

PITT RETAINS 70-CENT RATE FOR THIS YEAR

ABC Providing $100,000 Again For 1939-40

FOUR DIVISIONS SHOW INCREASES

Slight Elevation in Total Assessed Valuation Anticipated For New Fiscal Year

Auditor J. H. Coward today revealed that the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has tentatively adopted the county budget for 1939-40, retaining the 1938-39 levy of 70 cents on the $100 valuation.

Simultaneously, he announced that the Pitt County ABC Board would turn $100,000 in revenue over to the county again this year.

Appropriations for this year amount to $383,847.50 as compared with $374,642.79 of last year for an increase of $9,204.71, but estimated that the county tax levy at the same level. The only budget items showing an increase are outside poor relief, pensions, health department and bonds and interest.

Last year's assessed valuation was $33,064,208 and this year it appears there will be a slight increase, but the eight-cent levy for the pension fund and a 55-cent levy for bonds and interest for a combined total of 63 cents were arrived at accordingly. These levies were the same during the 1938-39 fiscal year.

Bond and interest appropriations last year were $190,020, with expenditures amounting to $187,150.83 and collections, $177,993.74. Of the bond and interest item, $101,150.83 was for interest and the remaining $86,000 was paid on the principal.

Auditor Coward explained that 78.6 per cent of the entire tax load is for bonds and interest.

School maintenance appropriations last year, exclusive of the transfer to the Greenville charter district, amounted to $49,469.50. Expenditures were $51,221.83 and collections for the school fund, $48,792.56. With the transfer to the charter districts included school maintenance expenditures were $2,518.26 in excess of receipts. However, $6,499 left from county operations in 1938-39 gives a net surplus of receipts over expenditures of $3,980.74.

During the 1938-39 fiscal year, appropriations of $374,632.79 were expended with expenditures of $377,005.52 and collections of $364,189.95. Expenditures were $16,942.27 less than appropriations and $6,499 under the total collections for the year.

Coward explained that the general fund expenditures for 1938-39 were $11,676, expenditures $10,000 and collections $11,937.53, with the ABC Board contributing $50 to the latter amount. The county home appropriation was $1,190, expenditures $7,773.17, and collections $12,062.63, with an $8,500 turnover from the ABC revenue fund. Outside and poor relief appropriations were $11,491, expenditures $12,288.95 and collections, $13,388.50, with $11,000 of the total collections being derived from ABC revenue. Health department appropriations last year were set at $17,059.79, expenditures $16,353.18 and collections, $14,618.18. Of the collections for this division $7,500 was provided by the ABC Board.

It was revealed by Auditor Coward that there was no ABC appropriation to take care of the pension fund, collections of which amounted to $28,189.37 were derived from the eight-cent tax levy. Appropriations for the pension fund were $34,226 and expenditures amounted to $32,419.48.

Budget estimates for 1939-40 show an appropriation of $101,813 for the general fund, with the following estimated revenue: Fees, etc., $31,407; ABC revenue, $58,407.25; collections on advances to drainage projects, $12,005.75. Sales of produce amounting to $1,200 and an ABC turnover of $8,415 is expected to cover the county home appropriation of $9,615.

Coward said that ABC revenue would contribute $13,366 to the outside poor and relief appropriation of $13,471, with the balance of $105 (Continued on Page 6)

To Buy Furniture

34 INJURED AT FISHER PLANT IN CLEVELAND

Clubs Wielded, Bricks Tossed and Gas Bombs Hurlled

TRUCE EFFECTED BY POLICE CHIEF

Of Twelve Arrested Three Admit Operating Without License; Nine Disturbing Peace

Cleveland, July 31.—(AP)—A club-wielding, brick-tossing and tear gas bombing riot at the strike-bound Fisher body plant of General Motors Corporation today injured 34 persons, at least one seriously.

A crowd of GIO United Auto Workers, estimated by police at from 5,000 to 6,000, massed at the door to stop the plant.

Police Captain Michael Blackwood said the fighting started after a brick was thrown through the window of an automobile carrying several non-strikers into the plant.

At least 300 tear gas shells and bombs were thrown into the rioting that ensued, Blackwood said.

From a third floor window of the factory a policeman mounted a long range tear gas gun which sent gas shells 300 yards into the crowd of demonstrators.

Blackwood said the strikers replied with tear gas shells and hand grenades.

Twelve persons were arrested and released later on waivers. Three admitted operating a sound truck without permits and nine admitted creating a disturbance.

A short time later a truce was effected by Police Chief George F. Matowitz.

Company officials said the plant was operating as it has been throughout the strike, which was called three weeks ago by skilled tool and die workers to press demands for a supplement agreement.

The company said only 463 persons, including office employees, entered the plant today. About 700 normally are employed at this season. Union representatives made no estimate of the number who entered the plant.

14.75 AVERAGE IN FIRST WEEK

Compares with 26.75 On Georgia Marts Last Year

Atlanta, July 31.—(AP)—Tobacco sales totaled $3,985,575.62 at Georgia's 15 market centers last week, averaging 14.75 for 27,024,786 pounds.

The official figures on 64 warehouses in the state compiled by the State Department of Agriculture, covered four days of the 1939 auction season.

They compared with the two days of sales in the first week last year when 14,997,350 pounds sold for $3,771,482.55, or an average of 26.75.

Several Are Hurt In Highway Crash

Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams said today that several were injured, but not seriously, when an automobile driven by Wilson Nichols of near Farmville attempted to pass his motor vehicle on a curve between Farmville and Fountain Saturday night and struck the automobile driven by Milton Wainwright.

Williams said the Wainwright car turned turtle and was demolished. Nichols car was described as being almost a total wreck. He said that Nichols probably would be charged with reckless driving.

Besides Wainwright, those in his car who were treated by Fountain physicians for injuries were Sarah Owen, Mary Ella Thilpen and a baby. Troy Harris and Ora Mae Jefferson were said to have been riding with Nichols.

The Highway Patrol also investigated another accident at Sharpe Point in Pitt County last yesterday and no arrest was made, Williams said.

Mission Sent To Start British-French-Soviet Military Conversations

Chamberlain Announces Talks to Get Under Way In Moscow Probably This Week, Sidesteps Questions, However, on Abrogation of British-Japanese Pact

London, July 31.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain acknowledged before the House of Commons today that definition of the term "indirect aggression" was the major snag holding up conclusion of the proposed British-French-Russian mutual assistance pact.

He made this disclosure in a foreign affairs debate a short time after he had announced Britain and France would send military missions to Moscow, probably this week, for staff talks.

He added that political discussions of the proposed British-French and Soviet Russian mutual assistance pact would proceed side-by-side with the military conversations.

The prime minister's statement was made at the opening of foreign affairs debate at the beginning of Parliament's last week of sessions before recessing until autumn.

"The Soviet government has proposed that at the present state of negotiations it would be an advantage to begin military conversations forthwith," he said.

"His majesty's government and the French government have conferred and arrangements are being made to send British and French military representatives to Moscow as soon as possible."

Chamberlain side stepped questions whether Great Britain intended to follow the United States action in denouncing the American-Japanese trade treaty by abrogating the 1911 British-Japanese trade pact.

He said the matter would require careful consideration and he was not prepared to make a statement today.

"Consultations with the dominant government will be necessary," he added. "Broadly speaking the aims of the British government and the United States government are similar, but the conditions are not exactly the same."

In city recorder's court today, Willie Gray Sutton, Greenville white man, was given a 90-day sentence, suspended upon condition that the defendant and his family stay out of the city for five years, after being convicted on a charge of operating a disorderly house.

Robert Strickland was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs, after being convicted on a drunkenness charge.

Joe Glover, Negro, charged with assault, was adjudged guilty and given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Bernard Smith, Negro, charged with illegal possession of liquor, was adjudged not guilty.

Arthur Forbes, Negro, charged with being drunk, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Alma Whitfield, Negro, charged with being drunk and using vulgar and profane language, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

William Outlaw, Negro, convicted on a drunkenness charge, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Willie Reeves and Julius White, Negroes, convicted on charges of being drunk and disorderly and assault with deadly weapons, were each given 30-day sentences, suspended upon condition that they remain of good behavior one year.

James Austin and Louise Hunter, Negroes, charged with being drunk and engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct, were given sentences of 30 days each, suspended upon payment of costs.

Cliff Miller, Negro, tried on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and using vulgar and profane language, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

GRADER WORKS ON WEED MART

Federal Leaf Grading Begins Here This Season

When the Greenville tobacco market opens its 1939 marketing season August 22, there will be mandatory federal inspection of all leaf sold here, under orders issued by Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

Greenville will be among 38 weed markets operating under a federal inspection system, a plan that was inaugurated on the Farmville market in Pitt county some time ago.

Inspection of the order by the Secretary of Agriculture is the outgrowth of a referendum among all growers who sold tobacco on the Greenville market in 1938. This included growers in North Carolina and other states. The referendum was held during the latter part of June.

Ballots in the referendum were mailed to county agents in various sections, and the county agents referred the ballots to the state office. After complete returns were received, they were sent to Washington for approval.

It was revealed that 87 per cent of the growers participating in the referendum voted in favor of federal inspection. This is about the same per cent of sentiment in Pitt toward government grading.

Besides federal grading, the affirmative vote in the referendum also provides a price bulletin issued by the government, which is said to be a means for enabling the farmer to keep a check on prices paid for various grades of tobacco.

ANOTHER CUT MADE IN NEW LENDING BILL

Economy Bloc Reduces Measure by $25,000,000

MOVE IS TAKEN ON 44-35 VOTE

Bill Offered by Senator Barkley Following Drastic Demand By Senator Taft of Ohio

Washington, July 31.—(AP)—The Senate bi-partisan economy bloc forced an additional $25,000,000 reduction in the administration's lending bill today.

The chamber accepted, 44 to 35, a proposal by Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) to cut from $100,000,000 to $75,000,000 a proposed new lending authorization for the Export-Import Bank.

Barkley offered the amendment as a compromise after Senator Taft (R-Ohio) had demanded that the authorization be reduced to $25,000,000.

Action on the Barkley amendment brought the total of the lending bill down to $1,615,000,000 compared with a total of $2,800,000,000 when the measure originally was introduced.

Barkley's amendment also contained a provision requiring that borrowers from the Export-Import Bank spend the money in the United States.

Senate leaders were hopeful that final action on the lending bill would be taken today. The House has not yet considered the measure.

With the adjournment-bent Senate moving slowly toward a final vote on the measure, Senator Taft offered his amendment to cut the bank's authorization.

He quoted Jesse H. Jones, Federal Reserve Administrator, as saying that the bank could not meet more than $125,000,000 in order to make all desirable loans. The institution which aids in financing the sale of American products abroad, previously had received a $100,000,000 authorization and the lending bill would raise the total to $200,000,000.

Ask Weed Employees To Secure a Card

R. S. Marshall, manager of the Rocky Mount field office of the Social Security Board, announced today that all employees who have not already secured account numbers and especially those who intend to work in connection with the tobacco industry during the next several weeks, should secure a Social Security account number card without delay.

Applications for Social Security account number cards may be secured from the postmaster, the local office of the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission or by writing directly to the Social Security Board field office, Rocky Mount.

If an employee has lost his Social Security account number card, he should immediately apply for a duplicate of his lost number. The same form is used in applying for a duplicate as for securing an original account number card.

Every employee is urged to have in his possession a Social Security account number card, which he should show to his employer before starting to work.

Says He Will Oppose Cooley For Congress

Rocky Mount, July 31.—(AP)—Ira Baker, local carpenter who competed unsuccessfully on the Republican ticket against J. Q. Robinson, Democrat, in the contest for mayor here in May, said today he would file for Congress against Harold Cooley in the fourth congressional district.

Baker, the first Republican ever to run for mayor in Rocky Mount, was defeated overwhelmingly by Mayor Robinson.

Weather conditions retarded loans during January and February of this year but every month since then has shown a decided increase, according to Gaudin.

A total of $12,396,000 in loans were made the average loan being $1,500. More than $5,000,000 was loaned out in construction of new homes and $2,817,000 was used for purchase of new homes. Many homes were repaired or remodeled through these home lending institutions for approximately $4,400,000 was loaned out for repairs, remodeling, refinancing and other miscellaneous purposes.

It is estimated that the building savings and loan associations are making between two-thirds and three-fourths of the small home loans of the state. These loans were financed through the savings of more than 125,000 North Carolina shareholders who have been saving in increasing amounts for the construction of homes or for other worthwhile purposes, such as old age, vacations, etc.

New Caverns Attract Tourists in Virginia

A recent discovery which is attracting nationwide interest is the Skyline Caverns at Front Royal, Va., which are located just below the northern gateway to the Skyline drive in the Shenandoah National Park.

The caverns, entirely different from any other caverns in Virginia, were discovered by Walter S. Amos of Winchester, Va., in 1937, and since they only opened to the states during the second half of public since April of this year, they the year at the same rate main-have proven a magnet for thousands of tourists from all parts of the world.

Its many unusual beauties include an underground river, which winds its way beside dry walkways, later plunging into a colorful waterfall. The Helictites, or cave flowers, the multi-colored Painted Desert, Mirror lakes, Capitol Dome, Cathedral Hall, and many other outstanding scenes make up the attractions for the tour of this underground wonderland.

To properly illuminate the caverns, several eminent lighting technicians were engaged. After six months' efforts, one of the most modern lighting systems, costing thousands of dollars, was installed. More than thirteen hundred electric light bulbs with miles of cable were used in bringing out the beauties of this cavern.

Library News

The Friday afternoon story hour in the reading garden will be emphasized for the next three weeks.

At 4:30 Friday afternoon, Aug. 4, Miss Beatrice Cherry will give a half-hour of stories and songs. Miss Cherry lives at Stokes, teaches at Grimesland, and at present is studying in the summer school of the local college.

Her little friends at Stokes and Grimesland are especially invited to hear her on Friday afternoon along with any other children in the city and county who care to come.

On August 11, a group of students from Miss Coates' primary education classes will give the program, and on August 18 Mrs. E. T. Roberson has offered to direct the entertainment.

These three programs will be excellent and a large attendance of children is expected. Mothers and teachers are invited to come also.

Two mothers and a grandmother were in the group last Friday who heard Miss Catherine Tyson give a group of well chosen stories.

A little party feature was used on Friday also. This will be repeated again later. Remember, reading garden, 4:30 Friday afternoon.

MAKES REPORT ON FATALITIES

Charlotte Leads State Five in Pitt For 6 Months

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, July 31.—Charlotte, with 13 killed, easily gained the unenviable distinction of having more traffic accident fatalities of any North Carolina city during the first six months of 1939, according to records of the Highway Safety Division.

On a basis of population, however, the pain goes to Fayetteville rather than to the state's largest city, as eight fatalities were recorded in the Cumberland county capital through June. Raleigh, also with eight deaths, would rank above Charlotte on the unsafe list on a per capita basis; while Greensboro with eight and Durham with seven have nothing to brag about in the matter of safety records.

Winston-Salem, second largest city of Tar Heels, had only two traffic deaths, which probably entitles the Camel city to distinction among the group of really sizeable cities; though such cities as Kinston, Hickory, Wilson, Tarboro and the world's largest "unincorporated" city, Kannapolis, showed no deaths at all.

Officials in the safety division pointed out that in the matter of injuries wide differences in figures indicate that there is a wide variance in the matter of reporting

Honors Recent Brides. Bethel, July 31.—Entertaining the Wednesday bridge club, Mrs. Edward Cherry was hostess at her home Wednesday afternoon complimentary to Mrs. Carey Hammond, Mrs. Grover Whitehurst and Mrs. Vernon Bunting, recent brides. The living room was beautifully decorated with mixed garden flowers, forming a lovely setting for the three tables arranged for bridge.

After several progressions, scores were added and Mrs. Grimes Beverly was presented a linen towel for holding high, while Mrs. J. B. Bunting won the floating prize. The three brides were each presented linen napkins.

Frozen drinks were served during the play. A delectable frozen salad plate with iced tea was served at the conclusion of the games.

Mrs. Ficklen Hostess. Mrs. James S. Ficklen entertained at luncheon on Saturday afternoon at her home on Elizabeth street, honoring Miss Frances Moseley, bride-elect of August 15.

A combination of garden flowers made an attractive setting for the individual tables at which contract was played following a delicious course luncheon.

Mrs. Marvin Sugg, winner of high score, was given silk hose.

The honor guest was presented a silver pitcher to match her pattern.

Those present at this delightful affair were a few intimate friends of Miss Moseley.

Mills-Grimmer. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Grimmer of Robersonville, North Carolina, announce the marriage of their daughter, Lucy Coburn of Greenville and Robersonville, to Mr. Joseph Franklin Mills, Junior of Greenville and Henderson, on Saturday, July twenty-second, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Mills of Henderson.

COLORED NEWS Farm Notes. By August 11 most all tobacco will be in the barns and in order to give your back a little rest, suppose you attend a farmers' meeting to be held at the Edgecombe Test Farm August 11. Plans are being made to take a few 4-H Club boys and girls to enjoy the program, which will be held in the afternoon. A visit over the demonstration farm will be worth while.

Plant your garden during the month of August, beets, beans, kale, mustard, turnip, radish and spinach. If care is taken to follow these garden calendars, nothing will prevent one from having a year round garden. In any "five at home" plans, nothing is of more importance than a good garden. If you would be strong and healthy have a garden. Because of the continued rain, puncture every old can around the yard. These are mosquitoes' homes.

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Blizard

YESTERDAY: Realizing that she is considered an outcast by the girls of Gloria's set because she has no boy friend, Cecily impudently says she is engaged to Philip Callen, the author of a book in her library.

Chapter Nine Cecily's Fiance

MRS. WILKERSON and her husband look like a couple of international thieves. Mrs. Brewster says, "I laughed Laura."

Cecily nodded. "She probably asked Mrs. Brewster as many questions as she asked me. When she found out that I was Olivia Darrell's niece, she asked me all kinds of questions about Aunt Olivia, about the parties at Darelea, and who the other guests were. By the way, I didn't know you had been here last summer."

Laura flushed for no apparent reason. "I forgot to tell you," she said. "I came here when I was about seventeen one summer and I never forgot the place. I've always loved it."

She didn't say that when she was seventeen she had met a grave, keen-eyed young man who had forgotten, or didn't know that Laura Atwill was Laura Metcalf, the wealthy daughter of a Boston banker who had hired his butler and his services day after day. The young man himself was later to become a bank. That was to come later—many years later, and much had happened to Laura Metcalf before she met Donald Hemmingsway again.

"If you've got another brush, I'll help you," she said and settled down cross-legged on the floor, trying not to hear the thunder and shouting above it.

"I had to tell a lie while you were gone," Cecily shouted in return. "I had to save my reputation with Gloria's friends. They thought I was a curiosity because I haven't any beau."

There was a flash of lightning and a peal of thunder. The little lamp trembled and the candles guttered. When the din subsided somewhat, Cecily, still shouting, said, "I told them I was engaged."

"But you're not!"

Cecily laughed. "Of course I'm not, but I did it to save face. I said I was engaged to Philip Callen."

"Who's he?"

There was a creak boom and over it, Cecily's voice went up again. "I don't know. He's a writer. He wrote 'Ride the Rainbow.' I never heard of him before but I couldn't think of any name when Karen asked me what the name of my fiance was, so I selected that one."

The thunder had stopped and her voice sounded ridiculously loud. "Atta girl!" Laura approved. "Never let them know the truth."

The candles sputtered again and the doorbell tinkled at the front of the shop.

"Don't tell me we've a customer on a day like this," Cecily said and got up.

Before she could get to her feet, Mrs. Wilkerson put her head around the corner of the screen. Cecily had a fleeting thought that the lady had covered the distance from the front door in amazingly short order. It was only a fleeting thought.

"Oh, Mrs. Wilkerson, I'm so sorry you didn't get the message. I left. I went to the inn to say that I'll bring the baskets tomorrow. They won't dry today."

"That's all right," Mrs. Wilkerson said smoothly. "I'm afraid I won't be able to take them. We're leaving tonight."

"Then I'm sorry," Cecily replied graciously. "Is there anything I can do for you now?"

"Where's the fire?"

MRS. WILKERSON didn't answer at once. She appeared to be studying Cecily's face. Then hurriedly she said, "Nothing, my dear. I just stopped by to tell you that I won't be able to wait for them."

Laura watched her departure with contemplative eyes. "That's funny," she said. "Now why would she put herself out to come down here on a day like this just to tell you she was bringing two dollars' worth of baskets?"

Cecily laughed at her friend. "Laura, anybody'd think you thought she had designs on the shop. You ought to get together with Mrs. Brewster and have a good talk about your impressions of poor Mrs. Wilkerson."

"Well, you're likely to be suspicious of people who don't belong in a place like this, and the Wilkersons don't belong. Also, while we're on the subject, did you get a look for the door? I don't think you ought to leave it open at night."

"Laura, don't you know that there hasn't been an occupant in the local jail in the last five years? There isn't a soul in this town that would steal a postage stamp. Oh, that reminds me, I haven't been to the postoffice today."

She completely forgot about the Wilkersons. She was to think of Mrs. Wilkerson one week from that day and to wish that lady had not been so kind as to call on her to cancel her unimportant order.

That was the day that Philip Callen appeared at Darelea. The book-shop was open three nights a week until eight o'clock but Cecily always left at six. Dinner was at seven at Darelea and she liked the half-hour before when the family and Gloria's friends gathered on the porches or in the drawing-room—it was called a drawing-room at Olivia's—for a cocktail before dinner.

This was not the only time that Cecily spent away from the shop. Laura's coming had given her more freedom and she had often gone fishing, played tennis and badminton with the others. There were always the others and sometimes, noting that Karen and Allene were bored, she wondered why they stayed on.

"I can take a little of it but I should be bored to death spending one of their typical days," she said to Laura.

"You won't get much of it tonight if you don't hurry. It's nearly seven."

Cecily shuffled her feet in the pine-needles and the smooth pebbles of the drive leading up to the house, a little later. She skirted a smart sleek roadster that blocked her path and wondered whether it meant there would be another girl or another slouched youth that had come to join the party.

"Here she is now!" Karen's excited voice was followed by Karen herself standing in the doorway waving frenziedly for Cecily to hurry.

"Where's the fire?" Cecily asked. "In the drawing-room," Karen answered cryptically drawing her in, "and if you put it out, Allene and I will be fighting over it." To Cecily's amazement, Karen showed her in the living-room.

Cecily was aware of several things at once. She saw that her aunt was looking at her with a pleased smile. There was an air of expectancy in the room. Before she could voice a question, there was a young man hastening toward her, with his hands outstretched.

Fantastic!

HE was coming toward her. He had caught both her hands. He was kissing her and his arm encircled her!

She gulped and tried to get away from that encircling arm.

"Cecily darling, forgive me for coming without an invitation"—Cecily listened, too dumbfounded to interrupt—"I'm driving back tonight but I had to see you. And your aunt understands."

"Oh, my aunt... my aunt understands?" Why was she babbling? Why couldn't she think of something intelligent to say? This was fantastic! She'd wake up in a minute and discover she had been dreaming. But he was still talking.

"In fact, I've been scolding her." As he continued Cecily looked rapidly in her aunt's direction. No one ever scolded Madame Darrell!

Who was the person? "I told her that she couldn't take you away from me when we'd just become engaged."

"Philip, a cocktail?" Allene held out the tray to the stranger.

Philip, playing for time to assemble her rattled with a cocktail from the tray, still not having said a word. Something disquieting was beginning to glimmer in the recesses of her memory. She'd told these girls that she was engaged to a Philip Callen. She'd told Laura Atwill about it. She hadn't told one other person. Unless—

She wanted to ask what it all meant out caution made her hold her tongue.

This couldn't be Philip Callen! Things like that could happen in books but they couldn't happen to her. Her aunt was speaking:

"Cecily, you must try to persuade your fiance to stay. He tells us that he is on a vacation and we want him to remain with us at Darelea. Mr. Callen, I'll have Wilson get your things."

It was Philip Callen! Philip Callen, with a twinkle in his eye and a challenging strength in his arm was saying, "If my girl wants me to, Madame Darrell, I should like to come along Cecily, and persuade me."

All persuasion seemed to be well in the hands of Philip Callen. Cecily found herself being, gently whisked out of the drawing-room onto the porch. Out of doors she hastily led the way to the tea-house in the garden, anxious to be out of hearing.

She didn't sit down. She hadn't come for an exchange of pleasantries. "Well!" she said.

Philip Callen lounged easily against the framework of the door when she refused the chair he indicated. He offered her his cigarette case and regarded her with amusement.

"Which one of us will explain first?" he asked easily.

Cecily drew herself up with dignity. "I should think that you owe me an explanation of this ridiculous situation."

"On the other hand, my dear, what about our engagement?"

He was right, of course. She should never have been such a silly little fool as to have used the name of an actual person. If she could make him see that she meant no harm—

When she didn't answer at once, he continued, "The situation intrigues me. It piques my interest and as ever as a writer, I'd like to see it through. Neither of us has anything to lose if you'll act like a good sport."

"I'm afraid I don't understand." Continued tomorrow.

GAIN IS SHOWN IN JOBS FOUND

Big Increase In First Six Months of This Year

Raleigh, July 28.—A 49 per cent increase in job placements in the first six months of 1939, over the first six months of 1938, was shown in the report of activities of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission's employment service division, headed by Director R. Mayne Albright. Placements for the first six months of this year were 51,166, of which 25,608, or slightly more than half, were in private industry.

During the first six months of last year, 28.8 placements were made for each 100 applicants registered with the employment service division, while in the first six months of this year jobs were found for 7.8 out of each 100 applicants.

Registrations for the six months which ended June 30, 1939 totaled 67,475, which is 51.24 per cent more than for the first six months of last year, representing a 43 per cent decrease in the number of applicants seeking work.

Total active registrants in the files of the employment service division on June 30 numbered 107,783, which is 33.5 per cent lower than the number registered a year before. Personal calls at the employment offices numbered 1,598,507, while 390,353 interviews were held in the first six months of this year.

"We are glad to see the improvement in business generally, as indicated by the smaller number of applicants seeking work and the increased number of placements made in private industry," Chairman Charles G. Powell, of the commission, commented on this report. "It is very gratifying to realize that both the employers and the workers are making greater use of the facilities our employment service offices have to offer in getting those needing workers and those needing work together." Mr. Powell said.

But the issue is not strictly local. It has to do with a widespread coastal defense plan, for the Secretary of War's reason for banning the bridge is that it would hamper navigation in time of war that is enemy bombs might destroy the bridge and block entry to the East river.

In the near past, theaters along Broadway and in the great railway terminals are many scenes of giant coastal artillery in action, but the voices describing the scenes do not identify them. They say, "Here they are, folks, our big coast defense guns, but we can't tell you where."

These guns are all around the seaboard, guarding harbors and strategic points. Some of them appear so large as to be unreal. They are disappearing guns which sink back into deep, impenetrable concrete housings when they fire. They are supposed to be powerful enough to destroy ships miles at sea.

The death knell of the proposed bridge was a bitter blow to Park Commissioner Moses, who had set his heart on a majestic piece of engineering work that would arch its back from the foot of Manhattan to the Brooklyn side. For almost the War Department's decision was hailed with satisfaction.

After the ruling was announced, word came that the famous Brooklyn Bridge, which Steve Roudy immortalized by his tragic death leap, and the Tri-Borough Bridge may be supplanted by tunnels. In any case another tunnel is to be adjoined out of the rock and silt under East river.

Manhattan has so many tunnels already to end from it that you would think they would run into each other. But the present traffic demands some new ones.

Manhattan traffic has been and always will be a mess. The new tunnel at East river only makes the case. I really believe the day will come when some sort of a toll will be levied out the price of getting in the city. Perhaps some alphabetical scheme will be devised, permitting car owners from A to M to drive in the city on alternate days, and those from N to Z on the other days.

THE PROBLEM: This youngster can't learn to stand up, with one hand for support on the top of his pen. Trouble is he's so fascinated by this new-found ability to put all his weight on his feet that he stands and stands all day long. By the end of the day he's exhausted. What's more, the doctor says standing for such long stretches may weaken his bones and make him bow-legged.

THE ANSWER: So his mother decided individual problem that needed an individual cure. In her baby's case, this canvas swing did the trick. Sonny can exercise his leg muscles enough swinging his feet back and forth. Later on, his mother will tie toys to the swing, so he'll have playthings handy. If they drop, there's no damage done. He can learn to haul them up at the end of a string.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor, Washington.—A rubber band and an electric heater can now substitute for the "hand that rocks the cradle."

These materials, handy in every home, form a new "rubber heat engine" announced at the National Bureau of Standards by Lawrence A. Wood and Norman Bekkedahl. Rubber engines have been known before, but they could only swing a pendulum. The new one rocks an inverted pendulum, operating on the principle of the cradle, rocking horse and rocking chair.

The pendulum is a vertical rod, weighted at the top, pivoted to rock to and fro. Attached to its bottom is a rubber band, a few inches long, hitched to the floor or other base. The band is loose enough so that the top of the rocker arm tips to one side, until the stretching rubber stops it.

Now comes the trick. A long, narrow vertical shield is set between neater and rubber to cut off the rays when the pendulum and rubber are in a vertical line. Instantly, in the cool shade, the rubber relaxes. The rocker arm tips again, pulling the rubber out into the heat zone, where it again contracts.

One rock every three seconds is possible, and a pair of bands often last several weeks working eight hours a day.

There the "machine" stands motionless. But set the "bathroom" heater in front of the rubber and the heat. This pulls on the bottom of the rocking arm and straightens it.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington.—The Senate seems to be on the verge of rescuing "Gone With the Wind" from the Dutch and Japanese.

Publishers in Holland and Japan have been printing Margaret Mitchell's best seller for some months now without benefit of copyright protection. The result has been much gain to the Japanese and Dutch and much loss to Margaret Mitchell.

All of this comes about through failure of the Senate to ratify a copyright treaty which has been pending before it for a decade. Most of the other leading countries of the world have already ratified it, including Japan and Holland. This country, however, has become entangled in a dispute involving authors, motion picture producers, songwriters and printers, each demanding some special protection either in this treaty or in legislation to accompany it.

The copyright treaty is worked out on an international co-operative basis. Under its terms any American work copyrighted in the United States automatically enjoys full protection in all other countries that sign the treaty. That includes almost all nations. In turn, any work copyrighted elsewhere wins automatic protection in the United States.

Miss Mitchell seems to be the principal sufferer among American authors whose works are being pirated. She is suffering most from the piracy of a Holland publisher. But so far as is known Japan leads the world with mass piracy of about 50 American books.

$100 FOR MISS RAWLINGS
Publishers in both countries have seized upon "Gone With the Wind" and Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' novel, "The Yearling." Miss Mitchell has been law-suiting in Holland to establish her rights, but the results, she said in a letter to the Senate, Foreign Relations committee, are "discouraging."
Miss Rawlings had no better success. She wrote to the Holland company pirating her novel and they expressed regret that the United States was not a treaty signer. They did send her $100 with the stipulation that it was not to set a precedent. Miss Mitchell didn't get even $100.

Years ago, until the early 1890's the United States was a leading literary pirate. In those days there were more foreign works to be stolen than there were American works for piracy abroad. So American publishers pirated the works of foreign writers as fast as they came out unless the owners rushed through a special United States copyright, which cost money and took time.

The turn of the century brought a turn of the wheel. American literary works increased in demand, and more especially did American motion pictures and songs strike a popular note abroad. We quit pirating on a large scale so we could put up a better case against foreign publishers who were grabbing American works.

THE OBJECTIONS
From time to time treaties have been revised to fit new developments. The present treaty was drafted in 1928 and has been dangling since, with other countries protected under it, the United States not.
Several times the Senate has passed legislation wanted by United States songwriters, authors and film producers in return for their agreeing to certain not-so-pleasant provisions of the treaty. Each time the House, and the treaty, as a result, has been stuck in the Senate.

This year the Senate Foreign Relations committee reported out the treaty. Senator Thomas of Utah set about trying to get it ratified—even without legislation necessary to pacify objectors.
Printers continued to object to treaty provisions permitting foreign publications to be shipped into the United States already printed. An aid treaty provision required imported works to be printed here. Publishers, motion-picture companies and others also expressed fear that they might be asked to pay for past use of foreign works which they had pirated.
Meantime, Holland and Japan have been reading "Gone With the Wind" and "The Yearling" without a penny royalty. To Marjorie and Marjorie it has been very discouraging.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh July 31.—For the tidbits of political gossip listed hereafter in this column there is absolutely no guarantee of truth or veracity beyond the fact that they are being talked around in circles which more often than not know what they're talking about. Some of them seem to come from obviously "inspired" sources, probably inspired by a desire to head off some candidate or to boost some other. Other items are just picked up almost at random from sources which appear on the surface, at least, disinterested.

First off, there is a tendency hereabouts to discount the probability of Commissioner of Revenue Allen J. Maxwell ever getting around to the point of paying his fling fee. This comes from sources unfriendly to the commissioner who is at this time a sincere, unqualified-in-his-own-mind candidate for governor. If he doesn't go through with it, it will be because of something that happens in the future—not something which has already taken place.

Then there are reports that the "administration support" is "behind Lieutenant Governor Horton." There's no denying the fact that numerous department heads and many high-placed state employees are for the Pittsboro man; but any intimation that the Governor has even so much as hinted at a choice is pure invention.

There is a general inclination to count Rocky Mount's Lee Gravelly out of the race—but this correspondent's investigations disclose that the one-time State Senator has consistently and flatly told his friends on every occasion within the last two years that he positively will run for Governor.

There is a world of speculation over whether Commissioner of Revenue Maxwell will resign if and when he makes his formal plunge into the campaign. Some go so far as to say that Governor Hoyt will indicate such a course to his tax collecting head, though on this subject, as on many others, the chief executive has been just as talkative as a tongue-tied clam.
When he ran in 1938, Maxwell did not quit his post, and there is ample precedent in the state for such a course. For example Chief Justice Clark did not quit the Supreme court when he made the race for the United States Senate.

Efforts are being made to spread the word that "the Badley forces" are supporting J. M. Broughton for Governor. Whether these efforts are intended to help or hurt the Raleigh lawyer has not yet become apparent. It is an acknowledged fact that backing of the senior Senator would hurt in some quarters, help in others.

Nastiest, and probably most unfounded crack of the week, followed the Maxwell "it may be definitely assumed" statement in Winston-Salem.

BONNET NOW: CROWN LATER! That's what fate may hold for Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands, whose mother is Crown Princess Juliana. This was taken by E. Ziegler, royal photographer, when baby was almost four months old.

"Did he have to go way up there to get Clay's permission?" queried one of those guys who believe that all politics is run by the big money boys. The reference to a tobacco tycoon is obvious.

Mr. Broughton evidently does not believe in the "Bob" Reynolds technique of campaigning in a rattletap auto of ancient vintage. He swapped in an old car and is making his 5,000 miles a month in a shiny new one—though it isn't of the top price bracket variety.

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONER'S SALE

By virtue of and in pursuance to an order and judgment of the Superior Court of Pitt County, made June 2, 1939, in that certain Special Proceeding entitled "H. R. League-Leading Greenies Battle Wilson Here Tonight

EAGLES CHECK LOCALS' STRIDE

But Caligiuri Shows Them Something On Mound

Greenville divided a two game series with Winston Saturday and failed to meet Wilson yesterday because of rain, but gained a half-game as a result of the defeat the Williamston Martins handed Goldsboro.

Wilson will meet the Greenies in the Guy Smith park here tonight in a game starting at 8:15 o'clock. Rain looked extinct throughout the day, so the game should be reeled off with little difficulty.

Fred Caligiuri had complete charge of the hill Saturday night in a 4-0 shutout over the Eagles in a game in which he whiffed seven batters and gave up only five safeties. Kingston's Ople Pace limited the Greenies to seven hits.

Rube Wilson started the Greenies scoring in the Saturday night game by pounding a triple to left field and then executing a double steal with Harry Jenkins, who walked. In the sixth, Wilson singled to left, advanced on Ralph Simpson's sacrifice and scored on Harry Jenkins' single. Jenkins scored on Caligiuri's double in this verse. The other run was in the sixth when Wilson reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on Jenkins' double to right.

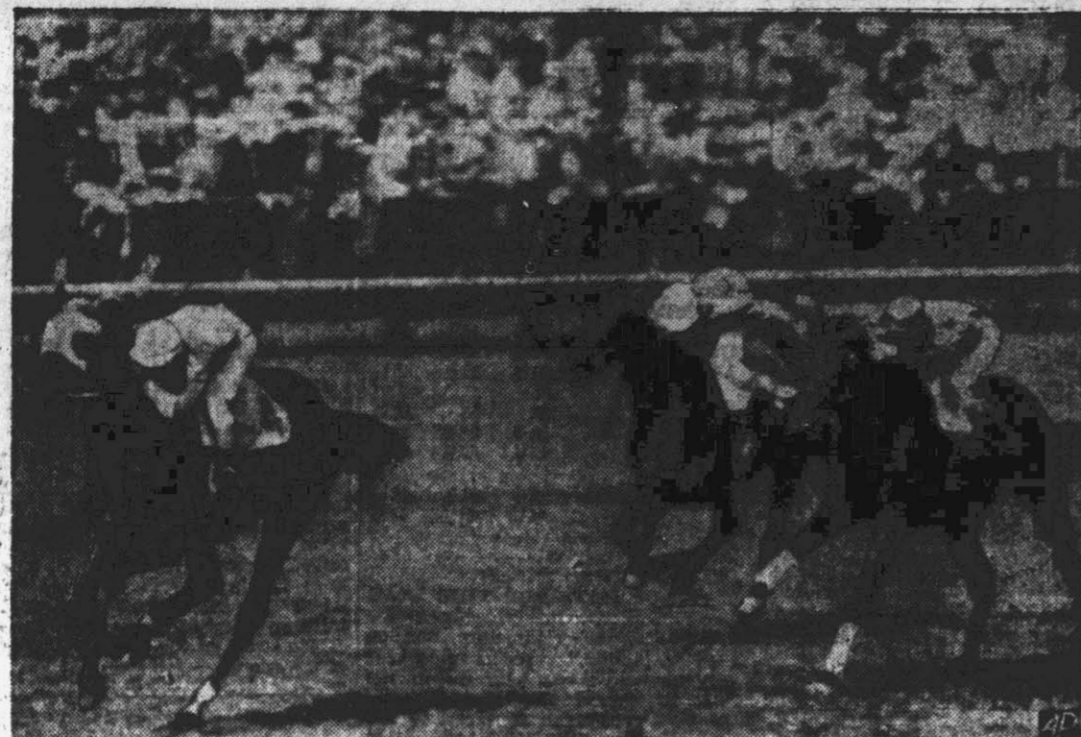

In the Saturday afternoon affair the Greenies' only run came in the fifth inning when Red Christopher poked a blow over the scoreboard. Greenville outhit the Eagles 8-5, but Kingston had a 3-1 run advantage when the game was ended. Morris Wilson did the hurrying for Greenville, while Sid Strifeellow handed the Greenies their first loss in 14 starts.

Ed Black, right-fielder, with three hits in four official turns, featured the locals' Saturday afternoon hitting, while Harry Jenkins with two for two and Rube Wilson with two for four led the Saturday night attack.

Alex Daniels, league's leading hitter, failed to hit in either of the Saturday games. It was the first time since July that he had failed to hit.

Kingston's feature blow of both games was the homer by Hermanski in the third inning.

Andy K. Wins Arlington Futurity By Two Lengths

Andy K., a 27-to-1 shot without a win to its name in three previous starts, here is shown winning the $47,830 Arlington Futurity at Chicago by two lengths. Second and third were Marogy and Roman Flag (shown above, in order). With Jockey Johnny Oros up, Andy K., led all the way.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood — The United States Senate chamber has been invaded only once by a motion picture camera. Some years ago a writer of educational books decided to make some educational films showing government at work. He received permission to "set up" in the sacred precincts.

That was the end as well as the beginning of the chamber's appearances on film. And yet Frank Capra and crew spent four weeks there, shooting to hearts' content right here in Hollywood.

At first the Senate sequences were scheduled for 10 days. The set—for "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington"—revealed expanding possibilities or else Columbia wanted more of its money's worth from the expenditure of approximately $85,000 on transplanting an authentic bit of Washington. Capra and crew lingered. And now any movie fan can see the Senate on celluloid.

James Preston, the veteran press gallery superintendent, is one now that the film is finished. Preston, the man who looks like Neville Chamberlain, saw that night was done by the Senate chamber and all things thereunto appertaining. Capra himself, before the picture began, took a still man to Washington, and photographed the chamber minutely.

The result was as nearly an authentic reproduction as denizens of Capitol Hill could wish. It was not perfect, although photographically it is. Example of cheating the moulding around the top of the chamber is duplicated, actually, at the top of the balcony. It is, actually, done in slight relief. In the set, because the camera didn't care, that balcony moulding was done in—sh—h!—stencil!

In this painstakingly accurate reproduction of the Senate and its seats, the men who filled them as the movie's senators were chosen with equal pains—to insure no resemblance to actual characters living or dead, as the forewords always say.

The president of the Senate is Harry Carey, hearty and bluff and "suggesting" John Nance Garner but not "resembling" him. Technical adviser Preston looked over 450 actors and selected 30 or 40 "senatorial types" for the main action on the Senate floor. Principals "Senators" in the cast: Claude Rains, white-haired, distinguished, authoritative, who plays James Stewart's senior Senator; Porter Hall, who is rather the "heavy"; H. B. Warner, who is one of Capra's favorite characters. Grant Mitchell, benign, mild-looking, dignified.

Selecting page boys was simpler. Preston thumbed through available actors, ages 12 to 14, said: "Practically any of these will do." He was more particular about the news men—insisted on substantial, dignified types as far as possible from the typical movie reporter who drinks and swears his way to journalistic fame.

Least seating arrangements indicate identities by inference, those have been changed to resemble not the least line-up in the present Congress.

FOUR OF ONE FAMILY TO DRIVE IN HAMBLETONIAN

By The AP Feature Service
Goshen, N. Y.—It's a better than ordinary bet that the winning driver in the Hambletonian stakes will be a guy named Fleming. You've got four chances on a bet, like that, with Vic Fleming, 49, and his three sons all scheduled to drive in the trotting classic. Pop Fleming, Canadian born, now makes Syracuse his home. The sons, Billy, 2, Charlie, 25, and Jimmy, 23, all are well schooled in racing, though none of the trio has been in the Hambletonian before.

Vic is pilot Gauntlet by Spencer, winner of the 1928 Hambletonian; Billy will handle Vole; Abbey, Charlie will have Abbey Vole; and Jimmy will pilot Clay Hanover.

MARTINS GAIN GAME ON BUGS

Tarboro's Peanuts Extend Their Losses To 27

A 9-2 triumph over Goldsboro gave the Williamston Martins their fifth straight win in the Coastal Plain yesterday and elevated the Greenies' game advantage by a half game.

Red Swain, one of the best hurlers in the league, performed for the Martins yesterday, limiting his foes to eight scattered safeties, while the Martins jumped on Covington and Brown, Goldsboro hurlers, for 11 hits.

If Tarboro had won a twin bill with Snow Hill yesterday, it would have been something to talk about in that little town on the Tar. Instead, Snow Hill took the first game 15-8 and the second 6-0 to extend the Peanuts' losing streak to 27 games. Joe Bistruff also got his 25th home run of the season. But those Serpents are not having any attendance worries. Fans are going to the games now to see if they can win.

There was another doubleheader in the Coastal Plain yesterday. New Bern blanked the Kingston Eagles in both games, with the first score being 1-0 and the final count of the abbreviated game set at 7-0.

Yesterday's shutouts extended the hurling of the New Bern pitchers to 32 consecutive scoreless innings. Lefty Archer did the hurling in the first game, with Bull Hamons supplying the throws in the second.

The Greenville-Wilson game was rained out.

Ladies' Night

The Greenville baseball club will observe another "Ladies' Night" tomorrow night when the Snow Hill Billies, beginning at 8:15.

The last "Ladies' Night" attracted about 550 members of the fair sex and D. C. Moore, club secretary, said he expected that number to be exceeded tomorrow night.

The Greenies will play Wilson here tonight, but, sorry, ladies, the regular fare will prevail at this time.

PIT RETAINS 70-CENT RATE FOR THIS YEAR

The health department calls for appropriations of $22,157,500. Estimated income sources are: State and federal general disease funds, $5,476,300; Greenville's payments on the city sanitary inspector, $1,600; Greenville's contribution for participation in the venereal disease unit of program, $47,250, with a balance of $13,211.75 to come from the A.B.T. Board.

A bond and interest appropriation for 1939-40 was set at $201,135. A total of $1,250,000 of this amount will be handled through the 55-cent tax levy, with $19,665 being derived from millage levies from old taxes.

It was disclosed by Auditor Cowan that the school budget appropriation for 1939-40 had been set at $55,906, with the following breakdown of anticipated revenue to cover the appropriation: Intangible taxes, $3,550.40; ad valorem tax rate of seven cents, $18,475; poll taxes, $7,400; dog taxes, $3,670.60; fines and forfeitures, $5,000; state and federal funds for vocational training, $14,000.

Natl. Guard Back From Training

Captain Worthy Wicker, commanding officer of the local unit of the National Guard, Battery A, 117th Field Artillery, two other officers and 84 men returned yesterday from a two weeks' encampment at Fort Bragg.

Our boys made an excellent showing and came through with a grin despite the rains, storms and a slight tornado," declared Captain Wicker.

No athletic events were held this year, a phase of the encampment in which the local unit usually makes a good record, but the boys made a fine showing in the field maneuvers, firing of sub-calibre and service ammunition.

Captain Wicker expressed the opinion that the first battalion, of which the local unit was a part, made the best record. Other officers of the local unit attending the encampment were First Lieut. W. S. Tyson and Second Lieut. J. E. Waldrop. Second Lieut. J. H. Moye was unable to attend.

Mayor Jack Spain Inaugurates Dial

Shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night, Mayor Jack Spain dialed 3773 from the lobby of the local telephone office, talked to his wife, then went upstairs and "pulled the string" which put the dial, or automatic, system into effect.

Approximately 200 persons attended the brief cut-over ceremony and were shown through the plant. Immediately after the cut-over the operators pulled off their head sets and the old switchboard was decorated in black crepe. Most of the girls will be retained, however, and those regularly employed who will not be given work here will be transferred, it was stated.

W. W. Aycock, local manager of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, said today that a number of subscribers were having a little trouble, as could be expected, but added the situation was improving steadily and in a week or so everyone would be familiar with the service.

Although demonstrations were given in the lobby of the office last week and hundreds of people received instructions, six girls today were making a visit to every subscriber to offer their services in training telephone users who desire information on the operation of the new system.

Slight Shock

Irvine, Ky.—(AP)—Lightning entered the Halmar Masters home, knocked one end from a bed and ripped a sheet on the bed to shreds. Bert Masters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Masters, who was in the bed, was shocked only slightly.

Simmons New BEAUTYREST

A Miracle of Sleep Comfort

Beautyrest Mattress by SIMMONS

Costs only 1¢ A NIGHT

- ★ DEEPER, MORE COMFORT-ABLE FLOATING ACTION
- ★ NEW PANEL DAMASK COVERS
- ★ SAG PROOF EDGES
- ★ GUARANTEED FOR 10 YEARS

If you want more refreshing sleep, this is your mattress. The New Beautyrest is DEEPER, each coil is in a separate cloth pocket and can work independently of the other. The Beautyrest "gives" at the point where pressure is applied—it does not sag in surrounding areas. This construction means greater comfort and most healthful sleep.

The New Beautyrest has been rigidly tested for durability—it is guaranteed by Simmons for 10 years. The actual difference in cost per night between a Beautyrest and an ordinary mattress is only a trifle, but there is a tremendous difference in sleep comfort between the two.
