DR. McDONALD REVIEWS N. C. TAX POLICIES

Points To "Amazing Increase" In Recent Years

HOLDS SCHOOLS ARE NEGLECTED

Former Legislator Delivers Principal Address At State Merchants Meeting

Durham, June 20.—(AP)

Dr. Ralph McDonald, former legislator, told the North Carolina Merchants Association today that there had been "an amazing increase in the total of local and state taxes" in recent years, accompanied by a "neglect of the public schools."

McDonald, who barely failed in his bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1936, discussed recent trends in taxation in North Carolina.

He noted that both "favorable and unfavorable trends have characterized the tax policies of the state." Then he discussed each side.

"The most destructive developments within the past decade," he said, "have been the movements to shift the burden of taxation from wealth to need through consumer taxes, and the tragic neglect of public education which declined in total expenditures from about $39,620,000 in 1929-30 to about $38,120,000 in 1937-38, despite a startling increase in the total of local and state taxation from a peak of $102,131,265 in the happy days of 1929-30 to an unbelievable total of $111,260,328 in 1937-38."

"Thus, while a total load of taxation in North Carolina, exclusive of Social Security and other taxes for new funded New Deal purposes, has increased approximately $9,000,000 a year, the total expended for the public schools has actually declined $1,500,000."

McDonald said he found five trends to classify as favorable, including the shift of the tax burden from local units to the state so that in 1937-38 the state levied 64 and a half per cent of the total, or about $68,600,000, compared with 33 and two-tenths per cent of the 1928-29 total, or about $32,700,000.

Tension Tightens In Foreign Area Of Chinese City

Chinese Employed In Concession Quit Jobs Under Jap Threats; United States Representations Studied

Tientsin, June 20.—(AP)

Chinese employees of vital British concession services began quitting their jobs today under threats of death to their families in a tightening of the Japanese blockade amid warnings against third power participations and any British reprisals.

Chinese who work for concession water, electric, police and other departments received letters saying their relatives would be killed unless they resigned. Those who live outside the concession in the Japanese-controlled area were resigning.

British authorities expressed the opinion that the services could be maintained by Chinese whose families live inside the British and French concessions which Japanese yesterday isolated from the rest of the city by high voltage wires in reinforcement of the blockade.

The source of threatening letters was not disclosed officially, but Chinese and foreigners alike were certain they were dispatched by the Japanese military after a census of families of Chinese employees of the concession who were living outside its boundaries.

Tokyo, June 20.—(AP)

The Japanese government today studied new representations by the United States against Japanese military action in foreign areas of China.

Eugene Dooman, United States charge d'affaires, in a call upon S. Yoshizawa, head of the American section of the foreign office, yesterday specifically protested against Japanese naval blockade of Kulangsu, the international settlement at Amoy, an authoritative informant disclosed.

Dooman also discussed the Tientsin situation. (A Japanese naval party entered Kulangsu, an island, May 12. British, French and American patrols landed there May 17 to protect the interests of their nationals. Japanese demands for control of the Kulangsu municipal council were rejected. The matter has not yet been settled and June 15 Japanese warships began blockading Kulangsu.)

Japanese military and diplomatic officials, meanwhile, laid reports of the crisis at Tientsin before the emperor.

CHECKS BEING SENT TO PITT

County Agent Received $278,579.02 In Soil Payments

A batch of checks valued at $2,200, representing 20 applications and approximately 100 payees for benefits payments for participation in the 1938 agricultural conservation program, arrived today at the office of County Agent R. R. Bennett for distribution to farmers of the county.

Bennett said that $278,579.02, representing 5,287 payees and 1,960 applications, has already been distributed to farmers of the county who participated in the federal conservation program during 1938.

It was explained that checks already received represent about 75 or 80 per cent of the total benefit payments farmers of Pitt county were slated to derive from the soil program. The remaining 20 or 25 per cent of the checks are expected to arrive and be distributed in the near future.

With today's checks, the amount of money received was elevated to $278,579.02. These benefit payments represent 5,307 payees and 2,002 applications. Pitt county is one of the major counties of North Carolina in benefit payments, having received $586,000 in 1937 to lead the state.

During 1938, farmers of Pitt county failed to take advantage of the possible benefit payments, and will receive only $373,000 under the program. The 1938 figure for Pitt county is much below other counties of the state, in that other counties increased their possible payment.

WHAT IT MEANS: Farm Bill Dynamite

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer) Washington.—While you're following more sensational headlines, don't forget that Congress is struggling with a billion and a quarter dollars worth of farm legislation, and gradually working up courage to bring it out into the open.

No innocuous ball of legislative yarn is the farm bill for 1940. It contains political nitroglycerin ripe for explosion in the face of any one of the 400-odd congressmen who go before the voters a year hence. And they know it!

PLAYTHING OF DEADLY TORNADO

Along with killing 10 persons and injuring more than 60, a devastating tornado played strange pranks in the vicinity of Anoka, Minn. For example, Richard Karstad, a youth visiting in the community, sought refuge in an automobile. The wind sailed the car through the air for a distance and crashed it against a tree. The automobile was wrecked, as this picture shows, but young Karstad escaped with his life. Note the tree stripped of its branches with debris of the storm clinging to broken limbs.

Doctor Admits Writing Morphine Prescriptions

Contends, However, Given To Relieve Suffering

Elizabeth City, June 20.—(AP)—Counsel for Dr. Howard Combs today admitted that the physician wrote thousands of prescriptions for morphine, offered by District Attorney J. H. Manning as evidence against the doctor.

The indictment charged Dr. Combs with disposing of 61,000 half-grain tablets of morphine over a three-year period.

William Atkinson, agent for the Bureau of Narcotics, gave a lengthy recital of patients for which he said Dr. Combs admitted prescribing morphine, the total amount prescribed over the three-year period and the residence of each patient.

Atkinson said Combs told him many of the patients were "transients."

District Attorney Manning planned to offer this afternoon the expert testimony of Dr. J. W. Ashby, superintendent of the State Hospital in Raleigh, Dr. J. W. Vernon of the Broad Oaks Hospital at Morganton, and others.

Atkinson followed two men and three women to the stand this morning, who described themselves as "drug addicts," and testified Dr. Combs prescribed morphine for them.

John B. and P. W. McMullan, attorneys for Dr. Combs, admitted that the physician wrote the hundreds of prescriptions tendered as evidence and contended that they were given in good faith to relieve suffering.

Meanwhile, Judge C. C. Wyche of Spartanburg, S. C., ordered postponement until fall of the trial of S. G. Eberhardt, druggist here, on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

Judge I. M. Meekins, will pre- (Continued on page two).

U. S. PROTESTS NEW BOMBINGS BY JAP FORCES

American Property In China Is Still Molested

MIGHT PUBLISH EXCHANGE NOTES

Roosevelt Reported Pleased With Pendergast Political Machine 'Clean-up'

Washington, June 20.—(AP)

Secretary Hull said today the American charge d'affaires at Tokyo had protested Japan's continued bombing of American properties in China.

Eugene Dooman called on the Japanese foreign minister on instructions from the State Department. Hull said and, in addition to making representations against the bombings, also sought to obtain permission to publish the recent exchange of notes between the United States and Japan on the subject.

The secretary of state explained it was customary to obtain the assent of a foreign government for publication of any of its documents. The Japanese assent has not yet been obtained.

Other developments. Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri, said after a White House call President Roosevelt was "very much pleased" with the "clean-up" in Kansas City and the smashing of the T. J. Pendergast political machine.

Stark told reporters that he and Mrs. Roosevelt had discussed some matters on which he could not comment.

John Gall, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, testified the National Labor Relations Board had made it impossible for industrial employers to discipline union employees.

"It doesn't matter what the man was discharged for if the board can find there was a union activity involved, whether it was a wrong or right activity," Gall testified before the Senate Labor committee.

The Senate Commerce committee recommended Senate passage of a bill authorizing $407,855,000 of rivers and harbors projects; $324,700,500 more than the House approved recently.

Chairman Bailey (D.-N.C.) told reporters he heard only a couple of "noes" in the voice vote by which the committee sent the measure to the Senate.

The Negroes were tried in Recorder's court on that charge in connection with an attack last February 4 on Mayor Hill and Kirby Wells.

Tom Cooper's Campaign Already Well Under Way

By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, June 20.—Wilmington's Mayor Thomas E. Cooper never announced verbally for Governor—he's already running full tilt and without even pretense of denial or keeping the fact in any sort of doubt.

This week, for instance, he is scheduled to visit Charlotte on a frankly-admitted political fence building mission, according to news dispatches from the Mecklenburg capital.

Coming on top of the publicity blurb given him the other day in the Raleigh News and Observer, with picture and everything, Tom might just as well shout it out from the house tops.

Reaction to the Raleigh publicity, however, was decidedly unfavorable to Tom. In this neck of the woods it appears practically the unanimous opinion that the energetic Mr. Cooper might just as well stay home, thereby saving himself effort and his supporters money, if his stand on the sales tax was correctly stated by the Raleigh paper.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Closs

Hollywood. — Hollywood always has an actor's actor. Hollywood makes excuses to go to the stage where that actor — or actress — is working, just to watch.

Right now, it's Bette Davis, just as a few years ago it was Helen Hayes. It might still be Helen Hayes if she were still around, or it might be Garbo, even now, if Garbo wasn't so dead-set on being alone.

When Bette Davis puts on her unbecoming make-up for "Elizabeth and Essex," the players who aren't otherwise engaged on their own pictures don't wait for an invitation to stand on the sidelines and admire. They're making much of the fact that Bette, who can be pretty attractive when she wants to, is tackling an assignment in which she must necessarily be homely and, worse, old. Her Elizabeth is about 40 to the Errol Flynn Essex's 30-odd years. This isn't history (Liz was practically ancient when she fell for Essex's charm and his head subsequently fell for her) but it's close enough for the movies—and Bette's queen still is homely.

Here's the full-dress navy board at Portsmouth, N. H., at the opening of its investigation of the sinking of the submarine Squalus, May 23, with the loss of 26 lives. Left to right: Capt. William E. The fact that she is allowed to play this role is, of course, merely another admission on the part of the bosses that she is an "immortal" as far as screen immortality can go.

This is not, as a rule, very far. Immortality in the films today isn't the cinch it once was. Hollywood very loosely catalogues as a "Screen Immortal" anybody who has enjoyed great popularity over a fairly extended period. Some of these are Theda Bara, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, Valentino, Marie Dressler, Will Rogers, Chaplin. But the trouble with screen immortality is that the evidence is canned. Very frequently, as now, it is uncanned for revival exhibitions, either commercially or for students and art groups. And "immortality" more frequently than otherwise, bites the dust. The Theda Bara stuff, which once set the nation's pulse to quick-time, is comic today. Valentino, the greatest screen lover, if you believe the records and the old-timers, is just a good-looking Latin surrounded by the comical, inept fripperies and bad taste of an adolescent art medium. Fairbanks seems a jumping jitterbug with a toothy smile, and Pickford is just—Pickford.

Speaking of Bernhardt reminds one that the stage has always been kinder in this "immortality" business. Bernhardt made a movie or two, one of them as the same Queen Elizabeth now challenging Bette Davis. Her lasting fame, happily, derives from legends of her greatness rather than from the canned record of her work.

Bette, who I suspect is far too busy and intelligent to be concerned with "immortality" as yet, had better not look at Bernhardt in "Queen Elizabeth." It would give her some band moments, maybe, wondering how queer her own "Elizabeth and Essex" will look to movie fans—if there are any left—a quarter of a century hence.

DATE OMITTED FROM N. C. SEAL

Mecklenburg Freedom Not Shown On Markers

By HENRY AVERELL. Raleigh, June 20. — Those good Mecklenburgers who have been planning a new Revolution and March on Raleigh should hesitate before starting anything rash.

Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the State Historical Commission, today said that the omission of "May 20, 1775" from the Great Seal of North Carolina as depicted on some 236 highway markers all over North Carolina was purely for "technical reasons." The omission is not to be taken, he said, as an indication that the Commission is definitely of the opinion that there was no Mecklenburg Declaration on that date.

Considerable concern had been expressed in some quarters upon discovery recently that the much-controverted date does not appear on the Great Seal on any of the markers, although by legislative fiat it is a component part of the official Great Seal.

Dr. Crittenden said that back in 1935 it was decided that it would add legibility of the markers if the smaller lettering which appears on the Great Seal were omitted. In accord with that decision, he said not only have the words "May 20, 1775" been left off; but there has also been omitted the word "Constitution" which the official description of the Great Seal demands.

Upon questioning Dr. Crittenden would not admit that the Declaration is a proven historical event; nor would he flatly deny that question as to the Declaration's authenticity may have had something to do with the omission. He said he would "have to go back to the minutes of the meeting in 1935" to say whether or not there was then any discussion of the matter from that angle.

- 3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

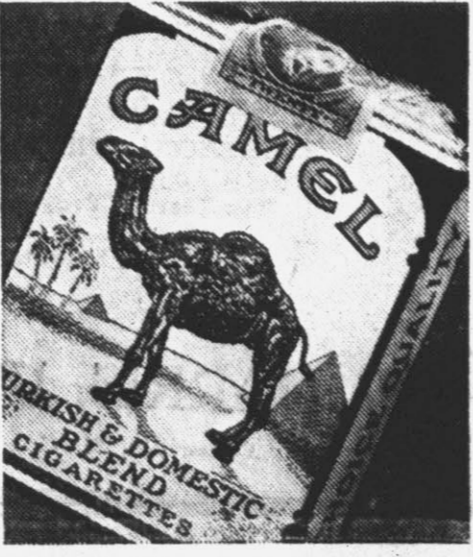

A BATTERY OF "SMOKERS" used in the impartial laboratory tests to determine the actual burning time of 16 of the largest-selling brands of cigarettes. Trained scientists and special equipment assured scientifically accurate control. Camels (shown here under test) proved to be 25% slower burning than the average of the 15 other brands tested, giving Camel smokers the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack!

OIL PRODUCTION IN 1938

This chart, showing oil output in 1938 by countries, is based on figures furnished by the Oil and Gas Journal.

By The AP Feature Service. While European powers maneuver for control of petroleum needed for mechanized warfare, vaster and vaster quantities well up from United States sands. Production records for 1938 show Uncle Sam far ahead, with 1,200,000,000 barrels of crude oil. The next biggest producer, Soviet Russia, pumped less than one-fifth that amount. A survey by the Oil and Gas Journal shows 217 oil fields discovered in this country last year, the greatest number in Texas. There was intense activity in Kansas, too, the new southern Illinois field, in Oklahoma and in Louisiana. Of the 27,149 wells completed in 1938, the Journal reports, 19,121 produced oil, 1,985 produced gas and about 6,000 were dry holes. Uncle Sam's neighbors had a good share in the estimated world yield of 1,965,000,000 barrels in 1938. Venezuela ranked third in the world, Mexico seventh, and Colombia, Trinidad, Argentina, and Peru ninth to twelfth. Little oil came from wells of the Rome-Berlin axis. Germany, with Austria, produced 4,125,000 barrels and Italy, 109,000 barrels. But the Oil and Gas Journal said that location of "70 or 80 salt domes in Germany" may mean accelerated production in the future. Rumania, whose oil resources figured in rumors of German expansion, was sixth in the world list. Other possible objectives of any "march to the east" by the axis—Iran and Iraq—rank high in the production list.

Washington Daybook By Preston Grover

Washington.—The forest fire season has started in the Rocky Mountains and on the Pacific slope, a statement which does not stir easterners but which means to westerners four months of losses as bitter and twice as dramatic as those in the Dust Bowl.

Task to Telephone Telephoning 200 miles into Central Idaho forest country, two-thirds of the way over single wire forest service lines looped from tree to tree, is an experience in endurance and refined hearing.

Of course a dozen listeners cutting in on one of those hand-cringing telephone systems so weakened the circuit that we could not hear the forest operative. It took half a day one summer to solve that. We finally agreed that if the rancher would stay off the line while we got the news we would call back promptly and report all we learned.

It meant two telephone calls, one to get the news and one to relay it to the ranchers. This is the first time we ever explained why the telephone bills mounted up so. We doubt if it doubled the bills completely however. The telephone company seemed to understand the situation.

We have seen men come out of the burning timber with skin blistered on their arms and cheeks, grab a ham sandwich and a mug of coffee which they could scarcely get down because of fried lips, and dash back into the woods without an hour of rest in 20

No Rest for Fighters Forest fire burn hardest from early afternoon to about eight at night. But night means no rest for forest crews. While the fire is reasonably quiet they must dig trenches, cut brush and timber slashways and suppress outlying spot-fires started by flying bark or branches.

Until you have seen one you can't imagine the incredible fury of a forest fire. They will burn over the space of a big city in an afternoon. A man on a horse can't outrun one in rough country.

They arrest people out west for throwing cigarette butts or match ends into the windows.

FOUR BLIND DATES By Edwin Rutt

YESTERDAY. Despite the fact that Tacks loves Pucky madly, he is provoked beyond endurance by her coldness. With a few apt phrases, he takes himself out of her life forever.

Chapter 12 Sound Mind, Sound Body "SAILING, sailing, over the bounding main."

Mr. Jumbo Cukler was singing. And from his song you might have concluded that Mr. Cutler was holding the tiller of a white boat with, perhaps, a cruise ship, and that said boat was dancing over a blue ocean before a racing breeze.

Well, you would have been wrong. Had Jumbo possessed any sense of the fitness of things he would have been singing "Cheyenne, Cheyenne, hop on my pony." For Jumbo was riding, but not getting anywhere. Because his steed was merely the electric horse in the gymnasium of the Penguin Club.

Van Harkness, slipping past the gymnasium on his way upstairs, paused to watch. Then he popped his head in at the door. Jumbo, red of face and attired in running-trunks and T shirt, waved at him from the saddle. "Come on in," he shouted gaily. "I'm headin' for the last round-up. Git along, little doggie."

"What are you doing?" Van demanded open-mouthed. "Jumbo switched off the electric button and his steed came to a stop. "Oh," he said, "just taking off a little excess poundage, that's all." Van goggled. "Why?"

"For the good of my figure, boy, I would be slim even as the reed. I wish a waistline, not just a mass of blubber." "I never heard stuff like this from you before," Van said. Jumbo swung a leg over the electric horse and sat him side-saddle. "My good man," he said, "you are living in the midst of a reformation. I'm having a new deal. I'm slimming, friend. When I get through I'll probably go into the movies and double for Fred Astaire. Luella says..."

"Luella?" cut in Van. "Who's Luella?" "Luella West, you dummy. The girl I met that night I went out on this crazy game of Tacks." "Oh! The babe that gave you the sinner? I thought you were off her for life." "That's what I thought, too." Jumbo paused and a soulful expression came over his face. "But how little we know, Harkness. How very, very little we know."

A boy in buttons was passing the gymnasium door. Van corraled him. "Bring two Scotch and sodas down here," he ordered. "Make it one," sang out Jumbo. "I'm not having any Luella says that just one alcoholic drink after a round of golf undoes all the good of the golf, Luella says..."

Mr. Harkness turned to the boy in buttons. "All right, bring one then." The boy departed. Pollyanna "NOW then," resumed Van, "what the devil is biting you, Jumbo?" "Biting me? Nothing, upstart, nothing."

"Now listen here," said Van, "you've got a pretty good disposition usually, but you've never exactly been Pollyanna, the glad girl, before. What's it all about?" "Harkness," Jumbo said, "have you ever been in love?" "Who, me?" ejaculated Van. "Good heavens, no."

"Then," said Jumbo, with a superior air, "you ain't been no place and you ain't seen nothing, and you don't know nothing about nothing." "But, gosh!" Van couldn't quite take it in. "You don't mean to say you've fallen for somebody, Jumbo?"

At this juncture the boy in buttons returned, bringing rich gifts. Van set the tray on the window-sill, then climbed painfully onto the parallel bars from which position he could reach it easily. "Come clean with this, Cutler!" he roared, lighting a cigarette. Jumbo lit with a disfavor. "I wish you wouldn't smoke in here," he said. "This room is dedicated to the promotion of finer psychiques and you ought not to foul the air. Mens sana in corpore sano, Harkness. Luella says..."

"I hear any more of what Luella says," interrupted Van exasperated, "I'll wrap this seltzer bottle around your ugly head. Are you in love with this Luella West, Jumbo?" "Harkness," said Jumbo patronizingly, "I don't mind telling you that I am. No, wait a minute. That's an understatement. I'm gone on her, crazy for her, completely nuts about her. When I said the other night that she has dark hair, I was a dirty liar. She has hair like—like ripe cornsilk with the sun on it. And she's got hazel eyes. Get that, Harkness? Hazel eyes. And her figure is sort of—sort of lithe and svelte and—well, boy, it's a knockout. And she wears three and a half double A shoes. She's got, Harkness, the cutest little feet!" "I don't give a darn about her

LOOKS AS IF THEY HAD A WONDERFUL TIME

The month-long tour of Canada and the United States by Britain's king and queen was an exciting round of receptions and sight-seeing, with little opportunity for real relaxation. Yet facial expressions mean anything, they enjoyed themselves every minute. For example:

STARTING OUT from Quebec, May 18. Their Majesties smile like a couple of tourists who have a carefree vacation ahead.

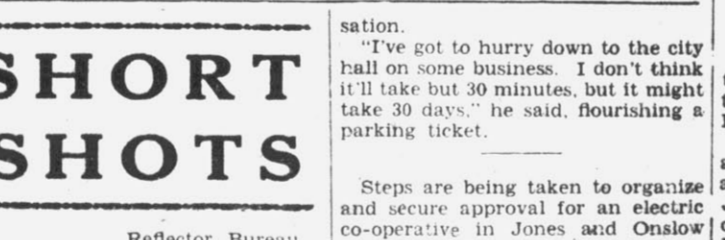

IN THE CITY: They greet Canadian war veterans at Ottawa.

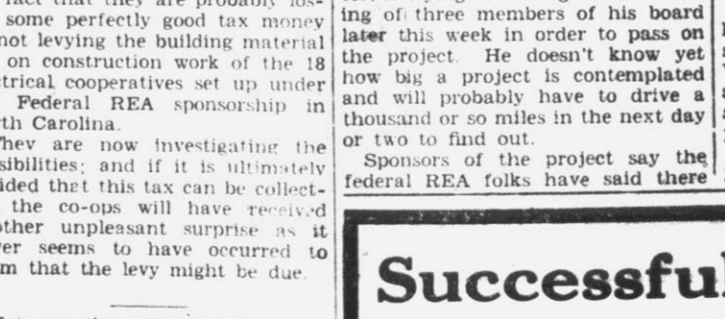

IN THE COUNTRY: They pause in front of a mountain at Banff.

WITH AN INDIAN: They listen interestedly to an Ojibway tribe member in Ontario.

WITH F. D. R. The king smiles as he and the President drive through Washington.

LEAVING Hyde Park for Canada, they look as if they'd like to be coming again.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, June 20.—Department of Revenue officials have waked up to the fact that they are probably losing some perfectly good tax money by not levying the building material tax on construction work of the 18 electrical cooperatives set up under the Federal REA sponsorship in North Carolina.

They are now investigating the possibilities; and if it is ultimately decided the tax can be collected, the co-ops will have received another unpleasant surprise as it never seems to have occurred to them that the levy might be due.

will be no money available after July 1, hence the hurry. A North Carolina State alumnus who sells fertilizer all over the South recently told President Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina:

"Alabama has the best agriculture school in the South, Clemson in South Carolina is next, and State is at the very tail end of the profession—and I hope that makes you so mad you do something about it."

At least the conversation is reported to have occurred; but whether it did or not, it gives the committee recently appointed to study the agriculture school situation at State something to think about.

Some time ago Robeson lawyers plumped officials for H. E. Stacy, one of their own, for Governor, but the endorsement created a very small ripple on the political pond and after a season wasn't thought of.

Comes now Tom Bost, the Greensboro News' veteran correspondent, with a story quoting a Robesonian, Robert C. Lawrence, as saying the lawyers down that way really meant what they said.

Which adds just a little excitement to an other wise stagnant gubernatorial situation.

ing along 'Skippy' ever since. I don't believe many people around here remember me in it, positively, but there are enough to whom my face is vaguely familiar as having been in a hit once.

"When I'm working, I'm interested in the picture business. I think I'm lucky to be in it. It's easy and pleasant. Between pictures, I do what I please. I take trips, go and see for myself what's going on in the state around here. I don't have to worry about keeping up a front, never have to go places to be seen, never have to look for publicity because in my line it's what's on the screen that counts. I can take a bus or streetcar to go downtown—I don't like to drive—and I can meet the real people who travel on them. A few of them recognize me as a picture person—usually not sure exactly who I am—but they'll all exchange down-to-earth talk with me. They're my kind of people. The other day on a bus I overheard a bit of dramatic criticism such as you can't often pick up. Two good women were discussing going to a movie, and one of them flatteringly fused when she learned who was in it. She said it she had to look at that face again she'd scream. The actor mentioned had worked too much, in too many pictures. Good lesson in that..."

What's amazing about Robertson is that he is an actor at all. His family down in Texas never thought of the stage. He went to Washington, D. C., for college and studied law. It was Joseph Jefferson, the "Rip Van Winkle" of the stage, who talked Robertson into becoming an actor. He didn't remain one. After a term with Belasco and other producers in New York he became an attorney with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and during the war he was assistant manager and supervisor of federal railway police in Chicago.

Robertson made his Hollywood debut as a writer. He had written plays—"Big Game," "Black Velvet," "The Sea Woman," "This Man's Town"—and the movies signed him up.

"After six months of being a writer with nothing to do," he recalls, "I decided I better try acting. I didn't know anybody and I didn't look like an actor. One day in a casting office, I ran into Rouben Mamoulian, then making his first picture. He embraced me like a long-lost friend, asked for me for his picture."

Manager Wilson Drives In 6 Of 11 Runs Over New Bern

LOCALS DIVIDE 2-GAME TREAT

Bears Take First 5-1, Greenies Win Second 11-1

Greenville halved a double header with New Bern yesterday, losing the afternoon game 5-1 and emerging victorious 11-1 in the night affair.

As a result of one Greenville loss, Williamston's Martins climbed to the top in the Coastal Plain League. The Martins will tangle with second place Greenville in the Guy Smith stadium tonight.

Greenville's only run of the afternoon game came in the second inning when Harry Jenkins was issued a free pass, advanced to third on Red Christopher's single and scored on Daniels' single.

New Bern won the game in the fourth when Moren singled, advanced to third when Christopher crossed a throw by Daniels to second and scored on Duber's single to right. Duber scored on Red Harper's single. New Bern's prettiest blow of the game came in the eighth when Barnes tripled to right and scored on Kimrey's triple.

Rube Wilson's boys had two beautiful chances to go ahead. After getting the lone tally in the third, the side was retired with the sacks loaded. The bags were fielded when the Greenies were retired in the seventh.

Nine hits seemed to be the quota of Greenville pitchers yesterday. Morris Wilson, hurling the afternoon affair, gave up 9 safeties. In the night game, Johnnie Yent, who made his debut with the locals, was reached for nine hits.

Featherstone, hurling his second game for the Bears, was kind to Greenville in the first and second innings last night. Rube's boys reached him for three hits and as many runs in the first and two in the second. He was relieved by Lefty Archer in the second with the sacks loaded and none out. Another run was scored, but the sacks were loaded.

Archer's hurling was rather effective, except for the sixth and eighth innings, when two Greenville runs came on wild pitches. Part of the visitors' half-dozen errors were also involved in the locals' scoring spree.

New Bern's only run of the night game came in the ninth when McAbee doubled to right and scored on Howard Jenkins' single to left. Moren went out on a fly to first and Manager Wilson threw Jenkins out at home for a double play to end the ball game.

Rube Wilson, who got three hits for four trips, batted in a half-dozen runs in last night's game to feature the hitting.

CUT TIME FOR TROUT FISHING

Too Many Fishermen Lead To Shorter Open Season

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, June 19.—Trout fishing in some of the state game refuges moved so popular this season that it has been decided it is necessary to curtail fishing dates in at least two, and probably three, of them, according to notice sent the State Department of Conservation and Development by Chief Refuge Supervisor C. N. Mease.

Fishing days were based on an estimated quota of fishermen for the season, but the seasonal allowances were exceeded through the first three open dates, Mr. Mease said.

As a result there will be no further permission to fish for trout in the Mount Mitchell refuge in Yancey county or in the Daniel Boone area in Caldwell, Avery and Burke.

Earlier in the season plans had been made to open these two for trout fishing on June 21-22, July 3-4 and 15-16, and possible for two days in August. But so many fishermen visited the streams during May and June on open dates that it has been found necessary to close them for the rest of the season, Mease said.

The Sherwood Forest refuge in the western division of the Pisgah National Forest, near Waynesville in the Tennessee Bald Wagon Road Gap area, will be opened for fishing July 2, 3 and 4, as planned, but will not again be opened this season, Mease said.

"So many trout fishermen have visited these areas that we are forced to close them much earlier than we had planned," he said. "In the Mount Mitchell and Daniel Boone areas, for example, we had estimated a quota of 773 fishermen for the entire season, extending into August; yet during the open days of May and June we had a total of 1,050 fishermen in the two areas, and so there is nothing left but to close the refuges in order to preserve the supply of trout in their streams."

MARLIN MARK-MAKERS—Good reason to boast has Mrs. Henry Sears (left) of Greenwich, Conn., and Cat Cay, Bahamas. She caught this 730-pound blue marlin off Cat Cay in an hour and a half. With her are Mrs. Paul Sanborn, who set a women's record catching a 560-pound marlin, and Tommy Shevlin, who caught a 636-pound blue marlin in 1936.

The woman had been one of Spotty's best friends, which may explain the dog's reasoning when he finally jumped up, crossed the road to a petunia bed, chewed off several blossoms and trotted back to the O'Rourke house.

Register 9-3 Triumph In Celebration at Tarboro

Williamston's Martins journeyed to Tarboro last night to aid in the celebration of "Scottish Neck Night", defeated Tarboro 9-3, and replaced Greenville as league-leader of the Coastal Plain League.

One of the prettiest blows of the Martin win was in the third. Diem known as Pappy to players and fans, hit a blow that was good for a round-tripper. However, the umpire said he failed to touch third and was credited only with a two-base hit.

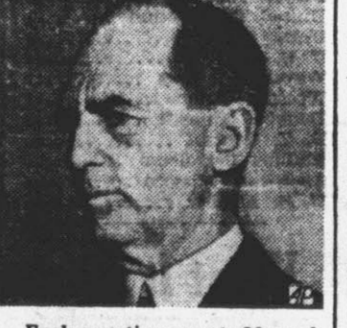

Wilson turned in a 6-1 win over Kinston yesterday behind the seven-inning pitching of Bill Salmose. Sid Stringfellow performed for the Eagles, but was unable to equal the quality of his opponent's hurling tactics.

Snow Hill staged a three-run party in the ninth in a desperate effort to win but exceptional fielding ended the Billies' chances and Goldsboro left the game with a 4-3 verdict. A homer by Buck Overton in the fourth inning gave Goldsboro, who took an early lead, the run that decided the victory.

What It Means

control our huge surplus crops and save our soil from ruin. Enemies insist these controls put a gun at the farmer's head, leaving him no individual freedom.

Then there's the 50-million dollar cotton export subsidy in the Senate bill. That adjusts an artificial domestic price to the natural world price and the cotton exporter cries "too much regulation." Cotton exports bring us to our vanishing edge.

The depression started our foreign trade troubles. Now competition comes along from the enterprising citizens of other nations—and their governments. Combine those hard luck factors, and you get the sad picture of our world trade, worst for the farmer.

Congress and the President are each trying to deserve the support of voters with a generous help program, but at the same time avoid the blame of too much spending.

The so-called city and economy blocs in the House this year held the farm bill appropriation under a billion. But the Senate hiked the ante 218 million more. (You see, many representatives have no farm vote to worry about in their districts, but senators are elected by a state-wide vote, including farmers.)

But neither Senate nor House levied additional taxes. They're actually reducing taxes. Now the President is in a position to tell the country so many of its members are practicing, while congressmen who vote for farm spending, but they're all for economy, but they don't think it ought to start with the hard-hit farmers.

NEW LAW CUTS MARRIAGES BY MORE THAN 50 PER CENT

Conway and Marion, S. C.

He adds that "no couples have filed certificates since the new law went into effect; who have been married in South Carolina. We think we know of two couples who have married in South Carolina—undoubtedly there have been a number that we have not heard about."

From Wayne, the story is that "the new marriage laws were still being given credit for the slump in the marriage mart."

L. H. Phillips, Catawba register of deeds is of the opinion that many couples are marrying outside the state and are failing to file the required certificates upon their return to this state. He reported that only four or five couples have failed to file out-of-state marriage certificates since the law went into effect in April.

Advocates of the new law declare that it has proved its effectiveness by reducing the number of marriages. This, they contend, proves the need for provisions denying the right to wed to those unable to obtain health clearance after submitting to the blood tests prescribed in the statute.

Registers of deeds, however, contend in most cases that the new law hasn't accomplished any such good results. They maintain it has simply sent couple across state lines for their licenses and mad law violators of them because they have not submitted to the examinations required after returning to North Carolina.

Bennett declared that officials of the agricultural conservation program have set the payment figure for 1939 at $405,952.

He said also that when checks arrive at his office, farmers scheduled to receive the benefit payments are notified. "Unless a farmer receives a notification that his payment has arrived," said Bennett, "he should not call for the payment until he receives the notice."

Commander Pennell and Chairman McMillan have cooperated closely in arranging a splendid program for the convention. Special attention has been given to meetings and entertainment for the Junior Auxiliary and Sons of the Legion.

The standard requirement for schools with from six to eight teachers is one teacher, with a minimum of six semester hours in library science, assigned to the library two consecutive periods each day; schools with nine to twelve-teachers, one teacher with a minimum of 12 semester hours in library science, assigned to the library half of the school day; and for schools with more than 12 teachers, one teacher with a minimum of 24 or more semester hours in library science, assigned to the library full time.
