Russia's Reply Received At London Thought To Be Rejection Of Proposals

ANSWER SENT TO PARIS ALSO

Although Contents of Answer Not Officially Revealed, Diplomats Generally Agreed Attempts to Draw Russia Into Anglo-French Front Not Successful

London, May 15.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's reply to Great Britain's counter proposals for getting the U. S. S. R. into the British-French front was received at the foreign office today and passed on to the French government.

Foreign office officials said they could not disclose its contents, but in diplomatic circles it was agreed generally that it did not accept the British plan.

Britain had suggested that Russia should agree to help Poland and Rumania if these countries were attacked and asked for help. She stipulated specifically that Russia's guarantees should not come into effect until Britain and France were fighting for the two nations.

Prime Minister Chamberlain earlier had told the House of Commons that Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax hoped to discuss the proposals with the Soviet representative at the League of Nations council meeting beginning next Monday.

Chamberlain said the British government was waiting a further communication from Russia on the counter proposals.

Chamberlain, in his statement last Wednesday, said that Britain proposed, following her guarantees to Poland and Rumania, that Russia "should make on their behalf a declaration of similar effect in the sense that in the event of Great Britain and France being involved in hostilities in the discharge of their own obligations the Soviet government would express its readiness also to lend assistance."

Final arrangements have been completed for the conducting of the North Carolina Youth Exhibit and Conference in Raleigh Memorial auditorium, Friday and Saturday, May 19 and 20. It was learned today from Mrs. Mattie Mave Gaylord, NYA supervisor for Pitt county.

Mrs. Gaylord will leave for Raleigh, where a number of articles made by the NYA youth in this county will be on display during the two days of the conference. Exhibits will be open in the Memorial auditorium from Friday afternoon through Saturday evening at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Gaylord said.

Besides the exhibits, a full program of discussion conferences has been arranged for Saturday, with everyone interested invited to attend the session and to participate in the open forum discussions which are to follow.

Leading off the conference Saturday morning at 9 o'clock will be a talk on "Youth and Employment" by Tom L. Popejoy of Washington, D. C., deputy administrator of the National Youth Administration. The forum will be headed by State NYA Director John A. Lang. This session will be followed by one on "Youth and Education," with the main speaker Dr. Charles W. J. Ford, former head of the University of Chicago's department of education and now director of education for the NYA.

William A. V. Coker, instructor in Greensboro High school and vice president of the National Student Federation, will lead open forum discussion.

Light Docket Faced By Pitt County Court Although no County court was held last week because of a scheduled civil session of Superior court, a light docket is indicated for tomorrow's session of the county tribunal.

Clerk E. F. Tucker said today that unless an unusually large number of cases were scheduled between then and the time for the hearing, the court would complete its work in a short while.

No session of the tribunal will be held for the next two weeks, a regular civil term of court being scheduled.

GEORGE VI IS CAMERA FAN, TOO

It seems that King George VI of Great Britain is a camera fan, too. Here he shoots a picture aboard the S.S. Empress of Australia, the vessel carrying him to Canada and the United States, while Queen Elizabeth looks on. Carried back to England by the cruiser Reulse, this picture was cabled from London. Meanwhile the Empress of Australia's progress is delayed in the iceberg region of the North Atlantic by dense fog.

Refuse Permit Vote On Wage-Hour Changes

Administration Leaders Evidently Fear Defeat Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Administration leaders, apparently fearing defeat, suddenly changed plans and refused to permit the House to consider or vote today on changes in the wage-hour law.

Strong farm bloc opposition had developed over the week-end. Today when the House met, Chairman Norton (D-N.J.) of the Labor committee announced on the floor that, contrary to expectations, she would not ask for consideration of the amendment.

House leaders had planned to call up the provisions under a procedure which would have required a two-thirds vote for passage and which would have prevented any alterations to the committee-approved amendment.

It was learned that they agreed there was little chance of obtaining that degree of support, especially in view of the firm opposition of five farm organizations which said that more agriculture labor than the present law would place agriculture in a "straight-jacket."

There was no immediate indication whether Mrs. Norton would decide later to attempt to obtain House approval for the changes or whether the question would be (Continued on page six)

Cities Have $1,000,000 Invested In Rural Lines

Raleigh, May 15.—If and when a real battle develops over the right of counties to tax power lines belonging to municipalities and strung outside corporate limits, it isn't going to be a penny ante affair by any means—figures showing that North Carolina municipalities have more than a million dollars invested in rural power lines indicate.

These figures, too, are certain to be conservative as they are those of the State Rural Electrification Authority and are based on reports made to it by the municipalities inasmuch as there is no law or regulation under which the municipal officials are forced to report anything to anybody, and inasmuch as these officials have always shown a very decided disinclination to tell too much about their activities, the REA figures are absolute minimums. They show that 26 municipalities are operators of 1,134 miles of power lines, serving 6,445 customers and built at a total cost of $908,396.23.

The Greenville plant has 290 miles of lines, which cost $284,500, and

WOULD CHANGE METHODS USED IN LEAF QUOTA

Proposal Sets Allotment by Pounds, Not Acreage

PENALTY SET AT 10 CENTS POUND

Amendment Agreed Upon by Congressman from Tobacco States and by Officials of AAA

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Tobacco marketing quotas under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 would be changed from a poundage to an acreage basis under amendments to the act agreed upon today by tobacco states Congressmen and AAA officials.

Rep. Burch (D-Va.) leader of the tobacco area congressional group, said the amendment also would require that past experience of the farm operator in tobacco be taken into consideration in making allotments to new growers. The penalty for marketing in excess of quota would be changed to a flat 10 cents a pound on flue cured, burley and Maryland tobacco and five cents on all other types, in place of the present provisions based on a percentage of the gross price.

The change in marketing quotas from a poundage to acreage basis would be accomplished by adding a new section to the act to permit the Secretary of Agriculture to convert the state marketing quota to a state acreage allotment on the basis of average yield an acre for the state during the five years immediately preceding the year in which the national marketing quota is proclaimed and allot acreage through local committees in the same way as marketing quotas are allotted at present.

The actual production of the farm acreage allotment established in such manner would be the farm marketing quota.

Markers To Guide Fliers Over State

Raleigh, May 15.—A pioneer in making its highways easy to follow to the right destination, North Carolina is moving rapidly to make the air lanes so clear to fliers that there will be no excuse for any Corriagan stuff over Tar Heels.

Identification signs have been painted in 125 cities and towns in North Carolina since November 1, 1938, under a WPA project sponsored jointly by the state Department of Conservation and Development and the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The project calls for painting of 20 markers before it is completed.

Revival Opens At Free Will Baptist

The Steve Claud revival began last night at the Free Will Baptist Church with packed houses, including the balcony.

Evangelist Claud brought a forceful message on the subject of cooperation in soul saving for Christ from a scripture lesson in the second chapter of Mark, where a man was brought to Christ by four men who removed a part of the roof to let him in the presence of Jesus.

"Jesus had come to Capernaum and it was in the heat of the day, and enters into the house, and a part of the roof was taken away that a man might be healed. Four men were willing to lay aside their business that their friend might be healed. They had called all the doctors and spent much money, but now they were willing to sacrifice time and business affairs that he might be brought into the presence of the Son of God. I wonder if we will be willing to make the sacrifice to some souls during these two weeks?"

"There was a crowd at the house, and wherever Jesus is there is always a crowd. A little stammering boy asked a man on the street to read a verse in the Testament. The man looked, and read, 'For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.' The boy stammered, 'Does that mean me?' and the man said, 'Yes, it means you.' And a great revival started in the town as a result of the boy telling it to others. If we have found Jesus, tell it to others.

"A boy out of school knows where the best apple tree is, and the people know where Christ is. In traveling 15 states in revival work, I find men and women, boys and girls ready to find Jesus. Jesus realized the people needed the word and He preached the gospel to them, and as (Continued on Page Six)

Miners Return To Work; Clash Occurs At Harlan

TROOPS CALLED FOR DUTY IN 'BLOODY HARLAN'

Refusal of operators in the soft coal fields of 'Bloody Harlan' to sign the union shop contract with the United Mine Workers of America at New York led to mobilization of Kentucky national guardsmen for duty in the area. Capt. Samuel Bridgers of the 38th field artillery, 7 Kentucky national guard, here issues orders at Louisville to drivers of trucks and station wagons assigned to pick up men called to arms. A total of 557 troops were mobilized.

ONE IS KILLED IN PITT WRECK

Chocowinity Man Victim of Unusual Accident Saturday

Joe E. Clark, 25, of Chocowinity died in Pitt General Hospital Saturday afternoon from injuries received about two hours earlier, when his car struck a bridge abutment about a mile and a half from Ayden on the Greenville highway.

Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the wreck, said Clark, who was alone, lived about two hours despite severe head injuries, and was conscious part of the time. He quoted the man as saying that he did not know what caused the accident and as saying that he was not forced off the highway. The car struck the abutment on the left side of the highway. The automobile was struck in the center and the motor driven back under the seat.

The victim was married and had one small child.

It was the first fatal wreck in this section so far this month.

Funeral services for the wreck victim were conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Union Chapel Church in Chocowinity with the pastor, the Rev. Duff Toier, in charge.

Besides his wife and five-week-old daughter, Mr. Clark is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Clark of Chocowinity; three brothers, G. G. and I. W. Clark of Beaufort county and G. T. Clark of Craven county; three sisters, Mrs. Cutlar and Mrs. Dora Lee of Beaufort county and Mrs. Coral Clark of Pitt county.

Snow Hill Man Dies In Raleigh Hospital

Three Defendants In Monday's City Court

Only three cases were disposed of in the regular Monday morning session of Municipal Recorder's court, two defendants being convicted of drunkenness and one or larceny.

W. H. Malpass, white, and Randolph Parker, Negro, were convicted on charges of drunkenness and each defendant was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs.

Marvin Jones, alias "Baltimore," was convicted of larceny of a pistol and was suspended until late in the year, there is quite likely in prospect a period of calm, under

Doctors Return From Meet Held On Cruise

Four Greenville physicians who attended the North Carolina Medical Society cruise to Bermuda and meetings held aboard the ship returned to Greenville yesterday.

The four were Dr. J. L. Winstead, Dr. W. M. B. Brown, Dr. K. B. Pace and Dr. D. B. Armistead. Mrs. Pace, Mrs. Winstead, John Lindsay Winstead, Mrs. Winstead's mother, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, and Mrs. S. T. White also went on the cruise.

Three Bethel Men In Sunday Wreck

Patrolman C. R. Williams today was continuing an investigation of a collision between two automobiles at Pateolus yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock.

Patrolman Williams said a car occupied by three Bethel young men crashed into the rear of one driven by James Noah Smith, Negro, of near Ballard's cross roads. He declared that after talking to the Negro a few minutes, the driver of the car and a companion left the automobile, which ran into the ditch after the collision. Williams said Willard Manning was on the scene when he arrived, but did not know who was driving, as he had been asleep for some time. He said either Preston or Leon Cherry of near Bethel, was driving. No one was injured.

Nothing New During Week On N. C. Political Front

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, May 15.—Not even a smelt-eyed G-Man armed with all the scientific apparatus of Hoover's crack sleuths could have found more than a trace of political discussion or activity on the surface of Raleigh's affairs last week.

What goes on there were went on in so furtive a fashion, if at all, that they defied detection.

Even the crying spell of Robert R. Reynolds, stated in the U. S. Senate Thursday, caused no more than a bit of sly laughter in political circles.

There were no formal announcements of candidacy; only a few stories on "inside information" and hoax trades; and not even rumors enough to get excited about.

In view of the announced desire of the governor that there be no formal announcements until late in the year, there is quite likely in prospect a period of calm, under

OPEN RECORDS TO COMMITTEE

Group To Be Allowed To Scan Income Tax Records

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today opened up federal income tax records to Chairman Martin Dies and the House committee investigating un-American activities.

The treasury made public an order of the President, making the records available a few days after Dies, complaining of previous lack of co-operation from administrative agencies of the government, demanded the right to look at income tax returns of a number of alleged Communist and Fascist leaders in the United States.

The treasury order, accompanying a subpoenaed list of names, and any information obtained by the committee which is relevant or pertinent to the purpose of the investigation may be submitted by the committee or the sub-committees to the House.

Treasury records regularly are opened to congressional investigating committees, but it requires a Presidential order.

TOWN HAS NO POST OFFICE BUT IS NOT UNHAPPY

Siam, Iowa.—(AP)—Siam has no post office, but three rural mail routes run directly through this town of about 100 residents. One comes from New Market, Iowa; one from Bedford, Iowa, and one from Hopkins, Mo.

And that, the citizens opine, is better service than lots of towns with post offices get.

The value of cotton textile products manufactured in the United States in 1937 was $1,274,195,000.

MAN CLUBBED BY GUARDSMEN

Troopers Sent To Protect Workers Returning to Pits; Soft Coal Shortage Threat Concluded as 300,000 Miners Return to Work Under New Two-Year Contract

Harlan, Ky., May 15.—(AP)—Claude Howard of Baxter, a carpenter for the Harlan-Wallins mine, was clubbed on the head with a pistol by a National Guardsman today in the first clash between coal miners and state troops protecting workers returning to the pits.

Howard said that when he was stopped by a trooper he told him he was en route to his home, but the militiaman refused to allow him to cross a guarded bridge and in an argument struck him across the head, inflicting a deep gash.

Col. Roy Easley of the National Guard said he had received reports that Howard backed into a soldier with his automobile and attempted to run down another trooper when he was struck.

Considerable excitement was caused when a small roadster was brought in from the county with five bullet holes in the windshield. First reports said shots had been fired at the driver, but an investigation by the military revealed that several boys had fired the shots from inside the car and the incident was described as a "prank."

Guardsmen with machine guns turned back 3,000 coal miners en route to mines for picket duty. There were reports that miners in cars were roaming throughout the county.

No coal will be brought from the mines until tomorrow or Wednesday, operators said. Those who wanted to work without a union contract were busy checking and repairing pit trackage and timbering.

Operators in the Harlan field, where one man already has been killed and another wounded, refused to sign an agreement with the United Mine Workers last Saturday in New York when 15 other soft coal operating areas approved a union shop. Today was the first time most of the mines had been open since work stopped April 1.

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Ending the menace of a national soft coal shortage, more than 300,000 miners returned to work today under a new two-year contract which gave the United Mine Workers, largest CIO union, the first "union shop" in its history.

Fifteen of the 21 operators' associations in the Appalachian coal conference signed the agreement over the week-end. The pact covered 260,000 men in 3,000 mines.

An additional 50,000 to 100,000 miners were guaranteed the "union shop" in similar contracts negotiated for states outlying the Appalachian area by aides of CIO President John L. Lewis, whose victory came after a six-week shutdown.

The six Southern operator groups in the Appalachian conference which refused to agree to Lewis' terms employ from 50,000 to 70,000 men in sections of Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee.

Chicken Theft Reported.

The sheriff's office today reported the theft Saturday night of several hens from Jim Tucker, who lives near Harvey's dairy. The officers said about eight or ten of the chickens were stolen.

Literature Department.
The Literature Department of the Woman's Club held the last meeting of the year on Saturday, May 13th, at Mrs. W. H. Woodard's summer camp, with Mrs. Martin Schwartz as chairman of the hostess committee.

A short business meeting was presided over by Mrs. K. T. Futrell. She thanked each member for the splendid co-operation this year.

Miss Mamie Ruth Tunstall, chairman of the program committee for the new year, said that the tentative program had been arranged entitled "Interesting Women of Today."

Mrs. F. P. Brooks gave a very splendid report on Margaret Kinnaman Rawlings' book "The Yearling." This book was chosen for the Pulitzer Prize novel for 1938. A brief report on the life of Mrs. Rawlings preceded the comments and criticisms of the book.

Mrs. Rawlings was born in Washington, D. C., and lived there and in Maryland for some time before moving to her adopted state of Florida. She loves Florida and its people. She lives in the section of which she writes and finds life most interesting.

Mrs. Rawlings has written two other novels, "South Moon Under" and "Golden Apples." "South Moon Under" describes the home life of Florida people, as does her latest novel.

Critics are both favorable and otherwise in their evaluation of "The Yearling." Some say "the characters seem so real and is a good account of the lives of those people," others say that when adults finish with the book it will become a popular book for adolescents. Still others say that it gives local color of this particular section and that Mrs. Rawlings is "able to make so much of humble home life."

Jody Baxter, a boy of about 12 years, is the main character. The writer sees things and hears things through the eyes and ears of Jody. She brings out quite strongly the father's love for and understanding of Jody and his problems. Jody, like all boys this age, liked to wander through the woods and hunt for trees and bears rather than hoe corn.

The guests for the meeting were: Messdames H. R. Paschal, J. M. Hodges, Edmund Buckman, Harry

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coom

Hollywood — It follows-as-the-night-follows-the-day stuff. When two women stars are cast in the same picture, there must be a feud (at least on paper) like the current M. Hopkins-B. Davis "Old Maid" thing... Or like the Norma Shearer-Joan Crawford plus 38 others in "The Women..."

When there's a marriage, there must be talk of the divorce... And bets on the date, and where it'll be had, etc....

When there's a divorce, the next wife (husband) must be waiting at the church—I mean the court house or J. P.'s office....

When a baby is needed in a movie, half the mothers from here on East will write in with photos of Junior or Sister—and the man who let it be known a baby was needed will kick (oh, very pleasantly) at the bottom of it all....

When love meets girl on the movie set, boy will meet girl in the bright spots after working hours—at least until the picture is released and they've been cast opposite new partners.... (And sometimes this gets serious and T. Power marries Annabella)....

The studios don't make "B" pictures any more (a "B" being a picture that is quick and cheap). But they do make (you pick these up from the studio jargon) Quick-A's, Flying-A's, Semi-A's, and occasionally an A-in-a-hurry.

Now that the railroads are getting their inroads in the movies, it's a good time to point out the facts concerning the Iron Horse's most distinguished contribution to acting art.

Clarence Gordon works for the Pullman Company but he turns actor whenever the movies want him—and the movies often want him badly enough, when they've got an African picture to cast, to telegraph cross-country and bid for his services at the next stop. It's Clarence's physique and dignity that make him worth the trouble.

Ants in the Kitchen Cupboard?

Here's how to get rid of them. First, keep shelves and cupboards free of food particles, sugar, etc. That's what attracts ants. Second, get a can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. Sprinkle it on the cupboard floor, in corners and along the back edge of shelves, also back of and under the sink, stove and refrigerator. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build powder barriers between the ants' hiding places and the spots where they feed. Outside the house, sprinkle Bee Brand Insect Powder around and under holes, wherever they are found. Repeat these directions regularly, and you'll soon be free of ants. # Greenies Suffer First Shut-Out Loss Of Season

MARTINS TAKE 4 TO 0 VICTORY

'Whitey' Heavener Makes Spectacular Bare-Hand Catch

Greenville suffered its first shut-out loss of the season yesterday, going down in a 4-0 defeat at the hands of Williamston before a crowd of about 1,000 who braved the cold weather.

The Greenies threatened seriously in the fourth when they loaded the bases with none out, but the next three batters were retired in order. In that frame Wilson singled, Jenkins walked and Earl Smith singled.

Most of the game, however, Bob Olson had the Greenies under control and the eight hits the Greenies made were scattered.

Harry Jenkins, evidently has regained his batting eye and yesterday led the Greenies in hitting. The third baseman got two for three. Grace Allen, who got two for five, was the only other local man to get more than one safety.

It was the Martins first appearance here this season and local fans agreed that they present a fine club. The Saturday game scheduled in Williamston was rained out. Despite the loss the locals remained at the top of the league standings, half a game ahead of the Martins.

Whitey Heavener made a spectacular catch of Sellers' fly to left field in the seventh inning. With Skipper Red O'Malley on second by virtue of a nifty double, Heavener raced a good distance to catch Seller's fly and, unable to reach it with his gloved hand stuck out his bare hand and caught the ball on the run.

YES, IT'S TRUE. KINSTON WINS!

After Losing 14 In A Row, Eagles Win in 14-Inning Tilt

Kinston's Eagles won a ball game yesterday for the first time in their last fifteen starts. The Eagles won the opener and then dropped four-teen straight contests before the 1-0 fourteen inning victory over the New Bern Bears yesterday. Bill Herring done the hurling for the Eagles while Cobb was the Bruin hurler.

Snow Hill defeated Tarboro in a close game yesterday. The final score was 5-4. Both teams scored in the ninth but the Billies failed twice while the Serps only got one. Wilson rejuvenated Tobs defeated Goldsboro's entry in the Coastal loop, 12-7, at Goldsboro yesterday. The Tobs pounded three Bug hurlers for fifteen hits. The Bugs garnered 12 hits off three Tob flingers, but four errors helped to defeat them.

Washington—Senator Pepper of Florida has treated his colleagues to one of the highest pressured voting-gathering campaigns in current memory with his effort to put across the Florida ship canal.

Five million dollars worth of canal was dug with WPA funds and Pepper wants approximately $200,000,000 more to cut a galley across the Isthmus deep and wide enough for battleships to use.

Before the debate began he had photographs strung about the Senate chamber, one designed to demonstrate that the Florida ship canal would carry cargo equal to the combined cargo going through the three major world canals, Suez, Panama and Kiel.

He has buttonholed every senator on the floor. Economy senators lumped him and other appropriation hunters into a group they called the "spending guild" and tried to popularize the term as means of heading off such outlays as that for the Florida canal.

Reynolds Steals Show Senator Reynolds of North Carolina has about taken over the show business in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on neutrality legislation.

Reynolds is anything but a retiring mouse. During the hearings he sits right at the elbow of the witness, his ruddy nose and rosy face all agleam. He is the junior member of the committee and so has to wait until the last to ask questions. That bothers him not a whit.

He is tremendously enthusiastic about keeping America isolated, especially from England, and when he starts firing questions they can be heard along two blocks of Senate corridors. It is getting so the crowds don't really pay much attention until Reynolds gets going.

He tired early of witnesses who didn't answer questions the way he wanted them to. Lately he has adopted his own system. He worked it on Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State, although it happened they were pretty much in agreement.

"I'll ask you a series of questions," said Reynolds, "and then I'll answer them myself." Which he did, and Colby barely got in a word.

A Wearin' Of The Green It seems there are other jobs besides policemen's developing for Irishmen. They are coming to the Senate. With the appointment of Senator Slattery of Chicago the list of pure Irish names now counts up to five and there may be more hidden among the various "Mc's." Irish names besides Slattery are Donahay of Ohio, Danaher and Maloney of Connecticut, and O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

White House Scene Two tourists standing near the private west entrance to the President's executive offices. A short, hurried little man with a mop of graying hair rushes by enters without knocking.

"Say," speculates Pama Tourist, "that fellow went in without knocking. Wonder if we could." But no.

"That fellow" was Tommy Corcoran.

Foreign Relations Committee Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania stoging into the hearing. U sweeps ornate Senator Reynolds and jibes: "Let me walk with you so you'll be noticed."

VISITORS CAN SHOUT, BUT NOT LOCAL CITIZENS Harlingen, Texas. (AP)—The only persons permitted to make a "public noise" in Harlingen are good-will delegations from other cities. They can "whoop'er up" as much as they please, said Mayor Hugh Hammersley, but otherwise the city's anti-noise ordinance that mentions particularly the use of loud speakers, will be enforced rigidly.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress. Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seaciff.

Yesterday, Lyn is crushed by the appearance of the roadside stand, and Bob's part in it. Thorn's fiancée, Nola, is coming for a visit.

Chapter 13 Nola Nola Cranston at the Santa Barbara airport. It took them a few minutes to push through the surrounding circle of newspaper reporters and cameramen, for Nola Cranston was heiress to the Cranston shoe factory, millions and everything she did was news.

As the two Russells looked on she posed gracefully on the steps of the airplane, a tall, elegant figure in tailored black, her shoulders draped with silver fox skins. From her hand-made shoes to her Paris turban, she registered assurance and sophistication. She was not beautiful; rather, unusual. "Striking" would fit her better than any other adjective. Her long hair, worn in a sleek, heavy knot on her neck, was bleached to the color of white-gold; her eyes, elongated and mysteriously, were very black; her nose was sharp and thin, its aquiline arrogance conducted by a wide, generous mouth which parted often to show perfect rows of white teeth.

Spying Thorn and Jocelyn, she beckoned to them with a slim scarlet-tipped hand which held a cigarette in a long ivory holder. "Come here, darlings," she commanded. "I want you both in my picture."

Thorn, smug and pompous and proudly possessive, put his arm about Nola's waist and kissed her. His manner told the audience: "This woman is my future wife. Aren't we a rare and handsome pair?"

Later, with Nola wedged between the front seat of the cream-colored sedan, they all tried talking at once and had to subside, nopelessly, into laughter.

"Boston is impossible this time of year," Nola finally managed. "Melting snow, drizzling rain, and unbearably stuffy people. I made up my mind on the way out here that I'm not going back. Here I am and here I am going to stay until the day we trip down the aisle, Thorn! Since I announced to the papers last month that I was going to give some of my millions to help the worthy working classes, I've been driven crazy by cranks! I am going to give some of the money away, but I'm going to decide how to benefit the most people the most permanently. For goodness' sake, don't let any of these nutty schemers get into Seaciff! I know I'll be safe there from the vast army of the unemployed!"

Thorn's eyes met Jocelyn's. "You tell her, Lyn," he said. "I can't talk about it without choking!"

"Talk about what?" Nola asked, turning curiously from one to the other. "Don't tell me anything has happened to Seaciff? Of course I know Grandmother Jocelyn is gone. Don't tell me her death revealed a skeleton in the ancestral closet?"

"A skeleton would be simple to deal with," Thorn commented dryly. He went on to tell her about the will and the arrival of the Mack family.

"We offered them money to leave," Jocelyn added aggrievedly, "but every one of them is as proud and stubborn as he is poor. I never saw such people!"

"We don't have to see them any more," Thorn reminded her. "Nola, there's an eight-foot fence running the length of the place and each family stays on its own side!"

"Mean And Horrible" NOLA'S uncontrolled laughter pealed out. "It sounds priceless! Seaciff with a fence down the middle! Anyhow, since I am neither a Russell nor a Mack, I shall interview both sides. Honestly, darlings, it's funny—don't look so tragic. Where's your sense of humor? You make it look and sound like a mountain feud! Don't worry so—the invaders will probably trek back to Texas one of these days and Seaciff can be easily restored."

"Thorn, do you brighten. You might be right, Nola. At least it doesn't help matters any for Lyn and me to worry and fret. What do you say, Lyn? Let's agree to forget our neighbors and live our own lives!" Is Grouff coming down for dinner tonight?

"I'll be there," he said something about a shipment of three pounds due this afternoon.

"Does he still talk nothing but horses?" Nola groaned. "Grouff is a bore of the first water! How do you bear up under it, Lyn? Oh, I say, brought in something—why don't you sell Seaciff to me? That will get rid of your foes and then you can buy it back from me after they've been driven from the promised land."

Jocelyn fidgeted. "No can do, Nola. Grandma took care of that angle. I have to marry old Talbot's grandson before the estate can ever be sold."

Nola whistled softly. "Is he too bad?" "He's impossible. A—peasant. He's mean and horrible!"

Two offenses of reckless driving and larceny of an automobile called for the other revocations. North Carolina's peach crop this year will be only slightly more than half last year's, according to the May 1 crop report of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. W. H. Rhodes, chief of the statistics division, has figured it out that this year's yield will likely be in the neighborhood of 1,395,000 bushels. Last year's crop amounted to 2,232,900 bushels.

Small Blocks Worry Small Children

WRONG A lengthy session with tiny, exasperating blocks like these is apt to end with the youngster approaching a state of nervous exhaustion. The blocks skid out of her fingers and don't lend themselves well to building plans.

RIGHT The modern blocks, big and sturdy, give the growing child something to get hold of. Instead of making a play session a useless, exasperating ordeal, these blocks help her develop muscles and give her training in coordination.

Man About Manhattan By George Tucker New York—I've got that old feeling that this is going to be a good year for fruit. That makes me glad. Last night I went down into that old preserve cabinet in the basement and looked at those old quart jars on the shelf. Mostly peach preserves they were, and a few pear, and some crabapple jelly. That's all that's left. I make lots of jelly and preserves to satisfy that old craving I get for fresh fruit when they aren't in season. I make enough to last all year.

And now that old paring season is here again, or almost here, and I've got that yen to get down into that old basement and get busy. I got a lot of mayhaws coming up from Texas, and they make great jelly, better than apple or quince or grape or anything. It's a tangy and deep-flavored jelly and it's wonderful with meat. I like it that way, but I also like it "revere," just taking it straight out of the glass with that old spoon.

I plan to put up a lot of crabapple, too. I know a Russian who lives on a truck farm out in the country, and when I go out there he lines up four or five of those old bushel baskets under that old tree, and then he and his boys just knock those apples right off that tree. Crabapples are fine, either as jelly or when you pickle them whole with those old stems still on.

Of course, for preserves, peaches are best. Well, I'll take that back. Figs are best, those old sugar figs that you get in back yards down in Louisiana and Texas. But you can't get them up here. So it's peaches—free-stones mostly—and you just cut them up and put them in that old pot and cover them with plenty of sugar and let them cook in that old juice.

They're sort of yellow when they start out, but after a while that old yellow turns to red and then they become transparent. And after that you get out those old quart jars and dump them in and screw on the tops.

They make a pretty picture lined up on the shelves, that crabapple and that mayhaw and those peaches and those pears. A friend of mine has a couple of pear trees in his yard, and right now they're covered with those old blossoms. Pretty soon those blossoms will fall and then those old pears will begin to grow. He doesn't get ripe 'em going down there and talk him right out of those old pears. They're beautiful

REVIVAL OPENS AT FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH

(Continued from page one) He looked up He saw a man being let down at His feet and saw that faith I am glad he emphasized the expression. Thy sins be forgiven thee. A man was killed by horses in an effort to keep them from running away. The people asked him why he did it, for the horses and wagon were not worth it. He replied, with blood running down his mangled face, 'Look in the wagon; and there was a sleeping child. Some may say it is not worth it, but a soul is precious in the sight of God. In a shipwreck at sea, a man went out and saved some people and then went and saved more. Finally, when his heart was failing, he said, 'When life fails and I am ready to go into the presence of my Lord, I want my friends to be able to say I did my best. My friends, I want you also to be able to say you did your best. It took four men to bring the sick man to Jesus and it takes four to bring a soul to Jesus today - the Father, Son, Holy Spirit and you. Will you take hold and tell the people that Jesus has come to town? A disease that only Jesus can cure is among the people. May you co-operate and bring them to him! They never would have succeeded if one had gone North, one South, one East and one West - they went together. We can't succeed unless we all move in the same direction. When the people were ready to take Jericho they failed, because iniquity was among them. You will

FINDS CLOVER SOIL BUILDER

Farmers Are Urged To Harvest Sufficient Seed

Raleigh, May 15. - Farmers with only a small acreage of crimson clover this year can increase their acreage from 10 to 20 times next fall if they will harvest sufficient seed at the proper time.

Agronomists of the State College Extension Service and the Soil Conservation Service point out that crimson clover is an excellent winter cover crop, both from the standpoint of soil building and soil conservation.

For this reason, they are urging the growers to harvest all of their crimson clover seed ripening now. Such a plan will aid them to increase the acreage planted to this legume next fall.

The agronomists declare a good crop of crimson clover will mean from 500 to 1,000 pounds of seed to the acre. Ordinarily, this is enough unhulled seed to plant 10 to 20 acres next fall.

"And, too," these specialists say, "if you have the seed on hand, you are much more likely to plant them than you are if you have to go out and buy seed when planting time comes around."

One of the principal reasons for the increasing popularity of this winter legume is the ease with which seed can be harvested. Several methods are now employed in the saving of seed. They include stripping, mowing and threshing, and combining.

Farmers who have a crop of crimson clover maturing seed should ask their county agent about the best method of harvesting, the agronomists point out. More crimson clover next fall will mean more fertility in the soil and less erosion of North Carolina farm lands.

Fellow countrymen told him the beautiful flowers of their native land would not grow in such foreign soil, black and fertile though it was.

He took issue with them and to prove his point he is now one of the largest tulip producers in America, shipping each spring 125,000 dozen flowers and nearly 1,000,000 bulbs.

He has shipped some of his fine bulbs even to Holland, long famous for its tulip culture.

After the flowers are gathered in the spring, he plants corn and beans, reaping another rich harvest from the same land.
