MAY POSTPONE FINAL ACTION ON NEUTRALITY

Would Delay Legislation Until Next Session

SENATE BATTLE CLOSELY DRAWN

Proposal Would Insure Prompt Consideration Should Special Session Be Called

Washington, July 10.—(AP)—As a compromise in the closely-drawn Senate battle over neutrality legislation, a suggestion was put forward in some quarters today to make the controversial subject the first order of business whenever Congress reconvenes.

This would assure President Roosevelt of prompt consideration if he should call a special session before January.

Administration forces were silent pending a showdown meeting tomorrow of the Senate Foreign Relations committee. At that time opponents of the administration bill to repeal the arms embargo against warring nations are expected to move that no action be taken on neutrality proposals during this special session.

The 21-member committee is sharply divided on the issue and both sides waged a vigorous week-end drive for the support of two uncommitted Senators—Gillette (D-Iowa) and George (D-Ga.). Neither would indicate his attitude publicly.

The committee's decision is expected to show whether the legislation can wind up their business in two or three weeks, or whether Senate debate will prolong the sessions into late summer.

Mr. Tripp, a farmer, was born and reared in the Winterville community. He had spent his entire life in that community with the exception of a few years spent in the Veneboro community.

Medical Meeting Plans Announced

Dr. F. P. Brooks of this city today announced that the semiannual meeting of the Second District Medical Society, of which Dr. N. Thomas Bennett, Pitt county health officer, is president, will be held Thursday, July 13, at the Atlantic Beach Hotel, Atlantic Beach.

Dr. Brooks said that scientific papers would be presented by Dr. Otis Johnson, Morehead City and by Dr. Newsome P. Battle of Rocky Mount, who is guest speaker for the program.

A surf-bathing and refreshment period will be held from 4 until 7 o'clock on the day of the meeting and the regular business program will get under way following a supper being held at 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

"All members and other physicians in the district are cordially urged to be present," said Dr. Brooks, "and since the summer meetings are always chiefly social and Atlantic Beach is extremely popular, it is anticipated that the meeting will be largely attended."

The Second District Medical Society embraces Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Hyde, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pitt and Washington counties.

A prehistoric trade route has been traced by geographers, running across Europe from Denmark to northern Italy.

Confession Reported Obtained In 'Torso Murder'

Authorities at Cleveland were spurred on in their investigation of that city's 12 "torso murders" by the arrest of Frank Dolzal, an unemployed bricklayer, who Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell said confessed killing Mrs. Florence Polillo, 42, third of the decapitated victims, in 1936. The sheriff quoted Dolzal as saying he slew the woman in an argument over money. Here Dolzal (left) is shown in custody at Cleveland. At the right is Sheriff O'Donnell and in the center is Deputy Mike Kilbane.

SILVER PRICE IS CUT AGAIN

Washington, D. C., July 10.—(AP)—The Treasury cut its silver price again today, setting a price of 35 cents an ounce.

This figure was sufficiently above the London silver market price of 33.94 cents to enable shipping of the metal across the Atlantic for the first time in about two weeks.

The 35 cents represented a reduction of 1.75 cents from the last quoted price, Friday. With the London market at 33.84 cents, and since it costs only about one-half of one cent per ounce to ship silver across the ocean, it became possible to buy silver in London and ship it here for sale to the United States Treasury.

Officials would not say what the disparity in the new Treasury and London prices meant, but some observers commented that the difference might mean that the Treasury once more would intervene to stabilize the world's silver market.

Diversified Program Set For Test Farm Field Day

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, July 10.—Combining education and instruction, pleasure and profit, with serious studies interspersed with brass band music and an old-fashioned picnic, the Blackland Test Farm at Wenaona will observe its fourteenth annual Farmers Field Day, Thursday, July 13.

Men folks will monopolize the morning program, which begins at 10 o'clock, but the ladies will have their inning in the afternoon while the men stage a horse and mule pulling contest and look over the live stock and experimental fields.

The principal address of the day will be delivered by Hon. William B. Rodman, Jr., prominent attorney and state senator from Washington, N. C. He will be presented by W. Kerr Scott, commissioner of agriculture.

Swanson Rites

Washington, D. C., July 10.—(AP)—Congress, President Roosevelt and the Supreme court joined today in final tribute to Claude A. Swanson, late secretary of the navy, with a state funeral in the Senate chambers.

With bowed heads, they heard the chaplain of the Senate and House perform brief and simple funeral ceremonies over the flag-draped casket.

Expected To Be Taken Into Administration Family

Washington, D. C., July 10.—(AP)—Stephen Early, a White House secretary, told reporters today he would "not be at all surprised" if, sooner or later, Paul V. McNutt was not found "somewhere in the administration."

McNutt, former governor of Indiana and now American high commissioner of the Philippines, has been mentioned as a possible head for the new federal security agency when he retires from his Philippine post.

Lending additional credence to reports he might be offered the job was the fact that President Roosevelt invited him to a 15-minute conference at the White House today—the second within five days.

Early said he was unable to say where or when McNutt might be brought into the administration.

Asked whether he had the secretaryship of the navy in mind, Early replied he had "nothing at all in mind."

Questioned as to why McNutt might want to give up the high commissionership—and the former governor has said he would resign—Early said he would rather let McNutt explain for himself. He added he had seen no formal letter of resignation from the commissioner.

FOUR ARE HURT IN CAR WRECKS

Only Major Accidents In Pitt Over Week-end

Three residents of Washington, N. C., and a Pitt county man are in Pitt General Hospital here suffering painful injuries received in week-end accidents in the county, the State Highway Patrol reported today.

Dr. J. L. Winstead, chief surgeon at the hospital, said that Mrs. J. L. Marshburn is suffering a fractured collar bone and ribs, Mr. Marshburn received fractured ribs, and that J. T. Bragden received a fractured jaw and ribs, but their injuries are not regarded as serious.

The Marshburns and Bragden were injured late Saturday night in an automobile accident on the Greenville-Farmville highway when the automobile in which they were riding struck a truck belonging to a Henderson firm, according to Patrolman C. R. Williams, investigating.

Williams explained that the truck, driven by D. I. Langston and in charge of Howard Dorsey, Henderson men, was parked on the main portion of the highway and that the car in which the Marshburns and Bragden were riding struck the rear of the truck, demolishing the passenger automobile. Williams said that Langston and Dorsey are charged with parking on the highway.

Huober Tripp, Pitt county man, is in the hospital suffering a painful back injury received late yesterday afternoon when the car in which he was riding left the Greenville-New Bern highway several miles from this city and struck a ditch. Eddie Barber, riding in the same automobile, received minor injuries.

Highway Patrolman W. W. Massengill is investigating the latter accident. It was revealed that Tripp was driving the automobile, but no charges have been preferred pending completion of an investigation by highway patrolmen.

Sam George, Negro, was indicted under two separate counts. He was given a 30-day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of $5 to be applied on the costs, but was bound over to the next session of Pitt Superior court under a $200 bond on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny.

Randolph Parker, Negro, adjudged guilty in a case charging him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of whiskey, was given a six-months sentence, suspended upon payment of $50 and costs and to pay $30 to the prosecuting witness.

J. T. Bland was adjudged not guilty in a case charging him with reckless driving.

Silas Harris, Negro, charged with reckless driving, was found guilty and ordered to serve a 60-day road sentence, suspended upon payment of $10 and costs.

Experts For Tour Announced Today

A complete roster of farm experts who will accompany the third annual farm and home tour in Pitt county on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, July 12 and 13, was announced today by R. R. Bennett, county farm agent.

It was explained that H. B. James, assistant farm management specialist, and L. I. Case, beef cattle specialist, would go with the tourists both Wednesday and Thursday for lecture demonstrations. Both are from State College.

The farm experts traveling with the tourists Wednesday, besides James and Case, are Dr. R. F. Poole and Dr. Luther Shaw, plant pathologists from State College, and E. G. Moss and J. F. Bullock from Oxford Tobacco Experiment station.

Bennett said the tobacco experiment station experts will discuss tomatillo diseases, concentrating on Granville wilt and black shank at one of the earlier stops in the morning on the first day of the tour.

The first election returns to be broadcast by radio were those announcing the election of President Harding in 1920.

THREE BILLION LENDING BILL IS PRESENTED

Senator Barkley Tells Of The Proposed Program

NO NEW SET-UPS ARE CONSIDERED

Distribution Of Fund, Through RFC, Is Announced By Administrative Authorities

Washington, July 10.—(AP)—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, told of proposed legislation today to carry out a new $2,000,000,000 lending program.

The legislation, sponsored by the administration, calls for the creation of no new government agencies, and most of the financing would be handled through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Funds would be made available as follows: Non-federal public works "of a character which will return to the federal government its investments in them, $350,000,000; self-liquidating express, post roads and highway improvements, $750,000,000; rolling stock and shipping equipment for lease to railroads, $500,000,000; rural electrification loans, $460,000,000; plus $400,000,000 already appropriated; self-liquidating farm tenancy loans, $500,000,000, plus not more than $100,000,000 of funds already appropriated; loans through the Export-Import bank, $100,000,000.

The total did not include an already projected increase of $800,000,000 in borrowing authority of the United States Housing Authority.

The lending programs would continue separately over periods running to a maximum of eleven years.

President Roosevelt originally requested a $500,000,000 farm lending program, but this was cut to an additional $100,000,000 for the Export-Import bank after congressional opposition developed.

The legislation was introduced shortly afterwards in the House, where Chairman Steagall (D-Ala.) of the Banking committee, said his group expected to start hearings by the end of this week and to wind them up in a day or two.

John Perker, Negro, was ordered to serve a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs, after being convicted in a case charging him with drunkenness.

Harry Atkinson, Negro, charged with operating a motor vehicle at an excessive rate of speed, was ordered to pay $5 to be applied on the costs.

Dave Creech, white, was ordered to serve a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs, after being convicted on a charge of drunkenness.

Robert Johnson, Negro, found guilty in a case charging him with trespassing, was ordered to pay the costs of court or serve a 30-day sentence.

Sam George, Negro, was indicted under two separate counts. He was given a 30-day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of $5 to be applied on the costs, but was bound over to the next session of Pitt Superior court under a $200 bond on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny.

Randolph Parker, Negro, adjudged guilty in a case charging him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of whiskey, was given a six-months sentence, suspended upon payment of $50 and costs and to pay $30 to the prosecuting witness.

J. T. Bland was adjudged not guilty in a case charging him with reckless driving.

Silas Harris, Negro, charged with reckless driving, was found guilty and ordered to serve a 60-day road sentence, suspended upon payment of $10 and costs.

Group Of WPA Workers Don't Mind Longer Hours

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, July 10.—There has been little expression of dissatisfaction among WPA workers here of the longer hours imposed by new regulations effective July 1. The one group which is most seriously affected has perhaps complained less than any others. That is the Federal Writers Project group.

Coming in the highest paid brackets, these workers have drawn a minimum of $66 a month for 110 hours work. They will get the same pay for 130 hours, which reduces the hourly rate more than for any other classification of WPA workers.

However, as explained by George Laurence Andrews, supervisor of the Raleigh district in the Federal Writers Project, the writers do not mind as few of them ever worked by the clock anyhow. That sort of creative work is not susceptible to hour regulation, and most of the writers had put in far more than 110 hours which they reported for the payroll.

Common laborers, many of them drawing as low as $28 or $30 per month for 110 to 126 hours will find their pay cut less in percentage than any others, but such complaint has been heard has come largely from this classification.

There is in this immediate section no probability of strikes or serious difficulty, and the state WPA officials do not anticipate serious trouble anywhere in the state. One or two points have reported dissatisfaction among skilled workers, but it is not expected to reach anything like the proportions reported from northern states.

Garner Signs Monetary Bill

The hard-fought administration monetary bill, enabling the treasury to resume silver purchasing and continuing President Roosevelt's power to devalue the dollar, started on its way to the White House when Vice-President Garner affixed his signature shortly after the measure was passed by the Senate. Looking over Garner's shoulder is Senator Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader.

Protest Sent To Poland By Danzig Authorities

Violations of Frontier Alleged In Statement

Danzig, July 10.—(AP)—Free City authorities drafted a protest today to Poland against an alleged "violation of the frontier" by three Polish soldiers.

Police charged that shortly before dawn two Polish privates and a non-commissioned officer crossed the frontier bridge over the Vistula river and menaced Danzig customs officials with a rifle.

The customs officials, they said, held their grounds and the Poles were persuaded to return to Poland.

A Danzig Nazi newspaper described the incident as a "Polish provocation."

It came in the wake of a defiant Nazi demand for removal of a Polish military depot on the strategic Westerplatte at the mouth of the Vistula.

"Away with this Polish ammunition dump at our front door," was in effect the demand made by Danzig's Nazi party leader, Albert Forster.

Falkland Boy Bitten By Poisonous Reptile

Russell Lee Newton, 11-years-old son of Mrs. Susie Newton of near Falkland, was reported as doing nicely after being bitten by a popular-leaf moccasin Saturday. Dr. David Moore of Falkland, who treated the child, said his condition was satisfactory and the boy was out of danger.

The youth was bitten on the right big toe, just above the nail as he was running along a path with bushes on each side. The snake was found and killed.

STATEMENT BY CHAMBERLAIN

Prime Minister Holds Present Status Of Free City As Either Basically Unjust Or Illogical, But Believes There Is Possibility Of Improvements Through Discussions

London, July 10.—(AP)

—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today an attempt to settle Danzig's future by "unilateral action organized by surreptitious methods" would threaten Poland's independence which Britain is pledged to maintain.

Chamberlain said that while the present status of the Free City was "either basically unjust or illogical, it may be capable of improvement," and added that "it may be that, in a clearer atmosphere, possible improvements could be discussed."

Recent occurrences in Danzig, Chamberlain said, had caused fear "that it is intended to settle her future status by unilateral action organized by surreptitious methods."

"If the sequence of events should be in fact such as it is contemplated in this hypothesis, the members will realize that the issue could not be considered as a purely local matter involving the rights and liberties of the Danzigers, but will at once raise graver issues affecting Polish existence and independence," Chamberlain said.

He then declared that "we have guaranteed to give our assistance to Poland in the case of a clear threat to her independence which she considers it vital to resist with her national forces and we are firmly resolved to carry out this undertaking."

Chamberlain's statement was intended to dispel any doubts in the minds of German officials that Britain would stand by her pledge to Poland in the case of Danzig, and it was understood to have had the advanced approval of both Poland and France.

Chamberlain's cautious phraseology had a double purpose—to avoid language which Germany might use to advantage in furthering her claim of "encirclement," and to leave open the door to possible negotiation of a settlement of the Danzig question by Germany and Poland.

The statement was intended to supplement the recent speech of Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, who asserted in strong terms that Britain was determined to resist aggression, but omitted specific reference to Danzig.

Berlin, July 10.—(AP)—"A reasonable solution" of the Danzig problem is possible, some Nazi sources said today after British Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement in the House of Commons on the Danzig situation.

Berlin, July 10.—(AP)—Colonel Walter von Brauchitsch, chief of staff of the German army, left Berlin today for a vacation of several weeks.

The golden text was from Psalm 51:10. "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." (Matt. 26:26-28).

The lesson-sermon also included the following from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The true sacrament is communion, if the sacrament is confined to the use of bread and wine. The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual significance, it was natural and beautiful. Jesus prayed; he withdrew from the material senses; to refresh his heart with brighter, with spiritual views."

Congressman John H. Small of Washington, was here today. Mrs. T. E. Hooker returned Saturday evening from New York. Mrs. H. A. White and Miss Mary James left this morning for Wrightsville. Miss Bessie Patrick and Daisy Tucker left this morning to visit friends in Danboro. The cry of too much rain is about due. Most of the farmers are through laying by crops. WHAT IT MEANS: Capital Confusion

By MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer Washington. — The Senate has sweated through a night-long session on unemployment relief and shepherded a bill through the House just put over a neutrality law with an embargo on arms. All was confusion. Tired Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri was leaving the chamber in the early morning hours when he was stopped for a question. "Where," he was asked, "does the night's work leave the Senate?" "In status quo," was the response. "And what," he was pressed, "does that mean?" "Young man," replied the senator, "did you ever hear the story of the cracker barrel and the Russo-Japanese war?" "All right," you asked for it. "The boys were gathered around the cracker barrel in the village store, eagerly awaiting the latest newspaper account of the tide of battle in the Russo-Japanese war. They were especially interested in what was happening to the forces of the Russian commander-in-chief, General Kuropatkin. The paper came. Spread out in type three inches high was the headline, 'Kuropatkin's Position Status Quo.' Reading and re-reading the account under the headline provided no clue to just what was a position of 'status quo.' When the village school teacher arrived, they promptly put it up to him. 'Unwilling to expose his own hazy notions, he assumed a knowing air, and pontificated: 'A technical explanation probably would be above your heads. But, in everyday language, the general idea is that Kuropatkin is in a 'helluva fix.' THE 'STATUS QUO' The struggle between the White House and Congress over such issues as neutrality, devaluation of the dollar, taxes and relief was left those two branches of the federal government in something of a 'helluva fix.' Here it is: 1—The rebellious lawmakers have given the President just about as much money as he asked for by the unemployed, but they have hedged it with restrictions that WPA people say will bury them in red tape. 2—The President has agreed to cut out some taxes burdening business, despite his often repeated ad-

HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood.—The circus came to town, a circus unlike any you've ever seen before. It set up for business on one of M-G-M's back lots, and it was different from all other circuses because money wouldn't buy your way in; you had to have a pass. Very serious business, this circus; a complete one assembled for the Marx brothers to have "A Day at Circus." Mammoth elephants, waiting in line for the camera, swaying rhythmically in the way of elephants; clowns in make-up and clownish habiliments, and balloon-vendors; bareback riders in tight and livery ruffles, and Cossacks and proud white beauties called horses; tents flying pennants, and audaces strolling, and seeming to strut, in the way of midgits; acrobats and—s it acrobates, a la Bay Role? Anyway, ladies of the trapeze and tight wire, and on who walks upside down on a platform under the big top. The same, and somehow different. What has happened to the circuses that used to tour the world each summer, their coming an event and a celebration in towns small and large? What's the matter with the circus, anyway? I asked S. L. Cronin, the veteran circus man who is in charge of all this for the picture. Circus manager, he started out in the "backyard" of the big tops, rose to bull-hand, came to be manager of one of the biggest, now defunct like the rest. What's the matter with the circus? "It's 20 years behind the times," said Cronin, "for one thing. And the nut's too big—that runs about $4,000 to $4,500 a day. The circus needs streamlining. To fit the modern taste. Streamlining in tents, in wagons, in presentation. Take a look about here. This circus we've got here would fill the bill—if it could be moved. It could be, at that, but not for one-night stands. Maybe for one-week stands, though. Some day, maybe next year, I'm going to try to take a circus out. Take a look around. This is a streamlined circus. The wagons stream-lined, and the tents. The big top is round—only one pole, in the center. Audience can see everything. And the seats—no more benches, but comfortable individual chairs. See that menagerie; the cages are set in frames typifying the native homes of the different animals. Showmanship. And neon lights. All modern, all new ideas.

Mule Orders Walk For Rube, But Skipper Gets Homer

GREENIES WIN 3-1 OVER BUGS

Sunday Game With Wilson Is Drowned Out

Although Sunday's game was rained out, Rube Wilson climaxed one of the most colorful baseball games ever witnessed here Saturday night as the locals won 3-1 over Mule Shirley's Goldsboro Gold Bugs.

Until the ninth inning, the Bugs' R. Brown had limited Greenville to only a pair of safeties. Daniels singled in the ninth and advanced to third on Heavener's double to left, which struck the score board and launched off.

Every fan in the grandstand and bleachers was rooting for a single or double to score the men on base for a win. Rube Wilson went to bat and Manager Mule Shirley instructed Brown to walk the Greenie skipper. Rube connected with the first throw, a high outside pitch, and sent the ball soaring over the right field wall for a round-tripper. That stopped the ball game, although the locals had two more times at bat.

Greenville's only serious scoring threat before the ninth came in the sixth when Allen walked, advanced to second on a sacrifice and to third on a fly to centerfield, but was unable to score because a needed hit failed to click at the opportune time.

Goldsboro's only run came in the fourth when Capps doubled to left and scored on Overton's single to right. Three double plays stopped the scoring. Pat Malone hurried the route for the locals and limited the Bugs to nine scattered hits. Vaughn, Capps, Overton and Peele got two hits apiece for four trips.

Alex Daniels, who is leading the league in hitting, got two safeties in four trips. He was the only Greenie player to get more than one hit.

When Pawlak hit to Gracie Allen in the seventh inning, the Greenville short stop, with the aid of Red Christopher, executed one of the prettiest plays ever witnessed on the diamond locally.

Pawlak, visiting second-baseman, featured a field for the losers.

Colored News

To the colored citizens of Greenville, Greetings:

It is said by those in authority, and recently by our First Lady, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, "If we want peace and progress more people must become familiar with government and its operations." That has led me to wonder if the colored citizens of this community are really familiar with the functions of our local government. Through the leadership of our former mayor, the Hon. M. K. Blount, and our present mayor, the Hon. Jack Spain, we have made more progress during the last year than any other city in the eastern part of the state. I can say this with authority as I am secretary of the Eastern Carolina Civic League and have some knowledge of what's being done in other cities. Since the organization of our civic league we have had the support of the Board of Education, Welfare Department, Health Department, Board of Aldermen, Women's Club and other organizations to the extent that over $20,000 has been appropriated for a community center (including some additions to our Fifth Street school); approximately $3,500 for 19 acres of land for a cemetery and recreation facilities in South Greenville; and the installation of a library. These appropriations have been made and the projects will soon be in operation.

White citizens have worked diligently with us and nothing has been planned without our consideration and endorsement. Let's not be misled by those who don't know their government and refuse to connect

GOLD BUGS WIN 15-4 THRILLER

Kinston Hands Bears Two Straight Losses

There was plenty baseball excitement in every town except Greenville yesterday and rain thwarted the locals anticipated fun.

One of the biggest week-end upsets came yesterday when Goldsboro jumped on Williamston for a 15-4 triumph. This was the first phase of a twin bill, but rain ended the next game after the contest was two minutes old.

Ed Chapman did the hurling for the Bugs, allowed eight hits, whiffed seven and walked two while each of his mates got at least one hit each. Snow Hill completely overpowered Tarboro. The Billies reached four Tarboro hurlers for 21 hits to win 19-8 and the Serpents garnered a dozen safeties off a trio of Billie hurlers.

New Bern and Kinston produced the closest scores of the day in a double-header, with the Eagles winning both. The Kinston team won the first affair 3-1 and the second 2-0.

Bill Herring performed for the Eagles in the first game to add to his mounting victory laurels. Opie Pace was credited with the win in the second affair.

Will Direct Traffic To Business Section

An adequate sign directing traffic in the business section of the city will be erected at the intersection of Tenth street extension and the old Washington highway.

Realizing the need for such a sign, the Greenville Merchants Association recently instructed its secretary, Mrs. Cora S. Powell, to take up the matter with the State Highway Commission. Mrs. Powell said today she had been advised by J. L. Phillips, district engineer, that a sign would be erected as soon as possible.

Washington Daybook

Washington.—The new relief bill brings democracy to the ranks of WPA labor with a jarring impact. No longer will a carpenter be able to earn his monthly allowance in a half-dozen days of work at $11 to $14 a day while the common laborer toils throughout the month for the same money.

Under the present act, every type of worker will work 130 hours a month, regardless of whether he is a shovel hand or plasterer. For that amount of work, each will be paid the same money—a country average of about $61.

Certain exceptions are written into the bill. For instance, in parts of the country with lower living costs, the rate of pay will be lower. Further, a single man with no dependents will be allowed less per month, and will work correspondingly fewer than 130 hours to earn it.

A PAIN IN THE NECK
The disparity of wages between skilled and unskilled workers has been a pain in the neck to the WPA administration ever since the idea of paying the "prevailing wage" to WPA workers was invented more than two years ago.

The original purpose was to prevent WPA wage scales from undermining the wage scale of labor in private industry.

Since a man working on WPA is allowed to earn only a certain sum each month, his rate of pay might be high enough to permit him to earn it in eight or nine days. He was free all the rest of the month.

Colonel Harrington, WPA administrator, told congressional committees that a man with such free time would offer to work in private industry at cut wage rates, and thus tend to break down the very wage scales the old terms were supposed to protect.

He called it chiseling because it hurt wage scales and because it tended to keep men on relief who, if harder pressed, might have gotten out into private employment.

The new provision will keep WPA workers on duty most of each month, regardless of their skills. Harrington said that men compelled to work 130 hours on relief for an amount they could earn in private industry in far less time would likely get out and hustle for private jobs.

OTHER DIFFICULTIES
And the old provision caused other troubles, Harrington explained.

"An example of the difficulties involved in scheduling operations as a result of the differences in the hours of work for different classifications is afforded by a building construction project in Pittsburgh. Bricklayers are permitted to work only 48 1/2 hours per month while the hod carriers work 63 1/2 hours, the building-trade laborers, 89 hours, and unskilled laborers 123 hours. On the same project a plumber is limited to 50 hours work a month, while his helper must be scheduled for 7 1/2 hours of work. Compressor operators are limited to 44 1/2 hours per month while jack-hammer operators (getting power from the compressor) are scheduled for 119 hours of work.

"It is obvious that schedules such as these render any practicable type of staggering of employment ineffective in producing efficient operation."

MISS PACKY NORTH had been getting more and more into the spirit of the occasion. The hard little lines with which she always fortified her mouth when in the company of Tacks Adams had all but entirely vanished. Tacks might be a reprobate and a scamp and a young wastrel and a firebug and a kidnaping but, undeniably, he was amusing. There was a merry glint in his gray eyes and he possessed a vast fund of entertaining small talk. Also, she decided reluctantly, he was quite good-looking.

She gazed around the table. Across from her was Van Harkness who seemed nice, Packy thought. And his girl was terribly attractive, even if the wisdom of the ages lay in her bright, rather hard, eyes. And that little fat man, what was his name, Cutler? He was cute, too, sitting there like a happy cherubim while the grave-eyed girl beside him passed muster on everything he put in his mouth.

That big boy from California, Bill Steele, he looked like a grand chap, though she confessed to some bafflement at his choice of dinner companions. She was prepared to admit, however, that the party gained definitely by the inclusion of the East brothers. The East brothers were delightfully naive. The diction of the East brothers was spicy and racy, redolent of cheap vaudeville houses and late hours in tank town railway stations.

"Liking it?" whispered Tacks, under cover of the din around the table. She flashed him one of her second-rate smiles. After all, she and Mr. Adams were only in a state of "It's better than I expected," she admitted.

"Well, that's something, anyhow. Mind if I make a speech?" "Oh, good heavens, are you going to talk more?" You ought to go on a lecture tour.

"Tacks picked up a spoon and rapped sharply on a priceless glass. "Meeting will please come to order." "Why?" demanded Morris East. He was having an elegant time being disorderly.

"Morris," said Horace, "be quiet." Tacks rose to his feet. "My friends," he began professionally. "I must tell you a story which may explain to you three charming ladies and to the visiting firemen over there—the indicated the East brothers—"Just why you are here I don't know."

"You fellows the modus operandi of the game, do you not?" went on Tacks. "Gentlemen in the other positions were constrained to do likewise. Selecting Misses North, South and East. It would be obvious to a blind man that Mr. Harkness and myself, being in the south and north positions respectively, proceeded with the most charming results. At the beginning, however, we struck a snag when we came to the east position, held by my good friend, Bill Steele. Mr. Steele, peering into the telephone directory, found at not far from a lack of eligible women of the name of East."

"Tell The Birds"
"I KNEW a Maggie East once," said Morris East. "She was a good-looking. She didn't have no phone, though." "Hold your tongue, Morris," said Horace.

"Mr. Steele's lost, I'm sure," said Tacks. "To be sure, after considerable wrangling the committee allowed Mr. Steele to regard the producing of one of what we supposed were two of more East brothers who were listed in the phone book. Mr. Steele, it appears, was able to induce both brothers to be with us tonight. Well, ladies and gentlemen, that's a rotten begonia. But I thought some of you might want to know what it is all about."

"But what was the point of it all?" asked Dorothy South, riveted. "I can't see what you boys stood to gain by it." Miss South was a practical mind. Where pain was not involved, she refused to play ball.

"As I said," Tacks explained, "we were hopelessly bored. This game gave us something interesting to do. We jumped at it. And, speaking for myself, I found it a most entertaining pastime, replete with excitement and—er—thrills." He looked at Packy whose eyes went down. "And I regret, most exceedingly, that the game ends tonight."

"Hear, hear," said Van Harkness, pounding the table with a knife. "Since each one was successful in getting his—his—er—assignment to agree to present," said Tacks. "No forfeit money will be paid into the bank. I'm sure I speak for Messrs. Harkness, Steele and Cutler as well as myself when I say that we all had a lot of fun out of the idea. And, if in having our fun, we inconvenienced any of you, we hope that tonight's party will make up for it. I thank you."

He sat down amid applause. "Now if you're quite finished," said Jumbo, who had been championing the table, "I'll bid." "Ladies West look firmly by the arm. "Cutler, you're not going to do it." Miss Dorothy South looked across at Jumbo with melting eyes.

"Don't you let her boss you honey," she said knowingly. "You just get right up and tell the birds and tell the bees and tell the flowers and tell the trees." Jumbo took a gulp of champagne. It brought all his manhood to the fore. "By gosh," he cried, "I will turn me loose, Luella. He shook off Luella's protesting hand and gained his feet. "Friends," he began, holding on to the edge of the table, "I will take little of your time..." He waited while he applause subsided.

"You see before you, ladies and gentlemen, a trapped and imprisoned man, yet with a man who is happy in his bondage. I might go so far as to say a man to whom the clank of his chains is as the sweetest music. When the news which I am about to impart gets abroad, people will marvel. Little did they think that Cutler, the Wary, Cutler the Phantom, Cutler that wild free thing of the hills, dales and glens..." "Oh, do be quiet!" implored Luella, her face crimson.

History Books Show IT's A Good Bet Accident Will Decide Presidential Race

More than a year before the presidential elections, presidential buildups are going full blast. But if you think that the buildup is the main factor in choosing a president, you will want to read the real story of the presidential situation by Morgan Beatty. In this, the first of three articles, he tells about accidents that have made presidents. Later articles will tell about the hocus-pocus of presidential buildups and about the third-term tempt.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington.—Accidents make presidents!

Polis or no polis, that's the fact. Here's how:

Thirty-one men, including Franklin D. Roosevelt, have occupied the White House. Eighteen of them reached the top by accident—immediate accidents of political expediency, war or death. Five inherited the presidency. They never could have made the grade without the benediction of a powerful predecessor; probably wouldn't have tried.

Six built themselves up—or allowed themselves to be built up—as presidential timber over a period of years; and they squeezed in that way. But far more who had tremendous buildups missed the boat.

Only two presidents demonstrated beforehand their unquestioned capacity to lead the nation. At least you have the word of many historians that such is the case. These were Washington and Jefferson.

This does not mean, of course, that other presidents did not develop into great leaders, nor does it mean that other men, who never became presidents, were not fit to lead. It merely means that two Americans were a cinch for the presidency before their election almost by common consent.

Since 18 presidents were historical accidents, that means the odds are 3 to 2 that some accident has occurred—or will occur before 1940—to make the next president.

The first accidental president was Andrew Jackson. Before the battle of New Orleans, in the War of 1812,

Old Hickory merely had been a frontier toser with lots of guts. After the battle he was the nation's hero, and no reward short of the presidency would satisfy his admirers.

Battlefields produced other presidents, but all the never heroes were accidents as presidents: "Appecanoe" Jackson, "Old Zach" Taylor, "Uncle Sam's" Andrew Jackson, "The Poor Cavalier," Gen. Grant, the cavalry would lead to more war presidents.

Five Through Tragedy
The accident of death sent five men to the White House, three of them after the assassination of a president.

Of the five, only one proved himself to be a great American by any standard—Lincoln. Roosevelt, McKinley's successor. Among the other five was the historians' nomination for Mediocre President No. 30—John Tyler. The others are judged in-between—Edmore, Johnson (who was almost impeached), Andrew A. Arthur and Calvin Coolidge.

The rest of the accidentals were men chosen way-nay during the heat of a fight between figures who looked above them. An out one were what you'd expect from a grab-bag—such colorful statesmen as Polk, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan, Hayes, Garfield, Benjamin Harrison and Harding.

That other man-from-the-grab-bag was truly great—Abraham Lincoln. He slipped in as a dark horse when the republicans of sympathy and Pennsylvania refused to take New York's highly touted William H. Seward because of his friendships in the Catholic church.

Adams First to Inherit
In the presidential race, Lincoln won primarily because the South was divided between two giants of the day, Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois and John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky.

The first man to inherit the presidency was the one who followed Washington—John Adams. Without the nod from Washington, Adams never would have beaten the coming Thomas Jefferson.

Jefferson, after he became president, advanced two of his satellites

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, July 10.—Announcement that Howard Pierce, former chief of police of Raleigh, has joined the investigation staff of the State Bureau of Identification and Investigation, not only gives the victim of the recent municipal political turnover a fairly decent job, but also assures the state of some return on the investment in Mr. Pierce's training. He is a graduate of Edgar Hoover's FBI training school in Washington. Long before that he was a "rehab" student at State College and also served for some time as a deputy sheriff in Wake county. Altogether the state and federal governments have invested right much in his training and he ought to be an asset to Chief Handy's bureau.

Some local friends of Willis Smith are wondering if he did a wise thing in leaving North Carolina for two weeks right at this time to attend the American Bar Association convention at Los Angeles. An avowed, but unannounced, candidate for governor, Mr. Smith left the field wide open for the other aspirants, who haven't failed to make good on the opportunity. J. M. Broughton organizations to "sew up" the county Superior court clerks at Wrightsville last week, and Mr. Maxwell made all the front pages with his Greensboro Kiwanis talk on a fifty million dollar road program—without additional tax levies. The big lawyers attending the national bar meeting might have a lot of influence on the national campaign, but relatively little on intra-state affairs.

Reports from all over Eastern North Carolina indicate a bumper harvest this fall of tobacco, corn and feed crops. With tobacco markets opening a week earlier than usual the entire section is looking forward to having more money in circulation than usual this fall. Only the very foolhardy will attempt to forecast price trends, but farmers and merchants are alike hopeful. The belief is freely expressed that new and pending legislation in Congress next year will help to hold up prices for this tobacco crop.

Governor Hoy's reputation as a Sunday school teacher, and the publicity given his Raleigh class by way of radio broadcasts, has increased demands upon the governor's time, always in demand for school commencements, merchants' festivals, and various "big day" celebrations. Governors heretofore have had their week-ends for themselves and families. Governor Hoy is finding that he has about as many invitations for Sunday as for any other day in the week. His latest was at Dunn yesterday, when he was scheduled to address the combined men's Bible classes of the town. Dunn women didn't especially like the idea of being excluded, but there just wasn't room for them.

Among the "festivals" scheduled for this month and expected to draw visitors from out of the state, are the Tobacco Festival at Wilson July 18-20, and the Coastal Festival at Morehead City July 27-29. The big event at Wilson will be the contest to select the champion of all tobacco auctioneers. The Morehead City celebration will feature boat races, treasure hunts and other aquatic sports.

BIG JOB WITH STRINGS TO IT—Under the watchful eye of Rex G. Finney, parachute instructor at Glendale, Cal., some would-be army flyers learn how to collapse a chute. These men and others of group have started a three-month course to train them to pilot planes the war department will buy. They'll finish air education at Randolph and Kelly fields.

'DEBUTRAMPS' MAKE THEIR BOW—The homage of curtsy-ing maidens is acknowledged by five self-styled "debutrams," who had 250 guests at their coming-out party in Racine, Wis. FOR SKY-PILOTING—Shaped like an airplane hangar, this small church was recently consecrated near the French military airfield at Orly, near Paris. It is called "Notre Dame de l'Air," and is popular with aviators and mechanics at the nearby field. Flags rippled from the steeple and the sound of plane motors was heard during the consecration ceremony.

Dan Wright To Open Dental Offices Here

Dan Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wright of this city, recently passed the State Dental Board examinations for practice in North Carolina and plans to open offices in the State Bank Building in the near future.

Dr. Wright is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College, class of 1935. He was graduated by Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in June after having stood high in a class of 60.

Issue Two Marriage Licenses In a Week

J. C. Gaskins, Pitt county register of deeds, today reported that only two licenses to wed were issued last week, one of which was to a white couple and the other to a colored couple.

The white couple was Matthew Harper, Jr. of Georgia, and Miss Charlotte Butler of Greenville. The Negro couple was Aaron C. James and Mamie Lee Sanders, both of Greenville.

It was revealed that licenses for the first six months of the present year total over 200. Legislative action calling for health certificates before a marriage license can be secured has accounted for drops in issuances in Greenville and other cities of the state.

Weekend Disorder Puts Four In Jail

Jacob Rhodes, Farmville Negro, is in the Pitt county jail under a $500 bond on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Rhodes was brought to Greenville by Chief of Police L. T. Lucas of Farmville following preliminary hearing in Farmville Recorder's court, which determined the Negro's bond.

Ernest Barrett, Greenville Negro, was lodged in jail Saturday on a charge of aiding and abetting in drunkenness, but was released after being fined and taxed with the costs in a hearing before Magistrate H. L. Jenkins.

Sheriff's officers jailed Leroy Whitfield, Pitt county Negro, under a $300 bond on a charge of operating a motor vehicle in a careless and reckless manner.

The only other arrest in the county over the week-end was that of W. C. Nesbett, Pitt county man, who was jailed by Constable J. Gus Stokes on a charge of public drunkenness.

TOBACCO CROP GOES TO BARNS

Estimates Increase This Year of 20 Per Cent

Raleigh, July 10.—North Carolina's 1939 flue-cured tobacco crop unhampered by federal restrictions, is moving rapidly from field to curing barn. Lloyd T. Weeks, tobacco specialist of the State College Extension Service, said today.

On a basis of observations over most of the producing areas, Weeks estimated that this year's leaf average has been increased at least 20 per cent or better over that of last year. In some counties the percentage has run considerably higher, particularly in the Border Belt, while in other counties, notably in the Old Belt, the acreage has not varied much from that of 1938.

Curing began nearly a month ago in some communities, and has speeded up steadily since then. Now, most farmers in Eastern North Carolina are putting their tobacco in the barns.

Good weather conditions have prevailed generally over most of the flue-cured belts, although in some sections either too wet or too dry weather has injured the crop. There has been hail in some spots.

Insect and disease attacks are about normal this year. Weeds, however, being reported from any belt. Damage in most instances has been local. Will has appeared in a number of fields, and conditions for this disease have been unusually favorable.

Yields apparently will be average, the tobacco specialist said. Last year Eastern North Carolina growers produced an average of 925 pounds of leaf to the acre, and the average this year will probably be about the same.

Weeks also declared that the quality of this year's crop appears to be good.

Son Of Local Woman Enlists In The Army

Marvin Daney Taylor, son of Mrs. Nora Taylor of Greenville, has enlisted for the coast artillery, Panama canal department, Corporal Stonehall Jackson, in charge of the United States Army recruiting station, announced today.

Corporal Jackson announced simultaneously that he has one more vacancy for the coast artillery, Panama, and three vacancies for the infantry, Panama. He said also that men between the ages of 18 and 35, interested in enlisting in the regular army, are requested to see him relative to enlistment.

It was explained that there are also vacancies in the regular army reserve for ex-service men who have had at least one year of continuous service in the regular army and were honorably discharged.

Since Major Leslie Babcock is authorized to administer the oath of enlistment, it will save ex-regulars who are interested in enlisting in the regular army reserve the expense of going some place else.

TALK DANIELS FOR NAVY POST

Death of Swanson Revives Rumors At Capital

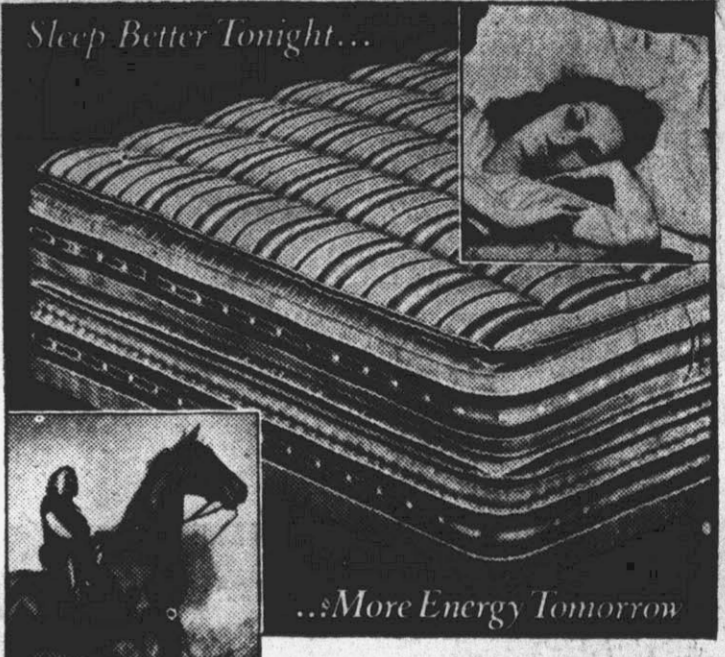

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, July 10.—Death of Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson last Friday revived rumors going around state capital circles some weeks ago to the effect that Joseph Daniels, now ambassador to Mexico, would like very much to get back in the berth which he held during the Wilson administration. The ambassador's age is regarded as an almost, but not quite, insuperable obstacle to his appointment.

The original story has it that the President would like very much to replace Mr. Daniels in Mexico, but that he did not want to offend his good friend and former chief. On the other hand, the President "knows" from his experience with Mr. Daniels during the World War just what Daniels' idea for development of a big navy is. Their ideas ran along the same lines.

There is no doubt about the desire of Mr. Daniels to return to the United States. There is evidence that he would like to get back in time to take a part in the pre-convention presidential campaign next summer. But there hasn't been found a man on capitol hill who would hazard the opinion that the ambassador is going to resign his Mexican post unless he can get a good job "back home." An airplane will be used in missionary work in Borneo, allowing workers to reach areas never before penetrated.
