Negotiations For Inclusion Of Japan Is Said To Be Under Way Between Three Powers

Tokyo, May 8.—(AP)—Domei (Japanese news agency), said today that Lieut. General Seishiro Itagaki, Minister of War, and General Kuniaki Koiso, Overseas Minister, had told the Japanese press that they favored conclusion of a military agreement with Germany and Italy.

The agency guardedly quoted General Itagaki that if Germany decides, "It is not impossible" for Japan to conclude an agreement similar to the Italian-German accord.

Negroes Are Held In Farmville Jail

Two Negro men, William James Williams and Solomon Herring, who allegedly held up a filling station on the Farmville-Spartan highway Friday night, were held in the Farmville jail pending a preliminary hearing, which probably will be held tomorrow morning.

The two were arrested by Edenton officers Saturday morning upon advice of Pitt officers that they were possibly headed for Norfolk on a freight train. Sheriff J. Knott, Precinct and Chief of Police L. T. Lucas of Farmville went to Edenton Saturday afternoon and returned the two to Pitt county. The officers said the pair had been identified by six witnesses, including Lee Harry Chestnut, Negro, operator of the filling station which was robbed of a sum said to be about $12 or $14.

Police records show Williams to be from Mount Olive and Herring from Ohio.

STATE PATROL REPORT ISSUED

Shows 47 Accidents, Five Fatal, in Troop A For Month

A total of 47 accidents, five of which were fatal, was investigated by State highway patrolmen located in Troop A, embracing some 30 counties, during April. It was reported at the offices of Lieut. Lester Jones, commanding officer of the unit, this morning.

The number of fatalities was exactly the same as for the previous month. In addition to the five deaths, 36 persons were injured in accidents during the month.

Arrests for the month totalled 353, of which number 41 were taken on charges of driving drunk. Only nine defendants brought to trial by the patrolmen were acquitted, 344 having been convicted and sentenced. Defendants were given a total of 52 years, eight months and three days, fines amounted to $4,752.91 and court costs $3,188.72.

The patrolmen recovered stolen property valued at $3,350 and collected revenue in the amount of $11,291.63.

Prospects Good From Production Point Of View As 1939 Planting Season gets Well Under Way, But Indications as to Prices and Net Income Not So Encouraging To Farmers

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—American agriculture moved well into the 1939 planting season this week with prospects generally favorable from a production viewpoint, but less favorable from a standpoint of prices and income.

Agriculture Department surveys indicated that at least 85 per cent of the farmers will restrict planting operations in accordance with federal control programs which are intended to reduce surpluses of some crops and prevent accumulation of greater supplies in others.

This co-operation by the farmers led many growers to hope for some improvement in the general farm price level, now at its lowest point since July 1934.

Department economist said increased uncertainties in foreign markets had served to cloud the price outlook, but that they expected some improvement in domestic purchasing power this summer and fall, a development which should reflect favorably on farm prices.

As far as cash income is concerned, American farmers have not fared quite so well this year as last year. The Agriculture Department estimates their income at five per cent lower.

Cotton surpluses continue to be the most acute problem, although farmers expect to plant only 27,000,000 acres, compared with the 40,000,000 acres normally planted. Officials have estimated that the surplus from previous crops will be at least 14,000,000 bales, including 11,400,000 in government loan stocks. This would set a record.

Henry Clay Edwards, convicted of drunkenness, was given a 30-day sentence suspended upon payment of court costs.

Junior Little, Negro, convicted in a case charging him with being drunk and disorderly and assault, was given a 30-day road sentence, suspended upon payment of $5 and costs of court.

C B Cotton, charged with drunkenness, was ordered to pay $5 and costs or serve a 30-day road sentence.

H M Corey was ordered to serve a 30-day road sentence, suspended upon payment of costs, after being guilty of drunkenness.

Joe Hawkins, Negro, charged with engaging in disorderly conduct, was fined $10 half of which is to be applied on the medical expenses of Robert Langley, another Negro.

Clifton Moore, Burgaw attorney, who has been retained as private prosecutor, said tracks from Bowden's car had been trailed from the scene of the slaying to his home and that "there is some other evidence in the process of laboratory tests which connects Bowden with the slaying."

Previously District Solicitor David Sinclair said Bowden had threatened to kill Brothers several times during the past few weeks after the latter had been instrumental in securing a liquor charge indictment against Bowden.

House Adds $2,941,000 To Mammoth Naval Bill

ACTION IS TAKEN WITHOUT D'BATE

Opposition Develops, Meanwhile, to Conferring "Power Of Peace or War" On President

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—The House tentatively restored to the $770,000,000 naval bill today a $2,941,000 appropriation for air bases on Midway, Palmyra and Johnston islands in the Pacific ocean.

The Appropriations committee had refused to approve a $3,959,000 fund for the project on these islands, as well as at Wake Island.

But without a sign of debate the House approved restoration of the three items at the request of Chairman Scragham (D-Nev.) of the Naval Appropriations committee.

Meanwhile Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) presented to the Senate Foreign Relations committee a declaration by John Bassett Moore, former State Department official, that to confer "the power of peace or war" on the President "would at once make us an autocracy."

The statement was in a letter Moore wrote Johnson shortly after former Secretary of State Stimson advised the committee that should a war come this country should take sides by aiding Great Britain and France.

Moore, one time American member of the World Court and State Department counsellor of 1913-14, asserted that "the agitation for the abandonment of our neutrality is directly associated with the efforts to invest the chief executive, openly or under benevolent disguises, with the power of peace and war which is by our constitution vested in the Congress."

After reading Moore's letter, Johnson, acting chairman in the absence of Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) declared the committee's long hearings at an end. The members all immediately began executive session to undertake to write a neutrality law on which a majority can agree.

The final witness was James Shotwell, Columbia University professor of international law, who urged the adoption of a policy which would permit discrimination against any aggressor nation in time of war.

Criticizing neutrality law provisions which apply equally to all warring nations as surrendering "our neutral rights," the witness said that by providing special treatment for a treaty-breaking aggressor "we would to some extent recover our freedom of action without at the same time misleading militaristic governments into the illusion that we had ceased to care for our rights."

Licenses Secured By Eight Couples

Eight marriage licenses were issued at the offices of Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins during the past week, a number larger than for any of the past several weeks, but below the general average.

Five of the permits went to white couples and three to colored. The eight brought to 149 the number issued so far this year.

Licenses were issued as follows: White Ellis N. Hatem and Jeanette S. Curry of Greenville; Clyde Stalls and Nicey Jolly of Belvoir township; L. J. Williams of Kingston and Jean Harvey of Grifton; Truman Harris and Vivian Craig of Beaufort county. Colored—Joe Lee and Mary Sims of Greenville township; Henry Edwards and Annie Lee Williams of Farmville township; and Harvey Lee Hall and Mary Frances Shackelford of Greene county.

Oxford Singing Class To Appear At Bethel

Duke Of Windsor Ready To Deliver Peace Talk

Goes Ahead Despite Criticism From British Press

Verdun, France, May 8.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor this afternoon completed the text of his "appeal to reason" in international affairs to be broadcast tonight to the United States.

He seemed determined to make his appeal despite some advance criticism.

After numerous telephone calls between the Duke's suite and London, a member of his party said the former ruler had a "very good reason" to proceed with his speech.

The Duke was informed that some British newspapers had criticized his plan to speak as "inopportune."

Both the British Broadcasting Corporation and the Canadian Corp. announced that they would not carry the address.

The Duke abandoned a tour of World War battlefields to write the speech.

The broadcast by the former King Edward, VIII, is the first since the historic abdication speech of December 11, 1936, and will be made while on his brother, King George VI, is on the high seas making a good-will trip to North America.

There are approximately 1,300,000 4-H club members in the United States and about 7,500,000 young people have been trained in club work since the organization became a nation-wide one in 1914. Purpose of the club is to teach skill in farm and home work.

Both Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs and Prime Minister Chamberlain Intimate Before House of Commons Britain Would Be Ready To Help in Negotiations Over Free City

London, May 8.—(AP)—The British government dropped a guarded hint today to her new ally, Poland, that she would "welcome amicable settlement," possibly through arbitration, of Poland's quarrel with Germany over the Free City of Danzig.

Both Richard Butler, undersecretary of foreign affairs and Prime Minister Chamberlain intimated to the House of Commons that Britain would be ready to lend her good offices in establishing some form of international machinery to arbitrate the Danzig question should Poland and Germany ask her to do so.

Butler said the question of the future of Danzig was "primarily a matter for negotiation between parties to the Danzig settlement." The principal allied and associated powers undertook by the World War treaty of Versailles to establish Danzig as a free city under protection of the League of Nations.

In the Commons session, Chamberlain also said the government was attempting to obtain fullest cooperation with Soviet Russia in its present policy. Negotiations are under way to bring Russia into the British-French lineup.

"The House was in an uproar during discussions of the Soviet negotiations when Laborite Leader Clement E. Attlee asked:

"Does the prime minister realize that public opinion is disturbed by the contrast between the rapidity of acceptance of onerous obligations by this country and the dilatory methods in seeking for lateral security?"

The opposition cheered Attlee while government supporters shouted for Chamberlain when he replied, "I do not agree there have been any dilatory methods."

"The British government," Butler said, "stands for a settlement of international questions by friendly negotiations, arbitration or other peaceful means."

One Damage Suit and Divorce Cases Tried

A special civil term of Pitt Superior court got under way here this morning with Judge Henry A. Gray, of New Bern presiding, and by the luncheon recess hour one damage suit had been disposed of and several divorces granted.

J. S. Gates of Farmville, who sued Arthur Zambor of Belhaven for $300 damages as result of an automobile wreck in Farmville was denied any damages by a jury.

The following divorces were granted: Lubie Dixon vs. Bessie Dixon, Mack Millard Smith vs. Ora B. Smith, Stella E. Carrico vs. Samuel B. Carrico, Evelyn Davis vs. Arthur Davis Ines Garrett vs. J. S. Garrett, Minnie Tripp Baldeire vs. B. F. Baldeire and Ina Mae Keel vs. Julius Keel (not Rufus W. Keel, warehouse operator in Greenville).

REVEALS DATE FOR POPPY DAY

Little Red Memorial Flowers To Be Sold On May 27th

Poppy Day will be observed throughout the United States on Saturday, May 27, with the wearing of memorial poppies in honor of the World War dead. Mrs. Arthur Corey, president of the Greenville unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, announced today. The observance will be led by the auxiliary women who will distribute poppies on the streets during the day.

More than 1,000,000 of the little red memorial flowers have been made by disabled World War veterans working in government hospitals and in poppy workrooms maintained by the auxiliary, said Mrs. Corey. These flowers are crepe paper replicas of the poppies which grew on the World War battlefields and among which the dead and wounded fell. They are recognized throughout the English-speaking world as the memorial flower for those who fell in defense of democracy.

Plans for the local observance of Poppy Day are being completed by the Greenville Auxiliary unit under the leadership of Mrs. W. R. Jones, unit poppy chairman, aided by a large committee. Volunteer workers (Continued on page five)

1940 Gubernatorial Race Quiet During Past Week

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, May 8.—North Carolina's 1940 gubernatorial campaign was all but stagnant last week, with the only outward interest shown in speculation over Governor Clyde R. Hoey's indirect appeal to all candidates not to make formal announcement until late this year.

On the lieutenant-governor front there was increasing evidence that State Senator Erskine Smith of Albemarle is giving very serious consideration to the matter of becoming a candidate. Elsewhere there was little or nothing to point to any change in a situation which has developed to the point where Gordon Gray, Winston-Salem publisher, state senator and president of the Young Democrats (not to say millionaire scion of a tobacco family); Pat Taylor, Anson's state senator, and Reggie Harris, one-time speak-

Must Rebuilt With Brick
The new town charter gives the aldermen power to prohibit the erection of any wooden building on the business portion of Evans street. That means Greenville will have no more such disastrous fires as the one on the 4th inst.

Somebody's Chance
There is a chance to make money for the man who will get a quick move on him and go to manufacturing brick here. Greenville is going to rebuild and the new buildings will be of brick, because there will be a heavy demand for them.

There were people here Sunday from nearly all the neighboring towns. They came in carriages, in buggies and on bicycles.

Play Plans Progress.
Although dates for the presentation of "Night of January 16," have not definitely been decided, the three-act production is being rehearsed daily by members of the Greenville Little Theatre Guild, who will present the popular courtroom drama in the Pitt county court house some time this month.

One of the character parts which adds color to the play is being taken by Miss Annie Lurie Askew, who will serve as a witness in the trial. Miss Askew plays the part of a Swedish maid, and her acquired accent resembles very closely that of a genuine Swede.

Charles Woodard, who plays the part of a gangster, will bring a true conception of an underworld thug's lingo. Much laughter is produced when Woodard, as Gangster Regan, attempts to reveal and conceal his associations with wealthy persons associated with a murder.

Dr. James B. Hawes has been chosen to play the part of a Clerk of Court in the production. Rehearsals disclose that Dr. Hawes is capable of handling the activities of a murder trial in a clerk's capacity in an efficient manner.

Dance At College.
One of the largest and most successful class dances ever held at East Carolina Teachers College was the feature of all campus activities Saturday night when the freshman class entertained the junior class of the college.

Music for the gala occasion was furnished by the Rudy Walters band, led by Billy Knapp of Greenville, former Charlotte bandmaster. Miss Juanita Simpson, popular North Carolina radio singer and student at East Carolina Teachers College, was the vocalist. Several other members of the Walters band are students at E.C.T.C.

In the flower garden color scheme used throughout, the decorations overhanging the campus building floor blended with the flower garden scene on the stage of the building. The stage was bordered with rock and wild honeysuckle and this setting was made more effective by a garden fence, covered with roses and honeysuckle, which was in the background.

Participating in the grand march, held just before intermission, were

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN LEADERS

Plans for the regional conference of Democratic women are being completed by the three leaders shown above. They are, left to right, Miss Beatrice Cobb, national committeewoman; Mrs. May Thompson Evans, assistant director women's division, Democratic National Committee; and Mrs. T. W. Watson, chairman of the committee on conference arrangements.

Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, state publicity chairman of the regional conference, announced today prizes which will be awarded at the regional conference of Democratic women which will be held in Winston-Salem May 23-24. Attractive prizes have been donated by civic leaders in Winston-Salem and will be awarded by Mrs. T. W. Watson, chairman of conference arrangements, and will be as follows:

1. A prize to each county vice-chairman who has a representative attending conference from each precinct in her county.

2. A prize to each district vice-chairman who has a delegation of at least five women from each county in her district.

3. A prize to each district Digest director who has a Democratic Digest in every precinct in every county in her district.

4. A prize to the state vice-chairman among the 11 states participating in the conference, who has the largest state delegation at the conference. North Carolina will not compete for this prize.

chairmen of committees responsible for the success of the dance, and officers of various organizations on the college campus. As these campus leaders paraded before the large number of guests and students in attendance, the orchestra played the college song.

A maypole effect at the refreshment tables gave more color to the unique decorations. In the center of each refreshment table was a small maypole, from which was hanging colors identical with those overhead.

Vesper Services.
Miss Emma L. Hooper, a member of the English department of the college, and one of the Y. W. C. A. advisers, spoke at vesper service last night on the topic, "The One Great Issue—a Worthy Purpose."

To illustrate her idea, she used the lives of great men and women and the purposes to which the lives of these people were dedicated. Florence Nightingale and Joan of Arc risked everything, she said, to follow the pattern they had chosen for their lives. Jane Addams and Madame Curie worked all their lives to carry out the purposes they had chosen.

George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Horace Mann, and many other great men were great and are remembered because their lives were controlled by a worthy purpose from which nothing could turn them.

On the other hand, said Miss Hooper, many people are controlled by other than worthy purposes, and she cited the cases of the Shakespearean character Macbeth and the real man, Hitler. Perhaps from their point of view, theirs, too, were worthy aims, she said. So the right methods of choice must be used in selecting a goal to devote oneself to. Then, "we must have faith in ourself and use the power God gives to us." Faith, she pointed out, was in the hearts of the great men and women mentioned above, and their rewards were innumerable. If each of us chose a great purpose and kept it always before him, she concluded, what a wonderful world this would be.

SOCIAL and LOCAL

Citizenship Department To Meet.
The Citizenship department will meet Friday, May 12, at 3:30 p. m., at the Women's Club. The hostesses will be Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, Mrs. O. P. Matthews and Mrs. Henry West. Miss Mary Greene will speak on "Colloquialisms."

Hostess To League Members.
Saturday, Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Jr., president of the Service League, was hostess to the league members at a luncheon, 18 miles below New Bern. Arriving in the morning, the guests spent the day at the beautiful lodge site and in the boats on the picturesque blue waters of Slocum creek and the Neuse river. A beautiful luncheon was served by the hostess. Master John Lee Stokes contributed to the merriment of the party with occasional impromptu readings. The guests had a happy day together and are grateful to Mrs. Stokes for such an enjoyable outing.—Reported.

Spend Sunday in Morehead.
Among those who spent Sunday in Morehead were: H. H. Duncan, Phil Goodson, Billy Morton, Miss Elizabeth Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ward, Mrs. Zilphia Rotroff, James Harvey Ward, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Folger, W. S. Moye, Vester Mulholland, Miss Helen McGinnis, Herman Fulkerson, Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Frank, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Browne, Dr. and Mrs. Denver Baughn and daughter, Dr. Lucille Turner, Miss Scholtz.

Cub-Parents Pack Meeting.
The regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Cub-Parents will be held Tuesday night at the armory building on Evans street, at 7:30. All boys are urged to be present and bring at least one parent or a written excuse from parent stating they can not be present. At this meeting we will discuss the Mother-Son supper which is to be Friday night. Let's make this Pack meeting 100 per cent, both cubs and parents.
Jake Hadley, Cubmaster.

Entertains At Dance.
Grifton, May 8—Saturday evening, Miss Jean Harvey and Mr. Thurman Williams were honor guests when Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. William Bagwell entertained jointly at a dance, receiving around 200 guests at the Community building.

Guests were entertained informally in the main room which was beautifully decorated with pines and Southern smilax, colored lights gave a soft glow to the dancers.
Punch was served from an attractively arranged tables. Assisting in serving were Mrs. George Sugg, Mrs. Cecil Cobb and Miss Inez May. Music was furnished by Bear Johnson and his orchestra.

Bride-Elect Honored.
On Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, Miss Helen Settle, bride-elect of next month, was honor guest when Miss Madeline Woolard entertained at bridge.

Tables for the games were placed in a very attractive setting of sweet peas in the pastel shades.
Place cards, suggestive of the approaching wedding, marked the tables. Miss Settle's place was marked with a corsage.

Following a number of games, the honor guest was awarded a double deck of cards for making high score. Miss Marjorie Spivey was given a dainty linen handkerchief for holding honors.
A delicious salad course with iced tea and decorated individual cakes was served.

The hostess' gift to Miss Settle was a crystal cake plate in her chosen pattern.
Later in the afternoon the bride-elect was presented a kitchen shower. The gifts were placed in a small wagon which was drawn by little Miss Barbara Lou Batchelor, niece of the hostess.

Mrs. H. H. Settle and Mrs. Spruill Spain joined the guests for the refreshment hour.

Williams-Harvey.
Grifton, May 8.—Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock, the marriage of Miss Jean Edwards Harvey to Mr. Thurman James Williams of Kinston, was solemnized in the Queen Street Christian Church, in a ceremony of beauty and simplicity.
The church altar and chancel were decorated with standard and dragon arranged against a background of long leaf pine and Southern smilax.

As the guests assembled, a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Ed Peele of Elm City. Mrs. Ernest Skinner of Kinston, soloist, sang "At Dawning," by Cadman, and "Because," by D'Hardelot. The "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was used as the processional and the traditional Mendelssohn aria was played after the ceremony as the party left the church.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father, John R. Harvey. They were met at the altar by the groom, who had as his best men his brother, Milton G. Williams. Ushers were Speight Stroud and Richard Nelson. The vows were read by the Reverend Perry Case, pastor of the bride, in the presence of relatives and friends.

The bride was gowned in a Patou ensemble of faille crepe of navy and white, featured with a finger-tip cape. Her hat was a white toque banded in navy with a shoulder veil of navy. She used harmonizing accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of white orchids.

tion with the J. R. Harvey Company. Mr. Williams is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Brown Williams of Kinston and received his education at Wake Forest College. He is district sales manager for the Quaker Oats Company, with headquarters in Greensboro.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Norfolk, Va., where they will sail for a honeymoon trip to Bermuda. On their return they will be at home at the O'Henry Hotel in Greensboro.

WORLD'S FAIR EXHIBIT TO BE HERE WEDNESDAY
The South, as a self-contained unit, has been made the basis of one section of the New York World's Fair 1939 Pre-view on wheels and Southern motorcade, now touring the South.

The subject of self-containment for the South is receiving increased attention on the part of those concerned with its economic future. One of the South's big industries contributing to such self-containment is the chemical industry. Establishment of a domestic nitrate industry has brought many benefits to Southern farmers in the form of improved quality standards and lower nitrate costs, and has made America independent of foreign supplies of this valuable fertilizer. U. S. Census Bureau figures show that the Southern states are gaining in population twice as fast as all the rest of the country. Economists have been quick to point to these figures as evidence that industrial expansion in the South in the past decade has been responsible in no small measure for the gain in population and opportunity in the South. The chemical industry, widely hailed as the great industry of the future, has located many important units in the South in the last ten years. The production of Arcadian Nitrate, alone, has contributed directly and indirectly, millions of dollars annually to the payrolls of Southern workers and added thousands of carloads of freight to the traffic over Southern railroads. It has also been a principal factor in bringing about lower nitrate costs, improved quality standards and greater yield to the Southern farmer. Southern leaders agree that this industrial activity and its further increase in the coming years, will go far in helping the South achieve its economic destiny.

The New York World's Fair 1939 Pre-view on wheels and Southern motorcade, sponsored by the distributors of Arcadian Nitrate, and officially approved by the New York World's Fair, will therefore be of particular interest to those concerned with the agricultural and economic advancement of the South. It depicts in graphic, animated form the manufacture and distribution of Arcadian Nitrate and the apportionment of "The Home Folks' Dollar."

Models of the famous Theme Cenitral of the fair, the Trylon and the Perisphere, are presented in diorama form, together with the fair's skyline and the visiting crowds. The presentation is augmented by a lecturer.

The Greenville exhibit will be at Fourth and Washington streets, Wednesday, May 10th, at 2:30 p. m.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover
Washington—At the Interior Department a person is likely to run into anything from a moose to a child health project, but we thought we were hitting a new high when we were guided about the museum by an Indian dressed in a string of sleigh bells, a breech cloth, low-cut moccasins and a feather in his hair.

Indians drift back here from the far west at various times during the year. There aren't any more stage coaches to overhaul, but the treasury is still here. Yet it happened that our half-stripped Indian was here with his brothers to demonstrate the war dance, corn grinding dance and the Indian love call, which isn't anything at all like the Indian Love Call you hear over the radio.

Among Secretary Ickes' proudest possessions is a radio station, and soon the Indians were recording their native songs for future generations. Some in business suits and some in feathers and war paint, they huddled around the microphone.

"Okav, Geronimo," piped the program director, and they began yipping into a recording.

Apaches and Zuni Pueblos from Arizona and New Mexico each had a go at the recording, along with the Kiowas from Oklahoma.

Their swing session didn't sound like music. It takes years of listening to the yelp of coyotes and the jeep of a bald eagle to find Indian harmonies anything but harrowing.

Foxed the Spaniards
The Zunis have an especially interesting history. For a thousand years they have been peace-loving agricultural Indians. When you have a farm you can't be forever running away when an enemy tribe shows up. So they learned to build adobe houses which in time of war served as forts.

About 1540 some medieval tale bearer told Coronado that the Zuni village, then known as the seven cities of Cibola, was built of gold and its streets paved with silver. He swallowed the story whole and led a caravan 2,000 miles from Mexico City to get the gold. The Zunis didn't have a dime, of course, and some of the Spaniards were for ex-terminating them, suspecting deception. But the Zunis were ready for that too.

They fled to the top of a nearby mesa which rose from the plain like a block of concrete with only one narrow approach. The Spaniards attacked, but the methodical Zunis rolled rocks down on them.
They had to stay on the mesa a long time and signs of the occupation are there yet. Now they call it magic mountain.

Spoons, Yes
They govern themselves much as they did hundreds of years ago, with a tribal council and Pueblo government. They obey a mixture of federal and state laws. They used to squat around on the floor but now have chairs and tables for the most part, and eat with knives, forks and spoons. They think it is silly to be mentioning this, but we have been asked.

In spite of a considerable amount of white man's polish, they still yield to a code of half-remembered superstitions. Long ago they recognized the potency of white man's medicine. Yet only lately when the Interior Department sought to build a hospital for them in the center of the Zuni village there was an almost universal outcry. They wanted the hospital but thought it ought to be three miles away.

Nobody could pry anything out of them until finally a tribal interpreter explained. The proposed hospital was to be right near the center. They were afraid witches haunting the cemetery would move into the hospital and hex the patients. They wanted the hospital farther away, so the witches couldn't get there.

Motor vehicle licenses, which produced only four per cent of the total tax receipts in the 48 states in 1915, yielded 9.5 per cent in 1938.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, May 8.—The big relief map of the Great Smoky Mountains prepared under direction of State Geologist H. J. Bryson, has been sent to the North Carolina exhibit at the New York World's Fair.
The map is 11 feet long by 4 feet, 6 inches deep and is on a scale large enough to show up the peaks of the Smokies in realistic style. It took 224 thicknesses of card board to represent the highest peak of the range.

While the mountains are being exhibited in this relief map at the New York Fair, a salt water aquarium will be exhibited at the U. S.
Fisheries laboratory at Beaufort on Rivers' Island this summer. It is now under construction and will be ready soon, according to N. F. Prythor, director.

State Senator Pat Taylor of Anson and State Senator "Cousin Willie" Clark of Edgecombe, held a sort of Senate reunion in the Sir Walter lobby late Friday afternoon of last week.

Senator Taylor still has nothing whatever to say publicly about his possible candidacy for lieutenant-governor next year.

On the lieutenant governorship there has developed a rather unusual situation in that, in addition to Taylor, the other State Senator from the same district (19th) W.
Erskine Smith of Albemarle, also has the bee buzzing loudly in his bonnet.

Incidentally last Friday was quite a day for Senators in Raleigh, although all denied any political intent or purpose. Beside Taylor and Clark Dr. T. W. M. Long of Hall-fax and John D. Larkins, Jr., of Jones, were capitol visitors.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
Tally Mack, a young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seacuff.

Yesterday, Tally demands that the estate be divided right down the middle.

Chapter Seven
Interlopers

JOCELYN, returning home from an early morning canter on the deserted beach with Mephisto, saw young Talbot Mack, taking a strange, wizened little man into the house. What was he up to, now? she wondered. The Mack knew no one in Santa Barbara.
They had said so. Well, it was none of her business what they did so long as they kept to the left half of the place.

Again she was thankful for the presence of her grandfather who had bisected the great manor with two separate upper and lower hallways with communicating doors between them. The old gentleman had treasured privacy and planned the house with the idea of preserving it as much as possible. The left wing for many years had been reserved for guests.
When he died, his widow, ailing much of the time, had closed off most of the unused guest rooms.
At least, Jocelyn thought now with satisfaction, the Russells had retained the dining-room, the library, and the great drawing-room. And, even better, sole right to the swimming pool. Let the interlopers have the tennis courts; Thorn could order new ones laid out on the other side of the pool.

She turned the reluctant Mephisto toward the groom and started toward the right side entrance, slapping her riding crop lightly against her boots. There just would be time to change clothes and drive over to the country club for Bob's tennis match. She hoped he would win today. He was playing Milner, the French cup holder.
With one foot on the broad stone steps Jocelyn stopped and sniffed.
From somewhere very close came the sweet, tantalizing odor of freshly baked cookies. She stepped up on the stone-flagged porch and sniffed again.

"Hello," said Betsy from the sun-drenched porch swing. "I'm eatin' cookies for breakfast. It's all we got to eat. Gramma brought some from somewhere very close. Come over and get some."

"None. Mister Bob gave us lots of oranges. We like Mister Bob." Jocelyn knew relief. "Where is your Uncle Tally going to get money to buy things?" she urged, curious.

"Don't know. He said if I played here you'd chase me away. Will you?"

"No. I don't go about chasing little children no matter what your uncle says. But I do wish you'd take your cookies and go around on the other side of the house."

"Why?"
"Because this side of the house is mine and you must come here unless I invite you."

"Why?"
"Just then, in time to save Jocy-lyn's crumbling restraint, Gretchen hurried toward them, an apologetic expression on her pale face.
"I thought I heard her talking,"
she explained a little breathlessly.
"I'm awful sorry if she's bothered you. Miss Russell. We told her not to come here, but she won't mind anybody but Tally and he's busy. I guess I'll have to tie her up."

Jocelyn's eyes were cold. "She tells me you have nothing to eat but cookies. Is that true? If so, I'll send some things in to you."

Gretchen flushed. "We have plenty of food," she insisted with strange vehemence. "Betsy likes to make up stories. Most children do. Don't pay any attention to her." Miss Russell.

"I do not make up stories, Mama!" Betsy shrieked. "A nd I want to stay here and play." Gretchen scooped the child into her arms and carried her squirming and wailing, back of the house.
Jocelyn went on up to her bedroom, grateful as she let herself into its luxury and quiet. At last this was one place she wouldn't be disturbed. She sank to the soft, tufted-covered bed, sprang up with a cry of terror. Sharp claws had grazed her arm!

A Conquest
"MEOWRR?" questioned Tex, gently waving his plum-like tail and watching her with expressionless yellow eyes. He lay flat on his stomach in the exact center of the bed, his unmoving attitude suggesting he considered it his personal property.

"You horrible beast!" Jocelyn cried, startled. "How did you get in here, anyhow? And your paws are dirty and you've got my white counterpane dirty! Get out of here, scamp!"

Tex merely turned over one of his paws for inspection and began cleaning it with his rough pink tongue. Jocelyn advanced, tentatively extended her hand. He went on washing. Gingerly her fingers touched the thick fur on his head as if expecting it to be charged with electricity. Tex ceased his washing, yet remained immobile.

A wry smile parted her lips. She,
a girl who controlled the wild Mephisto, who had never known fear of any animal, was afraid to pick him up and put him out. She would have to call on one of the Macks
for help.

"Nice kitty—nice Tex—nice kitty," she soothed, stroking him.
With a sudden movement he turned over on his back, waved his paws playfully in the air and turned his big head coyly to one side. Why, Jocelyn thought, amazed, he isn't vicious at all! He wants to play! Very gently she picked him up in her arms.

"I might like you," she scolded him, "if you'd leave my dog alone.
Could I buy you off for catnip and cream? Or maybe some very special salmon?"

Immeasurably pleased with her conquest she carried Tex down to the kitchen, asked the ruddy-cheeked French cook to open a can of salmon, and fed the cat herself.
He ate ravenously. So, she thought, Tex did not care for a diet of oranges and cookies.

After letting him out into the sunshine she hurried back to her room, realizing he had made her late.

Before changing clothes she smoothed the counterpane, eyeing suspiciously the dusty paw-prints.
She propped up her exquisite French doll, whose curls were auburn and whose eyes were deep blue, against a nest of silken boudoir pillows at the head of the bed.
Geoffrey had brought her that doll from San Francisco because, he asserted, it looked like her. Geoff could be terribly sweet at times.

Later, ordering lunch in the club grill, several of her friends drifted over, anxious for further reports on the Mack's Jocelyn laughingly told them of her morning's adventures with Betsy and Tex. Here among her friends in the leisurely surroundings of the perfectly appointed clubrooms the descent of the Texans appeared humorous.
And at least it would furnish the younger crowd a new interest.
Several girls inquired archly concerning the stalwart young farmer, slyly suggesting that Geoff might not be pleased at his fiancée's constant and unavoidable propensity with such an attractive male.

"Like A Bridge Pad"
"NONSENSE!" Jocelyn declared.
"He lives in overalls and boots and treats me as if I were a necessary nuisance! And this, darlings, is priceless! His family call him 'Tally!' Can you imagine a girl getting emotional over anyone called Tally? It sounds like a bridge pad or a call to the fox hunt!" She went on to tell them about the division of the house and grounds triumphantly stating that she had salvaged intact the drawing-room.

Still laughing, she spied Geoff-frey coming toward her. He appeared annoyed about something.
"We were discussing Lyn's adopted family," Ruth Benton teased. "Aren't you afraid to expose her to the charm of a virile he-man?"

"Oh, you mean that young Mack?" he said. "I haven't had a look at him yet."
"Then do so," Ruth advised. "I only saw him at a distance but he looked magnificent, Geoff!"

Geoff glanced at his wristwatch. "We had better find seats for the tennis match. It begins in ten minutes. What made you so late, Lyn? I just talked to Bob and he seems in good form today.
Matter of fact I never saw him quite so blithe."

"The Macks," Jocelyn nodded.
"He adores them, or at least he is assuming that pose to annoy us."
"Isn't there a girl?"

"Umm. She's pretty in a pale Rembrandtish way. I told you about Betsy. That's her child. She said something about her husband being an aviator. I think his name was Andre Landau—anyhow he was killed in a crash."

"Andre Landau?" Geoff mused.
"Andre Landau? Why, Lyn, he was that French war ace who brought down so many German planes—it comes back to me now. He was barnstorming the country, doing stunts for fairs and carnivals, when one of the wings on his old plane buckled on a power dive and he crashed in flames."

Jocelyn shuddered. "I wonder if his wife was there. It must have been terrible!" Gretchen assumed a different stature in her eyes. She said sullenly, "She could be quite lovely if she had a little more spent on her appearance. Her eyes are beautiful."

"Thinking of playing fairy godmother?" Ruth prodded.
Jocelyn shrugged. "I doubt if I could. They're poor, all right, but proud. I offered her a supply of food this morning and her indignation at my offer surpassed my indignation at her refusal! No that's definitely out."

"For goodness sake, Lyn, will you stop talking and hurry?" Geoff demanded in exasperation.
"I should like a decent view of the court, especially since I've wagered over a thousand on Bob's winning the match!"

Continued tomorrow.

Public Is Invited To Visit Hospital

Pitt General hospital is participating in National Hospital Day, and a cordial invitation has been extended to the citizens of Greenville and other towns in Pitt county to visit the institution on Friday, May 12.

National Hospital Day is observed each year on May 12 in honor of the memory of Florence Nightingale, who not only founded the modern nursing education movement but whose efforts to improve standards of hospital care marked the beginning of the modern hospital.

National Hospital Day is the day outset aside by hospitals throughout the United States and Canada, as well as the rest of the world, in having open house in order to acquaint the public with the services of the modern hospital whose staff of workers fight for health and happiness 24 hours a day, every day.

Pitt General hospital will have open house Friday, May 12, visiting hours from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. The hospital will welcome all of its friends and acquaintances.

Officers Report Only Usual Law Violations

Local police officers had a busy Saturday, with numerous arrests being made on charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct, assault, etc., but only four persons were booked Sunday, three of these being sleepers, persons passing through town with no place to spend the night.

The sheriff's office reported an unusually quiet week-end. Members

Greenies Divide Week-End Games, Hold Second Place

WILSON VICTIM THERE SUNDAY

Locals, however, Lose 13-Inning Tilt To Tarboro

The Greenies broke even on the week-end games, losing to Tarboro, 9-8, in a 13-inning game Saturday night in the first night game of the season, which was played in the Edgewood capital, and defeating Wilson, 3-2, in the Sunday game, the contest also being played away from home.

Lefty Spence, also known as "Lightning," pitched and hit his team to victory yesterday. He allowed seven scattered hits and drove in two runs, one of which was in the seventh frame and broke the tie to give the Greenies the margin of victory. The seventh inning Texas leaguer brought in Vincent Smith who had tripled.

The Greenies drew first blood in the first whang singles by Allen and Heavener, combined with two in-field outs, accounted for one run. The Tobs came back to knot the count in their half of the first. In the second the Greenies added another on singles by Christopher and Smith and Spence's sacrifice fly. Smith was the only Greenie to hit more than once during the game and both clouts counted in the scoring. Clout has been hitting unusually good this season and has featured in several wins for the locals.

Wilson's second and final run came in the fourth. Jirak singled, went to third on a hit by Kearns and came home on a double steal.

The victory put the Greenies back in second place after having yielded that position to Tarboro by the loss to the Serpents Saturday night.

Back to that 13-inning game on Saturday night. It looked for a while as if Greenville had the tilt sewed up, but Tarboro has a habit this year of pulling games out of the bag and that is exactly what they did in the last half of the 9th inning in this case. The Greenies went into the ninth with a five-run lead, added one more to make it 7-1. Up to this time Don King had the Serpents completely baffled, having allowed only four hits. Errors, however, were chiefly responsible for the six-run rally. Don yielded four hits and his teammates made an equal number of bobbles.

Three more scoreless innings and the Greenies made one in the 13th and it looked as if they had redeemed themselves, but those Serpents also got busy and made two in their half of the inning to win the game. It took three hours and 25 minutes to play the contest and it was nearly midnight when the game was finally over.

THOSE MARTINS CAN'T BE BEAT

Continue Lead Loop With Eight Wins and No Losses

Williamston's Martins continued their winning streak yesterday as Mule Shirley's Goldsboro Gold Bugs lost a 2-1 verdict to the Martin county team. This ran to eight games the winning streak of the Williamstonians. Meanwhile, New Bern's Bears took a twin bill from the Kinston Eagles. The Bears sewed up the first game 5-3 and gained a 7-4 verdict in the six-inning nightcap. The Snow Hill Billies spanked Tarboro's entry by a 10-7 score in the other Coastal Plain contest.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 8.—(AP)—You could take today's market or leave it alone and the exceptionally small volume combined with a declining shift apparently indicated that many traders followed the latter course.

Losses running to two or more at the close, however, were substantially reduced in most cases at the close. There also were a number of modest plus signs in evidence.

Transfers for the five hours approximated 350,000 shares, one of the lowest totals since last June.

announcements.

These five varying views briefly can be summed up thus:

(1) The appeal indicates a strong disinclination on the part of Governor Hoey to make any choice among candidates who are almost uniformly friendly to him and who are his personal friends.

(2) The Hoey interview confirms a previous suspicion that the Gardner-Hoey administration forces are working desperately to handpick Congressman Lindsay Warren and set him into the 1940 race as their personal candidate.

(3) The governor is making a political mistake by not selecting his favorite immediately so that all administration politicians can take their coats off and go to work now.

(4) The suggestion that announcements be deferred will be welcomed by the prospective candidates and will be embraced by them with open arms.

(5) The governor is sticking his nose into something that, after all, is none of his business.

These five things cannot, of course, all be true and correct and this piece is not meant to intimate that they are—they are set out merely as reactions obtained from various political figures when asked for their opinion of the governor's plea.

It is an interesting commentary on the tremendous influence wielded by the present governor on the part of the persons interviewed would allow himself to be quoted by name in making any comment. To a man, they frankly admitted that it's political dynamite in North Carolina to express any views distinctly at variance with the pronouncements of Governor Hoey.

At first glance it seems rather unusual that there was no criticism on the Hoey wish for a short campaign, when it is recalled that the governor made his formal announcement of candidacy on May 15, 1935—more than a full year before the 1936 primary.

It is also recalled, however, that this announcement was more or less forced by reason of the fact that Sandy Graham, then lieutenant governor, had made his formal entry into the race on "Love Feast" night of the 1935 state senate. If then, of course, behoved Mr. Hoey to get into the running before too many commitments were made.

One thing stands out very prominently—and that is that if one announcement is made in the near future by any prominent candidate who has a ghost of a chance to win, then the gates will be down and the governor's plea will be forgotten; but it is distinctly doubtful if any candidate except an out and out anti-administrationist will be willing to put himself in position of defying the expressed gubernatorial wishes.

The fact is that most of the mentioned possibilities are as one in seeking to curry favor with the administration and it would take a hardy soul to declare, to all intents and purposes, that he has not the Hoey blessings by announcing now.

If there is any real scheme on the part of Max Gardner and the governor—mind you, this correspondent is not saying there is—to get Congressman Warren into the race, the Hoey appeal was a natural. It will head off any announcement by anyone else until after the present session of Congress has adjourned and there has been plenty of time to push Warren into action. All indications are that the Washington man will not run unless tremendous pressure is brought to bear.

Movie-Of-The-Month

Coons Picks "Man Of Conquest" A Studio Gamble That Paid Off

As Hollywood correspondent of the AP Feature Service and The Daily Reflector, Robin Coons herewith names another Movie-of-the-Month—with reasons.

By ROBBIN COONS (AP Feature Service Writer)

Hollywood—Little Republic studios, on the far edge of Hollywood geographically and still farther in financial prestige from the so-called "major studios," bet its bankroll and its future on "Man of Conquest."

Little Republic, happily, seems to have won the bet. "Man of Conquest" is a darn-good movie—both as a study of Sam Houston's fascinating career and as a thriller chock-full of flag-waving, gun smoke, heroism and excitement.

Richard Dix (more or less submerged in the Hollywood deck since his great days in "Cimarron") comes out on top as the pioneer spirit who lived among the Indians as their brother, fought with Andrew Jackson at Horseshoe Bend, became governor of Tennessee—and subse-

Richard Dix, as Sam Houston, awaits the moment of attack against Santa Anna at San Jacinto.

Check-Up

This Month's Runner-Up—"Alexander Graham Bell," 20th Century-Fox. Irving Cummings directing Loreta Young, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda.

Best with Music—"The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," (RKO). H. C. Potter directing Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers.

Star-of-the-Month—Edward Ellis in "Man of Conquest." Character-of-the-Month—Henry Fonda in "Alexander Graham Bell."

quently dreamed of wresting the Mexican territory of Texas from its rulers and founding an independent kingdom.

Love Disappointment.

Houston's early life is briefly suggested, and the story really gets under way with the unhappy romance with Eliza Allen (Joan Fontaine). When Eliza leaves him after the wedding, Houston withdraws from the race for re-election, retires to life among his Cherokee brothers—and is recalled from his primitive existence only by Jackson.

The scene swings to Texas where Stephen Austin (Ralph Morgan) is crediting the promises of the Mexican general Santa Anna (C. Henry Gordon) against warfare.

Houston, still intent on a "grab," is dissuaded by a visit from Jackson, who visualizes Texas as an American state, appeals to the fighting man's patriotism, in the film's finest scenes. Capitulating, Houston joins the Austin forces in resisting Mexican aggression, spurred on by news of the heroic defense of the Alamo. As commander-in-chief of the little Texas army, Houston retreats from Santa Anna's invasion until the stage is set—at San Jacinto—for a surprise attack. Santa Anna is routed (in spectacular scenes) and Texas is free.

The final sequences show Texas entering the Union, with Houston and wife (Gail Patrick) and child visiting Jackson on his deathbed.

Ellis Takes Honors. Edward Ellis ("A Man to Remember") creates an absorbing portrait of the fighting president, and takes the acting honors away from Dix. Miss Patrick, as the girl who loved Houston in spite of his divorce and who later married him, and Miss Fontaine both give creditable performances. Comedy hit is George Hayes, as Lannie Upchurch, the loyal Houston follower from the backwoods.

Texas who know their history will complain—as some have—that certain aspects of the Alamo siege have been omitted. They want various incidents revealing the heroism of the defenders incorporated in the film. Republic's answer is that many of these incidents actually were filmed, had to be omitted in the final cutting in order to bring the picture to reasonable length.

As it stands, however, "Man of Conquest" represents a convincing summary of a life that had, in its many phases, enough excitement for two or three feature pictures.

Others in the cast: Robert Barrat, Victor Jory, Robert Armstrong, Janet Beecher, Pedro de Cordoba, Max Terhune, Kathleen Lockhart, Ferris Taylor, Leon Ames. Directed by George Nichols, Jr. from screenplay by Wells Root, E. E. Paramore, Jr. and Jan Fortune.

A good formula for the spring whitewash solution: 1/2 bushel of unslaked lime, 1 pound of glue, 1/2 pound of Spanish whiting or Plaster Paris, 15 pounds of salt and three pounds of rice.

Housecleaning Hint About Moths

To do a thorough job and get rid of moths, here's what to do. First, clean out all trunks, drawers and closets. Cracks and crevices in closets and clothes containers should be swept out and then sprayed with Bee Brand Insect Spray which kills moths in all stages—from egg to adult. Expose all garments to sunlight, brush thoroughly and have dry cleaned or steam pressed. If kept hanging in closets through summer, spray clothes regularly with Bee Brand so that a heavy mist descends on garments. Don't confuse Bee Brand Spray with other insecticides. It has no nasty cedar fragrance that soon disappears. Kills moths, flies, mosquitoes and other flying insects quick, yet entirely safe to use in the home. Don't waste money on cheap, weak, smelly stuff. Insist on genuine Bee Brand Insect Spray. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back. 17 1/2-oz. 29¢; 4-oz. 49¢.

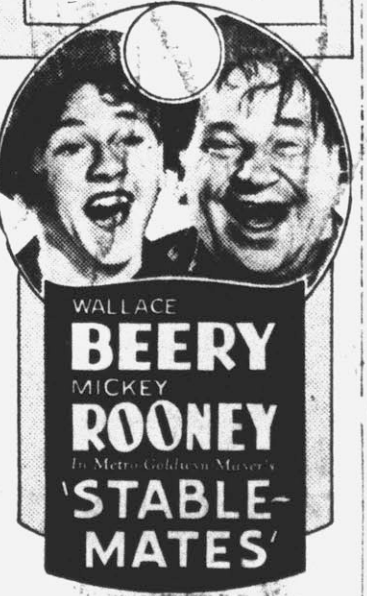

NOTE: You can also kill moths, flies, etc., as well as roaches and ants, with Bee Brand Insect Powder. Read directions on can.
