DEGREE LAWS TO AID FRENCH DEFENSE ATMS

Still Seeking Alliance With England and Russia

HUGE PROGRAM IS ANTICIPATED

Former Czech Envoy Forwards Papers on Nazi Plot to Assassinate Benes in U. S.

Paris, May 20.—(AP)—The French cabinet approved today nine new decree laws tightening national defense preparations as French diplomatic efforts were bent toward bringing British and Soviet Russia near a triple entente.

Foreign Minister Bonnet gave particular emphasis to France's position in working for success of the British-Soviet negotiations during a review of the international situation by the ministers.

The meeting prepared for conversations between Bonnet and Premier Daladier will have later in the day with Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, who is to stop in Paris on his way to a League of Nations council session in Geneva.

The new decree laws authorize the government to requisition any building in France for military use, set aside colonial raw materials for manufacture of motor oils and gasoline for national defense agencies and regulate working conditions on the nationalized French railroads.

Meanwhile, diplomatic sources here said that S. Osusky, former Czech-Slovak minister to France, had forwarded to ex-President Benes information of a Nazi-fomented plot to assassinate Benes during his current residence in the United States.

Benes, who resigned as Czechoslovakian president after the September partitioning of that now vanished republic at Munich, is lecturing in the United States.

Osusky was said to have turned over all of his information to French and American police authorities who are making investigations.

His information was described as coming from secret agents in Prague and was said to include charges that the plot was fomented by the Nazi secret police in the Czech capital.

No independent confirmation of the reported plot was obtainable from other sources.

Mica Industry Faces Inspection Trouble

Raleigh, May 20.—Out in the Spruce Pines section North Carolina's mica industry is booming and growing; but along with this it is suffering from growing pains which often mark the change from adolescence to full manhood.

The mills are running day and night in many instances, and there are a number of new mills under construction. All of which would indicate prosperity for the section and for those engaged in the industry, in particular.

But there are two complaints: (1) Customs inspectors at Wilmington do not know the difference between "scrap" and "sheet" mica, and (2) there are among the mill owners and operators a percentage of chiselers who will go to extreme lengths to buy their mica as cheaply as possible.

The mica folks—at least the natives who do a lot of the actual digging and producing of it—feel that the two are well distinguished, as they contend that complaint No. 1 is cause and No. 2 is effect.

What irks is that a quantity of mica is being shipped through Wilmington as "scrap," which enters duty free, when as a matter of fact it is about half "sheet" on which there is a duty of $2.50 a pound—in other words a prohibitive tariff.

It's cheaper for the mills to get this imported stuff, rework it for the perfectly good sheet mica it contains than it is to buy from the native producers. Also with this supply in prospect the millers can adopt a "take it or leave it" attitude when they offer say, $10 for a couple of tons they can sell for about $300.

And so Governor Clyde R. Hoey is being asked to do something about it, though it's not clear just what. Best guess is that he will move for a tightening of mica inspection at Wilmington.

Mount Ayr, Ia.—(AP)—Asa Rains drove up to the courthouse to get 1939 license plates for his 1911 automobile. It is a two-cylinder single seater with neither top nor windshield. He said it gives him uninterrupted service.

KING AND QUEEN VISIT CAPITAL OF CANADA

Smiling, and obviously pleased at their warm reception, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England are shown riding in a horse-drawn carriage shortly after their arrival in the Canadian capital, Ottawa. It was their Majesties' third important stop since their vessel brought them to Quebec on a visit to Canada and the United States.

KING HONORED IN CEREMONIES FOR BIRTHDAY

Guards Perform Ancient Rites of Trooping the Colors

CROWDS THRU OTTAWA

Although King Was Born on December 14, 1895, Birthday Observed May 20

Ottawa, May 20.—(AP)—Two regiments of Canadian guards performed the time-honored ceremony of trooping the colors today as Canada joined King George VI, in celebrating his 44th birthday.

The king was born December 14, 1895, but adopted May 20 for the celebration of his birth. A bright sun brought out colorful crowds that thronged the dominion's capital for the most brilliant pageantry the king and his Scottish queen will see on their month's tour of Canada and the United States.

The king was driven in an automobile from the governor general's residence to Parliament Hill with an escort of mounted Royal Canadian dragoons.

He was alone Queen Elizabeth preceded him to the vast green square in an automobile with Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the governor general, and watched from a window of his chambers in the parliament building.

Trooping the colors, a ceremony whose origin lies deep in English antiquity, were carried out by the governor general's footguards of Ottawa, and the Canadian grenadier guards of Montreal.

There were at least 60,000 persons in the milling crowds, the largest ever to assemble on the hill.

Queen Elizabeth, whom friends have said made the king propose three times before she married him, does the talking at today's ceremonies of the royal tour.

Her majesty's part in the storybook pageantry (for Ottawa, at least, although red-coated dragoons' shining helmets, and stage coaches are quite the thing in London) was the laying of the cornerstone for the new Supreme court building.

Speaking of his observations on his tour during the week, Mussolini declared, "Piedmont is strong," and "Piedmont is 100 per cent Fascist."

"I say this to refute certain ridiculous insinuations." Formerly plans had been made for a two-night run, but due to unavoidable difficulties, they had to be altered.

Now, however, at the request of the public, and for the benefit of those unable to attend the first performance, the Greenville Little Theatre will again present "The Night of January 16th" at the court house on Tuesday night, May 23.

Since the presentation of "The Night of January 16th" at the Pitt county court house last Thursday night, there has been a rapid increase in the public demand for a repetition of the show.

'ROSE OF DEATH' DENIED BAIL

Brought from New York where she was trapped by FBI agents, Rose Carina, short middle-aged brunette is shown as she was brought to Philadelphia, Pa. where she was being held on a murder charge in connection with the city's mass insurance slayings. Police termed her "Rose of Death."

Trans-Atlantic Service By Air Is Inaugurated

Yankee Clipper Departs from Long Island with Mail

New York, May 20.—(AP)—The Yankee Clipper, carrying 100,000 letters, took off from Port Washington, L. I., at 12:07 p. m., today, inaugurating regular transport service between the United States and Europe.

Arthur E. La Part, skipper of the plane which carried a crew of 14 and two company officers, smiled apologetically to newspaper men just before the take-off.

"Well," he said, "this is pretty much of a routine thing. Naturally the crew is pleased in participating in this first scheduled flight. We expect to reach Horta, in the Azores, in about 14 hours."

There will be four other mail flights before passenger service is started. The 42-ton flying boat can carry a maximum of 35 passengers.

The take-off from the bay required 55 seconds. Just before the engines were turned over, Harlee Branch, member of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, presented Juan Trippe, president of Pan American Airways, owner of the ship, with a route certificate authorizing the flight.

Inauguration of the service came on the 12th anniversary of the flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from New York to Paris.

One Person Killed in Beaufort Accident

Washington, N. C., May 20.—(AP) Mrs. Willis Wolaver, 35, of Washington, D. C., was killed instantly and three persons were injured seriously today when their automobile overturned one mile east of Blount Creek station.

Mr. Wolaver, 53, who Patrolman William Thompson said was the driver of the machine, was brought to a hospital here in a critical condition.

J. S. Rowe, 26, and his wife, 18, also of Washington, D. C., received fractured skulls and were unconscious at the hospital. Rowe also was believed to have suffered a broken back.

Thompson said the party was en route to Auroa to visit Rowe's father.

Mrs. Wolaver was an expectant mother. The Wolavers lived at 2248 Shannon place in the nation's capital.

Screwy Safety Slogans Reduce Traffic Deaths

Cleveland.—(AP)—Some of his colleagues think Martin A. Blecke, deputy commissioner of traffic for Cleveland's police department, is "a little screwy," but Blecke doesn't care.

He thinks that trait helped the city win with Milwaukee the National Safety Council's 1938 traffic contest for cities of 500,000 population or more.

The evidence used against Blecke is proclaimed from 200-odd billboards and signboards in all sections of the Lake Erie city. Some of the Blecke-conceived safety slogans read like this:

"Jeepers creepers, use your peepers." "Speed is expensive—save your money."

"An early spring is much better than a hard fall." "You have to have something to draw the attention of the public," declares the gray-haired veteran, whose slogans helped Cleveland cut her 1938 traffic fatalities to half the 1937 figures.

"We made arrests for 30 years and never got anywhere until we started a public educational campaign. Most people don't want to kill you—they just must be made to think."

"Some of the other boys in the department think I'm a little screwy when they see some of the slogans, but you have to get the public's attention."

TRIO DROWN IN TAR HEEL LAKE

Bodies of Textile Workers Found in Linwood Pool

Lexington, N. C., May 20.—(AP)—The bodies of three Kannapolis textile workers, Fletcher Shinn, 26, Ralph Jameson, 24, and Horace Purvis, 20, were recovered today from High Rock lake near Linwood, where they drowned when a small boat capsized shortly before midnight.

The three, with Bruce Haney of Kannapolis, were rowing across a neck of the lake to set a trout line when a gust of wind caused the boat to capsize. Sheriff Raymond Bowers said.

Haney swam ashore. One of the others, unable to swim, sank quickly, the sheriff said, while the other two swam away from the near bank into the darkness.

Shinn and Jameson lived near Mooresville, Purvis at Landis Shinn leaves a widow and child. The others were unmarried.

His information was described as coming from secret agents in Prague and was said to include charges that the plot was fomented by the Nazi secret police in the Czech capital.

No independent confirmation of the reported plot was obtainable from other sources.

Municipal Pool Here Open For Summer

The Greenville municipal swimming pool was to open officially at 4 o'clock this afternoon, after it had been filled and everything made in readiness during the morning.

The pool will be open each week day from 4 to 9 p. m., until June 9, on which date it will begin remaining open from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. Special hours will be observed on Sundays so as not to interfere with church.

Local Masonic Lodge Invited To Services

Members of the Greenville Masonic lodge No. 284, will attend the revival services at the Free Will Baptist Church in a body Monday night.

The services will begin at seven o'clock and members of the lodge are asked to meet in front of the church so they can enter together. Secretary N. R. Joyner is urging all members to attend the services.

112-YEAR-OLD BUILDING TORN DOWN FOR LOGS

Nashville, Tenn.—(AP)—A 112-year-old two-story log building on the River Road was torn down—so that its firm, hand-hewn logs might be used in building a home of more modern design.

Coordinating Committee Regarded Capable Group

Raleigh, May 20.—Viewed a day or so after its appointment and after time for some modicum of reflection, the Co-ordinating committee named simultaneously by the Governor and the Commissioner of Agriculture seems, in the eyes of most Raleigh observers, to be a group capable of doing much to smooth out the ancient and perennial Department of Agriculture-State College quarrel.

Perhaps the most obvious and frequent comment was on the fact that of the six members appointed only one is primarily a politician—Robert Grady Johnson, head of the prison division of the State Highway Commission.

None of the other five can be entirely and completely divorced from the political picture, but only Johnson is a politician first, last and all the time.

There seems a general impression that the Department certainly got none the worst of it in the committee selections; though there is a general disposition to credit all the appointees with sincerity, impartiality and a willingness to give both sides of the controversial issues a full hearing and a just verdict.

The gubernatorial appointees are all prominent and well known figures in state government. Dudley Bagley of Movock, is director of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority, but he is also a farmer on a large scale and is a leader in a number of factors have boosted these bonds to the highest price level in history so that certain issues yield less than one per cent.

Brief Freedom

Tarboro, May 20.—(AP)—Nine Negroes, using hand files, sawed their way out of the Edgecombe county jail here at 3 a. m., today.

By 7 a. m. G. M. Taylor and Deputy Sheriff Tom Bardin announced the capture of the last of the prisoners.

Willie Sutton, Taylor said, was the only one of the group who escaped from the barbed wire fence around the jail. He was caught with bloodhounds at Hemps Island, in Tar river, four miles from Tarboro.

ITALO-GERMAN POWER HAILED

Il Duce Asserts Axis Has Strength of 150,000,000 Men

Cuneo, Italy, May 20.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, addressing a cheering mass meeting close to the French frontier tonight, declared the Italian-German military alliance would give Europe a bloc of 150,000,000 men, "again which it will be impossible to do anything."

"This bloc of formidable men and arms wants peace," he declared, but he warned "the great democracies" against any attempt to "stop our irresistible march."

The mention of the "great democracies" brought prolonged booing from the crowds.

There were cries of "Tunisia," "Nice," "Savoy" (all now belong to Il Duce) and "we will march."

Il Duce spoke in Turin's main square after a week's tour of Piedmont, the northwestern part of Italy which has borders with France and Switzerland.

Yells of acclamation went up as Il Duce appeared in the square and marched to the rostrum.

Speaking of his observations on his tour during the week, Mussolini declared, "Piedmont is strong," and "Piedmont is 100 per cent Fascist."

Dr. ReBarker To Fill Winterville Pulpit

Dr. Herbert ReBarker of the East Carolina Teachers College faculty, will speak at the 11 o'clock service of the Winterville Baptist Church tomorrow morning in the absence of the pastor.

Rev. F. E. Morris, the pastor, is attending the annual Southern Baptist convention being held in Oklahoma City.

Hall Is Appointed To Board of Agriculture

Raleigh, May 20.—(AP)—Governor Hoey today appointed Claude T. Hall of Wooddale to the State Board of Agriculture and reappointed J. H. Poole of West End and D. Reeves Noland of Clyde.

Their terms expire May 22, 1945. Hall succeeds T. G. Currin of Oxford.

The governor also announced the appointment of Dr. Ben Royal of Morehead City to the board of directors of the State Hospital for the Negro Insane at Goldsboro to complete the unexpired term of Dr. John Robinson of Wallace, who resigned.

What About Government Bonds?

Babson Says Bankers Are Financing Public Spending

By ROGER W. BABSON

New York City, May 20.—One of the toughest jobs in the financial world today is the protection of money and property. The yield on money is lower than ever and the risks and taxes greater than ever.

Consequently, bankers and investors are scared to death. They do not know what to do. They feel that whatever move they make will be wrong. They have never been so hard pressed before—not even in the abyss of the depression.

The only securities which now meet with favor here on Wall Street are government bonds. Capital has been retreating into these issues for the past five years. Because the five-year notes are tax-free, they meet with an artificial demand.

From one end of the earth to the other, United States Government bonds are considered the strongest investments that can be bought. A number of factors have boosted these bonds to the highest price level in history so that certain issues yield less than one per cent.

Who "governments" are favored? These government bonds are particularly favored by managers of institutional and trust funds. Such people believe their primary job is to maintain the principal of the funds committed to their care. Income is a secondary consideration with them. Whereas 10 years ago a conservative investment fund might yield 5 per cent, today it yields but 2 or 3 per cent. Bankers prefer United States "Governments" because they are exchangeable into dollar bills at any time. A bank's only obligation is to pay depositors "dollars" regardless of what the purchasing power of these dollars will be. Trustees, too, are buying "Governments" because they feel the price of these bonds will hold up.

I seriously question the action of both trustees and bankers on two

NEW SPENDING MOVE STARTED BY SEN. PEPPER

Group to Proceed Unless Roosevelt Offers Own Plan

BURKE IS QUICK TO OPPOSE MOVE

Proposal Would Call For PWA Expenditures of Self-Liquidating and Social Projects

Washington, May 20.—(AP)—Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) served notice today that he and other administration supporters would take the initiative in starting a new spending-lending program through Congress if President Roosevelt did not come forward soon with concrete proposals of his own.

"If the President doesn't start it, we will," said the senator, who has been active in efforts to work out a new program for submission to Mr. Roosevelt.

Pepper said he thought a plan calling for PWA expenditures in the field of self-liquidating projects, expanded old-age pensions, and federal grants for education, public health and handicapped children would win approval of the country.

Senator Burke (D.-Neb.), an economy advocate, was quick to disagree. "Government spending as an aid to recovery has failed," he declared.

Other developments: Not even an invitation to a British embassy garden party for the king and queen of England can make Representative Lindsay Warren of North Carolina break a long-standing rule of avoiding Washington social activities.

Warren, as chairman of the House accounts committee, received the invitation about 10 days ago, but said he did not intend to go. Mrs. Warren, however, will be among the guests.

The party will be June 8, during the Washington visit of the king and queen.

Treasury officials estimated the federal deficit this year would fall $500,000,000 short of the $4,000,000,000 once expected.

A preliminary report of the case had been submitted to Governor Hoey by Frederick C. Handy, director of the State Bureau of Investigation and Identification, whose organization has been investigating the flogging.

The two Negroes, Floyd Edwards and Kirby Baldwin, were taken from the jail in Goldsboro and flogged by a group they described as "several men." The two were awaiting trial on charges of striking white men, one of them J. H. Hill, Goldsboro mayor.

A compromise plan of revising corporate taxes, which advocates feel might remove the chief obstacle to adjournment of Congress by July 15, was discussed by legislative leaders.

It was said reliably to involve the reduction of the present two and one-half per cent rate on undistributed profits to one and a half per cent.

Negro Arrested On Whiskey Law Charges

Members of the Pitt county ABO law enforcement force and of the local police staff this morning arrested Preston James and Martha Moore, Negroes, on whiskey charges after, they reported, approximately seven gallons of the contraband was found on their premises.

ABC Officers J. M. Ward and E. G. McMullan and Police Captain S. Bowen Dorsey took part in the raid. The Negroes live on New Higgs street and police officials said that the woman had been in court before on whiskey charges.

Boys Too Sharp For Him
You don't catch a Greenville boy every time. Today a crowd of them "chipped in" some nickels and got the two foreigners to make their bear climb a tree in the Academy grove. Bruhn was laxy and did not feel like climbing, but a few punches from the master's rod made him go up. Reaching a stout limb, the bear sat down to take a rest, when the man told the boys to make up another quarter and he would make the bear come down for them.

Spring Dance Tonight.
East Carolina Teachers College will hold its annual spring dance in the Robert H. Wright building tonight for one of the outstanding social events of the year. The Poe Society, largest literary society on the campus, and the social committee, are sponsoring the dance.

Music for the gala occasion will be furnished by Dick Stable and his celebrated musicians, who have gained much popularity in playing for public and private dances in various parts of the country.

An informal tea dance was held in the Campus building this afternoon as a preliminary to the evening's festivities. The social committee sponsored the tea dance and used for the music popular recordings by celebrated dance orchestras of America.

In tonight's dance there will be a figure led by Miss Joyce Harrell of Hertford, with Tom Swain of Greenville, and Miss Juanita Etheridge of Whitakers, with John Dalguthridge of Nashville. Miss Harrell is chairman of the social committee and Miss Etheridge is immediate past president of the Poe Society.

Attractive modernistic decoration bring out the color scheme of red and white, the colors of the Poe Society, and feature the name of the society in a central diamond outlined against the stage curtain.

Dramatics Club Presents Play.
As its final activity of the year the Dramatics Club of the college presented a one-act play yesterday for the students at assembly, and will give three others in the Austin auditorium Tuesday night, May 23, at 8 o'clock, to which the public is invited. These plays have all been directed and acted by student members of the club.

The play at assembly yesterday, "The Man Who Came Back," was directed by Clifton Britton of Millwaukee, and introduced as actors Thornton Ryan, Greenville, as the man who "returned from the dead" to find that he could not again take his place in life; Lida B. Watts of Carthage, as his daughter, who made him a hero; and Esther Koonce of Richlands, as an old Negro mammy. "Wedding Clothes," a play of rural family life, scheduled for next Tuesday night, is under the direction of Miss Margaret Guy Overman of Elizabeth City. The roles of two sacrificing parents are played by Miss Marie Tripp of Blount's Creek, and Bruce Harrison of Chicago. The third character, a farm neighbor, is acted by Miss Mary Elizabeth Eagles of Pinetops.

"The Elopers," a lively farce, centered around a girl who does not like the husband chosen for her and decides to elope alone, is being directed by Miss Iris Davis of Stanlonsburg.

Miss Lucy Ann Barrow of La-Grange, will play the part of the eloping girl; Merwin Frazelle of Richlands, the young man she meets in her attempt to elope; Miss Gladys Johnson, Pendleton, of the girl's step-mother; and Alton Bayne of Gull Rock, as a policeman.

A third play, "Sham," directed by Bruce Harrison of Chicago, presents Wm. Ward James of Winterville, as a philosophical inter; Miss Nancy Page of Trenton, and Victor Workman of Mebane, as householders whose home the thief is rifting; and Robert "Motelwhite" of Greenville, as a reporter.

Washington Daybook

Washington—A spring day in the House of Representatives.

The House clock, wreathed in gilded fruit, twitters electrically toward the noon hour. The House meets at noon. Committee sessions occupy the morning. A hundred spectators are scattered about the 1,800 gallery seats. Some are nonchalantly reading newspapers that will stop promptly at 12 noon. No paper reading allowed in the galleries when the House is in session.

One member, Rep. Powers of New Jersey, sits alone in the center of the chamber, scowling over a Congressional Record. Somebody abuse you there, Mr. Powers?

Rep. Treadway of Michigan arrives, walks across the well in front of the speaker's desk, and out again. Too early. It is three minutes to 12. In another minute a half dozen arrive, then a score. The Republican side draws them fastest. That is because of Joe Martin of Massachusetts, the minority leader. He keeps his seat on the floor and as a compact bloc they have dealt the Democrats rough blows this session.

Rep. Tabor, Republican of New York, comes in, tall, belligerent. He will object to something or other during the day.

Hull and stock Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas comes in from a side door and marches to a special microphone. Says nothing. Regular poker face. The din is growing. Always din in the House. The loud speaker system is to drown out the whispering and talking.

Another 'Objector'
On the Democratic side Rep. Cox of Camilla, Ga., strolls up the aisle gesturing to a companion. He, too, will register an objection. Already this session he has initiated the WPA investigation, demanded removal of the labor board. He led the House fight against the Supreme court bill and against reorganization.

Speaker Bankhead pounds with a gavel. It is 12 noon. Clerks are in place around the rostrum. They have a loud speaker too. Two hundred members sitting now. The Rev. James Shera, Montgomery, the chaplain, rises. Like a miracle there is quiet. He prays into the microphone.

"Almighty God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid, cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit that we may perfectly love Thee and worthily magnify Thy Holy Name."

Rep. goes the gavel and a dozen members spring forward. "Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker."

One-Minute Speeches
They have speeches of their own they want printed in the Record, then reprinted by thousands and sent to constituents at home. One at a time they are allowed "to address the chair for a minute," during which they mutter some obscure sentence and wind up by begging leave to "extend their remarks in the Record."

Rep. Cox is objecting to something. Told you he would. He says Rep. Mary Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the labor committee, is trying to ram a pet set of wage-hour amendments down the throat of the House.

A half dozen members pour out complaints against the President for saying Argentine canned beef is better than Yankee beef. Reflection on American farmer, they say. It is calendar day, to be spent in speaking and passing a hundred piffing little bills. Better show next time.

Poisoning boll weevils before cotton squares mature is being tried experimentally in North Carolina this year, says O. Rowell, entomologist of the State College Extension Service.

Eastern North Carolina, with its mild climate and winter pastures, provides an excellent place for raising sheep, says L. I. Case, beef cattle and sheep specialist at State College.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 20.—Gathered in a close-community conference Friday on Fayetteville street were Frank Graham, Leroy Martin and Commissioner of Revenue Allen J. Maxwell.

One guess should suffice to identify the subject of their conversation; though it assumed a distinctly non-political atmosphere when your correspondent laid along side.

Sandy laughed off all efforts to find out what he thinks of the current gubernatorial situation. "I'm from the country," he said, "and we country boys don't know much about what's going on."

Graham, Martin and Maxwell all agreed on one thing, however—the beer industry's decision to wage a "clean up or close up" campaign meets with their wholehearted approval, and they all think that in Colonel Edgar Bain the brewers got a real two-fisted, capable man to direct their campaign.

Conductor of this corner wasn't aware he appeared to have appearance of medical knowledge until he was accosted Friday, while crossing the Capitol square, by a big Negro with the decidedly unusual query.

"Please, captain, can you tell me what's good for the indigestion?" At the risk of being jailed for practicing medicine without a license, this correspondent obliged with the advice, "Soda, plain old baking soda."

Wilmington's choice of title for its bicentennial celebration seems a particularly bright one—"The Tale of Two Centuries."

The Department of Conservation and Development studiously refrains from patting itself on the back, but there is obviously a very close connection between the following items:

Item No. 1.—The advertising division mailed out pictures and stories of North Carolina's coastal fishing advantages.

Item No. 2.—About the middle of April a number of rod and gun editors of large metropolitan newspapers, among them Raymond R. Camps of The World-Telegram and Fred Fletcher of The Daily News, spent several days on the "Banks."

Item No. 3.—Since these various rod and gun editors visited the state of North Carolina has been mentioned more often than an ideal place for surf fishing than any other state, with the exception of New York.

Item No. 4.—"It is the best fishing season we have had in a long time," one of the fishing guides on the Banks says. "Most of the fishermen are from New York and New Jersey."

The Department can be just as modest as it wants to be, but the whole picture looks like a mighty good scenario showing the benefits of a live, co-ordinated advertising campaign.

"Not since November, 1937, has the inflow of people seeking work through the Employment Service been so low as in April, 1939," says the May 17 issue of Employment News, publication of the North Carolina State Employment Service, under the head, "April Analysis."

April job placements were concentrated largely in construction and personal service, which accounted for 73.4 per cent of all the News points out.

CO-ORDINATING COMMITTEE RECORDED-CAPABLE GROUP

The farmers' co-operative movement. He is reputed to have been a strong supporter of Commissioner Kerr Scott in 1936 but is generally regarded as likely to be one of the real "balance wheels" on the committee.

George R. Ward of Wallace is a State Senator and a lawyer by profession but he has farm interests and is closely identified with a wholly rural county. During the bitter fighting of the recent session he showed no particular leaning toward either department or college.

Mr. Johnson's native county is Pender where he has some farm interests, but since he was Speaker of the House in 1935 he has figured in no news other than political. He was head of the Petroleum Industries Committee (oil lobby is the generally accepted term) before being named head of the prison division.

As for the Commissioner's trio—all of them had by law to come from the Board of Agriculture—two are more closely identified with industry than with farming, though the industries they represent are agricultural in nature.

Lionel L. Well of Goldsboro, is a fertilizer dealer, but he also has large farm interests. Charles F. Cates, listed as from Mebane in Mr. Scott's home, Alamance, is more closely identified with the pickle manufacturing at Faison in the east than with actual farming in the west.

H. H. Poole, West End, is a large-scale farmer. He is regarded, along with Mr. Bagley, as of the balance wheel type, extremely unlikely to take either side of any argument because of pre-conceived notions as to the general merits of the Department against College.

The ex-officio members are quite likely to strike something of a balance. Commissioner Scott and Dean of Agriculture I. O. Schaub are really the parties plaintiff and defendant and there is some criticism of their inclusion on the committee as being something like putting litigants on the jury. But they grounds. First, I believe that interest rates will eventually advance. Either a business boom or a war would increase money rates and shove down the high price of "Government." Even if the price did hold up, the purchasing power of their income and principal would decline. Buying government bonds, therefore, may be as risky business today as the buying of common stocks in 1928—except for those who want ready funds with which to meet debt taxes.

Registration Embarrassing
The second reason why I question

BRITISH RULERS REACH CANADA

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain, whose crossing of the Atlantic to visit Canada and the United States was delayed by fog and floating ice, here are shown at the rail of the S.S. Empress of Australia as she neared Quebec. They were welcomed there by Canadian Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King.

BLONDIE

SENTIMENT filled the studio air when Betsy Davis, Hollywood film star, who wins awards for her "ambitious woman" characterizations, had a birthday cake. She's 31.

is the financial status of the United States Government. If these bonds had to be registered with the Securities Exchange Commission in the same way that private bonds must be, I doubt if many could be marketed. Such a registration statement would have to show that the United States Government has not even earned operating expenses for 10 years. What corporation could get bankers to pay a premium for its 2 per cent bonds if it had only earned half of its operating expenses for eight consecutive years? Yes, good corporation bonds can be bought to yield 4 per cent. These are obligations of well-run companies. Interest on government bonds is paid out of taxes. Corporation income taxes are the most lucrative form of taxes. These are not collected until the interest on corporation bonds is paid. Hence, no corporation profits—no taxes. Therefore, from a security standpoint, these corporation bonds should be excellent.

Repudiation Or Inflation

Bankers and trustees must realize that federal debt can be reduced only in two ways: (1) By outright repudiation (which means simply canceling the debt) or (2) inflation (which has the same effect in a roundabout way). Because they are buying government bonds, however, these bankers and trustees feel that when repudiation or inflation ultimately comes the public will not blame them.

National Tax Strike?

Some answer, "They do not have to be paid off so long as they do not get any bigger." My retort is that public debts will continue to multiply unless public spending is slashed or taxes boosted. Can federal spending for instance, ever be reduced 50 per cent? Anyone who thinks it can be cut should just review the history of the present session of Congress. It was widely advertised as an economy session. A week ago the Senate passed the largest farm appropriation bill in history by a vote of 61 to 14! Taxes can be increased easier than spending can be reduced. However, if taxes are pushed much higher I fear a national sit-down strike of taxpayers!

Start Jealousy

THE Kensing house was Colonial in style, tastefully furnished. Geoffrey lived here with his mother who, right now, was summing up the day's events. Sprigs; relieved, she had confided to Jocelyn, to be able to use the summer heat as an excuse to open her mountain place and get away from polo and polo ponies. Jocelyn liked Mrs. Kensing. She was a tolerant person with a keen sense of humor.

The concentrated blasts of many horns announced the arrival of the guests. Jocelyn declared, "I must powder my nose!" and left Geoff to welcome the crowd. Descending about ten minutes later she stopped at a turn in the stairway to look over the heads below and see if everyone had come. Bob, Mary, Ruth, Jim, Eleanor. . . . where was Nola?

Discreetly questioning here and there, she discovered no one had seen Nola and no one had brought her. Thorn had been around a few minutes before, she ascertained. An intuitive twinge warned her. Abruptly, she was positive of Nola's whereabouts. Nola had taken advantage of the rush and stayed behind at Seaciff with Tally!

"I must be blind," Lyn thought dully. "Nola is in love with Tally. Thorn. . . . Thorn mustn't be hurt. He mustn't know. I won't let her hurt him this way. I'm going to Seaciff and drag her here if I have to for Thorn's sake. . . ."

Slipping unobserved through the conservatory and thence through a side entrance, she found Geoffrey's car, hid under the wheel and eased it as quietly as possible down the driveway and into the street.

Once on the highway she stepped on the accelerator and covered the three miles to Seaciff in almost as many minutes. But when she

Chapter 18

Nola and Tally
Betsy, with native dignity, her chubby fingers clutching Tex, went straight toward Bob. "Oh, Mister Bob," she trembled into the sudden silence, "can I please have some ice-cream?"

Stopping, he unfastened her fingers from the cat's fur, then picked her up. "No ice-cream," he pronounced. "Back to bed for you, young lady!"

Her cherub face puckered with dismay. "Please, Mister Bob?"

"Isn't she the cutest thing!" Mary Adams exclaimed. "Who is she, Bob?"

"Old Talbot's grandchild."

"Oh, let her have something to eat," Mary urged. "Want a sandwich, honey?"

Betsy nodded tearfully. "Mink," Bob laughed and carried her into the dining room.

So once more that evening one of the Mack family became the center of attraction at Jocelyn's party.

"I think I shall have to choose between hysterics or isolation," Jocelyn informed Geoff, dropping into a chair.

At that precise moment Tex observed his benefactress. Memories of delicious salmon erased his annoyance at being temporarily introduced into a room full of strange people. Jocelyn was not strange and, although Tex did not care particularly for women, she deserved consideration because she allowed him bed and unusual board. And so, without more ado, he sprang into her lap and rubbed his big furry head under her chin.

Geoff stared. He started to reach for the cat. "Here, Lyn, I'll put the beast outdoors."

Jocelyn smothered a giggle, wondering what Geoff's reaction would be if Tex scratched him. At least this was not the time and place to find out.

"Never mind," she said sharply. "He's dangerous. Geoff. He might bite you."

Geoff drew back. "Then why does he like you?" he demanded suspiciously.

"I haven't the slightest notion," she flibbed, "but I'll put him outside."

Just as she reached the door with Tex, Tally and Nola came in. "We're looking for Betsy," Nola smiled. "Oh, there she is, Tally."

And another Mack was gently but firmly removed from the party and taken to bed.

Geoff said, "Lyn, I've had enough of this, haven't you? Let's collect the crowd and take them in to my place for an hour or so."

"You manage it, Geoff. I—I'm not very responsible right now."

With renewed enthusiasm everyone piled into cars and started for town. Geoffrey and Jocelyn arrived far enough ahead of the others to open the house, turn on the lights and the radio.

THE Kensing house was Colonial in style, tastefully furnished. Geoffrey lived here with his mother who, right now, was summing up the day's events. Sprigs; relieved, she had confided to Jocelyn, to be able to use the summer heat as an excuse to open her mountain place and get away from polo and polo ponies. Jocelyn liked Mrs. Kensing. She was a tolerant person with a keen sense of humor.

The concentrated blasts of many horns announced the arrival of the guests. Jocelyn declared, "I must powder my nose!" and left Geoff to welcome the crowd. Descending about ten minutes later she stopped at a turn in the stairway to look over the heads below and see if everyone had come. Bob, Mary, Ruth, Jim, Eleanor. . . . where was Nola?

Discreetly questioning here and there, she discovered no one had seen Nola and no one had brought her. Thorn had been around a few minutes before, she ascertained. An intuitive twinge warned her. Abruptly, she was positive of Nola's whereabouts. Nola had taken advantage of the rush and stayed behind at Seaciff with Tally!

"I must be blind," Lyn thought dully. "Nola is in love with Tally. Thorn. . . . Thorn mustn't be hurt. He mustn't know. I won't let her hurt him this way. I'm going to Seaciff and drag her here if I have to for Thorn's sake. . . ."

Slipping unobserved through the conservatory and thence through a side entrance, she found Geoffrey's car, hid under the wheel and eased it as quietly as possible down the driveway and into the street.

Once on the highway she stepped on the accelerator and covered the three miles to Seaciff in almost as many minutes. But when she pulled in before the four-car garage she saw Thorn's sedan and realized that he, too, had missed Nola and returned.

Thorn, driving to Seaciff, knew stark, unreasoning jealousy. It possessed him to the extent that he scarcely could coordinate his thoughts enough to handle the car. When Nola had insisted on his taking two other couples in his car and letting her follow with Bob, he should have known something was in the wind. He supposed he should have known weeks ago.

His laugh caught up by the night breeze, was harsh and mirthless. Nola, running over on the other side of the fence day and night; Nola, wearing simple clothes; Nola, making a fuss over a disgusting old man and a smudgy-faced child. It all added up to one conclusion!

Nola fancied herself in love with young Talbot Mack.

Having had, always, too much money, she had no respect for it. This was, without doubt, the first time in her life she had come into touch with poverty. Sympathy had blinded her to all sense of proportion. This Mack fellow was a handsome brute—oh, he would add that—but still a boorish fellow with no background and no money, no finer instincts, certainly not the type who could ever make a girl like Nola happy.

It was up to him to save Nola from herself. Save her from making a mess of her life. He could forgive her this foolishness because he comprehended how her mind worked. He had heard her say, "I would not forgive her too easily. He would be firm."

So deciding, calming himself a little, he swerved into the driveway and halted before the garage. He stepped out of the car and introduced into a room full of strange people. Jocelyn was not strange and, although Tex did not care particularly for women, she deserved consideration because she allowed him bed and unusual board. And so, without more ado, he sprang into her lap and rubbed his big furry head under her chin.

Raleigh, May 19.—The State Board of Health's April vital statistics, showing 96 deaths from preventable accidents during that month, also showed clearly why there are so many safety conferences and seminars and programs and the like.

Because the 96 fatalities of last month brought to more than 5,000 the number of victims of preventable accidents in North Carolina since January 1, 1936. The exact number had reached 5,021 at the end of April.

Automobiles, of course, claimed by far the largest number of any single agency, with a total toll of 3,908 in their exclusive right, and 114 others in which a train-automobile accident was the cause of death.

Elsewhere along the line, burns and conflagrations were the most fatal agency, with 790 deaths. There were 468 accidental drownings, 330 deaths in rail accidents, 269 accidental firearms fatalities and 22 killed in air transportation accidents.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Buying in steels, rubbers and motors kept the stock market on a rising plane today with favorites posting gains of a point or so.

There was little pickup in the trade pace and transfers approximated 200,000 shares.

Recently inconsequential stock-and dealings, coupled with balmy weather, tended to keep many commission house customers away from the financial district.

Bonds were narrow, either way.

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds

By Robin Coons

Hollywood.—Practically under our collective nose is Bob Burns being transformed into a character who is not the Uncle Fud's nephew we've been knowing.

The process is under way on a Paramount sound stage, where Robin is portraying "Our Leading Citizen" under direction of Al Santell. Reports from the set, early in production, indicate that Robin found his first brush with an a-disturbing, if not distressing, experience.

Burns plays a substantial, respected leader of the community in an industrial town where Gene Lockhart, as a wealthy, selfishly benevolent autocrat, pursues policies which bring on labor strife. As such a "leading citizen," Burns' hillbilly stuff is "out"—definitely. He is made guff about the temples, and he has a grown daughter, played by the radiant young Susan Heyward in a Warner Brothers "reject," incidentally, who has made good in Paramount's "Beau Geste". In the character, Bob Burns' affinity for mules and such is gone—definitely.
He has no hayseed in his hair, and he has, certainly, no Uncle Fud.

Santell, from the first, has been riding herd on the Burns dialogue.
He has pounded down on the rising inflections of the hill-billy twang, and he has scotched the tendency toward, "Wall, I'll tell yuh." Painful though it was, it has given Burns
a "dignity" the bazooka never did.
However Bob felt about it at first, by now he is reconciled.

"I don't like slapstick," he says,
"but I do like comedy. I'm still gettin' off a crack now and then, but I'm stavin' away from silly stuff like we had in 'I'm from Missouri.'" That business of me and the mule in the steam bath, now, I didn't care much for. None o' that in this picture."

There have been subversive rumors that Paramount, maternally solicitous of its "new Bob Burns," has tried to persuade him to modify the hill-billy Burns of the air lanes.
Bob says, "Nothin' to it."

"I wouldn't change my radio character," he adds, "because after all, it it wasn't for that, I wouldn't be here in pictures. But I wouldn't be radio work apart. That's fun once a week—but radio and pictures, they're two different things. If I was that fellow all the time, run-in 'around sayin' to everybody I met. Now that reminds me of my Uncle Fud,—why, pretty soon I wouldn't have any friends."

Bob puffs solemnly on his pipe,
pursues his theme:

"No-o-o... I'll tell yuh, I want comedy. I hope when I'm about to pass on, I can rise up in my bed and think of a good last word. And that's somethin' like this picture I'm doin'. It's serious business, just like drivin' in a fishin'. Bob still neither's goin' to be hurt by a little good clean fun. No slapstick, remember—just fun."

The bazooka which paved Burns' way into pictures via the air seems to have been laid away in mother's as far as the screen is concerned. Bob has used it in only two of his films.

And you can lay away in moth-balls, too, any picture you might have of Arkansas's homely philosopher a-settin' by a stream bank, a-dreamin' and a-fishin'. Bob still fishes when he acts the time—but he's just bought a 38-foot boat to do it from.

4-H Council Meeting
The monthly 4-H council meeting was held Thursday night at the Woman's Club building. About 150 boys and girls were present. Miss Violet Alexander, home demonstration agent, and A. L. Eagles, assistant farm agent of Beaufort county, were present with ten of their council members. Miss Blanche Strickland, recently appointed home demonstration agent for Tyrrell county, was also a guest. Tilman Chauncey, council president, presided over the meeting. Dr. N. Thomas Einnett gave a short health talk and crowned Elmer Tucker, king of health. Doris Edwards of Chicoc is queen of health, but failed to attend the meeting and was not crowned. A play "Don't Mention Peep" was given by James, Edith Glynn, Audrey and Kirby Allen of Red Oak. Edith Glynn Allen and Elmer Tucker received the free trips to 4-H camp for their project activities. Inez Allen and Tilman Chauncey taught several games they had learned at the recent recreational school. The club members are proud of their new loud speaker set which was used for the first time Thursday night. Several girls' exhibits were shown.

4-H Encampment

The schedule is shaping up very well for the 4-H encampment at White Lake June 12-17. Capable leaders are offering their services and 4-H members are exhibiting every day. Indications are that the encampment will be a big one and the program very interesting.
