SEN. VAN BERG NOT DEFINITIVE ON CANDIDACY

Issues Statement He Will Seek to Retain Senate Post

MAY MAKE RACE FOR PRESIDENCY

Declares He will Meet With Best of Ability Any Subsequent Or Broader Responsibilities

Washington, May 29. (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced today he would seek re-election to the Senate in 1940, but added "if there are subsequent responsibilities of a broader nature, I shall meet them to the best of my ability."

Vandenberg's statement was made in a letter replying to a request from Michigan Republican officials that he be drafted for the party's presidential nomination next year.

Vandenberg's Senate term expires in 1941 and thus he would have to choose between seeking re-election to the Senate and running for the presidency.

Vandenberg's statement today said the next Republican convention must first set down clean-cut, courageous principles which promise to save the American system of free enterprise under the renewed spirit of constitutional democracy and to restore prosperity for our whole people under a government restored to solvency.

"Then it should fit its nomination to its principles," the senator said.

He added that the convention should drive "to create a common ground upon which all like-thinkers may unite to produce an administration for all Americans."

Nannie Parden, 60 days, suspended upon payment of $5 and costs; Roy L. Harris, failing to stop and render assistance after a highway wreck, $15 for use of Lamb, Tyson, procuring witnesses, and costs, with a 30-day suspended sentence.

Benefits Allowed On Part Time Job

Raleigh, May 29.—North Carolina employers who, because of seasonal let-up in usual operations, are asked to communicate with local Employment Service offices when they cut down to part time work, in order that the workers may be registered and may file claims for partial benefits.

This cooperation is asked by Chairman Charles G. Powell, of the Unemployment Compensation Commission, to allow part time workers to draw partial unemployment benefits to supplement their reduced incomes.

When a mill or plant decides to go on short time, the employer should notify the nearest Employment Service office, so there will be no unnecessary delay in processing the claims and paying of partial benefits due such workers.

GIRL AIDS IN CAPTURE OF INSANE CONVICT

Chicago police credited Nora Trillett (left), 22-year-old dice game girl, with aiding in the capture of Frank Haines, escaped insane convict, in a tavern at Chicago. When he brandished a pistol, she grabbed his legs and hung on until he was disarmed. Haines, one of five men who bolted from the Lima, Ohio, hospital for the criminally insane last New Year's Day, is shown leaving a hospital in custody of a policeman. Hospital treatment was required for injuries inflicted by tavern patrons.

Memorial Day Services Set For Victims Of Sub

Portsmouth, N. H., May 29.—(AP)—While a crew of 60 divers continued their laborious job of preparing the sunken submarine Squalus for its trip from a watery grave, Comdr. A. E. Stone, navy chaplain, announced today that special Memorial Day services for the 26 victims would be held tomorrow.

After the regular Decoration Day exercises, held annually, the 33 survivors and relatives of the Squalus dead will assemble in the Portsmouth navy yard auditorium.

Music, the singing of hymns, special prayers and benediction will be included in the service.

Commander Stone said an officer was being set up in his quarters in conjunction with the Red Cross so that relatives of the drowned men might file claims against the government for burial expenses and pensions. Five or six widows already have filed claims.

Relatives in distant cities, Stone said, might file their claims with their local Red Cross office.

Salvage went on apace today while officials studied written reports of the survivors on the fatal dive.

Asserting that each one of the men rescued with the escape bill had written his story of the tragedy, Lieut.-Comdr. John Longstaff said "The purpose of these written statements is to get a permanent record of the men's version of the disaster early, before minor events are forgotten."

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 29.—Official North Carolina will move to the World's Fair grounds in New York on June 19, determined to make a splash loud enough to be heard by even the most blasé Yankee or foot-sore visitor.

It will be North Carolina Day at the Flushing Flats exposition, so Governor Clyde R. Hoey, his staff, his council of state and his aides will lead a delegation of Tar Heels expected to number at least 5,000.

Bill Fenner, chairman of the North Carolina World's Fair commission, has been studying the situation carefully and has spent about three weeks in the Big City operating with Coleman W. Roberts, executive director of the state's exhibit, in preparing several novelties which should attract more than ordinary interest.

The North Carolina parade, in which will march at least five Tar Heel bands, will proceed from Petticoat Land to the Court of Peace. Here ceremonies in honor of the state will be held, with Mr. Fenner presiding. There will be music by the Lenoir and Charlotte high school bands, and selections by the Westminster choir, singing music from Roanoke Island's "Lost Colony." Governor Hoey will be introduced and saluted by the bands.

Later the governor and his party will pay an official visit of inspection to the Court of States and the North Carolina exhibit.

Advocate Taking Up Changes in Neutrality Law

Washington, May 29.—(AP)—Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) said today he thought a majority of the Senate Foreign Relations committee would favor Secretary Hull's proposals for overhauling the existing neutrality act.

Among other things, Hull proposed Saturday that the existing arms embargo provisions be repealed and that American ships be prohibited from traveling into combat areas during war time.

Criticism of Hull's proposals also developed on Capitol Hill and many legislators expressed belief that a Senate showdown on neutrality legislation might be deferred until next year.

Rep. Bloom (D-N.Y.) has embodied proposals in a bill, but some members said that even if the House passes it, prolonged Senate debate would run the session too far into the summer.

Pittman said he thought Hull's statement substantially endorsed his own measure to eliminate the present arms embargo. He said that the secretary by making his position known, had substantially increased the prospect of enacting neutrality legislation at this session.

Pittman said that members of his committee wanted to know if any legislation approved would be accepted by President Roosevelt. He added that Hull's statement had given assurances that the chief executive would not veto such a program as that outlined by the State Department chief.

The biggest argument was over whether the secretary's foremost suggestion, repeal of the embargo on arms shipments to warring nations, Senator George (D-Ga.) said it was "certain to meet with such stubborn opposition in the Senate as to foreclose action within the next 60 days."

Only four marriage licenses were issued at the offices of the Pitt county register of deeds during the past week, three going to white couples and one to Negroes.

Colored: Eddie Howard and Hattie Gray of Bethel.

Party Of Greenville Men Safe At Englehard After Being Missing 24 Hours

Had Been Unreported Since Leaving Hatteras Sunday

PARTY RESCUED BY COAST GUARD

Finding of Mattress In Pamlico Sound Had Caused Wave of Anxiety Throughout City

Seven prominent Greenville men and one each from Bethel, Belhaven and Florida, reached Englehard shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon, after having been unreported in the Pamlico sound since they left Hatteras at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Those in the party were J. H. Waldrop, cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company; Howard Moye, trust officer of the bank; E. C. Hollar, H. J. McGinnis and J. R. Gullede of East Carolina Teachers College faculty; Dr. W. I. Wooten, head of Pitt General Hospital; G. J. Woodward, official of the local branch of the Imperial Tobacco Company; a brother of Mr. Woodward from New Smyrna, Fla.; J. A. Staton of Bethel and Elijah Edwards, cashier of the Belhaven branch of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company.

The party reached Englehard after a thorough search had been undertaken by Coast Guard boats and naval planes out of Norfolk, Va. Details of their harrowing experience and apparently narrow escape were not available here this afternoon. Members of the party merely telephoned here immediately upon arrival in Englehard, stating that they were rescued by a Coast Guard cutter.

It was felt this morning that, in crossing the sound, the boat had run aground and that rescue would be effected by searching parties within a short while. Anxiety grew tense, however, this afternoon following the report that a mail boat plying between Hatteras and Englehard had picked up a mattress said to have been similar to those used on the missing fishing craft.

The boat, The Dixie, was owned by W. G. Ruark of Belhaven. It was 54 feet long.

Newsman Enjoy Trip On State-Owned Boat

A group of Eastern Carolina newspaper men, guests of D. J. Whichard, Jr., at his Atlantic Beach cottage, were treated to a ride on The Hatteras, one of the State Department's patrol boats, Sunday.

Arrangements for the trip to Cape Lookout and back were made by H. B. Utley, formerly of Greenville, but now publisher of the Morehead City Twin-City Times.

Capt. Glenn Willis of The Hatteras took the newsmen out. Other members of the crew were Leonard Whitehurst and Hully Willis. The boat trip was one of the most enjoyable features of the week-end for the newsmen.

Neal, chairman of the group, said that the purpose of the meeting was to appoint chairman of the finance and publicity committees of the organization. Plans also were discussed in regard to arranging the formal opening of the gallery.

Gene Ervin, state director of the federal art project, was here from Chapel Hill to meet with the executive board.

Renovation of the building started last Wednesday. Special walls are being installed in order to show exhibitions to the best advantage. The gallery will be open to the public in the near future.

Miner Uninjured After Being Trapped 55 Hours

Shenandoah, Pa., May 29.—(AP) Laughing and joking with gestures, Robert Galligan, 38-year-old anthracite miner, was dug out of a coal hole early today, apparently uninjured after 55 hours of imprisonment under tons of rock and dirt.

Rescuers who had toiled unceasingly first with a steam shovel and then with pick and shovel, reached Galligan at 12:55 a. m. (E. S. T.). Hoisted up a 75-foot deep shaft, Galligan greeted fellow miners on the surface with "Gimme a cigarette and let me sit down a while."

He was rushed to a hospital, where physicians said he was suffering slightly from shock.

A sudden slide of rock trapped the miner at 10 a. m. (E. S. T.), Friday.

North Carolina Counties Drive For Better Jails

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 29.—Though crime does not appear to be on the increase in North Carolina there is apparent in many counties of the state a campaign for better, if not bigger, jails, according to information at the welfare department here.

For instance, in Jones and Hyde counties new jails are about complete, and with the final hammer strokes and last laying of a brick on them there will be great rejoicing in the welfare department.

"It can safely be said that the old Jones and Hyde county jails were the very worst in North Carolina," said R. Eugene Brown of the department. "We are very much pleased at the action of these counties in erecting new jails."

Three other counties are now constructing new calaboses — LeNoir, Anson and Richmond — while in Madison the present jail has been condemned and a new one will have to be built in the near future.

BAR OFFICIAL ASKS REMOVAL OF DOUBLE TAX

George M. Morris Heard by Ways and Means Committee

RECENT DECISION OF COURT CITED

Witness Asserts That Levy Legal Both on Profits to Absorbed Company and Stockholders

Washington, May 29.—(AP)—George M. Morris of the American Bar Association asked the House Ways and Means committee today to eliminate what he termed double taxation on the profits of business reorganizations.

Morris, chairman of the association's finance committee, testified that as a result of a recent Supreme court decision the commissioner of internal revenue may levy a tax on the profits accruing both to the absorbed company and to that company's stockholders in a merger.

Morris was the first non-official witness to testify before the committee on tax revision. It opened hearings Saturday to hear Secretary Morgenthau indicate that the administration, among other things, was willing that tax "irritants" be removed.

Speculation on whether levies on both the companies and the stockholders would not diminish the number of reorganizations and therefore decrease the total government tax return from mergers, he said: "The more onerous it is to get a marriage license, the fewer legal marriages you have."

Mitchell Carroll of New York, counsel for the National Foreign Trade Council, Inc., asked the committee to remove what he called "indirect restrictions" on corporations operating in foreign trade. One such restriction, he asserted, resulted from the undistributed profits tax and prevented domestic concerns from obtaining full credit for the taxes they must pay foreign governments.

Seeks Third Lock For Panama Canal

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP) After passing legislation today authorizing a third set of locks for the Panama Canal costing $277,000,000, the Senate reconsidered its action and agreed to take up the measure again on Wednesday.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Clark (D-Mo.), provides that the initial appropriation for the work may not exceed $15,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The committee on inter-oceanic canals reported that a third set of locks in the canal was not immediately necessary from a commercial standpoint but that the improvement now can be justified as a matter of prudent expenditure for the canal as a commercial enterprise.

From the standpoint of national defense, the committee added, the extra lock will make "our present great artery safe from attack for many years to come."

Investigating Theft Of Meat and Chicken

Constable J. Gus Stokes today was conducting an investigation into the theft Saturday night of a quantity of chickens and hams from A. L. Morris of Belvoir township.

The constable said he understood that 12 or 15 hams and an undetermined number of chickens were taken. He added that 44 pounds of chickens had been found at a store in the neighborhood. He was attempting to check up on who sold the chickens.

With four of its regulars out of the lineup, the Greenies yesterday afternoon scored a 5-1 victory over the New Bern Bears after losing to the Craven county boys Saturday 3-1.

Gracie Allen is the latest Greenville man to join the temporarily injured list. He was injured in New Bern Saturday night when Red front of Harper.

Others on the sick list are Catcher Vincent Smith, Second Baseman Red Christopher and Center Fielder Ralph Simpson. Yesterday's victory put the Greenies back on top after the Williamston Martins had replaced them in that position by scoring a double victory over Tarboro. The Serpents dropped the Martins twice yesterday, however.

Spence held New Bern to six hits as his mates were 10 safeties to account for half as many runs.

Tarboro eaked out two victories over Williamston yesterday, each by one run margins and was dropped back to second place after going ahead of Greenville with Saturday's win. The Serpents won the first contest 4-3 and the second 1-0.

Kinston meanwhile was scoring a 12-1 victory over Wilson and Goldsboro routed Snow Hill 14-6.

In Saturday's games Williamston took a double header from Tarboro. Snow Hill won over Goldsboro 8-7 and Wilson beat Kinston 7-1, making each club break even on their week-end games.

THE TWO MULES

The fable of the two mules that went hungry and exhausted as long as they attempted to pull in opposite directions, but later attained their desired goals when they finally decided to pull together, is indeed an old story, but one from which we can learn and gain much if we put it into practice.

As you will note from the accompanying drawing, the two mules closely tied together, each spied a different pile of hay and decided each to go his own way to the respective piles. Immediately the rope that tied them together tightened and neither mule could reach the hay. After much stretching, bucking and kicking the mules found themselves literally at the end of their rope but no nearer their desired goals, so they immediately put their heads together and decided that they were truly "Jackasses" to continue this exhaustive practice of pulling against each other and accomplishing nothing. It was then and there that they decided that co-operation was necessary if they were to enjoy the sumptuous meal offered by the two piles of hay, so jointly they walked to one pile, devoured it, and then they enjoyed the second pile and went their way firmly convinced that working together was the best way to achieve their goals.

With efforts being put forth at this time to bring about a closer co-operation between all the people of our city in the way of boosting our tobacco market, our college and our other businesses and industries, we feel that this fable of the two mules is most timely. Like the two mules, all our businesses and industries are allied and tied together, and

The Rosewood Cabinet
THE casts were removed from old Mack's legs on the fifteenth of October and he was allowed to hobble about a short while each day with the support of crutches. The doctor expressed wonder at the swiftness with which his bones had knit, but Gramp insisted: "Fiddlesticks! I'm tough and jest in the prime o' life! I got years ahead o' me to pester folks and git em in trouble and out of it."

However, now that he was more self-sufficient, Jocelyn could think of no excuse to postpone her wedding again. Not that she really wished to, she reflected, but she hated to leave Seaciff torn up as it was, and all the dear familiar things she had always known. Nevertheless, Geoffrey was impatient, and she felt further delay would be most unfair to him.

The nights and mornings now were nippy and only in the middle of the day could she dive into the surf or the swimming pool. This particular day, coming out from a rigorous ten lengths in the pool, she saw Tally approaching her, a frown on his face.

Without preface he said: "I promised you long ago to give you first chance to buy that rosewood cabinet if I had to sell. Well, it has to be sold."

"Why?" she asked, pulling the rubber cap from her head and shaking out her hair. "Isn't your farm making money?"

"Yes, I did have a small savings account but it went for the doctor's bill. Now the semi-annual taxes are due on this place and I must pay them. Your brother paid the first half last spring; now it's my turn and the only way I can raise enough money is on that cabinet. This antique dealer offered me five hundred."

Jocelyn picked up a thick Turkish towel and began wiping the water from her face and arms. Her legs felt cold. Why did Tally always approach her and speak to her as if he had a chip on his shoulder and hoped and expected she would knock it off?

"I'll ask Thorn for the money as soon as he comes home," she promised. "He hasn't given me my allowance yet this month and I need it. I—I have a lot of clothes to buy for my—my marriage."

Tally stiffened. "At least you'll never have to work for a living. It might have done you some good; still, you might have found out you couldn't take it."

"Do you have to be insulting?" "I didn't mean it that way. Sorry, I'll call for the money tonight."

"Don't bother," she called after his retreating back. "I'll bring it over when I come to see your grandfather."

She went slowly into the house and up to her room. She was so lonely these days. She missed Bob terribly. She had come to dread the ritual of dinner because she had to face Thorn across the long empty expanse of table. Thorn had changed so since Nola's departure. He had certainly become a person of paradoxical moods. He was, by turn, morose or genial; silent or over-talkative. When she had inquired as to his sudden interest in Gramp he had put her off with an evasive answer.

'Wild-Cat Scheme'
LIFE, which up until the Mack's advent, had flowed serenely and peacefully, had now become complicated and unpredictable. Even her own mind and emotions were tangled up in disturbing complexities.

Hearing Thorn go into his room, she drew on a robe and knocked on his door. His appearance seemed to startle him. He looked as if his clothes were full of pins sticking into him.

"Thorn, what on earth is the matter with you?" she demanded. "You're as jittery and jumpy as a racehorse."

"Oh, it's nothing. Nerves, I guess. I'll take a run in to the doctor's tomorrow and have him take a look at me."

She told him about the taxes and the rosewood cabinet, finishing: "So be a darling and write me a check for five hundred, will you? And when you're at it give me my allowance. You might spare a check or so extra for clothes because I'll be driving to San Francisco in the next day or so."

Thorn slumped into a chair as if his legs had suddenly refused to support him. He moistened his dry lips with the tip of his tongue.

"Lyn—the truth is—I can't give you any money at all. Not a penny. You see I—I have invested our money. I expect to triple it any day now."

"You mean you put every cent of our inheritance into some wild-cat scheme?" "It isn't wild-cat," he defended.

unless we are willing to go hand in hand in our efforts for a greater Greenville we cannot accomplish even our own individual goals.

Johnstown Sees End of Flood Peril

On 50th Anniversary of Catastrophe

50 YEARS AGO—A typical scene in Johnstown, Pa., after the flood disaster, May 31, 1889.

By CHARLES FRY
Johnstown, Pa., May 29—(AP)—On Memorial Day, in 1889, torrential rains fell in the Conemaugh Valley district. But the boys in Blue gathered throughout the valley, anyway, to honor their dead comrades-in-arms.

The next day, Johnstown, a steel and coal town of 30,000, awoke with a sense of uneasiness. Rain still poured in the valley. That was just 50 years ago, May 31.

There had been a cloudburst over the mountain watersheds during the night. South Fork Dam, which backed up a lake three miles long, began to rise at the rate of a foot an hour. Rumors that the dam was unsafe began to spread. Some people believed them and fled, but most didn't.

Water Roars 18 Miles
By mid-afternoon flood waters of the Conemaugh and Stony Creek rivers were filling first floors of many houses. The second floors of some began to fill. People were taking refuge on roofs. Many of the houses were flimsy, frame structures built in the flats along the river by the then famous Cambria Iron Works for some of its 4,000 workmen.

Then catastrophe let loose. In the watersheds 18 miles from Johnstown up the narrow V-shaped Conemaugh Valley the dam burst with "sounds like tremendous and ceaseless peals of thunder."

When it was over, 2,209 persons had lost their lives in one of the nation's worst peacetime disasters. Richard Davis, who saw the flood engulf, crush or sweep aside all before it, said:

"I cannot describe the mad rush. At first it looked like dust. I could see houses going down before it like child's blocks in a row. As it came nearer I could see houses totter for a moment, then rise and the next moment be crushed like egg shells."

One by one villages and towns down the valley were destroyed, wholly or in part—first South Fork, then Mineral point, Conemaugh, Woodvale, Johnstown and its suburbs Cambria City and Conemaugh borough.

Train Passengers Saved
William Henry Smith, then general manager of The Associated Press, was on a train that reached the Conemaugh Valley before the dam broke. Because a bridge had been reported out, the train was shunted onto a siding above Conemaugh Borough.

When the cry came that the dam had broken, the passengers fled up a mountainside "in a race for life." Smith reported:

"Some witnesses told of seeing a group of 65 houses scooped from their foundations as if by a scythe. Smith saw the flood advance on the railroad roundhouse.

There was an ominous crash, and the locomotives and roundhouse disappeared. A hundred houses were swept away in a few minutes," Smith said.

A Worse Horror
At Johnstown, a new horror was added to the desolation. Over the river was a stone railroad bridge. As the flood waters swirled under it shattered houses and all sorts of debris caught against the abutments and jammed up.

Soon there was a great pile of splintered wood. Throughout the jagged heap uncounted people, who had been swept along with the flood were struggling to get clear.

Suddenly the wreckage burst into flames; scores of people died screaming in the furnace; those who could struggle clear could only leap into the raging flood. Most of them drowned.

In Johnstown's Grandview cemetery there remains a famous plot, the ground that holds the bodies of 777 victims of that flood of 50 years ago who never were identified.

Another Flood
The stone bridge still stands. It withstood another flood when, in 1936, the Stony Creek and Conemaugh rivers overflowed into the business district of Johnstown, covering some areas to a depth of 14 feet. But that flood, though serious, was not comparable to the 1889 disaster because there was no breaking dam.

Can Johnstown have another flood? River experts think it's possible, although the peril should be removed in a few more years. Army engineers are busy on a flood control project that is expected to cost some $7,000,000. They are enlarging and deepening the river channels so that they will be able to carry off flood waters harmlessly.

$7,000,000 IN BATTLE ON JOHNSTOWN FLOODS
Washington, May 29—(AP)—Army engineers are working on a flood control project in the Johnstown, Pa., district, scene of one of the nation's greatest flood disasters 50 years ago May 31. It's expected to be finished within two years and to cost something more than $7,000,000. Already, the War Department has allotted nearly $3,000,000 to the project; $2,500,000 more is expected to be assigned to it for the 1943 fiscal year.

The channel of the Conemaugh river and its tributaries is being widened and deepened. The new channel is expected to reduce the river stage 12 to 14 feet, enough, engineers think to carry off any flood arising from natural causes. The channel sides are being lined with concrete, asphalt or rock to smooth the flow and prevent scarring away of banks. Obstructions such as bridges are being removed or raised.

opinion. Justice A. A. F. Seawell goes philosopher and meditates after this fashion.
"What is truth? Two thousand years ago this question probed the heart of a dramatic and tragic occasion. Now, as then, religion, mystery, philosophy, science, law have no present answer. Truth is the objective, but judicial procedure frankly admits the impossibility of arriving at absolute truth in every controversy."
Raleigh had a visit the other day from a son of Tennessee's most famed family—the Taylors. He was Robert L. Taylor, son of A. H. Taylor who lost the Tennessee governorship to his own brother, Bob, after the War of the Roses, a campaign in which the pair rode over the state together in a buggy.
Young Bob follows the politics of his uncle of the same name rather than of his dad. He is a genuine Democrat.
Caught: He wanted to be registered with the North Carolina Employment Service because he had just been released from his job, along with numerous others. The office manager who interviewed him was pinch-hitting for the regular interviewer, off for the day.
Registrant seemed unusually familiar with the routine. Finally came the listing of an employment record, which brought the revelation that he was formerly senior inter-

the turbulent waters of the Atlantic to save again an ungrateful people for the so-called democracy of Europe."
That sort of thing, while no end patriotic, is not considered by the diplomats as exactly the right thing to say while the king is laying a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. They reassure themselves with the recollection that a. J. Reynolds is a gentleman of the South where hospitality is unmeasured.

Anything Might Happen
Royal visits present something of a diplomatic problem in any event. It is like risking everything on one throw of the dice. If all goes well, international friendship and good will improve. If incidents arise to embarrass one side or the other, everything is lost and it takes years of diligent diplomacy to smooth the ruffles.

To date, this country has had fair success in its department toward foreign figures. Before United States entry into the World war, when there was a vast amount of pro-German sentiment in this country, several British and French leaders visited this country, spoke before Congress and made other efforts to build up American support for their side. Congress and the general public behaved like debutantes fresh from finishing school.

As a matter of fact, it is understood here that Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, was in England recently he cautioned the king to be prepared for anything that might happen where 130,000,000 people, 96 senators and 435 representatives have freedom of speech and, moreover, feel free to exercise it.

Stage Nicely Set
Of course Washington diplomacy honestly expects everything will go along without much ado. A few diplomatic and congressional housewives failed to get garden party invitations. That is scarcely an

DEFENDING champion, Floyd Roberts, who won last year, is a likely contestant for the Indianapolis race May 30.

POLE POSITION in starting lineup for 500-mile classic was won by Jimmy Snyder; he qualified at 130.198 m.p.h.

'TRY AGAIN' is motto of Dallas-born Elbert "Babe" Stapp, who first competed in 1927, finished 6th in 1938.

SEARCH FOR A NEW SPEED KING among auto racers will be renewed at Indianapolis May 30, when the 27th annual 500-mile race will be staged with Ted Horn (above) of Los Angeles, Cal., among the drivers. Horn qualified with 127.986 miles per hour around the famous track. The front-drive eight, above, was entered in the race by Mike Boyle, Chicago sportsman.

FOURTH WIN is goal of Louis Meyer, Californian who's won Indianapolis race three times. He qualified at 125.5.
