All three were sentenced yesterday morning. They were Walter Cherry, Negro, 25 to 30 years, for second degree murder; Levi Tyson and Mack Fleming, white men, six to 10 years each for forgery.

The three did not include Julius Johnson, Negro, who was given three to five years for the theft of cigarettes from a Norfolk-Southern box car.

The new process of growing vegetables in trays of water has been put to use to supply the air base on tiny Wake island.

Considerable property damage was reported in the area, but no reports of casualties reached Santiago.

On January 24, a great area of southern Chile was devastated by an earthquake at a cost in lives estimated at from 25,000 to 30,000.

Much Interest Shown In Hatteras National Park

Raleigh, April 18.—Proving the exception to the rule that there is little interest in purely honorary or non-paying places on State boards and commissions is current speculation over personnel of the Hatteras National Seashore commission soon to be named by Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

The interest comes, however, from the fact that the project the commission will control is unique in America and is forecast by Federal park men as likely to be the greatest park attraction in the nation.

Estimates now are that within six months final conditions for creation of the park will have been met and work will be actively under way. An appropriation of $29,000 will enable the Commission to proceed immediately with the work of putting together the acreage necessary for the project. About 7,000 acres are already available and the National Park Service will begin extensive work upon receipt of 10,000 additional acres. House of Commons Cheers Premier's Announcement

CONTINUE TALKS LINE UP RUSSIA

Indicated Britain Is Considering Establishment of Some Sort of Supply Minister

London, April 18.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told a cheering House of Commons today that Great Britain welcomed "with great satisfaction" President Roosevelt's appeal to Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

In a brief statement on foreign affairs, Chamberlain said Britain was continuing conversations with Soviet Russia to widen the British-French peace front, but he had nothing new to report.

British pledge of help to Turkey had been expected but was believed held up pending the outcome of the British-Soviet negotiations.

Chamberlain said amid prolonged applause: "I should like to take this opportunity of informing the House of the great satisfaction which His Majesty's government has welcomed the recent initiative of the United States of America."

In reply to a question, he said the British were interested in the independence of the Netherlands, and Denmark, but stated that entered into no specific agreement to assist those countries.

Chamberlain indicated that Britain was considering the establishment of some sort of supply ministry.

"Steps are being taken both to accelerate and widen the basis of production in Britain's war industries" he said.

He was urged to say whether staff talk had started between Britain and her new allies in the anti-aggression bloc, but said only his Majesty's government will maintain all necessary contacts in military as well as in all matters with the countries in question. He refused to enlarge on this.

At the time of his death he was assistant vice president. He is survived by his parents, Mr and Mrs T. F. Maguire of Raleigh, Mrs. Helen Pyle of Raleigh and Mrs. John Partin of Columbia, S. C.

Creek Rampages After Heavy Rain

Fayetteville, April 18.—(AP)—A two-inch rain in about three hours last night sent Cross creek, which traverses the town, out of its banks at several places today.

Several streets and peas were scattered over some 15 or 20 houses were under water.

The Fayetteville-Raeford highway was reported covered at several points. Although the road was not blocked, traffic moved through slowly the inundated areas.

One minor incident was attributed to the high water. A produce truck driver stopped so suddenly when he came on the flooded section of road that the boy was thrown from his vehicle and peas were scattered over the road. No one was hurt.

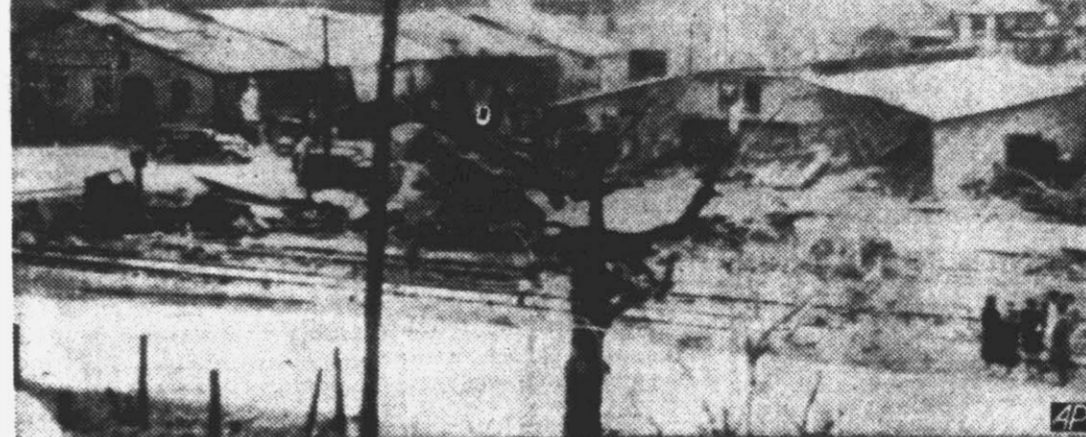

The rain stopped this morning and little further damage was expected.

Board Meeting Tonight. The Greenville Board of Aldermen will meet in a special called session tonight to consider certain important pending matters. The call listed about a dozen questions to be considered at the meeting.

Ohio River Front Dwellers Face Another Mild Flood

'SMELLED RAT', NAB SWINDLER

Mexico City Man Tried Ruse on Tar Heel Banker

Mexico City, April 18.—(AP)—Enrique Zepeda Ruiz was arrested today on charges of attempting to swindle R. B. Whitley, wealthy business man of Wendell, N. C.

His capture followed an extensive investigation asked by U. S. Ambassador Joseph Daniels, who said several other Americans here and in the United States had made similar complaints.

Ruiz was alleged to have asked Whitley to send him $4,000 for information that would lead to a large fortune which Ruiz said he was unable to acquire for himself because he was a prisoner.

Wendell, April 18.—(AP)—A small town banker and his tobaccoist son "smelled a rat" when they got a proposal from Mexico City which supposedly would return them $95,000 for $4,000, and Enrique Zepeda Ruiz was arrested in Mexico today on charges of attempting to swindle them.

R. B. Whitley, banker here, and his son Phillip, who runs a tobacco warehouse and is Wake county Democratic chairman, cooperated with United States and Mexican authorities to bring about the arrest of Ruiz.

Phillip Whitley told the story as follows: "A letter came to his father, who was ill, which said Ruiz was under arrest in Mexico and had a trunk in a United States customs house in which $285,000 was secreted. He offered to give Whitley one-third of the money if $4,000 was made available so Ruiz could get his release."

Phillip suggested that the letter be sent to Ambassador Joseph Daniels, a long time friend of the family and quickly came back word from the embassy "if you can smell a rat all the way across the country it must be a band of swindlers."

Pack Possessions in Trucks As Stream Rises

Cincinnati, April 18.—(AP)—Home owners on the Ohio river front loaded their possessions into trucks today as the river neared the crest of another minor flood.

Residential settlements along the bottomlands of Newport, Ky., where the Licking enters the Ohio, were abandoned and refugees given aid.

At Catlettsburg, Ky., confluence of the Big Sandy and the Ohio, store owners moved upstairs as water was expected to rise over Front street during the day.

Fears of damage abated at Huntington, West Va., where U. S. engineers reported the expected crest of 51 feet would cover only low districts on the outskirts of the city.

A forecast of cooler weather and only occasional showers over the four-state area dispelled threats of more serious damage. The week-end death toll of four was unchanged.

A crest of 60 feet here was expected by tomorrow. Flood stage is 52. Fed by scores of overflowing streams after a record April rainfall, the Ohio continued to rise down stream. U. S. Meteorologist J. L. Kendall at Louisville forecast a crest of six to seven feet above flood stage by Thursday. Kendall declared there was no danger of widespread damage, adding that "the usual river front buildings" would be inundated.

Anti-Syphilis Campaign To Be Pushed Next Year

Raleigh, April 18.—North Carolina's campaign against syphilis and other venereal diseases will reach a new peak of intensity during the next year beginning July 1, Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, State Health officer, is firmly convinced.

He assigns two main reasons for his belief: (1) there will be available for campaign during the year approximately $400,000, a sum some thing like $124,000 in excess of funds available for the year which will close with this June; and (2) better laws, with more teeth in them to enforce rules and regula-

WPA WORKERS UNION LEADER A COMMUNIST

SURVEY PLANNED IN FACE OF WAR

President Calls in Financial Advisors To Study World Trade in Case of Conflict

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—Herbert Benjamin, general secretary of the Workers Alliance, told the House committee investigating the WPA today he was a member of the Communist party.

In response to questions, he said he did not believe in overthrow of the United States government by force. He added that he saw nothing inconsistent in what he believed to be the philosophy of the Communist party and the institutions and beliefs of a democratic form of government.

Benjamin denied in reply to a question that he had reported to the Third International that formation of the Workers Alliance represented the successful culmination of a four-year campaign by the Communist party.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt called in his financial advisors to survey tentative plans as to the conduct of security and commodity markets in event of an European war.

Officials said the question already had been discussed in a preliminary way by department officials directly concerned.

The survey was described as embracing the whole subject of world trade as it would be affected by an outbreak of hostilities.

Those called to the White House were Secretary Morgenthau and Under-Secretary Hans of the Treasury, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Chairman Marriner Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, and Jerome Frank, member of the Securities Commission.

Morgenthau, Wallace, Frank, Eccles and others met last week for a preliminary discussion of how to soften the shocks of foreign crises on American business.

The WPA said 12,000 WPA workers would be employed soon in a $9,000,000 housing survey throughout the United States.

Seventy-one surveys have been approved for 85 cities and counties in 26 states, including urban areas of North Carolina.

Other developments: W. Kerr Scott, North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture, proposed the national farm program be enlarged to place more emphasis on marketing.

He laid before Secretary Wallace and North Carolina members of Congress a suggestion that Congress appropriate at least $5,000,000 annually (Continued on page six)

Until he was about 20 Mr. Sandburg was a worker with his hands and a rover.

After a brief grammar school, he before long began wandering over the west and making acquaintance with people of many types.

He drove a milk wagon, worked in a barber shop, washed dishes in hotels, tried work on the farm, and served as a carpenter's helper and a house painter.

After several months in the army during the Spanish-American war, he determined to learn something better, and accordingly enrolled in an Illinois college and worked his way through.

Though his college work definitely launched him on his career as a writer, he has never ceased to be close to everyday life and activity.

Adults know Mr. Sandburg as the poet of "Smoke and Steel," "Chicago Poems" and "Slabs of the Sunburnt West," and as the interpreter of Langston Hughes in the biography "The Prairie Years."

Children enjoy his whimsical "Rootabaga Stories" and "Rootabaga Pigeons," as well as many of his poems.

He is expected to please his audience at East Carolina Teachers College Monday night by his reading and singing as well as his speaking as he has a deep, mellow voice that suits his poetry.

His program will be given in the Austin Auditorium and will begin at 8 o'clock.

Each Foreign Crisis Just A Job To Man Who Puts Them On Maps

MAP MAKER DETJE: "Like Writing An Informal Letter"

By The AP Feature Service. NEW YORK — No matter what happens to the map of Europe, it all adds up to trouble on the drawing board of Detje, the map maker.

Harold Detje, the lean, black-haired man in his thirties and you might take him for a college instructor) draws news maps and background maps for The Associated Press and The AP Feature Service.

So when Hitler takes another province or Mussolini makes another demand, or Chamberlain draws a "this far" line, you may be sure that Detje the map maker is turning hot cable news into neat line drawings as fast as skilled technique and long training can do it.

Next day and for days afterwards these maps with latest developments drawn so plain that school children can figure them out appear in papers from coast to coast.

Thanks To H. Duce. Detje bears no grudge against the map changers who muss up his laboriously compiled "basic" maps. If it hadn't been for Mussolini, as a matter of fact, this account of Detje the map maker might never have been written.

For it's been only since Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia, says Detje, that newspaper maps have gained the hold they now have on the American public. At that time news-paper readers awoke to the realization that the greatest event in the world was occurring and that they didn't know even where! But newspaper maps told them.

And the news map-maker became a specialist instead of just the first available artist with spare time on his hands.

Detje has done as many as 18 maps in one week. He has his own filing system and a systematic collection of basic maps ready for use after insertion of the X that marks the spot.

But the part that Detje likes best is the background or feature map, showing attractively and pointedly the background of some important current situation.

Like Writing A Letter. Each of Detje's maps is a reporting job. It includes information from any number of sources—standard atlases, government maps and charts, various reference books, newspaper "morgue" files and latest news bulletins. As a result, from some maps readers can get in a few minutes information that a column of type might not tell.

"I always try to have in mind," Detje explains, "that I'm diagramming a route of my travels to a friend. Like writing an informal letter."

Detje began his career as a cartoonist and illustrator on the Portland, Ore. Journal. Then he came to New York and free-lanced before joining the art staff of The AP Feature Service.

FISH DEALERS GIVEN WARNING

Must Not Ship 'Rock' Less than 16 Inches Long

Reflected Bureau. Raleigh, April 17.—It is now illegal, under a newly enacted New York statute, to ship striped bass or "rock" measuring less than 16 inches into New York state, Commissioner John D. Chalk of the game and inland fisheries division of Conservation and Development today warned all North Carolina fishermen and fish dealers.

North Carolina law, he pointed out, makes legal the taking, possession and sale of fish of this species measuring 12 inches from the nose to the fork of the tail. Until recently the New York statute was based on a like length.

"William C. Adams, director of the New York Conservation Development Department, has just written me and asked that I call the new law to the attention of North Carolina fishermen in order that there shall be as little confusion as possible about the new statute. He emphasized the change in legal length from 12 to 16 inches," said Mr. Chalk.

The North Carolina commissioner is of the opinion that North Carolina would do well to follow the example of New York and several other northern states which have recently adopted the 16-inch limit.

"Our law permits the taking of striped bass when they are too small and immature and we really should change our size limit from 12 to 16 inches," said Mr. Chalk.

Modernistic Art Was Old Stuff Even Before Columbus Was Born

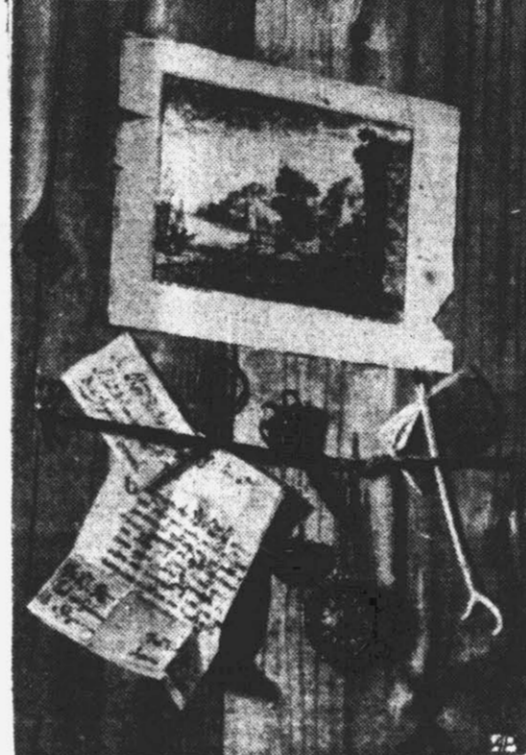

Boston is seeing an art exhibition that might be called "There's nothing new under the sun." The show, arranged by the Institute of Modern Art at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, actually is called "The sources of modern painting." Works of contemporary masters are shown beside the art of men who lived hundreds of years ago—and the effect is often startling. What the show really proves, its sponsors say, is that the weight of tradition is so strong in artists they lean on the past, whether they realize it or not. "Few painters," the catalogue reads, "have failed, at some juncture, to reveal the influence upon their art of those responsible for their artistic training." Here are four of the exhibits, two modern works beside their assumed sources:

Pablo Picasso, a leading modern artist, painted the head at the left which strongly resembles the head of the goddess Hera (right), a marble dating from the second or third century B.C.

At the right is a painting done in 1714 by an artist of the school that tried to make the painted objects look real. The other work, by the modernist, Pierre Roy, is startlingly like it except that it brings together things we should never expect to be together.

Hadley Apointed District Manager

Word has just been received that Jake M. Hadley has been appointed district manager for the Provident Life and Accident Insurance Company of Chattanooga. Mr. Hadley will be connected with the Andrew J. Lewis general agency of Rocky Mount.

According to the Provident, the appointment was made in view of the splendid record Mr. Hadley has made in the life insurance business for the past three years and the position of leadership he holds in the civic affairs in the city of Greenville. Mr. Hadley is president of the Pitt County-Duke University Alumni Association, Cub Master of the Greenville Cub Pack, actively associated with the Lions Club,

Junior Chamber of Commerce and Towne Club. He comes from a prominent Greenville family and has lived in Pitt county all of his life. ## HUNTING TROPHIES USED SUCCESSFULLY IN GRAFTING

London (AP)—Walrus tusks, antlers and other hunting trophies are being successfully used by doctors to patch broken bones, according to Dr. Ernest Groves, a Bristol surgeon. He explained in the "Lancet" how trophies grafted to diseased bones are completely absorbed and replaced by human bones. In 1922 he grafted into a deep cavity in a boy's thigh-bone, a piece of ivory from a walrus tusk. He said an X-ray examination in 1939 revealed that the ivory graft had become covered with a deposit of bone. Doctor Groves used a portion of a stag's antler to mend the broken thigh-bone of a 45-year-old woman. Three years later the antler cutting had been completely absorbed by new human bone.

Washington Daybook

Washington—One of our constituents has taken us to task for commenting that in 1898 the British appeared a bit more friendly to us than the Germans during our little affair with the Spanish, and we must defend ourselves with all the books in reach.

At this point, we admit that we are a strictly impartial source in this matter, as in 1898 we were not born. We cited the instance of affairs in 1898 just to show that this country's disposition to dislike Germany was a long time developing, with peaks of dislike rising about every 20 years.

The instance we had in mind in the Spanish war—occurred in Manila Bay, where Admiral Dewey, then a mere commodore, had just mopped up on the Spanish fleet and was getting ready during a steamy August to make a demonstration against Manila so the Spaniards could surrender, as they planned, without too much bloodshed.

All during the three months after Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet he had trouble with the German fleet. Investigators since have inclined to believe Dewey was a bit over-diligent in laying down rules for German vessels to follow. Nevertheless the German squadron sent to Manila after Dewey's victory did not appear to be unnecessarily large. Moreover, the experts say, it was suspected, and later proved, that Germany was seeking more Pacific naval bases.

No Appeachment Here

Dewey at one time became so worked up that he told a young German officer that if Germany wanted war she probably would get it. "Mein Gott," said the young German, in surprise at such un diplomatic language, and hurriedly withdrew from the conference.

But when Dewey made ready to throw a few shells at the fort near Manila, he pulled his ships into position—and a substantial support of British cruisers which took up position between the U. S. fleet and the German fleet.

It was a dramatic moment. As the British fleet steamed by its band played "Under the Double Eagle." The Americans cheered and their band played "God Save the King" in response.

Dewey was pleased and America was almost overwhelmed by this show of good feeling. Historians mark it as the important turning point in the relations of England and the United States.

Plenty Of Coal
But our constituent says that the British refused to supply Dewey with coal while he was in Hong Kong harbor waiting for the U. S. to declare war on Spain so he could move on Manila.

An authoritative history used as a Navy Department reference says "The Dewey purchased right at hand (in Hong Kong) two ships of considerable size—the Zafiro and Nanshan—loaded them with coal and provisions, and also filled the bunkers of all his other vessels with coal."

It is true that when war was declared England, as a neutral, abided strictly by international law and ordered Dewey to depart within 24 hours. Dewey knew that would happen and rushed his preparations accordingly.

Dewey notes in his autobiography "A friendly predilection among the British in our favor," at the time he sailed from Hong Kong. As to the Manila affair, it developed afterward that the Germans were not so unfriendly as Dewey believed, but public opinion was more influenced by the incidents than the later disclosures.

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, April 18—After watching numerous "swearing-in" at the Governor's office, your correspondent has been impressed by the difference in technique among the Supreme Courts who administer oaths of office.

They are divided primarily into two classes—the single-oath and the triple-oath school of thought. Chief Justice Stacy and Justice W. A. Devin are principal exponents of the last-named group; the other Justices run more to the single-oath idea.

The triple-oathers insist on administering three separate and distinct oaths to the about to be officer—one to support and defend the Constitution of the United States, another to perform the same sacred services for the Constitution of North Carolina and still another to perform faithfully and diligently the function of the office to which they are taking title.

The single-oathers lump all three together and require but one "I do" and "kissing of the book."

Former State Senator (wasn't B. Blackwelder, of Hickory, was it; something of an executive class Monday when he took the oath as a member of the new Banking Commission.

He was one former legislator who was not appointed to a post created by the Assembly of which was a member.

Speaker Lobb, Ward was in town Monday with the palm of his right hand practically covered with a strip of adhesive tape.

He denied having hurt it shaking hands in pursuance of any deep dark political design and advanced he injured it "doing house work."

Lobby said he hasn't done much politicking since the Assembly adjourned.

"I'm just working hard and trying to make a living," he said.

Our co-laborer of the recent legislator, Lynn Nisbet, dropped by the office Monday morning.

"What do you think of the war outlook?" asked your correspondent.

"Right now I'm not interested in a more skimish like a World war," crashed Lynn. "I'm going out to see a real Armageddon—today's municipal election."

IT'S ODD, But It's Science

BRAKES ARE TESTED BEFORE THEY'RE MADE

Ann Arbor, Mich.—A 40,000 volt electric spark is looking at the safety of your auto brakes and engine while they are still molten metal.

The spark is part of a special spectograph developed at the University of Michigan to test castings before they are cast. A few drops of the molten stuff are taken from furnace ladles and given to the spark.

Its flash vaporizes the metal and a camera photographs the spectrum lines which appear during this instant. The lines show, down to one hundredth of one per cent, how much the molten alloy contains of chromium, copper, manganese, molybdenum, nickel and silicon.

These metals are mixed in precise small amounts, and maintaining the mixture just right means good casting and elimination of disaster on the road.

It takes eight minutes to make an analysis with the Michigan method, against three hours with former chemical tests. The eight-minute trick makes it possible to catch errors in the furnace mixture and correct them before the metal is even cast.

"Some new instruments had to be made. The work was done by the University's Department of Engineering Research for the Campbell, Wiant and Cannon Foundry Company of Muskegon, Mich. The spark looks at metal for brake drums, engine blocks and heads, sleeves, crankshafts and Diesels.

Experts predicted a drop in hog prices for the 1939-40 marketing year unless consumer demand picks up.

North Carolina hay production jumped 200 pounds an acre in 1938 resulting in a 250,000-ton increase in the total yield.

THIMBLE THEATRE (Starring Popeye)

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asey Maye, Cape Cod sleuth.
Eloise, loquacious daughter of the murdered woman.

Yesterday: Jane smacks Eloise in the mouth and breaks her false teeth, when Eloise insists Mike Slade is the murderer.

Chapter 38
The Breaking Point

"HOW fortunate," Eloise said in a moment of two, "I thought to bring them—several times I haven't, and really, it's most embarrassing—but how could one anticipate—after all, falling down, or dropping them, yes. Why, everybody has accidents. But one can't anticipate—or a blow, I'm sure. But I do think it was fortunate I had another pair."

With that commentary, Eloise dismissed the situation.

"It was unfortunate," Sara said, "but I know that none of us there will mention it. Jane has been terribly upset, and she's not demonstrative, I suppose everything's seething inside her, and it came out all at once. It's too bad she landed on you and proceeded to make you her safety valve—she's probably crying her eyes out somewhere, and wondering how she can apologize."

"Poor Jane!" Eloise said. "Of course her father—that ruined her life, I know—you couldn't call her anything but flighty. Just flighty. Mother warned me of course mother understood Jane. But I couldn't help wishing—Zeb is such a nice boy. So nice-looking, and of course his family is beyond—but when I saw how things have been going lately, I just couldn't help suggesting—and I'm sure she'd have found it a very wise choice. Mother thought so, and we both hoped—but I suppose she knows her own mind."

"I'm afraid she does," Sara said.

Eloise nodded. "My own fault, I suppose—but I'm sure I didn't mean to plague her so that—really, no! My, no! I've just been trying to point out to her how Zeb—after all, that red man—and particularly now."

"I take it," Asey said, "you been suggestin' that there was a lot of sanity in hookin' Zeb, instead of botherin' with Slade, considerin' this situation?"

"Why, yes, of course, I'm sure I didn't mean to plague her till she—but, no never knows, does one?" her voice trailed off.

"One doesn't, I'm sure," Asey said. "Oh, Sara, if I stay here any longer, I'll talk like that too. See to her, will you? I'll be back."

He could well understand how Jane might have been driven to the breaking point if Eloise had been pumping out a steady if disconnected stream of propaganda in favor of Zeb Chase, and apparently she had been doing just that. That accounted for Jane's spending the previous day with Zeb. Eloise had simply driven her into it.

Weston and Jeff were in the living room, busy over a batch of papers.

"Nice hunters you are," Asey said. "Where's Jane?"

Weston smiled. "Brinley found her. I didn't know he was such a lady killer. He found her out under the trees, and brought her in, and she's crying on his shoulder in the dining room, and he seems to be handling her so well that Jeff and I decided to leave the affair to him. Asey, what's to be done? I'm going crazy and that's a fact. Cummings," he said brightly, "I'm shrugging. About all we can do is wait 'n' hope, right now."

"It Must Go Smoothly"

"I WORRY about tomorrow," Weston said. "It's town day, and tag day for our new hospital. I want it to go off, Friday is the historical day—that doesn't count much, and Saturday'll take care of itself, with the week-end crowd, and all. But tomorrow has simply got to go smoothly. Oh, I forgot. The state police head wanted you to call him. He didn't come with the governor, he came later and stayed only a few minutes. He said he'd call Lane. Asey, isn't there anything we can do to keep tomorrow from being spoiled?"

Asey sat down. "I don't think you need have any fears about tomorrow. Or tomorrow night. I got as much endurance as the next, but he done me up. He done Kay up. I sort of hope he'll rest tomorrow. Besides, he's done a number of things he ought to sit down and take stock of. On our side, we'll take stock, too. I'd say that Friday night, he ought to bounce back, bigger an' better than ever. By that time, maybe we can have doped out what he was after at the hollow tonight. Probably aimin' to plant somethin' else?"

"Plant somethin' else?"

"Yes, he's been plantin', but don't ask me to go into it now. Maybe if he'd keep on plantin', we might get some place. Honest, I can't move. I like to think of our friend somewhere, soakin' his feet in Epsom salts. You know, someone's got to cut my shoes off, the way I feel. Tell Brinley to bring Jane in here, will you? An you two go in the dinin' room."

Jeff sighed as he got up. "You may feel that way, but Wes and I are feeling worse. Our adventures in that meadow—Sara hasn't had a chance to notice this suit yet. That's the real disadvantage of having a wife, they're so fussy about clean clothes. You and Wes, Asey, can hang your suits on the line when you want, and send them to the cleaners—"

"Is that so?" Sara appeared in the doorway. "Jeff Leach, you march up this minute, and Weston you run along and change, too. Neither of you can catch cold till after Sunday. Asey, before—" don't care if you do have to talk with Jane. Before you do another thing, you go upstairs and take those things off."

"Ma'am," Asey said, "I haven't anything to change into."

"Yes, you have!" Sara said. "I phoned Syl's wife this evening, and told her to go to your house and get some clothes and have someone bring them over. These cardigans and jacket and flannel shirt are all right for local color, but that's no reason why they should grow on you."

"I sent that," Asey said. "I been borrowin' Zeb's things, an' I ain't in no condition to grow anything."

"That's what you think. Don't you laugh, Weston, you're worse. Have you any clean flannels? Well, then, go up with Jeff and take those off, and put on some pants of his. I'll see those get cleaned before tomorrow. All of you, move!"

Sara watched them go upstairs and then marched into the dining room to interview J. Arthur.

"You're dazdly clean," she said, "but you go along home, before Bessie takes to worrying and coming after you. Sometimes, I think men have no sense."

The Romance Of Beans

SHE saw him out the front door and then returned to Jane.

"Now as for you," she said, "you've indulged in enough self-pity. Go up and apologize to Eloise and answer any questions Asey wants to ask you, and then go to bed. Eloise is irritating, I'll admit. She irritates me profoundly most of the time. But that doesn't in the least justify your actions or your words. In your way, you're quite as irritating, and you'd know it if you weren't so sure that you were the only pebble on the beach."

"Why, Aunt Sara?"

"I mean it. You're so occupied with your problems, and your life, and your misfortunes, and particularly your misfortunes—and your two beans, and your trials and your tribulations—for heaven's sakes, if you want Mike Slade, take him. He'll doubtless beat you daily, but he may beat in some sense."

"I—why—no one ever talked to me like that—"

"That's the trouble with you. Now you've heard the truth, run along."

Sara turned out the lights and walked briskly into the hallway.

"You've been very kind, Dr. Cummings," she said brightly. "But now we're going to bed. Zeb, go to bed. You've got to be at the store early. I heard you say so. Good night, doctor."

"Upon my word, Sara, you're certainly speeding the departing."

"Good night."

Sara closed the door behind him, turned the key and shot the bolt above, just as Asey came out of his room.

Dillon Graham Allows It'll Be The Yankees And Reds

He Selects Cubs, Red Sox To Come Home Second Best

By DILLON GRAHAM
(AP Feature Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—After a tour of baseball's spring training Palmetto belt, during which I gathered a handful of sandspurs, a sunburned face and an occasional cut nod from the managers, I'm sold on the Yankees and the Reds.

I'm convinced the National league race will be closer than a miser's fist. And that the American league teams will be bunched, too—bunched together behind the Yanks.

That, by the way, is a good place to be. If you were in front of the Yanks, you'd probably get your ears knocked off.

DILLON GRAHAM
The Yankees Are Not Sure Things. Neither is Money in the Bank...

As a precautionary note, before you rush out and wager the family dime on my forecasts, remember I save you Fighting Fox in last year's Derby.

(My latest report from Churchill Downs, if you're still interested, is that Fighting Fox just passed the three-quarter pole.)

The Yankees are not sure things. Neither is money in the bank. Lou Gehrig, the old Iron Horse, has slowed down to a trot. Gornes and Red Ruffing are a year older. But pitchers Oral Hildebrand and Wes Ferrell and outfielders Charlie Keller and Joe Gallagher should atke up any slack. The Yanks are still tops with me.

The others may wind up like this:

- Boston
  - Detroit
  - Cleveland
  - Chicago
  - Washington
  - St. Louis
  - Philadelphia
- The Red Sox, paced by batting champion Jimmy Foss, are a good long shot but to stop the Yanks, Boston definitely has the pennant bug. Pitching has handcuffed the Red Sox and, taking a gambler's chance, Joe Cronin traded two stars, outfielder Ben Chapman and third baseman Pinky Higgins, to get twirling aid—Dennis Cahoon, Elden Auker and Jake Wade. They're strictly no fireballs but they may be mighty helpful.
- Outfielder Ted Williams and infielder Jim Tabor are likely to be rookie sensations but they'll hardly knock in as many runs as Chapman and Higgins.
- Detroit will be dangerous if Freddy Hutchinson and Schooby Bowe both have great seasons. Freddy is the year's high-priced recruit, but his slants didn't puzzle anyone down South. Outfield punch and catching finesse is lacking. Rookie Frank Croucher looks good at shortstop and Homerun Hitter Hank Greenberg and Rudy York should knock in a pile of runs.
- Even an anticipated great year for Bob Feller won't keep Cleveland from the skids if Johnny Allen's arm remains troublesome. The others shouldn't cause much worry, altho Washington may offer an occasional headache if Bucky Harris finds a winner among his Cuban colony.
- Here's the National league outlook:

Cincinnati
Chicago
New York
Pittsburgh
St. Louis
Boston
Brooklyn
Philadelphia

The Reds may win by the margin of a redoubt's shout. So far as I can determine they're the only contenders who strengthened themselves. They've got hitting, fine fielding and probably the best tossing.

An able-bodied Lee Grissom and an improved Whitey Moore should bolster a crack corps that includes Paul Derringer, Johnny Vander Meer and Bucky Walters. The infield looks better with Bill Werber at third.

I doubt that the Cubs are stronger. The loss of Bill Jurges didn't help. The Giants rate no better than third until it is known whether Hubble and Schumacher can pitch. Pittsburgh fumbled its chance last year and won't likely threaten again.

Boston has added power, perhaps at the expense of its defense. Brooklyn should be a trifle improved. Branch Ricker said the Cards could finish anywhere from first to seventh, and that still goes. A compromise on fifth position would be a good estimate.

Even an old time dentist like Doc Prothro has found the Phillies have too many cavities to fill.

ECTC DEFEATS VIRGINIA NINE

Coach Gilbert's ECTC nine yesterday won its second game of the year, defeating the Norfolk division of William and Mary, 9-3 in that city. The Pirates were declared to have looked better in yesterday's contest than in any this season.

Yesterday's victory gave the locals a 500 average for this season, having won two, lost two and tied one.

Wells' batted six-hit for the local college team, while his teammates were garnering 16 off Cantega of the Virginia outfit. Hinton was behind the plate for ECTC

IT'S 'PLAY BALL' FOR BIG LEAGUES

The 1939 season of major league baseball got off to a start under threatening skies and a damp ground at Cincinnati with a game between the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates. Managers Bill McKechnie (left) of the Reds and Pie Traynor of the Pirates are shown talking matters over just before the ump called 'play ball'

Snakes Best Wilkes-Barre

Tarboro, April 18.—Tarboro's Serpents made a home appearance yesterday a successful one by downing the Eastern League's Wilkes-Barre team, 8-7. An eighth-inning rally within the park to break a 6-6 tie won for the Snakes.

Vahalla, starting pitcher for Wilkes-Barre, tamed Tarboro with two hits and no runs. But his successor, Pology, ran into trouble and yielded enough runs to win the tilt. Dreswick hit two homers over the left field wall for the visitors, and Taftter contributed another to the Wilkes-Barre cause. Hal Lee, Serpent centerfielder, got a four-bagger within the park to break a 6-6 tie in the eighth.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Bobbie Coon

Hollywood—Gene Autry, the spur-and-jingle-man, is a spur-of-the-moment guy when it comes to clothes, too.... Walked into his tailor's the other day, saw some material he liked, had it made up—and bled into a party wearing the result.... Hazel blue, he calls it, but that doesn't sound brilliant enough.

Gene's next is a story inspired by the recent pony express race to the San Francisco fair.... Must have been written the day the race began, because it's ready to shoot now.

May Robson's door "chime" is an old fashioned cowbell.... She takes it down Halloween's.

Since Mussolini muscled in on Albania for "protective purposes," the local fish-peddlers (agents who get 10 per cent of their clients' earnings) have a new name for stealing their rivals' stars.... They call it "protection."

Sam Wood says he got a genuine "sneak" preview on his made-in-England production of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips".... He screened it at Reading on a holiday, to an English audience which came to see a thriller and never seemed to understand why they were seeing an unbillied film.

George Raft made his first tour of his new studio lot the other day—his first although he'd finished a picture there. He toured in a natty spring suit, greeted old friends and new, looked like his usual band-box self.... Tour was postponed because during picture he wore con-vict's stripes—and a fella wants to look right when he meets people.

Tyrone Power, who made one of those "best-dressed, best-hated" lists, pays $70 per suit—and has only three hats, two of which he wears occasionally, the third being a sentimental treasure and too small for him.... Which last item suggests a nasty crack which will be omitted here because there isn't a chap around town who's kept his hat-size better than Ty has.

Mickey Rooney, who rates in the first ten box-office stars, makes $1,000 a week—exactly half what Freddie Bartholomew draws down.... Freddie got started sooner, at the top in fame, whereas Mickey did a long stretch of ladder-climbing.

Bette Davis' birthday present from her studio was a $5,000 portrait.

technique provoked the obvious query as to his future intentions. A man who, equipped only with an umbrella, could have taken Chamberlain's place in that conference (results) could have a future in with Hitler (and maybe with better Hollywood, surely). How about that frequent report he's being urged to play himself in his former press gallery role in the picture?

"What? And take the bread from the mouth of some struggling actor? Not for me—I do my acting only before the Gridiron Banquet."

He came originally for ten weeks—"how long I'll stay I don't know. I think only Frank Capra knows that, and he hasn't told me."

I was eager to hear the verdict of a staid Washingtonian on Hollywood glimmer—but Jim Preston hasn't been exposed to it. He's made friends with the carpenters—"amazing, great fellows"—and he visits around the other sets when he isn't wanted on Capra's.

The other day on the set where Buster Keaton was making a comedy Jim was standing by innocently when a strange gentleman approached and proffered him an umbrella. Jim Preston looked, and saw a cameraman lurking not far behind, and he ducked. Buster Keaton still hasn't got a portrait of Chamberlain via Preston. It appears that Jim doesn't go for publicity—which makes him unique in this man's town.

In fact, if Hollywood had a Hall of Archives, Jim Preston would rate a niche for that reason if no other.

THE ANVIL CHORUS
WITH A FALSE RING

Versailles, Ky. (AP)—The loud singing at the county jail window did not ring true to Jailer John P. Reeden. There was a reason.

A group of prisoners were vocalizing lustily to drown out the banging of two who were trying to bore through the brick wall below the window with an iron pipe.

Reeden soon stopped both the singing and the drilling.

By Lydia Gray Shaw

1. Pretty snappy outfit, isn't it? I think so myself. I'm pretty proud of my fuzzy sweater and my blue blanket. And my shiny new harness, too. Mother just got that for me 'cause I'm getting big enough to be frisky. She doesn't want me to fall out of the carriage, so she straps me to the sides. Says when I'm big enough to walk, she'll tie a lead rein to it, and let me totter down the street.

2. Here comes Mother now, ready to take me for my ride. We go out every day this time, when the sun is warm, and I can get a little sun tan. Mother gets her exercise pushing me down to the store, and I wait for her outside in the carriage in the sun. I've had sun baths since I was two weeks old. Just face and hands in the winter, but all over in the summer. That's why I'm so healthy and brown.

3. My, do I like to bounce along! The carriage is nice and springy, and even though I've grown fast, it's still big enough for me. I can lie down for my nap without having my toes crowded. Pretty soon though, I'll have to use the carriage just for sit-up rides. Mother doesn't want me to be cramped when I sleep. My, the air smells good. I'm certainly going to have a great big appetite when I get home.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 18.—(AP)—Traders sold a few more stocks and prices slipped further in today's market, but real liquidating pressure was absent.
Dealings were exceptionally listless most of the time. Declines of fractions to more than a point predominated near the fourth hour, although a handful of modest gains was in evidence.
Corporate bonds were mixed.

OFFER HONORS TO YOUNG MEN

Four Scholarships Open to C.M.T.C. Enrollees

Lieut. Needham E. Ward of Greenville, chairman of the Military Training Camps Association for Pitt county, announced yesterday that the commanding general Fourth Corps Area, has allotted four scholarships to the Citizens Military Training Camp to be held at Fort Bragg June 15-July 14. These scholarships have been given through the efforts of the Military Training Camps Association by institutions of learning for award to this summer's trainees from this district. These scholarships are as follows:

1. Furman University, Greenville, S. C., two scholarships, value $75 each. Period 1 year. For freshman primarily. If no freshmen apply, then applicants from other classes may be considered. Additional expenses approximately $70.
  2. Newberry College, Newberry, S. C., two scholarships, value $100 each. Period, throughout recipient's college course if merited. Additional expenses, approximately $275.
- These scholarships will be awarded in each instance to outstanding trainees who expect to matriculate at the institutions noted. In all cases, the award of scholarships will be dependent upon the trainees ability to meet the entrance requirements. Applications of all trainees of the camp will be given careful consideration in making the final selections for the award of scholarships.
- In previous year, competition for the scholarships awarded has been keen and trainees selected have made creditable records in the institutions in which they have matriculated.
- Young men attending these camps are no more likely to be called to the colors in time of war than other men. However, in a national emergency if they volunteer or are selected for service they are likely to secure more rapid advancement and to be able to defend their country effectively.
- A candidate must be an American citizen or one who has taken out first papers for naturalization, physically qualified, and of good character. He must have reached his 17th birthday by the day camp opens and not have passed his 29th birthday.
- A physical examination, inoculation against typhoid, vaccination against smallpox, and a certificate of good moral character are required.

Colored News

The Play Celestial began its organization Monday night with a large number attending. The director has contacted several of the best colored singers and feels confident that by the last of the week the entire 100 participating will be in line.

This is one of the outstanding plays that is being presented in the country today by a colored cast. The citizens of Greenville will receive a great treat from the presentation of this play. The play is being sponsored by the Cornerstone Baptist church of which Rev. J. E. Tillet is pastor.

with it from the bringing prediction that within six months the state will be able to acquire and turn over 3,000 acres. A maximum of 2,000 acres of shoreline to be regarded as desirable.

Hatteras National Seashore will be the final great national beach park. The site—the Outer Banks from Oregon Inlet to Ocracoke Inlet—was selected by Federal park men as the best in America for a recreational area.

Federal Park officials predict that the National Seashore when formally opened will be the most popular recreation ground in the country because of the distinctive character and its accessibility to large centers of population.

has been for use in the current years, while the Reynolds Foundation has made available sums about hope-inspiring counts, the Tar Heel legislators were, of course wholly responsible. They put on the statute books the two laws which the State Health officer regards as almost ideal, the statute requiring physical examination before marriage and the act making mandatory blood tests for pregnant women. These laws Dr. Reynolds thinks, are so worded as to be almost impossible of nullification except by the laxest sort of enforcement. They supplement the previously-existing law regarding voluntary examination of domestic servants, and law requiring all afflicted with syphilis to take proper treatment.

Dr. Reynolds said the Department plans no radical departure from the principles on which the anti-syphilis campaign has been waged.

"Statistics show the tremendous turn for the better taken which we changed from agitation to activity in the matter of controlling syphilis," he said in indicating that the Department will go forward along lines already mapped out.

There are now, he recalled, 76 counties in which there are anti-syphilis setups in co-operation with either the Federal government or the Reynolds Foundation. In 18 full advantages has been taken of the Reynolds money, Federal and all other funds, with the result that in these the setup is termed by Dr. Reynolds.

They are not new and, therefore, not news in a technical sense.

but Dr. Reynolds called attention to the figures on syphilis control and eradication since January, 1936, pointing particularly to the amazing increase in "cases reported" "blood tests given" and "cases treated in public clinics" since funds were first made available in any sizeable amount and when the drive really got under way.

These statistics, by six months periods follows:

Period	Cases R.n.	B1 Test	Treatments
Jan-June, 36	7,766	70,656	55,911
July-Dec. 36	9,569	83,488	63,668
