HITLER SAYS GERMANY WILL NEVER SURRENDER

France and Britain Strengthen Western Front

MAJOR THRUST BY NAZIS SEEN

Entry of Red Army Into Conflict Viewed As Speeding Up Operations In Poland And Making More Men and Equipment Available for Fight-Allies on West

Paris, Sept. 19.—(AP)—France and Britain strengthened their war line on the Western front today in anticipation of a major battle as soon as German reinforcements are rushed back from Poland.

Entry of Red armies from Russia into war in Poland was viewed here as speeding the task of German divisions in the east and making more men and equipment available for defense of the west wall.

French reports said the nation's colonial troops were mobilized fully and ready to bolster the French attack.

The number of colonial troops was described as considerably in excess of the total of effective fighting men called to the tri-color from the empire during the World war.

In the regular morning communiqué the French general staff announced repulse of a localized German attack launched during the night "in the region east of the Saar river."

The communiqué did not specify where the fighting took place, but it was believed to be in the shell-pounded region south of Saarbrücken, where French and German troops have fought numerous minor engagements.

Action along the 100-mile northern flank, where France was reported taking several hundred square miles of German territory in front of the Siegfried line, was confined to artillery fire and some fighting in the air.

These troops were said to have moved into position in the area in front of France's Maginot line through tunnels to the vast defense works.

Final Rites Are Held For Mrs. A.D. Beverly

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie D. Beverly, 77, of Bethel, who died at her home Thursday morning, were conducted from the home Friday afternoon. Interment took place in Robersonville cemetery amid a profuse floral offering, a silent tribute of the high esteem in which she was held. Pallbearers were sons-in-law.

Surviving are her husband, Ben A. Beverly; seven daughters, Mrs. C. M. Hurst, Mrs. W. T. Hurst and Mrs. J. C. Taylor of Robersonville, Mrs. D. L. Baker, Mrs. W. M. Carson and Mrs. W. R. L. Purvis of Bethel and Mrs. Roland Whitehead of Hobgood; three sons, J. W., N. G., and R. G. of Bethel; two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Spier Cochran and Dr. R. J. Nelson of Robersonville and Mrs. Baker Womack of Bethel. Twenty-eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren also survive.

Four Whiskey Stills Destroyed in Martin

Pitt county ABC officers, working with Martin county ABC officers, located and destroyed four illicit liquor stills in Martin county yesterday.

Officers said one of the stills was a small copper plant, while the others were steam plants. Each of the stills was destroyed with dynamite and approximately 1,700 gallons of beer was confiscated.

It was disclosed that ABC officers of Pitt and Martin counties are coordinating their efforts in an attempt to eradicate illegal liquor traffic between the counties.

In Poland

Berlin, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The German army high command today issued the following communiqué on operations in Poland: "Dissolution and capitulation of various enemy groups encircled by German forces continue rapidly. The enemy encircled south of the Vistula between Warsaw and Kutno, southwest of Wyszogrod, is defeated and in a stage of complete dissolution. The number of prisoners taken and the amount of war material captured can not be estimated at the present time."

QUEEN HOPING KEEP NEUTRAL

Wants the Netherlands to Stay Out Of Strife

The Hague, Sept. 19.—(Via Radio)—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands today declared in her throne address that she had great confidence in the ability of her armed force to insure the country's neutrality.

Her majesty, speaking at the Hall of Knights, under what she described as "somber circumstances," expressed hope that her country might be saved from "the horrors of war."

Her pacifistic efforts, taken in conjunction with the king of Belgium, has met with wide acclaim, she said, and she still retained hope that in the end peace may prevail.

Return to U. S. A. Sought For Girls

Boston, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The International Friendship League appealed to the State Department and to the United States embassy in London today to help eight American girls stranded in Glasgow find means of returning to the United States.

The girls, who left in June to spend the summer in foreign homes as "adopted daughters" intended, the league said, to return on the United States steamer Orizaba, but were informed the Orizaba would carry only survivors of the sunken Athenia.

The league said the girls included Miss Anna Winslow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Winslow of Tarboro, N. C.

E. C. Winslow is the first cousin of J. E. Winslow of Greenville, who is president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation. This is the first report of a relative of any local resident being caught in the path of the present European turmoil.

Police officials said it was not a case of having no other place to sleep, but added the Negroes preferred the warehouse to their homes or rooming houses.

CARRIER LOSS FIXED AT 579

Two British Trawlers Reported Sunk

London, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Admiralty announced today approximately 681 survivors were accounted for of 1,260 aboard the British aircraft carrier Courageous, sunk by an enemy submarine.

(That would leave 579 missing.) Meantime, an official announcement said two British trawlers had been sunk, but that three other British merchant vessels had successfully eluded submarine attacks.

The Ministry of Information said the trawlers, Lord Minto and Arlita, had been sunk and their crews rescued by a third trawler.

The report did not immediately specify where the trawlers sank and did not say whether they had been torpedoed or whether they had encountered mines.

Informed observers said, meantime, that Great Britain and France still lay in their pledges to Poland, would consult Polish leaders on the military situation created by the Soviet Russian invasion of Poland pending disclosure of its "full implications."

The Ministry of Information, in a statement in which it was understood France would concur formally today, declared the Soviet action—avowedly to "protect" Ukrainians and White Russians in Poland—"can not in the view of his majesty's government be justified by the arguments put forward by the Soviet government."

There was, however, no intimation from any informed source that the ministry's communiqué could be interpreted as foreshadowing a declaration of war on Russia.

"The full implication of these events is not yet apparent," said the communiqué, "but his majesty's government takes the opportunity of stating that nothing that has occurred makes any difference to the determination of his majesty's government with the full support of the country to fill the obligations to Poland and to prosecute the war with all energy until their objects have been achieved."

A full discussion of the situation resulting from the Russian sweep into Poland was expected in the House of Commons tomorrow after another day of Prime Minister Chamberlain's reports on the war with Germany.

Pneumonia Fatal To Ayden Farmer

Ernest M. McLawhorn, 58, prominent farmer of the Ayden, community, died this morning at 1:30 o'clock in a Kingston hospital following several days' illness with pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 from the late home, two miles from Ayden on the Kingston highway, by Rev. W. H. Brunson, pastor of the Ayden Christian Church, assisted by Rev. Frank Morris, Baptist minister of Winterville. Burial will follow in the family cemetery near Winterville.

Mr. McLawhorn was born in Pitt county March 10, 1881. He was a son of the late Benjamin Franklin and Mary Jenkins McLawhorn. He was a member of the Ayden Christian Church.

Surviving are his wife, who before marriage was Miss Tessie Leona Speight of Pitt county; two sons, Bruce Alton McLawhorn, with the Navy in Alaska, and Harry B. McLawhorn of the home; three daughters, Mrs. C. C. Johnson of Wilmington, Mrs. Amos Averett of Winterville, and Mrs. John Marlowe of Whiteville; four brothers, I. J., and C. H. McLawhorn of Ayden, and W. O. and B. F. McLawhorn of Winterville; one sister, Mrs. Isaac Baldree of Ayden, and seven grandchildren.

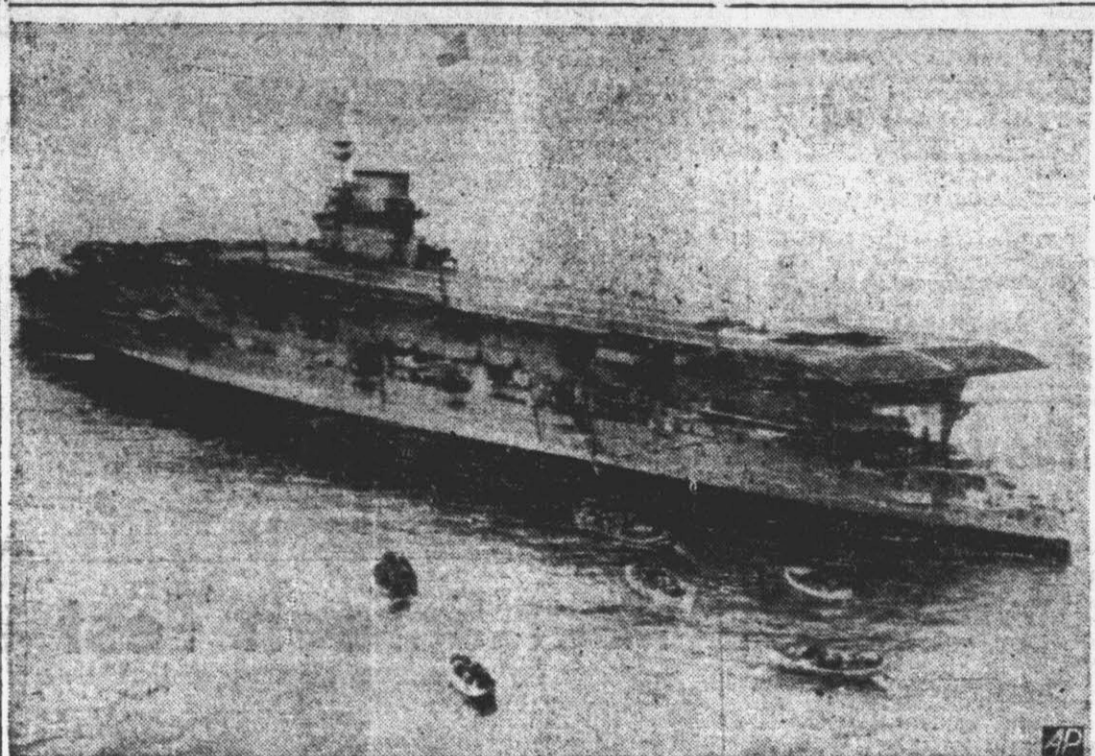

Warehouse Used For Sleeping by Negroes

Twelve Negroes, two or three of them juveniles, were booked at city police headquarters early this morning on charges of trespass after they had been found sleeping in the Farmers warehouse.

The grown men probably will be tried at the Friday session of court, while the juveniles are to be dealt with by welfare authorities.

Police officials said it was not a case of having no other place to sleep, but added the Negroes preferred the warehouse to their homes or rooming houses.

British Aircraft Carrier Sunk by U-Boat

From Great Britain's Admiralty came the announcement the British aircraft carrier Courageous has been "lost by submarine action." The announcement did not say where the carrier was sunk but declared survivors had been picked up by destroyers and merchant ships. This picture shows the Courageous when she visited Whitey recently.

Roosevelt Prepares Talk Opening Special Session

PRESBYTERIAN SESSIONS HELD

Synod Opens Regular Conference Here Tonight

An open forum and a summarization by the Rev. R. A. Young, D. D., of Charlotte on the permanent values of the gathering concluded the second pre-synod home mission conference of the Presbyterians in North Carolina this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Featuring the morning program was an address by the Rev. Henry W. McLaughlin, D. D., of Richmond, Va. The Rev. C. E. Hodgins, D. D., of Greensboro, superintendent of Home Missions of the Orange Presbytery, had charge of the morning program.

Dr. McLaughlin pointed to Mussolini, Stalin, Hitler and Deladier, declaring that they had risen from a background of comparative poverty.

"The first three of these men," said McLaughlin, "were reared in countries where the dominant church had allied itself with the privileged classes and where the poor were neglected."

Women's part in home missions was presented by Mrs. J. W. Witherspoon of Lexington, while Frank Brown of Davidson, spoke for the Young People. Miss Kathryn Hunt of Ashe county spoke of mountain missions; R. G. Hudson of Raleigh, and the Rev. J. Cecil Lawrence of Varina, emphasized phases of conducting and supporting the work.

The Rev. J. R. Cunningham, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Winston-Salem, closed the morning session with an appeal for the church to help keep America out of war.

"People become vocal before they become intelligent," was the danger that Dr. Cunningham saw in unguarded propaganda of fear. "We can keep America out of war, unless we talk ourselves into it. We must forget business upturn and economic profits and be as earnest and devoted to our goal as the boys now fighting in the armies of Europe."

In his message, Dr. Cunningham urged that the church be true to her ideal in declaring that war is essential.

Expected To Deal With Neutrality Only

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has made tentative arrangements to address a joint session of the Senate and House on neutrality early Thursday afternoon.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said Mr. Roosevelt would begin drafting his message today. It is expected to deal almost exclusively with revision of the present neutrality law.

Early said the message would be very brief. Present plans call for Mr. Roosevelt to deliver it about 2 p. m., Thursday.

Asked whether the brevity was due to the fact that the neutrality subject had been pretty well gone over heretofore, the secretary asserted that Congress already had considerable information.

Arrangement for the President to deliver the message in person on the opening day of the special session were completed after Early had been in communication with Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead and Senate Majority Leader Barkley. He was unable to reach House Majority Leader Rayburn, who was en route to the capital.

The hour for the delivery of the message, two hours after the session convenes, will allow time for the necessary reorganization for the new session and permit introduction and approval of a resolution providing for the Senate and House to assemble in the House chamber to hear the presidential message.

John S. Smith, 68, Claimed by Death

John S. Smith, 68, died Monday night at 8:25 o'clock at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. J. D. Wiggins of the Chapman's crossroads community in Pitt county.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mount Olive Christian Church in Hyde county, of which he was a member, and burial will be in Hyde county cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Smith; a son, Charles Smith of Connecticut; two daughters, Mrs. C. C. Johnson of Connecticut and Mrs. John Casey of Battleboro, Vt. Thirteen grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Smith was born in New York state and moved to East Carolina about 20 years ago. He was a machinist.

Body of Edenton Man Found On River Bank

Edfield, N. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Alfred Layton, 43, of Edenton, was found dead on the banks of the Roanoke river near Caledonia prison farm late yesterday. Willis Harden of the Branch funeral home said it was established that Layton had been fishing with friends and apparently died Sunday. Death was caused by an internal hemorrhage and the coroner decided there was no evidence of foul play. Harden said. The body was taken to Edenton today.

COURT AGREES ON PROCEDURE

Cases Involving Electric Projects Consolidated

Raleigh, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The State Supreme Court today consolidated for hearing at some future date two cases involving the hydroelectric project of the city of High Point on the Yadkin river.

The request for consolidation and for a writ of certiorari to bring the cases before the high court, made by High Point city attorneys, was granted from the bench after lawyers for the opposition stated there was no objection.

The court took under advisement an appeal by J. P. Harris from Vance county in which the constitutionality of the law regulating the dry cleaning industry is challenged.

W. T. Gibson of Henderson and J. Julian of Winston-Salem, lawyers for Harris, contended the act violated the constitution by applying undue restrictions to business and that a 1939 amendment exempting 14 counties made the act one of local nature. The constitution, they contended, forbids regulation of trade by local acts. John Caffey of Greensboro and Attorney General Harry McMillan argued for the state that the law was a valid exercise of police power and that if the 1939 act was a local law it was invalid, but the 1937 law applying to the entire state was constitutional.

Around 400 residents of the Dabney high school section of Vance county were here to hear arguments in the case involving the refusal of the Vance county education board to accept B. A. Scott as principal of the high school. Residents of the area sought a mandamus to compel election of Scott after he was selected by the local school committee. The county board appealed from an order overruling its demurrer.

The court will hand down opinions tomorrow.

Bogus Bills Being Circulated In City

J. H. Waldrop, cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, this afternoon warned Greenville merchants and business men to be on the lookout for bogus $5 bills that are being circulated in this city and in Washington.

Waldrop explained that Federal Bureau of Investigation agents are conducting an investigation into the case.

It was disclosed that the money is in Lincoln $5 bills, numbered in red. The number is E-23398761A. The paper used for making the illegal currency is not as good as the regular paper, and does not carry silk thread, but was described by the local cashier as being a good imitation.

Says Nation To Carry On Long Strife If Necessary

Emphasizes That Germany Has No War Intentions Against France or England and That His Country Wants Lasting Peace, But Will Never Yield to Any Foe

Danzig, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler assured France and England today that he had "no war aims" against them, but declared that Poland as created by the treaty of Versailles "never again will rise."

"Russia and Germany will settle this (Polish) situation and this will result in the removal of the tension," he declared.

He warned the western powers that Germany would never "capitulate" and was prepared for as much as seven years of war if necessary.

Hitler expressed a determination to continue the war as long as he was forced, saying the word "surrender" would not be uttered; "not at the end of the sixth or the seventh year," he shouted, "the generation of today is not the generation of Bethmann-Hollweg." (The 1914 German Chancellor.)

In a speech of an hour and 14 minutes, one of his best oratorical efforts, the German Fuehrer dwelt at length on what he called his efforts "to bring about friendly relations" with Britain and France.

Reviewing the events leading up to Germany's invasion of Poland, Hitler in an international broadcast carried in the United States by the National Broadcasting Company, welcoming Danzig back into the Reich, said that the state of affairs "became impossible" in September after he had believed in August it would be possible to come to an understanding.

Earlier he had said the Germany of today no longer is a country to which ultimatums can be dictated. "We will give bomb against bomb; not only one, but 500 bombs," he shouted.

He said he had suffered much from Poland in the last six years, but that he had not sent them an ultimatum.

Citing attempts by Premier Mussolini to bring a peaceful settlement of the dispute, he said England intervened, and then he shouted: "England sent an ultimatum to Germany, but the day has passed when anyone can send an ultimatum to the Reich."

Hitler said he earlier had attempted to find a "reasonable solution" to the problem, but indicated it became impossible with the death of Poland's Marshal Pilsudski.

He had sought, he said, to establish borders in the west and south and to make an agreement with Pilsudski which had as its purpose amicable relations between the Poles and the Germans.

"As long as Pilsudski lived, this was possible," he said. The Fuehrer said he was depressed by the suffering the Nazis endured at the hands of an inferior state "while Germany was a superior state."

He told the world that nations (Continued on Page Six)

Christian Science Church.
"Matter" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies Sunday, September 17.

The golden text was from Psalms 95:9. "My flesh and my heart fail: but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible. "By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith." (Heb. 11:7).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Faith is higher and more spiritual than belief. It is a chrysalis state of human thought, in which spiritual evidence, contradicting the testimony of material sense, begins to appear. Truth, the ever-present, is becoming understood. A belief in Truth is better than a belief in error, but no mortal testimony is founded on the divine rock. Mortal testimony can be shaken. Until belief becomes faith, and faith becomes spiritual understanding, human thought has little relation to the actual or divine."

The train brings almost a full load of people to court from down the road.

Times appear to be hard. Even the days are getting short.

The Daily Southerner made its appearance at Tarboro Saturday. May it live and flourish as long as its parent, the old Southerner, that has made its weekly visits for nigh three-quarters of a century.

Every day we read about cotton factories, furniture factories, and so on, being started in other towns. And there is no place needs them worse than Greenville.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

Hollywood — Among miracles of longevity deserving of contemplation there's the seeming deathlessness of the family of movie detectives.

Year in and year out, these sleuthing gentry flourish on the screen, some of them surviving vehicles, indifferent at best, and often a little less than mediocre.

The reason? It's in any lending library, where sure money-makers are the mystery and detective tales. It's in the earliest lure, and still the greatest, that motion pictures had to offer—the thrill of the chase. It's the same fatal fascination excited by cowboy heroes lapping over the plains after the dirty foreman who copped the pap-uh and the gal. The detecting fellows do it in the rawing room, minus the horse, and generally they use their heads instead of a six-gun, but it's the same old chase.

Philo Vance, the hardy fellow, has just come back in the person of James Stephenson, this English actor's first starring role in Hollywood. Philo started on the screen looking like William Powell, later changed his disguise to resemble Warren William, Basil Rathbone or Edmund Lowe. Stephenson is being "different" in "Philo Vance Comes Back." Philo hitherto has been casual in his meanderings after crime; Stephenson's Philo, as a member of the U. S. Secret Service, is much more active.

Powell and Myrna Loy are in the midst of "Another Thin Man" as Nick Charles and Wife. There has been no change to date in this "Thin Man" teaming, probably could be none without offending a large following. (Incidentally, Edward Ellis could have a chuckle about this "Thin Man" business. Ellis was the original "Thin Man," disposed of in the first picture of the series. The tag has stuck, however, to Powell, who is as puzzled about it as anybody.)

Sherlock Holmes, perennial off-and-on screen hero, is back and seemingly set for a series. "Hound and Nigel Bruce teamed in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and now in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes".

Charlie Chan's existence looked uncertain for a while when Warner Oland died, but Sidney Toler stepped successfully into the spot. Mr. Moto, poor fellow, ran smack into international politics and has been dropped—not, however, because he was a failure as a detective.

Temporarily abandoned because in "Bulldog Drummond's Bride" he won the girl—a procedure fatal to most detectives barring Nick Charles—Drummond (through nine films played by John Howard) is always subject to revival on the screen.

Nancy Drew, Detective (Bonita Granville), has had her activities curtailed somewhat but is by no means gone. Because the Warners are apparently serious about fighting double-bills, Nancy has been cropped to four-reel, supporting featurette length Torchy Blane (once Glenda Farrell but now Jane Wyman) is no longer Torchy, but Torchy's spirit lives on in "Lady Detective."

Melvyn Douglas last year popped up as a contender in movie sleuthing circles when he made, with John Blondell, "There's Always a Woman." His serio-comic Sleuth Reardon followed that with "There's That Woman Again" and temporarily went into eclipse. Douglas is a detective again, however, in "The Incredible Mr. Williams" — again Blondell.

That's the nice thing about movie crime-trailing. The detective, just as in the raw-meat thrillers on the news-stands, can be combed on the head but he can't be killed. Not permanently.

U. S. Can Count Casualties Before A Battle Begins

Washington—The army medical corps knows more in advance about the horrors of another war than ever before in U. S. history—even to the frequency of casualties and where they will be nicked. From our war experience, espediets it would have to be ready to take care of 150 casualties a day among infantry soldiers for every thousand in action.

That would cover a moderately heavy combat day. Twenty-four of the 150 would be killed, 126 wounded or gassed. Sixty-six per cent of the injuries would be caused by gunshot missiles (mostly artillery), 31 per cent by gas, and the rest by other weapons, including bayonets.

These charts tell you part of what the medical corps knows about modern warfare.

PEANUTS BRING HIGHER PRICES

Caught in War-Time Surge of Advancing Prices

Raleigh, Sept. 19.—Caught in the war-time surge of advancing prices, peanuts have inched forward recently with such commodities as sugar, meats, butter and grains. B. Troy Ferguson, district agent of the State College Extension Service, said today.

While the advancing prices now prevailing are due in part to the extreme shortage of old crop stock and to the lateness in harvesting southern peanuts, they also have responded to the general stronger market trend for many commodities.

Trading in the Virginia type peanuts has been limited because of the shortage of stock, but inquiries have been good and the trade has been willing to pay higher prices for the remaining lots.

However, Ferguson said, there is unquestionably a shortage of Virginia type peanuts. Storage stocks in Virginia and North Carolina are almost gone, and in the country barns are being scoured in an effort to bring out every lot of farmers' stock.

For the best lots of peanuts, so-called Jumbo millers are paying 41-4 to 41-2 cents a pound delivered, even though the quality of the stock is inferior. Even best shelling stock is being quoted at 35-8 to 37-8 cents a pound.

Because of the difficulty of locating the available Virginia type shelled peanuts, some users of Virginia have already turned to runners and Spanish, though stocks of runners are also extremely scarce.

Ferguson said that leaders in the industry report that they cannot recall any previous season when Virginia type peanuts were cleaned up as early as has been the case this year.

The new program includes a re-alignment of all districts of the state and a new governing body for each of these districts to be elected at the meetings, according to Forrest G. Shearin of Scotland Neck, field secretary for the Eastern Carolina division of the Junior Order.

Under a resolution adopted by the state convention held at Salisbury in August, the state has been set out in three divisions and all former districts were abolished. Members to the new district councils of each division to be elected are district councillor, district vice councillor, district secretary and a number of others necessary for proper operation under the new organization plan.

Districts of the eastern division under Mr. Shearin, and their meeting places and dates, include District No. 17, composed of Wilson, Wayne, Greene, Pitt and Lenoir counties, to be held with Centennial Council, No. 436 at Hookerton, Thursday, October 5.

WHAT IT MEANS: Half-Million May Have to Die to Crack Western Front

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington.—Anybody who has seen a working model of the fortifications on the western front in Europe can understand why the generals on both sides—and the soldiers in the line as well—aren't any too anxious to get down to blood and thunder.

Any man worth his military salt tells you that the attacker on either side is going to lose at least four men to the defender's one. More likely, if the attempt is extremely determined, the losses will be ten to one.

The Germans are supposed to have lost 600,000 men trying to take Verdun in the World War. Consider the shock of anguish at home when the dead and wounded started pouring back. Some military psychologists have even surmised that those losses primarily broke the back of German resistance.

Now come authoritative estimates that an attacking force on the new western front might have to count on losing 500,000 men to achieve a break-through.

PSYCHOLOGICAL
If the attacking force should be the French army aided by the British, the victors would still find themselves on the west bank of the Rhine, barred from the heart of Germany by the secondary defenses behind the Rhine between Mannheim and Essen, and probably too exhausted to exploit their initial victory.

As a matter of fact, military men who have seen one side or the other of the western front recently, speculate that the primary value of breaking through the wall on either side would be more psychological than real.

It would prove to the victorious army and the people back home—and to the vanquished, too—that a Maginot or a Siegfried line is not impregnable. That should instill greater will to win.

But consider the assault that falls. Military men can conceive of no more tragic figure than the general who had lost 500,000 men—and failed to win his battle. The effect on the morale of the people on the home front would be almost disastrous.

These are the reasons why you hear so much speculation that the Franco-British alliance may seek another way around before they really get going. That's why military men are wondering about little Belgium and the Netherlands again, and Switzerland. Out-flanking the enemy is an old military custom, as old as war itself. To assume that the Franco-British diplomatic and military commands are not also trying to figure a way to outflank the German west wall is to assume they are not attending to their business.

TOUGH? LOOK
Why are these lines on the Franco-German frontier so formidable? Here are five good military reasons:

1—Both the Siegfried and Maginot lines vary in depth from five to forty miles, depending on the type of terrain they are defending. In the mountains of the Black Forest and the Vosges range on either side of the Rhine, they are minimum in depth, for attacking forces must not only fight but also climb.

2—The fronts of the opposing lines are composed of pillboxes, barbed wire, and protruding tank traps. The pillboxes are about four to six feet square—or round—accommodating two to four men armed with machine guns and automatic rifles. They open enfilade fire on the enemy, which means a criss-cross of bullets, each pillbox protecting its neighbor against assault, and shooting straight ahead as well. A half dozen lines of pillboxes, each line a mile apart, and all connected by trenches and telephone, provides a withering pattern of fire six miles deep.

3—Back of the pillboxes are the so-called block-forts, some 10 to 12 feet square—or round, or oblong—four to six to the mile, and camouflaged as villas and farm houses. Like the pillboxes, they are made of concrete and steel, and connected by tunnels or trenches, thick with machine guns. Prepared to meet the enemy with enfilade fire, the block-forts also contain a one-pounder, the gun capable of stopping tanks, and one or more three-inch, rapid-fire guns, with a range of five miles or more. Often there are 10 miles of block-forts.

A LITTLE WAY BACK . . .
4—Still further back, and carefully screened on convenient hillsides, are the secondary heavy defenses, spaced well apart, less than one to every 20 miles or more, containing veritable arsenals and complete electric power plants. They are linked by tunnels and protected by anti-aircraft guns, anti-air apparatus. Within are three to a dozen batteries (four guns) of 10, 12, or 16-inch cannon. These modern-day guns have a range of 20 to 25 miles, and their accuracy up to 15 miles is uncanny.

5—Still further back are the major heavy fortifications, such as forts as Verdun, Metz and Belfort, on the French side, and Aachen, Hunsruck, and Kaiserstuhl on the German side. Around them, interspersed all along the line at the rear are anti-aircraft batteries and underground aviation fields.

That's the stuff the western front is made of—and it's tough. Most experts agree that the French Maginot line is far better than the German Siegfried line, but they don't like the looks of either for attacking purposes.

Weatherman.
Lockport, N. Y. — (AP) — Robert N. Clark, farmer, says he made only one slip-up in 27 years of recording weather observations for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. "And that was no fault of mine," he explains. "A neighbor forgot to mark down observations while I was on vacation."

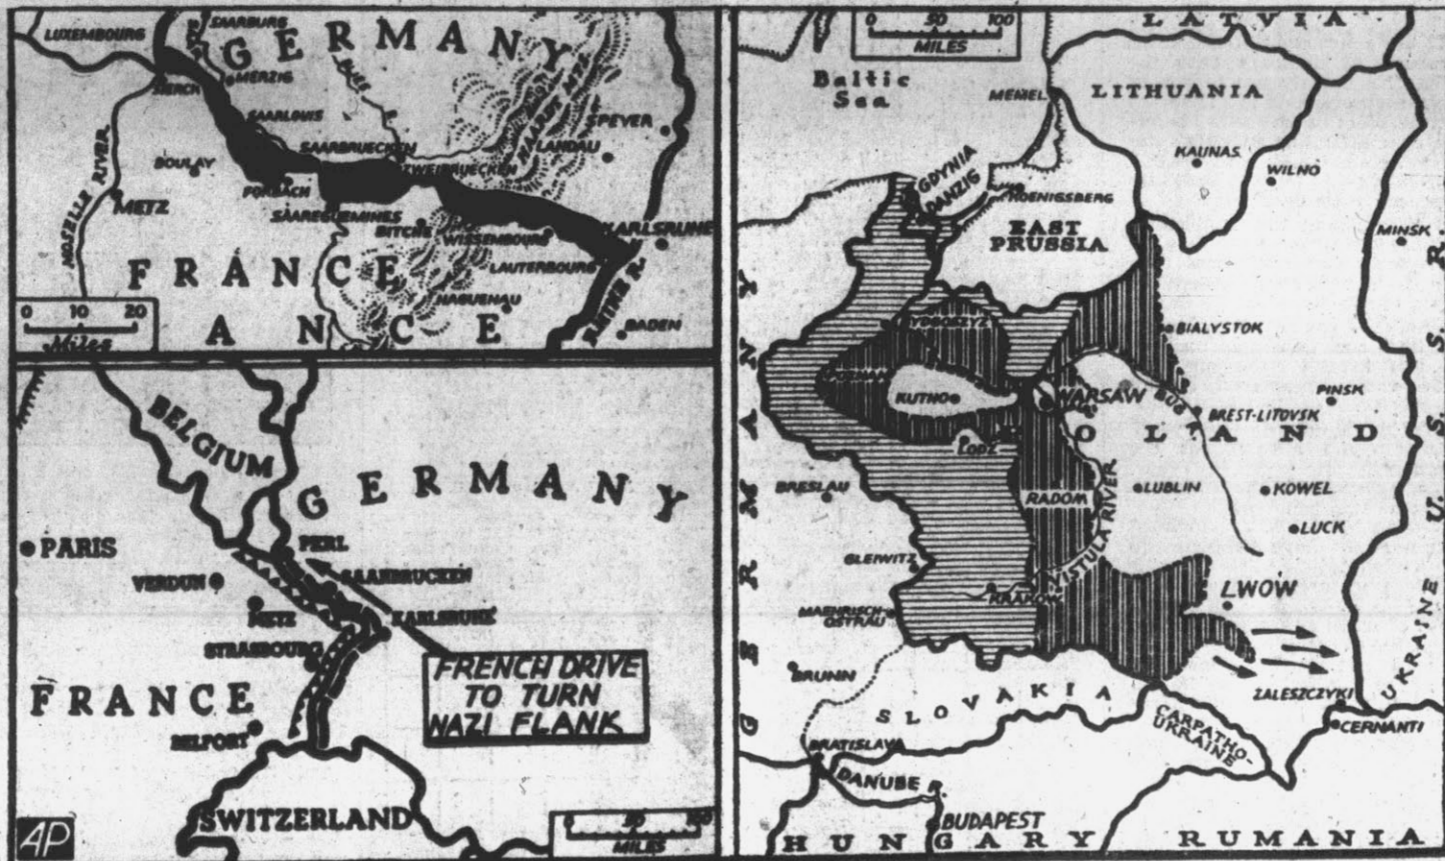

Donor.
Vancouver, Wash. — (AP) — Barent Burbans in six years gave 6.3 gallons of blood to 42 hospital patients, thereby earning $3,020. Because of transfusions, he claims "blood relationship with seven blue-bloods." Among persons to whom he gave blood, hospital records show, were former U. S. Senator Dupont; Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer; Charles Frederick, vice president of Lincoln Motors; and Mrs. Charles Scribner, wife of the publisher.

Blazed Tree Tells Ordeal.
Victoria, B. C. — (AP) — After several years' study by experts, the mystery of inscriptions found on a blazed tree near Moricetown has been unraveled. J. B. Munro, a provincial official, obtained a translation from Indians, as follows: "Here very long way we have traveled. Very bad storm. Cha. Mischel. This is my word."

Petition.
Paducah, Ky. — (AP) — A group of Paducah's night policemen, saying they had not seen their families "after dark for years," petitioned the board of police commissioners to shift officers from night to day duty every 30 days. The board took the plea under advisement.

How War Differs on Eastern and Western Fronts

These maps illustrate how the European war differs on the Eastern and Western fronts. Comparative areas of combat are shown on the maps at the right and lower left, which are drawn to exact scale. In the East, where Germany is pursuing the tactics of a "lightning war," battle lines are far-flung and troops are mobile (see map at right). Horizontal lines on this same map indicate the area occupied by Germany in the first week of the war, while vertical lines show the approximate territory captured the second week. Arrows show the German drive through Poland toward friendly Russia, partner in the Nazi-Soviet non-aggression pact. In the West, where France's Maginot line and Germany's Siegfried line face each other, fighting has been intense but confined to a much smaller area (see map at lower left). Map at upper left is a detailed close-up of the Western front, with Black portion indicating approximate area involved in combat. Germany's answer to French gains on the Western front reportedly is a counter attack in four sectors.

Supreme Leader Of Allies Shy And Studious General

SOLDIER: Fresh out of France's West Point, Gamelin plunged into rough African campaigning.

MAP-MAKER: Gamelin knows his maps—and remembers every detail of terrain maps shown him.

TACTICIAN: As aide to Gen. Joffre in 1914, Gamelin planned the Marne counter-offensive.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: Several months ago Britain and France agreed the Allies would need a single commanding officer if war should come and Gamelin was the man to get the job. He did.

By The AP Feature Service
When the light strikes his face right, Maurice Gamelin looks like the Cowardly Lion in "The Wizard of Oz." Under the light of the lamps at home he looks like a mild, rather stern little business man.

Under no kind of light does the tidy Frenchman look like the master mind of the allied armies in the new World War.

So much for appearances. Gamelin has his record to stand on.

From the age of 30 months, when his mother painted a picture of him in his lace-trimmed dress, beating a toy drum, Gamelin has been a soldier. There have been five French generals in his family.

When he was a student in a Catholic academy, the young Gamelin immersed himself in the career of the great Napoleon.

At St. Cyr, the West Point of France, he was graduated first in a class of more than 400. That was in 1893, when he was only 21. Then he went to Algeria for three years of wild campaigning.

There followed the work that has made contemporaries call him "map crazy." Gamelin did surveying and drew maps. He poured over maps; he memorized them. He learned the terrain of France by memory—and the terrain of parts of the world he never had visited.

When Joffre became commander-in-chief in 1911, Gamelin became his military secretary. It was the quiet little map-studying major who formulated the order that, in 1914, started the Marne counter-offensive.

a maneuver that has been credited with turning the tide of victory against the Germans.

When the war had ended, Gamelin had been elevated to the rank of divisional general. In 1925 he subdued the bloody Druse revolt in Syria, then became commander of France's Army of the Levant.

Next it was chief of the general staff (in 1931). And when Premier Daladier came into power, Gamelin achieved an honor held by no soldier since his own hero, Napoleon—he was made commander of the army, the navy and of the air force.

That is the man who now heads the allied armies fighting Germany; if not "the greatest soldier in the world today," certainly one of the greatest.

Washington—President Roosevelt is losing no opportunity to play his side of the street. He is constantly telling the public about the reasons for repeal of the neutrality act. It is a fair game. Opponents of repeal expect the debate on the issue to be a show of their chance to tell the public why this country should not revoke the embargo on shipment of arms to belligerents. Scarcely a press conference passes these days but what the President plants some new kiss of death upon the neutrality act. The State Department and the President openly oppose the measure, since they insist it gives an advantage to Germany by shutting off from England and France the source of airplanes, munitions and other war supplies which their control of the seas should entitle them to. One observer commented that the act was equal to giving Germany an Atlantic fleet big enough to keep British and French merchantmen from reaching America for supplies. That comment did not come from the White House but it fairly summarizes the administration attitude toward the act.

SO-CALLED
When the current European war started, Mr. Roosevelt gave the neutrality act a rough boot in the breeches. His first proclamation of neutrality did not mention the law at all.

The President took pains to call that the "regular neutrality" proclamation. He wanted to demonstrate that the United States could have neutrality without the statute. Then followed the proclamation under which Mr. Roosevelt described (with an open show of distaste) as the "so-called neutrality act." That is the one which, among other things, shut off arms shipments to warring nations.

The developments of the war helped in his campaign. The "Athena" was sunk, reviving the memories of "suffragette atrocities" of the last war. And just to make certain that the White House had not missed the point, Steve Early, the President's secretary, reminded reporters that it should be noted that the "Athena" did not carry munitions. Less direct, but even more forceful, was the President's explanation of the interpretation he had placed upon the Monroe doctrine with respect to Canada. A year ago, in a speech at the dedication of a U. S.-Canadian bridge, the President said that "the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other (than the British) empire."

NO EXPANSION
A reporter asked him about the statement in the light of Canada's decision to declare herself at war with Germany.

The President insisted his statement had not meant an expansion of the meaning of the Monroe doctrine. At the time of its enunciation in 1823, he said, there was agreement that the doctrine meant not only that European countries would not be allowed further to extend their influence in this hemisphere, but also that possession of American territory should not be allowed to pass from one sovereignty to another.

At the time, this last concerned only a few offshore islands and minor continental possessions of European powers. But its application now would apply to Canada.

It was a splendid way of saying that the United States would not allow Germany to gain any foothold in the Americas, even if

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY, Buff's parents came to Boulder to find out what she is up to. Buff confesses to her mother that she is "head over heels about Tim."

Chapter 14

A Father's Advice

NEITHER woman was surprised to have Lance arrive early with Tim, bewildered and a little angry in tow. Lance triumphantly exhibited a notebook crammed with sketches. "Got 'em hanging around Corliss's office," he explained. "Wonderful place. Corking types. Eleanor, I think we'll stay on here a week or so. Too bad Buff hasn't room for us, but then the hotel's comfortable enough. Corliss has promised to show me some types that will fit right into my plans for the new series."

Buff was demure and quiet all through the meal. Lance's exuberance made any other attitude impossible, and it pleased her to see Tim thawing out minute by minute, under the genuine interest the older man displayed in his work. Confronted by Buff's father, and feeling an apology due for his long stay at the ranch, Tim had tried to put into words something of what had happened to him.

He was halfway through his second stumbling sentence when the car horn gripped him excitedly by the arm. "Look at that fellow outside! Tim, my boy, go out and engage him in conversation for five minutes, will you? Five will do though if you could make it ten... get a move on!"

Toward the end of the afternoon, when Lance firmly annexed him for dinner, Tim made a second and more determined effort.

"Mr. Carroll, about Buff. I think you ought to know..." "I know Buff, and that's all that's necessary," Lance chuckled. "If she's picked you as her partner for the march up a church aisle, my boy, you might as well give up first as last. What that daughter of mine wants she gets—regardless. It's simpler to yield than to fight. I've found."

Tim's jaw set stubbornly. "You must do as you think best, of course, sir, but remember I'm not her father; I'm not related to her in any way. I want to make it clear to you that Buff is staying in Boulder because she chooses to, not because of any persuasion on my part."

Lance nodded, turned his head to view with admiration a grizzled man who might be either a WPA worker, or a miner. Tim thought with grim amusement.

The Carrolls spent ten days in Boulder. Lance was here, there and everywhere in his usual friendly way.

The Denver and Boulder papers were highly excited by his presence and he was generous with interviews. Buff did not know whether it was by chance or by intention that each newspaper story contained some mention of Timothy Corliss, friend and recent guest of the famous artist. Whatever the motive, the effect was beneficial.

George caught Buff alone and told her, smiling radiantly, that Tim was now the town's white-headed boy, his recent escapade with Iris DeMuth apparently forgotten by popular consent.

The evening before her parents left, they had a serious talk with their only child. Queerly enough it was Lance who began it. "Buff, that young man of yours is all right," he announced.

"That's honestly your advice, Lance?" "Father and daughter exchanged a long look; a look which made Eleanor feel momentarily isolated. She reminded herself that Buff had always been more Lance's child than hers; touched with his genius, endowed with his ability to get his own way, gifted with his happy-go-lucky charm.

"My advice—honestly. At least for a few months. Between us, we've had a haul on him out of his shell—for the time being at least."

she should defeat England and claim her colonies in part settlement. With equal point it brightened up the administration argument that a neutrality act injuring England is not an especially good thing.

Man About Manhattan

New York—In the world of the theater, drama stems mostly from life, but a news dispatch from the interior of Europe tells how this process has been reversed and gives us an instance where life, if not stemming, is certainly paralleling the familiar lines of Bob Sherwood's play, "Idiot's Delight."

Much emphasis is being placed on the ability of these men to rise above the bonds of menial slavery and with a place on contemporary letters, but that sort of thing has been going on for centuries. Knute Hansum, the Scandinavian writer, began life as a street-car conductor in Chicago. Jack London was for years a stevedore along the docks of San Francisco.

$20,000,000 Worth?
San Francisco, (AP) — Carefully guarded, a collection of choice Chinese jade has gone on display in the Chinese village at the world's fair here. Difficult to appraise because of its unique character, the collection is valued as high as $20,000,000 by some Chinese. A miniature temple carved entirely from the valuable stone is the feature of the exhibition.

NEED LAXATIVE? TAKE ALL-VEGETABLE ONE

Don't let impatience lead you into harsh measures for the relief of constipation! There's no use. A little spicy, all-vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT, taken by simple directions, will gently persuade your bowels. Take it at night. That should give you plenty of time for sleep. Morning usually brings punctual, thorough relief from constipation's symptoms—headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, loss of appetite and energy. BLACK-DRAUGHT's main ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative," which helps to tone the intestinal muscles. It's economical, too. 25 to 40 doses: 25c.—(Adv.)

AT LAST FANS, HERE IS TRUTH

Ohio State Has A Team and That Is All

By J. H. COLBURN
(AP Feature Service Writer)
Columbus, Ohio—A team without a glamour boy.

That's what they're saying at Ohio State University about those razzle dazzle Bucks of Coach Francis A. Schmidt.

"There are no stars; no triple threat men. Not even the lettermen are sure of a starting assignment!" That's the locker room talk as the one-time vaunted "Scarlet Scourge" prepares for perhaps its toughest season in years.

Sixty-two players, largest squad since Schmidt came to Ohio State five years ago, came forth to be developed into a combination good enough to better last year's record of four won, three lost, and one tied. State finished sixth in the Big Ten.

Twenty-eight of the players are sophomores, indicative of the sweeping hunt for new material.

The squad as a whole, though, Schmidt believes, will provide a more mobile unit to execute his intricate ball-handling plays.

Give up razzle dazzle? Not Schmidt.

Why, throughout the summer, the Buck players have been "boning" over 200 plays, most of them of the trick variety, and some of which Schmidt picked up watching basketball games last winter.

The appearance of Johnny Rabb, the team's biggest ground-gainer two years ago, in good playing condition, shed a bright ray on the outlook. The slippery running Barber-ton, Ohio, youth was out of action last year because of a knee injury.

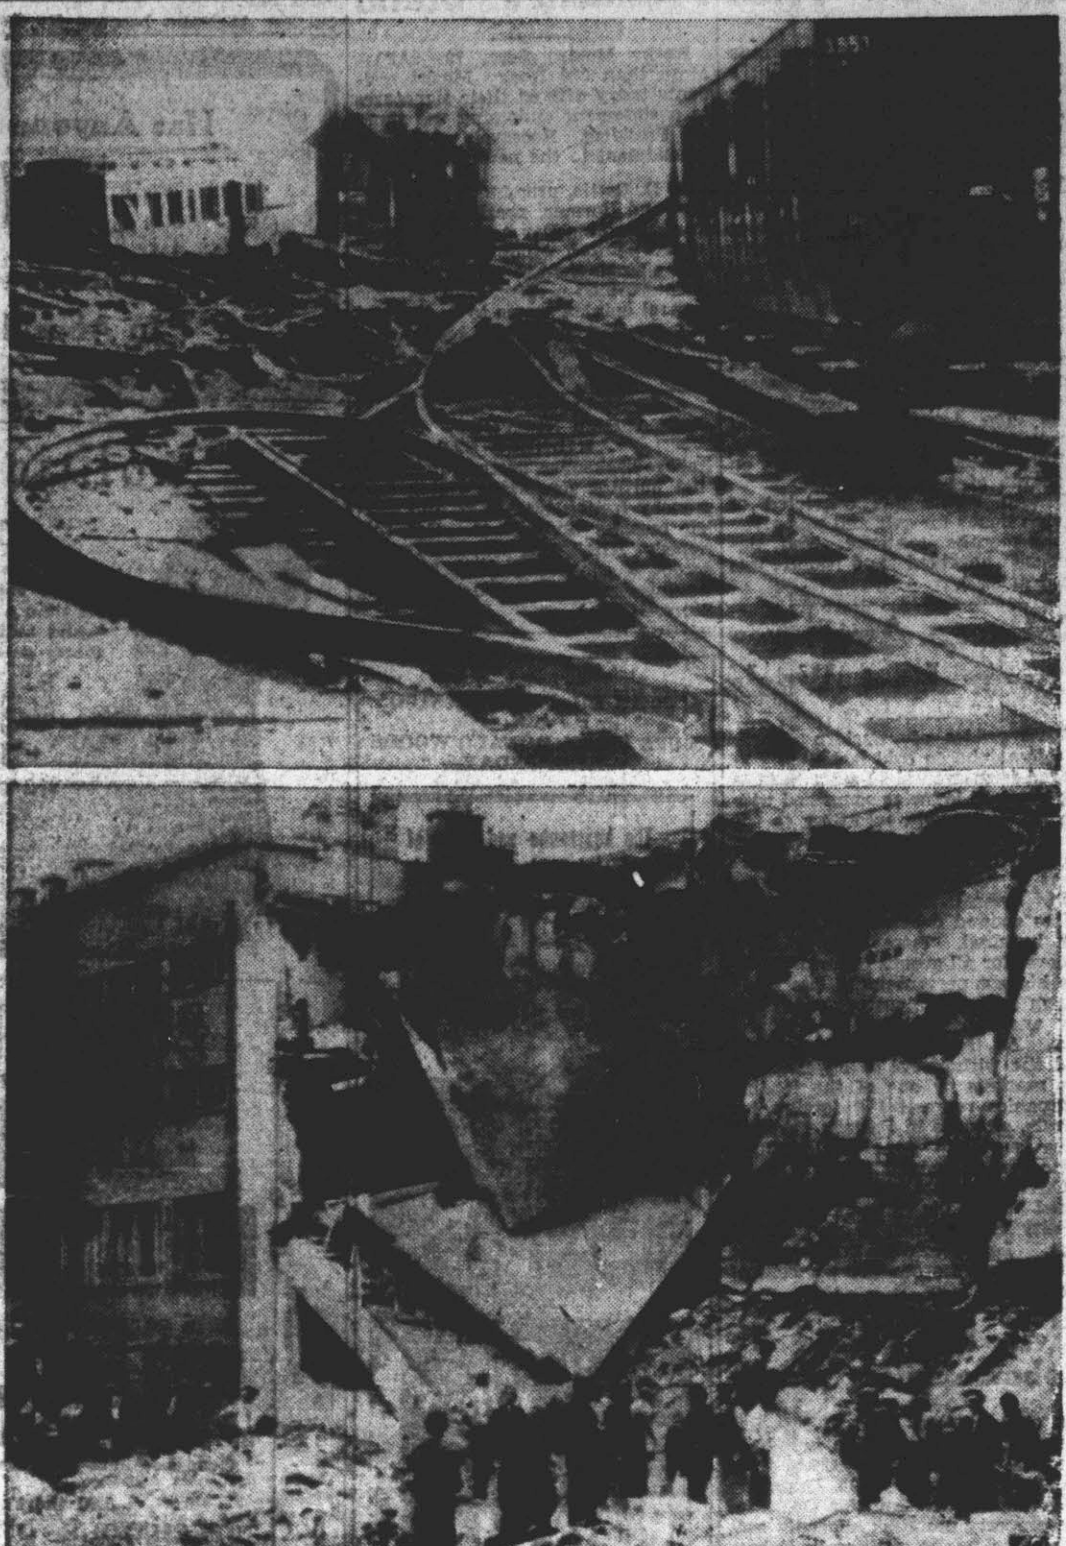

Rabb'll get plenty of competition at his old fullback post, though, from plunging James Lamhurst of Willard, Ohio, who grabbed the ground gaining laurels last season. Schmidt thinks possibly he can work them both into his backfield, with Johnny at a halfback spot.

Typical of the coaching staff's attitude was Line Coach Ernie Gott-frey's reply to which would be the toughest team to beat.

"Missouri," he said, "and all after that."

Ohio opens with Missouri Oct. 7, then meets the following: North-western Oct. 14, Minnesota Oct. 21, Cornell Oct. 28, Indiana Nov. 4, Chicago Nov. 11, Illinois Nov. 18, and Michigan Nov. 25.

Poland After Rain of German Bombs

Candidates Are Unable To Arouse Much Interest

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Sept. 18. — North Carolina's unannounced, but suspected, candidates are now strictly and completely behind the eight ball; and their present chances for emerging from the shadow of that big, dark object are none too encouraging.

Even before Herr Hitler began to ruin Europe the boys were finding it a matter of the utmost difficulty to arouse even a modicum of enthusiasm over their aspirations and ambitions, but now that the one-time Shickelgruber has succeeded in setting off the fuse that's likely to blow civilization into a cocked hat, the matter of difficulty has turned into a matter of complete impossibility.

Strive as they will (and it should be stated in parenthesis that they are striving with considerable will) it appears quite clear that Messrs. Horton, Broughton, Cooper, et al. are having only themselves for audiences when they begin talking about themselves and their gubernatorial qualifications.

From all sources available to this correspondent it is becoming increasingly clear that the people of North Carolina right now are more interested in the chances of the United States staying neutral than they are in who is Governor from now to doomsday.

So far as taking advantage of the situation, Raleigh's clever J. M. Broughton appears to have struck quite a popular chord when he issued a statement unqualifiedly calling for a cessation not only of political personalities and announcements, but of political activities.

'39 Grid Fans To See More Lateral Passes

By DELTON GRAHAM
(Sports Editor, AP Feature Service)

New York Football coaches foresee further exploitation of the lateral pass this fall, particularly on downfield plays, with limited use of the one-time popular 5-man defensive line.

A trend toward new defensive setups to confuse offensive assignments of linemen is also anticipated by top-flight college coaches polled by The Associated Press Feature Service.

"I look for more lateral passing, especially downfield," said Dick Harlow of Harvard in expressing the majority opinion.

"I believe that as boys come up to college football with high school experience in the lateral, its increased use will be inevitable," Biff Jones of Nebraska explained.

Frank Thomas of Alabama and Carl Snavely of Cornell share the opinion, though, that "outstanding teams will use the lateral very sparingly."

"The reaction against the 5-man line has set in, too," Thomas said. "Coaches have discovered its weaknesses and are inclined to turn back to the more orthodox 6-man line."

"Coaches I have talked with are agreed that the 5-man line is weak against forward passes, even though there is one more man in the secondary," Thomas explained. "The basic principal of forward pass defense is the ability of the forward wall to rush the passer. If this is not done well, many passes will be completed regardless of how many men are in the secondary."

Snavely believes that more teams will use the 5-man line but that few will use it exclusively. "I think it is coming to be regarded generally as only a variation in defensive measures good for the purpose of upsetting the planned strategy of the opposing field general and, of course, causing some confusion in blocking assignments for the team that is not adequately prepared to meet it," he said.

The 5-man line has found little favor in the West and Howard Jones of Southern California think it will be used even less this year. On the offensive the trend will be more than ever toward a "balanced attack."

"It appears to me that there is a tendency to recognize more fully the value of a well-balanced attack using the punt, pass and run as offensive weapons and threats," said Wallace Wade of Duke.

"From the standpoint of offensive I believe the tendency will be toward a balanced attack, stressing power deception with lateral and forward passing," Andy Kerr of Colgate reported. "The forward pass is the balance wheel of the modern attack."

"I look for a better use of the forward pass this fall," said Harvard's Dick Harlow.

"Forward passing is undergoing a very definite revolution in its ultimate object of getting receivers into the open. This can be done in only two ways—by maneuvers of the various receivers and by maneuvers of the ball carrier. This year, it is a 15 yard penalty and loss of down. This change will have a tendency to increase shovel passing. And then, too, it seems to be about as good a way as any to keep opponents from rushing the passer with abandon."

"There may be a larger proportion of running passes and shovel passes," agreed Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern.

"For several years there has been an increasing use of trap plays at all points in the line. I rather anticipate a swing back toward straight blocking, possibly even a revival of the old wedge play, since defensive guards and tackles hesitate to charge because of traps," he pointed out.

"One other possible development on defense which has been used extensively in the East is a planned angle charge; that is, all defensive linemen charging straight ahead, right or left, as a unit, rather than guarding their normal defensive territory," Waldorf said.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The stock market swung into another fast war boom rally today following the long speech of Hitler in which broadcast listeners apparently could find no concrete peace proposals.
Led by steels, favorite issues jumped two to more than seven around the start of the final hour, with the ticker tape for a while as much as three minutes behind floor transactions.
Extreme advances were shaded in a number of cases at the close. Transfers approximated 1,700,000 shares.

PRESBYTERIAN SESSION HELD

timely futile and unchristian in remembering that the church is a universal institution with true believers in all nations; that the program of the church includes the evangelism of peace as well as the initial evangelism that brings in new members; and that the church never surrenders the conviction that the country can be saved from war if the resources at her disposal are used. The power of prayer, both individual and collective, was urged as the greatest resource of the church in this emergency.
"Interpret it as you will," said Dr. Cunningham, "but within sixty days after President Woodrow Wilson called the nation to a day of prayer, the armistice was signed," as he drew from the experiences of the World war of 1914-18.
At the opening service on Monday evening, the Rev. P. D. Miller, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, stressed the nature of the evangelistic program of the church. He declared that such a program should be based on four essential factors: a recognition of a Divine Savior, of human sinfulness, upon salvation by grace rather than works, centered around the cross of Christ, and the minister as the true evangelist with the assistance of his local officers.
"If we cannot save the world, perhaps by God's good grace," he declared, "we can save that part of our door today."
The Rev. R. H. Stone of West Jefferson spoke of the growth of the church home mission effort, and pointed to the large number of congregations in the Southern Presbyterian Church—our home mission task—and "From little missions big churches grow. Plant an outpost Sunday School."
Services were held in the Austin building at East Carolina Teachers College, where wall charts and maps showed where active work was being done in each of the nine Presbyteries of the North Carolina Synod.
Two electric signs kept constantly before the audience the statements: "1,200,000 unreached souls in North Carolina—our home mission task," and "From little missions big churches grow. Plant an outpost Sunday School."
Presiding this afternoon was the Rev. G. A. Wilson, Jr., of Wilmington. During the morning, the Rev. C. E. Hodzkin of Greensboro, and last night, W. H. Belk of Charlotte.
The Rev. Robert S. Boyd, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, and Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of the college, welcomed the delegation, and the Rev. Dr. Cunningham of Winston-Salem responded.
Devotional exercises this morning were led by the Rev. Malcolm Calhoun of St. Pauls, while the Rev. C. C. Crawford of Elizabeth City led the devotional exercises Monday evening.
The entire program was arranged under the leadership of the Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D. D., of Greensboro, superintendent of Home Missions for the entire Synod. Dr. Gillespie announced that such a conference would become an annual feature, preceding regular meetings of the Synod.

The first such meeting was held in 1937 in Raleigh and this gathering was the second. At least 150 representatives of every Presbytery and all branches of the church's work were in attendance.
The Synod will open its regular conference tonight. A new moderator and other executive officers will be elected.

doubting the word of German statesmen should also be critical of the statement of the countries which forced the Versailles treaty upon the Germans.
The Versailles peace offers, he said, spell "stupidity" and casts doubt on the sanity of the men who made them.

Richmond Livestock

(Courtesy J. N. and J. L. Williams)
Richmond, Va., Sept. 19.—Hogs—receipts fairly heavy; market ten cents higher; quoting good and choice, 160-225 lb. run of gilts and barrows, $7.80 to $8. top; 120-140 lbs., $6.90 to $7.15; 140-160 lbs., $7.30 to $7.55; 225-250 lbs., $7.45 to $7.70; 250-300 lbs., $7.35 to $7.60. Sows under 350 lbs; $5.85 to $6.10; over 350 lbs., $5.35 to $5.60.
Cattle receipts fairly liberal, especially vealers; market about steady, except for vealers show some weakness. Quoting steers, good grass fat butcher steers, practically all weights from $6.50 to $9, about the top. Medium grade butcher steers, $7.25 to $8.25; common run steers, as to value, $6.50 to $7. Heifers, most of run average nearby dairy cows. Selling mostly $5.50 to $6.50, about the top. Cows, good grass fat cows, $6 top for average run strictly fat; medium cows $5 to $5.50; common $4 to $4.75; canners, $3.50 to $3.75. Bulls, good fat dairy type butcher bulls, $6 to $6.50; medium run dairy bulls, $5.50 to $5.75; common $4.50 to $4.75. Vealers heavy receipts for most of day, market barely steady; asking $10 top; few early sales made at $9 to $9.75; market unsettled, weak to possibly 25 to 50 cents lower on the average.
Sheep—practically no receipts of any consequence for several days. Quoting nearby spring lambs $8.25 to $8.50, top. Butcher ewes, as to quality, $2 to $3 for average run offered for sale.

Tobacco Averages Lower Last Week

Most grades of Eastern North Carolina tobacco sold last week averaged from around 50 cents to 1.50 per hundred lower as compared with the previous week, according to the U. S. Agricultural Marketing Service and the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.
In several instances, however, prices showed declines of $2 and $3 per hundred. Price declines were general for all grades of grades with the highest percentage of loss being shown among the cutter grades and low and fair qualities of leaf and hogs. As the result of low prices and the withdrawal of buyers from the markets by one of the leading companies representing foreign interests, all sales in Eastern Carolina were suspended for an indefinite period on September 12.
Offerings last week were comparatively principally of common to fair quality leaf and fat to good quality hogs. Leaf grades predominated and composed around 60 per cent of the sales.

Drivers Uninjured In Pitt Accidents

Highway Patrolmen C. L. Tenny and W. W. Messing investigated two traffic accidents on Pitt county highways last night, but occupants of the vehicles escaped injury.
Automobiles driven by Roy T. Cox Jr., of Winterville, and Mrs. Beatrice Tilley of Ayden were involved in a collision on the Ayden-Kinston highway, with combined damage to both automobiles ranging at $100. No charges have been preferred. Officers said the motor vehicles sideswiped.
A fish truck driven by Bunnie B. Brown of Newport News, Va., collided with an automobile driven by K. T. Arnold of Greenville just across the Tar River bridge. Only slight damage was reported. No charge was brought against either driver.

No Scrap Tobacco Cases Are Tried

None of the charges of dealing in scrap or untold tobacco without a license, which resulted from a drive put on here by the State Revenue Department last week, was aired in County court this morning.

Three of the cases were disposed of when a nol pros with leave was taken in each, and the others were continued for a month. Defendants in the three which were nol pros were Eldridge Sumrell, Pittman Wayne and Wade T. Britt.

John Willie Bradley tendered a plea of guilty to driving careless and reckless and assault, and judgment was suspended upon payment of costs. The defendant's license was revoked for 12 months.

Bill Wooten was given 30 days on a charge of trespassing.
Charlie Lewis was convicted of having liquor for sale and was given a six-months sentence. The defendant appealed and bond was fixed at $200.

Rocky Mount For President's Stand

Rocky Mount, Sept. 19.—(AP)—More than 800 Rocky Mount residents today affixed their signatures to a statement endorsing the stand of President Roosevelt for an amendment to the neutrality act.

K. D. Battle, prominent local lawyer and former president of the North Carolina Bar Association, said of the petition which he sponsored, "Not a single man to whom I showed it entertained a different view. The general opinion seems to be the best way for this country to keep out of war is for England and France to win the present struggle."
