BRITISH TROOPS JOIN FRENCH AT WESTERN FRONT

Special Session of Congress Called for September 21st

WILL ATTEMPT LIFT EMBARGO

Although Proclamation Makes No Mention of Neutrality Act, Chief Executive Had Previously Stated Aim; Leaders of Both Parties Called to Pre-Session Meeting

Washington, Sept. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today called Congress to meet in special session at noon September 21.

Although his proclamation made no mention of the neutrality act, the President had already stated informally he would seek repeal of the arms embargo clause and tried to confine the session to that action.

At the same time he signed the proclamation convening Congress, the President sent telegrams to a group of Democratic and Republican leaders in both Senate and House asking them to meet him the afternoon of September 20 for informal conference in the White House.

The telegrams inviting leaders to the White House conference the day before the session starts went to Vice President Garner, House Speaker Bankhead, Senator Barkley, Democrat leader; Senator McNary, Republican leader; Senator Minton, assistant Democrat leader; Senator Austin, assistant Republican leader; Senator Pittman, the Democratic chairman of the foreign relations committee; Senator Byrnes, (D-S. C.), Representative Rayburn, House Democratic leader, and Representative Martin, House Republican leader.

The President advised these leaders after a careful study of the whole situation he had decided to call a special session.

He expressed the hope that each of them could arrive in Washington a day earlier for the informal meeting with him.

Other Washington developments: The State Department made public a message from Ambassador Anthony Biddle, Jr. in Poland that German air forces were "taking advantage of every opportunity without regard to the danger to the civilian population which may be involved."

The telegram, dated September 8, added, "It is also evident that the German bombers are releasing the bombs they carry even when they are in doubt as to the identity of their objectives."

President Roosevelt appeared assured of majority support within the Senate Foreign Relations committee for some form of his proposal to permit the sale of arms to belligerent nations.

In a letter to an unnamed constituent, Senator Van Nuys (D-Calif.) announced he would support the "cash and carry" plan for arms sale if it were properly safeguarded.

Tyrell's Auditor Reported Missing

Columbus, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—No word has been heard from Milton A. Davenport, Tyrell county auditor, since he left here on Wednesday, August 30, on a brief pleasure trip, and George Jones has been appointed temporary auditor by the county commissioners until the matter is cleared up, it was revealed here today.

Davenport left here with the intention of spending a few days at Ocean View, Va., fishing, and then attending the New York World's Fair, it was said. He was expected home September 10, but he did not arrive and his wife and family have not heard from him since he left here two weeks ago.

There has been no reports here of any shortage in Davenport's accounts, although an audit ordered two or three months ago by the commissioners is expected to be made shortly.

Regular Meeting For Patrolmen Tomorrow

Lieut. Lester Jones, who heads the eastern division of the State Highway Patrol, headquarters of which are located in Greenville, said today that a regular troop meeting for the division would be held in the patrol office tomorrow morning.

Forty-two patrolmen are expected to be in attendance. New recruits who have been working in the division for several days are expected to be assigned to permanent stations tomorrow.

Great Britain and France Reported In Full Accord

WARSAW RESISTING SEVERE NAZI DRIVE

Warsaw, Sept. 13.—(AP)—(Polish Telegraph Agency via Stockholm)—The army and the civilian population of Warsaw are repelling with an incompatible heroism the concentric attacks of overwhelming enemy forces. Anti-aircraft artillery dispersed German bombers who attacked the city yesterday 14 times. A German tank which succeeded in penetrating one of Warsaw's suburbs was captured and was disarmed by the civilian defenders, mostly women and children. The Warsaw radio station is working as usual. The radio listeners are greatly amused by the announcement broadcast by the German radio stating that "because of strategic reasons the German army was compelled to withdraw from Warsaw."

Parliament Advised By Prime Minister Chamberlain That There Can Be No Peace Until Menace Of Hitlerism Has Been Finally Removed; Official War Report Made

London, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The British government advised Parliament today that both Great Britain and France were convinced that "there can be no peace until the menace of Hitlerism has been finally removed."

The allies' stand was contained in a joint statement read in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Chamberlain and in the House of Lords by Earl Stanhope, lord president of the council, in the government's second report on the war.

Referring to yesterday's meeting of the supreme war council in France, which Chamberlain attended, the statement said:

"I am glad to be able to assure the House that it is evident that public opinion on the two sides of the channel is completely in accord."

Further meetings of the supreme war council will be held "when necessary," it was said.

Reviewing the military operations so far, the statement said:

1—Germany so far has directed most of her activities against Poland, but she has been "frustrated" by the "indomitable spirit of the Poles."

2—On the western front, France has begun a "methodical advance" which has been "completely successful."

3—British troops are in France but have not gone into action yet. (French military dispatches received in Paris shortly before the British Parliament met said a "great number of well-equipped troops are participating in combat.")

4—The Royal Air Force already has a number of squadrons operating from French soil.

5—The British merchant fleet has suffered "some what severe" losses as the result of German submarine attacks, but "submarines are constantly being attacked" and "successes have been achieved."

6—The British fleet has been joined by three Polish destroyers which "prove to be very efficient and were taking part in the strenuous life of our light forces."

7—Practically all German shipping has been cleared off the high seas.

Mrs. Emma Willis Claimed by Death

Mrs. Emma Gaskins Willis, 38, of near Ernul in Craven county died this morning at 6:15 o'clock after two years of declining health. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home by her pastor, the Rev. Bruce Barrow of Macedonia Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will follow in the family cemetery near the home.

Mrs. Gaskins is survived by her husband, Ledrew Willis; two daughters, Mrs. George Toler of Ernul and Miss Audrey Willis of the home; one son, James Willis of the home; her mother, Mrs. Maggie Gaskins of Ernul; two sisters, Mrs. Joe Vendrix and Mrs. W. A. Clark; two brothers, L. C. and E. C. Gaskins, all of Vanceboro.

Active pallbearers will be Clyde Spruill, John Smith, D. W. Whitford, George Ippock, George Smith and Cliff Miller.

Membership Drive Is Started by Council

A membership drive for the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was launched today by Stokes Council No. 59 and will continue through December 1.

The council has been divided into two teams of 18 members each, one of which is headed by H. O. Warren, councillor, and W. R. Tripp, vice councillor.

It was explained that the team having the most new members at the end of the drive will entertain the other at a dinner. There will be a special speaker for the occasion, it was announced.

Ravaged Warsaw Holds Out Against Germans

In spite of terrific and unrelenting German bombardment by land and air, shattered Warsaw, the Polish capital, continued to hold out against the great armies of the Nazi invaders. Poles' soldiers were joined by women and children in battling the enemy in last-ditch defense lines around the city. Framed by a hole in a wall blasted by a bomb, this cablephoto shows workmen clearing away debris in the center of Warsaw.

Berlin Claims Armed Ring Around Warsaw Tightening

JINX FOLLOWS SUNKEN CRAFT

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Another "13th" jinx struck the salvage crew working on the United States submarine Squalus today and the stern of the flooded submarine sank to the bottom again after the craft had been raised entirely to the surface for the first time.

The bow of the Squalus rose into the air shortly before 9 a. m. with tons of water streaming from her conning tower and superstructure. This was the first time this part of the craft had been above the surface since she sank 113 days ago with a loss of 26 lives.

Just as it appeared the weary salvage crew was victorious, however, the stern began to sink under the tremendous weight of water pushed into the stern compartments when the bow lifted.

Prices Declining On Middle Marts

Raleigh, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Prices apparently seized a bit on North Carolina's nine Middle Belt tobacco markets today as auctioneers succeeded in selling warehouse floors before an indefinite holiday which would be observed at 5 p. m.

Unofficial reports indicated an average of around 14 cents a pound would prevail, as compared with 15 cents at the opening Monday. The indicated average is a decline of about eight cents a pound from the opening prices last year.

On the Durham market, the largest in the belt, 800,000 pounds were on the floors and officials said all would be cleared by the deadline. Indications were about 1,200,000 pounds would be sold on the Durham market for slightly less than $500,000 during the three-day selling period. Yesterday 1,177,085 pounds went at an average of 13.42 cents a pound. First prices today gave hope for a 14 cents average.

None of the Middle Belt markets have accepted any new offerings this week and it was clear what already was on the floors that the centers were allowed an extra day of marketing. All other markets in the Carolinas closed yesterday.

SIX NEW CASES READY FOR FRIDAY'S SESSION

Six new cases had been docketed today for the regular Friday morning session of City Recorder's court. William Rodman and Willy Price, Negroes, were booked on charges of assault on a female, Robert Hadcock, white, was jailed on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. John Green and Otto Hunter will be tried on minor charges brought against them earlier in the week.

Also Reports Resistance at Radom Weakening

Berlin, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The German high command today reported a rapid thrust deep into southeastern Poland, tightening of a "vice" closing on Warsaw and the wiping out of Polish resistance near Radom. The high command communique told of the capture of an "enormous number" of prisoners in the Radom sector, about 60 miles south of Warsaw.

The communique gave this German picture of the rapidly shifting Polish campaign:

"Strong forces" east of Warsaw pushed doggedly southward in an effort to complete a circle around the Polish capital.

Five Polish divisions and two cavalry brigades in a pocket about Lodz, the third front, continued stubborn resistance against the Germans slowly closing in. The Poles have been fighting bitterly for three days to edge themselves out of the trap.

Further southeast, German vanguards reached Lwow, capital of the Polish Ukraine, while the main body of troops in that region took two towns, both west of Lwow in the Carpathian foothills.

The advancing Germans, fighting through the valleys, are attempting to reach the Rumanian frontier and cut off Poland's southeastern outlet.

The German circle around Warsaw has not been completely closed, but troop detachments seemed to be in the position to join each other. The forces east of the capital have had the toughest struggle.

Warsaw remained in the hands of Polish troops after a night of bitter fighting.

Waging Campaign On Scrap Dealers

A group of Revenue Department deputies today started a drive on unlicensed dealers in scrap tobacco and it was officially reported that a number of persons had been arrested in this vicinity.

A $250 license fee is required of persons going by truck from house to house buying the scrap and a $500 fee is required of redrying plants handling scrap. All of those arrested were believed to have been persons going about the county buying the scrap. Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell sent out the deputies after receiving reports that scrap was being purchased in large quantities by persons without licenses.

ACT OUTLINED FOR FARMERS

Over 100 Attend Farm Bureau Meet in Pitt

Representatives of the State Revenue Department last night explained the scrap tobacco law to over 100 farmers attending a Farm Bureau meeting and warned that they were prepared to go ahead with plans to check violators of the act.

It was pointed out that in the last few days a tremendous quantity of scrap tobacco has been moving to markets in the middle border belt and that much good tobacco was being sold as scrap at a great loss to the landowner.

E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the State Farm Bureau Federation, addressed the farmers relative to the present tobacco situation and told them to go forward with their new membership drive.

A group of men working under the supervision of the Revenue Department are actively engaged in patrolling the flue-cured tobacco territory to stop unlawful buying and selling of scrap tobacco, it was disclosed at the meeting. The scrap tobacco law provides a tax on scrap or untied tobacco.

G. E. Trevathan, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, presided over the meeting. Farmers in attendance adopted a resolution expressing appreciation to the tobacco buying companies for holding prices to Monday and Tuesday in face of the crisis which resulted in closing the warehouses.

Dr. Meadows Sued In Slander Case

A civil suit was filed in Pitt Superior court yesterday in behalf of Rirttrum G. Bateman, alleging that Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers College, made slanderous remarks which injured the plaintiff in his profession of teaching.

The suit asks $5,000 punitive and $5,000 actual damages. The complaint alleges that while Bateman and others were engaged in painting at the college, Dr. Meadows and C. A. Hough came upon them, supposedly for Hough to interview Bateman regarding a position as teacher, that Dr. Meadows accused Bateman and the others engaged in painting with gambling and advised Hough that he could not then recommend Bateman for the position.

The complaint further alleges that as a result the plaintiff's reputation had been injured and had caused him to be treated distantly by his associates and held in contempt by them.

Participate In Assaults Carried Out On Nazi Line

French Tanks and Armored Cars Reported to Have Reached Outskirts Of Saarbruecken; German Counter-Attack in Warndt Forests Said to Have Been Repulsed

Paris, Sept. 13.—(AP)—British troops were reported in French military dispatches this afternoon to have entered action with the French against the Germans on the western front for the first time in the 1939 European war.

French advices said a "great number of well-equipped troops are participating in combat."

This news was displayed prominently by Paris evening newspapers.

Creation of a Polish army in France was under way with recruiting offices open throughout the country to receive Polish volunteers.

French infantrymen were reported in dispatches reaching Paris as continuing to edge forward in German territory toward the Siegfried line at several points along the 100-mile front between the Rhine and Moselle rivers.

While rival fliers clashed in the air and the big guns of both sides pounded enemy territory, military advices said French forces east of Saarbruecken had made a "substantial" advance.

Fleet French tanks and armored cars earlier were reported to have reached the outskirts of Saarbruecken, railroad junction and industrial heart of the rich Saar basin, yesterday, and to have thrust immediately into the suburbs.

In the Warndt forest west of Saarbruecken, where the Germans have been counter-attacking, the French said they still held two-thirds of the woods and the situation was unchanged since they first advanced.

Military observers commented that in the second week of operations the campaign nevertheless still remained in the preliminary stage with a major offensive believed foreshadowed by yesterday's first meeting of the allied supreme war council not yet in evidence.

Concentration of armies was reported continuing on a large scale with the landing of the first British expeditionary force said to have been completed.

Following this morning's war ministry communique, which announced "great activity" yesterday by the air forces of both sides, French reports said sky skirmishes were continuing today.

Expects Delegation Ask For New Road

Raleigh, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Chairman Frank L. Dunlap said today he expected a delegation from Tyrell, Hyde and Pasquotank counties to appear before the Highway and Public Works Commission tomorrow to ask for an all-weather surface on the road between Swan Quarter and Columbia.

A similar delegation recently conferred with Governor Hoy on the matter and he referred them to the commission.

FILES OF BRIGHTS New Rows of Them Every Day

Leaves are leaving. Greenville is stuck up now. The first bale of new cotton sold in Greenville this season was purchased at 55-8 cents. It graded middling.

The tobacco market had a block sale Tuesday. There was so much tobacco here that an entire warehouse full had to be left over until this morning. The houses had big breaks again today.

Mrs. J. S. Norman and child left this morning to visit relatives at Parmele.

Little Mary Lucy Dupree went to Kinston Tuesday evening to visit friends.

Jenkins Reunion.
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jenkins were hosts last Sunday at their country home, "Sandy Knoll," to their children and their families and other relatives and friends. The home was decorated throughout with late summer flowers.

The guests began arriving early and the morning hours were spent in recalling pleasant memories. A dinner consisting of barbecue, pickles, slaw, fried chicken, bread, sandwiches, cake and iced tea was served buffet style.

After dinner, the guests assembled on the lawn where several pictures were taken.

Those enjoying the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were: Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jenkins and daughter, Margaret Simms, of Jefferson City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Berry Jenkins and daughter, Joy, of Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, Jr., and children, Billy and Barbara Lena, of Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. James Allen and children, Virginia Lee, James, Kirby and Joe Jenkins, of Red Oak, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pollard and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tyson and son, Joseph, of Red Oak, and Misses Bebe and Pattie Jenkins, of the home place.

Other relatives were: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Powell and grandson, Billy, of Wilson; Mrs. E. G. Powell, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Cavanaugh and daughter, of Raleigh; Mr. Sid Jenkins, of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith and Jimmie Sutton, of Winterville; Mrs. Louella Stancill and son, L. T. Jr., of Winterville; and Mrs. L. B. White, of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, mother of Mrs. Donald Jenkins.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Edwards and daughter, Alice Leota, were also present. Little Alice Leota is the only great-grandchild in the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Brown called during the afternoon.

Bargain Offered Thief.
Eastland, Texas.—Cecil Lotief will meet anyone half way. When a thief took several dozen sheets and pillow cases from his automobile, he offered to allow anyone returning the merchandise to keep half the lot. Furthermore, Lotief said he would treat the thief to a breakfast of ham and eggs.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

There's a hint of the fashions of 1912 in the hat this chic New Yorker wears to cocktails. Its black crown is circled with a fuchsia pink plume dyed to match the stripes that band the sleek black satin jacket worn with a plain black satin skirt. A gold bead necklace and bracelet and an "envelope" watch whose diamond-studded flap raises to show the face, make smart accents.

WHAT IT MEANS: War Strategy Today Favors Nazis But Long-Run Odds Are With Allies

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington. — The immediate strategic advantage in the European war strongly favors German arms.

The long-range advantage favors the Franco-British alliance.

That's the crisp appraisal of the American experts who are following the minute-to-minute tactics through the eyes of American military attaches stationed in European capitals. As for the immediate advantage, their conclusion springs from three important facts:

1—Germany is almost entirely surrounded by neutral states, which act as buffers against attack.

2—As most strategists agree, general war in Europe should be accompanied by tremendous aerial bombardment to clear the way for ground troops and artillery, and to demoralize the enemy's communications and supplies.

WORLD CENSURE

But the belligerent who starts that kind of warfare would be indicted by world public opinion and convicted of barbarism, simply because that kind of warfare would kill innocent women and children, however necessary it might be to strategy. Therefore, it is hard for the allies to start the fireworks.

Both sides are aware of this, especially the Germans, who are feigning and jockeying in the air, trying to trick the other fellow into striking the first barbarous blow.

3—The British and French have before them the prospect of a costly attack against Germany's strong west wall, with the great cost in supplies and men that such attacks entail.

Only two spots for attack appeal quickly to strategists. Those are around Metz, where almost level land, and the absence of a river crossing, favor the allies; and just southeast of Belfort, on the Swiss border—a spot also favored with a convenient mountain pass, and uncut by a protecting river. And those are the points where the French army is active.

So much for the immediate advantage.

ALLIES ADVANTAGES

The British and French have the long-range advantage because (1) they have superior wealth and manpower, (2) their strong fleets control the seas, and (3) they apparently have the sympathy of most democratic nations.

They are, therefore, using their fleets to set up a blockade against Germany.

Meanwhile, the core of the war is still in Poland.

Entirely apart from Hitler's announced anxiety to win back Danzig and the Polish Corridor, he has Poland, in a military sense, with her back to the so-far neutral Soviet Russia.

And how is the German army using this advantage?

First, it is creating a main line, anchored against the German border about opposite Breslau, and extending southeastward across Silesia.

Second, another line, also anchored on the German border—somewhere in the neighborhood of Schneidmuhl, extends eastward into Poland.

SWINGING GATE

That gives the Germans two long lines that they can use much as a farmer uses the double gate into a corn pasture. The ends of the gates, hinged on and supplied from the German border, can remain stationary, and the two ends swing far out into Poland can be brought toward each other to swing together, finally, on Warsaw.

If the Germans are successful, they will force the Poles out of western Poland.

Polish tactics at the start are to keep the gates from closing. They are concentrating on the lower gate around Krakow. If they could outflank the Germans marching northward, the whole German drive might have to be held up. The line would be in danger of being bent double. Then its supplies would be cut off.

As the strategists here see it, however, the Poles can hardly hope to prevent the gate from closing in the long run.

that the state average tax payment came down $4.58 while the national average was dropping only $1.58 in the same period.

Getting down to the figures themselves, they show that in 1937 the average of automotive taxes per motor vehicle (including state and federal taxes) in North Carolina amounted to $70.57, with a drop to $65.99 in 1938. These figures compared with a national average of $49.72 in 1937 and $48.14 in 1938.

The state's taxes amounted to more than five times those imposed by Federal government and were made up for the most part by the gasoline gallonage tax, which is 6 cents in North Carolina. Principal item of decrease came in a reduction in the average registration and tag fee total, a result which followed action of the 1937 Assembly in making general cuts in tag prices.

Despite the reduction the average North Carolina motor vehicle was levied upon to the extent of $56.79 in 1938, against like taxes of $59.55 in 1937.

The $56.79 total was made up of $43.37 in gasoline taxes and $13.42 in other state taxes such as registration and tag fees. This total, of course, does not include the ad valorem tax which is paid to the county by each automobile owner and which amounts to a pretty sum in almost every case. Only state and Federal taxes were considered in the figures, however.

The average Federal gasoline tax on each North Carolina motor vehicle amounted to $6.22 in 1938, while a total of all Federal taxes came to $9.20 on the average. Other Federal taxes include levies on automobile truck chassis and bodies, parts and accessories, tires and inner tubes.

The grand total Federal and state, came to $49.59 in gasoline taxes and $65.99 for all taxes, including gasoline.

In 1937 North Carolina, third from the top, with only the automobile owners of Louisiana and Florida paying more; but in 1938, Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi had passed this state also.

Figures for the six leaders for the two years, total of state and federal taxes, follows:

	1938	1937
1. Florida	$78.83	$78.98
2. Mississippi	75.96	67.47
3. Louisiana	75.30	74.78
4. Alabama	68.59	67.70
5. Arkansas	68.04	67.74
6. North Carolina	65.99	70.57

Propaganda Air Raids Cross Atlantic

Broadcasts Recall Tales of 1914

By JACK STINNETT
AP Feature Service Writer

New York.—The war of guns is 3,000 miles away, but the war of propaganda is no further away than the dial on your short-wave receiver.

In a barrage of English, French, Polish and German, the nations at war are bombarding each other and the world with all the big guns of propaganda: claims and counter-claims, lies, charges of atrocity, fantastic tales of the brutality and greed of enemy leaders.

"The barbarous Poles are hacking out eyes and tongues and chopping off fingers of German aviators who parachute down from crippled planes!"

"The Germans bombed a little church, seriously wounding the priest who was saying mass!"

"The English themselves torpedoed the Athenia to gain sympathy for themselves and hatred for the Germans!"

"Polish aviators bomb a plainly marked Red Cross hospital!"

That's just a sample of what you might have plucked from the air had you listened to the powerful stations of England and Europe as the propaganda war got under way.

24 Hours a Day

In the early days of the war, National Broadcasting Company engineers kept six short-wave receivers tuned constantly on Warsaw, Berlin,

Paris and Daventry, England.

A staff of seven translators recorded the broadcasts and translated them.

But as fact and rumor gave way to propaganda, the hourly monitoring was abandoned and the staff placed on call to take care of broadcasts of special importance.

NBC officials say these broadcasts can be picked up nearly anywhere in the United States by good sets capable of receiving short wave. Irregularity of broadcast times and changes of frequency (to prevent the enemy from counteracting with short-wave blackouts) offer a tuning problem.

Also, the stations are likely to close down in the middle of a sentence without so much as an au revoir. The short-wave transmitters, say NBC engineers, offer a perfect "beacon" for enemy airplanes. This was given also as the reason ships of the warring nations at sea do not use their transmitters except in cases of emergency.

A "Refinement"

The propaganda war in the air, radio officials say, is just gathering momentum. One "refinement" already has been reported. The Germans employed an Englishman with an Oxford accent to make broadcasts to North America. Spread of this practice, with the changed frequencies and announcement of false call signals, will make it impossible for Americans to tell to what station or what country they are listening.

Meanwhile, they can flip their dials and get something similar to the following translated excerpts from German and Poland, where the propaganda war has been hottest:

Germany—"France delayed for six hours getting into the war because she realized with painful clarity that she would be fighting for the maintenance of British imperialism."

There are so many Germans eager to volunteer in the German army, recruiting officers were forced to refuse all applications for the time being. Potential volunteers are asked to be patient.

"Isn't it significant that within six hours after Winston Churchill, the notorious German-baiter, entered the cabinet, the Athenia was sunk?"

Poland—"Germans destroyed the relic of the Holy Virgin in the Catholic shrine in Czesochowa. . . . The sudden and unexpected victory of the French on the western front has thrown Germany into a panic. . . . There has been no resistance to British air-raiders, demonstrating the Germans are well aware of the superiority of allied aviation."

"The Germans are dropping Polish-uniformed soldiers in parachutes back of the Polish lines. . . . The Germans tried to murder the American ambassador and his family. . . . The Nazis are retreating in disorder before crack Polish troops."

That's the way the propaganda war in the air is waged.

Average Motorists-Tax Burden Slightly Lowered

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Sept. 13 — The average North Carolina motorist's tax burden was lowered slightly from 1937 to 1938, according to figures compiled by the U. S. Department of Public Roads and the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Despite this reduction, however, he paid more in taxes than his fellow motorist in all other states but five. Even this was some improvement because in 1937 there were only two states in the Union where average automotive taxes per motor vehicle exceeded those paid by Tar Heels.

Besides that, the North Carolinian paid about $17.50 more per year than the national average; though in this respect there was some comfort to be derived from the fact

This picture, which passed the censor in Berlin and came to the United States by radio, bore a caption which said German soldiers somewhere on the Polish battle front are shown examining the wreckage of a Polish plane shot down by Nazi invaders.

Germans Use Boats To Cross River In Poland

This radiophoto from Berlin shows German soldiers taking to a boat to cross a river somewhere in war-torn Poland. Major objective to the German drive in Poland is Warsaw, which already has been evacuated by government officials.

German Residents Of Poland Greet Invaders

This picture, made "somewhere" in Poland and sent to the United States by radio, shows German residents of a Polish village lining the road to greet the invading German army. Bitter fighting continued along many fronts near the Polish-German border.

What Will The Balkans Do?

The map shows rail connections and waterways for such supplies. Watch news events for answers to these important questions:

Can Britain and France go through Rumania (presumably friendly to them) to aid Poland?

Can Russia send supplies down to Odessa, thence via the Black sea, route from Russia to Germany (via the Baltic is not navigable during the winter).

Point 3—Britain is attempting to keep Germany from receiving any supplies from across the sea.

Conclusion—What the Balkans do about supplying Germany, or letting supplies pass through them, will be of vital importance in the war.

TIME TO ACT

President Roosevelt has called a special session of Congress to consider revision of the neutrality act, and it is to be hoped that no time will be lost in enacting the necessary changes or repealing the measure altogether.

We may try to pass laws that will isolate us from what is going on in the outside world, but the closing of the tobacco markets this week because the British government ordered all British companies to retire from the tobacco markets has brought home to the people in this section the fact that the war does affect us directly and vitally.

We do not believe that there is a single American citizen who wants the United States to become involved in the present European conflict, but it goes without saying that our sympathies are with those nations now engaged against Herr Hitler, and upon the success of this fight of the democracies against the dictators rests the ultimate safety of our nation.

Under our present neutrality act we are prohibited from selling materials of war (and most any commodity during time of conflict is war material), to any of the belligerents which in the case of the present war directly hurts the cause of England, France, and their allies, in view of the fact that Germany purchases practically no materials of any kind from this country and because of the British blockade would have no chance to do so even if she wanted to buy from us.

A removal of our present embargo on sales to our friends across the ocean would greatly increase their chances for a more successful completion of their unpleasant task of crushing Hitler's Nazism, and it seems to us that we would much prefer to give this type of aid now than to have to give our manpower later to assure victory for the democracies.

New Bern, Sept. 13.—A large attendance of former members of Battery A, New Bern's war-time Battery in the 113th Field Artillery, is expected here Friday for the third annual reunion at the country club. Barbecue and a Dutch dinner will be served. The program will be informal.

When War Comes

Average Man's Life Is Changed In Lots Of Little Ways

By The AP Feature Service

To the man in the street, war at first isn't a matter of big guns and air raids and people getting killed. Before the war ends, his home may be wrecked and his children killed. But first at first...

He and his family take gas masks when going for a ride. This is in France...

Neither he nor anyone else can ride far because of troop trains. This one is German...

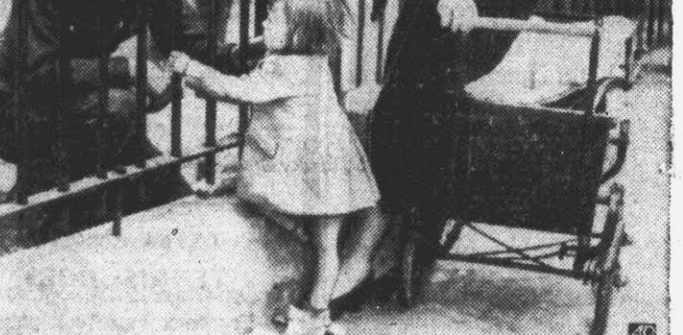

Auto lights get blinkers...

His gasoline is rationed...

Electric signs are hooded... There's writing on walls...

And, finally, a barrack fence separates him from his family.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, Sept. 13.—President Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina has got around to denying that he intends to be a candidate for the Governorship of North Carolina—a denial which of course was made by him only because he was specifically asked by newspapermen what his intentions are.

This correspondent was the first to put the Graham name into gubernatorial consideration, but in the putting it was then and there stated to be a purported effort by Ralph McDonald to get Graham to run: "The whole scheme will go to pot because President Graham very likely hasn't any more idea of running for Governor than he has of accepting the presidency of the Liberty League."

By the way, aren't there supposed to be some half a dozen or only slightly fewer, unannounced candidates for the Governorship? Where have they been lately? Like the officers they've been "down in deep dugouts" when it comes to expressing any opinion on any controversial subject, fearing that they, like the privates of musical fame, might get "up to their necks, etc."

Incidentally, the Miss Lancaster who was elected vice-president of the Y.D.'s is a former secretary to Senator Lumpkin. Reports from Charlotte are that it was really intriguing to see Governor Hoy's Secretary Bob Thompson, Raleigh's Tom Banks (a Sandy Graham supporter in 1936) and Ralph McDonald himself all lobbying and working actively for her candidacy.

from incomplete records in the Highway Safety Division. Through the twelfth there had been definitely reported and established 74 deaths as compared with 84 last year; but there were still others sure to come in before the books are closed.

Jim Volger, Mecklenburg representative and executive head of the independent food dealers of the county, denies vigorously that his traveling from one end of Tar Heel to the other means that he is going to run for any statewide office next year.

Willie Lee Lumpkin, State Senator from Franklin and a leader of the so-called Liberal group in the legislature, couldn't get to Charlotte for the Young Democrats convention because he was busy in court all last week.

He doesn't mind indicating that he will try again for his House seat.

It was even more intriguing to see Mrs. J. B. Spilman, who headed the Hoey women forces in 1936, working

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Buff finally succeeds in starving out the disagreeable Hunts. Just as they leave Maudie May bares Tim's secret. Iris DeMuth tricks into buying a worthless silver mine.

Chapter Nine George's Story

AS THE Hunts drove off, Tim was very white and his big hands were shaking. "It's true," he said presently. "Every word of it's true, Buff. Now you know the kind of person I am. I'm not a man who went upstairs before she could answer. Buff sat where she was for a long time. She heard Webby stirring in the kitchen and thought vaguely that a good dinner would help the entire household; but above every other sensation she was conscious of pity for Tim Corliss. The bald little story had held glimpses of tragedy which had been underlined and made acute by the look of suffering on Tim's face.

After a time she went into the kitchen. Mrs. Webb was furiously busy. Something gave off, savory odors from the big range oven, a double boiler simmered on top. The fat housekeeper was creaming butter and sugar in a bowl. "A nice state you left my kitchen in, Miss Buff!" she said severely. "And if the stuff that was left on the table is a sample of what you gave those poor Hunts to eat, I don't wonder they left. Lumbago! I suppose you and Mr. Tim had your reasons, and after all I'm getting paid to do what I'm told; but layin' in bed without good nourishin' food didn't do me any good, and I sh'd say it hadn't helped you either, by the looks of you!"

Buff wandered about for another hour. When she heard the sound of a car approaching she strolled down to meet it. George Weekes stopped and grinned at her. "Here again," says she. "Wonder how much longer that guy is going to keep on coming?" "It happens I'm extra glad to see you today." Her tone was sober. "And I'd like to talk to you before you see Tim. Suppose you drive under those pines and let's confer a bit. Okay?"

"And then some," he agreed heartily. He steered his car under the clump of trees which marked the boundary of the ranch. "Tim not so well, or is it these Hunts he called me about?" "Both, in a way. The Hunts left right after lunch—a fleeting smile touched her mouth at the recollection of that meal—but not before the daughter had—had spilled the beans about Tim."

He frowned. "How d'you mean—spilled the beans?" She told him briefly of Maudie May's accusations. "Tim said it was all true, and more. They he should himself up in his room. I think you'd better tell me all about it, George."

"I suppose so. Poor old Tim! Where shall I begin?" "With—the girl, Iris DeMuth, isn't that her name?" "That's her name. She blew into Boulder one fine day and dropped into our office. Had some ore specimens she wanted assayed. For silver. Silver in 'em all right—plenty of it. Tetrahedrite."

"Don't waste time being technical," she commanded. "Where did she get the ore?" "From a mine she owned up in the mountains. Oh, she owned it all right. I looked it up, of course. She wanted Tim to buy up a lot of land around it; she had a New York company willing to back any development—if there was actually silver there."

"And was there? The specimens might not have come from her mine." He nodded his appreciation. "Good point! Naturally the same idea occurred to Tim and me. So he went up himself and took some specimens from the mine to assay. You know silver ore exists in veins, and if a bit were taken from the vein itself even an expert couldn't tell whether it contained silver until he had assayed it. Tim brought home a tidy lot—"

"Wait a minute. Did she go along—show Tim where to get the bits he took?"

"An Accomplish TIM wasn't born yesterday, my dear. He took his specimens where and how he chose to. The thing is, he had to go to Idaho Springs before he could test them. Was gone ten days, in fact."

"Go on," she bade him. "When he got back, he went to work on the ore. It was darned good. We were all excited about it. Iris and Tim and I. She... did I tell you that before all this developed she and Tim had fallen head over heels in love with each other?"

"No, you neglected that interesting item," she said dryly. "However, I inferred as much. Proceed!" "She said the more land we owned, the more interested the company would be. So we—" "You didn't just take the company on trust?"

"No, it's a bona fide development firm. We sent along specimens for their own man to assay. But after Tim had come back—keep that in mind, Buff—from Idaho Springs!" "And the specimens he had taken from the mine?"

He sighed gustily. "You've put your finger on the rotten spot in the scheme. Iris, of course, had access to Tim's office while he was gone. Not much of an office; just a little outer room, and then the laboratory. No secret about anything. She drifted in and out whenever she pleased. What she did was to substitute ore containing genuine silver for the stuff Tim had taken from her mine. Same size about the same shape. After ten days, and of course having no suspicions whatever—I hadn't either, if it comes to that! don't lose sight of that—it never occurred to him they were not the same. It sounds screwy but any mining engineer will tell you how easily it could be done if the whole thing seemed open and above-board. Being in a mining country, you see, and assaying ore being all in the day's work, we weren't looking for any funny business. So—

"Where did she get the other specimens—the ones with silver in 'em?" "She had an accomplice," was the grim answer. "Guy named Latshaw. Owned a mine that petered out, and had kept some of the ore he'd taken from it. Anyhow the whole proposition looked so good that Tim and I took all our money and bought as much land as we could; not only surface rights, you know, but the whole business."

"And then—" "It was Latshaw's land, of course; only we'd never heard of it; it wasn't a swindle on a large scale; I mean—we didn't form a company on our own and sell shares—anything like that. Latshaw merely unloaded a lot of land he didn't want at a price that netted him enough to make it worth Iris' while to play Tim for a sucker."

"But—but—I don't see why that should have floored Tim so completely! Even if his bank account was wiped out, it was only money—his money—" "And mine," he reminded her. "Quite a bit of mine, as it happened. My own fault, of course, but Tim took it hard because he thought he should have looked up the ore... or made another series of tests, or something. Also, there was heaven's gift to him, d'you see? And the publicity. The papers got hold of it, and it made quite an interesting story; lovely adventures, trusting expert, clever substitution of ore—you'd have to live in these parts to understand what thrilling reading it was."

"Tim Cracked Up" "WHAT became of—of Iris?" "Did a fade-out, of course; as soon as the land was bought and the deeds recorded. Oh, yes, and she left a note for Tim, too. She couldn't resist telling him how she'd worked the deal. Now you have the whole story."

"Not quite, I think," said Buff. "What happened then?" "Nothing. Tim slogged away as usual. Business dropped off, of course, and that didn't add to his hilarity. Everything went at one fell swoop; his bank account, his mine, his faith in women, something of his professional prestige. Not all of it, as a matter of fact, though he thinks so. I wanted to move on here so I wouldn't encounter knowing grins wherever we went, or at least I wanted to wanted old Tim to take a vacation somewhere until the whole thing blew over. He wouldn't. He swore he'd stick it out right there; build up his reputation again—"

"He wouldn't," the girl said. "He darn near did. People knew him—trusted him. The trick didn't do us as much damage as you might think. But Tim cracked up after a while and the doctors ordered him away. He wouldn't go; not, at least, until he'd measured his length a couple of times in the laboratory, and smashed a lot of test tubes. Even then I had to talk to him like a Dutch uncle; tell him it wasn't fair to me for him to keep on in the condition he was. I overdid it, of course; made him afraid he'd make some gosh-awful mistake."

"I saw the advertisement of this place in a Denver paper, and persuaded him to take a month's vacation here. I had a nice picture of Tim loafing in the sunshine, going for long healthful tramps, swapping yarns with Atkins—and coming back in October fit as a fiddle. If you—"

"If I hadn't come along, it might have turned out that way. Is that what you're thinking? As it was he hurt his ankle, driving over our road after dark, and got into a worse condition than he'd been before."

"Don't you believe it! You've done his worlds of good. I'll bet these Hunts have helped even more. I could wish for Tim's sake, that a long succession of tenants would arrive, one after another, to distract his mind. As it is, he's almost well again. Westland says he's improved a lot. Of course he's still remorseful about my money, and he's still upset over Iris... poor old Tim!"

"He's never messed around much with girls, you see. His father died when he was a kid and Tim supported his mother; put himself through college besides. That didn't leave time for anything else. His mother was a lovely person and Tim sort of founded his ideas of womanhood on her. And Iris, plague take her, was pretty swell to look at; appealing, too. She had Tim eating out of her hand almost from the first. Personally," concluded Tim's partner in a level voice. "I could get a lot of enjoyment seeing her sweet face peering from behind some good stout bars. It's not the money; it's what she did to old Tim. Now you know. Poor Tim!"

"Poor Tim," Buff echoed. And thoughtfully: "Poor Tim!"

Washington—Military strategists here say Italy stayed out of the war because Germany asked her to—for these reasons:

- 1. Through Italy's Po River valley and the Brenner Pass, France and England would have a route into German Austria. With Italy neutral, this road is closed. 2. With Italy as an active ally, Germany might have to send a large German army into Italy to protect the Po River route. 3. As a neutral, Italy can be a source of supply to Germany—for a time at least.

Italy also could give valid reasons for staying out. Italy would go into the war only for what she could get out of it. And win or lose, she could not get out of it all she would have to put into it.

On The Spot

First off, Italy would become one of the first battlegrounds of the war. A French army would certainly sweep down the Alps toward the Po Valley. It is a hard place for Italy to defend. The rich industrial section of north Italy would be the objective of the French and British bombing planes from the first hours of the war. Italian planes in return, would have a much longer route to reach French industrial centers for retaliation. Italy would be besieged at sea as well, and on that front Germany could offer her no aid, as Germany's fleet would be bottled up in the Baltic by a small portion of the British fleet. The rest would be available to take Italy's surface fleet out of play early in the war, although her submarines would continue to be a serious menace.

Almost at once, Italy might lose her North African colonies, because with the British fleet likely in control of the Mediterranean she could not send reinforcements. Rich Libya might fall to French and British forces attacking on both sides. Ethiopia, cut off from all directions might again be ruled by Haile Selassie.

Just how rich a source of supply Italy turns out to be depends in large part on how strict the British choose to make their blockade—and that probably will be strict enough if they follow World War patterns. In those days England put all Germany's neighbors on strict ration. For a time it was rich business for Holland, Norway, Denmark and Sweden to buy large quantities of lard, wheat, coffee, steel and other war essentials and ship them on into Germany at war prices. Then came the British rationing. England allowed these neighbor countries to import only the amount they needed for themselves. All else was diverted to England.

Which Way?

It was strictly illegal in the light of international law. And it would be strictly illegal to cut Italy off from the same business. But certainly England won't change her plans in that respect. Italy could still be of some aid, but not very much. She has almost no raw material resources of her own. Further, it is generally suspected here that Italy, as in the last war, will stay out until it is pretty definitely decided which side has the best chances. France and England undoubtedly will put the heat on Italy to make her decide, without too much delay, which way she is going to jump. There is no place for an important neutral in the middle of a mess like a European war.

Approximately five million are consumed here annually, latest statistics revealed.

Peeled, thinly sliced and sprinkled with salt, these radishes are favored by beer drinkers on account of their thirst-creating effect.

BACK WORRIES PAIN RAY WOLF

Mentors Dubious of Present Backfield Promises

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 13. — Although the University of North Carolina has two or three brilliant individual performers like George Stinewiss, the Flying Dutchman, and "Sweet" Jim Lalamie, Coach Ray Wolf's backfield problems were far from solved today.

Stimny and Jim and their mates will doubtless give the Citadel and Wake Forest crowds plenty of thrills with their jackrabbit running and brilliant passing, not to mention their punting and quick kicking.

From the coaches' standpoint, however, there is a lot of difference between a couple of stars and a couple of powerful, versatile, and balanced backfields. And this is what Coach Wolf feels Carolina will need for the opener with the Citadel here September 23 as well as for the headliner on the 30th with Wake Forest, rated by many as one of the South's strongest elevens.

The Tar Heels' first-backfield charge has been taking shape rapidly around Stinewiss and George Radman, the two regulars back from last year, and has looked very good at times. But Sid Sadoff, the fullback, was just an understudy last year, and Mike Bobbitt, the blocking back, saw still less service—not enough, in fact, to win his letter.

There is a big job replacing two star performers like Jack Kravnik who was as good on backing up the line on defense as he was on busting it wide open on offense, and George Watson, who ranked with the South's finest blockers. And although Sadoff and Bobbitt have been showing marked ability, there is a wide gap between intrasquad scrimmages and varsity games.

Alex Daniels Top Hitter For Greenies This Season

By R. O. MOYE

Alex Daniels, Greenville's utility player, who, incidentally, played every position in both the outfield and infield with the exception of pitching, set the pace for the Greenie hitters in the season just brought to a close, according to the official records of the league statistician, Aubrey Shackell.

Daniels, who played in a total of 93 games, went to the bat 314 times officially, collected 106 hits, 28 of which were for extra bases, for a percentage of .337 for the season. Also in the hitting attack Daniels led all other Greenies in runs batted in, knocking in a total of 120 for the season. In the number of stolen bases he also set a pace with 32 in his credit for the season.

Following close behind Daniels is Eddie Black, Greenie rightfielder. Black has played in a total of 121 games, has been to the bat officially 465 times, collected 153 hits, 37 of which were for extra bases, for a percentage of .329 for the season.

Harry Jenkins, Greenies third sacker, led in the total number of home runs for the season, collecting a total of 15 round trippers for the season. Runner-up with Jenkins was Skipper Rube Wilson with 11 homers. Also Harry led his teammates with the most strikeouts, having fanned 95 times for the current season.

The following are the official batting averages of the entire Greenville club for the 1939 season, as compiled by Aubrey Shackell of Tarboro, league statistician:

Would Aid

Grace Moore, the opera singer and movie star, who used to sing in the Baptist church choir at her girlhood home, Jellico, Tenn., arrived in New York from Europe aboard the liner Manhattan and forthwith announced her plans to return to France and drive an ambulance in the war. Said she: "I owe much of my success to France." She is shown getting off the Manhattan.

Ed Nowak In The Light Puts Martins In Dark

George Rimmer Is Baffled By His Hurling

Kinston, Sept. 12. — Ed Nowak, who helped the Eagles eliminate Greenville in the semifinals, turned in his 15th win of the season in a stellar pitching performance here tonight as Kinston overpowered Williamston 2-0.

Williamston will engage the Eagles in the fourth game of the finals at Williamston Thursday night. At present, the Martins have two wins and Kinston one.

George Rimmer, who had been the pacesetter in the first Martin victories, was baffled by the Nowak brand of pitching and could do nothing but strikeout or be retired on an infield out.

Besides his pitching, Nowak also displayed a fine brand of fielding at several stages of the game. This helped to check any possible Martin rally.

Dick Cherry hurled seven hit ball in as many innings and the Eagles reached him for their runs in the fourth. Larry Wade finished the game with one-hit performance, but his pitching assignment was confined to only one inning.

HEALTH WORK IS EXPLAINED

Dr. Ennett Opens Lecture Course to NYA Girls

In connection with the course of instruction and practical training being given the NYA girls assigned to the Pitt County Health Department, Dr. Ennett, Pitt county health officer, opened the course a few nights ago with a lecture on the functions and administrative policies of the Health department.

He attempted to give the young ladies a clear picture of the workings of the Health department and outlined the various measures taken in the past guarding the health of the people.

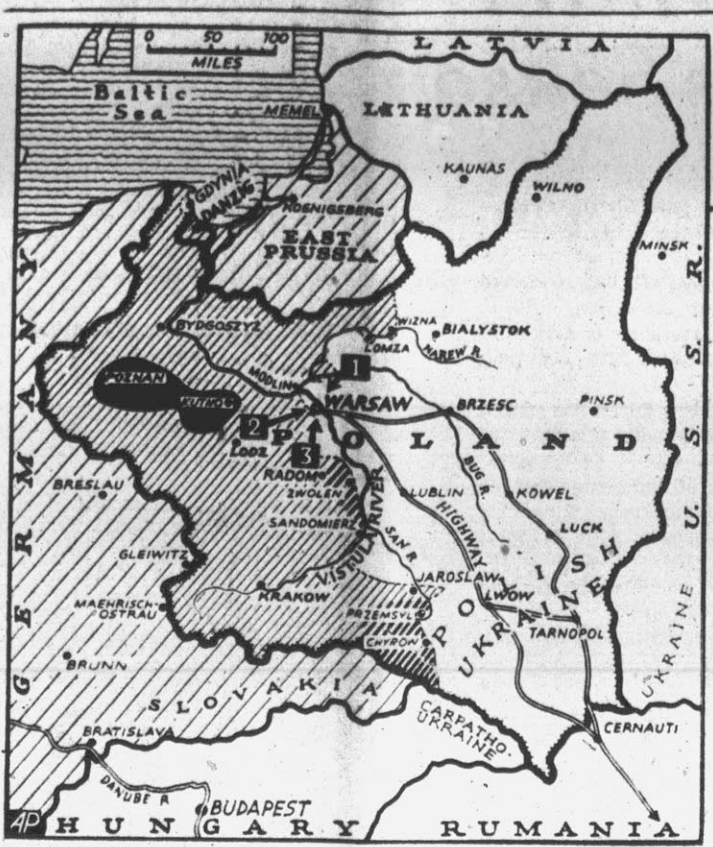

Among the many services rendered by the Health department to the public, he mentioned the quarantine service against contagious diseases, the vaccination service against smallpox, diphtheria and whooping cough, examinations in the pre-school clinics, the regular medical and nursing work in the schools, special physical examinations of all football and basketball teams, supervision of free dental work in the schools, the home visiting instruction work in the case of tuberculosis patients in an effort to prevent the spread of the disease to other members of the family and the public, the maternal and infant welfare clinics where all expectant mothers are given blood examinations and, where blood treatment is needed, it is given free, midwife instruction and supervision; medical examinations of food handlers, dairymen, meat market workers and school teachers, also medical care to the County Home inmates and the jail prisoners.

The next phase of the work discussed was that of sanitation. He stated that the Health Department has two sanitarians, one employed by the county and the other employed by the city of Greenville, and he explained that he regarded the sanitation program of paramount importance in all public health work. A part of the sanitation program, he said, consisted of dairy, milk, water, cafe, meat market, school, sewer and privy inspections, and malarial drainage.

In addition to all of the special items of services above mentioned, Dr. Ennett stated that the Health Department was a sort of clearing house for all medical, educational and public welfare problems having a public health aspect; that all health problems of a public health nature coming to the private physician, to the schools or to the Welfare Department could be referred to the Health Department for adjustment or solution.

The court covers 10 one-hour periods and will include lectures by other members of the Health Department staff and field visits with the sanitarians to the Greenville water plant, pasteurization plant, etc.

All-Member Meet Set By Merchants

The board of directors of the Greenville Merchants Association, in regular session last night, voted to hold its all-member meeting on Tuesday, October 17, appointed committees to work out certain details for the session, and took action on several other questions.

A resolution was adopted asking all merchants and employes to park their cars on the side streets in order to leave more parking space on the main business streets for shoppers.

The board, after hearing inquiries from other cities read, voted to observe the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving, thereby following the wishes of Governor Hoy, who declined to change the date of observance from November 30 to November 23 following a suggestion to this effect by President Roosevelt.

1ST ACCIDENT BRINGS APPEAL

Hocutt Urges Care In Operation Kid Trucks

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 13.—(AP)—First school bus accident to be reported to the Highway Safety Division this year brought from Director Ronald Hocutt an appeal to make the coming scholastic year the best on record from a highway safety standpoint.

Hocutt advised organization of school bus patrols, advocated bus patrols to help drivers maintain order and appealed to all motorists generally to exercise special care and caution when in the vicinity of schools or when approaching school buses on the roads.

"The opening of schools and colleges throughout the state should be the occasion for increased caution on the part of every motorist and pedestrian," he said. "I am hoping that through the co-operation of all concerned we may have the best safety record yet."
