BILL IS SIGNED TO LIBERALIZE SECURITY ACT

Amendments moves Big Burden From Tax Payers

DEPENDENTS OF WORKER HELPED

President Issues Statement to Scotch Reports He is Anticipating Extra Session

Hyde Park, Aug. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt signed today a bill making broad liberalizations in the Social Security act and cutting hundreds of millions of dollars off the tax burden it imposes.

The President said in a formal statement that "These amendments to the act represent another tremendous step forward in providing greater security for the people of this country."

"It is especially true," he added, "in the case of the federal old-age insurance system which has now been converted into a system of old-age and survivors insurance providing life-time family security for each of only individual old-age security to the workers in insured occupations."

"In addition to the worker himself, millions of widows and orphans now will be afforded some degree of protection in the event of his death whether before or after his retirement."

The President said the size of benefits to be paid during the early years would be "far more adequate than under the present law."

He said he was glad that unemployment insurance benefits had been extended to cover workers in some occupations previously uncovered.

"Continuing, seeking to scotch reports that he would call a special session of Congress this fall, the President said at a press conference that so far as he knew at present there was no reason for calling Congress back."

But he added that if an actual crisis of war became imminent in Europe or in the Far East in other words, if it became reasonably certain that there was going to be war — he would probably immediately call a special session.

He said he would do so in order to insure American neutrality along the lines of international law.

In general, he said he favored neutrality legislation of the type for which the administration fought unsuccessfully in the last session — legislation making us neutral instead of un-neutral."

Grant Is Offered To Pitt Farmers

R. R. Bennett, Pitt county farm agent, said today that ground beneath, Austrian winter peas and vetch may be secured by farmers as a grant of aid under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation program up to the value of 90 per cent of their soil building practice allowance.

He explained that if 90 per cent of the farmers' soil-building practice allowance for his farm, as shown on the form already sent to the farmer, the farmer can receive a grant of aid of 27.6 tons of ground limestone delivered in the county in bulk at $2.50 per ton, or the farmer can receive $80 worth of vetch or Austrian peas.

Bennett pointed out that if the farmer takes advantage of the grant the cost of lime or seed would be deducted from the Soil Conservation payment at the time the check is written in Washington. He said also that the limestone fertilizers from 35 to 42 per cent magnesium carbonate. He revealed the content of a telegram received from E. Y. Floyd which said that Austrian winter peas can be obtained as a grant of aid to approximately four and a half cents a pound and vetch at approximately eight and a quarter cents a pound.

It was revealed that farmers in other counties who have already secured and used the limestone fertilizer that they have no difficulty in handling or distributing it on the land.

PLEA ENTERED FOR NEW PLAN

Working Agreement Sought For AFL and CIO

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—A plea for a "working agreement" between the A. F. of L. and the CIO, even though they maintain their separate entities, was made today by Chairman Thomas (D. Utah) of the Senate Labor committee.

Summing up the 53 days of hearings held by the committee on proposed changes in the Wagner act, Thomas told reporters he saw "no reason why the two labor organizations should have to get together as one."

"There is plenty of room in this country for both of them," he said, "but the leaders must strive for some working agreement so that the cause of labor will not be hurt by strife."

Other Washington developments: Airline Feeder System, Inc., of New York, has served notice of its intention to apply to the Civil Aeronautics Authority for permission to be a chain of airlines in 14 states.

Banking Commissioner Gurney F. Hood said in a statement accompanying the abstract:

"Everything in this report indicates a tremendous increase in the volume of business being transacted in North Carolina," he said in commenting on the fact that it is not one or two items which lead to the encouraging conclusion he has reached.

Raleigh, Aug. 11.—(AP) The North Carolina flue-cured tobacco crop forecast of 708,180,000 pounds, based on conditions August 1, means a crop 38 per cent in excess of last year's, the State Agriculture Department reported today.

The report said 730,000 acres of tobacco were under cultivation with yield per acre estimated at 14.9 per cent more than in 1938.

Yield for the Border Belt was figured at 1,080 pounds per acre over 1938 and a half per cent per acre over 1938, with 81,000 acres planted, an increase of 25.6 per cent and production figured at 87,480,000 pounds, up 41 per cent.

The New Bright Belt yield was figured at 1,000 pounds per acre, an increase of 16.3 per cent, with the 696,000 acres being an increase of 24.9 per cent, so a production increase of 45 per cent was forecast with the crop set at 366,000,000 pounds.

The Old Bright Belt yield was figured at 862 pounds an acre, up 12.1 per cent, and the 15 per cent increase made acreage 283,000, with a crop of 254,700,000 in prospect, a gain of 30 per cent.

Edwards asked the directors yesterday to have a committee work with him in regard to his request for a credit of $25,000 a year for two years on the rental of $60,500 yearly he has agreed to pay. STATE AGENTS RETURN HOME

Inquest Into Lovett Death Set For Saturday

State Bureau of Investigation agents packed their grips and returned to Raleigh last night following the completion of a vain preliminary investigation of the death of Private Sam Lovett, Fort Bragg soldier, found in Tar river.

A coroner's jury assembling tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock is slated to be confronted with the same perplexing situation that has confronted investigators; that of determining just what caused the death of the soldier who came to Pitt county to visit a girl friend and failed to find her at home.

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor, who has been working with the state agents, said today that the agents would compile a report of their findings to Pitt authorities some time in the immediate future. However, the sheriff disclosed there are still no clues in the case, an indication that the agents are "still in the dark."

Investigation has uncovered all Lovett's activities from the time he left Fort Bragg Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock until he was last seen on the Greenville-Washington highway about five and a half miles from Greenville Saturday night around 9 o'clock. His activities from then until the time he died remain shrouded in a mystery that investigators have been unable to unravel. Efforts to find Lovett's hat and black satchel have proved futile. Since the vast investigation has failed to throw any light on the case, the possibility was advanced today that the coroner's jury tomorrow might order that Lovett's body be removed from the grave in Maysville and be subjected to an autopsy.

Distribution Of Money To Teachers A Problem

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Aug. 11.—It may be that before this piece gets into print the State School Commission will have worked out something definite in the matter of distributing some $289,000 the legislature turned over to its discretion.

It is much more probable that commission members will still be discussing—let's not say wrangling over—what to do with the money. There was a special salary committee named to study the matter. It has, and its members have come to some sort of an agreement, though only at long last and after much division of opinion. Now the matter is up to the whole commission.

And there seem to be as many minds as members. There are three major points at issue—reduction of the differential between salary schedules for white and Negro teachers, (2) which classroom teachers to reward with pay increases or increments, and (3)

Quartet Had Been Center of Tientsin Dispute

London, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The British government announced today that four Chinese alleged terrorists who had been the center of the British-Japanese dispute at Tientsin, would be handed over to the Japanese authorities for trial.

It was announced that new evidence submitted by the Japanese had established prima facie cases against the four Chinese and that they would be handed over immediately.

Japanese authorities in Tientsin accused the four of complicity in the killing of a Chinese customs official of the Japanese-dominated North China regime. British refusal to turn them over after they were seized in the British concession brought on the Japanese army blockade of the British and French concessions, which has been in force since June 14.

Sir Robert Craigie, ambassador to Japan, has been instructed to convey London's decision to the Tokyo government. The ambassador to China, Sir Archibald Kerr, also has been instructed to inform the Chungking government of the British decision.

Two of the Chinese will be tried on murder charges growing out of the assassination of S. G. Cheng, the customs official, April 9. The other two will be charged with membership in illegal organizations.

Storm Is Nearing Coast of Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 11.—(AP)—A tropical disturbance of less than hurricane force moved today toward the Florida east coast in a direction which the weather bureau said would carry it inland near Palm Beach about mid-afternoon.

A 9 a. m. advisory placed the storm 100 miles east-southeast of Palm Beach. It was moving west-northwest at 14 miles per hour. "The center is very small, but attended by a small area of gale winds up to 50 miles per hour and a larger area of squalls," the report said.

Storm warnings which earlier had been displayed from Daytona Beach to Key West, were ordered down south of Miami.

Although forecasters emphasized that the disturbance was of only moderate intensity, persons in exposed areas along the coast evacuated and some buildings were boarded up.

Miami reported a slowly dropping barometer, 29.88 at 8 a. m., and winds of 10 miles an hour. The sky was murky and occasional light rains fell. Tides were only slightly above normal.

Nassau, Bahamas capital, had winds of 35 to 40 miles an hour, not sufficient to cause damage, last night. Precautions along the Florida coast consisted principally of moving small street signs which might come loose in winds, lashing up awnings, moving boats to safer moorings, and the like.

MINISTERS OF AXIS NATIONS BEGIN PARLEY

Italian Count Ciano Met at Station by Ribbentrop

WILL CONSIDER NEW CONDITIONS

Conversations Expected to Have Profound Bearing On Course of Events In Europe

Salzburg, Germany, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano arrived here today for a three-day conference with German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop to attune the Rome-Berlin axis to new conditions in Europe.

Ciano brought suggestions from Premier Mussolini on what the closely co-operative political and military partners should do about the Free City of Danzig, the Balkans and the Far East.

The two ministers began immediately on conversations which it was acknowledged in every continental capital may have profound bearing on the course of events in unsettled Western Europe in the next few weeks.

The two foreign ministers are expected to travel tomorrow to see Adolf Hitler. Plans called for them to spend the afternoon and perhaps the evening with the Fuehrer at his country home.

Ciano stepped from his train with a broad smile and shook hands cordially with Von Ribbentrop, who escorted him between rows of smiling youths to a waiting automobile.

The German foreign minister accompanied his guest to the place where the Italians were quartered. Ribbentrop left immediately and Ciano, wearing a gay blue suit, followed a half hour later to the scene of their meeting.

Von Ribbentrop's 16th century summer home about 15 miles south of here. There, after a lunch in the secluded castle, they delved into their discussions.

Beyond this afternoon's talks, which were expected to last until dark, there was no announced program.

STATE AGENT RETURNS HOME

autopsy. Coroner A. A. Ellwanger expressed the belief earlier in the week that even an autopsy probably would not produce results conclusive enough for substantial court evidence.

While the autopsy possibility prevails, it is merely problematical, in that Coroner Ellwanger disclosed that a thorough examination on the day the body was found failed to reveal signs of foul play, even though the body was in a bad state of decomposition.

As the case entered its fourth day of being unsolved, investigation already launched showed there is no logical contention for concluding Lovett was murdered; nor is there any foundation for concluding he took his own life.

The inquest set for tomorrow morning is one that was postponed Tuesday pending further investigation.

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Bizard

YESTERDAY: Cecily is very happy picnicking with Locke, until he again becomes aloof. Later, to Cecily's annoyance, Philip accuses her of being cold.

Chapter 18

Unwelcome Embrace

"I DON'T think you understand," she retorted. "There is no reason why you should feel that I am either freezing or melting. I thought I made it quite clear some time ago that you were not to imply any intimacy between us."

Philip smiled and lit a cigarette slowly.

"Cecily, my dear child, you must be fair. Have I implied any intimacy?"

Cecily shook her head. He hadn't.

"But I am strangely tempted," he went on. "I'm only human, after all, and you've turned out to be a very attractive girl. Do I imagine it, or is there something different about you these last few weeks?"

Cecily didn't answer but the warm blood rushed to her cheeks with the thought that came to her. "I don't know what you mean," she said in an embarrassed tone.

"I'm not sure I do myself. But there has been a change in you. You're softer, warmer. There's a glow about you as though your thoughts made you happy."

"Guilt, a blend of sudden knowledge and sudden embarrassment, unfolded her. She had felt the strange alchemy in herself. She had felt a softness, a warmth that came from her heart. She had responded to all appeals to her senses within these last few weeks as she had never responded before. There was a greater depth to everything. Music fell more poignantly on her ears. Waking and sleeping were twin adventures—one a call to something that was happening, the other to live her memories of what had happened. She had known it within herself, had heard the new note of spontaneity in her laughter, but she didn't know that anyone else had seen it. Or guessed its reason.

"Is it true?" Philip asked softly. Because it was true and because she was without guile, she lowered her eyes, not knowing that her confusion was an admission.

Philip reached over gently and took one of her hands. "I suppose I would be presuming to think that I might have anything to do with it?"

She stared at him, wide-eyed. This was presumption!

"You're shy, aren't you?"

"Not really," she said dryly. "I don't mean to rush you," he continued. "Only I've discovered that I well, I'm crazy about you, Cecily."

Cecily wanted to get up, to escape from the room. But she was locked in her chair. You couldn't push a man's knees out of your way and still accomplish a graceful exit.

Very quietly she said, "Please, Philip, don't say things like that or I shall be forced to tell Aunt Olivia the truth."

"The truth!" he explained softly. Then he bent toward her, commanding her eyes. "Why haven't you done it before, Cecily?"

"I'm not quite sure," she answered honestly. "Since you've asked for the truth, I'll tell it to you. I do think it has been un-speakable of you to have accepted our hospitality for such a long time under such circumstances. I should feel no end embarrassed if I were you. When I agreed to the bargain, I thought it would be for only a matter of a few days. I gave you the benefit of any doubts I had about your acting like a gentleman."

Theatrical

HIS face fell into lines of hurt surprise. "Didn't you think I was a gentleman?"

"No," she said promptly. "The gentlemen I have known wouldn't take advantage of a girl the way you did."

"But it was such a temptation and you did bring it on yourself!"

"I know I did. That, however, doesn't excuse you or explain your ungentlemanly behavior since—"

He squashed his cigarette, saying nothing.

Cecily felt vaguely uncomfortable. "Philip, I don't mean to be unfair. I don't mean that your behavior isn't well, isn't quite all right. I only mean—well, about the long time that you've been staying on—"

"There! She had given him his chance to say that he was leaving."

"There's one little point, Cecily, that you haven't cleared up: why haven't you told your aunt the truth?"

Cecily swallowed, cleared her throat. "Because, they seem to like you so much. And you have been kind to Aunt Olivia. It wasn't because of you, but because of her that I have kept silent."

Philip got up and walked toward the window with his back to her. His gesture, the very line of his pose, was theatrical but it had the effect of making Cecily wish that she hadn't been so outspoken. She hadn't meant to hurt him.

When he turned back again and returned to his chair opposite her, she saw that there was a look of sadness, a sort of wistfulness on his heavy, handsome features.

His eyes searched her face as if looking for understanding and sympathy. Then he smiled crookedly. "Cecily," he began in a low voice, "were you ever poor?"

"I'm poor now," she said, wondering what he was going to say next.

"I have been very poor," he went on as if having paid no attention to her remark. "For the first twenty years of my life I lived in a squalor. After that, the next ten years were spent working, trying to get somewhere. That somewhere was... well, some place like this. I wanted to know people like you and your lovely aunt. I wanted to be part of a life like yours."

"But what about all the people you must have known since you have become a successful author. You said that you had friends in London, Paris and Hollywood. Surely..."

Her question faded, waiting for him to answer. She had a feeling that he was displeased with it.

He lit another cigarette. "I've known lots of people. But I repeat that I feel closer... this sounds maudlin, doesn't it?"

She said politely that it didn't.

He shrugged his shoulders. "That's all there is. Perhaps you're right about my not being quite a gentleman because I admit I have taken advantage of you and your hospitality. I'm too weak to resist."

"Then you don't intend to resist?" she asked calmly.

He smiled broadly then. "No," he answered promptly. "It's nearly over and I mean to finish my holiday. Have you any plans?"

"I don't know," she said weakly and felt exasperated. All her sympathy dissolved.

"As a matter of fact, while we are having our rare little tête à tête, suppose we continue on a more personal basis? Have you ever considered me as a suitor?"

"Never!" she replied with unflattering promptness.

Wave Of Dislike

"YOU might," he answered blandly. "If you continue to grow any prettier, I'm going to find it hard to remember that you really aren't my little fiancée. As a matter of fact I'm not a bad fellow. Had you thought about it?"

"I'm afraid that anything I might think about you would be colored by my first opinion," she said and pushed her chair back determinedly. It was a heavy chair and didn't move easily. Cecily lost her balance as she rose. Philip had got up at the same moment and Cecily found herself caught in his arms. She struggled in his grasp, and turned her head to avoid him. A wave of dislike engulfed her.

Then suddenly she felt his arms loosen, heard him laugh softly, apologetically.

She turned her head when she was free and found Philip looking toward the door where she caught a quick glance of Olivia's disappearing train.

"Fool!" she said.

He laughed again. "Don't be embarrassed, Cecily. It was only your aunt and she must expect that I make love to you sometime."

Cecily, her flaming head held high, had stormed out of the room. She didn't want to go up to her own room. She didn't want to face the others. She went out the back way and perched herself on a high bench overlooking the vegetable garden.

After a little while her sense of humor got the better of her. She thought: This is where I belong.

When she returned to the house, the others were playing bridge. Gloria and Allene Bixby, who had come back to Maine a few days before, were playing with Olivia and Helene Fernandez. Manuel was deep in a newspaper. Philip was not to be seen.

Philip was waiting for Cecily at the turn of the stairs.

He had a subdued expression on his face. He rose at once and held out his hand. "If I say I'm sorry—and I am sincerely—will you forgive me, Cecily? You're so very pretty. I lost my head. Men do, you know. I promise you it won't happen again."

Cecily couldn't avoid his hand. "It's all right," she said. "Good night."

Pretty. Appealing. Soft. Warm. The words rang over and over again as she pulled off her clothes, slipped them neatly on the chair beside her bed.

She tried to put them out of her head as she got into her pajamas and wrapped herself in her woolly robe. She sat down before her dressing-table and dipped her fingers into the cold-cream jar. Then, in the light of her small kerosene lamps, she looked at herself in the mirror.

Her hair was tousled, framing her face softly. The pink of her robe warmed the color in her face. The lamps on a lower level pointed up the long lashes above her eyes, lent them sparkle.

"Cecily Stuart, you're con- celled!" she said to the girl in the mirror. "You're a crazy little fool for thinking you're pretty. You've got freckles, and no one ever heard of a freckled face being pretty!"

Her question led to another: Did she look as pretty as this to Locke?

and that one is the tearing of forty-two children who mocked him. On the surface, this seems severe, but when we stop to consider that the Hebrew for children is the same as the Greek in the second chapter of Mark, used by the Lord in speaking to the man sick of the palsy. We are to regard them as young men, or full grown lads.

Furthermore, the Bible says the bears tore them, but does not say they killed them, then the passage does not seem so hard.

Sunday School Lesson

By D. A. WINDHAM

We are considering at this time the incident in the life of Elisha in the curing of Naaman, the Syrian general. As his name implies, "God is my salvation," we may justly expect a life of great works. When called to be a prophet of God, he was plowing twelve yoke of oxen, from which we assume that he was a farmer on a big scale. When God calls men into His service, He calls busy men. So, when a man can do big things for himself, he will do them for God. God needed a hustler and one able to cope with big problems, and He found them both in Elisha.

Before going into the lesson, let us consider an incident in his life deeply concerned about him, and under such circumstances his real cure was about to be overlooked, as often in our zeal we pass the little things by which is the very thing God often uses to glorify His name. Naaman's popularity was due to an old Jewish tradition: that is to say, to the fact that he himself shot Ahab. But fortunately for him, he had a little Hebrew maid in his home who knew the God of heaven, and Naaman learned of her that Elisha the prophet could cure him. Despondent Naaman was willing to try the remedy which the little maid had said would cure him. Her gentle deportment and loyalty had won the respect of all. Thus, let it be said to his credit that he did not procrastinate, but started at once with a fine offering, and in today's money market it would amount to $81,000. If some preachers who claim that God silently leads them from one field to another, and when we learn all the facts, there was a fatter paying church at the end leading on, they would be telling very reverently and solemnly that God led them to heal the Syrian leper. But strange as it may seem, Elisha refused it all, and Naaman returned to his home with high respect to Elisha and faith in Elisha's God. If Elisha had accepted the fat offering, Naaman would have felt that he had paid for all he had received, and I God would have been left out.

Think, friends, we have scores of more lepers in the church today who will drop a twenty dollar bill in the collection plate (thush-money for the jelly-fish preacher) and feel that they will sail to heaven on flowery beds of ease.

Naaman stopped at the palace of the king. This was a splendid start, but he stopped too soon, and if he had gone no further, he would have remained a leper. Too many church people when they give the preacher their hand, only to crowd church rolls with inactive names, and the live and die in sin. Fortunately for Naaman he went forth until he contacted the God of heaven. He came to the house of Elisha with his precious plan of salvation, and that was the magic touch of the hand of Elisha.

But God had his plan, and it was far different from the plan of Naaman's. God's plan was obedience, for by grace are you saved through faith, not of works, neither was it to be bought with silver and gold. God's remedy was to dip seven times in the Jordan river, and he would be cleansed. This cleansing is a type of sin being cleansed, for He bids all, though their sins be red as scarlet, or as deep as crimson, to dip in the cleansing fountain opened in the house of King David, simply wash and be clean.

The Jordan river was considered emblematical refers to death, and seven is God's number for completeness. Therefore, the remedy is death completely to sin and the world. When Naaman had dipped seven times, his flesh was as the flesh of a little child. Just so when we dip completely in the hallowed redemptive blood of Jesus Christ, old things will pass away and all will become new. Naaman staggered at the simplicity of God's remedy, and was ready to go away uncleansed in a rage of indignation had it not been for his believing servant to help him up in his moment of weakness. He regarded his native rivers, Abana and Pharpar as good as the Jordan. So many people today contend that things can be so established for the requirements of God as stated in his word, but his cleansing was to be in God's way, and we are to be saved in God's way or not at all.

Naaman had seven obnoxious characteristics to be removed, and as the Hebrew verb Tabal rendered dipped in English means submersion, and those seven must be completely abolished. They were as follows: pride, temper, love for the things of the world, holding the things of God in contempt, egotism, haughtiness and insubordination. With these dipped away, and an unconditional surrender to God, he was made clean. So, we must adhere to the end.

Philip was waiting for Cecily at the turn of the stairs.

He had a subdued expression on his face. He rose at once and held out his hand. "If I say I'm sorry—and I am sincerely—will you forgive me, Cecily? You're so very pretty. I lost my head. Men do, you know. I promise you it won't happen again."

Furthermore, the Bible says the bears tore them, but does not say they killed them, then the passage does not seem so hard.

We come now to the lesson proper. Naaman was a mighty man of war, but he was a leper, and for that reason the lowest slave would not be willing to exchange skins with him. Leprosy was incurable, and was very contagious, and the law required that the patient be isolated from society. All Syria was

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL RALEIGH, Aug. 11. — Former State Senator John H. McDaniel of Cabarrus was in Raleigh this week and fell to discussing politics with the conductor of this column. He has found little or no general interest in the gubernatorial race through his section and has noted but one thing on which there seems to be almost unanimous agreement. "Out our way we'd all be quite willing to set aside the North Carolina law and precedents to the extent of giving Governor Clyde Hoey another term."

Maybe if State Treasurer Charlie Johnson had been able to foresee results of the Kentucky and Mississippi gubernatorial primaries he wouldn't have been in such a hurry to eliminate himself from consideration for the top post here in North Carolina. What with Keen licking the tar out of "Dear Aiken's" C. I. O. backed protégé in the Blue Grass section and Paul heading the field down in the land of the magnolias, it seems there is distinctly a Johnson tide running in governor's races.

State Senator Lin Ballentin, Wake county dairyman, looks over the scrambled governorship situation in Tar Heels, figures it out as being so complicated that it's any man's race, and decides there are only two things which keep him from getting into the swim on his own account: "If I had the money and the time I'd think about running myself," says he.

County and district game protectors have on hand and for sale a new type of combination hunting and fishing license, according to the Game and Inland Fish division of the Department of Conservation and Development. They cost $3.10, same as in the past, and permit holders to hunt or fish anywhere in the state. The new licenses are of light-weight cardboard, yellow in color and contained in transparent glassine envelopes, so that they can be carried in a bill fold. This is the first time no button or badge has been issued in connection with hunting and fishing licenses.

Add Congressional possibilities for next year's primaries: John Lang, Jr., of Carthage, National Youth's Administration head for North Carolina.

He is being talked as a possible opponent for W. O. Burgin of Davidson who won't be able to poll 1,800 votes in his home county by the absentee method next time. Burgin was finally chosen the Democratic nominee last year only after the primary had been dragged through the state election board and into the courts which refused to decide the case one way or another in time for the general election. Ultimately an agreement upon group of three lawyers picked the Davidson man over C. B. Deane of Richmond who later was rewarded with a good federal job.

What's happening in Raleigh these days? The same thing that happens to a girl who wears cotton stockings which is to say, exactly nothing.

By-products from citrus crops now include concentrated juices, wine, vinegar, stock, etc.

N. C. FARMERS GO SCIENTIFIC

Tar Heel Farmers Taking Interest in New Methods

Raleigh, Aug. 6.—The past decade rural scene has seen North Carolina farmers take a livelier interest in modern scientific farming methods. John W. Goodman, assistant director of the State College Extension Service, said today.

A recent survey conducted in North Carolina by the National Fertilizer Association revealed that 56.4 per cent of the representative farmers interviewed attended meetings and demonstrations conducted by county agents. This is three per cent above the national average, and represents a gain of 28 per cent over the number who reported attending meetings in a similar survey made 10 years ago.

Trips to the North Carolina Experiment Station and the test farms in quest of better farming information were made by more than 24 per cent of the farmers, an increase of nine per cent over the number who visited the same places a decade ago. The survey brought out that 82 per cent of those attending meetings reported that they had received information of practical value to them. Ninety-nine per cent reported they used fertilizer of some kind on their fields.

WHO SAYS THE WEST 'AIN'T WILD NO MO'?

Chicago. — (AP) — The accidental death rate in the West during 1938 was higher than in any other geographical section of the country, reports National Safety Council's yearbook. The accident death rate in eight Mountain states (Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico) averaged 102.6 accident deaths per 100,000 of population. The three Pacific states (Washington, Oregon and California) had a combined rate of 96.6. The other sections of the country had the following accident death rates charged against them: North Central states, 73.4; South Atlantic states, 72.5; South Central states, 66.7; North Atlantic states, 66.4. Nevada's rate was the highest of all, 141.6 accident fatalities per 100,000 of population. North Dakota's rate was the lowest, 52.1. The average for the entire country was 72.2.

We Wonder, Too. Del Rio, Tex. — (AP) — Jim Netts is hunting a rattlesnake and wondering what a commander in the U. S. Navy wants with a rattlesnake hat band. He said he had a letter from a friend, who is a naval commander, making the unusual request.

WILL OBSERVE 'COTTON' WEEK

Civic Clubs to Help Increase Lint Consumption

Hollandale, Miss., Aug. 10.—Material for programs on the work of the National Cotton Council has been mailed to 2,500 civic clubs in the cotton belt by the Rotary Club of Hollandale.

The council's plans for expansion of cotton consumption are expected to be heard by 100,000 club members in 12 states, President W. C. Gaither of the Hollandale club said today. Funds for the project were raised by the club's 26 members, who were given $5 each out of the club treasury with instructions to put the money to work and bring back the principal plus the earnings.

Material mailed to an official of each civic club includes an address on the subject "Fine Cotton Attacks," a club song entitled "Picking Cotton," and a poem with the theme "There's a cabin in the cotton, but no cotton in the cabin." In a brief address by a club leader, cotton's present plight will be summed up. The loss of export markets, the growth of foreign production, the rapid rise of rayon and other competition, and the drop in cotton prices and in cotton belt income will be described against the background of cotton men's former "lackadaisical attitude" toward their economic enemies.

In contrast, the speaker will sound a fresh note of optimism born of the cotton belt's determination to unite in the National Cotton Council for an aggressive attack on its common problems. The council's brief history and its organization of state units and county committees, with equal representation for the different cotton interests, will be explained. Finally, the three-fold program of action to build cotton consumption through research, advertising, and removal of trade barriers will be outlined.

Greenies Lose Three Straight; Play Tarboro Tonight

EAGLES BLANK GREENIES 8 - 0

All Ladies Admitted Free In Game Here Tonight

Greenies had a number of scoring opportunities last night, but failed to make them count and was whitewashed by Kingston 8-0 for its third straight loss in as many starts.

"Ladies Night" will be celebrated to top off a game between the Tarboro Goobers and Rube Wilson's Greenies. All ladies will be admitted free as guests of the Greenville club.

Ben Mooney had an off-throw or something and gave up a dozen hits which counted for eight runs. Although Mooney allowed five more hits than Lefty Heath, the opposing hurler, Heath exceeded him in free passes.

Kingston really won the ball game in the fifth when a six-run party having been held scores the first three verses. Four well-executed double plays returned the Greenies' hopes.

A blow to left field was grabbed by Roy Hahn, who threw the ball to Dallas Thornton, catcher, for the prettiest play of the entire game. Ed Black and Harry Jenkins were the only Greenies to get more than one safety. While Dwight Morris, with three for five, featured the Eagles' attack.
