AXIS DEMANDS ARE REJECTED BY YUGOSLAVS

Rome and Berlin Denied Use of Territory In War

PREMIER GOING TO MEET CIANO

Takes off in Army Bomber for Trieste To Advise Italian Foreign Minister of Rejection

Belgrade, Aug. 10.—(AP)—German and Italian demands for use of Yugoslav territory in war-time was reported authoritatively today to have been refused by Yugoslavia and orders were issued to speed up fortifications on the German frontier.

Premier Cvetkovich took off shortly before noon (6 a. m. EST) in an army bomber for Trieste, Italy. From there he planned to go immediately to Trieste for discussions in which it was said he would declare rejection of the reported demands.

It was said he would meet emissaries of the Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano in Trieste and might return to Yugoslavia before proceeding to Venice and Rome.

Italy's official news agency said the premier would inspect Fascist recreation, social and welfare organizations.

The premier's use of the bomber was seen as a symbol of the will of this Balkan country to keep an armed and strict neutrality.

Great Britain and France were said by authoritative sources to have told Regent Prince Paul on his recent trip to London and Paris that she would back Yugoslavia in case she came into conflict with Germany and Italy.

Urges Assistance In Malarial Work

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, said today that reduced personnel of the United States Public Health Service for malarial control had caused the local health department to assign more of the work to local sanitation workers.

He explained that in an effort to control malaria, a disease which he described as acting as a blight upon any communities, the State Board of Health had set up certain regulations governing the control of impounded water supplies, which regulations require all persons to first secure a permit from the State Board of Health before constructing a dam or reservoir.

"The State Highway Commission is giving excellent cooperation to the malarial control program by draining all pits which result in the matter of road building," he declared.

Dr. Ennett again called attention to the fact that much can be done by the individual householder to protect himself against malaria by other screening his house or eliminating all standing water on his premises or using a larvicide spray.

SEEKS CUT IN LEASE FIGURE

Claims A. and N. C. Not Been Maintained Properly

Atlantic Beach, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Directors of the State-owned Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad heard contentions today that the line had been maintained properly in recent months and counter claims that there had been "little if any under-maintenance" as they considered arrangements for leasing the railroad to R. P. Edwards of Sanford.

Edwards and his lawyer, John Dawson of Winston, told the directors that they had been informed that the property had not been maintained as it should have been since negotiations have been under way for the lease.

Setting at $25,000 for two years the amount he felt should be credited on his agreement to rent the railroad at $60,500 a year, Edwards proposed that the directors name a committee to consider the matter with him and try to reach an agreement.

President H. P. Crowell of the railroad offered employees who said that maintenance had been done at about the regular level.

The directors adjourned for lunch without taking any action.

At the stockholders' meeting this afternoon Attorney General Harry McMillan was to present a recommendation from Governor Hoy that election of officers be deferred pending completion of the lease negotiations.

Two Way Farming System Being Urged By Dr. Poe

By Staff Correspondent

Upper Coastal Plains Test Farm, Aug. 10.—North Carolina farmers must, from sheer necessity, turn from a "one-armed" to a "two-armed" system of agriculture—they must develop a system with plant production and animal production in nearly equal balance, Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer, said today in an address at this Edgecombe county test farm of the State Department of Agriculture.

He spoke on the occasion of the farm's sixteenth annual Farmer's Field Day and was heard by a large, interested crowd of farmers.

Man Booked as Chas. Jefferson Confesses Abducting Two Young Girls With Intention of Holding Them for Ransom, Then Criminally Assaulting and Killing One

DC 36 — CONFESSES — MOP Boca Raton, Fla., Aug. 10. (AP)—A man booked as Charles Jefferson, confessed to police today he had abducted two Miami high school girls with the intention of holding them for ransom, killed one and held the other captive until early today.

Leut. E. W. Melchen of Miami detectives announced the confession at the Boca Raton police station, where Jefferson was held after his arrest near the scene of the slaying of 17-year-old Ruth Frances Dunn. Melchen reported that Miss Dunn and Jean Bolton, 19, were bound in the man's automobile, which he drove into a lonely beach section about 600 feet off the ocean highway between Miami and West Palm Beach.

Jefferson also known by several aliases, admitted criminally assaulting Miss Dunn Monday night, the detective lieutenant said.

"He said he killed Miss Dunn because she cried for help and became hysterical despite his warning that they were to remain quiet," he reported.

Nude, shot three times and stabbed twice, the body of Miss Dunn was found beside a swampy area this morning two miles north of Boca Raton in Florida's gold coast winter vacation area.

Miss Bolton, pretty blonde, was under a physician's care at her mother's home. Her mouth bruised, the highly nervous girl told of having been bound and held captive since leaving her home Monday with Miss Dunn and Jefferson, who professed to be a "talent scout" for movie stars at Palm Beach.

Jefferson, strongly guarded by detectives, was hurried to the West Palm Beach jail after his reported confession. Earlier he had told of an accomplice, but police said this was not verified.

DID YOU HEAR SCHOOL BELLS?

Miami, Fla. — (AP) — Florida's strawberry schools have opened for the 1939-40 season.

The chief of them is Turkey Creek High school in the rich strawberry section east of Tampa.

They are public schools in widely separated sections of Florida's winter vegetable and fruit counties that hold classes most of the summer so they can let the pupils out to help with the crops in the rush January, February and March harvest season.

Even in the bean and tomato sections, they're called strawberry schools because they started in the Hillsborough and Polk county sections between Tampa and Lakeland where strawberries provide the chief winter money crop.

Commencement comes at Christmastime.

ACTION TAKEN ON MISUSE OF FRENCH POUCH

Voluntary Statement Made By Paris Ambassador

ATTEMPTS MADE SMUGGLE FILMS

Meanwhile, Congressional Committee and Federal Agency Holds Out Hand to Business

Washington, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, disclosed today that the French ambassador Count Rene de St. Quentin had voluntarily informed the State Department last March that the misuse of French diplomatic pouches, as charged in a federal grand jury presentation yesterday at New York.

Welles said the French ambassador called at the State Department in March on his own initiative and stated that there had been a misuse of a French pouch.

The ambassador, Welles said, expressed regret and said that an administrative inquiry would be made and disciplinary measures taken in France.

The grand jury presentation said the French ministry of foreign affairs conspired to smuggle commercial films to the United States.

The ambassador called on Welles this morning and discussed the situation with him. The acting secretary said at his press conference no decisions were taken because they had not yet received the presentation sent yesterday by the grand jury to Secretary Hull.

St. Quentin told reporters that he could not comment on the situation. Other Washington developments: A congressional committee and the new federal works agency held out a hand to business, one asking advice, one asking advice on taxes, and the other offering data to help the building industry to meet vast governmental needs.

The House tax committee laying the groundwork for a broad study of the federal revenue structure, invited business men to submit suggestions for tax revision.

At Hyde Park, N. Y., meanwhile, President Roosevelt signed the third deficiency bill, appropriating more than $180,000,000 for varied federal activities.

LOVETT DEATH STILL PROBED

SBI and Pitt Officers Continue Seeking Clues

Was Private Sam L Lovett murdered, or did he take his own life? If he was murdered, who killed him? If he took his own life, what was his motive?

Such were the questions that perplexed State Bureau of Investigation agents and Pitt county officers today as they entered the third day of investigation into the death of the Fort Bragg soldier, who was found in Tar river Tuesday.

The possibility that Lovett could have fallen into the river and drowned came to light today when Fort Bragg soldiers, who brought Lovett to Pitt county, told investigators that a quart of whiskey was consumed among the five-man party en route to East Carolina, and Lovett might have done more drinking after he abandoned the party.

Lovett and four other soldiers left Fort Bragg Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and reached Greenville around 4 o'clock, officers said. Lovett went to the home of his girl friend in the county, but failed to find her at home. Two the soldiers were left in Wilson and the other two told Lovett they knew two girls in Fairfield, so Lovett said he would go with them.

It was disclosed that after the party had reached Ashley's filling station about five and a half miles from this city on the Greenville-Washington highway, Lovett decided he wouldn't journey to Fairfield, and got out of the automobile at the filling station.

He was said to have gone down the dirt road toward Simpson and then turned around and started toward Greenville. A Negro told officers he saw Lovett sitting on the edge of a ditch on the Simpson road in an intoxicated condition. Lovett was reportedly seen by persons curing tobacco along the highway after he had started toward Greenville. He was last seen at a point several miles from the city Saturday night around 9 o'clock.

Operators of service stations below the point where Lovett was last seen told officers they did not see Lovett pass. The theory that he might have left the highway and walked down a path to the river with the hope of sleeping on the dredge that operated on the river came to light when it was revealed that Lovett sought food and shelter near the point where he was last seen.

However a heavy downpour Saturday night washed away all signs of tracks, if any, and there was no way to determine if Lovett had gone toward the dredge and then slipped into the river. But this situation is also complicated. Lovett was wearing a hat and carrying a black satchel. Neither has been found.

The question of whether Lovett was robbed has already been erased from the mind of the investigators, in that the Fort Bragg soldiers, who accompanied Lovett to Pitt county, said they financed his trip here and that he had very little money. This contention was substantiated to a certain degree when it was found that he had only 21 cents on his person when the body was found.

If Lovett became engaged in a struggle, his assailant failed to harm the soldier's clothing, which was said by officers to have been orderly when the body was found. The de-

Projects In Painting, Paving and Building

Students entering East Carolina Teachers College for the 1939-40 session, which gets under way September 29, will find many improvements greeting them upon their return.

Work at the college during the summer months includes general building, painting, paving and the installation of equipment for the benefit of the entire student body.

President L. R. Meadows said that work on the $350,000 classroom building is progressing nicely, but the building will not be ready for occupancy until January. The building will be used for classroom work, as well as provide rooms for student organizations on the campus.

Painting projects at the college include the laundry, college shop, power house, five faculty homes, Austin building and Training School. Dr. Meadows said the Training School was being painted inside and out.

It was explained that a new floor will be laid in Austin auditorium before the fall session is begun, with new floors being laid in other rooms of the same building. Work in the building has been needed for some time, according to Dr. Meadows, and is regarded as a worthwhile project.

A new living room has been added to the home economics practice house as a result of the increased number of students studying home economics on a practical basis.

Electric stoves are replacing the old ones in the kitchen and a marble floor is being substituted for the wood floor to promote sanitation.

It was revealed that the kitchen is also being refurbished with new steam-kettles to provide better food-handling facilities. The refurbishing project will cost approximately $6,000.

The college garage, an eight-room affair, is nearing completion and will be ready for use in the fall. The garage is well-ventilated, with concrete floors and disappearing doors.

New furniture is being placed in the reception rooms of the dormitories for the benefit of the students' parents and other guests who visit the school during the year.

Library stacks have been added to the third floor of the college library and a room has been made available for library science to be offered at the college this fall. It was offered for the first time this summer.

Lockers have been installed on the second floor of the Wright building. The lockers will be used by members of the band and orchestra to store equipment and uniforms.

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Aug. 10.—When the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission yesterday handed down a decision denying unemployment compensation benefits to employees at the Highland Mills of High Point, it did more than turn down the claims of Sam Pruitt and other employees of the concern which has been closed since its force refused to report for work June 5—it served notice that Chairman Charles Powell and his associates, Mrs. J. B. Spillman and Labor Commissioner Forest Shuford, flatly refuse to become a jury to decide the rights or wrongs of every strike or lockout in North Carolina.

THREAT OF WAR IS PROTESTED

Germany's View Cited in Free City of Danzig

Free City of Danzig, Aug. 10.—(AP)—To a vast cheering crowd in Langer market place, Nazi Leader Albert Forster, speaking with the full authority on his recent visit to Hitler, declared "in a serious moment it was necessary to protest against the threats of war uttered by Polish papers and speakers."

Speculation on what message Forster would deliver had run along three lines, but no one besides Hitler and Forster could say which was right.

The most conservative and generally accepted view was that the district leader with Hitler's backing, would confine himself to rejecting in most positive terms any claims of Poland to Danzig and the demand on the part of the Polish press for annexing East Prussia.

Teachers' Salary Schedule Studied

Raleigh, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The School Commission neared a showdown vote this afternoon on the 1939-41 teacher pay schedule, but appearance of many delegations making various requests slowed disposition of business.

Members of the salary committee had not met at 1:15 to draft a final report and recommendations, but it apparently would provide:

Use of about $117,000 for Negro teacher pay increases to close the gap between white and Negro salaries slightly.

Use of about $150,000 or $160,000 to provide slight increases to white and Negro teachers with five to eight years of teaching experience.

Increases in pay to at least some county superintendents under a new formula for figuring their salaries, so as to put them more nearly on a level with city superintendents.

J. A. Pritchett and others from Bertie county appeared in connection with opposition to an order consolidating the Mars Hill and Powellsville schools.

A big Bladen delegation argued over consolidation of the Ammon school with that at White Oak, which has been recommended by the county education board.

ARRANGE MEET TO TALK OVER AXIS POLICIES

Italian Count Ciano and Nazi Ribbentrop to Confer

DANZIG - POLAND CHIEF PROBLEM

Reported Meanwhile That Japanese Armed Alliance With Rome and Berlin Agreed Upon

Berlin, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Italian and German Foreign Ministers Count Ciano and Von Ribbentrop, will meet soon at Salzburg, Germany, it was announced today, "to consider the question of common policy of the allied (axis) countries."

It had been reported that representatives of the axis powers would meet for personal consultation on a plan of Fuehrer Hitler for settlement of the Danzig-Poland question. Von Ribbentrop has a summer home at Salzburg.

In Rome, Italian circles said Germany's claim to the Free City of Danzig, particularly Italy's attitude, would be a primary subject of discussion.

Ciano and Von Ribbentrop also were expected to discuss Tokyo's terms for Japanese entrance into the German-Italian military alliance.

(Japanese Ambassador to Rome Shiratori talked with Ciano last night. While no official announcement was made, it was assumed that Shiratori reported on a conference he had with the Japanese ambassador to Berlin last week.

(Shiratori had said that a Japanese armed alliance with Germany and Italy had been agreed on in principle, with only details to be worked out. Tokyo dispatches indicated the decision was yet to be made by the Japanese government.)

The announcement came as the German armaments industry was making the sounding board for a new preparedness call.

Col. Gen. Von Brauchitsch, army chief of staff and a member of Hitler's secret cabinet, council of state and one of Germany's giant armament factories for an appeal intended to help steel the nation for any eventuality.

The disturbance had increased from slight to moderate intensity, but the highest winds so far reported were 45 to 50 miles an hour.

"If the present movement continues," the weather bureau said, "the center will pass near Walling Island this afternoon and reach the vicinity of Nassau early Friday morning."

"Caution is advised all interests over the Bahamas today and tonight and on the southeast Florida coast late tonight and Friday."

The wedding marked the 25th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hood, Rev. S. A. Barnes of Raleigh, who married Mr. and Mrs. Hood, performed the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated in green and white. Long-leaf pine, fern and palm formed a background against which stood tall baskets of white gladioli and dahlias and floor standards of lighted white tapers.

Music was furnished by Miss Olivia Hood, sister of the bride, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me," with accompaniment by Mrs. T. V. Moseley, organist, and Mr. Robert Rhodes, violinist. A half-hour program of wedding music which preceded the ceremony included "Incantation," violin solo composed by an instructor of Mr. Rhodes. The traditional wedding marches were used for processional and recessional.

Mr. Wallace Leary of Norfolk, accompanied the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. Herbert Hollowell, Jr., of Edenton, brother of the bridegroom, John C. Hood, Jr., brother of the bride; Mr. Robert Grady of Greenville, Mr. Richard Bunn, Mr. Roland Hood and Mr. Hymen Sanders of Rocky Mount, served as ushers.

Their hats were crownless, wide-brimmed models of burnt straw trimmed in ribbon streamers.

Miss Hood, soloist, wore a dress of peach net identical to those of the bridesmaids, her shoulder corsage being of tulle and roses.

Mrs. Hood, mother of the bride, as matron of honor, wore silver blue cross-barred net over tulle, trimmed with silver buttons down the front, and a blue and silver wide-brimmed hat. She carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli showered with lilies of the valley and tied with silver ribbons.

LITTLE DROPS OF WATER Make a Pound—Little Drops of News Make a Paper

A bale of cotton in town Wednesday looked lonesome.

Did you ever before see so many strangers coming to town?

Bad luck to the hogs that squeal loud enough to be heard now.

The work of enlarging the Star warehouse has begun. An addition of forty feet will be made to the length of the building.

The tobacco was here today, enough to make the warehousemen and buyers all happy. The weed does not bring better prices than on the Greenville market.

One of the tenant houses on Ninth street has been moved off to make room for the Liberty warehouse. The new warehouse will extend through the block and front on both Ninth and Tenth streets.

Annie Laurie and Bettie Sue Hamilton. They were long saffron colored net dresses and carried burnt straw baskets filled with rose petals.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a hand-made dress of white net designed with full skirt made in alternating panels of embroidered net and heavy lace and fitted girdle of silver net. The waist-length veil of illusion was fastened to a coronet bordered in real lace and seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli, elaborately showered with valley lilies and white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Hollowell, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hood, attended Meredith College and graduated from Woman's College, University of North Carolina, Greensboro. The past two years she has taught home economics in Pitt county schools. Her popularity has been attested by numerous social affairs given in her honor since announcement of her engagement.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert Hollowell of Edenton, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, class of 1934. He is a member of the Phi Delta Chi fraternity. He is now connected with the Eldridge Drug Company of Greenville.

After dinner Miss Mattie Lou Cotten, president of the Higgs Family Association, presided over a short business session at which time Miss Rosina Pittman of Scotland Neck, was chosen as president for the coming year, with Mrs. Emily Moyer Hadley of Greenville, as secretary. This was followed by the secretary's report, after which Miss Lillie Higgs read a cablegram and letters of greeting, in English and French.

The president emerita, Mr. E. B. Higgs of Greenville, speaking briefly of personalities connected with the family, paid tribute to Joseph Higgs, son of one of the trusted family servants of ante bellum days. Through his own efforts he graduated from the University of Chicago, received a degree from Howard University, and later studied at Oxford University. He served for four years in India as an Episcopal missionary and is now living in Washington, D. C., where he is serving the best interests of his race and nation as a Bishop in the Episcopal Church.

At the conclusion of these remarks Miss Cotten introduced the speaker of the day, Reverend Chester Alexander, minister of the Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church of Tarboro. Mr. Alexander made a most interesting address, speaking on "The Well Rounded Life." "The four essential elements," he said, "are work, play, love, and reverence." With ready wit and charm he emphasized that not one of these factors should be allowed to absorb life to the exclusion of the others, but that a nicely proportioned balance among all four resulted in the successful life.

Relatives were present from South Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Florida and North Carolina. —Reported.

YESTERDAY: Fortunately, Philo goes to New York for the week-end, and the others drive off, leaving Cecily free to keep her date with Locke.

Chapter 17 Picnic

LATER the road was a dark brown carpet between the trees of a green velvet forest. The woods were filled with sounds. There was the twittering of birds close by in the trees, the distant caw-caw of deeper-throated birds. There was the rush of starting wings and the rippling of a brook. There was the creaking of dead wood and the stirring in the leaves made by the little creatures who lived there undisturbed.

"Look, Cecily, at the plume of smoke from the farmhouse beyond the hill."

"The scars on this old tree-trunk..."

"The pines on the cape and the sand-dunes..."

"At the music festival at Salzburg..."

"Have you ever been to Palermo..."

"You go to the village for coffee at five and on the way back, you walk a lonely path. On one side you see the bright colored sands. On the other, the olive trees in the sunset..."

"Sometimes, Cecily, when we are in New York, I'll take you to the Battery at dusk on a foggy day. We'll share a bag of peanuts and listen to the symphony of foghorns and watch the veils of purple, gray and blue swirling in the lights from the ships..."

Conversation. Conversation, while her step-mother's words, like pictures of things they knew and liked, dispirited little things, eagerly professed that one might share the other's past pleasures. Vignettes revealing, one to the other, the background each had known.

But nothing that told Cecily anything definite about Locke. He had been educated in Colorado, his birthplace. He'd been in Europe, Mexico and Canada. He'd been a newspaper reporter, a cowboy. He knew how to set a broken bone, dance a rumba, shoot around corners. At least, that was what he told Cecily.

Then the velvet forest fell away and she saw a curtain at their back and they came into the open where the water spread deep and blue before them. The slow rollers came in and broke on a white beach where the bleached stones were rubbed smooth by many tides. The water as they came, stretched as far as their eyes could see. It was an immense theater and Cecily and Locke were alone in it.

"Hungry?" he asked, flinging down the knapsack.

"Getting to be," she answered. The early dusk was beginning to fall, the sky deepening swiftly.

"They get to work." He led her to a place on the sands where there was a great dried log. Beside it there was a large tin box the size of a hamper.

"I came out yesterday to exercise Careless' Grace," he explained and opened the box, "and brought a few supplies."

Cecily was thinking: He was looking forward to this too.

He brought out the "few supplies" - potatoes, ears of corn, a sack of coffee, a wooden tub of fresh butter, small bags of salt and sugar, a box of matches. Then, with the air of a magician producing the proverbial rabbit from a silk hat, he brought forth a battered coffee pot, two long sharp-pronged forks, steel knives, two paper plates, two sturdy cups.

"WHAT do I do?" Cecily asked eagerly.

"Why, you do the hard work, gal. You build the fire."

"And don't think I don't know snow!" she retorted. "I'm the best little fire-builder you've ever met."

He took one of her hands and, as it lay supinely in his, he looked at it with his eyebrow raised in his quizzical, amused way. He felt the soft skin of her palm, looked at the delicate pink nails he sighed.

"They don't look like the hands of a worker to me. So you can collect kindling, I'll do the heavy work."

The beach was rich with dried driftwood. The two of them soon had a great heap gathered back of the log that was to be their table.

Cecily sat cross-legged, enrapt with Locke's preparations. There had been charcoal in the tin hamper, and with it he soon had a glowing fire. He shoved the potatoes and corn beneath the burning coals and joined Cecily.

The smoke got her eyes and made them sting. Heavy hunger was beginning to gnaw at her ribs but she wouldn't have changed one single moment of it.

"When you're about to faint from hunger - and I believe the roasted things have gotten a start - I'll get the steak on." Locke teased her.

"I'm about to faint," she said convincingly a little later.

They cooked their steaks, holding them in the fire at the ends of the pronged forks. The thick, succulent meat sputtered and sizzled. The coffee boiled over and sputtered on the fire.

At last, when Cecily thought she could bear it no longer, darkness had fallen and the meal was ready.

Butter dripped on their chins. Cecily had a smudge of black across her cheek but neither of them noticed it.

The paper dishes were burned in the fire which flared up and had burned down to a pleasant glow of embers. The forks and spoons and cups had been washed at the water's edge and put back in the tin box.

The twin lights of their cigarettes glowed companionably as they stretched out on the sands with their backs resting against the log. Back of them was the still night, the forest and the road back which would be lighted a little later by the full moon. In front of them was the ocean, beginning to glimmer where the rising moon picked out a path of chasteure and silver. The rhythmic whirrrash of the waves on the smooth sands played a soft accompaniment to their contentment.

Cecily leaned her head back against the log and looked at the heavens. She spoke softly, hesitant to break the lovely silence of the night. "You were right."

"Dm!"

"About the heavens. You said they looked like a bowl of stars. You didn't say it was a lapis lazuli bowl filled with diamonds. Such lovely diamonds! I never cared for them before."

"Do you like them?" he asked. "Then, I'll pick a handful for you and make you a crown of them. Then you'll have diamonds and sapphires."

"Sapphires?"

"Yes, didn't you know that your eyes are sometimes like sapphires?"

"I didn't know that you'd ever looked at them," she answered softly.

Her head was close to his. He turned his face toward her slowly and Cecily felt that he must hear the pounding of her heart which beat tumultuously in her breast.

She thought: He's going to kiss me! In the darkness, she could see that he was looking long at her.

He turned away. "I did," he said. That was all.

Cecily stomped out her cigarette in the sand.

"We'd better get along," he said then. "We've got a three-hour hike ahead of us."

Cecily felt that suddenly the night was chill.

Cold Girls

Cecily turned the pages of a letter rapidly, reading slowly and uttering absorbed her forgotten. It was a letter, unusually lengthy for Doug, and filled with amusing anecdotes of his travels in France. When she came to a passage in which he mentioned contrepas with a mule on a highway in Brittany, her ripples laugh broke out in a series of trills.

"Selfish girl!"

Philip called across from across the room. Cecily hadn't heard him come in. She had left him with the others on the veranda. She had wanted to enjoy Doug's letter by herself.

"Is it something personal?" Philip persisted.

He drew a chair up and sat directly in front of her, only a short distance separating their knees. Cecily wanted to draw away; instead, she stiffened slightly. The letter was a letter from her brother.

Washington.—In its program for organizing the building trades workers, the CIO is steering clear of any discussion of the annual wage scheme, which involves lower pay per hour but higher pay per year.
"We haven't gone far enough along the road for that," said Denny Lewis, younger brother of John L.
Lewis. John L. put Denny in charge of organizing the building trades workers along industrial lines. Now they are mostly under A. F. of L. organized by trades.

We went over to see Denny in his office in the national headquarters of the United Mine Workers. It used to be the exclusive University Club and still looks like it. The patrons are different, though. No University Club with a full quota of ex-football players ever housed such big men.
Labor leaders don't come in pocket suits. They come in 200-pound jobs.

Denny and Brother John are no exceptions. Both are big. Denny looks like John, with a large head and a larger head of hair. His face is not so rough cut as John's.
We hadn't been in the building
two minutes until we discovered dignity is being added to Denny.
The staff calls him A. D. Lewis.
Denny sounds a bit familiar, you must admit. Denny is a more genial sort than John L. He laughs occasionally into the telephone. When John smiles it is newsworthy.

IN GOVERNMENT TWICE
Denny cut about the same path
for himself up through the labor movement as did John, starting in the Iowa coal mines at 16 and following the union trail upward. He stepped into government once in Illinois to head a state mining department and again in 1930 to hold a job in the Department of Labor under "Fudger" Jim Davis, staunch Hoover Republican, now senator from Pennsylvania. He became an assistant to Brother John L. when the New Deal moved in in 1933.

While we talked, a steam triphammer was driving foundation pilars for an office building close by.
We shouted questions. He shouted replies. Sometimes the triphammer would pause suddenly for a breather while one of our untripped shouts roared along a corridor leading from his office.

"Right out on that building," he said, waving a hand toward the triphammer. "A. F. of L. building trades unions will be working before it is completed. CIO wants to organize them all into one union and end jurisdictional disputes."

Theoretically, an A. F. of L. concrete pourer can't sharpen a peg to plug a leak in a form. He must call a carpenter. If he does it himself without calling the carpenter, the carpenters may raise a jurisdictional issue, and possibly strike. As Denny explained the CIO system, the concrete pourer could put in the peg but would have to insist on the carpenter's rate of pay while he did it.

A LITTLE LATER
But we were curious about CIO views on this annual wage business.
Many persons held the idea that if building trades workers would accept an annual wage rate and do more work per year at less hourly pay, they would contribute toward a building revival. This is the idea:
A carpenter gets $12 a day. But labor statistics indicate, he works on an average, only enough to bring in $1,200 a year. That is about five months' work.

If an employer would guarantee him 10 months' work at $8 a day, he would receive about $1,700. A. F.
has been suspicious that the employer would be

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, Aug. 10.—Whether completely accurate or not, this is too good a bit of political gossip to omit.
Recently, so the story runs, an emissary of Gordon Gray, Winston-Salem publisher and president of the North Carolina Young Democrats, engaged Dr. Ralph McDonald, North Carolina's almost-governor of 1936, in a long conversation which boiled down to this:
"Will you consider supporting Gray for lieutenant governor in 1940?"

According to the story, McDonald didn't even think the matter over very long before he answered "You go back and ask Mr. Gray if he'll support me for governor in 1944" or words to that effect.

Which brings this column around to recollecting that after this bureau carried a story during the legislative days of this year quoting McDonald to the effect that he would "never run for any office again, the good Doctor smilingly remarked that "Never is a mighty long time" and indicated he thought he had been just a wee bit "over-quoted," if that's a good word.

Speaking of Gordon Gray, the Porsyth big wig may end up by getting a fellow townsman as speaker of the Young Democratic convention in Charlotte next month. John Hanes, a Roosevelt appointee to high office in the fiscal set up of the government, might well be acceptable to "New Dealers" by reason of that appointment, while his very name would make him persona grata with the conservatives and business interests.

Mrs. Mildred Wilson, attractive receptionist at the Unemployment Compensation Commission, is without doubt the proudest young lady in Raleigh these days—and rightly so.

On her very first fishing endeavor
last Sunday she landed a bass out of a pond near Fayetteville. It measured 23 1/2 inches and weighed seven pounds, three ounces.

Her husband, Louis Wilson, State Department of Agriculture publications chief, isn't anything like as elated. An experienced angler, his catch for the day was one very small, rather moth-eaten little fish.

Associates in the State Rural Electrification Authority's office are considering organization of a posse to look for their Director Dudley Bagley, who recently went to Washington.

He went up to get some information on the new REA setup under the Department of Agriculture, but in view of the many hard things the Federal boys have said about Mr.
Bagley and his state agency, Engineer J. M. Grainger fears for his chief's safety and is planning to effect a rescue.

When an electric company inspected it was considerably construction of a rural line in Last Chance,
a Hyde county community, REA Engineer Grainger cracked:
"Well, this is the first chance Last Chance ever had any chance to get electricity."

Somebody jokingly told Secretary of State Thad Eure that Dr. Ralph McDonald says he will support the gubernatorial candidate who is "for the people."

"Well, then, he's going to support me," laughed Thad. "I'm the People's Man, first, last and all the time."

yearly guarantee would go up the chimney.

Denny indicates CIO feels about the same way on that. He said he would look a long time at the contract and at the contractor before agreeing.

"We may look into that," he said,
"when we have gone farther along the road."

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—On Broadway, sandwiched between an auctioneer's stall and a candy store, is a record shop.
It is only 10 feet wide and about 35 feet deep. It probably sells more records than any store in New York.
Sometimes you can barely squeeze into it, and more often than not you have to shout to make yourself heard. It is run by a little man with the calmest pair of eyes I ever saw. Ovidia Saporta is his name.
He's been there 27 years, and it is not exaggerating to say that he has welcomed into his two-by-four emporium more composers and orchestra leaders and musicians than any song merchant in the country.

Saporta came to New York in 1906, from Salonika, which used to be under Turkish domination, but now is Greek. His shop is open morning, afternoons, and at night until very late, and on Sundays and holidays. There is always a crowd milling around—even on holidays
when New York seems otherwise deserted. On week days, with the auctioneers bawling through amplifiers next door, when barkers are fog-horning for the second-grade movie houses, when Chinatown bus barkers are shrieking enticements to tourists, when cops are bellowing at motorists and pedestrians, this bedlam is laced with the strains of the newest tunes. It is at once the noisiest and most interesting block on Broadway.

It sits somewhat like a dubious
jewel in the heart of Times Square.
Directly across the street is Loew's State Theater. In the square to the left stands Father Duffy's statue.
Subway trains rumble underground,
and every taxicab in New York,
radios funneling out play-by-play details of the ball games, cruise past. Mr. Saporta sells radios and portable victrolas, too. But his greatest traffic is in orchestrations, sheet music, and records—mostly records.

His greatest seller? Why, Al Jol-son's "Sonny Boy." No record has ever equaled that one in sales. He sold 3,000 in three days.

Visitors to New York who are interested in national elections should visit Brooklyn. Brooklyn is a borough and it also is Kings county. It is the largest of New York City's five boroughs, and has a population of 2,800,000. Brooklyn can send 700,000 voters to the polls.

It is astonishing to know that Brooklyn alone cast more votes for the re-election of F. D. R. in 1936 than any of 37 states. It cast a greater majority than the combined

total of eight other states.
The real significance of Brooklyn in national election years is that New York state has 47 electoral votes—more than any other state.
And the man who wins Brooklyn is going to have a good chance of pocketing those 47 votes.

There's a man in New York who can make all the blood run out of one of his arms into the other arm.
He says he learned the trick from Buddhist priests in Tibet, and that it is strictly a question of mind over matter—that he wills it, and it happens. When he was asked if people really lived to excessive age in that pure, high-Tibetan atmosphere, he replied, "Sure. I personally knew two Lama priests who were 205 years old."

After that I didn't ask him any more questions. I began to have a queer feeling around the head and ducked out.

Most valuable bird: Peruvian cormorant because of the guano it deposits.

Exclusive Rainfall in Kansas.
Lawrence, Kans.—(AP)—If took a quirt of fate to do it, but there'll be plenty of corn on the F. H. Leon-hard farm for next fall's national cornhusking contest.
Hot, dry weather burned a lot of the corn near Lawrence, but the Leonhard crop is flourishing and green. It received a couple of rains that almost were exclusive.

In both instances, the rain came in the nick of time when the corn needed moisture, and in both instances it fell only on the Leonhard acres and on a few surrounding farms.

Birds have been seen flying as high as 14,000 feet.

Four Run Party In Sixth Gives Eagles 5 To 4 Verdict

GOOBERS PLAY IN CITY FRIDAY

Greenies Score Four Runs In Three Verses

A big sixth inning gave Kinston an advantage that produced a 5-4 triumph for the Eagles over Greenville in a game that saw four pitchers do mound duty.

Greenville has only one more game this week at the Guy Smith stadium. The game will be played tomorrow night with Tarboro, at which time all ladies will be admitted free. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Rube's boys began scoring in the fourth last night when Alex Daniels singled to left and advanced to second on Hahn's error and scored on Wilson's double to left. The Eagles knotted the score at 1-1 in the fifth when Hermanski, Thornton 2, Jenkins, Allen. Two base hits: Wilson, McCall. Stolen bases: Jenkins, Hermanski, Daniels, Dou-

HARD BATTLES IN ALL GAMES

Homers Produce Biggest Thrills Wednesday

Several hard-fought battles prevailed in Coastal Plain League play yesterday, with teams that have been struck by hard luck in scoring and hitting showing a slight degree of rejuvenation.

New Bern faded Wilson, 3-2, as a result of homers by Worliss Knowles and Jack Barnes in an afternoon game, but the Tots took the night affair, 4-1, behind the hurling of Creason. Berry performed in the afternoon for the Bruins.

Williamston blanked Snow Hill, 3-0, as youthful Bob Emer hurled three-hit ball to baffled the Billies. However, it was effective hitting power by Red Swain that gave the Martins the triumph. Red's round-tripper over the left field wall did the trick.

Another doubleheader found Mule Shirey's Gold Bugs taking both games. Mule's boys won the afternoon game, 11-4, and turned back the Goobers in the after-dark game, 6-1. Bob Kepler did the afternoon hurling, while Marvin Gramly pitched the night win.

In the only other game of the league, Bill Herring's Eagles defeated Greenville, 5-4. It was the second straight loss for the locals.

SCOUTS READY FOR CITY MEET

Friday's Winners To Be In District Finals

All over East Carolina, Scout districts have been holding their swimming meets to determine their entrants for the council meet to be held here in Greenville at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, August 24. The troops of the Greenville district have their elimination Friday of this week at 7:30.

Greenville units as well as Scout troops in the county are reminded by those in charge that two Scouts may enter each event in the meet Friday for the free style, breast stroke, back stroke and plunge for distance events. The medley relay event and the four-Scout relay will be limited to one team from each troop. The diving will be done by only one Scout from each troop.

The coveted elkskin award will be presented to the winning district in the council swimming meet on Thursday, August 24.

The Scout executive makes clear that the first-place winners in each event, regardless of which troop compiles the greatest number of points in the meet this Friday, will represent the district August 24.

Scouts who are to swim are urged to be at the pool early in order that the first event may get underway promptly at 7:30 o'clock Friday.

Several novelty events and a life-saving demonstration are also on the schedule of events. The public is cordially invited to be the guests of the Scouts in this activity project. Greenville is receiving much favorable publicity over the 21 counties of the East Carolina Council and a large group of out-of-town visitors are expected here for the council meet. Come out both Friday of this week and Thursday, August 24, to the municipal pool.

specific causes threaten to produce smaller demand and lower prices for tobacco: (1) The greatly increased carryover of blue-cured tobacco from our 1939 crop; (2) the determination of Japan, Italy and Germany to cut imports of all American goods to the bone; and (3) the increased tariff which England is now levying on American tobacco.

Dr. Poe cited figures to show that in the most prosperous farm areas of the United States, each time the farmer gets $100 from plant production he gets an equal amount from animal production; while in North Carolina the farmer gets on an average of but $20 from animal production for each $100 from plant production.

While the situation becomes more complex, officers are studying every lead. However, no evidence has come to light that will establish the reason for Lovett's death.

Harvest Magic

Springfield, Ohio, (AP)—It's an old gag for a magician to make things disappear, but when the audience disappears, that's magic in reverse. Jack Paige, Detroit magician, and his company had the stage set to bewilder with legere-main an expected 200 American Legion junior baseball players.

The curtain went up but there was no audience. Someone had invited the boys a moment before to guests at the Springfield-Akron night game here.

The language of the decision in refusing to consider the merits is plain:

"It is specifically held, however, that the justifiableness of the action on the part of the claimants herein in leaving work is a matter with which this commission has no concern, and such evidence is immaterial to the determination and adjudication of the claims now before us."

Hollywood—The mother of a swingstruck adolescent had to chuckle the other day when daughter came home humming what she described as a brand-new, red-hot five tune. The tune was "Martina" and daughter couldn't believe that mother—dear antiquated young matron of a mother—had heard it before.

Mother said oh-yes-she-had, and she got out an old record marked "Martina—M'Appari—Sung by Enrico Caruso" and she played it and daughter listened quietly and at the end of the first measure she said "Martina" and the rest of the tune.

The youngsters are going to be bringing home a flock of other "new ones" just as he did for the first time last week. The "vogue for old-tunes-made-new" that started by "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and continued in "Rose of Washington Square" is by no means finished. There'll be songs to stir the memories of oldsters and the feet of youngsters in "The Star-Maker," in "Hollywood Cavalcade" (in which Al Jolson will sing "Mammy" just as he did for the first time last week), in "The Roaring Twenties" (incidental to melodramatic action here, of course).

And "Babes in Arms" is using half a dozen old-tunes along with its newly composed numbers.

Mickey Rooney, in a minstrel show sequence, introduces again "Shine On, Harvest Moon" and "Jda," both of which were sponsored originally by that grand man of vaudeville, Eddie Leonard. You'll be hearing also "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "Stumbling" and "Moonlight Bay."

It's the simplicity of the old tunes, their easy adaptability to modern dress and orchestrations, that makes them go. And then, they're really new to the youngsters who keep swing going.

As if in answer to all this, up steps Nelson Eddy, no swingaroo, on the "Balalaika" sound stage with the considered opinion that swing is on its way out. What Nelson, who spends about half his time

WILL DISPLAY N. C. SKETCHES
Robert Lee Humber To Display Etchings in Paris

Raleigh, Aug. 10.—Louis Orr, noted artist and etcher of Hartford, Conn., and Paris, is now in North Carolina making a preliminary survey of historically interesting subjects from which he plans to make 25 etchings to be published in Paris by Robert Lee Humber, former Tar Heel.

Orr has been conferring with Department of Conservation and Development officials and looking over files in the news bureau of the department for several days.

"Your state is so large and contains so much that is interesting that I find I will have to spend eight or nine months collecting my material and making preliminary sketches before I actually begin work on the etchings," Orr said.

He is the etcher who recently made a series of six for Duke University, now available either singly or in album form. He has been decorated by the French government and made an officer of the Legion of Honor.

Orr is planning to make several trips with representatives of the news bureau into all sections of the state in order to get a complete picture of North Carolina. He has already made sketches of the state capitol and Christ Church in Raleigh.

He plans trips to Edenton, Roanoke Island, New Bern, Wilmington and several other points in the east.

"No matter which way I turn I find plenty of material," he said, "and I see now that I am going to have to include many pencil drawings in the albums, probably on the margins of the text, in addition to the etchings."

Robert Lee Humber, who will display a series of North Carolina etchings in Paris, is a native of Greenville, the son of R. L. Humber, now of this city. Mr. Humber visited Greenville about a month ago and although spending much of his time in Europe, keeps in close contact with his native home.

WELL KEEP OURS IN THE ICE BOX
Mayfield, Ky.—(AP)—Workmen cleaning a well at Mrs. Sarah Walker's farm home found an earthen jar of butter submerged in mud at the bottom of the well.

Mrs. Walker, now 92, said the jar was dropped accidentally while being hung in the well to keep the butter cool and fresh—30 years ago.

Yet, she said, the same butter, found by the workmen, apparently was in good condition and had no rancid taste or odor.

on the concert stage, would be knowing about swing isn't at once apparent—but he says that on his last tour the requests for swing stuff were few compared to those on tours of three years ago.

Pretty soon it's going to be unanimous, this Swing-Is-Out opinion, and then where will Benny Goodman be? My guess is he'll be right at the same old stand, swinging along in the form of music that will be swing's successor—if any.

Director Jack Hively had ordered the cats for mousing purposes only. But you can't keep a good cat down. Ellis was before the camera, leaning on a counter, when one of the cats appeared from nowhere, climbed slowly up his back to his shoulder. A little thing like that, no! even when the nice kitty began licking his nose during dialogue.

Syracuse, N. Y.—(AP)—Percival F. Brittain insists that it's never too late to learn. When he came to the United States from England in 1920—at the age of 39—he had only a grammar school education. By studying nights, he obtained a high school certificate, then completed a normal school course that qualified him as a teacher of drawing and music. Now he is studying at Syracuse University to get a college degree. On the side he is studying French at Central high school—just because he likes the language.

THEY GET A PEACH OF A SHAVE
Bowling Green, Ky.—(AP)—Two Bowling Green orchardists have a solution for the current controversy over the new tennis ball, which Australian players contend shows fuzzi quickly and becomes too heavy. The two—Roger Porter and E. D. Hudgens—have peach "defuzzers" in operation on their farms.

The machines, through a system of brushes, turn out peaches minus the undesirable "whiskers" at the rate of a bushel a minute.
