ANGLO-NIPPON NEGOTIATIONS RUN INTO SNAG

Britain Refuses Consider Economic Questions

GENERAL PARLEY MAY BE CALLED

Japan Said to Have Been Told Such Matters Must Be Referred to All Signatories

London, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Great Britain rejected today Japanese demands that economic questions be included in the discussions now going on in Tokyo on the Tientsin dispute between the two powers.

Official circles said that British ambassador, Sir Robert Craigie, had informed the Japanese government of this decision.

Japan was said to have been told that any discussion of economic questions must be referred to all the signatories of the nine-power treaty and other relevant treaties.

The nine-power treaty was signed February 6, 1922, in Washington by the United States, Belgium, the British Empire, China, France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and Portugal.

The signatories undertook among themselves to respect the sovereignty, independence and territorial and administrative integrity of China to maintain the principle of the open door and to refrain from taking advantage of conditions in China in order to seek special rights and privileges which would bridge the right of nationals of friendly states.

There was no statement as to whether the British government might have in mind a general conference of these signatory powers. A government spokesman said it was possible to get the views of the other powers by consultation and that no definite decision had been reached as to what course would be pursued.

The spokesman said considerable progress had been made in the Tokyo talks toward British-Japanese agreement on police patrol in Tientsin—one of the differences which led to the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions.

Ask That Workers Learn of Account

Any wage earner who wants to know the amount of wages credited to his old-age insurance account up to January 1, 1939, may have the information for the asking.

Marshall explained that all wages reported by employers for work done in 1937 and 1938 have now been posted by the Social Security Board to the individual accounts of insured workers.

Marshall declared that all a worker need do to get a wage statement is to obtain from any field office of the board a postcard form, fill it out and send it to the Baltimore office of the Social Security Board.

SIGN CONTRACT ON TVA POWER

New Sales Approximate $100,000 a Month

Washington, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A spokesman said today the Tennessee Valley Authority signed a contract with Commonwealth and Southern Corporation to sell power to Commonwealth and Southern subsidiaries in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina at a total cost of approximately $100,000 a month.

This source said the contract called for two years of service which could be terminated, however, on 18 months notice by either party.

The deal, it was said, would not stand in the way of negotiations now afoot for TVA assistance in the purchase by public bodies of approximately $5,000,000 of Commonwealth and Southern utilities in northern sections of Alabama and Mississippi.

TVA concluded with Commonwealth and Southern only this week a contract for the purchase of its Tennessee utility properties.

Other Washington developments: The AAA announced that wheat farmers will receive benefit payments of 18 to 22 cents a bushel for complying with the 1940 crop control program.

This is from six to 10 cents a bushel less than payments of 28 cents on the 1939 crop. Officials explained that the national wheat acreage allotment of 62,000,000 acres for next year was larger than this year's allotment of 55,000,000 acres thus causing the reduced payments.

The national park service is all set to dedicate the great smoky mountains national park in North Carolina and Tennessee this fall except for one detail.

The detail is the date President Roosevelt says he can be present. Park service officials said today they were delaying setting a definite date pending word from the President.

Confusion Rules In Oil Situation

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Oilfield was head over heels in confusion today after Sinclair, the major buyer which started the avalanche of crude oil price cuts, quit posting its prices in four states without explanation.

The puzzling turn followed the about-face of two independent oil companies which rescinded previous reductions of 20 cents a barrel.

Sinclair Prairie Oil Marketing company issued a cryptic statement at 7 a. m. it "would, until further notice, discontinue posting the price it would pay for crude oil in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas.

Sinclair officials declined comment and observers said they did not understand it.

Oil wells remained shut-down in the four states where Sinclair said it was withdrawing price posting and in Arkansas and Louisiana Sinclair's 20 cent price slash August 10 affected all six states.

Bridge Work to Cost About Three Millions

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The proposed construction of new bridges and highways in North Carolina endorsed yesterday by the Southern Alabama Association would cost about $3,000,000, chief highway engineers said today.

The association went on record as favoring construction of a bridge over the Neuse river and Croatan sound, the bar-surfacing of a road from Englehard to Mann's harbor and the extension of United States Route 64 into Manteo.

FLAYS PAIR ON GRAFT CHARGE

U. S. Attorney Lashes Out at Leche and Weiss

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Assistant United States Attorney General O. John Rogge, charged today in federal court that former Governor Richard Leche of Louisiana and Seymour Weiss, Louisiana political figure, had accepted graft "in one of the most venal single transactions I ever came across."

The federal prospector appeared at a hearing for the removal to Louisiana of Freeman Burford, Dallas independent oil operator charged jointly with Leche and Weiss with violation of the "hot oil" act.

Rogge described the alleged payment of $148,000 by Burford in connection with the piping of oil from the rich Rodessa field in Louisiana into Texas.

"The central fact in this case is that East Texas Refining Company did pay $148,000 to Weiss," said Rogge. "Of that Leche and Weiss each got $67,000. Weiss was high in Louisiana political circles. The two held high official positions. Leche was governor-elect."

They got together and divided $124,000 and the governor-elect took $71,000 bills from Weiss.

"Call it anything you like, commission or anything else, but it was payment of graft. The two most apprehensible persons were Leche and Weiss."

ONE IS KILLED AND TWO HURT IN WAKE STORM

Tornado Hits Near Raleigh Around Noon

LOSS ESTIMATE NOT DETERMINED

Negro Woman Dies as Wind Demolishes Home; Several Rooms Blown Away; Trees Uprooted

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A Negro woman was killed and at least two persons were injured when a small tornado ripped through McCullers at about noon today. McCullers is a small Wake county community 12 miles south of Raleigh.

Dwellings and crops in the locality were damaged, but no estimate of the loss was available immediately.

Sarah Hinnant, 60, was fatally injured when the high winds demolished her tenant house. Neighbors pulled her from the wreckage as quickly as possible, but she died while being taken to a physician.

Her daughter, Annie Florence Smith, was brought to a hospital here with a serious back injury. Her condition was described as somewhat serious.

Purcell Smith, son-in-law of the aged woman, was treated at Piquay Springs for a hip injury.

Several roofs were blown away and trees were uprooted.

Norman Brown, owner of the tenant house in which the woman was killed, described the tornado as a "terrible, roaring wind."

"I heard a terrible roaring sound," he said. "I looked out of the window and saw the air full of tree limbs and debris, rushing my way. It was coming from the direction of Panther Branch, due South."

"I ran into the house. The wind tore the top off my packhouse, but did not damage my home."

Meanwhile, driving rains fell over North Carolina last night and today, causing weather bureau officials here to predict a light flood in the Neuse and possibly other rivers.

H. E. Kichline, Raleigh weather bureau head, said the Neuse probably would leave its banks at Smithfield tomorrow. Data on other rivers will not be available until tonight or tomorrow morning, he added.

Meanwhile here in the 24-hour period ending at 1 p. m., this afternoon, total 1.8 inches, bringing the monthly total to five inches.

In the press conference aboard the Tuscaloosa, President Roosevelt disclosed he had accepted the resignation before leaving Hyde Park.

He said he had sent Roper a letter of regret, thanked him for his willingness to take the post temporarily during the recent visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth of England.

Meanwhile in high good humor, President Roosevelt fished in the Newfoundland waters he last saw as a young man while on a fishing and hunting trip with his brother-in-law, Hal Roosevelt, in 1908.

'Don't Call Me a Liar!' - Starnes

The Dies hearing was thrown in to an uproar when Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader, shouted "A flat lie!" at Rep. Joe Starnes (D-Ala.), shown here retaliating with "Don't call me a liar." Rep. Starnes leaped to his feet and started for Kuhn but policemen intervened and Chairman Martin Dies (D-Tex.) restored order. Starnes had asked if the purpose of Kuhn's organization was not to establish in the United States a government such as that now in power in Germany.

Testifies Immorality Thrives At Bund Camp

Evidence Offered by Former Youth Leader

Washington, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Nineteen-year-old Helen Vooros told the Dies committee today that there was "immorality" in the German-American Bund camp on Long Island, N. Y., and that she quit the bund because "the leaders wouldn't let me alone."

"They planned to attack me," she plump, dark-haired former Bund youth leader added in an almost inaudible voice.

"The immorality of the entire movement appalled me," said Rep. Starnes (D-Ala.) put in, starting a question.

"It disgusted me," she said, cutting Starnes off.

Miss Vooros made these assertions in telling about Camp Siegfried on Long Island. She said the boys and girl's sections of the camp were only 30 feet apart.

"And that caused quite a bit of trouble," she added.

"Parents complained they were too close and that the boys and girls were seen together."

Earlier she said bund leaders attempted to inculcate the campers with the idea that Nazi principles were far superior to "American institutions and ideals."

HIS HONOR WAS NOT IMPRESSED

Omaha, Neb. (AP)—An itinerant magazine salesman, charged with vagrancy, protested to Municipal Judge Perry Wheeler, "I got a legitimate enterprise."

The judge agreed, delivering a three-minute high pressure sales monologue.

"Say," said the salesman in admiration, "you're good. How would you like a job with me?"

Unimpressed by the offer, Judge Wheeler gave the salesman a 10-day sentence, suspended on condition he leave town.

Textile Workers On Strike In S. C.

Columbia, S. C. Aug. 18.—(AP)—Pacific mill's four textile plants were idle today as about 2,000 workers went out on strike, demanding union security and restoration of a 1939 12 and one-half per cent wage cut.

Workers decided to strike at 1:00 a. m. today, an hour after the old contract with the mill management expired.

Heavy picket lines were thrown around the four plants, Granby, Olympia, Richland and Capital City. Except for minor altercations, the strikers were orderly.

Women and men were on picket duty and plans were being formulated to organize shifts of pickets, scheduled for the day. W. R. Harley, state labor commissioner, said he expected to discuss the situation with the management and union officials.

Approximately 1,600 workers filled a vacant lot shortly after midnight and heard S. P. Brewer, Carolina's Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) negotiator, declare that their action was justifiable and urged them to keep a united front.

When the mass meeting adjourned shortly after 2 a. m., the pickets began work and remained at their posts throughout the day.

Women and men were on picket duty and plans were being formulated to organize shifts of pickets.

SAYS GERMANY WELDING TIES WITH HUNGARY

Alliance Proclaimed After Hungarian's Visit

OFFICIAL PRESS ISSUES DENIALS

Foreign Minister Boards Plane for Rome Although Had Intended to Return to Budapest

Munich, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Hungarian foreign minister, Count Stefan Cskay, whose three-day visit provoked German editors to proclaim the welding of close ties with this nation, suddenly boarded a government airplane for Rome here shortly after noon.

It was announced officially that a special plane was used for Count Cskay after he drove here by automobile from Salzburg.

Earlier in Budapest it had been expected Count Cskay would report on his German visit to the Hungarian capital before proceeding to Rome, where he may see Premier Mussolini.

Berlin, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Hungary's foreign minister, Count Cskay left Germany today after a three-day visit which stirred significant speculation and left behind some confusion as to its purpose and results.

D. N. B., official German news agency, circulated a denial that Cskay saw either Adolf Hitler or German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

On the other hand, an authoritative news service observed that Cskay's visit made evident that Hungary and Germany "see complete eye to eye as regards their conception of cooperation politically."

Individual German editors trusted for their reliability by their foreign colleagues, went even further.

They said unreservedly that Hungary now was Germany's comrade in arms and would act with Germany, come what may.

Local correspondents of various foreign news agencies at Salzburg had readily obtained information as to the exact hours of Cskay-Hitler and Cskay-Ribbentrop meetings.

Great Damage

This storm has done great damage to crops in Pitt county, and no doubt the same condition prevails in other counties. Cotton, corn and tobacco crops have suffered immensely. We heard one farmer say that he does not think the fodder can be saved, and the corn also suffered much by being blown down. Tobacco that was set in the field and such as was in the barn curing at the time of the storm is about ruined. The late cotton crop will be cut off. Altogether the damage cannot be estimated, but it is great.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. D. A. WINDHAM

We are considering the temperance lesson with the scripture lesson relating to the fatal night feast of Belshazzar, who was king of the Chaldean empire when at the height of his glory. Babylon, the capital, was perhaps one of the greatest cities of antiquity. It was fifty miles in circumference surrounded by walls 200 royal cubits high by fifty in breadth and entered by 100 gates of solid brass of great size and strength. Around the walls were 250 towers. The city was divided into 626 squares and the homes three or four stories high.

Great in beauty and glory, yet great in intemperance and reveling. Prosperity and wickedness as a rule, go hand in hand.

The Chaldeans were a highly educated people but also they were educated away from God and they plunged into wickedness as any people will when God is left out.

Belshazzar, a wicked ruler of a wicked people, gave a feast to a thousand of his lords and nothing could be expected but a drunken brawl. With revelry and mirth at high tide he sent for the vessels taken from the temple in Jerusalem, and he and the drunken crowd drank wine from them. Such an insult to God was not to go unnoticed, and as a lightning flash a hand appeared and began to write on the wall. Nine cups dropped from wicked hands and a deathlike stillness prevailed as the God of Heaven inscribed his message in letters of fire. Ungodly men of learning are called to read a message whose meaning was hid to all but a prophet of God. From impious eyes the letters guarded close their secret.

The queen, or rather the queen mother, for the queen was already present, entered the room and informed the king of one who could read the writing, one whose God was the God of Heaven; for what God had written his prophet could read and explain.

Into the hall of sin and revelry walked God's prophet indignant at the insult to his God and in words positive and stern, he read the fate of Belshazzar and the whole Chaldean empire.

First of all he told Belshazzar who did the writing and that his sinful conduct had been seen from heaven. He told him the gods whom he had served in that dreadful hour could not save, and the God of Heaven in whom was his very life, he had not glorified. He told him how God had dealt with Nebuchadnezzar and in the face of it all he had not changed his way. A deadlier lesson he was now to learn, but alas he was to learn it too late.

Then to the writing, "Mene" the first word, and repeated for the sake of emphasis, was in Hebrew, a number, and meant that God had numbered his kingdom and finished it. His course was ended and his race was run, and at the very portals the spoiler stood to take his kingdom and divide his land. "Tekel," the smallest of the Hebrew weights that God had weighed him, using the smallest requirement, and he was found too light. With his requirement and possibilities his account was badly in the red. "Upharsin,"

U for the conjunction and phorsin the plural for peres or Persians that God had abandoned him to the Medes and Persians, who at that moment was rushing to the palace to release a stream of royal blood, the impregnable were entered and Babylon like a mighty tower, was ready to fall.

Silently and majestically the prophet turns and walks away—the mystic letters have their meaning now. Verse 30 closes the tragic scene of that fatal night by saying "in that night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain." The sunlight of the next day found in this Chaldean monarch only a robe of purple around a form of clay. This is what the wine cup did for a great empire, and what it did for Chaldea it will do for others. Volumes could be written and the damaging effect of alcohol, and the first good thing is yet to be written. Sam P. Jones said it was good in its place but that place was in hell—but I think the poor devils there have troubles enough of their own without this one added to them. Asylums for the insane and institutions for the feeble minded speak aloud against strong drink. Untimely deaths on our highways add to the

Kill the habit while it is small, for one day it will kill you. Question—How should Sunday school workers aid their pastor?—E. J. M. # WHAT IT MEANS: POLITICAL FORECASTING

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—Now that the men who make political history in the capitol have said all they have to say about 1940 FOR the record, what do they really think about the presidential year ahead—OFF the record?

I have put the question to several key men. I have talked to Democrats and Republicans, pro-Roosevelt men, and anti-Roosevelt men, economy-minded men and spenders.

They all are willing to think out loud for your benefit, so long as I do not give them away. It's too early to be putting definite opinions opposite one's name, especially for men in a position of leadership or loss to it. Early opinions often come home too roost.

But just so you won't be misled, I'm giving you a general focus on the political complexion of these men. That will also give you an idea how much what they say should be discounted, if any.

Furthermore, all bets are off in the event of a World war or similar emergency.

'F. D. R. IS PRACTICAL'

Here, goes — A Republican representative close to the strategists who helped conduct parts of President Roosevelt's program for 1939.

"There's a lot of talk that the President and his conservative opposition in the Democratic party will split the party wide open in 1940. We are not convinced this is true. If it were, of course, that would mean we reason a walk."

"We are well aware that the President is a practical politician. Some people even call him an opportunist. Therefore, he's not going to promote a split unless he thinks the New Deal can win in the long run by such tactics."

"For instance, if the President were to run in 1940 in spite of everything he and the Democratic party could do, he might be tempted to split the Democrats, separating the 'liberal' sheep from the 'conservative' goats, as he would put it, and let us win in the process. Then he could sit back on the sidelines kibitzing for four years, hoping to get the New Deal back into the saddle in 1944."

"For that reason, we're not counting our chickens before they hatch, and the minority will be in there voting solid, holding its lines taut in the next Congress."

'BREACH WILL HEAL'

An economy-minded Democratic representative who fought the President all along the spending line throughout the 1939 session.

"There is a fundamental difference between the President and the old-line Democrats, such as myself, who believe in keeping down government costs on general principles. There's no getting around that."

"But I don't believe the split within the Democratic party is hopeless. I rather look for the breach to be healed before 1940" rolls around. After all, we could support any candidate nominated by the convention, even a third-term Mr. Roosevelt, with perfect logic. We agree with his objectives, but we disagree with his methods.

"Furthermore, remember what Carter Glass said, 'The Democratic party at its worst is better than the Republican party at its best.' I think most all Democrats will come running to the party fold in 1940."

'F. D. R. IN EARNEST'

A DYED-IN-THE-WOOL New Dealer, not a congressman or senator, but a man who knows what the inner Administration strategists are discussing among themselves:

"What the President's opponents in the Democratic party can't seem to get through their heads is that the President is playing political marbles for keeps. He's in dead earnest about his program. He's in dead earnest when he says the Democratic party is a party for true liberals, and must die if it turns in another direction. Several of these conservative Democratic senators who are fighting the President seem to have the idea that this is some sort of a primary campaign, and it'll be kiss and make us next year, and no questions asked. They're going to be surprised."

'CONSERVATIVES WOULD BOLT'

A man close to a purge, one of those Democratic senators the President tried to squeeze out of the Senate last year:

"It all depends on what the Democratic convention does in 1940. If the convention names a man acceptable to some of us the President doesn't seem to like, all well and good. But if the President tries to run for a third term, or tries to put one of his yes-men in the saddle—and succeeds in doing either—it is my considered judgment that this 90 per cent of the conservative element of the Democratic party will bolt. Yes, and most of them will vote the Republican ticket."

A Democratic senator in the economy bloc:

"If the President runs for a third term, he'll split the Democratic party wide open. That's all there is to it; it's happened before that way, and it will happen again."

There you have a fair cross section of opinion in high place. Note the variation of views. Yes, you've guessed it. They are no more sure of what it's all about than you and your neighbor. They argue just as much as you and your neighbor.

And which of these men are closest to being right? That's anybody's guess. But remember that both the Democratic and Republican opponents of the President in the rebellious house this year agree that the Democratic party can't win and make up before disaster occurs, with little harm done to either side. Those opinions look pretty far to the experts who prophesy a great interest in the fate of either party next year.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Rockland county, New York, is a celebrated section of the state, not too far from Manhattan, which includes such nice little towns as Nyack (where Helen Hayes lives), Haverstraw (where Postmaster James A. Farley used to play golf) and Pannock, which is near Spring Valley, where Burgess Meredith has a rambling white cottage. Playwright Maxwell Anderson, author of "High Tor" is a resident nearby, and indeed the whole sector is rich in tradition ranging from the early Dutch sagas, Indian legends, and bustling Hudson river history.

Not long ago Prosecutor Dewey dispatched Dixie Davis, former "mouthpiece" of the Schultz gang, to a Rockland county hideaway, the estate of a friend, and kept him there until needed as a witness in one of his celebrated vice crusade prosecutions.

When word of Dixie's whereabouts became rumored, reporters hastened to Rockland county, chartered a plane, and flew over the estate, hoping to obtain some pictures of the disgraced lawyer and his fiancée, Hope Dare. But Dixie remained in doors, and all approaches to the estate were patrolled by New York police.

This last week Rockland county has been seething with indignation because Dixie and Hope, just married, were reported to be secretly honeymooning in the land of the High Tors. County officials complained so bitterly for weeks before that he made a statement in which he declared that Davis and his bride were no longer in the county. They were, he said, honeymooning in distant and secret pastures. This mollified the county, which breathed a deep sigh of relief. What annoyed Rockland county residents so much was the original excursion of Dixie into its historic precincts. So secret were Dewey's actions that Davis had been there for weeks before word of his presence leaked out. Which was astonishing, when you consider that Rockland county is a place where nobody has any secrets from anybody. Everybody knows everything everyone else does. That a celebrated "figure" in scandalous New York City court proceedings was actually living in their midst was bad enough. But that Mr. Dewey should let Dixie back on a honeymoon, even with Cupid in tow, was simply too much for human feelings to bear. That's why even the milkmen along the twisting country roads of Rockland county had that jittery look.

Over the week-end we were in Connecticut, and while sprawling on the sand our reverie was shattered by 30 or 40 swimmers who suddenly began shouting and swimming in unison to the tune of "Yours for a Song." This means that they were playing "Billy Rose." "Yours for a Song" is the music for those fantastic, beautiful mermaids in the Aquacade at the Fair. Apparently everybody in Connecticut has seen the Aquacade. In any case, a man came down to the beach with one of those pick-me-up-and-take-me-anywhere radios. He turned the dial. The strains of this rhythmic melody came floating out across the salt afternoon, and perfect strangers fell into the mood, formed a gigantic ring-around-the-rosie in the water, and swam to the measured beat of this enchanting refrain.

Five 'Governors' Are Put On The Spot At Banquet

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 17.—Five gubernatorial Tar Heels were stood up against a wall and shot—with a camera—at the banquet of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, and then, in alphabetical order, they were put on the spot in front of a microphone and ordered: "Say something bright and original."

It was a real test of the wit and readiness of tongue possessed by the five who are candidates—presumptive but when it was all over, there was unanimous agreement that each of them is well able to hold his own under pressure.

The five, in order of appearance, were J. M. Broughton, Raleigh attorney; Tom Cooper, mayor of Wilmington; Lieutenant Governor Wilkins Horton; Commissioner of Revenue Allen Maxwell, and Willis Smith, Raleigh attorney and a former Speaker of the state House.

All were given fair warning that anything serious was strictly taboo—and it seems that the warning was somewhat unexpected. Two of them later admitted they had prepared memoranda from which to make what one of them called a "labor speech."

Yet every last one of them got by in good style. Each told at least one joke; each paid brief tribute to the federation and its objectives. Each stayed within the five-minute limit imposed.

Just to prepare readers for a sample of the wit which may be expected from these candidates once they really take to the stump, here's a brief synopsis of their principal jokes:

Broughton: "When we got here, I could see that my friend Wilkins Horton was a bit envious because they put him next to me while Wilkins Smith was between two prospects for votes—but he got over it when he found that one of the two was from Tennessee and the other from Georgia."

Cooper: "I hereby extend to my good friend George Gooze an invitation to address a joint session of the legislature on the third Wednesday in January of 1941, and I also want to invite all you good labor folk to hold your state convention in August, 1941, with me in the governor's mansion."

Maxwell: "I hope I'm not like the candidate for Congress who walked up to a group of men on the courthouse lawn and said to them, 'I presume you know I'm running for Congress,' to which he received the reply, 'Yes, I heard some of the fellows laughing about it.'"

Horton: "I am not going to make any address tonight because if I did I'd probably be like the old Negro preacher who told his white friend he got $15 a year for his sermon; and when the friend said, 'That's damn poor pay,' replied, 'Yes, but it's damn poor preachin', too.'"

Smith: Said he did not want to feel like he did once while speaking at a barbecue. At the start of the speech, which was the fifteenth of about twenty to be made, there was a good crowd on hand, but as the speaking progressed the smell of cooking barbecue began to grow more and more aromatic and the audience began to drift away, one by one until at the end there was just one man left listening. "And when I said to him, 'I certainly appreciate your staying to hear what I had to say,' he came back, 'Don't thank me, I didn't care what you were saying, I'm the next speaker.'"

From these synopses it is apparent that no issues were drawn, no important debate held.

But all five conducted themselves well under fire and gave promise of a real battle of orators if and when they all get into the race for governor.

Thomas F. Clark Co., Inc. New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Richmond.

Carolina labor, at least the A. F. of L. part thereof.

Ronald Hocutt, director of the Highway Safety Division, is elated at success of the safety conference held with truck owners and operators at Greensboro, Tuesday.

He points out, as showing how great a success the affair was, that there were present 61 persons from 23 cities, representing the ownership of 2,881 trucks.

Only fly in the sup is that there were no "one-truck" owners present; but Mr. Hocutt hopes to get plenty of these to a similar conference next year. He said he is thoroughly satisfied with the showing this year, first in which the conference has been attempted.

Representatives were present from trucking concerns in Raleigh, Richmond, Greensboro, Lenoir, Charlotte, High Point, Burlington, Albemarle, Apex, Asheville, Winston-Salem, Washington, Mount Airy, Plymouth, Roanoke Rapids, Shelby, Concord, Gastonia, Tarboro, Franklinville, Broadway, Wilson and Spring Hope.

There may or may not be anything significant in this incident. State Senator Erskine Smith and two friends were talking in the Sir Walter lobby.

"How are you getting on in your race for lieutenant governor?" asked one.

"He has never admitted he's running," broke in the other.

"But he hasn't denied it, either," said the senator himself.

There wasn't one of the four bigwigs of the capitol in Raleigh Wednesday—Governor Hoy is on vacation; Treasurer Charlie Johnson and Auditor George Ross Pou were at the county commissioners' convention at the Ocean Terrace Hotel, Wrightsville Beach, and Secretary of State Thad Eure was attending a national Secretary of States' convention.

Power and Light Company.
Operating independently, the Tide Water's rates have been consistently much higher than those of the state's two largest systems, the Carolina and the Duke—and it is violating no confidence to say that the Carolina probably would be completely unenthusiastic about taking over the Tide Water. There is no other prospective purchaser on the horizon, so far as it is known.

Littlefield, Texas.—(AP)—The city commissioners haven't explained the logic behind their decision, but they have decided only the city firemen are entitled to receive city water free. Hereafter the mayor, commissioners, city attorney, secretary and other officials will have to pay.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, Aug. 17.—Not all the clear, logical thinking is done by highly educated, technically trained professional men or by deep and learned philosophers.

For instance, just try to pick a flaw in this comment of P. M. Taylor, Durham plumber, during a luncheon at the Federation of Labor convention floor.

"If you're working for the government and ain't in politics, you got to get in politics or you soon ain't gonna' to have no job."

State Senator Hatch, please, and put him to work on another "purty" bill.

On the "man bites dog" principle, it's news when a candidate gets a clear from a voter, and so Candidate-Prospective Willis Smith, Raleigh attorney, is hereby recorded as receiving a stogie from Mecklenburg's Jim Vogler in the hotel lobby just prior to the five-star gubernatorial banquet of the State Federation of Labor.

Among the oldest of old-timers attending the labor banquet was C. W. Hollowbush, a vice president of the national musicians' union. "Hollowbush" in calling up a few recollections of bygone days, mentioned the fact that he brought a band into Raleigh back in "Red Shirt" days of 1899.

Judged on a basis of applause, there is no doubt that Dr. Ralph McDonald is still the idol of North

ELECTRIC UNIT WILL BE SOLD

Directors of Tide-water Seeking Buyers

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 16.—Anyone or any group in the market for an electric power and gas system, with trolley-car and bus lines as an adjunct can buy the Tide Water Power Company as well when satisfactory prices and exchanges can be arranged.

Whichever of the Associated General Electric Company, of which the Tide Water is a subsidiary, to meet with the New Haven and Hartford system, as well as of all its other Southern group of properties has been revealed in the annual report of J. I. Mange, president, to the company's stockholders.

This report, according to the August 5 news issue of "Electric World," national power publication, informed stockholders that Associated has informed the Securities and Exchange Commission that it is the policy of the company to dispose of its so-called Southern group of properties as and when satisfactory prices and terms can be arranged.

Sale of the properties would be further compliance with provisions of the utility act by integrating the Associated properties into a closely knit geographic system.

So far as can be learned there isn't any definite proposition for sale of the Tide Water under consideration, although there have been repeated suggestions that it should be consolidated with the Carolina

ROW STARTED BY A PLUMBER

But It Wasn't About His Own Business

By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, Aug. 17.—From the spectator's standpoint most interesting point of the State Federation of Labor convention was reached when a Durham plumber, P. M. Taylor, kicked up the only really fiery exchange of the sessions.

In the midst of a humdrum of banal remarks and reports by various delegates and delegations, a representative of the Charlotte post-office clerks got up and said something of no unusual interest or importance.

But it set a match to the pent up tinder in Mr. Taylor's mind. Up he came with a ringing, bitter denunciation of the postoffice clerks of Durham, in particular, but other places in general, for not affiliating with the State Federation.

"We've got them higher wages," he stormed, "and they won't affiliate with us. If they think they are better than we are and won't affiliate with us, we ought to put 'em down instead of helping them get more pay."

Other delegates attempted to appease Mr. Taylor, but that brought Winston-Salem's Ed Krause, a big lumbering bulk of a fellow, into action.

"We've had more cooperation from the lawyers and the Chamber of Commerce in Winston-Salem than we've had from the postal clerks."

Paul Aman, one-time Tennessee Federation head and now a Southern representative of the A. F. of L., then made a pacifying effort, but that only made Taylor a bit madder. He was on his feet ready to blaze away with both barrels.

At this point President C. A. Fink banged hard with his gavel, declared everybody out of order because "there is no motion before the house" and things dropped back into routine stride.

BET HE WAS GLAD HE WAS COURTEOUS

Louisville, Ky. (AP).—When Traffic Patrolman Luther Carroll tagged a driver for making a left turn, he didn't know the violator was Arthur Grafton, chairman of the city's civil service board.

The arrest might have remained undisclosed except that Grafton, impressed with the officer's courtesy, told of the incident at a meeting of the civil service board. He was "sentenced" to be a pupil at the traffic safety school.

CROP CHECKING HALF FINISHED

AAA Continues Work For Soil Compliances

Raleigh, Aug. 17.—Checking of compliance with Triple-A allotments for 1939 is 62 per cent complete in the state, it was announced today by E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College. Of the 225,470 farms in the state eligible for participation in the crop control and agricultural conservation program, 140,409 have been visited and checked by the 2,031 field supervisors.

The field work has been completed in eight counties, and in one—Tyrrell—the rotometer work by which the field measurements are double-checked, has all been done. The other seven counties which have completed field work are: Johnston, Harnett, Camden, Lincoln, Martin, Tyrrell, Union and Wayne.

Floyd urged that farmers cooperate with the field supervisors in obtaining data on compliance in order that the work may be expedited. "We want to know how many farmers are complying with allotments and how many soil-building practices they plan to carry out, so that future programs may be designed to meet the greatest needs," the AAA officer said.

A complete program for each farm, showing what crops are being controlled and how much, and the extent of agricultural conservation is evolved from the compliance work now being done.

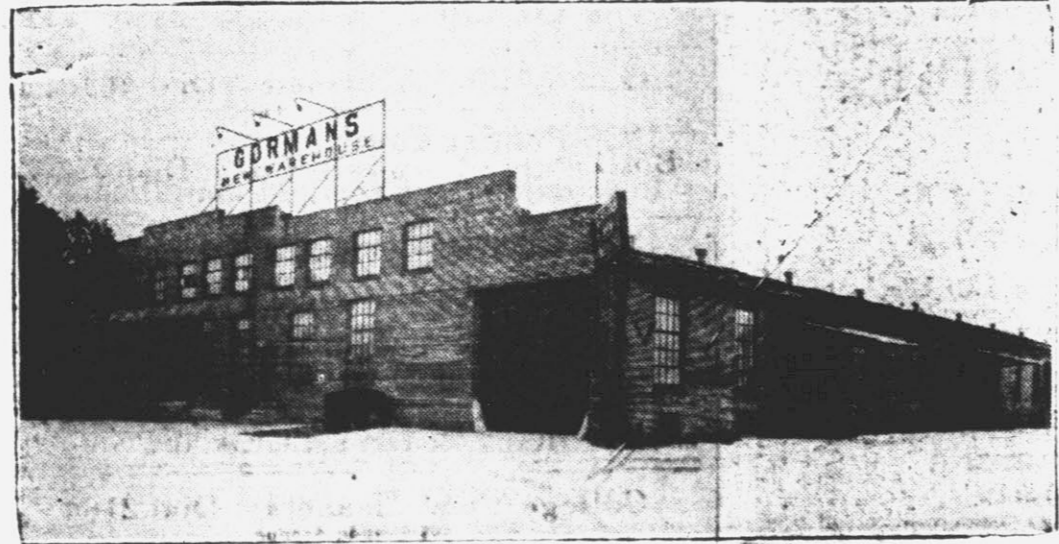

Requisition Asked.
Governor Hoey sent requisition papers yesterday to Governor H. H. Lehman of New-York which said that Willie Sloan was under arrest in New York City and asked his surrender to Guilford county authorities to face a charge of murder.

WILLSON HURLS A NEW TRIUMPH

Bears Play in Guy Smith Stadium at 8 p. m.

Rube Wilson and his boys continued their tearful-leading ways at New Bern last night by jumping on Doc Smith's Bears for a 13-9 triumph in a game that produced 14 safeties for each team.

Greenville will play New Bern in the Guy Smith stadium tonight at 8 o'clock in the last engagement of the season between the Greenies and the Bears. Faculty members and students of East Carolina Teachers College will be guests of the local club at tonight's game.

Morris Wilson did the hurling for the Greenies in the win over New Bern, but his hurling was a bit more effective than that of Helleckson and McMullen, who performed on the job for the Bears.

Greenville jumped to a five-run lead in the opening verse and after New Bern had scored two runs in the first inning the locals held them scoreless the second and third. Meantime the Greenies scored two runs in their second and third innings. A five run party in the eighth put the game on ice.

Gracie Allen collected three hits to feature the local attack. No Bear was able to get more than two hits.

Dairy And Royal Crown Take First Round Play

ST RINGFELLOW WINS HIS GAME

Breaks Up 1-All Deadlock with 450-Foot Homer

There's no telling what that fellow Sid Stringfellow regarded as the best utility man in the Coastal Plain League can do.

Sid was doing the hurling for Kingston's Eagles in a game against Manager Frank Rodgers Wilson Tols last night and things looked pretty tough for Sid and the Eagles when Sid went to bat with the score deadlocked at 1-all in the ninth.

But that didn't last for long. The tobacco-chewing hurler stepped to the plate and connected with one of Frank Bissette's pitches that took a 465-foot journey over the centerfield wall. That was the end of the ball game as far as scoring goes and the Eagles won 2-1.

Virgil Taylor hurled scoreless all until the ninth inning against Goldsboro last night, but Mule Shirley and his boys scored a pair of singletons in the final minutes. However, it was not enough to overcome the five-run lead of D. C. Walker's Snow Hill Billies.

Another game in the league also produced a 5-2 win. Red O'Malley's Williamston Martins took such a verdict over the Tarboro Goobers. Dick Cherry did the hurling for the winners. He allowed ten hits and whiffed as many batters.

Each Scores Second Straight Victory In Series

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

Carolina Dairy 7, Water & Light 5. Royal Crown 15, Tadlock 8.

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Double Cola vs. Gulf. Blount-Harvey vs. Carolina Sales.

Royal Crown and Carolina Dairy last night scored their second successive victories in the first round of the Greenville Softball League play-off and will enter the semi-finals to be started just as soon as the other half of the first round of play is completed.

In eliminating the Water & Light team the Carolina Dairy downed one of the outfits that had been among the leaders all the regular season, while the Dairy had difficulty during the regular play and finished in sixth place after having been near the bottom much of the season.

Tadlock, victim of Royal Crown, finished the season on top, wound up in fifth place. Double Cola vs. Gulf and Blount-Harvey vs. Carolina Sales games will be run off tonight, weather permitting. The contests have been rained out on two occasions and not a single game in the two three-game series has been played, while the other division has completed its series. Royal Crown defeated Tadlock, 15-8, last night, with Pitcher Mosier leading the insurance team in check while also playing a stellar role on the offensive. The hurler got three safeties out of five trips and drove in five runs for his team. He hit a homer and also a three-bagger.

It was A. Bowling, however, who starred at bat. The Tadlock shortstop got four hits out of four trips. May, hurler for Carolina Dairy in its 7-5 win over Water and Light, likewise starred both afield and at the plate. Out of two official trips to the plate, May got two safeties, one of which was a two-bagger. Forbes, however, led the winners at the plate, getting three for three.

Roebuck of the Water and Light had a perfect night at bat, getting three for three. Grady, Brewer and Evans each got two for three for the losers and Cyrus, out of two official trips to the plate, got one, a homer.

The Water and Light boys out-hit the dairy, 13-10, but the dairy-men made the best of their opportunities and cut short several threats by the utilities.

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Bizard

YESTERDAY: Locke sees Cecily at the movies and drops in at the shop the next day to tell her so. He is greatly perturbed when Cecily explains the innocent tie about her fiancé leading to Philip's arrival at Darelle. Later, Cecily prepares for Mrs. Brewster's formal dinner.

Chapter 24

Dinner Party

THE marigolds. The orange marigolds that she had intended to thrust into the sash of her frock. The frock was so plain, she really needed them. And she had forgotten them.

Cecily looked at her wristwatch, lying on the dresser. It was almost seven. The others would be already dressing and in the drawing-room. She had time to slip down the back stairs and out to the garden by the back door.

She picked up the long skirt of her frock and, still in her soft bath slippers, stepped out into the hall. She walked along, her head bent, wondering if she should stick to all-orange or if she could add some of the late pink zinnias.

"Oh, hello! Fancy seeing you here!" Philip, his face as pink as the flowers she had been thinking of, rounded the corner of the corridor leading from the guest parlor to the main house—into the ell where Cecily's and the servants' rooms were.

"Nothing so strange about it, Philip. This is where I live." She was thinking very much about it, except that she was rather in a hurry to get down to the garden and clip her flowers before it was too dark to see what she was cutting.

"As a matter of fact, I was looking for you," Philip said. Cecily looked up, surprised.

"Are you really the domestic little one around here, or are you very good at tending dress?"

"Not a bit," she answered blithely. "Besides, yours appears to be quite perfect. You'll have to think of a better excuse than that, I'm afraid."

Cecily's unintentional shaft struck home. For a brief moment Philip Callen appeared to be more angry than nonplussed.

"I'm afraid that you're prejudiced in my favor," he replied sardonically, recovering quickly. "Are you really?" Cecily said and made no move on.

"I know darned well that you're not... well, if you think I'm a bit of all right, I'll accept your opinion." He turned and went back the way he had come.

Cecily's thoughts almost immediately returned to her task. Before they did, she had a peculiar impression that Philip was very angry with her, not merely annoyed.

When she came into the drawing-room a half-hour later, she found Cecily waiting for her with a shrug. Philip, impeccable, impressive in his tails, was his most urbane self.

The drawing-room seemed to say, "There are all going to a party." There was an air of expectancy about it. There were the same people there, doing the same things, yet there was an atmosphere that filled Cecily with a pleasant sense of anticipation.

A Sapphire Bauble

PERHAPS it's our clothes, she thought. Her eyes moved appreciatively at all of them in turn.

Aunt Olivia in frosty maroon crepe. Reminding her instantly of the mezzanine tier of boxes at the Metropolitan. Look at her and you think of delegations of admirers bringing her roses.

While he held his lighter, first to his own cigarette and then to hers, she thought: He looks very distinguished. Philip does, too. Is it just because it is such precise black-and-white or is there some truth to the saying that a man has to be a gentleman to wear his evening clothes with distinction?

in her cool, clipped voice, coming down the brief flight of stairs.

Cecily was struggling with her coat. She couldn't seem to find the sleeve and Philip was of little use. His hands were clumsy.

"Sorry to keep you all waiting," Tony said. She moved into the drawing-room, swinging her pale chiffons cleanly as though she were cutting through them with her stride.

She went directly to the table and opened a cigarette box. She lit her own cigarette and blew a ring of smoke into the air. "I was looking for a bauble that I wanted to wear with this frock," she said.

"Well, come along, dear. We don't want to be late, Mrs. Brewster is a stickler for punctuality. She said dinner at eight." Olivia was trying to get her party together.

"What kind of a bauble?" Philip said to Tony.

"A sapphire bracelet. It doesn't really matter... only I was quite sure I had seen it there when I got out of my clip this morning."

"You've probably misplaced it," Philip commented.

Tony didn't answer. She swept a deep blue velvet cape over her shoulders.

It wasn't easy getting a party of eight off in two cars. Everyone apparently wanted to be self-sacrificing and ride in the station wagon. Olivia was mildly exasperated and finally managed things her own way to discover that she had forgotten her evening purse when they were ready to start. Philip went back for it.

"It can't be Vickersport!" Cecily murmured to Manuel Fernandez while she stood beside him in front of the hearth in Mrs. Brewster's drawing-room.

Frankly curious, Tony stared after her. "Undoubtedly gone back to tell His Lordship to go easy on the port," she commented.

The ladies had cigarettes, ash-trays having appeared out of thin air. Cecily, blowing smoke slowly, suddenly felt all her party spirit evaporate. She was bored, wishing she was at home, or that she had some knitting to do. Her eye traveled to the ormolu clock on the mantel. Only a half-hour to ten and then, thank goodness, the party would be over. It was so utterly lacking in animation. Her eyes glanced west from chair to chair, to the sofa where her aunt and Lady Rathbone were talking together.

His Lordship came in, bent over to speak to his wife.

"Excuse me," Cecily heard Lady Rathbone murmur. "I must go upstairs. I have asked Cecily to get something for me and he can't find it."

It seemed but a moment later when she reappeared in the doorway, her face white. "Mrs. Brewster, may I speak to you for a moment?"

Mrs. Brewster was saying, "Dear Lady Rathbone, are you quite sure?"

Then Mrs. Brewster, turning back to the room, said in a very clear voice, "Lady Rathbone has lost a valuable pin."

"I haven't lost it! I left it in my jewel box on my bureau. I opened the box before lunch and took out the things that I am wearing. The pin was there then. It is gone now."

Lady Rathbone looked even more grim than when she smiled. Cecily thought, as well she might.

Mrs. Brewster laid her wrinkled hand on Lady Rathbone's arm. "Couldn't it be possible that your sleeve caught in the pin? Let us all look for it. I'm sure we'll find it. Will you describe it for us?"

"It is a sunburst design. There are forty diamonds surrounding a large central stone. There is a safety clasp and I'm quite certain."

Mrs. Brewster interrupted, tactfully suggesting that each of the ladies search an upstairs room. The man had come into the drawing-room and Mrs. Brewster explained the situation to them, assigning them to the downstairs door.

Tony, Gloria and Cecily drew the upstairs hall and the ladies' dressing room.

YESTERDAY: Tony misses a sapphire bracelet she intended to wear to Mrs. Brewster's dinner. Philip thinks she must have mislaid it. The party arrives at Mrs. Brewster's, and meets Lord and Lady Rathbone.

Chapter 25

Diamond Pin

CONVERSATION flowed gently, softly, about the table. Like the red roses clustered richly in the center, above the priceless lace, there was an air of formality about it that was at once impersonal and pleasing.

The American visit of the king, was Honolulu truly the garden spot of the world? The recent biography of an English statesman. Historic vignettes of the past that seemed somehow to be brought up to date in Mrs. Brewster's dining-room. The cultivation of the camellia. Mansions in Natchez. Lady Rathbone must see Mississippi and its beautiful old homes and gardens before returning to England.

Lady Rathbone, with her beautiful, slim neck, her startling way of smiling—showing huge teeth in a grim smile—was definitely of a genre not to appreciate Natchez, Cecily thought.

Mrs. Brewster rose. Her guests followed and, bowing to the gentlemen, she led the ladies back to the drawing-room.

"I'll be darned!" Tony murmured into Cecily's ear. "They're really going to stay to have port and cigars? Do you suppose if I have a cigarette, I'll turn the Brewsters over in their graves?"

Lady Rathbone halted, blocking the girl's way. "Excuse me," she murmured and went back to the dining-room.

Frankly curious, Tony stared after her. "Undoubtedly gone back to tell His Lordship to go easy on the port," she commented.

The ladies had cigarettes, ash-trays having appeared out of thin air. Cecily, blowing smoke slowly, suddenly felt all her party spirit evaporate. Mrs. Brewster interrupted, tactfully suggesting that each of the ladies search an upstairs room. The man had come into the drawing-room and Mrs. Brewster explained the situation to them, assigning them to the downstairs door.

Tony, Gloria and Cecily drew the upstairs hall and the ladies' dressing room.

Gloria closed the door behind her. "Are you wrong, or is the old ad suggesting that her pin has been stolen?"

"Right! Quite right," Tony agreed. "And it looks as though our hostess were pretty much annoyed about it. Which one of us will do the noble thing and confess and get the agony over?"

Cecily was horrified. "She can't drink any of us would steal her pin!"

car, "our hostess certainly handled that to the queen's taste. It looked rather unpleasant for a few minutes. Lady Rathbone was so determined to make it unpleasant!"

Olivia said thoughtfully, "It all seems very strange. Lady Rathbone was certain she had left her pin in her jewel case. She told me it was a family heirloom, in addition to being worth a considerable sum. I don't believe that she would be so ungracious, or so unbalanced in her point of view, to state the case wrongfully."

"On the other hand, Olivia," Helene said reasonably, "Mrs. Brewster was equally certain she had. She knew her guests and she knew her servants. And she had every right to believe that Lady Rathbone was mistaken. Why should we all be disturbed about it?"

"We shouldn't," Olivia agreed. "We've had a very pleasant evening, up to a point, and I suggest that we forget it. It's all quite impossible. Things like that just don't happen in Vickersport. Anyone feel like a little bridge when we get home?"

Tony said softly to Cecily to hear. "I'm glad I didn't give way to my impulse to explore the ladies' dressing room before dinner. I'd be sure to be accused. Would you say I had any of the earmarks of a Raffles?"

"All of them," Cecily retorted obligingly, "even to getting suspicion away from yourself. Didn't you announce before we left that you had missed a sapphire bracelet? That's supposed to be part of the plot."

Tony brought her full glance to bear on Cecily. "So, it is," she said slowly. "So it is. Things like that don't happen in Vickersport! You had missed a sapphire bracelet when we get out."

"Count me out, as a detective. I'm a very good liar," Cecily said. She disliked lady's echo of the unpleasantness. It made her feel as though she wanted to get into a tub of water and wash away the thought of it.

The big house at Darelle looked pleasant, warm, inviting, after the strained atmosphere they had left. The brief charm of the Old World quaintness that Cecily had enjoyed earlier in the evening was dispelled by a ugly suspicion that had invaded it later.

The girls went upstairs to leave their wraps.

Philip and Manuel were already getting out the bridge tables and cards.

When Cecily came downstairs Gloria was saying, "Let's have a little gamey to get the color out of our bones. Could we have high balls, Mother?"

Olivia nodded to Philip who went to the dining-room and returned with a tray of bottles and glasses.

Tony came running downstairs. "I found my bracelet," she announced. "It was lying right on my bed. I can't imagine how I could have been so careless as to leave it there! I'm rather fond of it. It's a nice little piece."

"I told you you'd find it," Philip said, bringing her a glass.

Cecily shuffled the cards. "Now everything is all right," she said. "Shall we cut for partners?"

Nothing Wrong

CECILY opened her eyes like a cat, extending her arms in a rigid movement. Then she lay relaxed. Her eyes felt clear, refreshed, as though the early morning sunshine, warm with crisp edges, were a celestial bath.

Out like a dancer limbering up, then she plunged her arms into the cold water she had poured into the washbowl and splashed it on her face. She dried it hastily, rubbing her skin until it glowed.

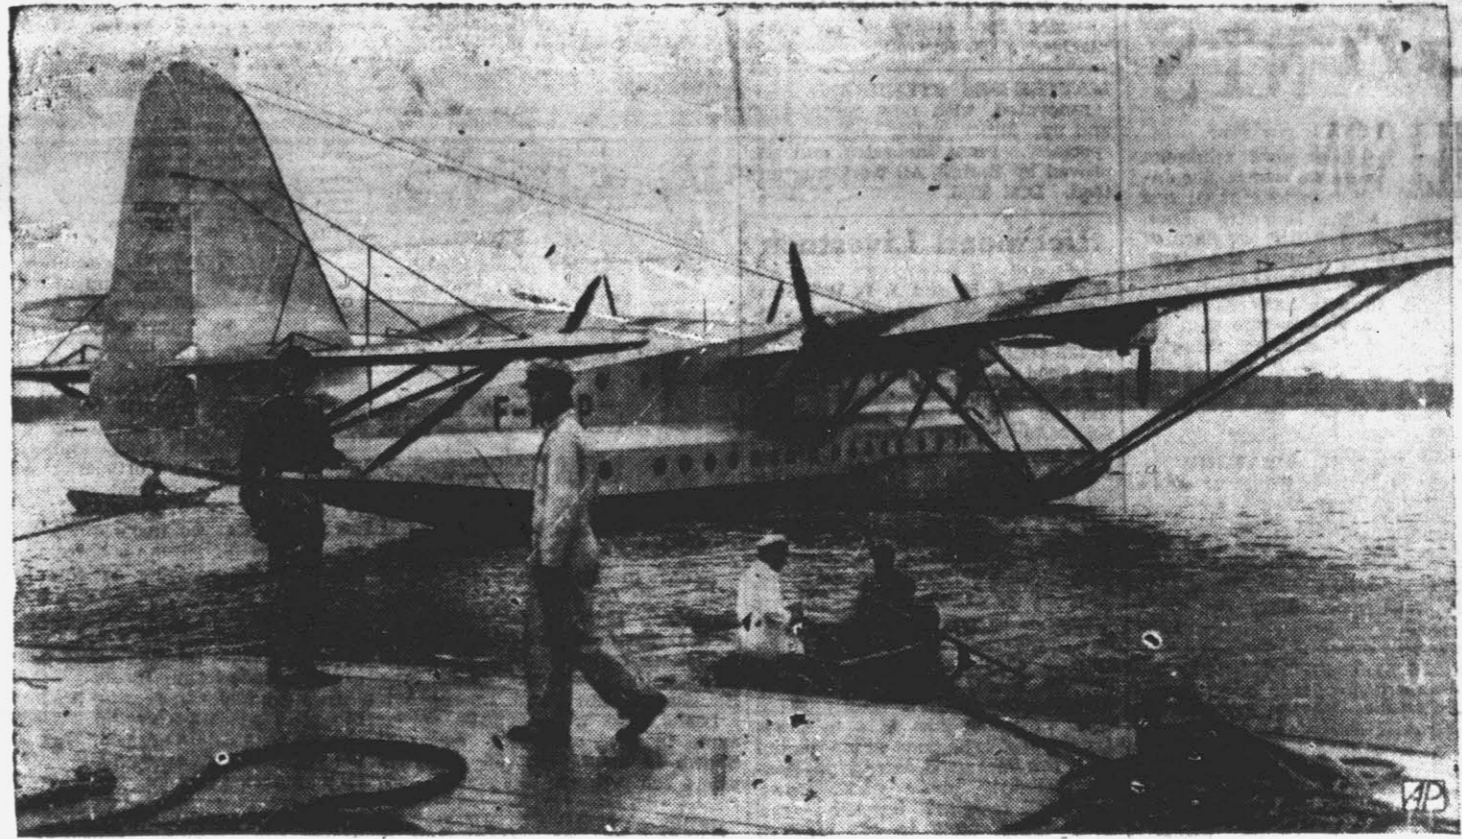

Hunger hastened her as she dressed. I would have made a good pioneer wife, she thought. I like to get up early in the morning. I love the out of doors. I'd get meals on time just because I'm always hungry.

Mrs. Watson was not in the kitchen. Wouldn't be, for an hour. Into a small tin can Cecily poured a glass of thick cream from the crock where it had been left at dawn. Then she went out to the barn and foraged in the hay. She found a half-dozen eggs, still warm, and put them in a paper bag.

With her booty, she struck out the back way toward the beach. In long strides she covered the smooth stones, scrambled up a cliff and struck off through a short-cut toward Cramer's Road.

She was going to give a surprise party to Laura.

Continued tomorrow.

FRANCE JOINS TRANSATLANTIC PARADE—Through the Atlantic's busy air lanes, this French flying boat, Ville de St. Pierre, recently made her way on a survey flight from the Azores to Port Washington, N. Y. Plane carried nine persons.

ried of weeks, the name of Dr. Poe had bobbed up in casual gubernatorial speculation.

For a long time this speculation got practically nowhere beyond the very idle and casual conversation stage, but when this bureau brought the matter into prominence through an article giving Dr. Poe real "dark horse" status, the editorial reaction was such as to make it quite obvious that the editor would be a formidable candidate, indeed if he should ever get round to the point of tossing a hat into the ring.

No less than half a dozen dailies declared unhesitatingly that he is the kind of man thousands and thousands of North Carolinians have been waiting to vote for. As yet, however, it does not appear what interests, if any, would be willing to back this unquestioned personal popularity with the money necessary to conduct a campaign for governor, and without such financial support no campaign can be seriously considered, no matter how colorful and attractive the candidate.

There wasn't anything quite so definite or emphatic about the possibility of Stacy's getting into the battle; but there was definite indication that some forces are interested in testing the Stacy standing with the voters and with those who make a business of getting the voters to see things their way. Then too, there was a Stacy speech which could be interpreted, if so desired, into a direct, stirring bid for the support of school-minded folks—and most North Carolina folks have children enough to be school-minded.

(2) The Franklin Times suggested Lumpkin in a two-column front-page piece which lauded its subject to the skies, but there hasn't yet been time to learn what response, if any, the suggestion will receive. It is unlikely that the article was completely without the Lumpkin knowledge—which would indicate that Willie Lee still has an ear to the ground listening intently for any noise he can interpret as a call from the people.

(3) Many people who ought to know what they are talking about declare that of all the suggested candidates, Commissioner Maxwell holds the key to the size of the field which will eventually go to the post. They contend that if there is ever a formal, honest-to-goodness Maxwell announcement, there will be at least five other candidates and perhaps as many as ten in all. On the other hand, they say, if Maxwell should decide not to run, there will be at most not more than three actual candidates—J. M. Broughton, Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton and Tom Cooper.

Which brings Cooper round for some consideration. He has apparently pre-empted the place as the "anti" candidate and as long as he looms as an almost certain contender, no other so-called "Liberal" or "Anti-Administration" candidate dares get into the swim, fearing that Tom will at least take enough "anti" votes to make it plain suicide for any other of that label.

All of which is calculated toirk aid views and possible plans, there isn't a thing definite or provable to say. So far, there are good grounds for suspecting that the governor will continue as clam-like as he did in the Speakership race. As for McDonald, his recent joking remark that he will be "for the man who is for the people" is about as far as his stand can be classified.

Gubernatorial Campaign Raging On Many Fronts

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—North Carolina's unexcited gubernatorial war, raging on many fronts and under many generals, is getting no simpler fast. In fact, it is rapidly becoming a case of confusion worse confounded, and as the situation stands today anything can—and probably will—happen between now and the time when formal declarations of intention will be definitely in order under the Hoey plan. Nevertheless there have been some recent developments which can be clearly noted, though their full force and effect on the future of the campaign cannot clearly be projected.
