FDR PROPOSES NEW PROJECTS HELP BUSINESS

Four Billion Dollar Spending Plan Is Suggested

PROGRAM WOULD COVER 7 YEARS

At Least $870,000,000 Estimated To Be Spent During Year Starting July 1

Washington, June 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt proposed to Congress today a $3,860,000,000 program for stimulating business through self-liquidating projects and low-cost housing developments.

The President estimated that at least $870,000,000 would be disbursed in federal funds during the year starting July 1.

The remainder of the program, split into six types of self-liquidating projects, would continue for from two to seven years.

The President said that in the long run the program would not cost the taxpayer a cent so far as self-liquidating projects were concerned.

He outlined his proposals in a letter to Chairman Byrnes (D-S.C.) of the Senate Unemployment committee, and sent copies to other Senate and House leaders.

Mr. Roosevelt explained that there would be a limit on self-liquidating projects of $2,000,000 over the two to seven year period which their construction would embrace and that as money came in from loans it would be put out again as needed to stimulate employment and business.

Another $800,000,000 would be added to the borrowing capacity of the U. S. Housing Authority under the President's plan.

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not state how much of this would be used during the next fiscal year, but the money would be applied to providing low-cost homes for persons with incomes in the $1,250 to $2,000 class. These are not covered by either the present slum clearance program or the FHA operations, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Meanwhile in the capitol, Senator Mead (D-N.Y.) said he had reports of Secretary Morgenthau and Hopkins for "the general principle" of his bill to provide government backing for loans to small businesses.

Also, the House passed and sent to the Senate a $292,695,547 supplemental army appropriation after rejecting a Republican amendment which would have reduced by 1.28 per cent the proposed expansion of the army air corps to 5,500 planes.

This action averted what would have been the first major setback to be suffered by President Roosevelt's defense program.

Speaker Bankhead announced the roll call vote on rejection of the amendment as 217 to 150.

No 1939 Highway Deaths In Eight N. C. Counties

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, June 23.—Eight North Carolina counties have perfect highway safety records for the first five months of 1939, according to a compilation of figures obtained from the office of Ronald Hocutt, director of the Highway Safety Division.

In these eight counties—Alexander, Alleghany, Cherokee, Pamlico, Polk, Swain, Tyrrell and Yancey—there have been no highway fatalities and no injuries through May according to the records available in the division.

In fifteen other counties there have been no fatalities, but from one to 22 injuries, reported so far in 1939. Three of them miss perfection by a single injury (Camden, Jones and Transylvania). The other dozen, with the number of injuries reported in the five months are: Pasquotank, Haywood and Gates, 2 each; Hertford and Hyde, 3 each; Chowan, 4; Jackson, Pender and Person, 6 each; Watauga, 10; and Granville 22.

At the other end of the scale, Guilford county leads all in number of highway fatalities so far this year, but holds only the slimmest of Greenville business houses will observe a holiday on Tuesday, July 4th, but will remain open as usual on Monday and will observe the usual half holiday on Wednesday afternoon.

The question was decided at a meeting of the Merchants Association called this morning by President O. P. Matthews for the sole purpose of deciding on the holiday.

There had been some talk of closing stores both Monday and Tuesday, thereby giving clerks three days off from work, and remaining open on Wednesday afternoon.

This was abandoned, however, when a majority of the 41 merchants represented at this morning's meeting voted against such a proposal. One of the arguments brought out against the Monday and Tuesday closing was the fact that merchants have continually encouraged patrons to do their buying Wednesday mornings in view of the holiday Wednesday afternoons and it was feared the interruption in this schedule would prove to be confusing.

Although the decision to observe only Tuesday and the regular Wednesday afternoon holidays will be followed by practically all members in that a majority favored such a plan, several merchants were in favor of closing both Monday and Tuesday and remaining open all day Wednesday.

Will Not Execute Six Men July 7th

Raleigh, June 22.—(AP)—Governor Hoey said today that the state would not execute six men for murder July 7—date now fixed for carrying out six sentences.

The state has never executed more than three men in a single day.

There will not be sufficient time to make a thorough study of each case by July 7. I have not studied any of them yet. But there will not be six executions that day. There will be developments in a few days, Hoey said.

The men facing death July 7 are Alfred Caper, Bricey Hammonds, James Cureton, James Godwin, James Henderson and Glen Maxwell.

ROYAL COUPLE WELCOMED AT BRITISH PORT

King, Queen Reach Home Amid Cheers Of Subjects

300,000 PEOPLE AT SOUTHAMPTON

Queen Mother Mary Joins Son and His Queen for Half-hour Of Greeting Aboard Boat

Southampton, Eng., June 22.—(AP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth returned to British shores today from their glittering North American tour amid the cheers of thousands of proud subjects. Their trans-Atlantic liner, the Empress of Britain, tied up at her pier at 2:30 p. m. (8:39 a. m. EST).

Beneath drab and misty sky the king and queen gazed from the bridge of the Empress on a brilliant panorama of color beneath—waving flags and the pennants of smaller craft in the harbor and flower-decked welcoming arches.

Their two children, 13-year-old Princess Elizabeth and eight-year-old Margaret Rose, who had joined their parents at sea a few hours earlier, were on the bridge, tugging with excitement at their father's arms.

Cheers and sirens made a terrific din as the king and queen waved again and again.

Queen Mother Mary, walking apparently without any stiffness from her automobile accident of May 28—while her son and his queen were away—led the royal party aboard the Empress for a private half-hour of greeting before the king and queen came down the gangplank.

The king wore the uniform of an admiral of the fleet and the queen was in powder blue.

Southampton, with a normal population of 180,000, had an estimated 300,000 people in the streets and at the dock for the welcome, despite a heavy mist that sprinkled rain at times.

PLAN PAGEANT FOR 4-H CLUBS

July Event To Depict Growth During Past 25 Years

Raleigh, June 22.—A pageant of progress, depicting the growth of the 4-H clubs in the state during the past 25 years, will be a feature of the annual 4-H short course which will be held at State College, July 24-29. It was announced today by L. R. Harrill, state 4-H club leader.

Several county groups have been trained to present folk dances, skits and songs to demonstrate the various phases of the youth-training program of the State College Extension Service. Miss Madeline Stevens of the National Recreation Association helped to train some of the groups. It is planned to have the pageant in Riddick stadium on the State College campus, Harrill said.

Last year's 4-H short course attracted approximately 1,000 boys and girls from 95 counties, making it the largest event of its kind ever held in the state. Both Harrill and Miss Frances MacGregor, assistant state club leader, predicted that this year's short course will draw even a larger attendance since the 4-H program in the state has grown substantially during the past year.

Officers of the State 4-H Council who will preside at the short course are Archie Prevatte of Robeson county, president; Miriam Sexton of Nash county, vice president; Margaret Ellen Wagner of Guilford county, secretary; and Harold Sharpe of Alamance county, reporter.

The state health contest and the crowning of the state king and queen of health will be another highlight of the week's program. Team demonstrations in Better Speech, Personal Appearance, Good Food Habits, Safety First, and Getting the Most for Your Money also are scheduled.

BLUEJACKETS RUN OFF JAPS

Soldiers Suddenly Quit Examining the Cargoes Being Discharged by British Lighters When British Jackets Make Appearance; Blockade Continues

Tientsin, June 22.—(AP)—The sudden appearance of British bluejackets today halted Japanese examination of cargoes being discharged by British lighters while blockaded British further were heartened by a message of sympathy and hope from the London government and the ending of the milk shortage.

These developments occurred on the ninth day of the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions.

A Japanese military patrol withdrew at the sight of the bluejackets after the soldiers had begun inspecting the cargoes being discharged at the British bunt.

The message from London, from Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax to Consul General Jamieson, expressed the government's sympathy to the blockaded British "for the difficulties and indignities they are being made to suffer."

Lord Halifax pledged that the government would make "every effort to protect their interests and terminate the present crisis as soon as possible."

The anti-British campaign, meanwhile, spread to Peiping, where a mass meeting, to be followed by a parade, is to be held tomorrow.

The Japanese-controlled press announced that students, merchants and minor government officials had been invited to take part.

Newspapers arranged to issue special anti-British supplements tomorrow while the Japanese-controlled central broadcasting station will observe "anti-British day."

Fresh milk entered the British and French concessions today in sizable quantities, relieving the shortages.

City Finance Officer To Address Kiwanis

Walt Mason, 77, Dies At California Home

San Diego, Calif., June 22.—(AP) Walt Mason, 77 humorist and poet, died today in his home at suburban La Jolla after an illness of several weeks.

Mason became ill a few days before his birthday, May 4. He was a native of Columbus, Ontario, and had come to the United States in 1880. That same year he was launched on his newspaper career when he got a job on a press at St. Louis.

Warning Is Issued About Privy Laws

Following the action of the Greenville Board of Aldermen a few months ago rescinding the ordinance requiring all old residences to be connected with the city sewer main where available, it has become necessary for J. T. Welch, city sanitary inspector, to enforce the state privy law.

The state privy law not only applies to the city, but to all territory within one mile of the corporate limits. Welch said he hoped it will not be necessary to bring anyone into court on account of violations of the state privy law, but he has instructions requiring him to prosecute where the violation of the law does not show proper co-operation.

"Since hot weather is already here it is absolutely necessary that the public be protected against typhoid and other intestinal diseases which may be spread from insanitary privies," declared Welch. He called attention to the fact that privies could be furnished at cost or material, with the WPA furnishing free labor. Welch's office is at the Pitt county health department and his telephone number is 130.

BRITAIN CONSIDERS COUNTER MEASURES

London, June 22.—(AP)—A government spokesman declared today that continuation of the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin will "obviously lead to counter measures" by Great Britain.

He said, however, that the British government still hoped the Japanese would agree to terminate the dispute on a local basis.

At the foreign office it was said no reports had been received on yesterday's talks in Moscow between British and French envoys and the Soviet premier-foreign commissar. Officials declined to comment on a Soviet communique which asserted that no progress had been made in negotiations for a British-French-Russian mutual aid agreement.

British officials are still awaiting Japanese replies to inquiries as to Tokyo's intentions concerning the Tientsin blockade.

State Is Left In Whirl By Leache's Resignation

Move Parallels Probe Of WPA Activities In La.

Baton Rouge, La., June 22.—(AP)—An unheralded change in Louisiana governors that will elevate Leach, Governor Early K. Long, brother of the late "Kingfish" Huey Long, put the state in a political whirl today.

Governor Richard Leche announced last night he would resign next week with nearly 11 months of his term unexpired. As Lieutenant Governor, Long will succeed him automatically.

Although Leche gave ill health—two severe arthritis attacks—as his immediate reason, observers noted the announcement followed days of almost continued conferences and paralleled a federal investigation of WPA activities in the state.

The fiery, quick-tempered 42-year-old brother of the late Huey Long, but often outspoken critic of the "Kingfish," immediately rushed to New Orleans for political conferences.

He issued a statement saying he would carry on "the fine work done in the past 10 years under my brother, Governor O. K. Allen and Richard W. Leche."

The unexpected developments threw several ambitious former lieutenants of Huey Long and supporters of his still-impact political machine into dismay since they were preparing to run a candidate for governor next January. As incumbent, Long will hold a distinct advantage.

Seeks Permission Operate Rail Line

Raleigh, June 22.—(AP)—H. P. Edwards of Sanford, acting for his Atlantic and East Carolina Railway company, asked the State Utilities Commission today to permit him to lease and operate the state-controlled Atlantic and North Carolina railroad.

Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne said he was "very favorable" to the petition and that the approval here would be little more than a formality.

Edwards advised the commission that he also was filing a formal request with the Interstate Commerce Commission to take over the 94-mile line between Goldsboro and Morehead City.

The railroad has been operated in recent years by the corporation in which the state owned control.

Washington, June 22.—One of the first tests for New Deal and anti-New Deal delegates is coming in Kentucky a few weeks from now in a show with almost the same actors as were in the eye-gouging election last year.

The candidates are different but the two men in the saddle are the same, Governor Chandler and Senator Barkley.

Chandler's term as governor expires this year and he is backing Keene Johnson, his lieutenant governor, to succeed him. In Kentucky a governor cannot succeed himself. Barkley, in turn, is backing John Young Brown, who once ran for

JAPS ADVISED OF REJECTION

Another Destroyer And Gunboat Ordered to Proceed to Swatow After U. S. Navy Told to Evacuate Port; British Destroyers Also Stand By

Washington, June 22.—(AP)—The United States government has bluntly informed Japan that instead of clearing out of Chinese harbors, its warships will stay in these ports "as long as American citizens are in need of protection or assistance."

Told by the Japanese to take the destroyer Pillsbury out of Swatow, Admiral Harry Yarnell, chief of the Asiatic fleet, flatly refused. He went even further, the State Department disclosed today, and brought in another destroyer, The Pope. The gunboat Asheville will follow from Hongkong.

Some 40 Americans are at Swatow, rich South China port, which had trans-shipped millions of dollars worth of raw materials to the Chinese forces.

Yarnell said that American warships would try to avoid interference with Japanese operations so far as was consistent with the duty of looking after United States' interests.

Shanghai, June 22.—(AP)—Two American and two British destroyers stood by in Swatow harbor today despite a Japanese order or suggestion that foreign warships and national warships from that newly captured South China port.

Foreign naval sources were doubted during the day and, except for the departure of 20 British women and children, the American and British communities stood pat.

Japanese and Occidental accounts differed as to the nature of the Japanese communication. British naval quarters said foreign ships had been "ordered" to leave Swatow harbor by 1 p. m. (midnight Wednesday, E. S. T.). A Japanese naval spokesman in Shanghai said only a "usual warning" has been given to foreigners to leave the zone of possible hostilities.

Hospital Founder Dies Unexpectedly

Fayetteville, June 22.—(AP)—Dr. Jacob Franklin Highsmith, founder and head of the Fayetteville hospital bearing his name, died unexpectedly today. He would have been 71 years old September 1.

Dr. Highsmith, one of the state's outstanding surgeons, and well known throughout the South, had been in failing health for several months.

He was a past president of the North Carolina State Medical Society, the Cumberland Medical Society, the North Carolina and South Carolina sections of the American College of Surgeons and for a number of years he was a member of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

His funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at his home here. Surviving are three sons, who are physicians on the staff of the Highsmith Hospital, and five other children.

Dr. Highsmith was a native of Sampson county. He was graduated from Wake Forest College and the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia.

College Students Hear Wayne Man

"Peace and understanding will be restored to the world, said Rabbi Iser L. Freund, of Goldsboro in speaking at East Carolina Teachers College yesterday, "only when the spiritual influences of the Bible again begin functioning in the lives of men and nations."

Rabbi Freund, who had driven to Greenville yesterday morning to speak at the college at noon, was talking on the topic, "Spiritual Influence of the Bible."

After speaking of the great opportunity of his audience, most of them teachers, to help shape thought and action, the visitor declared that pagan ideals of a distant past are besieging the institutions of society, in many countries with much success, and that the Bible needs to be brought back to the place of power it held so long.

Even in many sections of this country, he said, the Bible is being legislated or ridiculed out of existence.

He then recalled the vast influence of the Bible through the centuries, saying that it had shaped the laws of men in ancient times and fashioned those of present nations of the world, and pointing out that every spiritual movement has been given impetus by it.

"The Dark Ages were dark," he said, "not because of the influence of the Bible, but because the ecclesiastics paid no heed to its chief teachings, and the common man had no access to the scriptures."

Suggesting that the core of the spiritual force of the Bible is in its idea of God, and that in the search for Him, man finds also the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, he said that religion is more than just the recognition of the existence of God—it has ethical implications, too. It applies to both the private and the social virtues of the individual, the ideal being a good individual in a good society.

In many parts of the world, he said, mentioning specifically Russia, Italy and Germany, paganism is replacing the religion of the Bible. "Peace has become the illegal dream of the weak, and brotherhood the illusion of a few in the concentration camps," and they will remain so until the Bible takes its rightful place once more and men realize

Facts On Chicken Vaccination Given

Since there are about 150 commercial producers of chickens in the county, and an undetermined number of Pitt county residents raising chickens for home use, R. R. Bennett, county farm agent, today released information on pox vaccinations and deworming.

"All young pullets and cockerels should be vaccinated against chicken pox (sorehead) preferably when they are about 12 to 14 weeks old. It is not necessary to vaccinate any birds to be carried over. The young stock should not be permitted to run with or on the same ground with the old birds or other stock that is not vaccinated for at least 30 days after the vaccination and preferably not at all.

"Do not vaccinate pullets that have already come into production, as it will upset production. Pullets should be vaccinated at least 40 days before time for them to come into production. While the vaccination is for pox only, outbreaks of colds and croup are rather rare in flocks that are vaccinated during the summer."

The county agent can furnish a mimeographed circular on vaccinating for chicken pox if the farmer is inexperienced in this job.

DR. REYNOLDS WARNS PUBLIC Tells Citizens to Stay Out of Paralysis Areas

Raleigh, June 22.—Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, state health officer for North Carolina, has issued the following statement, urging citizens to refrain from spending the July 4th holidays where infantile paralysis is prevalent:

"In view of the extended business and official holiday leave which this year will be observed in connection with the Fourth of July, and because of hundreds of inquiries I have received from North Carolina and throughout the country, I feel it my official duty at this time to urge our people to refrain from planning themselves to go or to carry their children into sections where there is an unusual incidence of infantile paralysis.

"The purpose of this appeal is not to ask the people to shun any one section in preference to another, but to avoid unnecessary exposure by not going into a section where there is a known prevalence of infantile paralysis.

"I am sure that upon careful reflection anyone will realize that there are many resorts free from suspicion of infantile paralysis and that such resorts will be selected in preference to those that may be questionable from the standpoint of presence of this disease.

"In other words, why sell your birthright for a mess of pottage? At the same time, I am convinced that those who live in areas where the incidence of infantile paralysis is above normal are doing uninfected sections an injustice to go into them; and it is hoped that during this season, persons from such areas will not, in order to shun danger at home, come to North Carolina resorts. Let it be remembered also that there are some who, although they do not develop infantile paralysis in its active stages, serve as carriers—as in the case of typhoid fever and diphtheria—and that these may communicate the disease in its virulent form to others; to those, perhaps, who may become incapacitated for life, as the result.

"This is an appeal for the self-preservation of our people, who are urged to stop, look and listen!"

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds
By Robb Coon

Hollywood.—If you're one of the people who foam at the mouth about the number of Britishers playing in American pictures, consider Otto Kruger.

Kruger hails from Toledo, Ohio. And he's one of England's favorite actors—in British pictures. For the past several years he has been a regular commuter between London and Hollywood, and what's more, he plays British roles over there.

He has just returned again to his big white West Los Angeles home and is talking about "settling down" permanently. Settling, that is, unless he decides to go back to England on a deal with the new Leslie Howard company.

Kruger was under contract to M-G-M, the only time he signed a term in Hollywood, when he learned that 72 per cent of his fan mail was coming from Great Britain. When he received an English offer a short time later, he accepted—and now he's a big star over there. The British, usually more than critical of Americans in English roles, have accepted him without reservation. And the only American he has played—in the English studios—was the role of a gangster.

In Hollywood, his speech is as American as anybody's—he sheds his broad-A's on the boat, acquires them again through painstaking practice as soon as he sails from New York. Remarkable? Not at all, he says. Ability to assume an accent should be part of an actor's equipment.

Kruger's latest Hollywood movie now is "All the Tomorrows," opposite Frieda Inescort. He was sold on the story—you can bet on that, or he wouldn't have done it. Time was when he wasn't so happy about his

Mother Held For Slaying Baby

Held in the Sandusky County jail at Fremont, Ohio, is Mrs. Velma Baker Fink who, authorities said, confessed orally that she slew her 10-week-old son Haldon (Buster) Fink, whose body was found in a creek near their Clyde, Ohio, home. Here Mrs. Fink, who is divorced from her husband, is shown (center) as she wept at the child's funeral. She sits between her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Baker. Mrs. Fink was near collapse as she entered the jail shortly after the confession was announced by Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer.

Hollywood assignments.

Once I talked to him about the matter of using the local stage as a "show-window" for versatility. It was the recommended procedure, the sure means of displaying to producers, casters and directors the actor's ability in any given direction. And he laughed, with reason. Because, with that idea in mind, he had done his New York hit, "Counselor-at-Law," on the stage here—and John Barrymore did it in the movie. Because, undiscouraged, he had played "Accent on Youth" here, a play written for him by Sams on Raphaelson—and that Herbert Marshall did it in the movie.

"But all that's changing," he says now. "In England they don't insist that an actor stick to type—and in Hollywood we're getting away from it."

If Kruger joins the Leslie Howard

What Is Your News I. Q.?

By The AP Feature Service

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair, 80, good.

1. An Albanian town was renamed Porto Edda in honor of this woman. Can you name her?
2. Where was Cheston E. Eshleman picked up? Where did he say he had been bound for?
3. Who holds the Westchester cup?
4. Why did an airplane crash near Washington cause a riot in Mexico City?
5. Name the Oklahoman in whose memory a statue was unveiled recently in the capitol at Washington.

News I. Q. Answers

1. Eda Giano, Mussolini's oldest daughter.
2. At sea off Boston, after his borrowed airplane sank, Mars.
3. The U. S. American polo team, which recently defeated British challengers.
4. American students stoned American buildings because they said the death of "the Mexican Lindbergh," Frances Tarabish, had been due to sabotage.
5. Will Rogers, the humorist.

company abroad, the association will be most unusual. Through his Hollywood experience, the one man Kruger has been most frequently mistaken for has been Howard, and vice versa. The two would work, however, in different units.

"I'll never forget the time in Chicago," Kruger relates, "when I was shopping and attracted a swarm of fans. I felt wonderful, glorious, extremely flattered about it—and then one of them addressed me as 'Mr. Howard.' My deflation was complete!"

Work being Retarded On Building Project

Certain work on the new city hall building is being held up temporarily because of the carelessness of a Greenville motorist who ran into some cut stone one night recently.

The broken stone will have to be replaced by an Indiana firm and it is not known just when it will be delivered. Other construction work is progressing meanwhile, however.

SHEEP RAISING URGED FOR N.C.

Can Be Profitable Despite Major Handicaps

Raleigh, June 21.—Sheep raising can be made a profitable farm activity in North Carolina, despite powerful factors which have retarded the sheep population of the state from 500,000 in 1868 to 53,000 at the beginning of 1939, State Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott believes.

The commissioner expressed this opinion in commenting on recent publication in this correspondence of a brief item alluding to the tremendous decrease in sheep despite the constitutional mandate that the General Assembly shall enact law for the adequate protection and encouragement of sheep husbandry.

Dogs and the necessity for fences have been the chief factors in the decrease, said the commissioner, but both could be overcome at not too much expense, he added.

The raising of sheep would be profitable both from the point of view of the wool and sale of the animals for meat, the commissioner said, and would mean an extra step in the direction of more diversified agriculture in North Carolina—something that the commissioner and his department are constantly advocating.

Scott pointed out that proper rotation of pasturage and planting of the pastures to the proper crops when they are cultivated are both very essential in profitable sheep raising; as the absence of this rotation and selection leads directly to a plague of parasites.

Your Screen Test

1. What actor had to flee for his life from Ireland because of activity in the Irish Rebellion?

2. Right or wrong: (a) There are four Lane sisters; (b) Bette Davis and Paul Muni appear together in "Juarez"; (c) Susan Hayward (shown in the picture) never played in any film until she was cast in the lead of "Beau Geste" although she was in Hollywood for more than a year; (d) Vera Zorina is playing her first lead in "On Your Toes"; (e) "Captain Fury" is the first pirate film of the year.

3. From recent news items, identify the following: (a) He suffered a heart attack while playing a legitimate show in Chicago; (b) Her mother sued her father for divorce and her earnings were an important factor in the allegations; (c) After a long illness he's returning to the screen in a role which he made famous in 1934 and played with equal success in a sequel in 1936.

4. What stars first attracted Hollywood attention in the following pictures: (a) "Mayerling"; (b) "Wings of the Morning"; (c) "Ecstasy"; (d) "The Blue Angel"?

5. What, in common, can be said of these actresses: Louise Rainer, Simone Simon, Danielle Darrieux, Anna Sten, Dorothea Wieck?

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent, and 90 or above is colossal.

Decrease Is Recorded In Building Permits

With the month more than two-thirds gone, only eight building permits have been issued for work in the city.

Several of the projects are alterations, no large business house being included in the list. Meanwhile, work on several projects for which permits were previously issued continues here.

CANDIDATE WOULD TRADE PICK FOR ROLLTOP DESK

Dresden, Tenn. — (AP) — C. F. Rowlett, 60-year-old WPA worker, is campaigning for county tax assessor as "the WPA candidate."

"I want to exchange my pick and shovel for a rolltop desk," his campaign cards say. "Help me get off the relief."

The cards bear a picture of a wheelbarrow.

If Rowlett wins he "will pay the government back all the relief money that I have received," he says. If he loses he will stay on WPA. There are eight other candidates.

Screen Test Answers

1. George Brent.
2. (a) Wrong, there are five Lane sisters: Priscilla, Rosemary, Leta, Leta and Martha—the last being the only one not an entertainer; (b) Wrong, Bette Davis and Muni never appear together in any scene in "Juarez"; (c) Right, she was selected for the important lead in "Beau Geste" in spite of the fact that she has never had any movie experience; (d) Right, her only other film appearance was in a comparatively minor role in the "Thin Man" series.
3. (a) John Barrymore, (b) Betty Grable, (c) William Powell. He soon will be seen in the third of the "Thin Man" series.
4. (a) Danielle Darrieux, (b) Annabella, (c) Hedy Lamarr, (d) Marlene Dietrich.
5. Although all of them attracted a great deal of attention publicly and professionally in Hollywood pictures, they all are now abroad with no Hollywood plans in the offing.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Groover

Washington.—The principal cooling influence on the arid of the House for big military appropriations is Representative Ross A. Collins of Mississippi who considers the administration has been frightened
off the deep end on its program.
He is a member of the House subcommittee on War Department appropriations and used to be chairman of it. The hazards of politics took him out of office in 1935 so he lost his seniority and the chairmanship went to Representative Snyder of Pennsylvania.
Nevertheless, Collins packed enough influence in the committee to win at least a technical modification of the big air program. And throughout the hearings on the supplemental military appropriation bill he was a persistent gadfly in questioning of army officers.
He obtained an admission from General Craig, army chief of staff,
that he was "not in on" designing the expanded air program, although he now approves it fully.

'RESERVE' IDEA ATTACKED

As part of its program for 5,500
airplanes, the air corps estimated that approximately 40 per cent, or 2,200 of them, would be held in reserve for emergency. A few would be used while the "active" planes were in the repair shops.

Supported by some Republican strength on the committee, particularly by Representative Powers of New Jersey, Collins proposed that only a small portion of this 40 per cent reserve be built. He painted a picture of fields of idle airplanes growing obsolete month after month, spilling in the sun and rain.
How could the army come forward with demands for newer types in a year or two years from now while its fields were full of unused models
of the present program?

Collins and company proposed that the 2,200 reserve planes be built only if the President considered them necessary for military defense. They got part way with the argument. The army explained that it had already ordered 560 pursuit type planes and if the whole reserve were withheld the air force would be unbalanced with too many pursuit types.

A compromise was reached by which 1,007 of the reserve numbers should be built, leaving to the President the decision whether the balance of the 2,200 should be added later.

CUT 'TRIAL ORDER' FUND

The same Collins group on the committee succeeded in cutting the "educational orders" appropriation, from $33,000,000 to $14,250,000.

As amended, the bill has to survive both the House and Senate where there persists a really solid body of preparedness fervor.

Powers tried, but missed by a mile, in an effort to get General Craig to agree that the war danger had abated.

"I may be wrong, I may be misinformed, and I may be ignorant of the facts," said Powers, "but I think this 1939 war bubble is pretty well deflated."

"I cannot agree with you that the 1939 bubble is deflated," said Craig.
"The present state of world affairs certainly does not hold out much encouragement. The possibility that unlimited war, in which we may become involved, may be stayed off for a year or indefinitely does not justify the chief of staff to pro-party. Time marches back, and we see William Steele on the trail of the 'East Bros.

Chapter 14 Paradise Of The Penny

DIFFENDERFER'S Penny Arcade offers its patrons a wide variety of amusements at as the name implies, small cost. Wherefore Mr. William Steele, jostling his way through the crowded lobby,
found himself mingling freely with the hoi polloi. But he pushed on doggedly and entered the lawdry tobacco-reeking establishment.

It is supposed that, had William been apprised earlier of the sac-torial influences prevailing in this paradise of the penny, he would have accomplished its invasion in more suitable habiliments. As it was, he was attired in a perfectly-cut linen suit, brown tie cool with white polka dots and a Panama hat with a racy-colored band. To say that he was distinctive here would be to understate grossly. He was, as the poem has it, last, loneliest, loveliest, exquisite, apart
and being such, he excited comment,
much of it unfavorable.

But though there was a suspicion of veiled animosity in the air,
no one seemed to care to manifest
his disapproval of William in a businesslike way. In the days of his collegiate magnificence Mr. Steele had been the mainstay of the Stanford eleven's attack. Upon one occasion, after a particularly neat bit of attacking, he had been alluded to by a phrase-slugging newspaper scribe as the "Terrible Terror of the Rose Bowl." Now, despite his life of ease and luxury,
he still sported shoulders as befit
a Terror of the Rose Bowl.
And though egg of the first part respects such shoulders in tough egg of the second part, even though tough egg of the second part be camouflaged by a white linen suit.
As a consequence, the progress of William through Diffenderfer's
Penny Arcade was impeded physically by none.

The man in charge of the shooting-gallery, however, accosted him hospitably. He was an attractive personality with a nose like a shark-hook.
"Try yer luck wid da rifles, buddy?" he suggested.
William waved him aside. But the shooting-gallery magnate didn't stay aside.
"Aw, come on," he wheedled.
"Business is bad."
"Sorry," William said.
The shooting-gallery man appeared to be a disciple of Joe Penners.
"Doncha wanna shoot a duck?"
he inquired, almost reprovingly.
William said that no, he did not want to shoot a duck. He was on the point of plunging deeper into the jungle of Diffenderfer's when it occurred to him that the shooting-gallery might be of service. He paused, therefore, and drew fifty cents from his pocket.
"Listen," he said, "I don't want to shoot. But here's a half a buck.
It's yours if you'll take me to the East brothers. I'm told they work here."

The shooting-gallery man
scratched his head, a popular pastime at Diffenderfer's.
"Don't know 'em," he said at last,
eyeing the fifty cents wolfishly.
"Hell," Bill said.
"Sure dey work here?" asked
the shooting-gallery man.
"A fellow said they did," replied
Bill, "Horace and Morris East."
The sinister countenance of the shooting-gallery man cleared. He reached a grimy paw for the fifty cents.
"Well, now why didn't ya say ya
was looking for Horace and Morris in de first place?" he said aggressively. "Sure, I know dem guys,
'C'mon, I'll take ya."
"Where?" said Bill mystified.

Phantasmagoria
THE shooting-gallery man
pointed to a platform in the rear of Diffenderfer's. William, following his finger, started.
Upon the platform was the oddest collection of humanity that he had ever seen. At first glance it seemed a confused phantasmagoria
such as might appear to a mind reduced by a couple of dozen champagne cocktails. It finally resolved itself, however, into a lady of Himalayan proportions; another lady whose countenance, hands, arms and shoulders were undeniably lilac-colored; a gentleman who either was or cleverly contrived to give the impression of being a skeleton sitting on a straight-backed chair; an orangoutang; a lean cadaverous individual with side whiskers who was, conservatively speaking, ten feet tall; a girl of debauche age wreathed in snakes; what appeared to be a man with two heads and two bodies; and a family of mid-gets. Gazing upon this likely-looking assemblage William's jaw dropped and he permitted himself
the luxury of a gasp.
But had he been accustomed to life backstage at Diffenderfer's,
he would have eschewed such rudeness.
For then he would have known the facts. The lady who must have required the services of a derrick in order to get out of bed was simply Mrs. Gustie Zilk, aka Madame Abdullah. The fattest woman in the World, weight 660 lbs. The lilac-colored siren would have been to him just Bertie

Walsh, known professionally as
The Light Lavender Lady From
The Limpopo. The ghoulish individual vacationing apparently from the potter's field was none other than Mr. Jephthson, The Absolutely and Positively Only Living Skeleton. The orang-outang was not an orang-outang at all but merely, in private life, a Mr.
Moss, the other of five children none of whom exhibits any of the more sinister simian proclivities. Mr. Moss, during his working hours, was enticingly billed as The Missing Link. Further William would have known that the side-whiskered individual, besides being The Tallest Man on Earth, was a sufferer from chronic dyspepsia that the reptile-wrapped debutante answered to the name of Pearl and the wrapping was just her favorite python, Anastasia;
that the gentleman with two heads
and two bodies was not a gentleman, but to gentlemen, Messrs.
Horace and Morris East of Seventh Avenue; that the midgets were gentle, God-fearing people
despite a wide experience of eye-cuses, sideshows and vaudeville.
But William, a Philistine, knew not these things. He could only gape at the assortment, convinced as Hamlet was before him, that something in the nature of decay
was going on in Denmark.

The shooting-gallery man had mistaken his gasp of surprise for an expression of appreciation.
"C'mon," said the shooting-gallery man, nudging his elbow. "Dewon't bite, ya. Dere nuttin' but freaks."
"You're telling me?" said William. He suffered himself to be propelled forward.
During his collaboration with the shooting-gallery man a discussion had been in progress on the raised platform. The subject of this discussion was William. At the moment of his entry into Diffenderfer's, he had been spotted by the freaks, as a brilliant butterfly who chooses to rest in his lot with a regiment of black beetles must expect to be spotted by all and sundry. And a curiosity concerning his identity had been established at once.

Freak Conversation
THE Light Lavender Lady From
The Limpopo voiced the first opinion.
"I believe," she said, "the Absolutely and Positively Only Living Skeleton," "that the gentleman who just came in is probably James J. Walker, a former Mayor of New York City. If you read the papers, Mr. Jephthson, you will know that Mr. Walker has returned to America."
"I always read the papers," intoned the Absolutely and Positively Only Living Skeleton, monotonously.
"Well then?" said the Light
Lavender Lady From The Limpopo,
as if this proved her point.
Mr. Moss, the orang-outang, spoke without being asked to.
"My theory is," said Mr. Moss,
"that he's a detective."
"Tee-hee," giggled Pearl, the snake-charmer. She was a light-hearted girl always ready to giggle.
She now leaned forward to get a better look at William and this movement brought a section of the python, Anastasia, in close contact with The Tallest Man On Earth.
The Tallest Man On Earth performed a movement such as the Eiffel Tower might perform if someone startled it.
"There you go!" ejaculated the Tallest Man On Earth. "How many times do I have to tell you never to shove that brute directly in my face?"
"Oh, you make me sick," said Pearl, the snake charmer. "Anastasia wouldn't hurt a fly." She patted the serpent's head lovingly.
The reptile leered with pleasure.
"It gets my nerves wrought up,"
went on The Tallest Man On Earth, as if Pearl had not spoken. "And when my nerves are wrought up
I suffer greatly from my dyspepsia.
I know I'm going to have a nervous breakdown if it goes on much longer. I mean, this having to practically live with a snake
thirty feet long."
"Thirty-two," corrected Pearl.
The Light Lavender Lady From
The Limpopo waved her hand as
at a matter of no importance.
"Before we were so rudely interrupted," she said, looking re-provingly at The Tallest Man On Earth. "Mr. Jephthson, Mr. Moss and myself were discussing the identity of that gentleman there in the white linen suit. Mr. Moss has just given us his opinion that he's a detective."
One of the heads of the East Brothers, the one belonging to Morris, answered: "Of course not, Detectives don't dress that way."
"Be quiet, Morris," said the head belonging to Horace.
"See that?" said Morris East to the open forum. "Every time I open my mouth he tells me to be quiet. Why can't I speak? I've got a right to speak, haven't I?"
"I said be quiet, Morris," said
Horace, sternly.
At this point William and the shooting-gallery tycoon pushed their way through a little knot of curious customers who were staring at the freaks and gained the edge of the platform. The shooting-gallery tycoon beckoned with imperious finger.
"Hey, you, Horace an' Morris,"
he ordered. "Dey 'cummers a minut' here. Dey here astin' fer ya."

Your Uncle Whiskers Transplants Salmon And Creates Better Fishing By The Move

By The AP Feature Service
For centuries Columbia river salmon have been following a fixed, mysterious four-year cycle. They hatch in the upper reaches of the river, grow several inches, drift down to the Pacific ocean, add from 10 to 60 more pounds and swim back up the river to spawn and die
where their lives began.
Soon the biggest man-made thing

on earth—Grand Coulee dam, in central Washington state—will have ended the salmon runs for all time.
To save the fish, the federal government is providing new living quarters for them. To tempt the salmon to move in, the government is making their lives easy.
The fish will be caught at another dam 150 miles below Coulee and transported to new spawning grounds. The salmon no longer will have to make great jumps in the river above Coulee to reach spawning areas.

Fishermen say a salmon hereafter will put up a much stiffer fight on the end of a line because he won't have lost strength in the up-the-river struggle.

1. UP THE LADDER at Rock Island dam go the salmon, climbing 100 feet in 10 seconds ...
2. INTO THE TRAP at Rock Island where all salmon are counted and corraled for a trip across land ...
3. OVER THE HILL the salmon travel in specially-built trucks. They ride in ice water ...
4. AND 'HOME': A shallow stream where the salmon will spawn, miles from their birthplace.

Wear clothes that conform to local custom. Shorts are now accepted on most tennis courts. Plain colors, very light or dark, are best.

Silence is golden around a tennis court.
The Dionne quintts couldn't be less conscious of their public than players who are intent on their game. And people who enjoy watching tennis don't like to be side-tracked by comments from less-interested spectators.
Here is some more on tennis "etiquette":
Three sets usually are considered the proper share for a group of players. Then, if there is a waiting list, they should make way for others.
There's an unwritten law on returning balls to adjoining courts: Players there must not interrupt your game to ask for them, but you should return strays when you collect your own.
Top players seldom converse much among themselves.
Doubles partners don't hog the game by infringing on their partners' territory.

Mr. Robert Neff, United Airlines, New York: Dear Bob, Many thanks for that ride on the DC-4. It was a thrill. From where we were the World's Fair looked like a side street carnival. But I had a scare. While waiting for those buses to take us to the airport I wandered across the street to a drugstore for a soda. I wasn't gone more than five minutes, but when I came out the buses and everybody had gone. There wasn't anybody in sight, it was 20 minutes before the ship was to take off, and the airport was 10 miles away. But I made it. Just then Miss De Marquis, my secretary, came by with a big Cadillac. We were the last ones to clambor aboard.

Miss Merle Oberon, the French Riviera: Dear Merle, Now aren't you ashamed of all those little white fish you told the boys when you were in New York. You said you had no intentions of marrying Alexander Korda, even after that reporter looked you in the eye and said, "I don't believe a word you are saying. I hear you are going to meet Korda on the Riviera and marry him." Remember? You never batted an eye. You said, "Really, it isn't true." That was two months ago. Anyway, the dispatches made nice reading. I bet you're the prettiest bride during the whole month of June.

Mr. Mel Gaff, comic strip artist, New York: Dear Mel, Naturally I feel highly honored at being included in your comic strip, "The Adventures of Patsy." Indeed, when I learned that plain but honest face of Tuck George, your Hollywood commentator, was patterning after my own, my ego knew no bounds. Here was indeed a gesture of real friendship. But a word of caution prompts this, Old Pal. Do keep him a forthright, manly fellow. I know you would not willingly let Tuck drift into the ways of heels and cads, especially since I know much about you as you know about me, and since I, too, have the means of going before the public. This, perhaps, is unworthy of me. I blush with shame at having ever mentioned it. Give Patsy my love, and do let us go fishing soon.

Mr. Henry Morventhau, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.: Dear Henry, Your interesting letter was the first I have received from Washington since the income tax people wrote me some time ago concerning a personal matter. I agree with you that government bonds are an extremely fine buy. You do not have to sell me on that point. They feel good in your hands, too—nice and crisp, and when you fold them they crackle, just like parchment. So you see, you might even call me an enthusiast. I've been that way ever since a friend of mine let me look at some that he owns. I certainly will do business with you when my ship ever comes in—If I ever have a ship.

Those Greenies Are 'There Today And Gone Tomorrow'

MARTINS LEAD LEAGUE AGAIN

Rube, Whitey Leads Hitting As Locals Lose 6-5

"There today and gone tomorrow" describes Greenville's see-saw battle for the top place rung in the Coastal Plain ladder.

Rube Wilson's Greenies have been on top twice this week and yesterday they lost the pinnacle again as Williamston edged a 6-5 victory to regain the loop lead once more.

Performing on the mound for the Martins was Harry (Red) Swain, whose pitch baffles all batters occasionally. Yesterday his toss was exceedingly elusive at times; at least, that's the opinion of some of the Greenies.

Breezy Beard gave up only eight scattered hits against the Martins, with whom he played last season. Although scattered, the hits came at the opportune time and were the deciding factor in the Martins' triumph.

Allen doubled and Wilson singled in the third inning, and both scored when Whitey Heavener hit for the circuit. Williamston had scored a run early in the game and the homer by Heavener gave the locals a 3-1 lead.

The next run of the game for the Greenies came on a homer by Gracie Allen. Doubles by Wilson and Heavener in the ninth inning gave the locals another and the final run of the game.

The Martins' first run came in the second inning on two singles and an infield out. A walk by Diem, single by Tierce, and double by Earp tied the score at 3-all in the fourth.

Singles by Diem and O'Malley, a double by Heavener and a pair of infield outs gave Williamston two runs in the sixth. Doubles by Diem and O'Malley gave the Martins the winning run. This was in the eighth.

Manager Rube Wilson and Whitey Heavener got three hits apiece to feature the locals' attack. Pappy Diem batted 1000, three hits for his many trips, to feature the Martins.

Glider Crosses Lake Michigan, Lands Safely

The glider, "Dove of Peace," flown by Ted Bellak of Newark, N. J., is shown landing gracefully at Frankfort, Mich., after sailing across Lake Michigan from Sturgeon Bay, Wis., a distance of 54 miles, in one hour and two minutes. Bellak claimed a record for over-water gliding.

Paralysis Strikes Out "Iron Man"

"Larrupin' Lou" Gehrig, the "Iron Man" of professional baseball, will play no more baseball this year, at least. A thorough physical examination at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., disclosed that the famed New York Yankee star is suffering from chronic infantile paralysis, the club management announced. In this picture, Gehrig (left) smiles cheerfully as he talks with Joe McCarthy, his friend and team manager, at New York. The "Iron Man" continues on the Yanks' payroll as non-playing team captain.

Kinston Climbs Out Of Coastal Plain Cellar

Snow Hill and Tarboro divided a twin bill yesterday, with the Serpents taking the 32-hit afternoon slugfest 14-10, and the Billies forging to the front in the nightcap with a 6-5 verdict.

Tarboro's biggest handicap in the night game was Joe Yenowsky, former member of the Norfolk Tars club, who tossed for the Billies and then turned the tables and hit his mates' way to a win. It was Joe's two-run double in the eighth that produced the tying and winning runs.

Goldsboro swept both ends of a double-header with the Wilson Tubs yesterday. The first score of a one-sided affair was 8-1. The second game proved more interesting as the Bugs won 4-2.

Kinston came out of the Coastal Plain cellar for fresh air yesterday by virtue of a pair of victories over Doc Smith's New Bern Bears. Sid Stringfellow, Kinston's utility man, hurled six-hit ball as the Eagles took the afternoon affair 2-0. The night game saw a 3-2 triumph for the Eagles, who had lost five games in a row prior to yesterday's explosion.

Registration will begin at noon Saturday at Hotel Sir Walter. The fireworks will get underway with the parade of P.G.'s (initiates) on Fayetteville street at 6 p. m. The procession will halt at Memorial auditorium, where there will be a feed, followed by the "wreck." The dinner is scheduled to start at 7 o'clock.

At 10 o'clock, the grand ball will start in the Virginia Dare ballroom of Hotel Sir Walter, while at Memorial auditorium a side attraction will be the weekly barn dance sponsored by the Raleigh venture of the Forty and Eight. A short business session for the election of officers will be held Sunday morning at the Sir Walter.

Distinguished guests attending the Forty and Eight promenade will include James O. Sheppard of Edgefield, S. C., chief de chemin de fer (national head of Forty and Eight); Charles W. Arbery of Indianapolis, Ind., national secretary; Fred O. Fraser of Washington, D. C., past national head; John H. Penland of Memphis, Tenn., grand chef de gare (head of the state organization) of Tennessee; Roland McLeod, grand chef de gare of South Carolina; and Dr. Harold Weidensfeld of Richmond, grand chef de gare of Virginia.

As general chairman, Dr. Gibson has the benefit of experience gained by himself and the Raleigh venture as hosts to the recent Mid-Atlantic Promenade, which marked up an all-time high in attendance and enthusiasm.

A record-breaking throng of Legionnaires is expected to attend the department convention, and Dr.

Doors of the armory will open at 7:30 o'clock and fighting will get under way only 30 minutes after the doors are opened. This will be one of the feature boxing attractions to be held this year in this section of the state and a large attendance is expected, in that both fighters are well known to residents in this section.

WILSON BEATS JUNIORS 11-0

Visiting Left-hander Hurls Four-hit Ball

Wilson's Junior American Legion team blanked the Greenville Juniors 11-0 in a game played yesterday afternoon in the Guy Smith stadium.

Paul Flye, Greenville youth, who hurried for the Pitt entry, was reached for 13 hits as his mates made five errors to help the Wilsons lads along with their scuring spurts.

J. Wright, a left-hander, kept the locals well in hand throughout the entire game. He allowed only four hits in all nine innings as the Greenville team pounded out four hits in nine scoreless innings.

The only big blow for the locals came when Larry James hit a double. This was the only blow for the locals that was good for more than one base.

Wilson's sixth-inning six-run party came when a triple was walloped with three men on bases. Mercer, Wilson third-sacker, got a triple and two singles to feature Wilson's hitting attack, with Aycock and Herring, with two hits apiece, being runners-up.

Score:
Wilson 11 000 006 104-11
Greenville 000 000 000-0

Large Fight Card Slated In Durham

A bout to determine the heavyweight boxing championship of the southeastern states will be staged in Durham's new armory Wednesday night of next week at 9 o'clock, with Ray Matulewicz of Duke University and Hardrock Harden supplying the punches.

Handling the fight card is Add Warren, former North Carolina boxing champion, who did boxing coaching at Duke during the past year. Warren, who is well known in Greenville, advised that several bouts, totaling 34 rounds, had been arranged to provide an interesting 1940 Democratic convention almost certainly will be a pro-New Deal crowd. It will be available to President Roosevelt or a candidate of the President's choosing. That candidate may, of course, be Senator Barkley.

In event Johnson, Chandler's candidate, wins the coming primary, the Chandler delegates to the convention also may be nominally instructed to Barkley as a favorite son. But they won't be Roosevelt delegates. When they stop complimenting Barkley with a vote they will be available to the Chandler faction, and that is decidedly not New Deal. Chandler is not forgetting that President Roosevelt campaigned in person against him last year in Kentucky in order to save Barkley the administration leader in the Senate. It is already accepted by Kentuckians here that the Chandler delegates will be anti-Roosevelt delegates unless it develops before the convention that Roosevelt leaders will control it.

"This far before the primary a race even closer than a year ago is developing. Last year Barkley's organization in Louisville delivered him a 35,000 majority in the city. He won the senatorial nomination over Chandler, 300,000 to 225,000. But Barkley's city leader in Louisville is dead and his candidate as a result can't be so sure of the city's vote.

Generally throughout the state Chandler has the better organization, and the Barkley faction is handicapped this year by the probability that President Roosevelt will not come in to help.

Without control in Louisville and without Roosevelt, the 75,000 majority that went for Barkley last year could shrink out of sight.

If the above sounds complex, keep in mind that Kentucky politics is a complex business. Just to help clear up the picture, it might be added that Brown, who is Barkley's candidate, used to be a Chandler man while Johnson, now Chandler candidate, once was in an organiza-

No more than five deaths occurred in any of the other 84 counties, and the five maximum was reached in 14, leaving 70 counties in which there was an average of less than one death per month so far this year.

Of the cities and larger incorporated towns, Charlotte was the most deadly, with ten killed in the state's largest center; all out of line, however, even on a population basis with Winston-Salem, second largest city in which there were but two deaths in the five months. Fayetteville was second in fatalities, with eight, while Durham and Greensboro had seven each.

Rocky Mount was the largest city in the state reporting no deaths for the first five months, the Nash-Edgecombe capital having only a dozen injuries marked against it on the slate.

Charlotte accounted for 218 injuries, in addition to its high death toll, the only city with more than 100 injuries, though Durham's 95 pushed the century mark rather closely.

In addition to Rocky Mount there were a dozen fair-sized cities which escaped without any deaths. They were, with the injuries reported: Washington 1; Morganton 10; Kannapolis 9; Hickory 18; Shelby 5; New Bern 2; Thomasville 4; Tarboro 6; Kinston 29; Greenville 4; Spencer 3; and Wilson 15.

Cities reporting fatalities, with the injuries reported, were: Burlington 1 and 6; Asheville 3 and 69; Concord 1 and 7; Fayetteville 8 and 9; Lexington 1 and 3; Durham 7 and 95; Winston-Salem 2 and 87; Gastonia 2 and 12; Greensboro 7 and 81; High Point 2 and 24; Charlotte 10 and 218; Wilmington 1 and 13; Salisbury 2 and 12; Henderson 1 and 2; Raleigh 4 and 84; Goldsboro 1 and 13.

By counties, classified according to number of deaths, the safety score for North Carolina was:

No Deaths, no injuries—Alexander, Alleghany, Cherokee, Pamlico, Polk, Swain, Tyrrell, Yancey—8.
