FDR MOVES TO END DEADLOCK IN COAL MINE

Tells Both Faction Agreement Must Be Reached

LABORERS IDLE IN 26 STATES

Reports of Threatened Coal Shortages Also Prompt Chief Executive Demand Action

Washington, May 6. (AP)—President Roosevelt took a hand in the deadlock in soft coal operations today by telling both operators and labor that "an agreement must be reached immediately" on a new wage contract.

With 460,000 United Mine Workers idle in 26 states and reports of threatened coal shortages in many communities increasing, Mr. Roosevelt said differences between the two groups "appeared not to be un-surmountable and the orderly process of collective bargaining should suffice to bring about their adjustment."

He expressed his views in a telegram to John Steelman, chief of the Labor Department's conciliation service, who is in New York trying to work out an agreement. The message was dispatched to Steelman last night and made public by the White House this morning.

He followed a report to the President from Secretary of Labor Perkins that the negotiating committee, including C. I. O. Chief John Lewis, the United Mine Workers president, had become deadlocked over the question of a new wage agreement.

Mr. Roosevelt said that because he believed the differences could be overcome by bargaining, he urged "that the present negotiations with the Federal Commissioner continue and that all sit down with the intention to reach a fair, honorable and workable agreement in a spirit of give and take."

Other developments: The Interstate Commerce Commission approved an increase of five and one-half per cent in the present railroad freight rate on fertilizer and fertilizer materials between points in the North and the South.

The railroads had asked authority for an increase of 10 per cent over the present rate. The commission said this increase had not been justified.

The struggle over proposed changes in the neutrality act was complicated by the pledge of Senator Clark (D-Mo.) that no policy permitting the government to "choose up sides" in advance of war would ever be enacted as long as he and some of his Senate colleagues could stand and talk.

Clark, son of the one-time speaker of the House of Representatives, carried to the country in a radio address last night his fight against proposed amendments by Senator Thomas (D-Utah) and Senator Pittman (D-Nev.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

Schedule Set For TB Clinic In Pitt

The schedule for the Pitt county tuberculosis clinic was announced today by Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer, as follows: Farmville city hall, Monday, May 8; Farmville city hall, Tuesday, May 9; Bethel, new building, Wednesday, May 10; Grimesland school house, Thursday, May 11; Arden city hall, Friday, May 12; Greenville, health offices, Monday, May 15, through Friday, May 19.

The clinic will be conducted by Dr. G. C. Godwin of the State Sanatorium. All persons, both white and colored, are eligible. All examinations are free, except when an X-ray is necessary the patient, if able, will be expected to pay for it. Persons unable to bear this expense, however, will not be required to do so.

Dr. Ennett stressed the fact that these state clinics are held only one time each year and added that to neglect an examination now might mean that by the time of the next clinic the disease will have advanced beyond the hope of cure. He said that the slogan of the clinic is "Early Discovery—Early Recovery."

KIWANIS HOLDS DISTRICT MEET

Carolinas Governor Thigpen Delivers Address Here

Members of the Wilmington Goldboro, Wilson, New Bern and Jacksonville Kiwanis clubs joined with the Greenville club in an inter-club meeting last night which was featured by an address by Carolinas District Governor Richard E. Thigpen of Charlotte.

Mr. Thigpen opened his brief address by declaring that if we are not alive to the possibilities of Kiwanis we are not fooling anyone but ourselves and added this not only applied to club activities, but in all other undertakings.

We need to take stock of ourselves, he said, see if we are making the most of our opportunities. He mentioned several objectives of Kiwanis and said we should go forward one each.

In connection with citizenship activities, he said "we need to be mindful of our youth." Pointing out that the youth of today would be the leaders of tomorrow, the speaker asserted that "unless we do something to stimulate youth to get on a higher plane we will look on the future with a great deal of questioning."

"It is high time we entered into an era of responsibility, the continuing adding, "We need to reaffirm our citizenship activities." In this connection he pointed out that Charlotte, with a population of 100,000 and with 28,000 voters registered.

State Papers Cooperate In CIT Safety Seminar

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 6.—North Carolina's newspapers will join practically 100 per cent strong in participating in the C. I. T. Safety Seminar set for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 9, 10, and 11, Ronald Hocutt, director of highway safety, said today.

Mr. Hocutt was jubilant at prospects for the seminar. He stressed the fact that it is the second state meeting of its kind ever held and added that it should be an outstanding contribution to North Carolina's program for highway safety.

Pair Believed to Have Been Caught In Edenton

Two armed Negroes who shot and robbed Harry Lee Chestnut, Negro operator of a filling station-country store on the Farmville-Snow Hill highway about 10:30 o'clock last night and shortly thereafter engaged ABC Officer G. A. Gregory of Farmville in a pistol duel are believed to have been taken in custody by Edenton officers when they rode into that city on a freight train.

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor and Chief of Police L. T. Lucas of Farmville left here about noon to go to Edenton to see if the two are the ones wanted here. A Negro who was said to have witnessed the filling station hold-up was taken with the officers.

The two robbers were said to have been in Farmville since Wednesday, posing as fortune tellers. One was said to have been from Washington, D. C., and the other from Hertford.

After officers went to the scene of the robbery, Gregory drove to a point near Bell Arthur. He was walking down the Norfolk Southern railroad tracks on the belief that the Negroes would come that way. Suddenly the two Negroes, who were on an embankment about 20 feet from the officer and hid in the shadow of a tree so as not to be seen in the moonlight, opened fire. Gregory returned the fire and it was estimated at least 20 shots were exchanged, none of which took effect.

Bullets hit the ground all around Gregory, however, throwing dirt in his face.

Bloodhounds were secured in an effort to track the pair, but all trail of them was soon lost.

Officers, working on the assumption the men walked to Greenville and caught a Norfolk Southern train, were in the act of searching for them in the area of the station.

John W. Darr, a trustee of the foundation, will be in active charge. (Continued on page six)

Fire Follows Wreck At Crossing In Fayetteville

BLAZE DESTROYS SEVERAL HOUSES

Threatened General Conflagration And Broken Power Line To Pumps Add To Concern

Fayetteville, May 6. (AP)—Four persons were killed early today when a northbound Atlantic Coast Line freight train and a gasoline transport (Gulf) truck collided, causing fire that destroyed nine box cars and two houses.

The gushing gasoline pouring into a sewer caused several minor explosions on nearby streets. Three other hours near the tracks were damaged by the blaze. Several nearby automobiles were destroyed.

The dead: A. R. Buchanan of Rocky Mount, burned to death in his locomotive cab.

George W. Barbee of Fayetteville, driver of the truck, burned to death. Early Powell, 45, of Rocky Mount, Negro fireman, who died at a hospital of burns, several hours after the accident.

Brakeman H. D. Fowler, Jr., 34, also of Rocky Mount, who died in a hospital about mid-morning. The community apparently was threatened for a time with a general conflagration as the flaming fluid spread rapidly. Added to the concern was discovery that the crash had broken the power line furnishing electricity to operate the pumps at the municipal water works.

Fire companies from several nearby communities came here and the blaze soon was brought under control.

Barbee was thrown from his truck against a nearby house which was ignited. Witnesses said it was an hour before his body could be recovered because of the intense heat. He was killed instantly.

Buchanan's body was found huddled against the coal tender of his locomotive. He apparently was trying to evade the heat.

The crash occurred at 2 a. m., near the intersection of Franklin and Winslow streets, about a block from the Coast Line station which is on a main New York to Florida line.

Burgaw Policeman Killed In Street

Burgaw, May 6. (AP)—Sam Brothers, 53, city night watchman, was shot to death about 3 a. m. today when he was called from the post office to an automobile at the curb.

He died of a 12-gauge shotgun discharge fired into his face at close range.

Lewis Sparkman, who said he was in the post office building, heard the shots and rushed out to find Brothers dead and the automobile being driven away.

Rodney Croom, Pender county tax collector, told a Wilmington news reporter that Deputy Raymond Bell had arrested one man.

Mayor W. H. Young said Brothers died instantly and that "several suspects" were being detained. No formal charges had been brought.

"He had been threatened by bootleggers, but we don't know who killed him," the mayor said.

RETAIN HORNE AS BOARD HEAD

Elected Chairman Of Pitt ABC Board for Another Term

Charles O'H. Horne, who has served as chairman of the Pitt County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board since it was established on July, 1935, last night was elected for another three-year term and the other two members of the board also were re-elected.

J. R. Harvey of Grifton, who has served on the board since it was established, was named for another term of two years; and C. A. Tyson of Farmville, was named for a one-year term. Mr. Tyson was appointed to the board to fill out the unexpired term of the late S. T. Lewis of Farmville.

The appointees were named by the County Boards of Commissioners, Education and Health, as provided by law. Bond for the chairman was set at $5,000 each for the county and state, but it was decided that no bond was necessary for the other two members since they did not handle any of the funds. Bonds for store managers, clerks and other employees also are required.

Chairman J. N. Williams of the commissioners advised at the meeting that Chairman Horne had stated that the board could probably turn over $100,000 from liquor profits to the county to be used in retaining the lower tax rate for the year 1939-40. If sales and operations continue about in line with those of this year, it was explained, however, that this was not intended to mean that the liquor board would realize a profit of $100,000 for the year. The board will have a surplus on hand at the completion of this fiscal year June 30, and it is expected, this amount and the profit for the next fiscal year will amount to $100,000. Part of the profits realized in 1937-38 were held over until the present fiscal year and, likewise, part of the profits of 1938-39 will be retained for next year.

Recession Slows Down C. I. O.

The business recession has given the Lewis unions some more bad jolts. The widespread lay-offs in the automobile and steel centers have strained the treasuries of the new C. I. O. unions. Because the A. F. of L. groups are older, they are richer than Uncle John's new unions. Their finances can stand the gaff of this slowing-down period of business better than can those of the C. I. O. and its tactics. Lewis's move-

Babson Says C. I. O. Is Losing Ground

By ROGER W. BABSON. Babson Park, Mass., May 5.—There is no sign of peace this year between Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis. From 1935 through last fall the C. I. O. group steadily gained ground on the A. F. of L. A year and a half ago Lewis was so strong that he threatened to merge the less picturesque A. F. of L. into his C. I. O. Carey old William Green, however, called time out to take the edge off the Lewis drive. Meanwhile, the breaks began to go against the C. I. O. and Lewis has since been on the defensive. However, he is not yet licked by any means. Moreover, if a consolidation ever takes place, it will be in the saddle.

Missing Boat Found By Coast Guardsmen

Elizabeth City, May 6.—(AP)—A widespread search since Tuesday over Pamlico Sound waters for the missing trawler Coosaw and the fishing boat Dauntless, which had towed the Coosaw out of Ocracoke, ended late yesterday when Ocracoke coast guardsmen located the Coosaw aground in Brant Island slough, according to Acting Commander Walter Etheridge of seventh district coast guard headquarters here today.

INTER-RACIAL MEETING HELD

Speaker Says Negro Only Wants An Opportunity

Raleigh, May 6. (AP)—North Carolina economic problem number one is "the undeveloped potential resources of its 29 per cent Negro population," white and Negro leaders in education, industry and business were told here today at a conference on the Negro's employment problems.

The speaker, Harold Trigg, state supervisor of Negro high schools, asserted that "The North Carolina Negro wants charity—charity of the highest form—the opportunity to earn an honest living in all types of occupation in which he has capacity."

"It is North Carolina's advantage to provide it. North Carolina has the courage, the conviction and resources to provide it."

Trigg appeared on the program with Dr. Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina. Dr. Howard Odum of the university, and R. Mayme Albright, director of the State Employment Service.

"We are now working toward a more just and balanced state," he said, "on a basis of education and inter-racial co-operation."

UNIQUE STORE ACCEPTS ONLY COUPONS IN PAYMENT

St. Louis.—(AP)—There is a store in St. Louis where no money is needed, none changes hands, and there is no cash register.

Sounds like any easy solution to the family budget problem. But wait. This unmonied emporium, a premium store, is the clearing house for savers of coupons on everything from tomatoes to tobacco. Most any kind of coupon, box top, or label is worth something. There are 200 products from which to save coupons and more than 1,000 articles given for them.

The founder of the "something for nothing" store, Clyde B. Tyrrell, says, that so far as he knows it's the only one of its kind in the country. He gets his cut from the manufacturers and retailers who redeem the coupons.

POLISH PRESS BACKS ANSWER

Citizens Also Rally Behind Beck's Reply to Hitler

Warsaw, May 6.—(AP)—The Polish people rallied today behind Foreign Minister Col. Joseph Beck's rejection of German demands on the Free City of Danzig and the Polish Corridor, holding that the next move was up to Germany.

Reports of possible mediation, both by the Vatican and Italy, were given little consideration.

Rumors that Pope Pius, XII, might try to mediate between Poland and Germany were received with skepticism as Catholic leaders said they had no information of such an undertaking. The rumors apparently were based largely on the meeting yesterday between Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Monsignor Orsenigo, Papal Nuncio to Germany.

To reports of possible Italian mediation, a Socialist newspaper commented that "Poland is not Czechoslovakia."

Apparently reflecting the general attitude of the press, the newspaper Kurjer Czerwony declared that "the world now agrees that Berlin must give proof that it actually wants an understanding with Poland."

As proof of Poland's ancient right to the Free City of Danzig another paper printed what was reputed to be an 18th century German map of Danzig made in Nurnberg. It had the caption: "A general view and description of the Polish states fortified and the commercial town of Danzig and its surroundings."

Counties May Tax Property Of City

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 6.—There are indications in some of the state departments here that the problem of county taxation of municipal activities is likely to become a live issue before very long.

Nothing official could be pried out of the Utility Commission, the state REA or the attorney general's office, but it would not be in the least surprising if an effort is made by one or more counties to levy a tax on the power lines of municipalities which serve customers outside the municipal limits. This problem is one that state officials dealing with have wished to dodge, if possible.

The recent Supreme court decision holding a hotel operated by the town of Warrenton subject to taxation by Warren county, has started some other counties figuring on increasing their tax return by levies

KING DEPARTS FROM ENGLAND TO VISIT U. S.

Sails with Queen Elizabeth Amid Cheering Throngs

GREETINGS SENT UNITED STATES

Trip Will Mark First Time A Reigning British Monarch Has Ever Visited American Soil

Portsmouth, Eng., May 6. (AP)—King George, VI, and Queen Elizabeth sailed today amid the thundering farewell of saluting warships and shore batteries on their precedent-breaking trip of more than six weeks to Canada and the United States.

Their vessel, the German-built Empress of Australia, sailed promptly at 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST). As the mooring ropes were cast off and tugs pulled the liner's nose slowly out from the dock, the king and queen stood watching the flag-decked warships in the harbor and the cheering thousands of spectators massed on the shore.

Frequently they waved as the ship drew away and as the liner passed through the narrow harbor mouth the roar of cheering and the thunder of salute roared out.

The London to Portsmouth journey of King George, who will be the first reigning British sovereign to visit North America, and his wife was one of triumph.

Cheering crowds were massed along the tightly guarded route of the special train and thousands on thousands of spectators greeted their arrival at Portsmouth where the sovereign received the golden keys of the garrison.

Driver Is Injured In Local Accident

Greenville police today reported that charges of reckless driving would be brought against Pal Edwards, Pitt county man, as an outgrowth of a collision on East Tenth street last night around 9:30 o'clock.

Officers quoted J. K. Brown, occupant in the car with Edwards, as saying that Edwards was driving. The Edwards car struck a parked car belonging to J. A. Collins. Both the Edwards car and Collins' automobile were badly damaged in the head-on collision.

Hospital attaches said that Edwards was treated for minor injuries, but was not admitted as a patient. Officers said they had been unable to apprehend Edwards. Officers H. E. Wooten and L. D. Page investigated.

Success Of Marriage Law Squarely Up To Doctors

Raleigh, May 6.—Success or failure of North Carolina's new marriage law is squarely up to North Carolina's medical profession, Dr. T. W. M. Long, Halifax representative who introduced the bill in the General Assembly, said in discussing its future.

Dr. Long was in Raleigh for a brief visit, unconnected with politics, he said.

"After all, it's the profession's bill and it's now squarely up to the profession to make it a success or a failure," he said "If doctors can get before the public the far-reaching and manifold benefits to health that real enforcement of the bill will bring, then an enlightened public opinion will force observance of the law."

Dr. Long stressed the fact that only a public opinion favored to the law can insure its effectiveness. If, for instance, couples who go out

Last Rites Held For John Daniels Owens

Funeral services for John Daniels Owens, 77, one of the oldest citizens of Farmville, and well known throughout the entire community, were held from his late home on Greene street Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock.

Rev. J. B. Roberts, pastor of the Primitive Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. C. B. Mashburn, Christian minister. Burial was in Forest Hill cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Fanny Langley Owens; four daughters, Miss Neva Owens and Mrs. J. A. Tugwell, Jr., Farmville, Mrs. B. D. Jenkins of Rocky Mount, and Mrs. J. T. Skinner of Greenville; twelve grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Mr. Owens succumbed early Tuesday afternoon to an illness of several weeks duration. He had been critically ill for ten days and his death was not unexpected.

Of a gentle and kindly disposition, having honesty as an outstanding trait, and a great integrity, Mr. Owens will be greatly missed by friends in the community.

Active pallbearers were L. D. Harvey, Carl and Billy Dilda, Gene Skinner, Bruce Neal, Dawson and Robert Drew Tugwell.

SULPHUR STOPS TICKS

(IF YOU CAN STAND IT) Boulder, Colo.—(AP)—For the out-of-doors man who wants to evade disease carrying woodticks, H. A. Lennartz of Boulder recommends plain sulphur.

"Ticks, like human beings, cannot bear the smell of sulphur," says Lennartz, Boulder county treasurer. "If a person places pulverized sulphur around the neck, wrists and ankles it cuts off the five common avenues through which the ticks reach bare flesh. The ticks, that carry tick fever, tularemia and tick paralysis, will not cross this sulphur barrier."

Tenants Can Move Now And Take Garden Along

Dallas, Texas.—The Farm Security Administration has developed portable farm assets—even gardens, hen coops and fences—to help tenant farmers fulfill FSA loan requirements.

C. M. Evans, regional FSA director, explains that such loans are made only to those farmers with at least one source of cash income besides cotton.

Owner-tenant co-operation often cannot provide the necessary improvements, so the FSA worked out the portable farm idea.

Corporations are often accused of being soulless, but these two incidents show the interest that both the Old Dominion and Coast Line feel in the welfare of Greenville.

New World Awaits British Sovereigns

BELOW THIS ANCIENT WALL of Quebec's citadel is the quarter where live French-speaking Canadians eager to see the 43-year-old King and his 38-year-old commoner Queen.

RULERS OF AN EMPIRE, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth (above) of England, will reach Quebec May 15, continue across Canada to Vancouver, and return to Washington, D. C., for a visit with President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. They're the first reigning British monarchs to set foot on American soil; will probably leave about June 10. FIT FOR A KING is His Majesty's wardrobe which may include—for garden and sports events—the morning coat and grey topper he wore (above) to Epsom Downs.

CUSTOM OF THE COUNTRY will determine the acknowledgment when one meets Queen Elizabeth (right). The curtsy of English women, such as this being made by the Countess of Bessborough at a social function in London, will not be necessary in United States. Their Majesties wish to defer to democratic customs; for both rulers a bow and handshake will do.

PERSONAL ORDERLY to Their Majesties, Constable Robert Fortelance (above), Quebec member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, will accompany them through Canada. Three other R.C.M.P. officers will perform similar duties.

YANKEE HOSPITALITY will reach its finest official flower when the royal couple from Great Britain visit President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House (above). The rulers are also to visit at Hyde Park, N. Y.

'TOMMY ATKINS' lives on in stone in this section of the war memorial at Ottawa, to be dedicated by King George. The memorial is in Parliament Square. The sovereigns are expected to visit Mount Vernon while in U. S.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, May 6.—Here's something new in the way of the advertising game—the Bureau of Information and Tourist Travel of the New Brunswick (Canada) Government offering to North Carolina papers, absolutely free, a column of approximately 1000 words daily on all things, the New York World's Fair.

"You are wondering," wrote D.
W. Griffiths, director, "why I am willing, through my department of the New Brunswick government, to go to this expense, and I wish to place all my cards on the table. We have an exhibit at the fair and it is our desire to draw occasional attention to this through the column and thus obtain publicity for the Province of New Brunswick. However, I guarantee to you that the coverage will be entirely general."

Representative John Kerr, Jr., of Warren county, was in Raleigh a "day or so on business which he said had nothing to do with politics." In fact, he told your correspondent, there is very little politics going on in his section—not even much talk about the 1940 governor's race.
"We're busy raising tobacco in our section," he smiled, "and we find that it pays better than politics."

Legal folks, including the State's Attorney General, are still busy studying Wednesday's North Carolina Supreme Court decision in the Unemployment Compensation Commission cases brought by the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company. Their effect will unquestion-ably be broad, but so far nobody cares to say just what the effect will be.

State Senator John D. Larkins, Jr., of Jones county, was breezing around Raleigh Friday, but though as loquacious and gracious as ever, he had nothing to say on the subject of politics or the business of governing the state.

Dr. T. W. M. Long of Halifax, legislative father of the new North Carolina marriage law, dismissed lightly a story out of Wilson which quoted doctors at a health meeting here with declaring that the press has misrepresented the law.
"As a matter of fact," he said,
"with one exception no newspaper in North Carolina has made any kind of attack on the law, though one other carried an editorial, lukewarm at best, while the bill was before the legislature. All other papers have been in favor of the law, as far as their editorial expressions indicate."

Revocation of 107 licenses this week brought to 21,898 the North Carolina drivers who have been deprived of the right to operate motor vehicles. Drunken driving accounted for 96 hit-and-run driving for 7, driving after license revoked for 3 and larceny of an automobile 1.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
Joecelyn Russell, beautiful, young heiress.
Talbot Mack, proud but poor farmer.

Yesterday, Joecelyn clashes with Talbot as soon as he arrives.
Old Talbot butts into her party.

Chapter Five
Family Conferences

JOCELYN caught sight of Bob and hailed him. There were more introductions.
"Well," said old Mack, "you're a likely 'nough lookin' young feller.
Look like you had some gettin' and git."
"Say," asked Bob, catching his sister's distress signal, "have you had a look at our ocean yet?"
"Ocean? You got an ocean?" The old man appeared somewhat confused.
"The Pacific Ocean." Bob laughed. "And you a sailor! Come along and I'll take you down on the beach. I've been hoping for six months that you'd come here. I want to talk to you." Deftly, he slipped his hand under the old man's elbow and helped him stand.
Old Mack smiled uncertainly at the delighted faces surrounding him.
"Seuse me folks, please. Guess I'm a bit onsteady. Ain't usta nevy drinks. I hope you'll come night. I... I haven't any dress to wear but that awful silk one I had on this afternoon. I'll bet hers came from Paris."

"Put on a clean house-dress," he said. "They know we're poor. And we have to eat with them, Gretchen. At least tonight. We haven't any money left. Tomorrow I'll figure out a way to get some money." Gretchen touched hesitant fingers to an old chest of drawers inside the door. "You know, Talbot, I'll bet this stuff is worth lots of money. I saw things like this in an antique shop once when I was in St. Louis with Andy."

A Little Snob
TALBOT'S glance was speculative.
"Maybe you've got something there, Sis." His mouth hardened.
"Half of everything here is ours and we have to eat."
He went on into his own room and shut the door. Standing at the open window he stared across the landscape towards where the sun, with a lazy burst of light was going to bed below the horizon.
Tally's broad young shoulders slumped dejectedly. He had wished to be diplomatic to be pleasant; to agree to whatever arrangement the Russells offered; yet now he felt differently. For himself he did not care; but for his family he did. His lips thinned with purpose and his high bridged nose resembled more than ever the beak of a fierce predatory eagle. Half-here real often. I know lots more stories."

Joecelyn sank weakly into a chair. "What have I done to deserve this!" she wailed softly to Thorn. "I feel a nervous breakdown coming on!"
Then to her ears came the remarks of her guests: "What a character!" "Did you ever hear such tall yarns!" "Positively unique, my dear—perfectly priceless!" Geoffrey joined her. "You look upset, dear. Is anything wrong? I just now finished a rubber of bridge."
"You tell him, Thorn," Joecelyn whispered. "I can't!"

'Poor Relatives'

FINALLY, just before sundown, the last guest offered his amused goodby and drove off, unserved by young Talbot as he unloaded the last suitcase from the trailer and carried it through a rear door. He was weary and angry and resentful. He had not wanted to come here. He had known they would not be welcome, but it was even worse than he had imagined. These Russells were people who had been bred to culture and luxury and probably had no idea of how poor people existed, not cared.
The butler had designated six rooms to them in an unused portion of the twenty-five room manor.
Mrs. Mack, tired from the long trip, had been airing out the musty rooms and mothball-scented bedding and, with Gretchen's help, trying to unpack the luggage and straighten their clothing.
Tex, as well as Gramp had disappeared.
Talbot trudged up the back stairway and down the long, dim hallway. This part of the house had evidently been unused for many years. It smelled of age and neglect. The once rich carpets were faded and thin; the furniture was cracked and uncomfortable.
As it had its own back entrance and separate hallway he surmised it had been built some time before the rest of the great brick mansion.
Gretchen called to him from a doorway. "There's lots of hot water, Tally. I put some towels and soap in the bathroom off your room and scrubbed the tub. Gee, this is a swell place, isn't it?"
"Like it, Sis?"
"I... I guess so," she faltered, then went on with strange forced cheerfulness, "but of course it seems strange right now. We... we'll have to get used to it."
"And used to being treated like poor relatives!" he growled.
"We aren't even that," she said miserably. "Oh, I wish we didn't have to eat dinner with them to-this place belongs to us, he thought and half of this place we will take As for money; if Gretchen is right about the furniture being antique, we have a right to sell it and use the money to start some sort of paving business. As for the girl, Joecelyn; she is without doubt a little snob. Beautiful, yes; but cold and incredibly haughty. It would be a pleasure to upset her private apple-cart."

Just before dinner that evening the three Russells held council in the library.
Thorn, impeccable in dinner clothes, the starched wings of his collar nudging his rather heavy jowls, paced irritably back and forth before the long velvet-draped windows. "It won't do!" he declared. "It won't do at all. We can't have those impossible people living here at Seacrift. The whole of Santa Barbara is probably buzzing with it now. What will people think? What will they say?
Grandmother must have been insane to make such a will! I'll contest it. I'll..."
"Won't it be hard to prove she was insane when she made that executor of the estate and trustee of her money?" Bob insisted stily. "No, Thorn, that won't do.
Old Joecelyn might have been eccentric but she certainly was not insane. She willed us our bed and we'll have to lie in it, and if you make it a bed of thorns and yourself a martyr, that's your tough luck! The Macks are here, and here to stay, and we may as well make the best of it. As far as I'm concerned, I think they're swell!
The old man is as genuine as I and he has a grand sense of humor I like him."
"You would," Thorn dyke muttered, clearing his throat. "You never did have proper respect for tradition, family, and our name."
"And you never had respect for anyone who didn't have proper ancestors!" Bob retorted. "Thorn, you're a snob!"
"Oh, stop it!" Joecelyn ordered in exasperation, nervously tapping one small foot against the leg of her chair. "This is one time we've got to unite forces. Thorn, you aren't practical, and Bob, you're being sentimental. I dislike this situation and I'd give anything to change it; but the fact is the Mack family has as much legal right here as we have. The thing to do is completely ignore them. I hardly think they will be stupid enough to imagine there can be friendliness between our families. Let them have the left wing of the house. We never use it anyhow, and don't make the slightest overture."

The Characters
Joecelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
Tally Mack, a young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seacrift.

Yesterday, displeased at the Russell's cold reception, Tally demands all his rights.
The Russells hold a conference.

Chapter Six
Stay Out of My Parlor!

"I THINK it's a mistake to let the Macks live in the house at all," Thorn told Joecelyn and Bob. "The caretaker's lodge is empty and it has five rooms; comfortably furnished and pleasant enough. Surely much better than a Texas farmhouse. Besides, it's on the edge of the estate, well away from the house, and we wouldn't have to look at them."
Bob swung his flannel clad legs over the arm of a great Morris chair and tugged thoughtfully at his mop of rufly-colored hair. "No," he drawled. "Won't do, dear brother of mine. You might be able to push the two women and the child into the background, but you'll never manage old Talbot Mack or his grandson!"
Joecelyn stood up, her frothy black net dinner dress swirling about her feet, and touched the smooth curls framing the clear, creamy skin of her face.
"I think Bob is right," she averred. "I saw enough of young Talbot to realize he has a will of his own. We'll be lucky if they stay in the left wing and don't usurp the house, the swimming pool, and the riding stables! At least I'll be getting out of this when I marry Geoffrey next fall."
"That over-stuffed hero!" Bob snorted.
"Don't be vulgar, Bob," Joecelyn said. "Geoff is kind and thoughtful and..."
"And dull!" he finished, looking over at the ancient grandfather-clock reposing in a special niche between the book-lined walls.
"Well, it's seven o'clock. Let's eat." Thorn dyke offered Joecelyn his arm and conducted her with dignity into the enormous oak-paneled dining room.
The Mack family, according to Joecelyn, had stiff and self-consciously arranged themselves on one side of the long candle-lit table. Nearest the head sat old Talbot Mack, stout and shabby in his rusty best coat; then Della, his daughter, starched into home-sewn folds of pink rayon which matched her cheeks; then young Talbot, scrubbed and boldly defiant, wearing a clean white shirt and overall; and the child Betsy, who gazed about the china and crystal with wide eyes.
"Hello, everybody," Bob greeted heartily. "I hope you're as hungry as I am! Say, just how are things down in Texas, anyhow?" Bob had more than half expected old Mack to answer, but he apparently tired and more interested in food than talk, so it was young Talbot who replied:
"Rotten. Oh, the big oil fellows are doing all right, but the cotton farmers are in the same situation here as in Louisiana or Georgia.
We'd like to see our state in a way to keep eating. He shrugged.
"Nice country out here, I guess the climate isn't much different than southern Texas. Maybe a little hotter."
"The sea breeze tempers the heat here," Bob said. "I'll show you around tomorrow."
"Aren't you forgetting your tennis finals at the club tomorrow?" Joecelyn reminded. "Mr. Mack must realize how important that is. Do you play tennis, Mr. Mack?"
"No, I don't. I'm a farmer," Humphreys began saying, bouncing in thin chair and a conversation lagged. Old Mack picked up his cup by both delicate handles, sniffed, blew gently, then drank down the contents. Tally, using his bouillon spoon, flushed a little;
a few eyes, Bob, restraining a smile, picked up his own cup and followed Gramp's suit.

Legal Rights
GRETCHEN had frozen with her fork halfway to her mouth; Gramp grinned wickedly; but Mrs.
Mack, entirely at ease, chided gently. "Now, Tally, what makes you say such things? You know we don't need twelve rooms."
"Please, Mother, let me handle this," she stopped her. "Mr. Russell, I have some very important intentions. What is your answer?" Thorn dyke blinked; started; his first instinct was to bluster a protest; yet young Talbot's hard, uncompromising eyes stilled him. He gulped to answer. "You have your legal rights."
"And I intend to exercise them," Tally asserted. "Now, may we be excused? You and I will attend to the details in the morning." Joecelyn rose to her full five-foot-two and glared at Tally. "I have something to say to you right now.
Will you follow me, please?"
"Certainly!"
While the others watched in silence Joecelyn led Tally into the great drawing-room which extended across the entire front of the house and was a beautiful room, its early architecture preserved, but its furnishings modernized. A great stone fireplace, long enough to take a small tree, took up the space at one end; an immense grand piano filled the other. The polished floor was carpeted with richly patterned rugs; the draperies were of expensive homespun; the rich colors of the deep cushioned chairs and divans reflected the glow of slim modernistic lamps.
"Grandma allowed me to select the furnishings," Joecelyn told him with court dignity. "The draperies I bought more perhaps than any other room of the house outside of my own. My friends come here—oh, don't you understand?
It would ruin it to partition it off—Thorn says you may do it legally, but if you do this to me, I'll never forgive you!"
"Could you resent and hate me any more than you do now?" he demanded.
"I don't hate you, Talbot Mack!
I can't help resenting you; not as a person, but as someone with whom I must share my draperies, whom I feel enough emotion toward you personally to hate you. I am completely indifferent to you and your family as individuals."
"Do you know," he queried softly, "you might be worth knowing if you'd let yourself be a human being instead of a doll stuffed with high and mighty notions?"
"I'm not interested in your opinions." She had to bite her teeth down on the words which rushed to her lips. Never, she supposed bitterly, would he understand her fierce possessiveness of Seacrift, her unwillingness to share it with anyone. She made herself say evenly: "What about this room?
May I keep it intact?"
He pretended to size up its possibilities while covertly he watched her face and correctly read the distress beneath her smile.
"See," he nodded. "You're welcome to it. It's much too grand for my tastes. We've got more than enough rooms and we'll stay out of your parlor. It's all yours."
He left her then.

Joecelyn faltered toward a chair, her composure gone, and broke into tears. So she was a stuffed doll! She hated him! Well, he would soon learn his place. She would not go near him; she would not talk to him; she would forget, if possible, that he was alive!

BLONDIE
--- If She Hasn't A Cold in Her Nose!

Joecelyn, anticipating the piebean odors of onions and cabbage, said:
"Yes, there is an unused kitchen, complete with stove and utensils at the back of the house opposite the servants' quarters. It's just off the left rear stairway." Thorn dyke cleared his throat and spoke with patronizing ambivalence. "Since you've to live at Seacrift Manor, I suggest we come to an understanding. Now, concerning property rights, we wish to be fair; understand that. You may have the use of our swimming pool, say—between eight and ten in the morning? And the beach—oh, until noon every day except Sunday—we must reserve it then for our guests. Of course our cars and horses are purely personal property."
"Mr. Russell," Tally began, his dear voice steady. "I understand, from reading a copy of your grandmother's will, and that this entire estate, house and grounds and chattels, are to be equally divided.
Am I correct?"
The other man's pale eyes wavered.
"Why, yes."
"Then, Tally, you've to live at Seacrift. We will divide the house and grounds and beach into two equal parts.
Since we are already occupying the upper part of the left half, I think it would be best if my family take over the entire left half of the house and yours the right. That will give us twelve rooms, one driveway, half of the private beach, the orchards, the tennis courts, and half of the stables. You may take your choice of horses." Joecelyn's fork dropped to the floor with a clatter and with dismay and anger. Oh, why didn't Thorn say something! Bob had been right about this young Mack.
He might look like a farmer but he could talk straight to the point.
Bob, choking with suppressed glee, hid most of his face behind his napkin. Thorn dyke had never so much resembled a fish. His eyes were nearly popping from his head.

Greenies Halt Tarboro Serpents With 4-3 Victory

SIMPSON HITS 2-RUN HOMER

Victory Puts 'Rube' Wilson's Greenies in 2nd Place

The Greenies stopped the Tarboro Serpents' winning streak yesterday and climbed into second place by virtue of their 4-3 victory at Guy Smith park.

The locals racked up their fifth victory in six starts, having lost only to Goldsboro. It was the first loss for Tarboro in five starts.

Greenville got off to a lead in the first when Ralph Simpson lofted one over the right field fence to bring in Allen who had singled. Simpson has been doing some pretty hitting this season, in addition to his spectacular fielding.

The local's other two runs came in the third on Skipper Wilson's double which scored Allen, who had walked, and Rimmer, who had singled. The score remained four-to-one until the eighth. The Serpents scored their first tally in the initial frame on a double by Schultz and a single by Coyle, but, as shown before, the lead was short-lived, as Greenville jumped into the lead in its half of the first.

In the seventh frame Wilson, the starting hurler for the Greenies, walked the first batter and felt himself weakening, asked to be relieved. He had allowed only four hits and the one run. Caliguri took over the reins and the two runs scored by Tarboro in the 8th were made off Freddy on singles by Myers and Lee, a walk to Black. Coyle's sacrifice fly and Lehman's double badger then were sent to the mound to replace Caliguri and walked Humbrecht to fill the bases. Shatzer's blow to the infield was handled perfectly by Allen who threw home to cut off the bag.

MARTINS CLING TO LOOP LEAD

Defeat New Bern As Goldsboro and Snow Win Also

Williamston's high-flying Martins won their sixth consecutive victory in Coastal Plain loop play yesterday when they defeated New Bern's Bears 7-4. The Tarboro Serpents, however, dropped their tilt to the Greenies to enter the loss column for the first time this season.

Snow Hill walloped Wilson, 14-1, in one of the season's most one-sided contests while Kinston dropped their sixth straight to the Goldsboro Gold Bugs, 4-2.

The Texas State Highway Commission will restore to its original appearance the old building near Langtry, Texas, in which Roy Bean, famed and picturesque justice of the peace, once discharged the duties of his office.

The subject of Southern self-contentment is receiving increased attention on the part of those concerned with the economic future of the South. For this reason, considerable interest has been evidenced in that part of the exhibit known as "The South Self-Contained," which shows in animated form through the use of a symbolic silver dollar behind which miniature figures appear in rotation, the apportionment of "The Home Folks' Dollar."

The pre-view is officially approved by the New York World's Fair and carries a personal greeting from Grover Whalen, president of the

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 6.—(AP)—The stock market engine sputtered and almost died today as traders found little buying fuel in either European or domestic news. While minor fractions gains predominated during the greater part of the two-hour proceedings, numerous issues were unchanged and a smattering of negligible minus signs was in evidence at the close.

Colored News

"CELESTIAL CITY" (Clipping from the Chowan Herald, Edenton): A house packed to the doors Tuesday night greeted the presentation of "Celestial City" at the colored high school when 127 colored participants held the large audience spell-bound. The entire center portion of the auditorium was reserved for white people and all of the seats were taken up by white friends.

After a heavy drill last night, the director of "Celestial City" declared that the play in Greenville Tuesday night will excel the performance in Edenton. Tickets are going fast and persons desiring to witness the presentation Tuesday night are urged to purchase a ticket by noon Tuesday.

The Albemarle avenue recreation center presented a May Festival Friday evening, May 5, with 125 children participating. The spectators, comprised of both races, numbered nearly 500.

The festival was under the direction of Misses R. V. Dudley and W. Fleming and Mrs. B. M. Atkinson. Later in the evening the participants were delightfully entertained by the directors. We wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere gratefulness for the earnest co-operation of those who helped to make this festival possible and successful.

ABC OFFICER FIRED UPON BY NEGRO STORE ROBBERS

(Continued from page one) freight train bound for Norfolk called officers along the route to be on the lookout for them. Edenton officers called that they had "picked up" two men and the descriptions indicated they were the men being sought.

Besides a small amount of money, Chestnut's pistol was taken by the two robbers. The storekeeper had some money in a lumberjacket pocket which the pair overlooked, officers stated.

Sets High Catch Mark. Halifax.—(AP)—With a fare of 75,000 pounds of halibut when she arrived here the schooner Ronald George is sure to be high-liner this season. For a single trip the normal catch of halibut is about 35,000 pounds.

Approximately 10,700,000 farm-family and hired workers in 1938 produced 25 to 30 per cent more farm products than 12,200,000 did in 1909. A little more than a fifth of the gainfully employed in the United States are farm workers.

NO A. F. L.-C. I. O. FEACE IN 1939

(Continued from page one) To meet the reduction in income, the latter has had to let a lot of valuable organizers and other staff workers go. This has halted their drive for new members and has given them a definite setback in many plants where their roots were pretty well down a year and a half ago.

A third factor which may be the "button punch" for the belligerent Mr. Lewis was the strike in the soft coal fields. The money necessary to run his gigantic 1937 offensive against the motor and steel industries was put up largely by the United Mine Workers. They were the spearhead of the whole C. I. O. drive. I was curious as to whom Mr. Lewis was referring recently when he said that "outside interests" were backing up the rebellious bituminous mine operators. A little checking around reveals there is not much doubt as to whom John L. was referring. These "outside interests" are the big coal consumers such as the railroads, utilities, steel companies, and other large employers who simply cannot afford to pay any more for coal.

A Rear Guard Attack? These consumers are large enough to take a great part of the output of a single coal mine. Hence, their bosses can talk turkey to the mine operators. These big consumers, inspired by Tom Girdler, Eugene Grace, and others, would like nothing better than to "put the finger" on the C. I. O. for once and for all.

The Lewis adherents claim these large consumers of coal have stiffened up the backbones of the mine operators. The strike, with 340,000 miners out of work, has been a mighty costly affair for the United Mine Workers as well as for you and me. It has hit at the Achilles heel of the C. I. O.—the treasury of the United Mine Workers.

The story is that if the "war chest" of the United Mine Workers can be destroyed, the C. I. O. will be ready for honest dealing. It is pretty well known that the millions of thrifty stockholders of this country feel that Mr. Green is fairer and more dependable than Mr. Lewis. Many impartial leaders believe that labor itself would, in the long run, be better off under a man like Mr. Green than under a man like Mr. Lewis.

On the other hand, the vertical system of unionization which Mr. Lewis advocates is sounder than the horizontal system for which Mr. Green stands. Hence, if the A. F. of L. group win they must adopt the C. I. O. idea in order to avoid another fight later on.

What the Operators Say The mine operators, however, insist that they have always been ready to renew the contract which expired April 1. Their story is that the A. F. of L. is "muscling in" on the C. I. O. of a new union in the coal fields. It is making progress and it worries Mr. Lewis. He wants to eliminate the fines imposed in the old contracts for unauthorized lock-outs and strikes so that he can call his C. I. O. men out of any mine that hires an A. F. of L. worker.

The operators have fought a throwing of the book penalties. They believe that if both sides unite on a contract, both sides should be liable to the same penalty for breaking it. The whole situation has been very interesting. On the surface, there is now absolutely no sign of a permanent armistice between these two major labor groups. But perhaps we are now witnessing strategy which will bring a new story—with the A. F. of L. securing the lion's share of the laurels. The fact that the average annual wage of the C. I. O. workers is $1,200 compared with $2,000 for the A. F. of L. worker has been a major stumbling block to date. The A. F. of L. members feel that they have nothing to gain and a lot to lose by joining up with the C. I. O. The latter group want to get together with the A. F. of L. but on their own terms. Hence, the deadlock.

Public "Holds the Bag" Meanwhile, patient John Q. Public has been taking it on the chin as usual. The 340,000 idle miners were declared eligible for Unemployment Insurance Compensation. The unemployment fund, of course, represents the contributions of all workers. It was not set up to support strikes. Moreover, the coal tie-up has cost many railroad workers their jobs. Steel operations have dropped and general business has sagged 5 per cent. We need a Labor Act that will prevent such situations—one that will protect consumers and the jobs of innocent workers in other industries.

Couple Awakened By Crackling Of Flames

Okisko, N. C., May 6.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Baker Hoskins were aroused from a sound sleep at 3 o'clock this morning and saved by the crackling of heat from being incinerated as victims of an arsonist who had set fire to the combination home and grocery.

The arsonist-burglar had broken a window in the living room, scattered kerosene over the couch and struck a match to it. Kerosene also had been used in the inside of the store, at the front and at the rear, where the flames were beginning to mount when Hoskins discovered the three fires. Sheriff Leslie Thomason and Deputy Johnny Anderson investigated the case this morning and started a widespread search, using a bloodhound from the prison camp at Woodville. The hound trailed the arsonist across the county line into Perquimans before losing the scent. Approximately $4 or $5 worth of merchandise, mostly punchboard prizes, had been taken from the store, the sheriff said. Also missing were cigarettes and other incidentals. No cash was taken.
