Isolationist Bloc Calls For Open Discussions

SEN. LaFOLLETTE GROUP'S LEADER

Representative State Department To Be Urged To State His Views On Legislation

Washington, July 13.—(AP)—Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.) reported a strategy committee of the Senate isolationist bloc decided today to demand full discussion in the Foreign Relations committee of a resolution aimed at restricting export of war materials to Japan.

Chairman Pittman (D.-Nev.) number of the measure, had expressed hope that the committee would act quickly on it at tomorrow's meeting. But LaFollette said he thought the 12 members who blocked consideration of the neutrality legislation last Tuesday would want to discuss several points at length.

Senator Clark (D.-Mo.) said that he would urge that either Secretary Hull or some other representative of the State Department's views on the legislation, Pittman said this was agreeable to him, but he expressed doubt Hull would appear.

Other developments: Pittman took over the new office of the Federal Security Administration amid increasing speculation on the bearing it may have on his chances for obtaining the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination.

He was sworn in at the office of the U. S. Customs at Thompson, head of the Public Health Service, one of the bureaus whose functions it will be his task to coordinate.

At the same time McNutt relinquished his post as high commissioner to the Philippines.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Public Roads Bureau, said the nation could finance a set of super-highways by profiting on land value.

Testifying before the Senate Banking committee self-liquidating project proposals in President Roosevelt's $2,800,000,000 lending program, MacDonnell said tolls alone could not pay for such roads.

Milk Firms Freed By Federal Court

Chicago, July 13.—(AP)—Indictments accusing 43 individuals and 13 corporations and groups in the milk industry of violating the anti-monopoly law were dismissed today in Federal court.

Leo F. Tierney, special assistant to the attorney general, announced the government would appeal the U. S. district to the United States Supreme court.

The dismissal was embodied in Federal Judge Charles Woodward's granting of defense demurrers to the indictments.

Nine-seven individuals, individuals, corporations and associations in the milk and ice cream industries were indicted November 1, 1938, after a 16-week inquiry by a federal grand jury. A year's investigation by the Department of Justice preceded the grand jury action.

The ice cream indictment named 20 individuals and 20 corporations.

John Henry Buck Claimed By Death

John Henry Buck, 65, died suddenly of a heart attack Thursday morning around 9 o'clock while hanging tobacco in a barn at his home on the Davenport farm in Polk county.

Morticians said that Mr. Buck fell from a tier in the barn after the attack, but a fellow workman caught him before he struck the ground.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the late home and burial will be in the Edwards family cemetery near Gallop's creek roads.

Mr. Buck was born and reared and had spent his entire life in Polk county. He had been living on the Davenport farm for the past 16 years.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Sally Buck, surviving are two sons, John Richard Buck of his home and John Allen Buck of Simpson; one brother, Major Buck of House Station; four sisters, Mrs. John Gladson of Paeletus, Mrs. Alice Godley of Chocowilly, Mrs. Larry Hunt of Grimsland and Mrs. Emily Adams of Black Jack. Two grandchildren also survive.

PICKETS AND POLICE BATTLE AT PONTIAC

Fighting broke out between policemen and CIO pickets at the gate of the Fisher Body plant in Pontiac, Mich., when non-striking workers attempted to pass through the picket lines and enter the factory. Officers and pickets are shown shoving and tugging at each other. It was the second day of rioting.

RESCUED FROM BURNING HOME

Fire And Fumes Trap Perkins Family On Second Floor

Four persons trapped on the second story of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reid Perkins about 3 o'clock this morning by an explosion and fire in the kitchen, were saved by city firemen who placed ladders against the second story window and brought the family, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins and their two children, to safety.

The fire followed an explosion in the kitchen of an electric refrigerator and gas fumes spread all over the house, trapping the family in one room. Mr. Perkins attempted to make his way downstairs but the fumes were too thick.

Mrs. R. W. King, mother of Mrs. Perkins, who lives across the road, heard the screams of the children, aroused her family and called the fire department.

After removing the Perkins family to safety, the firemen extinguished the blaze.

Damage to the house and fixtures was estimated by members of the family at $2,000.

The Perkins family was trapped in the house approximately 30 minutes, unable to go down stairs because of the gas fumes. When firemen arrived, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were lying together in preparation for lowering the two children, a 5-year-old boy and Walter Reid, three, to the ground from the second-story window.

The blaze was confined to the kitchen, but other parts of the house were damaged by water and smoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins and neighbors were high in their commendation today of the service rendered by members of the city fire department, declaring that they lost no time in getting to the home after being summoned and also for their efficiency in getting all persons to safety and then extinguishing the blaze.

Only a week ago the Board of Aldermen discussed the question of whether or not the fire department should answer calls outside the city limits without some remuneration. The question was left open and last night's incident is likely to have some effect on the decision to be reached by the board.

Last night's fire also stressed the need of a ladder of longer length than the two now in service, one of which is 24 feet and the other is 20 feet.

It was pointed out that had such a serious situation arisen at a three-story building, the firemen would have been helpless so far as reaching the victims with a ladder.

First Summer Period At ECTC Ends Soon

Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, registrar at East Carolina Teachers College, said today that final examinations for the first summer session of the present year will be held next Wednesday and the registration for the second session will be held on the following day, Thursday, July 20.

As usual, there will be less students, less faculty members and less courses of study during the second session. Dr. McGinnis said there are 29 faculty members for the present session and that the number for the second session would be 24.

It was explained that Coach O. A. Handler, who heads the physical education department, would offer three courses in physical education. The library science course, offered for the first time during the first session, will not be offered during the second.

Libraries

Raleigh, July 13.—(AP)—Attorney General Harry McMillan ruled today that "school libraries are as much a necessary school expense as laboratory equipment, blackboards and other capital outlay items, and as such can be maintained by appropriations from the local board of education."

He issued his ruling, the fourth made recently concerning libraries, after a conference with a Mecklenburg county delegation. Charlotte in June at an election refused support for the public library and its closed June 30.

GEORGIA WEED TAX IS LEGAL

Court Upholds Act Yielding Two Million Last Year

Atlanta, July 13.—(AP)—The State Supreme court today upheld constitutionality of the Georgia tobacco tax act, which last year yielded $2,501,908.19.

Constitutionality had been questioned by the Cigarette Sales Company of Murphy, N. C., whose petition for an injunction against the State Revenue Commission had been upheld in DeKalb county Superior court.

The Supreme court overruled the lower court's dismissal of revenue commissioner's demurrer.

The North Carolina firm also sought $25,000 damages, claiming it had built up a mail cigarette sales business in Georgia which had been hurt by the commission's action.

An attorney for the revenue department said the decision meant that seizure of unstamped cigarettes shipped into Georgia now could proceed "full tilt."

The tobacco tax requires shipments of cigarettes into Georgia must be stamped within two hours after they "come to rest."

EARLY TO HEAD N. C. RAILROAD

Hertford County Man Gets Choicest Political Plum

Greensboro, July 13.—(AP)—Alvah Early of Ahoskie and Winton today became president of the state-controlled North Carolina Railroad company, designated by Governor Hoey to succeed D. W. Royster of Shelby.

The governor has made it a habit to change officials of the railroad yearly. The jobs are regarded as among the choicest of the "political plums" in the state as practically no work is involved.

President Early, clerk of court of Hertford county, can continue to hold his clerkship and will get $900 a year for his railroad post.

R. E. Price, Rutherfordton newspaperman, got the $1,200 as secretary-treasurer, succeeding R. S. Beasley of Monroe, and Paul Ervin of Charlotte was named attorney at pay of $1,000 yearly, in succession to D. N. Farnell of Greensboro.

R. O. Self, chief clerk of the Utilities Commission, represented the governor at the annual stockholders' meeting.

The directors for the state included Royster, Early, Henry and Dennis of Henderson.

The railroad is leased to the Southern Railway System. Pay of all officials is provided for in the lease.

SEEK FEDERAL AID IN STRIKE

Appeal Grows Out Of Harlan Mine Gun Battle

Washington, D. C., July 13.—(AP)—John L. Lewis appealed to Attorney General Murphy today for federal intervention in the Harlan county (Kentucky) mine dispute, where union miners and the Kentucky National Guard clashed yesterday in a bloody gun battle.

Lewis, head of the CIO and president of the United Mine Workers union, Lewis asserted, because the union opposed Chandler and supported Senator Alben Barkley in the contest for Barkley's Senate seat in 1938.

The 1938 senatorial battle, Lewis said, was one of two reasons for Chandler's action in calling out the guard.

The other reason, Lewis said, was that Chandler wanted to "pay of political debt to a criminal band of coal operators whose previous crimes are spread on the sworn public records of three authoritative governmental agencies."

"The miners at several Harlan county mines have been idle since April 1 in a dispute with the operators over the signing of a 'union shop' contract."

Women To Be Judges In Tonight's Contest

Women, not men, will be the sole judges in the city's first bathing beauty contest being held tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the local municipal pool under the sponsorship of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The winner in tonight's contest will represent the city in a bathing beauty contest of the Wilson Tobacco Festival next week and also in the annual Morehead City Festival.

All entries in tonight's judging must be 16 years old, or over. Hayward Dail will serve as master of ceremonies.

Prosperity Is Seen For Eastern Carolina Farms

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, July 13.—Speaking to several thousand farmers and farm women at the fourteenth annual Field Day of the Blackland Test Farm at Weldon, Senator William B. Rodman, Jr., today predicted that Eastern North Carolina farmers would be more prosperous as the result of experiments and tests at the farm were disseminated among them. The senator declared that he had confidence that the cooperative experiments conducted by the State Department of Agriculture, State College and the United States Department of Agriculture would find the answer to farm problems, but "an answer not disseminated is not sufficient," he said.

Senator Rodman's comment is significant because of his highly responsible position as chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee in the 1939 General Assembly. This legislature made available more money for agricultural research than had ever been appropriated before, and for the first time in history recognized such research as a proper charge against the general fund of the state treasury.

Referring to the one-time supremacy of the section served by this test farm in agriculture, Senator Rodman said that to recapture the position once held farmers not only must give more attention to production but must get their products to the consumer in more attractive shape. One of the major objectives of the State Department of Agriculture is development of a marketing program, and the senator's statement fits right into this program.

Senator Rodman was introduced by W. Kerr Scott, commissioner of agriculture, who plans to leave tonight for Washington to speed up consideration of the bill in Congress providing for federal co-operation in marketing promotion. His address followed several more or less technical talks by specialists from State College and the Department of Agriculture.

SALVAGE SHIP FALCON LIFTS SUNKEN CRAFT

Bow Of Squalus First Raised From Floor Of Ocean

ONE OF HARDEST SALVAGE TASKS

Meanwhile, Efforts To Raise French Sub Sunk In China Sea, Prove Unsuccessful

Portsmouth, N. H., July 13.—(AP)—The most difficult step in one of the toughest salvage jobs in United States naval history was completed today when the submarine Squalus and its macabre cargo of 26 bodies were lifted from the ocean floor in a cradle of ponderous pontoons.

A burst of air bubbles showing that the pontoons were rising was sighted along the salvage ship Falcon at 10:05 a. m.

The water was literally churned as the bubbles broke first from above the bow of the submarine and two minutes later the bubbles began to rise from the stern.

The full length of the bow first was raised free of the ocean floor and amid manning their air hose crews worked carefully on the stern pontoons, lifting first on one side and then on the other.

The navy threw its salvage crew into operation soon after dawn.

Proceeding with infinite care, a diver went over the side of the Falcon about an hour after daybreak for a final check of the air hose and, shortly before 6 a. m., Rear Admiral C. W. Cole announced the time was near for the big "blow."

The deck of the Falcon was so jammed with men, many of them brought over from the gunboat Sacramento soon after sunrise, that the gray vessel appeared almost like a busy excursion boat except for the maze of the more than 50 bristling air hose and lines attached to the Squalus and the seven huge lifting pontoons.

Salon, French Indo-China, July 13.—(AP)—Salvage vessels have failed in the first attempt to raise the French submarine Phenix, which sank June 15 in the China sea off the Camrath naval base with 77 men aboard.

Cables placed around the hull yesterday snapped when the ships tried to raise the submarine through 300 feet of water.

Pitt Doctors Attend Semi-Annual Meeting

A number of Greenville and Pitt county physicians were at Atlantic Beach this afternoon attending the semi-annual meeting of the Second District Medical Society, of which Dr. J. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, is president.

A business meeting is scheduled for tonight following a supper at 7 o'clock. Scientific papers will be presented at the business meeting by Dr. G. C. Johnson of Morehead City, and Dr. Newsome P. Battle of Rocky Mount, guest speaker.

Renowned Air Skipper Is Teacher

Gen. Umberto Nobile (right), an Italian airplane designer who twice skipped dirigibles across the North Pole, has come to the United States to teach American student-pilots. This fall he'll teach aerodynamics and mathematics at the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronautics in Lockport, Ill., where he's shown. His only close relative, a daughter, 21, will join him soon.

PITT FARMERS END LONG TOUR

Farm Men And Women Travel 131 Miles In Two Days

Covering 38 miles of dirt and hard-surfaced roads north of Greenville, an estimated 50 Pitt county farm men and women and their wives and children this afternoon completed the last phase of the third annual farm tour of the county.

This year's tour, which carried the rural residents over 131 miles of fertile farming lands in the county, was brought to a close this afternoon around 5 o'clock. Seventy-five miles were covered yesterday on farms south of Greenville.

H. B. James, assistant farm management specialist, and L. I. Case, beef cattle specialist of State College, were the only out-of-county farm experts on today's journey. They assisted R. R. Bennett, county agent; C. D. Griggs, assistant county agent, and Miss Ethel Niece, home demonstration agent, in lectures and demonstrations on both days of the tour.

Today's barbecue dinner held at Oak Grove Church, near D. J. Wilson's, closely resembled a "Sunday school picnic" because of the informality and the southern social attitude that prevailed. While the farmers sank their teeth into the appetizing barbecue, munched tastily cornbread and gulped lemonade to thwart apparent choking, they voiced opinions among themselves about how beneficial the tour had been.

Most of the morning hours were for the benefit of the ladies on the tour, which afforded them an opportunity to visit with their friends.

SEEK CAUSE OF BLAZE ON SHIP

Aircraft Carrier Is Damaged; Seven Men Injured

Norfolk, Va., July 13.—(AP)—Naval officials sought today the cause of an explosion and spectacular fire which damaged the huge aircraft carrier Ranger and injured seven enlisted men.

A muffled roar came from the waterline amidships the 735-foot vessel, witnesses said, and flames swept over the plane and slight decks for a breadth of 200 feet. Firemen at the Norfolk navy yard, where the Ranger was docked for repairs, battled the blaze for three hours before it was brought under control late yesterday.

Capt. H. E. Keys, captain of the yard, said, "We do not know what was responsible for the explosion." Other officers withheld any information in their possession pending an investigation by a board of inquiry.

Unofficial reports said, however, that gasoline being loaded on the ship probably was set off in some manner.

One officer at the yard estimated the damage to the $30,000,000 craft at $50,000, but said that if an inspection today reveals that much of the expensive machinery aboard had been harmed the damage figure would be considerably higher.

NEW RESERVES CALLED OUT BY GREAT BRITAIN

12,000 Additional Men To Take Part In Maneuvers

MOVE REGARDED AS SIGNIFICANT

Strength Demonstration To Coincide With Nazi Party Congress Opening Sept. 2

London, July 13.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced today that 12,000 of the nation's 70,000 naval reservists would be called to the colors for fleet maneuvers—part of a program to make Britain ready for any eventuality during the anxious period of August and September.

He told the House of Commons that 12,000 retired officers and other reservists would report for duty July 31 and remain active until the end of September, taking part in combined naval and air force war games.

Informed quarters regarded it as significant that the maneuvers would be in progress at the time of the Nazi party congress, which opens September 2 at Nuremberg. Many European observers have likened that as a danger period.

(In Berlin the statement was made in informed quarters that Britain's action represented "nothing impressive for Germany." One German source said, "We, too, are exercising our reserves.")

Britain's move marks the first time since the Czecho-Slovak crisis of last September that naval reservists have been called up.

The reservists will take part in a vast naval demonstration August 9, King George, VI, will review the fleet at Weymouth, where about 130 ships of all sizes will be concentrated.

The naval move was ordered as the air ministry was engaged in a series of mass bombers' flight over southern France, assigned to give Royal Air Force pilots practice in long-range flying and at the same time to demonstrate Britain's air power.

It also coincided with the allocation of 40,000,000 pounds (about $187,200,000) more for the air force.

District Supervisor Checks Pitt Records

James C. Snathers, district parole supervisor, working out of the office of Edwin Gill, state commissioner of paroles, was in Greenville today checking records of Pitt county paroles.

K. T. Futrell, superintendent of public welfare in the county, said that Supervisor Snathers would be in the county for several days. Snathers is doing his work in Greenville through Futrell's office, which handles paroles for the state.

Arithmetic Textbook 103 Years Old Found

An arithmetic textbook used over 100 years ago by a former prominent Greenville lawyer, the late E. C. Yellowby, was found in the old Satterthwaite home near Washington, N. C., recently by Joe Febrer, while plastering the walls.

The book bore the inscription, "The property of E. C. Yellowby, December 28, 1836," showing the textbook was in use 103 years ago.

Mr. Yellowby, residents here recalled, once owned most of the property which is now College View.

Local Youth Is Hurt In Bicycle Accident

Redden Turnage Jones, Greenville youth, was injured yesterday afternoon in a bicycle accident on the Bethel highway, but his injuries are not regarded as serious.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jones of 1615 Broad street. Details of the accident were not revealed and a survey showed there had been no official investigation.

Father Of Local Man Dies In Rocky Mount

News was received here today advising of the death of the father of E. H. Williford of Greenville, who died at his home in Rocky Mount this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Williford went to Rocky Mount after learning of the death. Funeral arrangements were not known here.

Opening August 1st
The opening of the tobacco season is close at hand and the warehouses are being cleaned up preparatory for the reception of the golden weed. Everything will be in apple-pie order on Tuesday morning, August 1st. The houses will be prepared to handle every pound that is brought in. This will be a lively season for the warehouses expected to handle 10,000,000 pounds.

Legionnaires Prefer Coin to Ballot.
Austin, Texas.—(AP)—Three men were nominated at the Texas American Legion convention for sergeant-at-arms. The secretary prepared to call the roll and take a vote, a tedious task. "Why don't you match for it," someone shouted. So Candidates Horace L. Howard, Joe J. Grammer and Frank Bell marched to the platform, flipped coins and Howard won.

DON'T WANT TO BE TOLD HOW TO SPEND MONEY

Dubuque, Iowa.—(AP)—The WPA has discovered one reason needy families try to keep off relief is that they resent being told how they can spend money.

This is one of the things the WPA learned in a "morale study" of 433 "average American" families in Dubuque, selected as a "typical medium-sized industrial city."

Here are some other things the survey revealed:

1—Less than one-half of the unemployed were on relief at any given time.

2—Families usually stayed off relief for aid until the last possible moment.

3—Once they got relief a few families regarded it as an "inherent right" but the majority were glad to regain their independence from it.

Tyson Is Member Of Leading Battery

Six batteries comprised the 1939 Citizens' Military Training Camp now drawing to a close at Fort Bragg. Of the six Battery "E" was adjudged the best all-round battery, from the standpoint of appearance on parade, military aptitude and sports competition. A tally of points earned in athletic events showed Battery "E" first with a total of 266 points.

Vernon Tyson of Greenville was enrolled in the honor battery, finishing his third year at CMTC.

Grant Bus Franchise To Hyde County Man

Raleigh, July 12.—(AP)—Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne today granted Mrs. F. M. Gibbs of Hyde county a franchise to operate buses between Engelhard and Columbia, via Fairfield.

There was no opposition at the hearing ordered when Mrs. Gibbs filed an application for her Engelhard-Washington bus company. The new route will extend her line, which now operates from Washington to Engelhard.

Expect East-West Plane Service By January 1st

Raleigh, July 13.—Laurence H. Duncan, executive secretary of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, who has been very active in promoting the proposed east-west air line from Norfolk and Elizabeth City to Knoxville, thinks there is a good chance for the line to be in operation on regular schedule by the first of the year.

The federal aeronautics authority has set a final hearing on the proposition for October 30. Inauguration of regular mail and passenger plane service is possible within five days after the authority gives its decision. Government agencies work slowly, and sometimes reach unexpected conclusions. But with the array of facts and information ready for presentation, and adverse decision of this authority is not contemplated, and those "in the know" think that speedy action will follow the hearing.

Pennsylvania Central Air Lines recently surveyed the route, and their experts are thoroughly sold on its possibilities. The entire North Carolina congressional delegation, supported by several members from Virginia and Tennessee, are boosting the route. The postoffice department has indicated a favorable attitude.

Main service of the route will be in the handling of mail. While passenger and private air express business may prove profitable, it will be the mail contract upon which the line will depend for its existence. Present mail time from far east to far west in North Carolina is approximately 33 hours. The air mail will make it in less than four hours. The importance of that time saving to industry and commerce cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

RELIEF ROLLS CUT BY DEATH

Nineteen Tar Heels Over 100 Years Die In Past Year

Raleigh, July 13.—Death terminated government grants of 19 North Carolinians 100 years old or more during the fiscal year ending June 30, Nathan H. Yelton, state director of public assistance, announced today.

Oldest of the 19 centenarians to die was Sarah Guder, Asheville Negroess, whose government record shows 122 years. She drew aid from the public assistance funds during the last 16 months of her life.

Mr. Yelton released some other interesting figures. More men than women left relief rolls by way of death. Of 2,148 white persons dying, 1,202 were men and 946 were women. Ratio was a little closer among Negroes, 616 men and 554 women making up the total of 1,170 deaths. Eleven Indian women died and only nine Indian men, the only class in which women outnumbered men in number of deaths.

One hundred and seventeen old people left the public assistance lists because they had become self supporting during the year, while 200 were admitted to various institutions. Relative assumed responsibility for 413. Relatives also took 2,298 children off the relief rolls, which instance constitutes the most gratifying item in the report. One hundred and twenty children reached the maximum age under which the law allows payments to parents, and seventy-five children were placed in public or semi-public institutions.

A majority of North Carolinians dying in the year just ended were between 66 and 83 years of age, according to welfare department records.

SAYS FAMILY ROWS, LOVE, PLAY PARTS IN AUTO MISHAPS

Dallas, Texas.—(AP)—Love affairs and home troubles may play an important part in highway fatalities, Jerry H. Clark discovered in research he conducted at Southern Methodist University for a thesis on "some of the psychological factors in highway safety."

Motorists concentrate upon financial difficulties, love affairs, troubles at home or arguments with fellow workers, said Clark, and under such conditions their minds are not on their driving.

Consequently, drivers are more apt to "get out of control" than automobiles, Clark said. He said the term "accident" is a misnomer as only five of each 100 highway deaths are due to unforeseeable vehicular accidents.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood.—Charles Laughton takes his medicine manfully. He takes his press parties the same way. They had one for him at RKO the other day, celebrating his return to Hollywood and, very incidentally, the fact that, for RKO, he would make a talkie of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Chubby Charlie, who reputedly shies from the press, was there table-hopping with ingratiating affability. The affair was in the studio restaurant, large enough to hold all the hordes of correspondents and magazine writers, most of whom were on hand. Smokes and drinks and fancy fodder enlivened the occasion, as is customary. It was Mollie Merrick, the writer, who once remarked that a certain studio could do no business of this nature "except over the carcass of a turkey." The present affair was no exception. But Laughton did himself proud, the way he got around.

Nearing 40, he still looks singularly juvenile and cherubic. He still dresses almost as carelessly as his amous character. "The Beachcomber." Not quite, though. He wore a grey suit that needed pressing, a blue shirt, a striped tie. And he talked, and answered questions, and let himself be piloted from table to table with williness, if some bewilderment.

Receiving a vote of sympathy on the ordeal, Laughton was reminded of his recent stop in New York during which, from 10 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., he gave individual interviews, one after another. The last reporter came in at 7, took one look, and exclaimed, "You look nervous—what's the story?"

With memories of Lon Chaney as an athletic "Hunchback" of the silents, much given to swinging from gargoyles to gargoyles on Notre Dame's towers, I had to find out how Laughton, who carries considerable tonnage, planned to negotiate same. He seemed unworried at the prospect, talked blithely of doubles—or derricks—in case such athletic feats should be required, and summed it up with, "We're going to make it as Victor Hugo wrote it, so it should be a different picture from the old one."

Those income tax troubles? Oh, no, they hadn't kept him from Hollywood. They were all settled, and in his favor, happily, after he arrived in New York.

"The Beachcomber" . . . oh, he'd been more than gratified by its reception in this country. Stopping over in Chicago briefly, he had taken a taxi to his hotel, another to a Turkish bath, another back to the hotel, and a fourth to the station again—and each of those taxi drivers congratulated me on the picture. Very interesting. College men? Oh, no—these were guys who talked from the sides of their mouths. Another Tom Collins? Oh, I mustn't . . . well, all right then, but no more. . . I've got to go back to England right after this picture. . . Another Mayflower production. . . We're doing "The Admirable Crichton" next. Yes, Mrs. Laughton will be in it. . . Oh, excuse me—there seems to be another table I haven't met.

Curly hair tousled, he is off again. He is still here, grinning and table-hopping, when the bar is closed and the turkey is indeed but a carcass. He has taken his medicine manfully.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acid waste in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be over-worked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of poisonous waste.

When functional kidney disorder permits you won't feel well. This may cause nagging headache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. If you are trouble with frequent or scanty passages, tingling, smarting and burning, there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as below. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PLAN TO TEST ELECTION LAW

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, July 13.—Action now pending in Wake county Superior court before the grand jury is of significant interest to the whole state, as determining whether the election laws enacted by the 1939 General Assembly really "reformed" election practices in North Carolina.

In the recent city election in Raleigh a Negro woman was arrested for attempting to vote in the name of another woman. Later the Negro man who persuaded her to try that stunt was also arrested. Both Negroes have been sentenced to relative short jail terms. But the stories they told indicated that somebody else put them up to the stunt. This week Judge Paul Prizelle, presiding over Criminal court here, instructed the grand jury to make a thorough investigation of the election and to bring indictments if evidence justified it, no matter how high up the offender might be.

The populace around the capital hasn't got excited about the situation. The average voter has come to expect some sort of monkey business in elections. But active political workers are watching with keen interest the action of the judge and grand jury.

Most observers do not expect anything to come of it. Admitting the vulnerability of one or two higher-ups whose names have been mentioned, the run-of-mine citizen expects the whole thing to be whitewashed. Trouble with such an investigation is that it frequently goes too far for the comfort of politicians. It is impossible to pin something on one Negro who was the victim of carelessness without incriminating several white people who claim to know the election

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, July 13.—Installation of sixteen big "cyclone" fans and about a couple of dozen smaller desk type fans in the working quarters of the Unemployment Compensation Commission has greatly relieved the situation there. The additional fans, together with splendid cooperation on part of the weather man, serve to make the "hot" a fairly decent working place. In fact, those in the know contend that conditions were never so bad as newspaper reports indicated.

Secretary of State Thad Eure has been out of his office for two or three days, but he hasn't been off the job. An important but little publicized feature of his work is administration of the "blue sky laws." These laws regulate the sale of bonds and securities, and require that every company issuing stocks or bonds for sale in the state, and every salesman peddling them, must be registered with the secretary of state. Mr. Eure has been in Stanley Superior court at Albemarle this week giving testimony against a couple of stock and bond salesmen who failed to comply with the statute.

The fact that Robert G. Lassiter and his intimates have regained control of the Southern Aggregates Corporation, one of the largest and some producing companies in the country, may have some bearing on the next campaign for governor. In past year, when Mr. Lassiter was extensively engaged in road and bridge contracts, he was one of the heaviest contributors to political campaigns. His return to active control of the interests which slinked out of his hands about ten years ago may bring a return also of his contributions to "worthy causes."

The redoubtable Tom Cooner, avowed but unannounced candidate for Governor, has a genius for public life. His request, made as mayor of Wilmington, that the Supreme Court reopen the case decided last year ruling parks, playgrounds and libraries as non-essentials, was made just at the right time to capitalize on the library consciousness of the state. The Wilmington issue was more largely parks than libraries, followed by Attorney General Mr. Mullan's ruling that commissioners cannot appropriate tax money for libraries without a vote of the people, served to make the library issue acute. Mr. Cooner seized upon that and he is asking the high court to give Wilmington another chance to be heard on whether or not the city can issue bonds for parks and reading rooms.

Kerr Scott, commissioner of agriculture, dresses up like any other dignified public official when he is on duty in his office here, or when appearing in public over the state. But when he gets to his Alamance county farm for week-ends and other brief holidays he "goes native." During a rainstorm last Saturday afternoon the commissioner might have been seen out in his fields, donned in old overalls, with the legs rolled up school boy fashion and with no more shoes on his feet than Madame Perkins once thought was average for southern farmers. The commissioner likes to feel the grass blades tickle his ankles, and to feel the mud oozing up between his toes. He is a picture of him in the mud.

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Ruff

YESTERDAY: The Chiseler tears his pants on a balcony, and is intercepted by Mrs. Dipsang, the housekeeper, whose fortune has just predicted that a large fat man of regal bearing will enter her life.

Chapter 32 The Honeyed Tongue

"I HAVE not the advantage of your name," said the Chiseler. "It's Mrs. Dipsang."

"Ah! Mrs. Dipsang. An unusual name, but extremely euphonious, if I may say so. My felicitations to Mr. Dipsang."

Mrs. Dipsang blinked a little. She had long since ceased to mourn the marine-minded Dipsang. But, out of respect for his memory, it was her custom to shed a tear or two whenever his name was mentioned.

The Chiseler noted the blinks. "I trust," he said solicitously, "that I have not inadvertently touched upon a delicate subject."

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Dipsang, wiping her eyes with the end of a handkerchief. "It's just that Dipsang got himself lost overboard off a ship."

Had the Chiseler rehearsed his reception of this information he could not have computed himself in a manner better calculated to win Mrs. Dipsang's esteem. He took off his hat and bowed his massive head on his chest. In this attitude he remained for the space of two minutes. Mrs. Dipsang was deeply moved.

"Very sad," he said gently. "A most unfortunate occurrence. Tell me, Mrs. Dipsang, how long ago did this—er—tragedy take place?"

"Nine years ago next Christmas," Mrs. Dipsang told him. "H'm," said the Chiseler. "Hum! Most regrettable."

Mrs. Dipsang did not reply immediately and the Chiseler considered the time ripe for withdrawal.

"Well," he said, consulting his watch, "I am afraid that I shall have to take my departure. I hope you will not consider it—ah—forward of me if I say that it has been a long time since I have had so charming a conversation."

But if he thought to divert Mrs. Dipsang with honeyed words, he had reckoned without his hostess. "You're not going," she said. "Oh, but I must," said the Chiseler.

Mrs. Dipsang shook her head. "No, you're not going. If you attempt to, I shall scream!"

The Chiseler bowed to the inevitable. He passed through the door. But once over the threshold he embarked upon a side-long and somewhat circuitous course designed to present the front of himself only to the eyes of Mrs. Dipsang.

Mrs. Dipsang noticed the flanking movement. "What are you minding around for?" she asked sharply. The Chiseler answered this but feebly.

"Er—um—ah," he said. "Take that chair," Mrs. Dipsang commanded, indicating an overstuffed article in a corner. Obediently the Chiseler backed toward it.

Very Irregular
"GOOD Heavens, man, what's the matter with you?" said Mrs. Dipsang.

"If you must know, Mrs. Dipsang," he said, somewhat austere, "I have been so unfortunate as to tear my trousers."

"Oh! Torn your trousers, eh? Well, sakes alive, why didn't you say so?"

"I did not," said the Chiseler primly, "consider it a fit subject for discussion."

"Rubbish. Take 'em off!" the Chiseler had the grace to blush.

"Are you seriously suggesting, Madam," he said frigidly, "that I remove my trousers?"

"Certainly. How else do you think I can mend them?"

presented a colorful spectacle indeed to the eyes of Mrs. Dipsang. For he stood revealed in a pair of gala red-and-white underpants, a gay garment that would have been entirely in its element if permitted to flutter from a flagpole. But the Chiseler, with due modesty, eschewed bursting upon the world in this festive peppermint-colored costume. He passed his ailing trousers over the top of the screen to Mrs. Dipsang.

Mrs. Dipsang, having rummaged in a work-basket for needle and thread, sat down with the trousers on her knee.

"Now," she said comfortably, "you may explain why you were sneaking around on that balcony."

The Chiseler gazed over the screen.

"Ah," he said sadly. "My actions tonight were but typical of the desperate measures that may be resorted to by a fond father and over-indulgent parent."

"I don't know as I follow you," said Mrs. Dipsang, threading her needle.

"Mrs. Dipsang," said the Chiseler, "if you were the mother of a wartrel daughter, what would you do?"

"I'd keep the baggage in of nights," said Mrs. Dipsang, in decision.

"Ah, my good woman," said the Chiseler, "I fear that you have had little experience with this present profusion and headstrong generation. The days of parental restriction seem to be—"

"—to be"—he paused, then scaled a purple height—"one with Nineveh and Tyre. I, Mrs. Dipsang, am the unhappy father of a daughter who flouts my advice and casts the teachings of her childhood in my teeth."

"Dear me," said Mrs. Dipsang, impressed. "That's bad."

"Precisely," said the Chiseler, sorrowfully. "Bad, I am, of course, accustomed to my daughter's willfulness. I am tolerant of it, even indulgent. But you will realize, Mrs. Dipsang, that the limits of my extreme toleration were exceeded when I learned that Dor—er—Lydia was planning to visit this house tonight in the company of a young man of questionable antecedents and unsavory reputation."

"Eh?" said Mrs. Dipsang. "What did you say she was coming with?"

"An idle young scapegrace who can intend her no good."

"But I'm sure you're mistaken," said Mrs. Dipsang.

Depravity
"MRS. DIPSANG," said the Chiseler, resting his chin on the top of the screen, "it is evident that the virtuous and sequestered life that you have led under this roof has blinded you to the wickedness of the young man and womanhood of today. They mask their iniquity under a veneer of honeyed word and charming manner. You who are doubtless reluctant to believe ill of anyone, would not see through this veneer to the depravity that lies below. You would probably fail to recognize it even in those who sit at your table and eat your bread and—er—salt."

Mrs. Dipsang was flattered. This gentleman had a rare command of language and a good delivery. She hastened to correct a slight error, however.

"It isn't my bread and salt they eat," she said. "It's Mr. Adams's. I'm only the baker."

"An honest calling," the Chiseler said magnanimously.

"Getting back to this depravity," said Mrs. Dipsang. "I hadn't noticed it. I do lead a sheltered life here. And being a lorn woman without chick or child, now that Dipsang's gone, I wouldn't know, of course."

"You are fortunate," said the Chiseler.

"Mister Jonathan is a little wild, to be sure. But there isn't an ounce of harm in him."

"Jonathan?" said the Chiseler, eyeing Mrs. Dipsang. "New which of these misguided young people would he be?"

real taste of roughing it. The boys have been invited to spend two weeks in a real log cabin in the Adirondacks. If they hadn't seen that movie, and if they hadn't spent the whole summer in Manhattan, learning nothing from nature.

On a subway the other evening I saw five girls all reading "Grapes of Wrath." Not together. They weren't even acquainted. But all had copies of this very odd book which everyone is reading. You see hundreds of people reading on subways in New York. Often that is the only time and place they have to read. The subway is their library and the commutation hour their time of reading. The fact that all these people were reading the same book is not necessarily an indication that it is the most popular book of the moment. It indicates that his home sector.

these young ladies patronize lending libraries, and these libraries have the same books at the same time.

The origin of nicknames is often interesting. Take, for instance, the name of a Harlem number writer, who, despite the worthy and effective efforts of Mr. Dewey, Police Commissioner Valentine and other officials, continues to do a pretty substantial business in and around the moment. It indicates that his home sector.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—Holidays in New York are dreary affairs. No place in the world can be so lonesome as a great city on a summer holiday. Those who remain in town are out in the ball stadiums, in the theaters, or swimming. Others flee to the country. The streets have that pestilence-ridden look, as if men had hurriedly and with one accord left them forever. There is an emptiness, and a dry, hollow quality of desertion that is depressing. For once there is little or no traffic. The taxicabs crawl past you in puzzled wonderment. People talk in monotonous tones. Even the pigeons forget to hover around the squares. The whole city seems in a daze. And maybe it is. Geared to hurry and nerve-racking speed, the sweet lassitude of a summer's holiday is too much for it. It's like returning to a quiet crossroads store after four years in the trenches.

New York courts the other day that stunned everybody. First, a young man charged with vagrancy suddenly soaked a detective and escaped—he did it with the judge and everybody looking right at him. They still haven't found him, and it will be a good thing for him if that detective never catches him.

The other shows you the power of the movies. A cop in Central park was flabbergasted to find two youngsters with an axe. They were preparing to chop down a tree. They were going to build a log cabin, they said, like the one they had seen in the movies. Then they planned to set out a trap line and sell their pelts to the Hudson Bay Company. At that, they might have had better success than most people realize. Though this is a great city, Central park is alive with game. For some reason, animals and fowl lose their timidity in the city. Wild ducks abound on the reservoir. Squirrels, coon, woodchuck, rabbits, muskrat and similar small game are found in abundance.

In case you are wondering how the log cabin is progressing, the young trappers were dissuaded. Their mothers promised that no more axes would be left within their reach. However, they are to have a

Freddie Caligiuri Wins As Spence And Mooney Lose

TOBS TRIUMPH IN AFTERNOON

Greenies Gain 4-2 Victory In Twin-Bill Nightcap

Greenville triumphed, 4-2, over Frank Rodgers' Wilson Tobs last night after emerging on the small end of a 6-4 score in the afternoon game.

Freddie Caligiuri, who has been on the shady side of the win column recently, performed for the Greenies last night as the Tobs used Drantz and Bissette to halt the charging Greenies.

Drantz was kind to the Greenies and they hammered him for a half-dozen safeties before Bissette took over.

Lefty Spence got reckless in the afternoon game to give the Tobs the win. Except for a third of an inning, Spence pitched six innings without a hit and walked five batters for runs in the sixth. He walked two more men and Manager Wilson decided that was enough, so he replaced Spence with Ben Mooney. Wilson got two runs off Spence's walks and another when Mooney walked the next batter.

Greenies' runs came in the first, fourth, sixth and seventh innings, scoring one run in each verse.

Rube and his boys journey to Kinston today, where they will clash with the Eagles in their third consecutive doubleheader of the week. The Eagles will play the locals here Friday night. All ladies will be admitted free of cost.

GAME SET FOR 3:15 SUNDAY

Two Picked Teams To Play At Third Street Park

Personnel of the All-Star softball teams to clash at Third Street park Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock was announced today by J. D. Simpson, league presy.

Allen of the Gulf team will manage one team, to be called the Blues, while Dudley of the Double Cola team will direct the Reds.

The Greenies will be out of the city Sunday and a large crowd is expected to witness the All-Star tilt. An admission fee to help defray expenses will be charged as follows: Men, 25 cents; women, 15 cents; children under 12, five cents. No card passes nor season tickets will be honored at the game.

Immediately following the All-Star game will be one between the Mecca Hustlers of Washington, D. C., and the Greenville team leading the loop as of Friday night games. Although Water and Light appears to have the edge, Royal Crown, Double Cola and Blount-Harvey teams have an outside chance and are fighting for the honor of meeting the Washington team.

Manager Allen's Blues team is composed of the following: Pitchers—Moster (Royal Crown), Allen (Gulf), Seigler, alternate (Water & Light); catchers—Barnhill (Water & Light), James (Tadlock), Proctor (Carolina Sales) alternate; first base—Lynch (Royal Crown), Brewer (Water & Light), Critcher (Carolina Dairy), alternate; second base—Hester (Gulf), A. Bobbie Knows 'Em

One Greenville youngster who really "knows his baseball team" is Bobbie Lee, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lee.

Bobbie knows each Greenville player by his first and last names, the position of each player, and the number on the uniform of each local player.

Bobbie's dad does the announcing at the games here and Bobbie, who seldom misses seeing Rube Wilson's Greenies in action, gets a great thrill when his dad permits him to announce a batter.

TONIGHT'S GAMES
Royal Crown vs. Blount-Harvey.
Gulf vs. Carolina Dairy.
Carolina Sales vs. Royal Crown.

The league-leading Water and Light softball team last night added two more victories to its string to pull away from runner-up teams.

One of the victories came on a 11 to 4 win over Carolina Dairy. In the other win, the utility boys overcame an eight run lead piled up by Tadlock in the first inning and an additional two markers pushed across in the second, putting the insurance men ahead by a score of 10-0. In the third, however, Water and Light made four, came back in the fourth to add a couple more, made three in the sixth. Trullips by one run at the start of the final inning. Roebuck clouted a homer to pull into a tie and a walk and a lone hit gave the utility team the required two to win.

In the final game of the evening Double Cola scored five runs in the first frame and it later turned out that these tallies were needed as Blount-Harvey kept adding single runs an inning until they had amassed five. Double Cola, however, had pushed one more across in each of the fifth and seventh.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 13.—(AP)—A few profit takers ganged up on the stock market today after prices had bounded upward in the morning, and reduced or cancelled top marks running to more than three points.

Transfers approximated 590,000 shares in the forenoon. Following mid-day, however, some traders inclined to cash in and dealings dwindled appreciably. The day's volume was about 950,000 shares.

wins seems incredible. It is almost as if the irresistible force were meeting the immovable body—and making it move.

When the President was inaugurated he told the country that if he felt it necessary he would ask Congress for the "broad executive power to wage a war against the emergency." He soon felt it necessary and was given broad executive powers.

Some of the powers have been taken away. Some he still has. Anybody can find takers for a bet that some of them never will be lost to the President.

The Greatest Attack

Undoubtedly the most formidable mass attack against the President's emergency powers was in the closing days of June when one or another of the two branches of Congress voted to:

1. Withdraw his power further to deviate the dollar.
2. Dissolve the $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund.
3. Keep the restraints upon him imposed by the National Defense Act.

Further, the Relief bill, itself, although largely continuing the President's "hump sum" control of the spending, imposed special restraints on the method of spending which the chief executive had sought to avoid.

The President surrendered on the Relief bill because he had to have the money or dump a heap of workers off relief. But on the monetary and national powers he warned of a continuing battle.

Even in his first term the Supreme Court and Congress began trimming the President's powers. The Court took the lead in that by knocking out the far-reaching NRA authorities which gave the administration a grip on industry and labor factors alike.

More Agricultural Power

Remaining with the President is the tremendous power to manage the tariff, a task which Congress had held to itself from the earliest days of the nation. He need not consult Congress on any ordinary tariff schedule he may work out. His treaties will continue to run even though Congress should denounce them.

The President has retained a widespread control over national agricultural management. Contrary to the trend in other directions, those powers have recently been extended. He now is given authority and money to use subsidies to move surplus crops into the world market. That is a large power—both domestically and internationally.

On Capitol Hill, where the rebel-

Introducing Simmons New BEAUTYREST

A Miracle of Sleep Comfort

Beautyrest Mattress by SIMMONS

If you want more refreshing sleep, this is your mattress. The New Beautyrest is DEEPER, each coil is in a separate cloth pocket and can work independently of the other. The Beautyrest "gives" at the point where pressure is applied—it does not sag in surrounding areas. This construction means greater comfort and most healthful sleep.

The New Beautyrest has been rigidly tested for durability—it is guaranteed by Simmons for 10 years. The actual difference in cost per night between a Beautyrest and an ordinary mattress is only a trifle, but there is a tremendous difference in sleep comfort between the two.

Costs only 1¢ A NIGHT

- ★ DEEPER, MORE COMFORTABLE FLOATING ACTION
- ★ NEW PANEL DAMASK COVERS
- ★ SAG PROOF EDGES

Washington Daybook

By Preston Groover
Washington—Stripped down to the running gears, the contest between President Roosevelt and Congress over continuing the emergency powers is the old battle that presidents always lose in their second terms.

Probably each phase of the contest is more dramatic now than ever before. There is a reason for that. The President's public appeal and his personal influence in Washington have been tremendous. For that reason, each battle that Congress
