CLEAR THREAT REQUIRED FOR BRITAIN'S AID

Official Says Country Not Obligated Otherwise

REVIEWS PLEDGE MADE TO POLAND

Danzig Situation Not Specifically Mentioned Either By Halifax or Chamberlain.

London, July 5.—(AP)—Richard Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today Britain was obligated to resist aggression against Poland only in the event that there was a "clear threat" to Poland's independence.

Asked if Britain's policy included resistance to any possible attempt to change the status of the Free City of Danzig, Butler referred his questioner to the "terms of our pledge to Poland, which Great Britain will certainly fulfill."

The British-French undertaking as announced last March 31 by Prime Minister Chamberlain is to lend "all support" in their power to Poland "in the event of any action which clearly threatens Polish independence and which the Polish government accordingly considered vital to resist with her national forces."

Chamberlain shortly before had declared "his majesty's government will not fail to take any steps" which may seem to them necessary and desirable to make their attitude absolutely clear.

This has already been stated in recent speeches by ministers. Despite Chamberlain's statement, some of his hearers recalled that neither he nor Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax had mentioned the Danzig situation specifically in any of their recent speeches, nor been more specific concerning Britain's pledge to support Poland in their independence was threatened.

Only Slight Loss In City Bank Fire

A blaze on the roof of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company which started shortly after the bank opened for business this morning, attracted over 100 local residents, but the flames were quickly subdued by firemen and damage was slight.

Workmen were putting hot tar on the roof of the building when the fire occurred and Fire Chief George Garner expressed the belief that it was caused by a careless smoker who was applying tar to the roof.

A bank executive said a skylight in the roof was damaged and slight damage by water was realized on the inside of the building. Banking operations were interrupted for about an hour.

Firemen were called Monday night to extinguish an automobile fire on the corner of Tenth and Evans Street. The automobile belonged to Charlie McCoy. The blaze which started under the hood, did amount to not exceeding $6.

France Pushes Efforts For A Soviet Alliance

Disappointed with Moscow's Latest Reply

Paris, July 5.—(AP)—France sent new questions to London today for proposals to Moscow in continuation of efforts to get Soviet Russia into the British-French front.

French officials expressed disappointment at Moscow's latest reply to previous British-French proposals and feared further delay.

The new French plan, the nature of which was not disclosed, was relayed to London for discussion with Britain before further steps were taken in Moscow over the question of a joint declaration of guarantees of aid to smaller nations who do not want the guarantees.

French commentators were alarmed and angry at failure to reach a quick agreement with Russia.

Former Premier Blum called for some straight "yes and no" answers from the negotiations which have been conducted in secrecy. "The hour is past," he said. "The people wait, but perhaps peace will not wait."

FOUL PLAY IN DEATH HINTED

Wife of Late Judge Crater Says Body Was Cremated

New York, July 5.—(AP)—The widow of former Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater, accused in Supreme Court today that the long missing jurist died by "external, violent or accidental means" and that his body was "disposed of by cremation." It was the first definite theory she had expressed as to his fate.

As recently as last May 11, the widow, now Mrs. Stella M. Kunz, expressed doubt as to what happened to Justice Crater after his disappearance August 6, 1930.

"I don't know what happened to him," she said on that occasion. "I believe if he were alive, I would have found some trace or clue."

It was not immediately indicated whether she had now discovered some new trace or clue as hinted in the words "disposed of by cremation."

Mrs. Kunz is suing to collect a double indemnity totalling $60,000 from the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York and the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company.

EXPECTS VOTE WILL RESTORE FDR'S POWERS

Barkley Says Powers To Be Returned To President

SENATE TO VOTE LATE AFTERNOON

Roosevelt Returns To Capitol and Will Work On Neutrality Legislation

Washington, July 5.—(AP)—Majority Leader Barkley said after a conference with President Roosevelt today he expected the Senate to approve late this afternoon legislation restoring the administration's dollar devaluation and currency stabilization powers.

A vote on the measure was scheduled for 5 p. m., the hour having been fixed early Saturday morning after a coalition of Republicans and some Democrats had filibustered it beyond Friday midnight when the monetary powers expired with the end of the fiscal year.

Administration leaders contended that although the legislation already was drawn to extend the powers before they died, approval now would have the effect of restoring them.

Bent upon getting this legislation approved and also undertaking to have the Senate pass administration-sponsored neutrality measures, the President returned to the capitol this morning from a Fourth of July holiday at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Barkley and Majority Leader Rayburn of the House conferred with him a few hours after his arrival.

Asked about prospects on the monetary legislation, Barkley said: "I think it looks all right."

"On neutrality he observed merely that Mr. Roosevelt's position had not changed. At a press conference in Hyde Park yesterday the President declared he wanted the existing arms embargo scrapped. He expressed the belief that such action would help prevent war."

Both leaders said the President's proposed $3,860,000,000 "self-liquidating" spending program would be put into full form in a few days and introduced simultaneously in both houses.

Neither floor leader would forecast a congressional adjournment date.

Meantime, the Treasury, in a sudden change of policy, decided not to issue any silver prices or make any other comments on the monetary situation before the Senate votes late this afternoon.

Three Pitt Women Painfully Injured

A three-way automobile accident on the Greenville-New Bern highway Monday night, which injured several Pitt county residents and confined Mrs. Addie Adams, Mrs. Agnes Little and Mrs. Estelle Little to Pitt General Hospital, is being investigated by the highway patrol.

Mrs. Adams received a fractured skull, lacerations and abrasions, according to Dr. J. L. Winstead, chief surgeon at the local hospital. He said that Mrs. Little received numerous lacerations and abrasions and that each suffered cerebral concussions.

Those treated for injuries but not confined to the hospital were R. E. Adams, who received lacerations of the head; R. J. Little, who suffered a back injury; and Robert Morris, Negro, who received a slashed upper lip.

SHERIFF GIVES YEAR'S REPORT

$7,277.58 Turned Over to Treasurer Of Pitt County

A statement and general summary of the office of Sheriff J. Knott Proctor from June 18, 1938, to June 25, 1939, as submitted and approved this week by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners showed that 7,368 papers had been served during this period by the department and that $7,277.58 had been turned over to J. Vance Perkins, county treasurer.

Money turned over to the Pitt treasurer was derived from the collections of fees and bills of cost. There were 118 bills of cost. It was shown that $3,263.67 was turned over to the treasurer from county court; $2,383.23 from Superior court and that $41.49 was refunded.

Papers served by the department during the last fiscal year included: Superior court and Recorder's court, 4,951; Justice of Peace and miscellaneous county papers, 107; foreign processes, 566; and pauper, 414. Pitt county tax summons during the years amounted to 661 with 682 jurors served for Pitt Superior court.

There was $4,690.95 collected in the Trust Fund account and $4,473.78 paid, which left a balance of $177.17 in the bank. An analysis of balance on partial payments on bills of cost by an order of court showed a total of $172.17. Miscellaneous items, including homestead fees, amounted to $5.00.

In a section of the statement pertaining to fees due the county, it was shown that 38 tax summons were served and cases settled at 37.5 cents each, for a combined total of $14.25. There were 682 jurors served for a total of $204.60. This left $218.85 due the sheriff for the credit fee account.

Funeral services for Gladson Nichols, 33, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home here by the Rev. Clarence F. Patrick, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, assisted by the R. V. C. B. Mashburn, Christian minister of Farmville. Burial was in the Nichols family cemetery near Bellair.

Mr. Nichols died at his home here Monday afternoon around 3 o'clock after becoming ill earlier in the afternoon.

He was born and reared in Pitt county and had lived in Greenville for several years. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Nichols.

Political Comeback For Wallace Is In Evidence

Washington, D. C., July 5.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is staging what is politically known as a comeback.

When the election returns of 1938 came pouring in to disclose heavy Republican gains in the farm belt, the stock of Secretary Wallace hit a new low. He had been given a goodly sum of money each of several years to restore the farm belt and keep it loyal to the party. Lowering prices and rising Republicans indicated that neither had been accomplished fully.

For six months after the November elections there was almost constant talk of a new farm plan to replace the whole Wallace setup. But as time wore on the plans were pigeonholed and Wallace and his colony of farm thinkers down toward the Potomac waterfront began to advance ideas of their own.

SPECIAL VOTE IN FARMVILLE

District To Decide On Two School Improvements

Voters of Farmville township will go to the polls on Friday, August 4, to cast their ballots on two proposed school improvements, a ninth month and a twelfth grade.

The propositions will be voted on separately and a voter can favor one and disapprove the other.

The election requires a special registration and all persons failing to vote after registering will be recorded against both projects.

A levy not to exceed twelve and one-half cents on the $100 valuation will be required for the ninth month and a tax not to exceed eight cents is provided for to add a twelfth grade.

The election was called after the Farmville school board had petitioned the county Board of Education, which body in turn secured and gained approval of the State School Commission. The Board of County Commissioners this week authorized the special election.

If both proposals are favored by a majority of the registered voters, the Farmville schools will have a set-up similar to that in Greenville, one of the first schools in the state to adopt the ninth month, twelfth grade system.

Registration books will be open each day from 9 a. m. until sunset and the registrar, W. M. Rollins, will be at the voting place, Pitt Furniture store, each Saturday. The books will close July 22 and July 29 will be challenge day, the vote to follow on the following Friday. The books will not be open on Sundays and holidays.

The questions will be submitted to the entire Farmville school district.

Motor Car Takes 70 Times As Many As Fireworks

By The Associated Press. The motor car killed 70 times as many persons as did fireworks as America observed the 153rd anniversary of its independence with a four-day celebration marred by more than 600 violent deaths.

A survey today listed only four lives lost by exploding fireworks, 277 sudden deaths in automobile accidents.

The total toll was at least 618, compared with 517 reported for the three-day celebration last year.

Thronging of beaches by merry-making millions accounted for the second highest number of fatalities, 183 drownings. Trains killed 29 persons. There were 36 fatal accidents, eight plane deaths and 79 dead in miscellaneous accidents.

Two fireworks deaths were caused by the premature explosions of home-made bombs or firecrackers.

Hildred Sowers, 14, of Marlin, Texas, died after a piece of tin, blown from a can placed over a firecracker, severed his jugular vein.

Ironically, Edward Fisher, 21, of Chicago, was studying to be a safety engineer, was killed when his automobile skidded off a road in Michigan. His father, Dr. H. E. Fisher, is secretary of the National Safety Council.

In the largest group tragedy, six West Virginians, including three children, were killed when their light sedan and a bus collided near Washington, Pa.

At Carman, Okla. a 28-year-old pilot and two high school students were killed when their plane dived from 1,000 feet after a wing covering ripped loose. Three persons died when their motor car tumbled 100 feet into a canyon near Alamogordo, N. M.

Lightning took several lives. It killed two bathers, man and wife, at Bay City, Mich., but spared their baby who was in the father's arms.

HOSPITAL SITE TO BE CHOSEN

Committee to Visit 16 Cities, Including Greenville

Charlotte, July 5.—(AP)—Senator Joe Blythe of Mecklenburg county announced today a special legislative committee would leave Raleigh Tuesday to visit 16 or more cities and towns to select a site for the $450,000 Eastern North Carolina tuberculosis sanatorium.

After a conference Monday in Raleigh, the committee will visit Franklinton, Henderson and Louisville Tuesday, Blythe said.

Other points on the group's itinerary include Rocky Mount, Wilson, Tarboro, Williamston, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Snow Hill, Greenville, Washington, Kinston, Wilmington, New Bern and Southport.

Other members of the committee are Rep. O. M. Mull of Cleveland county, Rep. L. L. Burgin of Henderson county.

The General Assembly has appropriated $250,000 for the project and federal funds would be sought for the balance of the cost.

COLLEGE HEAD READY TO TALK

Dr. Smith Says He Is 'Not Going to Be The Goat'

Baton Rouge, La., July 5.—(AP)—An assertion by Dr. James Monroe Smith that he was "not going to be the goat" indicated today the resigned president of Louisiana State University soon would end his residence concerning charges he embezzled $100,000 from the institution he headed for nine years.

Unable immediately to raise $50,000, Dr. Smith spent the night in the parish jail. With his wife, who was indicted as an accomplice, the genial educator was returned yesterday after a trip under guard from Canada. Mrs. Smith was released last night under $7,500 bond.

After refusing to talk with federal agents or District Attorney Dewey Sanchez, Dr. Smith suddenly asked near midnight to speak with Sanchez. Jail officials said he then declared "I am not going to be made the goat in this thing."

Sanchez had by that time retired and Sheriff N. H. De Britton did not call him.

SMALL TOWNS ARE ISOLATED

Morehead, Kentucky, Reports Heavy Loss of Life and Property; Farmers and Clearfield Also Virtually Cut Off By "Flash" Flood In Mountain Area

Morehead, Ky., July 5.—(AP)—Forty-six persons were reported drowned today in floods that followed quickly a night cloudburst and swept creeks and rivers out of their banks in the mountains of eastern Kentucky.

Thirty-eight of the dead were listed here by Postmaster W. E. Crutcher.

The State Board of Health at Louisville said it had been informed that at least eight drowned when a wall of water rushed down the gorge of the Kentucky river at Jackson. Bridges, homes, stores and school buildings were swept away, the department said.

Mrs. N. L. Wells, chairman of the Rowan county Red Cross, said the loss of life may run to 100. She also estimated there would be a thousand refugees and many requiring medical attention.

Morehead, Ky., July 5.—(AP)—A "flash" flood inundated this eastern Kentucky town today with a recorded loss of life and heavy property damage.

Kelley McNish, manager of the Ashland Home Telephone Company, said he talked briefly with the manager of the Morehead branch, who reported 27 persons drowned in the flood water. Ashland is about 60 miles east of Morehead.

This and two other Rowan county towns, Farmers and Clearfield, virtually were isolated after the waters of a creek, fed by a cloudburst, roared out of their banks. McNish said the telephone wires went out a few minutes after he talked with the Morehead manager.

A single telegraph wire from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad depot was operating, but was jammed with requests for aid. Streams between Ashland and Lexington were being routed by way of Cincinnati. Highways throughout Rowan county were reported covered by water.

The cloudburst struck shortly before midnight as residents of this town of 2,500 slept. Triplett creek soon was a seething torrent.

W. E. Crutcher, Morehead postmaster, in a brief telephone conversation before the wires went out, said, "At least 100 houses were swept from their foundations."

At Cincinnati, W. C. Devereaux, United States meteorologist, reported heavy rains through northern and eastern Kentucky. The Licking river at Farmers, he said, rose 19.8 feet in the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m.

Farmers is seven miles west of here.

Governor Chandler at Frankfort ordered state patrolmen and state highway emergency crews into the stricken county.

To The Editor:

I believe the folks in Greenville will be interested in this bit of news about two of its prominent citizens. That is why I am sending a copy of this letter to the two news publishers in your city.

Rev. Clarence J. Patrick and Mr. Vester M. Mulholland were fellow guests with me in this quaint, coastal village of Port Matilda, whose hospitable, honest and God-fearing people are engaged in deep-sea fishing for a livelihood. Rev. Patrick and Mr. Mulholland were inspired to join them on one of their fishing trips.

When the news reached the villagers, they all offered to take them in their boats and to furnish them with the necessary fishing togs. The folks in Port Matilda wanted to be particularly hospitable to them because they had seen them in church on Sunday.

Well, Mr. Editor, you would never have recognized your fellow citizens in their fishermen's regalia. I think they have some pictures which you ought to ask them about.

Last Monday morning they set out in a small, antiquated fishing boat, powered with a junk motor from a castaway Buick. The crew consisted of Murray Southern, Raymond Smith, local veteran fisherman, and of course the mates Patrick and Mulholland. They were equipped with home-made hand lines and Newfoundland squid bait.

The expedition sailed about 15 miles north by west and anchored at a point about eight fathoms deep. Here the gentlemen of the South pitched in with those of the North. After a nine-hour effort they succeeded in hauling in a cargo of cod, pollack and haddock totalling over 800 pounds. The fishermen testified to the fact that Messrs. Patrick and Mulholland caught a great bulk of the cargo themselves. This is one fish story that's bona-fide!

NAIL-THROWING PIGEONS CAUSE PUNCTURE HAZARD

Oklahoma City, Okla. — (AP) — The Rev. Ward Davis spoke to the janitor at his church and suggested he sweep nails away from beside his church building because he thought they might puncture tires. "All right," said the janitor, "but there'll be more there tomorrow." The Rev. Mr. Davis thought he was being spoofed but said nothing about it. Next day he bent over to pick up another nail. One hit him on the head. "I looked up and there was a pigeon, peeping over the edge of the roof," related Mr. Davis.

The pigeons not only were tossing nails but staples, tacks and little round washers. Fortunately, there is $11,000 in the renovating fund to repair the 50-year-old building.

Chapter 24

Reviewing The Troops
THE Saturday slated to end the game of North, South, East and West was a blue and gold arrangement notable for cloudless skies and a horrible exodus of citizenry from New York. Over the spectacle of these steaming millions, empy barking for the appearance to participate joyously in sunburn and mosquito bites, the perpetrator of this chronicle proposes to draw a merciful veil. It is his intention, rather, to leap chamois-like over the intervening hours and arrive at eight o'clock in the evening, pausing at the witching hour to review the troops, as it were, we first find that classy and diletante-ish gentleman, Mr. Van Rypper Harkness, parking his snooty Isotta-Franchini before the apartment house of Miss Isotta Franchini. The appearance of Miss Franchini, the appearance of the lightest. A flower fowered in his buttonhole and a song trembled on his lips. In fact, though Mr. Harkness was not aware of it, his demeanor was comparable to that of a lamb frisking on the fringes of a green meadow.

The reason such a comparison is tenable was the presence of an unobtrusive sedan parked across the street from Miss South's apartment house. Occupying the front seat of this vehicle were two gentlemen who had been watching the progress of Mr. Harkness with considerable interest. As he disappeared into the house the man behind the wheel, a short, powerfully-built individual, spat professionally out of the window of the car, took off his gray felt hat and flamed himself with it. "Well, dere he goes," observed Mr. Ape Coletti. "Wot's next, guv'nor?"

In the seat beside him Chiseler Jennings made a gesture of annoyance. "You have your orders, Coletti," he said testily. "Wait till they come out. Then follow that car. And meanwhile, you'll oblige me by keeping silent. I want to think."

"Sposin' I lose it?" inquired Mr. Coletti, in no humor to oblige. "Lose what?" said the Chiseler vaguely.

"De car," explained Mr. Coletti, surprised at having to plumb the ABC's. "Dat hot-toy jay-wagon over dere at de coib. Sposin'..."

The Chiseler flung an irritated arm heavenward. "Why is it he moaned, 'that I have to undertake a mission like this accompanied by a splay-footed Wop with a head full of saw-dust? You're a fool, Coletti. Now stop supposing and shut up. As for the car, don't lose it!"

At this point the figures of Miss Dorothy South and Miss Van Harkness appeared in the lighted entrance of the apartment house. The Chiseler's left hand gripped Coletti's knee hard. In silence, they gazed across the street.

So far as could be seen over the width of the thoroughfare, Miss South was gazing at her fellow participant in gala proceedings. A black evening gown of the clinging variety enveloped her svelte figure. The upper portion of this garment was concealed by a white coat of operatic aspect. Miss South clutched the folds about her neck and glared at Coletti, as yet, had done nothing constructive toward keeping the Isotta in view. Well, come on, you dumb jingy. Get going. What are you, planted here?"

This admonished the Ape made a wild dive for mechanisms. His feet trod on starter and clutch almost simultaneously and his right hand strove toward the gear shift. The sedan bounced away from the curb with a banshee-like screech. Before settling back in his seat, the Chiseler permitted himself one more comment.

"That's right, dear," he said acidly. "Strip the gears! All we need now is for you to put the car on the blink."

Jumbo, The Weight Maker
IT now falls to the unhappy lot of this chronicler to report a perfectly sickening conversation that took place between two moon-struck members of the younger generation on that popular Long Island highway known as the Jersey Turnpike.

Jumbo: Darling?
Luella: Yes, Angel-Pie.
Jumbo: I can hardly believe it, sweetness. I think I must be dreaming.
Luella: You're not dreaming, lambie. It's true. Love your Luella.

Jumbo: Boy, do I!
Luella: How much?
found: Quite a few Mexican pennies, a French centavo piece, a Canadian dime, a Los Angeles street car token, an Arizona sales tax token, two trade checks, several washers and a lead slug.

Oh, you see a couple of good old copper cents, the kind for which the machine was made.

TWO-YEAR-OLD TRAVELER HAS 25,000-MILE RECORD
Evansville, Ind. — (AP) — Though only two years old, Richard Carl

Jumbo: This much. (Business of stopping car. Bustle of monkey business. Pause. Long Pause. Discreet Pause.) Luella (finally): Oughtn't we be getting on, sweetheart?
Jumbo: I don't want to go any place. I'm in Heaven right now.
Luella: But the—the party?
Jumbo: Oh, yes, the party. I forgot about the party. Love me, honey?
Luella: Uh-huh.
Jumbo: Just one more, then. Just one.

Luella: Mmph—mmp! Gweedy will piggy back on my monkey. Luella: Aw, please. Jes' one. Luella (a woman weakening): We—ee—ll... (More monkey business)
Jumbo (softly): Who's my baby?
Luella: It better be me. Or mama spank.

Luella: Honeybunch.
Jumbo: Sugarplum.
Luella: Lambkins. (And so on ad nauseam)

And this was the lost estate to which Jumbo Cutler, ever afterwards known as Jumbo, the Weight-Maker, had fallen. For, despite his pitiful digressions at the bar of one, Momyhan; despite the fact that, shortly before the weighing-in, he had eaten a bullock (whole) with side dishes; and despite the fact that Tacks Adams had basely deserted him at the sweat-box with the job half-finished, Jumbo had passed the acid test of the drugstore scales come laude. By what miracle this had come to pass, Jumbo himself was unprepared to say. But come what may, he was wholly satisfied. It was not for such as he, he reasoned, to probe the mysteries of the gods. And the gods had given him a fifteen pound weight reduction, according to the drugstore scales, and Luella West. Wherefore Jumbo had bestowed a fond, if dated, look upon the drugstore scales and a fonder one upon Miss Luella West. How it had ever come about, he didn't know. But he supposed that, if truth were told, the Cutlers were just born to win, that was all.

My Hero
THINKING back now upon his triumph in the pharmacy, Jumbo was minded to indulge in a little discreet boasting.

"I'll bet, sweetheart," he said, starting the car, "that you never thought I'd get that poundage off." Luella's eyes shone brightly through the gloom.

"Why, darling," she said softly, "I never doubted it for a moment." Jumbo laughed, a conqueror's laugh.

"That's the spirit!" he said. "At the old fight. Never doubt me. When I set out to do a thing I do it." "Yes, dear," said Luella dutifully.

"For instance," Jumbo continued, "you stipulated that I take off ten pounds. Well, just to show you, I checked off fifteen, didn't I?"

"Yes, dear," said Luella. "Why, do you know," went on Jumbo, "that I spent half of yesterday afternoon sitting in a sweater—a baking box just to play it safe? A pal of mine—'you'll meet him tonight—was running the box. And what does the ape-face do with the middle of everything and leave me cooking there. But for one of the club's bell-hops who heard me hollering, I'd have suffocated."

"You poor darling," said Luella tremulously, as becomes a bride-to-be.

"Point I'm trying to make is," said Jumbo, "I'd go through fire for you." He paused, remembering. "I've already done it."

"Dearest," breathed Luella in a my-hero voice.

"Of course," Jumbo regained his spirit of devil-may-care. "A little thing like 'kipping'—off fifteen pounds of weight—was just a breeze. I knew it—I rather dallied with the assignment just to make it look hard." He suddenly became a one-arm driver. "But I played it right down the alley at the finish, didn't I?"

"Sweetheart," sighed Luella, "you're wonderful."

But, under cover of the darkness, she smiled. There was not the slightest reason, she perceived, for enlightening her prospective liege lord of the fact that she had visited the drugstore two hours before the appointed time for the weighing-in. Neither was there occasion to explain that she had waved a five-dollar bill before the eyes of a commercially-minded drug clerk. The combination of the five-dollar bill and Luella's forceful personality had done the trick. With characteristic clerkish unscrupulousness, the clerk had tampered with the mechanism of the scales and achieved a condition whereby a bull walrus, leaping from the contrivance, would have felt justified in attempting to imitate a springbok. As a maker of scales to weigh light, this clerk had surpassed her wildest expectations. It was a shame that such ability and resourcefulness should go forever unpublicized. But far more politic, thought Luella, for Jumbo to think that he had striven and conquered to win her. Of such stuff is made the woman who sees to it that she gets her man.

Continued tomorrow.

Smoke In Her Eyes
MR. TACKS ADAMS, in a glowing mood, sat in that refuge of song and festivity known as The Heel Tap, a glass of Scotch and soda before him was referred to only occasionally and, even then, sparingly. Mr. Adams recognized the need for the first stimulus imparted by alcohol and the further need of drawing the alkalic liquid from the throat to the tip of a sea nestling on a bed of itch-powder. Simply put, Mr. Adams was chafing.

The cause of this chafing was the fact that Miss Patricia North had not yet appeared on the floor of the Heel Tap. Mr. Adams watched the clock, but the minutes must elapse ere this salubrious event would occur. But to a man in the Adams condition, ten minutes are ten aeons. Mr. Adams looked at his watch again and put in another aeon of chafing.

It is possible that Tacks might have set a new all-time record for chafing had a vision of three automobiles, boring their respective ways into Long Island, been vouchsafed to him. He would then have perceived the cars of Van Harkness and Jumbo Cutler, and he would have perceived a vehicle piloted by Mr. William Steel, upon the rear seat of which the handsomely-bribed East brothers departed.

Tacks, however, was unaware of these conditions though, in a dim way, he may have perceived their existence. But at the moment he had never perceived a vehicle piloted by Mr. William Steel, upon the rear seat of which the handsomely-bribed East brothers departed.

The hand beneath the tablecloth opened. Something dropped to the floor. There was the small sound of glass breaking, inaudible in the flow of music. Quickly Tacks scuffed his foot over an unseen hell-broxy in the Heel Tap. He came around and then, to his post, came an acrid stench. At the same instant a cloud of smoke swept up from beneath the table.

It was Mr. Adams' moment and he converted it handsomely. Pushing back his chair, he leapt noisily to his feet. "Fire!" he roared. "Fire!" There were few more effective ways of stampeding the genus homo than by following the news of a conflagration near at hand. With the echo of Tacks' roar still causing wall-brackets, windows and glassware to jitter, pandemonium broke loose in The Heel Tap. With one accord the patronage was on its feet, overturning chairs and tables in its haste and excitement. Men shouted. Women screamed. In the midst of the hubbub was everywhere, thick, acrid, visibility-impairing smoke. This smoke arose in wafting clouds from at least three distinct parts of the night club. The beautiful glassware which had been occupied by Mr. Tacks Adams. But no one seemed interested in discovering its sources. The custom of The Heel Tap was not, at this point, investigation—minded. It exhibited, rather, a pronounced inclination to evade the premises.

When Mr. Adams' ringing cry of fire first sounded, a high note had been on the point, of faring forth from Miss Paiky North's larynx. And then, quite suddenly, its travel aspirations were cut short by a gulp when startled. Paiky's gulp, however, was such as to win commendation from Mrs. Emily Post. It was a gulp of extreme delicacy and refinement, absolutely justifiable under the circumstances. But, a day or two ago, it was a gulp of song for a row of radiator valves.

For the space of two seconds Miss North remained rooted to the floor with the spotlight still playing over her. Then, even before general illumination pervaded The Heel Tap, a figure burst upon her from out of the shadow.

"Quick!" he barked. "We've got to get out of here." And while she was still recognizing him as that ubiquitous Adams person, Tacks scooped her up like a loose ball.

Insane Fool!
MISS PACKY NORTH stood five feet and six inches without benefit of footwear. She had wide shoulders and well-molded arms. Her legs were long and straight and beautifully proportioned. She was the sort of girl who permits her clothing to be gentle winds. But tonight the demeanor of Mr. Tacks Adams was as that of the hurricane.

In fact, Mr. Adams was inspired almost to fanaticism. As if Miss North possessed the tonnage of a mere kitten, he sped with her toward the door.

At first Paiky was too startled to register protest. Her mouth, which had been open for purposes of song when the shambles started, remained open for purposes of astonishment. Then, as she felt herself being borne swiftly across the dance floor, she recovered. A protest poised on her lips.

But before she could deliver it Mr. Adams stopped suddenly, as if equipped with four-wheel brakes. With the cry of fire Dmitri, the colossal and bewhiskered doorman who let charm to the exterior of The Heel Tap, had, he hastily summoned inside. It was a foolish notion on th, part of the unknown summoner. Invited to participate in a tug-of-war or a building-lifting contest, Dmitri might have acquitted himself with credit. But where the situation called for clear logic thinking, he was distinctly behind the eight-ball. As a consequence, his presence merely added chaos to chaos. And when he came to the attention of Mr. Adams, he was dashing hither and yon about the smoke-filled Heel Tap after the manner of one who saves the napkins while the nesters burns.

Mr. Adams paused, under the dumfounded burden of Miss Paiky North. The broad back of Dmitri loomed before him, even as the Alps may have loomed before Hannibal. Into the eyes of Mr. Adams there came a wolfish expression. He felt like a Sicilian about to close a vendetta with honors.

Dmitri moved suddenly. It was his obvious intention to go elsewhere in a hurry. And, diving into the arms of Mr. Adams, he came to a halt. He was in the direction of elsewhere. Mr. Adams inserted his foot between the Dmitrian ankles and gave it a dextrous twist. Dmitri rose into the air, descended with grace, slid on his chin across a table and wound up in a plate of broken liver and brochette. The Adams honor was avenged.

Tacks, however, did not have time to remain and gloat over his fallen adversary. Greeting Miss Paiky North, he continued on toward the door. "Put me down, you insane fool," hissed Miss North, into the portside ear of Mr. Adams.

But Tacks had reached the entrance of the night club. The head start, which superior knowledge had given him at the outset, had been dissipated by the time consumed in disposing of Joe Banks, alias Dmitri. Consequently, the realm adjacent to the Heel Tap's door was now filled with a conglomeration of choking and excited individuals of both sexes, most of whom were fighting madly to gain the green pastures of Fifty-seventh Street.

Greenies Lose Five Straight, But Still Lead League

JULY 4 FATAL TO GREENVILLE

Over 3,000 See Wilson's First Night Game

Greenville extended its losing streak to five straight losses over the holidays, but defeats sustained by Snow Hill enabled the locals to remain in the upper berth.

Wilson started its first night game of the city's history with a turnout exceeding 3,000 at Wilson last night and to top off the festivities, the Tobs handed the Greenies a 9-5 defeat.

In a Fourth of July game played here yesterday afternoon, the Wilson team turned back the Greenies 7-5 in a contest which saw each team produce 13 hits apiece. However, the visitors took advantage of Greenville errors to win the game.

Rube's bow couldn't do anything with the Williamson team Monday night. They collected only two hits in a 4-0 shutout. This was the same score of the day before and only two hits were garnered in that affair.

Hits were plentiful in last night's game at Wilson, with the most thrilling features being round-trippers by Biershenk in the second inning and another by Manager Frank Rodgers in the third. Frank Drantz hurled for the Tobs, limiting the locals to nine safeties. Spence and Malone gave the Tobs 11 hits.

With the Tobs leading 7-2, Greenville made a severe effort to go ahead in the ninth inning here yesterday afternoon in a verse that produced a trio of tallies. King, batting for Yent, walked. Allen singled. King scored on Christopher's single and Black's double to right center scored Allen and Christopher.

Gracie Allen collected a double and three singles in five trips to feature the locals' hitting yesterday afternoon. Whitey Heavener got three hits in four trips last night. In Monday night's game Morris Wilson, who allowed one hit in six innings after relieving Don King, and Gracie Allen got a hit apiece for the locals' only safeties of the entire game against Williamson.

Greenville will play Tarboro here tonight in a game starting at 8:15. The box scores:

Harrison Writes Sports Editor About Ball Club

Sports Editor, Daily Reflector.

During the last few days when the home team has been slipping there are doubtless some who feel the baseball world has come to a end and all has gone to pot, but it seems to me things are not nearly so bad as they might appear.

Being confined to the house today with a slight infection, and time hanging heavily on my hands, I thought it well to mention some things for our cheerful consideration. I am doing this of my own volition, as a mere fan who likes to see a good ball game—win or lose.

The baseball club public lives for today, and we so frequently pay much attention to things of the day that we lose sight of the things that really are. I would like for us all to remember, first, that on July 5, 1938—one year ago—Greenville was in seventh place and today is on top. That is some better, and don't forget to remember that, second, the whole team deserves credit for being on top. In the early part of the season when everything 14-1 just begun to run smoothly, the casualties commenced—and they have continued until the present. Scarcely a week has passed without

WINNERS TAKE TWO STRAIGHT

All Losers Lose Two In Coastal Plain Play

There were plenty of explosions but no injuries of any consequence in the Coastal Plain League yesterday as all the teams played two games apiece.

Wilson defeated Greenville 7-5 in an afternoon affair, and 9-5 at night to top off its Fourth of July celebration.

Goldsboro made it two straight over Snow Hill yesterday to keep the Billies settled in their second-place perch. The Bugs backed up Don Kepler's two-hit hurling and won 2-0 in the afternoon. They hammered the Billies for 14 hits at night to turn in a 11-3 triumph.

New Bern took a lease on the services of Jim McMullen, former Greenville and Kinston player, and to show his appreciation McMullen edged a 3-2 win over Kinston yesterday afternoon. The Bears used Bill Hamons against the Eagles last night for another 3-2 verdict. It was Hamons' sixth straight win.

Williamston defeated Tarboro 11 to 4 in the afternoon and 7-2 at night. The Martins produced 7 runs in the fourth inning to clinch the win in the afternoon game. Three errors and 13 hits made it easy for the Martins to win in the nightcap.

One of the most unusual features of play in the League yesterday was that every winning team took both games.

Play Tonight

Play will be resumed tonight in the Greenville softball league after nearly a week of no play.

Several contests scheduled for last week were deferred on account of rain and those for the first part of the present week were postponed because of the Fourth of July holiday.

The first game tonight will be played by R. C. Cola and Double Cola, with the second being staged by Tadlock Insurance and Carolina Dairy. Games are also set for Thursday and Friday nights.

POLICE USE MOVIE CAMERA TO BLAST TRAFFIC ALIBIS

Sacramento, Calif. — (AP) — The California motorist who passes another car on a dangerous curve or otherwise misbehaves may now be faced with an indisputable record of his faults.

Mounted behind the windshield of a California state patrol car is a 16mm. movie camera which operates automatically at the press of a button. When the officer at the wheel sees any "funny business" taking place on the highway in front of him he sets it in operation.

Buttons and the Man

London. — (AP) — A boom in the sales of men's trench coats is due to the "discovery of young men that their girl friends like a uniform," says the Wholesale Textile Association.

POLITICAL COMEBACK FOR WALLACE IS IN EVIDENCE

was a quick but modulated yap about the wheat subsidy but the cotton subsidy divided even the cotton people, some for it some against it, and some against the type of direct subsidy which Wallace proposed. Many feared it would wreck prices for the vast bulk of cotton now in storage.
But what happened after all this? The appropriations he requested were increased in several instances. What the House shaved off here and there the Senate added in fuller measure.

wrote "Grapes of Wrath" a hearty novel about the dispossessed farmers desperate and starving along the California ditch banks. It became a sort of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to bestir sympathy and action for these 400,000 families driven by drought and debt from their mid-western farms.

To care for them, the administration asked $123,000,000, the money to be used both as relief and as a means of receding many back on their farms or other land. The House approved the full sum and the Senate proposed to push it up to $140,000,000.

More and More Aid
In addition, $40,000,000 was advanced to the same unit for purchases of farms for landless farmers, under a separate category.
Under the Commodity Credit Corporation several hundred million dollars may be lent to bolster prices of wheat, cotton, corn and tobacco, a conservative estimate putting this at $200,000,000.

The reorganization bill placed Rural Electrification under Secretary Wallace, with $20,000,000 to spend. And the sprawling farm credit administration was burned together under his supervision.
Altogether he may have authority to pour out, or lend, almost as much money as WPA, which makes him one of the two top-ranking disbursers.

It may or may not have political significance for his personally. He would like to be president, no doubt, or even vice president. Six months ago he wouldn't have had a smattering chance at either. Now the climate has changed. Congress has given him about everything he asked. The wheat situation is showing signs of improvement and things are being done for cotton.
It is not a bad comeback for a half year.

Federation Plans Hold Annual Meet

Raleigh, July 5 - (AP) - The executive committee of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation will meet tomorrow at Williamston to set the date and place of the annual meeting of the federation and complete plans for the July 20 Windsor peanut meeting.

E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the federation, said today that Congressman Kerr (D-N. C.) had said he would speak at Windsor and Congressmen Cooley and Warren, both from eastern North Carolina, had tentatively accepted invitations, dependent upon congressional activities. Milo Perkins, federal surplus commodity corporation president, was also invited.

wrote "Grapes of Wrath" a hearty novel about the dispossessed farmers desperate and starving along the California ditch banks. It became a sort of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to bestir sympathy and action for these 400,000 families driven by drought and debt from their mid-western farms.

To care for them, the administration asked $123,000,000, the money to be used both as relief and as a means of receding many back on their farms or other land. The House approved the full sum and the Senate proposed to push it up to $140,000,000.

More and More Aid
In addition, $40,000,000 was advanced to the same unit for purchases of farms for landless farmers, under a separate category.
Under the Commodity Credit Corporation several hundred million dollars may be lent to bolster prices of wheat, cotton, corn and tobacco, a conservative estimate putting this at $200,000,000.

The reorganization bill placed Rural Electrification under Secretary Wallace, with $20,000,000 to spend. And the sprawling farm credit administration was burned together under his supervision.
Altogether he may have authority to pour out, or lend, almost as much money as WPA, which makes him one of the two top-ranking disbursers.

It may or may not have political significance for his personally. He would like to be president, no doubt, or even vice president. Six months ago he wouldn't have had a smattering chance at either. Now the climate has changed. Congress has given him about everything he asked. The wheat situation is showing signs of improvement and things are being done for cotton.
It is not a bad comeback for a half year.

He Would Organize 'Middle Class'

Walter B. Pitkin, Columbia University professor and author of "Life Begins at 40," is shown addressing a meeting at Elyria, Ohio, at which he launched his movement to organize the "League of the Middle Class." He exhorted his audience to unite against the "predatory rich and the predatory poor." The professor said his movement is destined to grow in to "the next American Revolution."

Baptist World Congress To Be Held In Ball Park

umpire calls the last out the night of July 21, workmen will start hauling a pipe organ into place back of second base at the Atlanta Baseball Park.
Along with the organ they will wheel out a 40-by-80-foot speakerstand, topped with a green and white awning. Two grand pianos will be put up on the stand and a relay of powerful loud speakers mounted above the awning.
Shortly after noon, July 22, the setting will be complete to open what has been called the "world's largest 1939 religious gathering."
It will be the week-long Sixth Baptist World Congress, expected to draw 50,000 delegates representing more than 16,000,000 Baptists in 70 nations. The central sessions will be held in the ball park because no other available meeting place is large enough for the throng expected.
At one side of the speakers' platform an 18-by-36-foot first aid station is to be set up. Two ambulances, six nurses and at least one doctor will be on hand.
Dr. Louie D. Newton, general chairman of arrangements, explained:
"It will be reassuring to the tens of thousands thronging the stadium to see before them at all times facilities for expert care in the case of heat prostration or illness."
Speakers will face the park grandstand and a crescent of 10,000 extra seats, down front, making places for 32,000 in all.
Many of the representatives will be clad in their national costumes and Indians, Nigerians, Japanese, Chinese and Turks will rub elbows with Scots, Finns, Dutchmen and other Europeans.
Atlanta Baptists have been busy for two years making plans for the meeting.

Peggy Joyce Williams Wins Screen Contest

Peggy Joyce Williams, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Williams, former Greenville residents, was presented with a silver loving cup recently after being chosen "Little Miss Burlington" in a screen-talent contest held at Burlington and sponsored by the merchants of that city.
Peggy will compete in a district contest to be held in Clarksville, Va., July 19, at which contestants from North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia will be entered in the judging. A winner of this contest would be eligible to participate for national honors.

Police Officers Here Report Quiet Fourth

An unusually quiet July Fourth holiday was observed in Greenville and Pitt county yesterday, according to records at the offices of the sheriff and police headquarters.
Sheriff J. Knott Proctor said his department did not have a single call over the holiday and not a single person was booked at police headquarters. Chief George Clark said it was an unusually quiet Fourth.
After a busy Sunday at police headquarters, only two persons were booked on Monday, these being white men charged with drunkenness.
