KISS OF DEATH WIFE HELD IN MASS MURDER

Mrs. Rosa Carena Is Placed under Arrest in New York

HAD AS MANY AS FIVE HUSBANDS

Three of Which Died Under Mysterious Circumstances; 12 Others Linked With Ring

New York, May 18.—(AP)—The elusive "kiss of death" woman, Mrs. Rosa Carina, known to have had at least five husbands, three of whom died under mysterious circumstances, was arrested today by federal agents in connection with the Philadelphia investigation into a mass murder syndicate.

Dwight Brantley, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent in charge of the New York area, declined to disclose where she was taken into custody or where his agents picked up the trail of the woman, some times known as the "rose of death." Philadelphia authorities have named her one of the principal actors in the bizarre crime drama. Police Captain James Kelly of Philadelphia described her as the "professional widow" used by the ring to trap prospective victims. She is wanted, he said, on a warrant charging conspiracy.

Twelve linked with the ring already are in custody. Some 50 deaths have been attributed to the "murder for insurance" conspirators and authorities conceded there might be many more, as almost unbelievable new ramifications are uncovered practically every day.

Besides scores of new leads developed through confessions of ring members in terror of the electric chair, the police have been greatly aided by anonymous letter writers who have flooded them with tips. Police said checks have proved about 75 per cent of these tips to be accurate.

Rosa Carina was sought specifically for questioning in connection with the death of Pietro Stea, a grocer who died three years ago of what was then certified as "heart disease" and "diabetes." Stea was her fourth husband.

King's Daughters Board Meets Here

The executive board of the North Carolina branch of The King's Daughters held its regular May meeting in Sheppard Memorial Library Tuesday, at which time various reports were made and other business considered.

Mrs. Davis, director of student activities at E. C. T. C., led a devotional, using "Discipleship" as her theme. Mrs. Hortense F. Move, branch president, opened the meeting with the prayer of the order.

Mrs. Move reported that she had attempted to keep in touch with the branch work and added that reports in full had been sent to headquarters and that greetings had been dispatched to many state conventions.

Mrs. Move also reported that she had accepted an invitation to speak on Order Day at the New York World's Fair on June 22. She asked if any of the Daughters are planning to be in New York on that date and if so, requested them to represent her in case she was not present.

The question of sending a girl to Chataaugus was left in the hands of the special committee named by Mrs. Move at the Southern Pines convention.

Miss Easdale Shaw gave a report on the progress of the proposed building at Stonewall Jackson training school near Concord.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Move entertained the Daughters and friends at a luncheon at her home on Evans street.

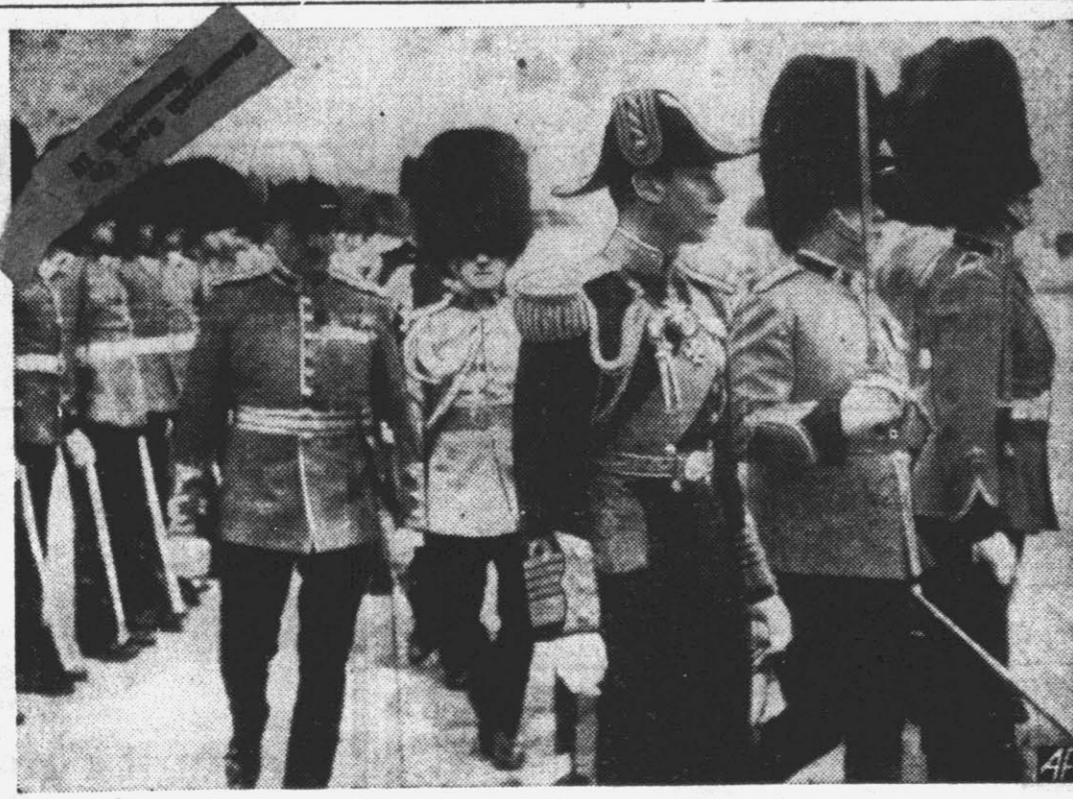

Kiswan To Speak At Mosier Meet Friday

David W. Mosier, president of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speaker at the Kiswan club meeting tomorrow evening at 6:45 o'clock. He will discuss the organization and purpose of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Members are asked to note the change in the hour of meeting from 7 to 6:45 o'clock, moved up on account of the baseball game here tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The committee in charge of the program is composed of Tom Wilson, Charles Wilkerson and Durward Hart. One new member will be received at the meeting.

HOEY STUDIES FLOGGING CASE

Gets Report of State Investigation In Wayne Case

Reflector Bureau

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, May 18.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey is studying a full report of the Goldsboro flogging investigation made by the State Bureau of Investigation. He will determine within a few days what action, if any, is next in the case.

The report—a confidential one—was handed him this week by Fred Handy, chief of the bureau. The governor said today he has been too busy to finish study of it, but he indicated that he likely will reach a decision on the next move within a day or two.

Mr. Handy was, naturally, very reticent in discussing the matter. As a matter of fact, he would not even admit that a report of his investigations had been made, but the governor made no bones about revealing the act of its submission.

The bureau has been busy for several months in an effort to ferret out the identity of a band which invaded the Wayne county jail, took out two Negroes accused of having assaulted Goldsboro Mayor Hill, and beat them unmercifully.

Neither the governor nor Mr. Handy would give an inkling of what the report reveals, if anything, regarding the fruits of the investigation.

The governor indicated that the report covers all activities of the bureau in the case up to the present; and added that after studying it he will have three courses open to him: (1) If it seems to contain sufficient evidence for indictments, he will turn the report over to the district solicitor for further action; (2) If there seems a likelihood that further investigation might reveal more facts, he will direct Mr. Handy to continue his probe; and (3) If the report indicates no chance of indicting anyone with a hope of conviction, and further indicates that there is no chance of finding out further facts, he will direct that the matter be dropped by the state bureau.

There are some indications, entirely unofficial, that the next definite move can be expected from Goldsboro.

The Golden Gate bridge at San Francisco had taken in $3,249,000 in toll fees up to May of this year. Revenues in March, 1939, were $1,300 a day more than in the same month of 1938.

Three Cents Penalty On Excess Sales Of Cotton

Raleigh, May 18.—Cotton sold from this year's crop in excess of a producer's cotton marketing quota under the AAA program will be subject to a penalty of three cents a pound, E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College, announced today.

The AAA official also said that the penalty on excess marketings of carry-over cotton will be two cents a pound. Penalties on both this year's and carry-over cotton from last year will be collected by the buyer at the time of sale.

The increase in penalty on this year's excess marketings from two to three cents a pound is provided for in the act under which the program operates, Floyd said.

The penalty for excess marketings does not apply to cotton carried over from a previous season which would not have been subject to

PRAISE RECORD OF N. C. FIRMS

Three Businesses Are Singled Out For Safety Practices

Raleigh, May 18.—(AP)—Governor Hoey and J. M. Broughton, Raleigh lawyer, praised three North Carolina business firms today for "remarkable safety records" as the annual statewide Industrial Safety Conference opened here.

Broughton was chairman of a joint legislative committee in 1929 which recommended and secured enactment of the state's first workman's compensation act.

The Hanes Hosiery mills of Winston-Salem set a national safety record in the hosiery field with 4,154,444 man-hours of work without a lost-time accident.

Tomlinson of High Point set a national record for the furniture industry with 2,743,347 man-hours without an accident which caused an employee to lose any time from work.

The Southern Aggregate Corporation won two awards from the Joseph A. Holmes Safety Association of the United States Bureau of Mines, including the corporation's Raleigh Granite Company which operated seven quarries in 1938 without a fatality, employed 476 men who worked 1,079,291 man-hours.

Typhoid Vaccinations Begin Monday, 29th

Dr. N. Thomas Emmett, Pitt county health officer, today gave advance notice that the county-wide typhoid vaccination clinic would begin on Monday, May 29.

Dr. Emmett urged all persons to insure themselves against the disease by taking the vaccinations, schedules of which will be announced at a later date.

KING GREETED AT MONTREAL

Population of City Is Doubled for Monarch's Visit

Montreal, May 18.—(AP)—Canada's greatest city, her population of one million doubled for the day, today welcomed King George and Queen Elizabeth with color and tumult for an eight-hour stay.

Downtown Montreal was packed with people. Buildings were decorated from sidewalks to topmost flagpoles. Residential and suburban districts all along a 23-mile route of an afternoon drive joined in the cheering, flag-waving and general acclaim for Canada's king and queen.

The special train rolled into the station at 1:15 p. m. ending the first day's train journey of their 6,000-mile tour of Canada and the United States. They left Quebec this morning.

Interest Growing In Revival Service Here

The revival being conducted at the local Free Will Baptist Church continues to gain in interest and a special feature of the services is the congregational singing under the direction of the Rev. Mr. T. Special music is another attractive feature of the revival.

Evangelist Claude preached last night on the subject, "Faith" and said in part: "God can do and will do. Faith honors God and God honors faith. We have faith, we can in God's name move mountains. Faith is the substance of something we long have hoped for—something we can't see or feel or taste, but something we can prove by others. God helps us to exercise faith. We live by faith in the soul of God. We pray by faith—May God help us to have child-like faith."

The world is filled with the spirit of Cain trying to worship God with flowers and other nice things, but Abel has been dead 6,000 years and still speaks. "I believe Enoch looked through the years and saw the church translated and Noah looked down the generations and saw the tribulations spoken of by Daniel and by faith he rides over it all. He preached 120 years and only had eight converts. We thank God for their faithfulness."

"Faith" is strengthened by our work. God said to do something for our fellowmen, put legs under your legs, work as though you had it all to do and pray as though you could do nothing. "I believe Abraham came from Mariah stronger than he went, because he offered to exercise faith."

"Martin Luther was an outstanding man of faith. God never fails and will in his own way honor faith. If you are too old to work, spur the other man on. It is tragic for dead weights to be in the way."

Evangelist Claude will preach tonight on the subject, "The Devil's Barber Shop."

JAPS ORDERED BACK TO SHIPS AT AMOY PORT

Marines Withdrawn From International Settlement

NEUTRAL POW'RS MATCH JAPANESE

Withdrawal Follows Combined Show Of Force by Great Britain, U. S., France

Shanghai, May 18.—(AP)—All but a few marines of those landed last week by Japanese in Kulangsu, international settlement at Amoy, were reported today to have been withdrawn to nearby warships after a combined show of diplomatic and military force by the United States, Great Britain and France.

One hundred and twenty-six American, British and French blue-jackets and marines patrolled Kulangsu—a force equal to the original strength of the Japanese landing party. The United States cruiser Marblehead and the destroyer Bulmer, a French cruiser and four British warships were standing by Kulangsu, which is an island in the Amoy harbor.

The Japanese withdrawal was said to have followed an ultimatum delivered last night by British Vice Admiral Sir Percy Noble, conveying the Kulangsu municipal council's refusal to yield to demands for Japanese administrative control of the settlement.

Sir Percy was said to have informed the Japanese that the British would keep naval forces on the island so long as the Japanese marines remained. Official circles in Shanghai learned the admiral declared "there can be no question of a modification in the municipal council not in accordance with the land regulations."

Japanese were reported to have expressed strong dissatisfaction with the municipal council's attitude and to have said that a new protest was being prepared.

Tokyo, May 18.—(AP)—A British protest against the landing of Japanese marines at Kulangsu was rejected today by Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Sawada.

Staffs Selected For Student Publications

In the election held this week to choose editorial and business staffs for the two student publications at the college, three Greenville students were chosen to serve as associate editors of the Teco Echo. They are Thornton Ryan and Misses Barbara Keuzenkamp and Elizabeth Meadows. Other associate editors are Misses La Rue Moore, Stokes, and Ethel Padgett, Rocky Mount.

Associate editors for the Tecoan, the college annual, are Lindsay "Whitard" Stokes, Bill Merner, Durham; and Misses Dorothy Daulton, J. H. Jones; Kathryn P. Lewis, Enfield; Ida F. Davis, Burroughs; and Ethel Gaston, Greenville.

The business staff of the Tecoan will be composed of Misses Eva Carter, Warsaw; Sarah Britt, Wendell; Jessie Keith, Kerr; Mary Helen Gullidge, Raleigh; Ursula Carr, Farmville; and Lucy Ann Barrow, Snow Hill.

Play Here Tonight By Little Theatre

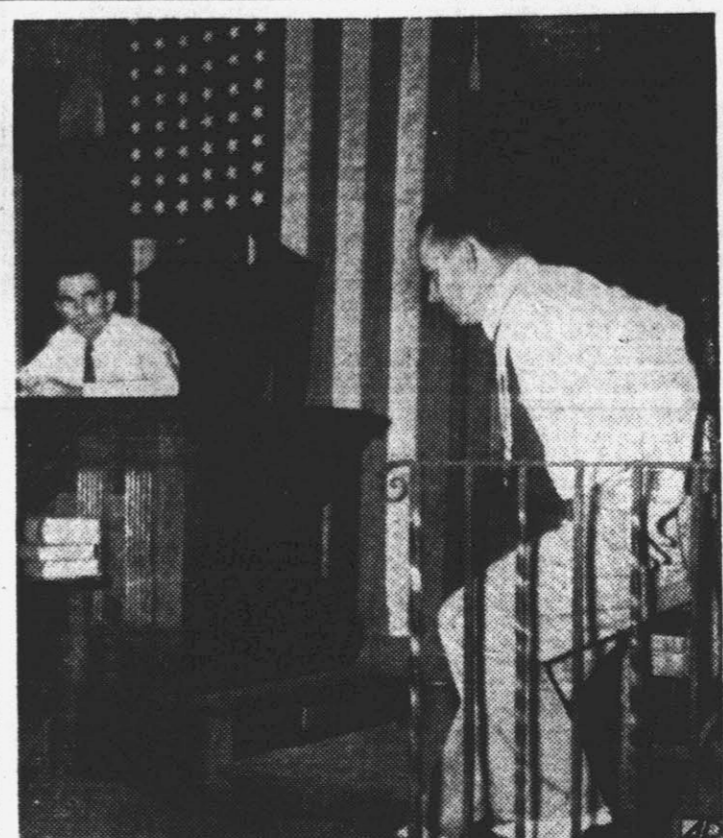

"Night of January 16," a murder mystery by Ayn Rand, will be presented at the court house tonight at 8:15 o'clock by the Greenville Little Theatre under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Rose.

The play, which has its setting in a New York court room, is in the form of a trial, and its presentation in the Pitt county court house will give it an appearance of reality. The end will be supplied by the audience, as a jury will be chosen from those present.

Louis Skinner, recorder of Municipal court, will be cast in a different role from that of real life. In the play he will be the defense attorney, Charles Wheelbee, however, will be cast in a role similar to the position he now holds. The county court solicitor will play the part of the district attorney. Other roles have been filled with capable players.

Shots Are Exchanged In 'Bloody Harlan' County

Militiamen and Ambushed Group Fire on Each Other

Harlan, Ky., May 18.—(AP)—Gunfire between militiamen and an ambushed group climaxed the tensions in "bloody Harlan" county's soft coal fields today. No casualties were reported.

Brig.-Gen. E. Carter, in charge of National Guardsmen here, said he would make a "thorough investigation" of the shooting, after receiving a report to this effect.

A group of six miners ascending by cable car to the pit head of Highsplit mine No. 2, approximately 20 miles northwest of here, were fired upon about 5:30 a. m. from a wooded hillside.

Four guardsmen stationed at the mine fired into the woods. Their shots were returned and several rounds were exchanged before the militiamen rushed the hillside.

The troopers reported they found only a quantity of empty buckshot shells in the woods.

The shooting was the first to be reported involving soldiers since they moved into the county last week on orders of Governor Chandler.

Before the gunfire incident, the full strength of the Kentucky National Guard, 2,300 men, had been made ready for duty in this section.

Health Work Receives National Recognition

Raleigh, May 18.—Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, state health officer, announced today that national recognition has been accorded the work being done in North Carolina in the field of industrial hygiene by the North Carolina Industrial Commission in co-operation with the State Board of Health in that a member of the staff has been invited to present a paper at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association to be held in October at Pittsburgh. The invitation was extended to Marion P. Trice, industrial hygienist of the department, to present a paper on "The Dust Hazard in the Foundry Industry and Its Control."

Leonard Sales Tax Case In Hands Of High Court

RECORD NAVAL BILL IS PASSED BY 61-14 VOTE

Measure Adopted By Senate Appropriates 773 Million

GOES TO HOUSE FOR CONC'ENCE

Airlines Company Decides to File Application for Service Across North Carolina

Washington, May 18.—(AP)—The Senate passed today the record peace-time naval appropriation of $773,049,151.

The vote was announced as 61 to 14.

The measure carries $207,293,000 for 23 new warships and $46,898,000 for the purchase of 500 new fighting planes.

It now goes back to the House for action on Senate amendments. One of these eliminates a $50,000 allotment toward the construction of a dirigible.

The naval measure as passed by the Senate, carries $149,525,000 more than last year's appropriation, but $371,000 less than the amount approved by the House.

Other developments: Alfred Sloan, Jr., General Motors board chairman, forecast continued expansion of the automobile industry—provided the national income is increased.

Appearing before the Monopoly committee, the motor executive said it appeared the industry could "expect a further expansion in relation to the increase in income of the country."

Rep. Warren (D.-N.C.) said the Pennsylvania Central Airlines Corporation had decided to file an application with the Civil Aeronautics Administration to operate a new passenger air line from Norfolk, Va., across North Carolina to Knoxville, Tenn.

Warren said the application would be filed this week, possibly later today.

He added it was hoped to secure a hearing within 90 days and if one were granted the matter then would be presented to the Post Office Department for consideration of the feasibility of obtaining an air mail contract.

Operation of the east-west line, which would include stops at Elizabeth City, Rocky Mount, Raleigh, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, High Point, Hickory and Asheville, all in North Carolina, depended upon securing the post office contracts, Warren explained.

Jerome Frank of New York, was elected chairman of the Securities Commission.

The vote was not unanimous. An SEC official said that Commissioners Robert Nealy and George Matthews voted against Frank.

A delegation from North Carolina headed by Judge I. M. Meekins of Elizabeth City, invited President Roosevelt to visit Fayetteville, N. C., this fall to attend the 150th anniversary of the ratification of the constitution of that state and the founding of the University of North Carolina.

Meekins said the President expressed the hope he would be able to go. The date is November 21, but this would be changed if the President desired it.

Mrs. Williams Honored At Shower. Grifton, May 18.—Mrs. H. C. Oglesby and Miss Aileen Mewborn were gracious hostesses on Tuesday evening when they entertained at bridge at the Grifton Teacherage, as a compliment to Mrs. Thurman Williams, a recent bride.

The spacious living room was beautifully decorated in colorful arrangements of roses, sweetpeas and larkspur, with lighted candles making a soft glow.

Guests were greeted on arrival by Mrs. Oglesby and Miss Mewborn, and presented to Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Wiley Gaskins and Mrs. Milton Hart, also recent brides.

Nine tables were appointed for the games and the honor guests found their places marked with dainty shoulder corsages of roses and sweetpeas.

After several interesting progressions of contract, Mrs. Robert Mewborn was given dusting powder as high score award; second high, also powder, went to Mrs. Jack Chapman. The visitor's prize went to Miss Maude Hooker of Kingston.

Mrs. Williams' gift was a sterling cream and sugar set and candle holders; to Mrs. Gaskins, a beverage set in crystal and to Mrs. Hart a crystal relish dish.

A dainty ice course was served and on each plate was a nosegay of sweetpeas, the color note of pink and green being effectively carried out.

The surprise of the evening for the honoree came when she was called into the dining room, where a beautiful table was filled with an array of gifts from the guests.

Players for the evening were: Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Gaskins, Mrs. Hart, Mrs. Mewborn, Mrs. Chapman, Miss Hooker, Mrs. A. D. Wall, Mrs. Cecil Cobb, Mrs. M. B. Greensboro College Alumnae. The local chapter of the Greensboro College Alumnae met Wednesday afternoon, May 17, at 3:30 o'clock, with Mrs. W. C. Harris at her home on West Fourth street.

"The Place of the Small College in Higher Education," was the subject for the afternoon. Selections were taken from greetings and addresses delivered in connection with the inauguration of Dr. Luther L. Gobel as president of Greensboro College in 1936, and the recent centennial celebration of the college.

In his inaugural address Dr. Gobel said, "I maintain that college training should be vastly more than a mere vocational investment. It has been truly said that 'to educate youth but provide no place in the community for them to earn a living is an anomaly all too apparent.' And so we have National Youth Administration with its collateral activities seeking to find jobs for recent college graduates. It can just as truthfully be stated, however, that to produce technicians without first developing within them and society a sense of the nature and significance of meanings, ends, and values in human experience; to live in a world emerging from economic deficit and achieving a condition of general economic surplus without being educated for the use of surplus and leisure; to have grand opera brought by radio to ears un-

A Petty Coat Achievement. Who says that woman is not gifted with inventive genius? The Pitt woman who converted her petticoat into a dip net and caught 500 fish with it proves that woman is pretty generally equal to the occasion. The Charlotte Observer and the Asheville Citizen are praising mightily we are quite willing to endorse the nice things they have said about those pretty and tasteful articles of female attire, but in view of the Pitt county woman's achievement we want to remark that the lowly petticoat, inconspicuous tho' it be, has demonstrated in a new way its usefulness.—Lincoln Journal.

able to enjoy good music; to be set down in a world of beautiful sunsets, landscapes, and order and to be inheritors of paintings produced by the world's great artists without having developed an appreciation of the beautiful; to be a part of a great world society without ridding one's self of provincialism through the achievement of intellectual, ethical, and social outlooks and interests of cultured men and women; to become scientific and analytical without the saving grace of synthesis and appreciation of the whole; to live in a world of imponderables and have no appreciation of the intangibles, of religion and the good life; to be able to pile up millions without a definite, hopeful, Christian philosophy of life—is an anomaly most tragic.

Dr. Reuben Gertrude Alley, an Alumna who has gone far in the field of science, brought greetings. She referred to her professional and graduate work done in other institutions and concluded with this statement: "These prepare one for a career, but I look back upon the small college in not-too-large city as the preparation for life. I very emphatically feel that a supervised, Christian education, such as is offered by Greensboro College, is the firmest foundation for wholesome living, whether it is to be a home, foreign field, or in public life. I only hope that our North Carolina Methodists will always realize that fact and keep this college for continued good through future generations."

In his words of welcome at the centennial celebration May 21, 1938, Dr. Gobel said, "Greensboro College, chartered in 1838 as Greensborough Female College, holds the unique distinction of being the oldest chartered college for women in the state and of having the longest record of church relationship of any college for women of its church. Projected and founded as a Methodist college, its relationship to the church has been unbroken for a hundred years."

"We welcome and are grateful to you who have come today to join with the community in tribute of respect to the college, not so much, as the Greensboro Daily News has recently said, for having existed a

The hostess served a delicious salad course with iced tea.

Mrs. Rivers Complimented. Mrs. Tom Rivers, a recent bride, was paid a pretty compliment on Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock, when Mrs. J. B. James and Mrs. W. E. Hooker entertained at a bridge luncheon at the home of Mrs. Hooker on East Fifth street.

The guests were greeted on arrival by the hostesses and presented to Mrs. Rivers.

Profusions of ponies, sweetpeas, larkspur, roses and poppies were artistically placed throughout the home. In this lovely setting, tables were placed for the games.

At the conclusion of the games, Mrs. Dave Mosier was awarded the prize for making high score, and Mrs. William Woodard, Jr., for low.

At one o'clock, Mrs. H. L. Rivers, Mrs. J. L. Kilgo, Mrs. J. Key Brown, Mrs. Ed Batchelor, Mrs. M. L. Wright, Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Mrs. Leighton Blount of Bethel, joined the other guests for luncheon. These guests were seated in the dining room. The table was beautifully appointed, covered with a cloth of lace and centered with a silver bowl of mixed flowers.

A tempting three-course luncheon was served.

Mrs. Rivers, Mrs. William Woodard and Mrs. Dave Mosier and Mrs. J. E. Nobles, Jr., all recent brides, were remembered with attractive gifts.

Miss Margaret Bostic and Miss Helen Settle, brides of next month, were also presented gifts.

Play Tonight. "Something new in theatricals will be the feature of the evening when the Greenville Little Theatre Guild presents "Night of January 16th" tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Pitt county court house. There have been plays before with vague endings, but this is the first one in which the audience takes an intelligent part in its development and conclusion. With an attractive and talented young actress, Miss Hennie Ling, who portrays the leading part, on trial, the jury selected from the audience is given the problem of deciding her guilt or innocence. As they get their seats at the box office, patrons may leave their names as candidates for jury duty. These names are given to the clerk of court, Dr. James B. Hawes, who places them in a box, and the 12 that are drawn are selected to serve. The clerk addresses the audience and explains that 12 of them will be called upon to come up and decide upon the verdict. One by one they step up and take their places in a regular jury box just as they would in a legitimate court trial, are sworn in, and listen to the testimony.

The subject of the play is a murder trial, and an unusual feature of it is the recruiting of the 12 members of the audience to serve as jurors. "Night of January 16th" is a long run in New York, and has toured the United States. The late Percy Hammond, dramatic critic on the New York Herald-Tribune, wrote of it, "I have the word of no less than an expert artist and showman than George M. Cohan that "Night of January 16th" ultimately strikes and fired his blood with the drama's ages and features more than any other masterpiece that has come within his experience."

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
 Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
 Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half of Seaclyff, the Russell estate.
 Yesterday: Jocelyn's plan fails when Tally shows up at the dance perfectly attired, and makes a hit.

Chapter 16

Reputations

IT WORRIED Jocelyn that Geoffrey was becoming increasingly frantic. He seemed to have forgotten his sick pony. Before the end of the evening Jocelyn felt as if Tally and Geoff were playing on opposite teams in a football game and she was the football. Still, she would not have been feminine or quite human if she had not enjoyed it just a little. She did.

At one o'clock the orchestra declared a half-hour's intermission for supper. Lights went on in the banquet room and the dancers spilled in. It was a gay and hilarious throng of young people. Bright repartee and quick laughter heightened the excitement.

Someone called to Jocelyn: "Where's that Texan boy friend of yours, darling?"

Another called to Geoff: "Better marry her quick, old man. I've heard these Lone Star men are fast on the draw!"

Jocelyn, herself, wondered at Tally's non-appearance at supper. Turning to look into the now deserted ballroom she saw Thorn hurrying across the floor, his face pale and worried.

"Lyn," he whispered on reaching her, "come with me. There's trouble outside."

By the time they reached the rambling veranda a knot of people had gathered on the steps. The moonlight illuminated the scene with almost daylight clearness. Lyn pushed through the assemblage just in time to see Tally's fist clip another man's chin and knock him down. She ran forward; recognized the fallen man as Art Mason, one of the club directors and a player on Geoff's polo team.

"Why did you do it?" she demanded angrily of Tally.

"I'm not sorry," he said.

Such unreasoning anger gripped Jocelyn that the blood drained from her face and it became as white as her gown. "You—you roughneck," she spluttered. "You—you—"

"Peasant!" he suggested, then turned his back on her and strode off toward the parked cars.

Some of the group on the porch came down and surrounded Art Mason. One of the men helped him to his feet and led him to the locker rooms. Ruth Benton took Jocelyn aside and declared:

"I saw and heard the whole thing and I don't blame that friend of yours one bit! Art was talking to a couple of other fellows when he came out on the terrace and heard Art wise-cracking about you living in the same house with him. Art had been drinking of course, but it wasn't a nice remark. He should have had his jaw broken!"

"Oh—"

"Without waiting for Thorn she ran after Tally; caught him just as he started backing his old sedan out of the parking space.

"Tally," she cried, jumping on the running-board and clinging to the rolled-down window. "Tally, I'm sorry I said that about your being a roughneck. I just found out why you hit Art—I want to thank you. It—it was good of you to resent gossip about me—"

He did not turn his head. His profile was uncompromisingly "four-reputation" he asked.

"Why, you silly child, it was my reputation I was fighting for. Do you think I want people to say I'm trying to cut in on Geoffrey Kenning? Now get off my running-board or you might get hurt."

Oddly Tender

JOCELYN, stepping backward, stumbled and lost her balance, fell between his car and the one next to it. She cried out with pain and fright. In a second Tally was leaning over her, picking her up.

"Are you hurt?"

"No—I guess not. I—I was afraid you'd start your car and run over me before I could get up."

"Gee, I'm sorry," he said contritely. "I've got the darndest temper. You're such a tiny bit of a thing—I wouldn't hurt you."

a crude, clumsy farmer, and I tried to get even. I hope I haven't made trouble between you and Geoffrey. I think I'd better go now. Good night, Jocelyn."

She stood like a lovely wraith in the moonlight and watched his car disappear in the darkness.

Jocelyn waded out of the surf, detached a piece of seaweed from her left ankle, peeled off her green rubber cap, and sank with a sigh to the spread of beach canvas. Without lifting his head from his arms, Geoffrey asked:

"Want me to rub some sun-tan oil on your back, Lyn?"

"Oh, I won't burn now. I'm so brown I look like a native of Samoa. You're the laziest people I ever saw! There's a perfectly grand ocean ten feet away and you lie here and sleep!"

Nola sat up, adjusted her sunglasses, and regarded her long, lithe limbs with critical glance. "Why is it so hard to tan the front of me?" she demanded.

"Because you insist upon lying on your stomach," Thorn explained. "Want to go in for a dip?"

"No, I don't feel like driving in to the hairdresser's afterward. The salt water makes a mess of my bleached locks . . . can't you think of something interesting to do?"

Jocelyn wriggled her toes in the sand, resisting the impulse to scoop up handfuls of it to pour over Geoff's bulky shoulders. He'd have a fit if she did. He glistened with oil and the sand would stick to it.

She wondered idly if any of the Mack family were on the other side of the dividing fence. Tally surely could not work in this abominable August heat; anyhow, his truck garden was flourishing—at least it looked flourishing from the windows at the back of the house. Nola would know, she mused resentfully. Nola spent at least half of her time on the other side of the house; Bob, three-quarters. Yet, as if by some tacit agreement, neither Nola nor Bob ever mentioned a word about the Macks and neither Thorn nor she would ask information.

Restless

A DERISIVE smile twisted her lips. It had been four months since the club's spring hop, four months since the night when Tally and her. He rigorously kept himself and his entire family out of her sight. The few times they had encountered each other in the riding stable he had spoken briefly and curtly, leaving no opening for further conversation.

Four months. A twinge in her breast, familiar now from repetition, caught her. There seemed to be life and love and rich, warm living on the other side of the barrier. Laughter and eagerness and happy voices. Even Tex, the babe of existence, seldom trespassed.

Why am I so different from Nola and Bob? she wondered. They accepted the Macks and the Macks accepted them. Thorn was jealous of Nola's informal intimacy with them but when he remonstrated with her she merely laughed and informed him he was missing the time of his life; and, since she was not yet a Russell, she intended doing as she pleased. The situation between them was strained, although Jocelyn pondered, Nola appeared genuinely fond of Thorn.

Geoff turned over on his back and looked at her. "Lyn," he implored, "when are you going to marry me?"

"Oh, pretty soon."

"That's what you've been saying for months," he grumbled. "Let's make it the first of September."

"But—but that's only a bit more than three weeks away," she protested. "I couldn't possibly get ready for a wedding that quickly."

"You've had about four years to get ready," he pointed out.

Nola grinned. "He's right, Lyn. And I'm here to help you."

Jocelyn knew the sensation of being cornered and was glad when Sandy trotted up to her with a long strand of seaweed in his teeth which he deposited with a triumphant bark at her feet. Pretending preoccupation with the Scottie gave her time to frame an answer. Certainly she intended to marry Geoffrey. What made her hesitate about setting a date? Because a very bold and insolent young man had once set her pulse pounding with his kiss? Ridiculous! The sooner she married Geoffrey and put an end to such silly thoughts, the better.

Giving Sandy a final pat, she said: "Geoff, I'll set the date as soon as I make a list of all the things to be done. I'll know in a few days. Okay?"

"I suppose so," he frowned, wondering why she was sliding his engagement ring up and down on her finger. What made her so restless? She had changed since those impossible people had come here to live.

Common Courtesy

Not that way, young fellow. The man walks on the outside—nearest the curb—not the woman.

By JOAN DURHAM
 (AP Feature Service Writer)

With all the feminine frills and furbelows coming to the spring fashion front it's about time we resurrected the manners to go with them.

Take that matter of the man walking nearest the curb when he's with a woman, for instance. A lot of new-fangled commentators with "let-chivalry-die-if-it-must" ideas have approved changing the old order in that respect. Nevertheless, it's still done in the best circles.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood—Cary Grant is reading a newspaper, and obligingly turning his profile this way and that. He's being sketched—not by Carole Lombard as you'll be asked to believe when you see "Memory of Love"—but by Hector Scerbatoli.

Miss Lombard is playing a designer who sketches (or maybe it's a sketcher with designs on Grant) but Miss Lombard isn't even on the set as she does her sketching.

Scerbatolia. He was born in Rome, began studying art when he was 15 at the Academy of St. Luke. He came to America in 1913 and began painting a huge panorama of Marin County (Calif.) for the 1915 Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. For 10 years he had his own studio in San Francisco, and then he spent two years doing murals at William Randolph Hearst's San Simeon estates. Then to Hollywood—and except when he went to Texas to do murals for the Dallas Centennial, he has been here ever since.

He is lean, neat, dresses like everybody else—no long hair, no flowing black tie, no half-starved look. Excitable, though, sometimes, if you can believe his studio associates. (But who, in a movie madhouse, isn't?) One of his toughest assignments was a rush order for a portrait of H. B. Warner. The artist worked on it all night from photographs, then Warner came at dawn to sit for an hour, and the portrait was ready on time.

Craftsmanship? It's the same for movies, he says, as for non-movie work. Maybe it calls for more speed, confidence, and versatility. Versatility, for instance, that enables him to "forge"—for movie

He has "done" several Hollywood celebrities in oils for their homes. Bette Davis, Dick Powell, Phyllis Haver. Al Santell have paid him from $800 to $1,000 apiece for portraits. If you dine in 20th Century-Fox's Cafe de Paris, you'll see more of Hector's work on the walls—46 big murals of the stars.

His best stellar subject he considers Bette Davis, who sits quietly and is interested in his work.

His worst she has painted her six times and probably will have to do her several times more) is a young star who "wiggles and squirms." Now that Shirley Temple is 10, however, she'll probably sit quietly.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—It might be worth a good war just to have a chance to try out all the new legislative tricks
that are being invented these days.
Latest in the field is the proposal
of Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma to conduct a national shake-down for funds to run the way when it comes.
He would make a survey of each person's wealth and then require him to pay out a certain percent of it to buy government bonds
at low interest.

A half dozen generals and economists were hasty to remember that raising money wasn't such a hard job during the last war, what with Liberty bonds selling by the billions. They seemed to think Senator Lee was trying to raise money
the hard way.

Then take the war profits bills.
There are several of them. Senator Bone of Washington, one of the once famous Senate munitions Investigating committee of early New Deal days, shaped up one and rounded up 50 Senate signatures to it—enough to pass it if ever it comes to a vote. It lowers exemptions and increases rates to a top of approximately 99 per cent of the earnings in the upper brackets.

Cashier Be Paid
A wily statistician figured that a resident of New York, where most of the country's money is made,
never could earn money enough to pay his taxes. The war tax of the federal government would almost clean him out. The New York State income tax would take more than he had left. The Veterans of Foreign Wars support that bill. A slightly modified edition of it has the support of the American Legion, which long has plunked for a draft to reach not only manpower but wealth as well.

The War Department has been against such tax bills from the beginning.

Just now in the limelight is the proposal of Representative Ludlow
of Indiana to amend the constitution to provide that no war can be declared without a direct vote of the people except in case of actual invasion. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, whose father endured a heap of abuse for voting against entry into the World war, is sponsoring it in the Senate.

President Roosevelt denounced it as likely to ham-string the chief executive in conduct of foreign affairs, while Senator Borah said it would take Congress out of the game altogether.

Whoa, Navy!
Another bill roaming around in some obscure committee corner
would prevent the navy advance beyond the 180th meridian in the Pacific. That would mean it might chase the Japanese fleet a short distance beyond the Hawaiian islands,
but then would have to halt or face punishment for contempt of Congress.

The neutrality bill has had a minor work out and almost everybody in touch with it has been dissatisfied in some respects. It kept the United States out of the Italo-Ethiopian war, but its designer, Senator Nye of North Dakota, felt it kept us out of the Spanish war altogether too well and he wanted it revised months ago so help could go to the Loyalists.

President Roosevelt let it go into operation in the Atlantic, but disliked the prospect of its working a hardship on China so refused to invoke it in the Pacific.

So many conflicting ideas have developed as to what sort of neutrality bill the country should have that one naive witness suggested before a congressional committee that representatives of foreign nations be invited to help us frame
one to please everybody.

Colored News

There will be a tribal sermon preached at the Pentecostal Power of Jesus Christ Church on Sunday.
Each of the following ministers will preach 20 minutes: the Rev. Jesse Haney, missionary; Fannie Stoton, elder; W. M. Brown, pastor; the Rev. George Rodgers; the Rev.
George Field and the Rev. Mose Vivis.

REPORT TO HIS CHIEF was being made by Frank A. Banks (left) when this picture of the new acting administrator of the Bonneville dam project was made several months ago at Grand Coulee dam. Mr. Banks is showing President Roosevelt the great water control project in Washington. Appointed by Secretary Ickes, Mr. Banks will also remain in charge of Grand Coulee.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, May 18.—Neither Governor Clyde R. Hoey nor his secretary Bob Thompson will be able to attend the first national convention of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. Bob has regrettably written Mr. O. C.
Cash, third assistant temporary vice-chairman of the S.P.E.S.Q.S., A., who from Tulsa had "cordially invited" North Carolina's chief executive to attend the session slated to be held June 2 and 3.

"It was fortunate that your letter of May 10 arrived during the Governor's absence and fell into my hands rather than his," Mr. Thompson wrote "My dear Mr. Temporary Vice-Chairman."

"As a statement, orator, a financial genius and an eminent figure of manhood, the Governor of North Carolina is beyond compare, but when it comes to singing, especially barber shop singing, he is completely outclassed by his secretary, to-wit, myself," continued Bob's reply.
"As a matter of fact, the first lady of the state recently told me that when the Governor cuts loose
in church heads turn from all directions. On the other hand, my wife informs me that when I open up with my bathtub aria in the morning the neighbors for blocks
are heard to howl in applause." (Ed.
Note—Mrs. Thompson probably meant anguish.)

"It is with deep regret that I inform you I cannot add to the cultural enjoyment of the city of Tulsa
on June 2nd and 3rd, but mayhap
some of North Carolina's lesser musical lights will be present. In any event, I told the papers about it and we advertised for candidates."
So there's a good chance for somebody.

Your correspondent attempted a political interview with Andy Monroe, spread Carolina Power and Light public relations man, who was standing beside a fire hydrant on Fayetteville street.

Just as much information was obtained from Andy as from the fire hydrant.

Instructing the jury and defining a "deadly weapon" in the case of State vs. Ed Alston, a presiding judge said, according to the brief
of appellant, "—that is a weapon likely to cause death or great bodily harm to the deceased."

The weapon was a stick, and maybe decreased is the same thing
as deceased, in this case.

Incidentally this Alston case is in the Supreme court for the second time. The Durham Negro was once before sentenced to die for killing a woman alleged to have been practically 100 years old. On the form-

SONATA (OUCH!) PIANO but only the clay model paper artist, to show maestros' fingering and face to audience.

Manufacturing a piano is technically impossible to build.

taxation of various classes of building materials is arbitrary, inequit-able and based on no fundamental difference in material.
(6) Because the provision that merchants may absorb the tax but may not advertise they will "attempts to make it a crime for a man to say he is going to do a perfectly legal thing, which is in violation of the freedom of speech guaranteed" by both state and federal constitutions.
(7) Because the upper limit of $15 sales tax on any one sale is "purely arbitrary and fixed by no rule and without uniformity."
"It is just as plausible and reasonable for the legislature to say that a landowner who owns 10 tracts of land of 10 acres should pay more tax than one who owns 100 acres in a single tract of the same value...
as it is for the legislature to say that a person who purchases four cars at $500 each must pay $60 to the dealer for the privilege of buying cars, while one who buys a car
for $2,000 must pay to the dealer
only $15."

(8) Because it forces every merchant to become a tax collector for the state of North Carolina without remuneration against his will, when he is protected by the constitution of North Carolina from involuntary servitude, otherwise than for crime.

(9) Because by reason of the failure of the legislature to apportion representation after the census of 1930 "all the people of North Carolina did not have equal representation in the legislature at the time said act was passed, and the legislature was convened and this act passed in contravention of Section 1, Amendment 14, of the Constitution of the United States."

(10) Because the conditions, inequalities and arbitrary provisions of some part of the act are unconstitutional and so interwoven and dependent upon the other portion of the act as to render the remaining part unconstitutional and unenforceable.

The Leonard appeal will not be heard before Wednesday of next week at the earliest, possibly not before Thursday, depending upon the speed made by the court in disposing of its calendar.
Predictions of any Supreme court decision is perhaps a bit out of order, but in the instant case there is a strong impression that Mr.
Leonard will lose, though there is an equally strong impression that the court will not go into any lengthy discussion of why.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—The man who is recognized as the King of Frolegs in New York, and also in America, is a fellow known to everyone here as Riley. Ben Riley is a famous res-tauranteur, owner of the Arrowhead Inn, and he it was who first introduced frogs as a super-delectable back in 1897.

Since that time he has personally purchased more than six million pairs of frogs. On May 1 each year they replace oysters on the menus, although you may still have oysters if you ask for them.

It was Riley who lobbied for a closed season on frogs, making it illegal to serve them between September and May. Now, if anyone is observed ignoring the off-season, a fine of $10 for each pair of frogs is imposed.

Billy Rose suffers from claustrophobia. He can't stand close to confining places. The walls seem to be closing in on him and that makes him jittery. Perhaps this is why his name is identified with vast and mammoth productions, such as
"Jumbo" and the Frontier Fiesta
at Fort Worth, and the Aquacades at Cleveland and New York. Nor are his Casa Manana and Diamond Horseshoe nightclubs small. Each of these will hold thousands.

He hasn't been identified with a really small place since the old prohibition days of the Back Stage club, and that reminds me of a story. It was a gay place, the Back Stage club, frequented by the Zieg-felds and the Belascos and the everybodies who amounted to anything along Broadway.

One day a curly-headed girl came in and asked Rose for a job. She said she could sing, and if given a chance she thought she might have something that would amuse the customers. So Rose told her okay, and she rehearsed a couple of times, and opening night came around.

It seems everybody was there, and all the tables were taken, and there wasn't even an extra chair for the singer. So she climbed up on the piano and sat there twisting a handkerchief, and sang. That was the first time Broadway ever heard of Helen Moran.

It was there that Ziegfeld heard her, and liked her, and offered her a contract. Later she became a great star and Ziegfeld always got credit for "discovering" her. But, it was Rose who gave Helen Morgan her first chance.

Guests in New York who suddenly discover themselves to be brokers should remember this: It is perfectly okay to sleep on park benches in the city but you have to be up by 6:30 a. m. More than 20 park sleepers were brought into court the other morning because they were discovered still snoozing after 7 o'clock.

EXTRA CORN

20 CENTS PER BUSHEL

"ARCADIAN USED HERE"
meant extra bushels of good corn to R. D. HOWARD, of Deep Run, as you can see by the photograph at right. This corn received 400 pounds of mixed fertilizer per acre and was side-dressed with 150 pounds of ARCADIAN NIT-RATE OF SODA. It produced about 80 bushels of corn per acre.

"ARCADIAN IS GOOD SODA" Says J. F. Daniel
"My corn crop on 25 acres
last season averaged 78
bushels per acre," says J.
T. DANIEL, Oxford. "I used ARCADIAN NITRATE OF SODA on every hill of it. On one measured acre, I made 104 bushels which sold for seed at $1.00 per bushel. I fertilized the corn at planting with 250 pounds of 4-16-4 per acre and later made two side-dressings with ARCADIAN—100 pounds when the corn was knee-high and 100 pounds when the corn was shoulder-high. ARCADIAN is good soda."

"ARCADIAN MAKES COTTON AND MAKES IT QUICK"
Says J. F. McFayden, Jr.
Seventy-five 500-pound bales from about 100 acres was a cotton yield far above the average for Cumberland county last season. J. F. McFAYDEN, Jr., made this yield at Fayetteville. He fertilized with 500 pounds of 4-8-4 per acre and side-dressed with 100 pounds of ARCADIAN NITRATE OF SODA per acre.
"My crop got an early start and matured before the boll weevil did its heaviest damage," says Mr. McFAYDEN. "I like ARCADIAN NITRATE, The American SODA. It gives me excellent results and its mechanical condition makes it easy to put out with my fertilizer distributor."

ARCADIAN NITRATE
The American SODA is celebrating its tenth anniversary.
During its 10 years of growth,
nitrate prices have come down some 40% while quality of product and package have improved. Today its production is a vast Southern industry.
ARCADIAN means growth for the South and growth for your crops... quick, vigorous, productive growth. When you buy Nitrate of Soda, ALWAYS ASK FOR ARCADIAN.

Don King Allows One Hit To Beat New Bern Last Night

TEN FANNED IN CONTEST HERE

First 21 Bears to Go to Plate Retired in Order

A hit by Osborne between first and second base in the eighth inning deprived Don King, Greenville's left-handed ace hurler, of a no-hit game against New Bern at Guy Smith park last night. The Greenies won 6-1.

For the first seven innings it was the finest brand of hurling ever seen in these parts. Only 21 men were seen in the field during the first seven innings. King fanned the first 11 batters, one the second and three in the third. In the third frame he pitched only fourteen balls, two of which were fouled with two strikes on the batter.

In all King fanned 10. Two of the four men he walked were passed in the first seven innings, but both were retired on double plays. Barnes drew a walk in the seventh and Norwood hit a fly to left field which Heavener caught running. Barnes, thinking the ball was safe or two men were out raced to third and was thrown out at first.

Local fans in the stand forgot about more Greenville runs and began to hope for a no-hit game and the remote possibility of only 27 New Bern men coming to bat.

The eighth was a heart-breaker, however, not only for Don who had been "pitching his heart out," but for the 1,000 or so fans in the stands pulling for him.

Patterson walked, Red Harper hit a high fly outside the first base line, which Skipper Wilson failed to hold on to and then was nipped on the arm with a pitched ball. With men on first and second, Osborne, who had fanned out on his previous two times at bat, managed to get his bat against one and it went between the first and second base hit. Patterson scored. Harper was retired on a fielder's choice, Queen safe at first with Osborne going to third. Rickman was thrown at first, but Berry was walked to fill the bases. McAbee, however, was thrown out at first to end the inning, which netted one run on one hit, two walks and a hit batter, with three left on bases.

In the ninth inning one man got on base on an error by Allen after one man was out, but King fanned one and the other batter went out at first.

While King was doing such a fine job of hurling, the Greenies were garnering six runs, two each in the first and second, and one each in the fifth and seventh.

In the first inning Allen was safe at first on an error by the second baseman and came home on Rimmer's homer, after Simpson had flied out. Wilson doubled, but Jenkins fanned to end the frame.

Red Christopher was the first man up in the second, having returned to the line-up after having been out with illness, and received a warm round of applause as he went to bat. He failed to connect and struck out. Vincent Smith, however, poked out a nice double. King flied out, but Allen homered to bring in Smith ahead of him. Simpson flied out to end the inning.

Only three Greenies went to bat in the third and in the fourth, with two men out. Smith got his consecutive hit of the game—a single. King followed with a hit and Allen was walked to fill the bases. Simpson, again, however flied out on a hard hit to center field which would have been over the fence had it not been moved back before the season opened.

"Swamp" Norwood, who was with Greenville the first part of last season, was doing a fine job in the center garden and made outs of what appeared to be beautiful hits. His victim in two instances was the Greenville center fielder, Ralph Simpson.

Greenville made its fifth run in the fifth. After Rimmer had flied out, Heavener poked a triple and came home on Wilson's single. Jenkins went out at first and Christopher flied out to center.

The Greenies threatened again in the sixth. Vincent Smith, first man up, poked out another single, his third successive hit of the tilt. King laid down a bunt on the line strike and was might close to being safe at first on the throw. Allen was issued a free pass, but Simpson hit into a double play.

In the seventh the Greenies made their sixth and final run. With one out, Heavener hit safely and went to third on an error and then came home on a wild pitch.

Nearly Got It

Don King rapped hard and long on the door of baseball's hall of fame last night and barely missed getting in. For seven innings the left-handed hurler turned back New Bern batters without a hit and during these seven innings only 21 men faced him. In the eighth however, Osborne, New Bern first sacker, managed to get one between first and second base which went for a hit. It was the only safe blow made by the Bears off King during the game, which the Greenies won 6-1.

Increase Shown in Influenza Deaths

Raleigh, May 18.—Last month's influenza toll in North Carolina was 119, as compared with 48 in April, 1938, according to a report compiled by Dr. R. T. Stimpson, director of the State Board of Health's Bureau of Vital Statistics. Homicides also were up, with 41, as compared with 23 the corresponding period of last year.

There was an increase of eight in the total number of deaths in the state, while the birth rate jumped from 22.2 to 22.7, indicating an increase of 206 in the number of babies born last month over April, 1938.

The infant mortality rate for the month, including babies under one year of age, dropped from 56.2 to 52.2, while the maternal death rate fell from 5.7 to 5.5 for the month. Diarrhea and enteritis claimed only 13 children under two years of age last month, as compared with 35 a year ago, the report of Dr. Stimpson shows. There were ten deaths from measles, compared with 46 last April.

Preventable accidents claimed 96 victims, against 91 a year ago, including, in 1939: automobile fatalities, 55; deaths from automobile and railroad collisions 5; other railroad accidents 7; burns 19; drowning 6; traumatism by firearms 4. There were no sharp differences in deaths from the above causes for the two years.

Pulmonary tuberculosis deaths dropped from 165 to 149, while pneumonia deaths dropped from 223 to 207.

Tough Luck, Don!

MARTINS STILL LEADING LOOP

Tarboro Bests Wilson and Goldsboro and Snow Hill Split

Williamston's Martins continued to hold the Coastal Plain loop's top berth by defeating Kingston's Eagles, 8-3, yesterday. The Greenies are 1/2 game behind the first place, Williamston club.

Tarboro's entry in the Coastal loop smothered Wilson's Toba by a 7-1 score as Yent hurled three-hit ball. The Tarboro club is close on the heels of the two Coastal loop leaders—the Martins and the Greenies.

To wind up the play in the local loop yesterday, the Goldsboro Bugs and Snow Hill's Billies split a double header at Snow Hill yesterday. Kepler hurled 6-hit shut-out ball for the Bugs in the opener as his team-mates gathered a total of seven runs. In the night-cap which was a seven-inning affair the Billies pounded two Bug pitchers for 17 hits and 12 runs to win 12-2.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 18.—(AP)—A minor advance in stocks was dammed by moderate selling today, turning the trend into uneven channels.

Forenoon dealings saw leaders rise from fractions to two points in slow transactions. Late in the fourth hour, however, brokers received sell-instructions, apparently from traders who were collecting profits of the earlier advance.

Transfers approximated 450,000 shares.

SWINGLESS COLLEGIANS TURN TO SQUARE DANCING

Barbourville, Ky. —(AP)—Swing is out and square dances are in at Union College.

School officials, turning thumbs down on modern dances and hot music, said students received enthusiastically the faculty-approved old-time square dance in the college gym.

The ban on swing music extends to the college orchestra, which is forbidden to practice "swing."

BOARD R'TAINS DR. REYNOLDS

Annual Salary Boosted from $6,600 to $7,200

Winston-Salem, May 18.—Unanimous reelection of Dr. Carl V. Reynolds as state health officer for another four-year term was announced here by Dr. S. D. Craig, president of the State Board of Health, following receipt of a letter from Governor Clyde R. Hoey approving the election, which took place at Greensboro at the annual meeting of the board, held during the time the North Carolina Public Health Association was in session there.

Governor Hoey revealed in Raleigh yesterday that Dr. Reynolds' salary had been increased $600 annually by the State Board of Health, the health officer's pay having been boosted from $6,600 to $7,200 a year.

Dr. Reynolds was elected a member of the State Board of Health in 1931 and in 1933 he succeeded Dr. J. T. Burrus as president of that body. On November 10, 1934, he was unanimously elected acting State Health officer, succeeding Dr. James M. Parrott, whose death occurred November 7 of that year, and on May 7, 1935, he was unanimously elected State Health officer at the annual meeting of the State Board of Health held in Pinehurst. He now begins his second full term.

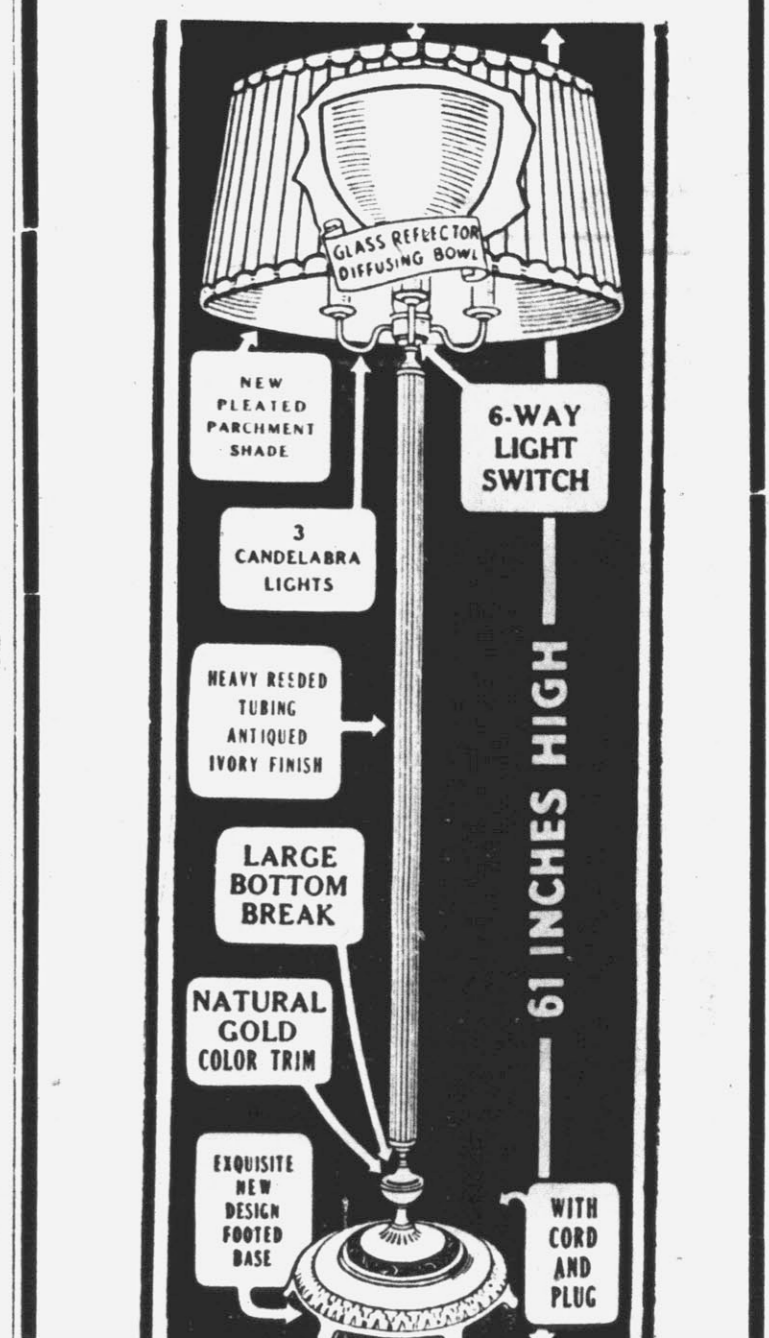

Dr. Reynolds is a native of Asheville, where his father, who died when he was three years old, was a practicing physician. He obtained his basic education in the private schools of Asheville and pursued his literary studies at Wofford College in Spartanburg. He received his medical education at the Medical College of the City of New York, where he was awarded the Valentine
