

Hitler Observes Birthday By Reviewing War Power No Action Toward Danzig

MADE CITIZEN OF FREE CITY

Despite Rumors That Fuehrer would Take District on His 50th Birthday, Receiving of Honorary Citizenship Papers Only Mention of Area; Military Review Largest History Berlin

Berlin, April 20.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, the World war corporal who became "augmentor of the Reich," today paraded a cross section of the armed might which gave him mastery of Central Europe, before distinguished foreign guests attending the celebration of his 50th birthday.

It was the largest military review ever witnessed in Berlin.

Forty thousand soldiers, tanks, motorized equipment and artillery passed by in a parade which lasted four and one half hours while air squadrons roared overhead.

Shortly before the parade started Hitler became an honorary citizen of the free city of Danzig, receiving the citizenship papers from the hands of Albert Foerster, Nazi district leader of the Free City.

There had been rumors that Danzig, German territory before the World war, might be a birthday present for the Fuehrer, but Hitler received only the honorary citizenship.

Features of the parade were mammoth new types of long-range air defense artillery emphasis on motorized artillery and development of air defense units.

The grimmest engineers of war however, were seen with the passage of a regiment of heavy artillery.

First came caterpillar trucks, each drawing a six-inch or eight-inch cannon. Then came four immense pieces of artillery, apparently 10-inch guns. Each was carried on five big trucks for the mount and mechanism, and one for the gun barrel.

There was only one of these super-cannons in last year's parade, and the sight of four drew one of the greatest cheers of the day.

Hitler, surrounded by his close collaborators, attentively reviewed the entire parade from a canopied tribune erected along the "Avenue of Splendor."

The U. S. was represented at the review by Charge d'Affaires Raymond Gest. The United States embassy flew the stars and stripes in keeping with the custom for such events Britain's and France's colors also were displayed at their embassies.

Local Fire Chief Asks Cooperation

George Gardner, chief of the Greenville fire department, today urged persons who rush to a fire out of curiosity to park their cars at least two or three blocks from the scene of the blaze.

He said that many people have the habit of rushing to a fire and driving their car right up to where the truck is parked. Such a custom, he said, delays firemen in reaching the scene and also interferes with laying the hose.

Chief Gardner also asked that citizens obey the law to the extent that they not pull out behind the truck when it is on the way to a fire. Statutes provide that all motorists must pull to the curb and stop.

The chief said he was asking this cooperation on the part of the citizens for their own protection. Delay caused by interference of spectators can cause a fire to get beyond control, he explained.

ECTC Coach to Speak To Local Kiwanians

O. A. Hankner, the new director of physical education at East Carolina Teachers College, will discuss "Recreation in the Development of Youth" at the regular meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis Club to be held at the Woman's Club on Friday evening at 6:30.

The speaker, who recently succeeded Coach J. D. Alexander at E. C. T. C., was formerly at Eureka College, Eureka, Ill., the University of Illinois, State Teachers College of Wisconsin, and held a fellowship at New York University.

HE HAULED DEAD WOMAN—JAILED

Dennis M. Bracey, president of a tile manufacturing company, is shown in jail at Memphis, Tenn., after he was charged with murdering his friend, Mrs. Dora Singer, 32. He pleaded not guilty at arraignment. Bracey drove into Batesville, Miss., with Mrs. Singer's body in his automobile. Sheriff L. S. Manning said Bracey told him he and the woman ran a hose from the exhaust pipe inside the car in a suicide pact. He claimed the fumes killed her but he, himself, did not even "lose consciousness."

BUSY SESSION IN PITT COURT

Negro On Trial For Assaulting 97-Year-Old Woman

The case charging Frank Green, Negro, with breaking and entering the home of Mary Tucker, 97-year-old Chicod colored woman, assaulting and carnally abusing her, was being tried in Pitt Superior court this afternoon.

A large number of cases were disposed of yesterday afternoon and this morning.

Ray Tyson, charged with giving worthless checks, was ordered to pay one-half the amount of the checks and one-half of the court costs.

Jack Stokes pleaded guilty to having liquor for sale and judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs.

A charged of careless and reckless driving against Mrs. W. R. Snook was not pressed.

Isaiah Edwards, Negro, was convicted of having carnal knowledge of a girl under 14 years of age and was given a 10-year sentence, suspended upon condition he pay into the office of the clerk of court a sum to be fixed by the Welfare de-

Bellamy Law Considered Forest Protection Help

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, April 20.—The North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development regards the forestry law, sponsored by State Senator Emmett H. Bellamy of New Hanover county and enacted by the recent General Assembly, as a long stride forward in the better care and protection of the state's forests and woodlands.

Director R. Bruce Etheridge today pointed out that it does much toward assuring the state of an adequate supply of pulpwood and timber in the future and gives the department much greater opportunity to look after the forest areas of the state.

The law inaugurates a definite policy and plan of cooperation of the forestry division with both private and public forest owners to

Parts Slain Woman's Body Found in Backyard

Baltimore, April 20.—(AP)—Police Commissioner Robert Stanton announced today police had obtained a confession from a man held in the Baltimore torso murder.

The commissioner said Inspector Stephen Nelson telephoned him the prisoner had given complete details of the killing of the woman, parts of whose body were found in the man's backyard and parts in various sewers.

Stanton said he was informed that Aurelio Marco Torquino, 45, a steel worker and former tavern keeper, had made a full confession that he murdered Evelyn Rice, a bar maid who formerly worked for him.

The young woman's head and other portions of her butchered body were unearthed in Torquino's backyard early today. Police had gone to his East Baltimore home after arresting him last night and grilling him for six hours.

Mrs. Louise Bridges, a neighbor, said Evelyn Rice was from somewhere in Georgia. Police said they understood her home town was Americus, Ga. She lived in Torquino's home and had been missing since Thursday.

Police found the head buried in quinine under a layer of rock in Torquino's backyard. As they lifted the head from a pit, Frank Peterson, a neighbor leaned over his back fence, glanced at the long streaming hair and said "that's Evelyn."

Answer False Alarm. Greenville firemen were called to the corner of Fourth and Washington streets last night about 10:15 o'clock by a false alarm. The lever was pulled partly down and the alarm sounded only once.

COLLEGES IN CHINA KEPT ON MARCH

Shanghai, China, April 20.—(AP)—Due to the Sino-Japanese conflict Chinese educators have coined a new Chinese phrase meaning "Universities on the march."

It described the condition of China's higher institutions of learning after fighting changed the educational map of China.

Before the start of the Sino-Japanese war there were 114 universities and colleges—including fifteen major universities supported by the Chinese government—training Chinese men and women leaders of the future.

During the fighting 54 of these schools have been destroyed by aerial bombs, artillery bombardments, or fire, and 82 have been forced to move, faculties and students moving out just ahead of the incoming Japanese invaders.

DOLLAR VALUE TOPIC OF HOT HOUSE DEBATE

Charged Citizens Are Treated Worse Than German Jews

CITES INJUSTICES OF DEVALUATION

House Completes Congressional Action on $66,800,000 Bill For New Navy Air Bases

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—Representative Robison (R-Ky.) charged in hot debate on monetary legislation today that the administration in devaluing the dollar had treated American citizens "worse than Hitler treated the Jews."

Robison's protest, in House discussion of extending the President's monetary powers followed an assertion by Rep. Martin (D-Col.) that the dollar today is "the safest in the world."

Robison said Hitler imposed only a 10 per cent tax on the wealth of German Jews, whereas the United States in effect levied a 40 per cent tax on all Americans when it lowered the gold content of the dollar in 1934.

While debate proceeded, members of the Democratic whip organization acted to see to it that party supporters were on the floor to meet any Republican sniping at the bill.

Other developments: The House completed congressional action on a $66,800,000 bill authorizing a chain of new navy air bases in Alaska, the mid-Pacific and Puerto Rico. The measure now goes to the White House.

President Roosevelt signed the bill authorizing an increase from $49,000,000 to $80,000,000 in the annual appropriation to assist states in the administration of the unemployment compensation laws.

By a 234 to 118 roll call vote, the House refused to approve a bill exempting from labeling requirements of the new food and drug act certain physicians who dispense remedies for asthma and hay fever.

The Senate postponed until Monday debate on a bill to consolidate the government's relief activities, because of the illness of Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) the measure's manager.

A State Department official said Premier Mussolini's speech concerning President Roosevelt's peace proposals, while disappointing, might still leave some room for co-operative action.

Should the President wish to pursue peace and settlement of difficulties by the conference method, this official said, he might find a basis in the fact that there were some indications of peaceful intentions in the Italian Premier's response.

President Roosevelt will not congratulate Chancellor Hitler on his 50th birthday.

This, a State Department official said, was in accord with the practice here of not sending birthday greetings to any but ruling monarchs.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh conferred for 25 minutes with the President today, but would not tell reporters what was discussed.

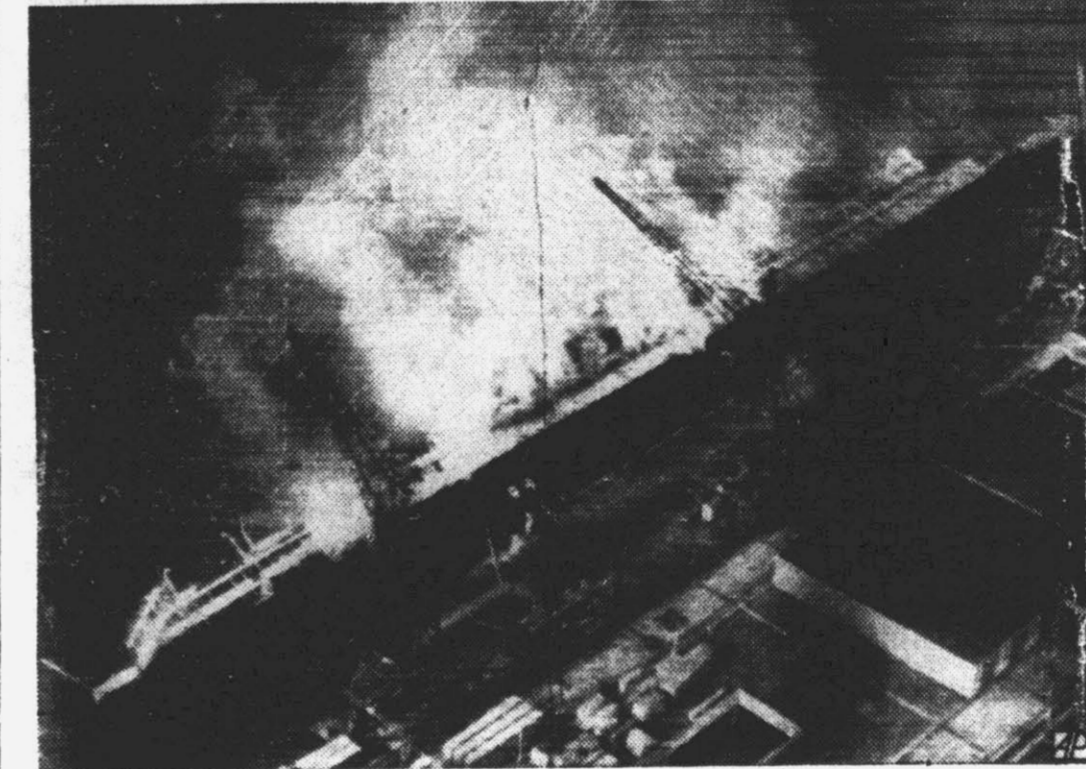

Dressed in a gray business suit and a gray hat, Lindbergh arrived at the White House for his appointment. He was required to wait 35 minutes in an ante-room because the President was far behind in receiving callers.

Mr. Alderman died suddenly from a heart attack suffered in Stokes yesterday afternoon.

It was not announced if the concert will be presented at a later date.

LINER PARIS BURNS AND SINKS AT LE HAVRE

This radiophoto shows the liner Paris, once the flagship of the French line, as she began to sink in 36 feet of water at Le Havre, France, with flames sweeping her from bow to stern. Two persons were killed and two injured in the battle to control the flames. Officials believe the fire was started by foreign saboteurs. An Italian dock worker was held for questioning.

WIFE OF LINDY SAILS FOR U.S.

Boards Liner With Two Small Sons And Their Nurse

Le Havre, France, April 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, her two small sons and their nurse boarded the liner Champlain today for the United States, where they will join Colonel Lindbergh.

Lindbergh sailed April 8. He is now in Washington where the War Department has called him to active duty to make a survey of United States aviation facilities.

Mrs. Lindbergh declined to talk to reporters who approached her on the dock. Boarding the ship, she and her family remained in their cabin.

(This will be the first visit to the United States of Land, who was born May 12, 1937, in London.) His brother, Jon, who will be seven years old next August 16, has not been in the United States since he was taken to England in December, 1935, by his parents.

They went aboard the Champlain at 1 p. m. five hours before the vessel was scheduled to sail as a replacement for the liner Paris, which burned and foundered yesterday, only a few hours before its sailing time.

Concert Called Off by Oxford Orphanage

The Oxford Orphanage concert scheduled to be presented in the Greenville high school auditorium tomorrow night, has been called off because of the death of L. W. Alderman, manager of the singing class of the institution.

Mr. Alderman died suddenly from a heart attack suffered in Stokes yesterday afternoon.

It was not announced if the concert will be presented at a later date.

Increase Is Shown In Postal Receipts Here

Postal receipts in Greenville totaled $14,376.05 during the quarter ended March 31, compared with $14,104.84 during the corresponding period last year, it was announced today by F. L. Whitehurst, assistant postmaster.

January and February of this year showed a slight increase over the two months in 1938, but the March, 1939, receipts were slightly lower than those of March of last year.

L. W. ALDERMAN DIES IN COUNTY

Was Manager of Oxford Orphanage Singing Class

LeRoy Walton Alderman, 64, manager of the Oxford Orphanage Singing Class, died suddenly Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Stokes, in Stokes.

The funeral cortege left the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons funeral home this afternoon at 2 o'clock for Oxford, where brief funeral services will be conducted and the body will remain in Oxford until 7 o'clock tonight in the main auditorium of the chapel. The body will then be carried to the home of his brother, A. E. Alderman, near Dunn, and will remain there until 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, at which time the body will be taken to Spring Branch Baptist Church and will lie in state until 3 o'clock.

Friday afternoon funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Charles W. Howard, pastor of Campbell College and burial will follow in Greenwood cemetery at Dunn. Services at the grave will be in charge of the Dunn Masonic lodge at the request of Raleigh Lodge No. 500, of which Mr. Alderman held life membership. Surviving are three brothers, A. E. Alderman, Dunn, Route 1; the

FOUR SLAYERS NOW ON TRIAL

Roy Kelly and Companions on Trial For Life

Graham, N. C., April 20.—(AP)—Roy Kelly, on trial for his life here, along with Ralph and Wade Hanford and George Smith in the killing of two officers during a robbery in Burlington last December 7, admitted that he and the other defendants and Roy Huffman, slain also during the robbery, plotted and executed the whole crime which led to the triple slaying. Sergeant Pete Davis of the Burlington police force told a jury in Superior court here today.

Sheriff M. P. Robertson and Burlington Officer S. W. Vaughn were victims of the slayings.

Officer Davis said that Kelly made a complete confession while he was being brought back from Virginia, where he was turned over to North Carolina officers after his apprehension following the wounding of a state trooper pursuing him. The witness said Kelly told him that Huffman and the two Hanfords entered the filling station while Kelly himself waited in a car parked behind another car in which George Smith waited.

When they heard shots, Kelly said he and Smith waited until the Hanfords ran out of the station, picked them up and drove off at high speed. When they cruised by a few moments later they saw a blue-coated figure lying on the ground. CITES ERRORS OF GEOGRAPHY

Il Duce Asserts Guarantees Asked by Mr. Roosevelt Are Unnecessary and Failed to Take Into Consideration "Pyramidal Errors of Geography"; Declaration May Be Italy's Only Reply

Rome, April 20.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today rejected President Roosevelt's plea for a decade of peace by non-aggression guarantees on grounds that they were unnecessary, and failed to take into consideration "pyramidal errors of geography."

But, speaking in the shadow of the historic statue of Julius Caesar in the Roman capital, Il Duce cited Italy's plans for a world exposition in 1942 as a "promising indication that we do not intend to attack anyone."

His speech broadcast in response to a report on the exposition's progress, unexpectedly furnished Italy's reply to the United States President in advance of the response which Chancellor Hitler of Germany intends to make in Berlin April 28.

While Il Duce was speaking, Hitler was celebrating his 50th birthday by watching a great martial display in Berlin.

Indicating he might not make any further formal reply to Mr. Roosevelt who last Saturday proposed 10-year non-aggression pledges by Germany and Italy to 31 nations to be followed by a disarmament and economic conference, Mussolini dealt with the principal points of that message.

He said it was "absolutely unjust of view, to attempt to place nations and unjustifiable on any point of the (Rome-Berlin) axis on the seat of accused."

Whether or not any reply other than his speech today goes to Mr. Roosevelt, he said the policy of Italy and of the axis was "inspired by the criterion of peace and of collaboration."

He rejected the idea of reciprocal guarantee against aggression both on the grounds that it did not take into consideration geographical errors and because such a proposal came from individuals without "even rudimentary knowledge of European affairs."

Deputy Collector Of Revenue Now In City

Nate Parker, deputy internal revenue collector, is spending today and tomorrow in Greenville to aid persons in the handling of federal tax matters.

Mr. Parker will be located in the Merchants Association offices in the federal building.

Still Is Destroyed. J. L. Taylor, Pitt county ABC officer, yesterday located and destroyed a 50-gallon copper liquor still in Chicod township, near Gardner's crossroads. The still was not in operation when found, and no mash was about the scene. Officer Taylor expressed the belief that the still had just been moved.

Win Honors At N. C. Federation. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Mrs. T. E. Hooker, Mrs. W. H. Woolard and Mrs. E. M. Crisp have returned from Raleigh, where they attended the meeting of the North Carolina Federation of Woman's Clubs. The art exhibit at the convention was judged by Russell T. Smith of the University of North Carolina, Mr. McDonald, head of the art department of Duke University, and Henry J. MacMillan of Wilmington. The judges declared that this exhibit was the finest exhibit of work done by North Carolina artists ever shown in the state. The club in Greenville is very proud that two of its members won prizes at this meeting. From sixty-two entries only twenty-two were accepted by the judges, and in this number were two paintings by Mrs. C. W. Hearne of Greenville. Mrs. Hearne won the Mrs. S. Clay Williams cup for her portrait "Allison in Wonderland." Mrs. W. C. Harris won the Federation cup for her sonnet "The Fire of Life in a Handful of Dust." The judges declared that the work of Mrs. Harris very superior and only wished they had four cups to give for the four sonnets entered by her. The Greenville Woman's Club was rated a one hundred per cent club for its club activities during the year, and was recognized as having staged the most elaborate Fine Arts Festival in the state.

To Appear Here Monday. "An Evening with Carl Sandburg" is really what the audience will have at E.C.T.C. next Monday night, when one of the leading poets of America appears in an evening's program. Though Mr. Sandburg is a laid, reserves to himself the right to adapt his topic to his audience in any way he wishes and may not call his lecture by that title. Indeed, Mr. Sandburg is a rule unto himself in many ways. Even the bureau that arranges for his appearance declares that it cannot give the hours of his arrival and departure, and adds, "Mr. Sandburg is the only artist on our list who follows no pre-arranged itinerary, and on whom we cannot give you advance-travel information." Mr. Sandburg is said to be one of the best of the poets now interpreting their own works, as his voice is both powerful and mellow and is capable of expressing a wide variety of emotions. In order words, this poet is a "character," one who has retained his strong individuality. He impresses his "heart's" as fundamentally honest and sincere, capable of high indignation at abuses of any kind, but with a saving sense of humor that keeps things in proper proportions.

Miller-Jones Company, among other forward steps, and always alert to the needs of the consumer, is just now inaugurating the operation of its own factories for the production of men's and women's shoes, styled, constructed and priced to meet the requirements of Miller-Jones' customers, throughout its entire group of stores. For its other shoes requirements, Miller-Jones is still affiliated with one of this country's largest shoe manufacturing companies who has recently completed a program of modernization and streamlining of machinery and layout, designed to permit flexibility and rapid-fire change, so necessary to keep abreast of the requirements of discriminating consumers.

These two very recent steps forward will enable Miller-Jones, better than ever before, to supply its customers with smart, stylish, comfortable and moderate-priced footwear. Similar improvements have just been accomplished by the producers of Miller-Jones hosiery, so that the customer may find in this item maximum values, matching beauty of appearance with serviceability, and at prices well within the limits of the average budget.

In the Miller-Jones store the woman shopper will find a helpful arrangement whereby she can purchase shoes and hosiery for her own need, and also for all the other members of her family. ### GERMANY DEVELOPS AIRPLANE ENGINES WITHOUT CARBURETORS

Berlin.—(AP)—A new twelve-cylinder airplane motor without carburetor is hailed here as Germany's latest contribution towards modern aviation.

Constructed by the Junkers works the engine is described as being not much heavier than the motor of a big passenger car. It is said to develop 1200 hp. The place of the carburetor is taken by a fuel pump which injects an

Another claim that the danger of fire is reduced greatly by this system of pump feeding, as no inflammable mixture is formed outside of the combustion chambers.

Another advantage is said to be a considerable saving of fuel as compared to a carburetor-equipped motor of the same size. The saving is estimated at between 15 and 20 per cent, which means greater flying range or increased payload.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asy Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Eloise, daughter of the murdered woman.

Yesterday, Slade confesses to Asy that Jane and he are ashamed of themselves, and are going to turn over a new leaf.

Chapter 40 Pushed

IT WAS mid-afternoon before Asy remembered that he had failed to ask Jane and Eloise about the path Kay had found. Turning in his last judge's slip, he drove up to Hill Hollow.

The fine drizzle had not curtailed the tourists' enthusiasm. The Randalls' house and barn were surrounded by customers.

"I wish," Lane said, "all the historical spots weren't on this road. They see those figures, and stop, and—there. There goes one and stop, and another. That helps. Jane? She's up to her ears. Eloise just went indoors, into the house. At least I think she did. There's Jane now—yell and ask her."

"Eloise?" Jane said. "She went for heavy card and boxes to pack some stuff in before some man gets back from viewing the wishing well. In the house cellar, she is. I've got to dash—tell her to hurry, will you?"

Asy went into the house and walked out to the kitchen. The cellar steps, steep and protected only by a swinging railing, were in the corner.

"Eloise!" he bent over the rail and called. "Miss Randall! I wonder if—"

At his hand was the electric light switch. He flicked it on and peered down into the tiny circular cellar.

Eloise lay in a heap at the foot of the steps.

Asy mounted the stairs a few minutes later, Lane hurried into the kitchen.

"Say, Asy," he began, "Jane wants you to tell Eloise she must hurry. That man has to be here. You go tell Jane. Asy said, 'to carry on without Eloise. Say I'm busy with her. Then you lock the doors an' come back here.'"

"What's the matter?"

"Look down there."

Lane stared down at the figure in the cellar.

"Is she badly hurt? Fell, did she?"

"She's dead," Asy said. "Fell, or was pushed. Probably the last, if you want the bitter truth."

"Why Not Suicide?"

"I'll go clear these people out," Lane said, starting for the door.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Asy told him. "Look, this business can't be made public any more than the other. You can't send me off—you're the gardener. You can't say who you are without giving everything away. Go find Jane. She'll tell you I'm busy with her. Change it. Say that Eloise has had a sick spell, an' we've called the doc, but not to come in an' excite her. Just to carry on with the customers. Now, hurry. Before she comes in."

He managed, by a miracle, to get Cummings at his office phone.

"Hello," he said briefly. "Cellar stairs this trip. No, not Jane. Look, can you get someone to help Jane—your wife? Good. Tell her all you have to. I want her."

An hour later, Cummings, Asy, Lane and Hamilton sat in the kitchen. The shades were drawn. On the table were Cummings' open bags, and Lane's camera, and a suitcase with more of his paraphernalia.

"All right," Cummings said, "we've hashed enough. Now, Asy, why not suicide?"

"She fell backwards an' landed on her back. You say her head hit the cement floor, an' she died in a second."

"True, but couldn't she trip up the stairs as well as down them? When I first got my bifocals, I tripped upstairs for a week."

"She went downstairs," Asy said, "for heavy card an' boxes. Neither's been touched. Therefore she never got downstairs to get what she was after. Never had a chance to."

"Wait," Lane said. "There was that pair of shears on the floor. Suppose she got halfway down, remembered she'd left the shears, and started back, and then tripped?"

"The shears," Asy pointed out, "was way over by the stove. She came in the dinin' room door. If she'd detoured way around to the stove an' dropped 'em there, she certainly would have recalled the fact before she got halfway down the steps. B'sides, what'd she do for? She was after something, an' she was on her way to it. Why cross over to the stove?"

Lane pounded on the table with his fist.

"Now, just a moment, Lane," Cummings interrupted. "I wonder if—yes, Asy's right. I know Eloise. Suppose, as she starts down the stairs, she hears someone. Turns around, sees someone. Someone menacing. She recognizes the fact that she is in danger, and hurls at the person her only weapon, the shears she has in her hand."

Lane ridiculed the doctor's story. "If she had scissors, and recognized someone as a menace, why didn't she wait and use them to stab with? That's the logical thing for anyone to do," he said. "Why throwing the shears at someone who would be like throwing a loaded gun instead of shooting it!"

'A Futile Woman'

DR. CUMMINGS sighed. "Of course, Lane, of course! That's just my point! That's what a logical person would do. I agree. So does Asy. But you fail to take into consideration the fact that Eloise is not logical. Never in this world would it have occurred to her to hold her ground and stab her assailant. Never. It's a perfectly characteristic gesture for her to hurl the shears futilely—de mortuis and all that sort of thing, and of course the woman had many good points, but she was none the less a futile woman."

"All right, all right," Lane said. "Be philosophical, if you want to, but it's the practical things that interest me. Why, if someone pushed her, is the swinging railing intact? She had either to be pushed through it, or if she was on the top step, on her way down, she'd have been clinging to it—and her grip on it would save her, or the railing would be down there with her. One thing or the other."

"Lane, Cummings said plaintively, 'you just simply do not understand the type of woman involved. You claim she pestered you—can't you tell, couldn't you tell, that she was a futile individual? Can't you tell from what you know that she never knew which way to turn a key to unlock a door? She couldn't tune a radio to save her life. She couldn't unscrew a dead electric light bulb and put in a new one. Did you ever see her try to drive that beach wagon? Man, she was a menace to public safety when she drove that vehicle! Your trouble, Lane, is that you're practical. Eloise is not practical. You'd grab the railing. Eloise would not grab the railing. Put Eloise in a shipwreck. Throw a life preserver to her. Would she put it on? No. She'd try to sit on it. Lane, can't you grasp this?"

"The woman tripped and fell," Lane said doggedly. "That's that."

"The woman," Asy said, "was pushed an' thrown. Lane, walk over to the head of the steps. That's it. Now, what do you do first, starting down, before you touch the rail, even?"

"Put on the light, of course," Lane said impatiently.

"That's what I'd do, too. But the light was off. You can say she started down, turned to put it on an' fell. But that's the one way she couldn't have fallen, because she'd have to be leaning more over the rail. She couldn't help but save herself if she started to fall then."

"Why'n't you tell me about the lights?" Lane demanded.

"You never gave me any chance I think she started down, was reachin' to put on the lights from the top step, an' heard someone. Turned around, there on the top step. Someone comes toward her from over there by the stove, an' she throws the shears. He rushes over, takes her by the shoulders an' hurls her down."

"There were the marks of your rubber soles going down and coming up," Lane said. "No marks for her, but then she came across the wooden walk and wasn't in the damp grass. But if someone threw her down, wouldn't you think they'd have gone down to make sure she was dead? And if they came from outdoors, why can't we find some marks? Any marks, here or—"

"Give the feller credit for stock-in' feet," Asy said. "B'sides, after hurlin' her straight onto a concrete floor nine feet b'low, he could be reasonably sure he'd achieved his purpose. He could have made sure by snapping on the light an' lookin' down. Let's go down there again for one more look."

The four of them went gingerly down the almost perpendicular steps.

"Why are so many cellars on Cape circular, like this?" Hamilton wanted to know.

"In the old days, bricks was scarce an' expensive," Asy said. "A circular cellar took fewer bricks than a square one. Most are semi-circular. Mine at home is."

"But this is new. Those concrete blocks aren't any old time thing."

"Prob'ly laid 'em against the old brick," Asy said, "when they made the house over."

To the right of the steps was an electric pump and a water tank, and near them an electric meter. Behind the steps was a neat pile of corrugated paper boxes and another pile of folded sheets of brown paper, all obviously salvaged. Apparently Mary Randall was a thrifty soul.

Continued tomorrow.

UNC WELCOMES HIGH STUDENTS

Thousands Flock To Debate Finals At University

Chapel Hill, April 20.—Thousands of high school students and their well-wishers from all sections of the state—more than a thousand of them—were arriving in Chapel Hill today for the opening events of High School Week which will feature the annual state championship contests in debating, track and tennis.

The 24th annual interscholastic tennis tournament began this morning and is scheduled to continue this afternoon. Final matches will be played tomorrow morning and afternoon. The 27th annual interscholastic track meet will be held on Peter Field tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and continue again that afternoon at 3.

Two hundred and forty-four youthful debaters—125 girls and 119 boys—representing 61 high schools were to hold their first meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock to draw for sections and pairs to compete in the finals for the Aycock Memorial Cup on the query: "Resolved, that the United States should establish an alliance with Great Britain."

The contestants won their rights to come to Chapel Hill through double victories in the triangular contests held throughout the state on March 31 when 235 schools representing 83 counties took part.

At this afternoon's meeting, George M. McKie was to welcome the group and Secretary E. R. Rankin, who has directed these contests since their inception 27 years ago, and Robert Magill, director of Graham Memorial, were to make important announcements.

The first preliminary will start at 7 o'clock this evening, the second opening at 8:30 tomorrow morning and the finals tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Dr. A. C. Howell, acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will preside, and Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw will award the Aycock cup.

At 7:30 o'clock Friday evening in Memorial Hall the University glee club under the direction of Prof. John E. Toms, will give a concert, honoring the visitors.

The Student Union and University Club will tender the visitors a reception at Graham Memorial immediately following the cup presentation.

The 16th decennial census of the United States will be taken in 1940.

About 21,000 workers in Alaska participate in the old age pension feature of the Social Security Act.

CONTESTS SET FOR SATURDAY

ECTC Baseball And Tennis Teams To See Action

Two events will highlight the athletic program at East Carolina Teachers College here Saturday afternoon.

Coach Gordon Gilbert's Pirates will engage the Atlantic Christian College Bulldogs in a baseball game starting at 3 o'clock. Coach H. C. Haynes' tennis team will furnish the opposition for the Wake Forest College varsity netters at 2 p. m. on the local court.

Saturday's baseball game promises to be a thriller in that the Pirates and Bulldogs have been friendly rivals for some time. Then too, both teams will seek to redeem themselves for the last engagement, which went for a dozen innings to an 8-8 deadlock.

Coach Gilbert has done more shifting for his boys, Lester Ridenhour, expert third sacker has been shifted to second base replacing Earl Smith, who is trying out with Ruppel Wilson's Greenies of the Coastal Plain league.

Norman Mayo, dependable center fielder, has left his berth to take over the duties vacated by Ridenhour at the "hot corner." Gene Carson, Bethel boy, or Jack Noe of Bath will occupy the centerfield position. If Smith does sign up with the Greenies, he will be missed by the Pirates.

Willie Phillips of Macesfield is the probable hurler for Saturday. Ed Wells, Greenville hurler ace who did the damage in the 8-8 deadlock over Atlantic Christian College recently, has a sore arm and probably will not do any hurling. Kelly Martin of Conway, veteran Pirate hurler, may have to stay out of the lineup for the rest of the season. Kelly was hit with a ball in batting practice about two weeks ago and has not yet recovered from the blow. His condition seems to be improving slowly.

In the tennis match scheduled for Saturday, Coach Haynes' boys will engage the first team of the year in "Big Five" competition.

YOUNG LADY IN NIGHTGOWN MAKES HIT WITH THE NAVY

Newport, R. I. (AP)—Physicians, nurses and attendants at the Naval Hospital went into a dither one recent early morning when a young lady clad only in a nightgown strolled into the institution.

They couldn't find a thing in the regulations about what to do in the case of an attractive girl, scantily clad, wandering around to visit the patients. So they called the police. About the same time the police sergeant received a call from Mrs. Geo. Peters, who said her daughter had disappeared.

Before long, the young lady was home and telling her mother, Mrs. Peters, about the nice naval officers and how she would like to know them better.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—It is just possible that in event England and France go to war we cannot ship them a single military airplane because it might be an act of war on our part against their enemies.

It depends on whether an airplane is a war vessel in the same sense as a seagoing war vessel.

Ironically enough, the rule of international law which stands in the way was written almost entirely by England—to protect herself against us.

During the Civil War days, England built and outfitted several cruisers for the Confederacy. The most important one, the Alabama, sank prodigious amounts of Yankee commerce and almost scared our merchant ships off the high seas.

President Lincoln, Secretary of State Seward and Charles Francis Adams, then ambassador to England, were pretty angry, but England sort of laughed up her sleeve.

England repeats
But before long England was giving the thing some deep thought.
What would happen, the foreign office thought, if the United States would make a lot of "Alabamas" for Germany or France and turn them loose in the Atlantic next time England had a war? It looked not so good. England repented and bottled up the commerce raiders it was building for the Confederacy. After the war a treaty was written providing that it would be a violation of international law for a neutral nation to build warships for a belligerent nation.

But does the same law apply to military airplanes? Sources in the Navy, which is much concerned about such things, think that a war vessel is a war vessel, whether it flies or floats.

Of course if the present neutrality law remains in effect, airplanes could not be shipped anyway, but critics of the totalitarian nations want the law revised to permit England and France to buy all the planes they want here—provided they come over and get them.

That raises another question: How well could England and France, with their big navies, protect their supply ships out in the Atlantic?

Rather well, say U. S. Military students. They say the Works War two tricks during the World War.
One was to lay a mine barrage between England and Norway to block that northerly outlet from the Baltic.

Convoys Effective
The second trick was to use light cruisers and destroyers to convoy freight ships.

German submarines might cross the Atlantic and sink ships right at our doorway. We would have to patrol the three-mile limit. Beyond that point, British ships would have to take over. Canadian airplanes could aid them in spotting submarines, a fairly easy job from the air.

Nearing England, the ships would meet German submarines and bombers as well. There would be kisses, particularly if Germany had such control of the air that she could maintain a fleet of bombers operating out into the Atlantic from a German base.

NAZIS ARE DOING
THE LAMBETH WALK
Berlin (AP)—The Lambeth Walk has attained a certain degree of popularity in Germany—in the teeth of Nazi opposition to that "un-German" product.

Even some Nazi editorial opinion seems definitely to be swinging in favor of the dance.

Says the Westfaelische Landeszeit-ung, official Nazi organ of Westphalia: "One may find a waltz more beautiful than a Lambeth Walk. We don't want to be prudish. Whoever finds joy in the Lambeth Walk let him dance it as long as it's done decently, which is quite possible. He does no harm to the community thereby."

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN NISBET

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, April 23—Judge Solomon Raleigh, April 20—Judge Solomon, of Biblical renown is cited as something of a wise guy, except at settling disputes in the handiest fashion; but for real ability to do a tough job of deciding this corner must hand it to Chief Justice Walter Stacy, who handed down this gem of an opinion in State vs.
L. P. Cox, a case appealed from Rowan Superior court.

"The fragmentability of the appeal precludes a determination of the question sought to be presented. Mayhan the final judgment will be acceptable without appeal. At any rate its correctness will presently be presumed."

It was a case in which defendant was convicted of possessing illegal slot machines and tip books.
Convicted in County court he appealed to superior court, then wanted his appeal withdrawn. Eventually Superior court sent it back to county court where different judgment was handed down from an first hearing. Whereupon the state appealed to Superior court which ordered a complete new trial there.
From that judgement Cox appealed to the Supreme court.

The legal confusion was so confounded that on oral argument Judge Stacy remarked that "At last, here is something new under the sun."

Difference of opinion makes not only horse racing, but court cases possible.

Here for example are frustrating views of the plaintiff in an action argued in the Supreme court this week.

From the plaintiff's complaint,
"That the plaintiff is a young girl and prior to March 1937, was happy, jubilant and healthy and a robust person with a reputation above reproach of even that of suspection."

From the defendant's brief, "The plaintiff it will experienced in local matters, who is 24 years old.
She was in the strike at the Loray
Mills in Gastonia when Chief Aderhol was killed, and accused a man of attempting to rape her. Her character is bad and they ran her off for laying out at night." She was brought to Charlotte by a slot machine man, who stayed at her home practically all the time, and from whom she got money on alleged breach of promise, and then she proceeded against another man an attempted rape, then the Calvin Mills for an alleged injury then

WILLIAMSBURG GALLERIES DRAWS LARGE CROWDS

Lovers of fine furniture in the southeast, Virginia and West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, North and South Carolina, Georgia, etc., are planning to attend the ninth annual furniture style show in the great Tomlinson exhibition building in High Point, April 26-28.

This tremendous interest is due in large measure to the unparalleled attraction of the Williamsburg Galleries—that nationally known grouping of fine Eighteenth century furniture which has for its inspiration the furniture of Old Williamsburg in Virginia, the pre-revolutionary capital of America's richest colony.

The colonial manner of living is artistically interpreted in every line of every piece. History was made among the originals of this furniture—pieces that by their very selection and being reflect the taste, the customs, and the charm of men and women bred to romance and leisure... but schooled through necessity to rugged, intensive freedom of thought... and in contrast, the ability for complete relaxation.

Conducted tours through the Tomlinson Craftshops will show all interested visitors how the quality furniture of the Williamsburg Galleries and all of the other fine Eighteenth and Nineteenth century furniture which is to be displayed on four huge floors is made.

Gorgeous American Oriental reproductions in lustrous, deep pile floor coverings from the Karastan rug mills will also be arranged in displays of inspiring beauty.

No one can attend this impressive showing without benefit—nor can they help but carry home definite ideas for increasing the beauty, the livability, and the charm of their own home.

Personal invitation cards of admission may be obtained from Tatt Furniture Co., the authorized Tomlinson dealer in Greenville. You who love the South, the charm and mode of Southern living will find this annual pilgrimage much to your liking.

L. W. ALDERMAN DIES IN COUNTY

Rev. J. C. Alderman, Dunn, J. E. Alderman, Gastonia; one sister, Mrs. Lillie A. Mitchell of Richmond, Va., and 27 nieces and nephews.

Mr. Alderman entered Bues Creek Academy in 1895, graduating from that institution. He entered Wake Forest College in 1897, from where he was graduated in 1891 and was connected with several firms in Raleigh from 1901 to 1911. During this time he was appointed field agent and manager of the Oxford Orphanage Singing Class, which position he held until his death.

Mr. Alderman was a York Rite Mason, a Shriner, member of Sudan Temple. He joined Spring Branch Baptist Church early in life and had been active in church work since that time. At death, he was a member of the First Baptist Church of Oxford. He was never married and had devoted the last 28 years of his life to children of Oxford Orphanage. He accompanied the Singing Class from the coast to the mountains of North Carolina and was well known throughout all Masonic circles of the state.

District Meeting Of Y. D. C. Tomorrow

Several members of the Pitt County Young Democrats Club are planning to attend a meeting of the first Congressional district YDC meeting in Plymouth tomorrow.

A meeting of the local club was called for last night to discuss the district session, but was attended by only a small group.

The program for the Plymouth rally is scheduled to get under way at 4:30 p. m., with Bryan Grimes of Washington presiding. Following the welcome and response, Hoover Taft of Greenville, district organizer, will report on activities of his department.

Libby Ward of New Bern will deliver the principal address of the meeting. He will be introduced by Rep. W. M. Darden of Plymouth.

BELLAMY LAW CONSIDERED FOREST PROTECTION HELP

forest management to inspect private lands and to advise landowners as to the best methods of growing, cutting and marketing pulpwood and timber.

To acquire small areas in different regions to be developed as demonstration forests.

To prepare and distribute educational material for the use of teachers and club leaders in the training of the younger generation in the wise use of forest resources.

County boards of commissioners are authorized to turn over to the Department of Conservation and Development forest lands which have been taken over by the counties for delinquent taxes if adjudged suitable for state demonstration forests.

County boards of commissioners are required to furnish lists of all forest properties acquired by tax sale which have remained unredeemed for as many as two years, whenever the State Forester requests them. These lands may be purchased by the Department for the amount of taxes due, without addition of penalties.

Authorizes the Department to purchase lands when no delinquent tax lands are reasonably available or suitable.

Funds for carrying out the act are to be included in the regular budget of the forestry division under the item "Forestry Management."

While the $5,000 appropriation is not regarded by the Department as sufficient to do all the things it would like to do, or even all the act directs, it will make possible a good start in that direction. Director Ethridge feels.

"This new law goes further toward conserving our forests and toward the acquisition of state forest lands than anything that has yet been enacted and shows that this past General Assembly sensed the dangers which are threatening our forest resources," he said.

Gulfweights

Are Comfortable
All Season Long

The woollens used in tailoring Gulfweights are from two to four ounces lighter, per yard, than those used in regular weight clothing. Think of it—a Gulfweight suit weighs only 48 ounces!
That's the amazing story of this sensational "in-between season" suit tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx.

You'll know, the second you slip it on, that Gulfweight's a suit you can LIVE in from April to October. And you're right! For Gulfweight is light enough to be marvelously cool and comfortable when the temperature's in the nineties. Yet it's not too light for those days in the early spring and late fall that are a shade too cool for tropical weight clothes.

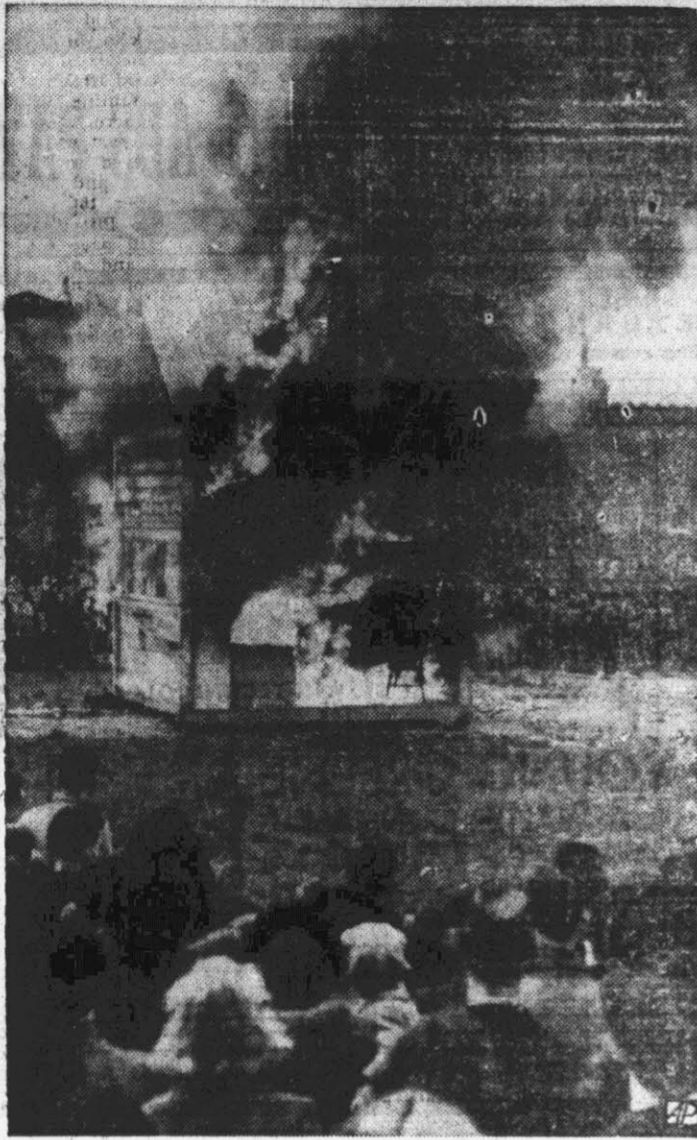

And most important is the fact that despite Gulfweight's fabrics being extremely light in weight they have the stamina and body to stand up under all kinds of wear.

ADVICE GIVEN N. C. FARMERS

Urged to Use Mixture For Organic Nitrogen

Raleigh, April 20.—Prof. C. H. Williams, head of the State College Agronomy Department said today that corn cotton and small grain farmers of North Carolina should use cottonseed meal and soybean meal as the source of organic nitrogen in their mixed fertilizers. "They are the cheapest organic nitrogen and cotton seed meal and soybean meal are products of North Carolina farms, and their use should help our producers to get better prices for their production of cotton and soybeans," he said.

Prof. Williams said carefully conducted experiments with different crops grown on various soil types in North Carolina have shown very definitely that some of the nitrogen in mixed fertilizers should be derived from standard organics instead of nitrogen coming from inorganic nitrogen of soda.

For the Coastal section, he recommended the following mixture which is approximately in the proportion of a 4-3-4 fertilizer: 1,070 pounds of superphosphate, 310 lbs. of cottonseed meal, 450 pounds of nitrate of soda and 170 pounds of muriate of potash, making a ton of fertilizer, with 16 per cent super phosphate, 7 per cent organic nitrogen, 16 per cent inorganic, and 60 per cent potash.

For the Piedmont and Mountain sections, the Professor advises use of 1,185 pounds of superphosphate, 275 pounds of cottonseed meal, 890 lbs. of nitrate of soda, and 160 pounds of muriate of potash for 2,000 lbs. of an approximately 4-10-4 mixture.

Serious Injuries Escaped In Wreck

Rocky Mount, April 20.—(AP)—Three persons narrowly escaped death early this morning when a truck-trailer and a passenger car sideswiped on U. S. highway 301, two miles north of Battleboro.

Mrs. W. H. Hughes, wife of a local railway express agent and described by State Highway patrolmen as the passenger car driver, was in a local hospital suffering from a broken nose and other possible injuries, while a man booked as Jack Lane of Marion, S. C., identified by officers as the truck driver, was held by police awaiting formal charges. Jack Simmons of Sumter, S. C., reported truck owner, was not injured.

State Patrolman T. H. Griffis and R. L. Mashburn, who investigated the crash, said the truck-trailer and the auto sideswiped and the auto, with Mrs. Hughes as the sole occupant, was practically demolished.

Lane was treated for a cut on the head.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 20.—(AP)—War talk dropped to a murmur in the stock market today and leading issues extended recovery moves by fractions to more than two points.

Although the upward journey reportedly slow, activity was about doubled that of the dragging Wednesday session. Prices were around the best near the fourth hour.

Bonds improved.

Man About Manhattan

New York—The sadists will be able to have a fine time at one concession at the Fair because a lot of malformed animals, including cross-eyed cats, club-footed calves, dogs with five legs, and a horse with eight legs, will be on display. These are to be seen in "a maze-like pit arena," watched over by a veterinarian, and together with the half-chicken, half-turkey and the pig with no hind-quarters, they ought to make up as notable a collection of misbegotten things as may be found anywhere.

Tamara Used to be the Russian Girl

Tamara used to be the Russian girl who strummed a guitar and sang a melancholy lament called "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." But now times have changed. She is still Russian and maybe at times she is melancholy—at those times at least when she sings "Get Out of Town" in the musical comedy "Leave it to Me."

State For Leasing Tar Heel Railroad

Raleigh, April 20.—(AP)—The board of directors of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, controlled by the state, voted today to ask the stockholders at an afternoon session to lease the line, but left the name of the lessee blank in the resolution.

It was indicated that H. P. Edwards of Sanford would get the line, as Governor Hoy told the directors he thought an arrangement for its lease should be worked out at once. Edwards had the only formal proposal still pending.

Under the law setting up the railroad corporation a limit is set on the state's vote at stockholders' meetings. Governor Hoy said, and private stockholders might outvote the state.

Attorney General McMullan was to cast the state's proxy at the stockholders' meeting and it was understood he would vote for leasing to Edwards.

New York Cotton

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened unchanged to two lower as Bombay, Liverpool and the South sold. Support came from co-operatives, Wall Street and trade houses.

Prices were unchanged to four lower by mid-morning. May was 8.21, against an earlier high of 8.24. October was down four at 7.41.

They tell me there are a lot of people who derive a lot of pleasure from witnessing things like this, and if that is true then they are wasting their time at the animal pots. They should go down to the asylum and have a good laugh at the lunatics, because lunatics are human, and what has a cross-eyed cat to offer that can compare with the antics of an idiot anyway?

But off-stage this pert actress and wife of an advertising executive isn't moody at all. Spring is here and the she-rs have awakened the good earth under her soul, and so now she is busy with seeds and a hoe and visions of flowers, which she will plant in her 58th street plantation.

It isn't really a plantation, or a farm, or even a truck garden. But it is a patch of earth on a penthouse, and it her own, and she will till the soil and follow the plough in her own day, and dirty those lovely hands if she isn't careful, and only in Russia, and admire the yellow roses which are always fresh-cut and smiling at her from tall vases in her boudoir.

In America the yellow rose is her favorite flower, though she doesn't know why. But in the world her favorite is that tiny and nameless blue blossom which grows only in Russia and has a fragrance that is unmatched this side of paradise.

LITERATURE OF ENGLAND SEEN AFFECTED BY CRISIS

Los Angeles.—(AP)—The European crisis is having a profound effect on the literature of England, says Dr. Frederick T. Blanchard of the University of California at Los Angeles, just back from a year abroad.

"I felt that the stock of the so-called frustrationists such as James Joyce and D. H. Lawrence had gone down.

"This is largely because the people of England have come to grips with the great realities of life again, and have developed a distinctly saner scale of moral and esthetic values."

Cox Will Address Tar Heel Meeting

Congressman E. E. Cox of Georgia has been secured to make the principal address at the 17th annual meeting of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, which will be held in LaGrange April 28, at 7:30 p. m., in the high school gymnasium.

Congressman Cox is one of the most aggressive members of the House and is reputed to be a very interesting speaker. Congressman Cox belongs to the conservative group of lawmakers in Washington and is a member of the powerful Rules committee. He opposed vigorously the adoption of the Wage and Hour bill last year and has been a consistent proponent of conservatism in the matter of spending as well as sticking to the fundamentals of the old-time Democratic party.

Congressman Cox is a former Superior Court judge, having served his native State of Georgia in this capacity for several years. Eastern Carolina members and visitors to the meeting will have an opportunity of hearing one of the best informed and most aggressive members of the lower House. The meeting is open to the general public.

Toughest Bird Wins Prize

Greeley, Colo.—(AP)—The toughest of the better, said a buyer who gave Mrs. Elmer Salberg $5 for her ancient and honorable bird, a rooster so old she had lost track of his years.

He was chosen as the oldest and toughest of 20 birds entered in a contest to select the "hardest eating bird" in Greeley. The buyer wanted him for a cooking demonstration.

Disillusionment—Piggin Style

Honolulu, H. (AP)—Now it turns out that even the quaint piggin English signs—like "Me Go Lunchie"—that attract sightseers to No Wan Suk's shoe shining stand are genuine. No Wan Suk has a ghost writer, "Me no can," he admitted. "Army man make." The writer turned out to be a military policeman stationed next door.

Los Angeles.—(AP)—Tall people have been watching a new state garage going up at the civic center, but the surrounding fence was just too high for short people. So F. O. Jackson, official in charge—six feet two himself—had holes bored in the fence. They are short-sighted.
