PEACE OVERTURES MADE BY GERMANY AND RUSSIA

RUSSIA SIGNS ANOTHER PACT WITH GERMANY

New Treaty Promises Economic Support In War

MILITARY HELP IS THREATENED

Soviet also concludes Pact with Estonia Permitting Naval And Air Bases in That Country

Moscow, Sept. 29.—(AP) In a new treaty of friendship with Germany, signed early today, Soviet Russia promised economic support in war and at the same time committed herself to consult on joint "measures" with Germany unless Great Britain and France agree to peace.

Observers took the reference to "measures" as an implied threat of possible military aid against Germany's enemies in the west.

Shortly before the Russian-German treaty was signed, Russia announced conclusion of sweeping military and trade agreements with her little Baltic neighbor, Estonia, once part of the Russian empire.

Thus, Russia gained a firm military and economic hold over the North Baltic and greatly increased her influence over the Gulf of Riga, where Latvia's port is situated; the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Bothnia, vital commercially to Sweden and Finland.

Russia won the right to fortify two strategic Estonian islands and a mainland port as naval and air bases.

The ties with Estonia gave the U.S.S.R. the right to create naval and air bases and maintain a "limited number" of troops on Estonian territory, along with economic privileges, which it was estimated would increase Russian-Estonian trade by four and one-half times.

It was reported in Riga, Latvia, that Russia gained concessions sufficient to garrison 25,000 soldiers on Estonian soil.

German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotov signed the agreement early today in the presence of Joseph Stalin.

Von Ribbentrop left Moscow at 12:40 p. m. by airplane after receiving the Italian ambassador to Russia Russo, to give him a text of the agreement.

Highlights in the agreement as announced were:

- 1. Establishment of a mutual frontier through Poland. It was reported that allowance still existed for creation of a small Polish protectorate state.
2. A warning to third powers not to interfere with the new boundaries.
3. An agreement to strive for peace.
4. An agreement to fully develop economic relations.

Robberies Probed By Local Officers

Two robberies occurred in Greenville last night. It was reported by police headquarters today, one being a Negro store and the other a chicken yard.

M. L. Bartlett's store on Fifth street was entered by a person or persons who pryed open a side window. The owner said he was unable to determine what was missing but knew that some cigarettes were taken. It is believed an unsuccessful attempt was made to break into the safe.

The chicken yard of Mrs. E. C. Cox of 1207 Dickinson avenue was invaded and seven pullets and one hen stolen during the night.

Much Interest Shown In County Meetings

Township meetings to discuss the tobacco situation and urge support for control at the polls next week were scheduled for this afternoon at Grimesland and tonight at 8 o'clock at the Chicod high school.

Tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock the Swift Creek meeting will be held at Stokes' store and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock the Belvoir meeting at the high school building.

Meetings held at Bethel and Carolina yesterday were declared "very effective" with farmers and business men unanimously endorsing control and promising to work for it in the forthcoming referendum.

Battlefield of Question Marks

Moscow suddenly has become the center of European diplomacy and politics and the nations of southeastern Europe are watching developments closely for any sign of moves that might affect their fate. This map indicates the foremost questions of the moment.

Roosevelt Emphasizes America is Not in War

Sees no Public Interest in Special Board Reports

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—(AP) President Roosevelt told a press conference today that if the United States was not in the war and was not going into it, he saw no public interest at this time in war and industrial mobilization plans being considered by various governments and private boards.

Frequent attempts by reporters to get the chief executive to talk about these war policy and industrial priorities plans evoked presidential reticence that such reports were brought up to date from time to time and since this country was not a party and did not intend to become a party to the present conflict there was no reason to make public the reports.

The President said army and navy boards prepared defense plans every year.

From time to time, he added, special boards, such as the present War Resources board, take up other phases that fit in with defense plans.

There was no controversy involved in any of them, he said.

Asked what the Resources board report on, he said the members had been studying the possibilities of industrial expansion, the location and stepping up of industry, relationship of transportation to industry, added power facilities, various forms of administrative handling and the relationship of agriculture to industry.

Q—What date will the referendum be held?

A—Thursday, October 5.

Q—What are the reasons for an early referendum?

A—To determine whether farmers are willing to regulate marketings in 1940 so as to adjust production to probable demand. If farmers are willing to support the program by voting in favor of quotas, then the government can take action on a sound basis to support prices on the grades usually purchased by the foreign countries which have withdrawn their buyers.

Q—Who can vote in the referendum?

A—Any farmer who shared in the proceeds of a tobacco crop in 1939 as owner, tenant or share-cropper is considered as having been engaged in the production of flue-cured tobacco in 1939. If several members of the same family participated in the production of flue-cured tobacco on a farm in 1939, the only member or members of such family who shall be eligible to vote shall be the member or members of the family who had an independent bona fide status as operator, share-tenant or share-cropper and was entitled as such to share in the proceeds of the 1939 crop.

PITTMAN SAYS ANTI-LOAN ACT WOULD BE VOID

Declares Neutrality Bill Would Permit Lending

JOHNSON PLANS TO UPHOLD ACT

Anti-Loan Measure Prohibits Loans To Any Nations in Default in Debts From World War

Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP) — Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said today that the administration's neutrality bill would modify the Johnson act forbidding loans to nations in default on World War debts.

Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) promptly announced he would offer an amendment to the bill to prevent it from conflicting with the anti-loan act which he sponsored several years ago.

Pittman said he thought the Johnson act would be modified by a provision of the new bill permitting 90-day credits to belligerent governments.

"The Johnson act was passed in peace-time," Pittman said. "We are now facing a new condition in Europe."

He added that because Germany was not classed as a war defaulter it could so far as that was concerned borrow all the money American citizens were willing to lend.

On the other hand, he said, Great Britain and France could obtain no advances unless the Johnson act was modified.

The Foreign Relations committee approved finally today last-minute changes in the neutrality bill on which Senate debate will start Monday.

Other Washington developments.

Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House Military Affairs committee, said after a White House conference that a further increase in the enlisted strength of the army probably would be sought at the session of Congress beginning in January.

May did not mention any figures, but noted that the President already has ordered the army to increase to 227,000. The full peacetime authorized strength is 280,000.

The flue-cured tobacco situation arising from British withdrawal of buyers from American markets, was described by President Roosevelt as complicated and involving four or five kinds of tobacco.

The chief executive said at his press conference that in recent conferences he had told Secretary Wallace and Senator Bailey of North Carolina that the United States had a better tobacco than could be purchased on the other side during the World War.

William Z. Foster, chairman of the American Communist party, told the committee with vehemence that "the Soviet union is not cooperating with the Nazis."

"The Soviet Union has stopped Hitler in the east and has smashed the fascist axis," Foster declared after committee members had referred several times to the new "Communist-Nazi alliance."

Great Britain and France Represented as Rejecting German-Soviet Peace Offer

Two Countries Confer Over Latest Proposals, But Unofficially Declared to Continue War; Offer Viewed as Attempt To Frighten Allies

London, Sept. 29.—(AP) Great Britain and France consulted today on the German-Soviet Russian peace overture and the British cabinet examined it.

Informed sources, however, said Britain's determination to continue the war against Germany was in no way altered by the new declaration.

These sources represented the government as viewing the move as a final supreme effort to "frighten" Britain and France into a quick peace.

But, they said, the desired results will not be produced.

It was announced Prime Minister Chamberlain would make Britain's official reply Monday in the House of Commons.

Of the new trade pact between Russia and Germany, the British government was said in informed quarters to believe that Russia would not be able to export any large amounts of supplies because of her home needs.

Russia already had a trade agreement with Germany and the British argued the new measure could not go much beyond that in increasing the two nations' commerce.

Informed sources said the government had no information as to whether Germany and Russia had included a military alliance in their Moscow talks.

The clause in the Berlin communiqué announcing the new agreement in which "joint consultations" on "necessary measures" if the war continues was interpreted in some quarters here as a threat, however.

The reported new Berlin-Moscow accord came shortly after an authoritative announcement last night that Soviet Ambassador to London Maisky had assured the British government Russia was willing to start negotiations for a war trade agreement.

Act Backed With Threat To Talk New 'Measures'

Offer Provides For Peace on Nazi-Soviet Terms, With Premier Mussolini Apparently Chosen As Peace-Maker; Division of Poland Is Completed by Two Invaders

Berlin, Sept. 29.—(AP) The division of Poland between Germany and Soviet Russia completed, the two powers confronted Britain and France today with peace overtures backed by the threat they would "consult each other as to necessary measures" unless the Western powers agree to end hostilities.

Adolf Hitler's axis partner, Premier Mussolini, appeared chosen for the role of "peace-maker" in the opinion of informed quarters. These sources pointed out Italy ranks first among the "friendly powers" mentioned in the German-Russian accord.

The accord, which partitions Poland for the fourth time, dividing the conquered land almost equally between the two powers, pledges them to seek together peace on their own terms and provide for closer economic ties, was signed in Moscow early today.

The new German-Russian border gives Germany more territory than the recent line of military occupation, making the river Bug the chief element of the boundary.

The military mopping up in Poland was nearly completed, but the German high command announced that the actual entry of Nazi troops into surrendered Warsaw probably would not begin until October 2. The Polish troops, disarmed, will begin to march out tonight, it was announced, but two or three days are needed to arrange details of the turnover.

The way for Mussolini's entrance into the situation has been prepared steadily since II Duce's speech last week-end, through inspired Nazi press comments from official quarters.

At the same time, government sources declined to venture into the discussion of what was hailed here as a "world historic agreement with the Soviet union."

Joseph Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, who arrived here today for a visit, presided in the absence of Governor Hoey, who is away speaking.

Eight committee members besides Daniels, including former Gov. Max Gardner, disposed of routine business.

Secretary Henry London reported that deans of the institutions listed enrollment at the units this year and last as: Chapel Hill, 3,544 and 3,212; N. C. State at Raleigh, 2,325 and 2,155; Woman's College at Greensboro, 2,215 and 1,960.

Air Victory Is Claimed By Nazis Over Britain

Five Royal Air Force Planes Reported Downed

Berlin, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The high command announced today that five of six British warplanes attempting to attack a German naval unit off Helgoland had been shot down by German pursuit planes.

The announcement said the British attack was fruitless.

Helgoland, is Germany's island naval base in the North sea.

The communiqué said that when the six British planes, after assailing the warships without success, flew away to the west, German fighters attacked them.

In a brief battle, five of the British planes were shot down and plunged into the sea," the high command said.

The battle, it said, occurred this morning.

London, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The British government announced tonight that a Royal Air Force unit had attacked the German fleet at Helgoland and "some of the planes have not yet returned."

Paris, Sept. 29.—(AP)—French advisers from the front today reported a French advance down the eastern bank of the Moselle river which carried French lines forward about 1,500 yards to the outskirts of the German villages of Besch and Borg.

The dispatches said the advance was made with little fighting and accomplished a reorganization of the French front.

A German counter-attack about half a mile east of this sector was reported repulsed.

Warrants Quashed In Harlan Strike

Harlan, Ky., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Indictments naming more than 400 persons on charges arising from labor disturbances in the Harlan coal fields early this summer were dismissed in Harlan Circuit court today.

On motion of Commonwealth Attorney Daniel Boone Smith Special Judge J. S. Forester of Harlan, ordered the charges dropped.

"The dismissal of these cases," Judge Forester said, "is part of an approved settlement worked out by the efforts of high officers of the State of Kentucky, including the Governor (A. B. Chandler) and all interested parties."

In order to promote industrial peace and to assist all persons affected to live in peace and work together in harmony the charges are dismissed.

A majority of the indictments arose from a battle at nearby Stanfield July 12 between national guardsmen and pickets in which two persons, including a national guard captain, were killed.

Most of those indicted were charged with banding and confederating a blanket accusation in Kentucky.

TOBACCONISTS BACK CONTROL

Warehousemen Unanimously In Favor Of Proposal

Greenville tobacco warehousemen last night reiterated their support to crop control and discussed methods whereby they could aid in insuring an overwhelming favorable majority in the referendum to be held next Thursday.

Although the referendum was the principal question discussed at the meeting plans for resumption of sales on Tuesday, October 10, were considered and the warehousemen decided to follow the market sales card when auctions begin again.

President Harvey Ward called the meeting to order and presided over the session which was attended by Biggs Cannon of the Dixie warehouse, W. Z. Morton of Forbes and Morton; Jack Moyer and M. R. Long of Gorman's; H. R. Rogers of Harris and Rogers; R. V. Keel and Wavland Sermons of Keels; Floyd McGowan of the New Carolina; G. W. Smith and B. B. Sugg of Smith and Sugg; and R. C. Rankin, sales supervisor.

The local warehousemen unanimously endorsed control and pledged themselves to work to that end, giving all of their available time to the campaign to enlist farmers for the proposal.

Owners and others connected with Greenville warehouses are going to various other counties "preaching" control to farmers and stressing to them the importance of going to the polls next week and casting a favorable vote.

Control Is Urged By Commissioner

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Agriculture Commissioner Kerr Scott today asked North Carolina farmers to vote for control of the 1940 tobacco crop in next Thursday's referendum.

In a radio talk, which was one of a series planned by control advocates, the commissioner urged crop control "apparently the only solution offered to save you in this present crisis."

The control program, he added, "represents a conscientious effort on the part of your agricultural leaders to stabilize tobacco prices for this year as well as next year."

Birthday Letter.
Following is a birthday letter written by Mrs. Clarence Barnhill to her 65-year-old mother, Mrs. Leah Dupree of Greenville, Route 4.

Away back in the years of 1874 and 1875, a young lady rocked and sang to a little baby girl by the name of Leah. This young lady watched over this baby and wondered just what would she do in life, and thought of her as a mother, and would the Leah ever rock children of her own as she was doing her.

This little baby girl, Leah, through many bumps, and hurts grew to be a young lady like her mother. I feel sure if Leah's mother could see the six children that her daughter had rocked, even two at the same time, she would know what a blessing this 65-year-old mother is to her family. Through many trials and bad roads, and by her prayers, the six children are all living, and most of them have rocked babies, too.

Oh boy, oh boy, am I proud to say, that the little baby Leah, back in 1875 is now my dear old mother. Her hair has turned to silver and there are wrinkles in her face but it is mother to me just the same. She is not perfect, I wouldn't want her to be, but she is more perfect, prettier and dearer than any other mother to her "baby girl."

—Margaret.

Reports of the retiring treasurer and Child Welfare chairman were received and adopted. The Auxiliary voted to send a contribution to the King's Daughters fund to be used for a chapel at the Stonewall Jackson Training School at Concord, N. C., and to the Service League fund for a hospital bed.

The officers for the year were installed by Mrs. Lucier Bowling. Owing to the illness of Mr. E. P. Coston, Mrs. Coston, who had been elected president, was unable to serve and Mrs. Arthur Corey who so ably served as president during the past year, graciously accepted re-election.

Mrs. Corey announced the State installation of officers to be held in Greenville on October 16 and named committees to help carry out the program.

At the close of the business session, the hostesses served tall refreshing lime drinks, assorted cakes and "toasted pecans"—Reported.

Entertains At Series Of Parties.
Mrs. G. C. Honeycutt entertained her bridge club and several additional guests on Tuesday afternoon, at her home in Chatham Circle.

Fall flowers in brilliant shades decorated the rooms where the tables were arranged. At the close of playing, Mrs. Honeycutt presented Mrs. I. J. Edwards the guest prize for making high score. The high score club prize was awarded Mrs. H. I. West, and Mrs. DeRock Vincent the second high. The traveling prize fell to Mrs. R. R. Bennett.

Late in the afternoon the hostess served an ice course with salted nuts.

On Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening Mrs. Honeycutt again entertained at bridge. On Wednesday, Mrs. J. A. Karsnak won the high score and the traveling prizes, and Mrs. C. D. Hatley the low score prize. On Thursday evening the high score prize was presented to Mrs. Ed Moore and the second high to Mrs. Irene Clark.

A delightful salad course with iced tea was served, each day, by the hostess.

Greensboro College Alumnae.
The local chapter of the Greensboro College Alumnae Association held its first meeting of the new college year on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 27th, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Harris on West Third street.

The rooms of the attractive new home were beautifully decorated with ageratum, brilliant dahlias and purple asters.

The president, Mrs. J. R. Gullidge, called the meeting to order and presided over the brief business session. The group was happy to welcome Mrs. Kenneth Gallup as a new member, and Mrs. Ernest Brown as a visitor for the afternoon.

After calling the roll and reading the minutes of the last two meetings before adjournment for the summer recess, the secretary, Mrs. J. E. Parkerson, read several interesting articles from the new college bulletin and passed pictures of peculiar interest to alumnae members.

The program for this occasion consisted entirely of a most delightful travel-talk, given in a very charming and informal manner by Mrs. J. R. Gullidge.

Mrs. Gullidge recounted and graphically described the many interesting things that she saw, experiences with which she met, and the various places of beauty and interest which she visited on her recent trip to and from the West Coast, the glowing Southwest and Mexico.

Everywhere, Mrs. Gullidge said she was deeply impressed by the incredible beauty, the awe-inspiring distances and the vastness of the West.

Illustrating her talk with numerous pictures, folders and brochures, which she passed at intervals, and by an exhibit of rugs, aprons, Van Brickle pottery and jewelry traced on a map the course of her trip and, as well as she could, took us with her through the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Western North Carolina, into Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Utah and Nevada. Through the Rocky Mountains we went, into California. Then through Arizona and New Mexico, we journeyed with her down to Juarez, Mexico, back to El Paso, Texas, and to San Antonio. Thence through lower Mississippi to Tallahassee, Florida, and then home again through Georgia and South Carolina.

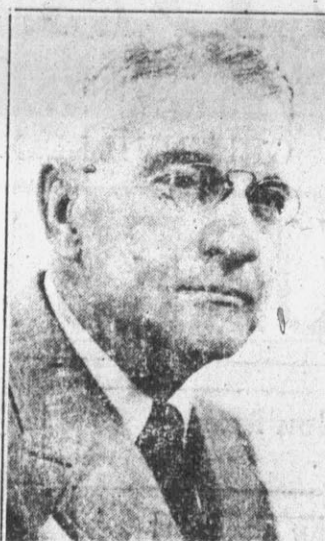

It was a marvelous trip which included: Boulder Dam, Carlsbad Caverns, the Mormon Temple and Tabernacle at Salt Lake City, and the Great Salt Lake; the famous Garden of the Gods and the Grand Canyon in Colorado, sightseeing in Los Angeles, Forest Lawn Memorial Park at Glendale, and a multitude of other beautiful and interesting places.

At the conclusion of this most enjoyable program, the hostess served a tempting salad plate with bread and individual squares of homemade cake.—Reported.

Ladies of the Round Table Meet.
Mrs. E. B. Higes was hostess at her home on Dickinson avenue Tuesday afternoon at the initial meeting of 1939-1940 of the "Round Table." Nearly one hundred percent of the members were present, including Miss Addie Johnston and Mrs. Robert Greene who will be guest members for a while. Mrs. Etheridge and Mrs. W. A. Browne were visiting guests for the afternoon. The president, Mrs. McGinnis, presided, opening the meeting with a request that the roll call be answered with personal vacation reminiscences, which were varied and interesting.

After the usual business routine Mrs. J. J. Everett presented the literary feature of the meeting by giving ing in her able and attractive manner a most interesting and comprehensive account of her visit in July to the Folger Memorial Shakespeare Library at Washington, D. C. The building is a unique structure, a shrine and a fitting repository for the spirit of Shakespeare, and the many treasures it contains.

It is a magnificent building of exquisite white marble modeled along strictly classic lines rectangular in shape with two entrances, one to the museum, one to the theatre. Between these entrances are nine high windows, and below the windows are panel reliefs in sculpture depicting scenes in famous Shakespearean plays. Within the building is a vast wealth of books, pamphlets, manuscripts, relics, curios, oil paintings, statues, medals and miscellaneous objects of art, stage properties and costumes and many other materials designed to illustrate Shakespeare and his time.

Mrs. Everett gave a brief resume of the life of Henry Clay Folger, singularly gifted Shakespearean scholar and collector of materials pertaining to Shakespeare and his age, also donor to our nation of one of the most magnificent structures.

State REA Studies New Devices and Technique

Raleigh, Sept. 29. — The State Rural Electrification Authority is busy studying new devices and technique recently developed and which are regarded as likely to reduce current cost to tenant and low-income farmers.

Both Director Dudley Bagley and Engineer J. M. Grainger see in the new devices—particularly in a new type transformer—a fine opportunity to make feasible extension of current to groups which have previously been barred through the high cost of making the connections to their homes.

The new device is being studied, too, by the municipal electrical plant of Washington, as indicated by correspondence between Mr. Bagley and State Senator W. B. Rodman. Mr. Bagley said, in fact,

Senate Committee Studies Neutrality Legislation

In the glare of floodlights in their faces and movie cameras grinding away, members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee met in Washington to study the new neutrality legislation by which President Roosevelt hopes to remove the arms embargo. Left to right around the far side of the table: Senators Guy M. Gillette (D-Ia.); Bennett Champ Clark (D-Mo.); Henrik Shipstead (F-L-Minn.); Wallace H. White (R-Me.); Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.); Robert M. LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.); Arthur Capper (R-Kas.); Hiram W. Johnson (R-Calif.); William E. Borah (R-Ida.); Chairman Key Pittman (D-Nev.); Walter F. George (D-Ga.); Robert F. Wagner (D-N.Y.); Tom Connally (D-Tex.); Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah); Theodore F. Green (D-R.I.); Lewis B. Swollenbach (D-Wash.); Claude Pepper (D-Fla.), his head partly hidden by camera.

Senator Rodman is largely responsible for the REA's interest, the Beaufort county legislator having noted something in the papers about new devices and having immediately taken the matter up with the Authority here.

Mr. Grainger, busy engaged in making drawings of the new transformer, was quite optimistic over potentialities of the new devices. The transformer, he said, has been specially designed for the Federal REA which is ordering some 10,000 of them for preliminary tests in western areas. If they prove practical and feasible they will be used on all Federally-sponsored Cooperatives, the REA engineer indicated.

If the service works as expected it will cut connection costs practically in half, making it possible for a home to be connected with a distribution line for about $35.

In addition to the transformer the Federal REA is studying a new type of circuit breaker and an underground wire from transformer to the house which serves both as a conductor and as a ground for the circuit.

According to Mr. Grainger this new service will permit a tenant farmer or a cropper to have electric lights, a radio and possibly other small appliances.

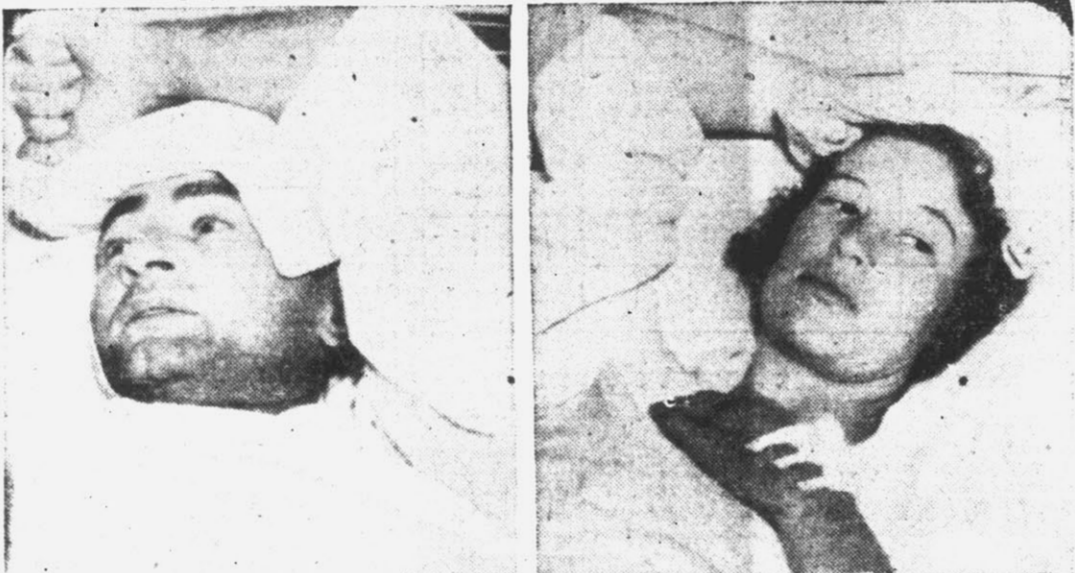

The minimum bill for each user on an REA-financed line averages about $2.50 in North Carolina, said Mr. Grainger. "This minimum is far beyond the means of many tenant farmers who heretofore have been unable to take electric service although the power lines pass their doors. Use of the newly developed equipment will make it possible for farm families to enjoy the minimum benefits of electricity at very low cost."

It is not possible to use the new service drops for farms where many appliances are installed or where any power equipment is to be used. In practical service they will permit the simultaneous use of a standard electric iron, a radio and 2 or 3 light bulbs. If the farmer finds later that he can afford to install and use more electrical equipment the service can be replaced by one of greater capacity and the standard rate schedules be made applicable.

One feature of the installation of these new services for low income farms is that the farmer himself will dig the trench from transformer pole to his house in which the service cable is to be laid, and will then fill it in. This contribution of work effects a major saving in the installation cost, which is thereby reduced to about $35, including transformer, circuit breaker and cable. The lowest cost service previously available was priced at from $75 to $100.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

Hollywood — Two careers in the same family: Florence Ryerson and Collin Clements.

She was a movie publicity woman who had taken up short-story writing and scenarios. He was a stage-crazy fellow who had been in the theater directing plays and staging them. He was doing it at Santa Barbara.

A well-meaning relative wanted to bring them together. They hated each other like poison—without ever meeting—for that reason. Once they met at the W.M.R.'s house by accident, and they didn't hate each other so much. They got themselves engaged.

Practically at the same time, they got themselves assigned to co-author a scenario called "Wife vs. Secretary." This was 13 years ago. It was to be a silent movie about careers for women. They argued so violently that they broke the engagement. Collin thought slightly differently about careers for women. The scenario was shelved, the engagement revived.

For 13 years of marriage and literary partnership they have been one of the town's most successful and prolific teams.

Three days a week Miss Ryerson goes to the studio where she is under contract. Collin Clements stays home to write. Their home is Shadow Ranch, a jewel of a spot half an hour from Hollywood, 10 acres with dogs, monkeys, birds, rabbits, flowers, fruit and trees. Miss Ryerson's son Hal (and Clements' son by adoption) also lives there.

The house, to which they've just added another wing, was originally built in 1869 and was a tumble-down relic when they started remodeling. Now it's a show-place, comfortable, roomy, home-like, not too large, but large enough to accommodate two careers and one marriage.

Their design for writing: According to Collin: "She writes—and I'm the editor. We thresh everything out first, talking it over at length, before we go to work."

According to Florence Ryerson: "We fight like mad over every point—and then we put it down, go over it together."

According to Collin: "When she wants to do one thing and I want to start another—she always wins. She's a woman. She cries."

According to F.R.: "When he wants to do one thing and I want to start another—he always wins. He's a man. He has his own way."

They keep regular working hours. Their one-act plays ("as good as $1,000 invested at 4 per cent," one of them said) are enacted in schools, little theaters, churches all over the country.

They have practically "retired" from Hollywood. Once a week, on Sunday, they have open house for friends. They don't try to mix gardening with writing.

They are both in love with their place. They like to tell the legend of the $30,000 in gold supposedly buried there after a stagcoach holdup in the old days. The story got around. They fenced the place but people still come exploring.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington.—The only blitzkrieg so far in the war has been visited upon the United States.

With lightning-flash rapidity the nation ran smack into a stack of problems growing out of the war, each sparkling hot. They were met last year in a way that led us directly into it. Yet nobody can argue for sure that a different handling this year will keep us out or even sustain an honorable neutrality.

First task was to bring back thousands of wandering American citizens caught either in the war zone or so far from home that they had to travel through war zones to get here. The State Department sent money over to Europe at once to take care of stranded Yankees. Last year it took a lot of cabling to convince Washington authorities that stranded Americans have to be brought home at government expense and no fiddling about technicalities of repayment.

HELPING THE BRITISH
The United States has had to take over British and French interests in Germany while those two nations fought the war. It meant not only jacking charge of the embassies and other physical properties, but also the immensely difficult job of getting stranded Englishmen and Frenchmen home.

The state department and its staff in Germany must work out, in conjunction with the Germans, some contention for treatment of prisoners. The embassy must see to it that British and French prisoners get treatment in compliance with international law.

A lot of technicalities have to be worked out to permit participation of the Red Cross in relief and hospital work. The American Red Cross is a semi-official agency in the United States and must be strictly impartial in extending aid.

But such as these are minor problems. Big ones are yet to be solved.

How far shall the United States insist upon its rights as a neutral? Last year President Wilson refused to let U. S. citizens be deprived of the right to travel on belligerent vessels in the war zone. The Lusitania carried down 124 Americans enjoying that right. That business has been stopped already this time.

HOW WHAT?
At one point last time this country was almost at the point of a diplomatic break with England over diversion of our ships. We would ship supplies to Scandinavian countries, knowing of course that they were trans-shipped to Germany. England said that wouldn't do, and seized our ships, taking them into British prize courts. How could she starve Germany down if Yankee food poured through by way of Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland? And yet, as a neutral, this country has a right to the trade. Shall the U. S. insist on the right this time?

If Germany says, "Keep your ships out of English waters as that is a war zone and they may be sunk by submarines," what shall we do? If England is entitled to enforce a long-distance blockade of Germany with her surface navy, should Germany be allowed to enforce a blockade with her submarines?

Already England has ordered her merchant vessels to be armed. Should they be treated like ordinary unarmed merchant vessels or should they be treated in part like ships of war and made to leave American ports within 24 hours after arrival?

Finally, shall the United States repeal the munitions embargo and open our industrial power to the allies?

All these problems and more have been thrust upon the United States all at once. The making or breaking of our much desired peace is in the hands of the gods, the State department, President Roosevelt and the congress.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Without honor herself, but trusting in Buff's honor, Iris "confides" that she tricked Tim and now intends to marry him. Shortly after, Tim tells Buff he is engaged.

Chapter 23

TIM'S reproof was a tidal wave which carried away the final barrier of Buff's self-control. "Tim! Tim! Listen to me! I know you'll hate me, I don't expect—truly—that you'll ever speak to me again. That doesn't matter. What matters is that you must be protected against—against falling into the same trap twice. Oh, it's dreadful of me, but my loyalty is due to you, my friend, rather than to—her!"

"Tim, she told me in so many words, just here in this room and just the day before yesterday, that she knew perfectly well what Latslaw was doing; that she was a willing party to the fraud. She said—said that a woman could always make a nice profit if she was pretty and would lend herself to a scheme that was not too scrupulously honorable."

He had risen and was gripping the back of his chair with rigid fingers.

"You expect me to believe this? That Iris would confess to you?"

"Oh, don't you see, Tim?" She bent forward, her tear-filled eyes on his. "She relied on my not revealing what had been said to me in confidence. She said she was relying on it! She told me it was a good thing I was scrupulously honorable, or I'd give her away to you!"

"And now you have? Or think you have?" His voice was icily courteous.

"And now I have. It's the only sensible thing to do, don't you see, Tim? All this talk of keeping a confidence when I hadn't asked for it, agreed to make it one—is silly compared to saving you from marrying a woman like Iris."

He spoke in a flat tone. "I don't believe you, Buff. Not a word of what you've said."

In her turn she rose, her small head thrown back broadly. Anger threatened to put a abrupt stop to her efforts on his behalf. But Buff was accustomed to controlling her anger. Lance had taught her from her babyhood that her will should be stronger than her emotions. She drew several long, deep breaths. She consciously released her small clenched hands. When she spoke it was in a steady, even a casual way.

"Use your good sense, Tim," she urged. "What I'm doing tonight will erase me from your life. Whether you marry Iris or not, you'll always hate me for what I've told you. Would I make such a sacrifice—for surely even you know it is a sacrifice, Tim!—unless I believed it was for your good?"

—Because he still entertained a tiny, squirming doubt of Iris, because he realized he had been swept away last night by the tide of passion which had carried over his head from the minute he entered her warm, fragrant room and found her infinitely lovely and desirable, waiting to slip into his arms, he resisted the patent frankness of this queer child. Iris needed defense, needed his help; she had told him so, weeping and clinging to him with desperate arms. Buff was a strong little thing who could always look after herself.

Masculine Pride
BESIDES—his masculine pride was up in arms at the idea of Buff's protecting him. Well, he knew what George would think of his marrying Iris after last summer. That he could meet man to man, Iris Buff's waiting into the fray on his behalf was too much. He wished in the depths of his unhappy heart that he had never seen her; never seen Iris either in the light, and the, instantly rebuked himself.

"The sooner we bring this painful scene to a close the better," he announced. "I'm sorry you feel as you do toward Iris. I'm sorry we can't all be friends. But in the circumstances—"

She let him go with his sentence unfinished. For once in her life, the fight had gone out of her. She curled herself into an anguished ball by the fire and tried to plan; to plan—for Tim. It was of no use. Tim was no longer hers to plan for! Not that he had ever been, but she had believed she had a friend's right—the right of a woman's wisdom to rescue him from difficulties into which his simple masculinity had led him.

She could picture the quiet triumph of the other girl; her slow curling smile, the upward sweeping lashes, the sweet humility of her voice as she discussed her engagement with Tim's friends. Almost she knew the exact words Iris would use.

"The course of true love never did run smooth, you know, and Tim and I were no exception. It was just because I loved him so much, so terribly much, that all that misunderstanding came about last summer. It's all cleared up now and Timmy and I are too happy for words, aren't we, Timmy?"

"She called him Timmy," muttered the weebegone little figure.

Cowboys Vs. Turkeys.
Austin, Texas.—(AP)—Out in those parts of the West where cowboys now herd on huge flocks of turkeys, instead of cattle, the problem arises of what to do about birds that don't come home to roost at night.

Leon Alexander, Mason county farmer, has solved it. His turkeys frequently range out in the brush and try to roost there. They are easy prey for coyotes.

So Alexander placed a goat with the flock and the goat has become so attached to the turkeys, he never leaves them. Whenever Alexander calls the goat, the animal bleats and Alexander knows the location of his turkeys.

He Fills in a Blank.
Honolulu, T. H.—(AP)—To fill in a scientific "blank" on the map of Polynesia, Dr. Truman G. Tuncker, De Pauw University botanist, is off to the island of Niue. The little known island is 300 miles south of Samoa and has a population of 4,000.

in the deep armchair. "I just know she'll call him Timmy! And not even that will convince him of the kind of girl she is!"

Webby looked in on her way to bed. "It's past eleven, Miss Buff. Hadn't you ought to be getting your sleep?"

"Pretty soon," she said absently. "I'll come pretty soon."

But the clock on the mantel chimed midnight, and one, and two before she stirred. She had worked to do tonight, had Buff Carroll. First of all, she must conquer her emotions; anger, jealousy, love, outraged pride. How could she think when her mind was tossed about by these forceful passions?

It took a long time to overcome them. Buff had recourse to many an aid which would have astonished her parents. She thought of the mountains; the snow-capped peaks which had looked down on so much human misery and uncertainty. All the wild passion in the world could dash itself against their grim sides and move not so much as a small rose-colored boulder from its appointed place. The knowledge steadied her. Quite literally she could tell herself: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help." Help did come from contemplation of the unchangeable, the immutable, she knew. Iris's puny deceit, Tim's foolish chivalry, even her own yearning love for the big mistaken man, seemed small and unimportant, measured against the mighty range.

Lesson Of Patience
THEN there was time. She was young to have learned the lesson of patience, but somehow she had learned it. "Give it a few weeks, or days, Buff; or even a few hours. It's wonderful how time brings out the true value of things." Thus Eleanor, restraining her impetuous child. The restless cartoonist and his gentle wife had not done so badly for their daughter, after all, even though her formal education had been frequently interrupted.

"Iris will try to hurry the marriage. Why? There's a reason back of all this," thought Buff, her alert brain once more at work on the problem. "I know she isn't marrying because she cares for him or because she wants to be safe from anything or anybody. It's all tied up, this buying back that useless land. Iris returning, her determination to be engaged to Tim."

Her small face was haggard with fatigue. The fire had burned itself to ashes and the room was cold. But slowly into Buff's eyes the light of hope dawned. Hope and resolution.

"I'm going to find out what all this is about. Tim, the old foolish, may go on being noble and waving his eyebrows at me all he likes. I'll drop my lecture course—darned did I ever try to get educated that something didn't interfere?—and haunt Miss DeMuth until I discover what she's up to!" She made a childish face, moved her foot and found it asleep, stamped on it to restore the circulation. "So there, Tim Corliss! You may be just like that young man they used as an example to teach me grammar years ago. 'I will drown and no one shall help me!' And so he drowned because he couldn't get his auxiliary verbs right. But you aren't to drown, my darling idiotic Tim, though heaven knows you've got all your verbs, nouns and adjectives—especially your adjectives, Tim!—about as wrong as they can be."

She moved her stiff body cautiously.

"I wonder if I'd wake Webby if I took a hot bath? I'll risk it anyhow. I'll never get thawed out except in a tub of boiling water."

The announcement of the engagement duly appeared in the next day's paper. Buff had a bad time when she saw the words in print. Upheld though she was by her conviction that there was still time to save Tim, and accustomed by years of Lance's work to view newspaper stories and announcements with little of the awe accorded them by most people, still those black letters set her to trembling, gave her a sinking feeling at the pit of her stomach.

Not for long, however, George, rushing up while she was still at dinner, did much to restore her composure. George—as in a fine roaring rage. Tim Corliss was a fool and he, George Weekes, didn't care who heard him say so. For a Canadian dime, he'd bust up the partnership and let Tim go to—well, wherever his soft heart and soft head led him! And thus and so, and double it and treble it, and then some!

"Sit down and have a turnover and a cup of coffee," Buff soothed him. "You'll feel heaps better afterwards, George, do as I say!" she added sharply. "You and I must talk, and I want you to be calm, not upset, during our conference."

He brightened at that. "Then you think there's still some hope—"

"You bet your sweet life there's hope," the girl answered, inelegantly but firmly. "You wait till you hear, George!"

Greatly cheered, he ate two turnovers and drank three cups of coffee; then followed her into the living room where she poured out the story of her last talk with Iris.

Bergdoll Bares Secret Return

On trial before a general court martial in New York on charges of desertion and escape from a military prison, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World War draft dodger, testified he returned twice to the United States from his self-imposed exile in Germany and recovered $105,000 in gold he had hidden before his arrest. Bergdoll (center) is shown between guards as he was escorted from court after testifying.

European War Strikes Home to the British

Anxious relatives and friends of men aboard the torpedoed British aircraft carrier Courageous are shown in London scanning a list of the survivors. The Admiralty is said to have a list of 438 survivors out of the ship's company, of slightly more than 1,100 but emphasized it was not complete. It was announced officially the Courageous was sunk by a submarine but the place was not designated. This is a cable photo.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Sept. 29.—A full description in a short short story of an exactly four words.

Your correspondent met J. S. Moore, one of Pitt county's representatives and after passing the usual time of day asked:

"And how are things down in your section—what's the situation?"

"The tobacco market's closed," replied Mr. Moore.

He could have talked for minutes, even hours, and not have said half as much."

Then there's the University of North Carolina professor who in addressing his class recently referred to the "Pseudo-centennial" at Duke.

He swears he just became convinced and used "pseudo" by mistake when he meant to say "senior," but he isn't the kind who ordinarily get that madly mixed up on words.

Former Governor O. Max Gardner will speak at State College's fiftieth birthday celebration; but he will not teach Governor Clyde R. Hoey's Sunday School class this week end, though he was invited to do so.

Entering the State Rural Electrification Authority office the correspondent was surprised and a bit befuddled by the vigor with which he was urged to accept the gift of a pencil.

The mystery cleared up when the pencil was inspected and found to be an advertising medium for the Carolina Power and Light Company. The REA folks don't want that kind lying loose around the office for fear there'll be charges of "subsidization."

In describing the fireworks display "Men from Mars" a State Fair publicity blurb winds up: "As a final climax when all else has been destroyed, the tremendous heat they have generated becomes so great that they destroy themselves, ending a spectacle so realistic it will not be forgotten easily."

They've torn a leaf from the book of the old show-barker who told of the famous Three Bounding Brothers of Barbary thus: "Ally! Ally! Ally! Am on the inside—the Three Bounding Brothers of Barbary—Ali, Eli and Uli."

"Ally, by the aid of the a lighted torch will jump down his brother Eli's throat. And Uli, by the aid of a third lighted torch, will jump down his own throat—thus leaving the audience in total darkness!"

Yes, we have no notaries. A gentleman entered the Governor's anteroom Thursday and requested that a paper be notarized. But, although the Governor, through the medium of his office "boss," Miss Mamie Turner, commissions all the notaries of the state, there wasn't a one in the Governor's office.

Miss Mary Graham Croom, moving from the Revenue Department to position as receptionist and information clerk in the Capitol's Rotunda is going to need that $5 a month raise to buy a fur coat when winter comes and that Rotunda begins to assume its normal November, December, etc., frigidly.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—The machine age has been overtaken and passed—as far as New York is concerned—by the slot machine age. About the only thing the machines haven't been able to give you is a shave. You can drop nickels (dimes and 15 cents, too) in slots along our boulevards and obtain coffee, sandwiches, cigarettes, handkerchiefs, chocolates, beautiful music, peanuts, mints, perfume sprays, and even books. Or perhaps they should be called pamphlets. These, to me, are the newest thing in slot machines. There is a huge one in the Chambers street station and a swift glance as I sped past noted these titles: (1) Is Hitler a Maniac? (2) Do You Lose Your Temper? (3) The Truth About Mussolini. There were perhaps a dozen other titles. You drop in a dime, select the title that amuses you most, and pull down a lever. The book drops out.

Our waterfront has changed its spots. It doesn't look the same. The big German-American Hamburg line docks are as silent and empty as a churchyard at night. When you pass there you get echoes back if you even think.

Near at hand the big Normandie, pride of the French marine service, is snug at her pier. But she is a deserted ship. Her crew has fled back to France, leaving only "the watch." No one is in evidence as you nose by, but if you attempted to get too close, or board her, there would be plenty of gendarmes to pounce on you.

The other day I talked for nearly an hour with the captain of a low-lying black and yellow freighter. She was black and yellow then. But as we talked dozens of men were hastily converting her into a ghost ship of gray—gray sides and decks and funnels and trimmings. It was the shade of gray best calculated to become undiscernible in clouds and in fog and mist. She was the ship of a belligerent nation.

"How long are you going to remain here in Hoboken?" I asked the captain. I didn't expect an answer, and when I got one I was greatly surprised. "At least three weeks," he said. "right here."

But next day as I drove past she was gone. She moved out under cover of night on the long trek that will end—she devoutly hopes—in her home port.

Some time ago this column relayed the anguish of a young man who wanted to transfer his attention from one young lady to another. To achieve this he told Young Lady No. 1 that he was going to return to South America. Heartbroken, she arranged a farewell dinner for him and insisted on accompanying him to the ship. He finally bid her a tearful farewell and went aboard. Of course, he sneaked ashore—again by way of the crew's passageway.

But next day the ship sank, and hundreds lost their lives. To this day the girl believes her lover was drowned, and it is understood she burns a candle in her room and prays for him every day. The young man has lived in terror ever since, in fear that he will come face to face with her on the street.

There have been requests for the climax of the story. People want to know what happened. I'm sorry to disappoint these people, but that's all—they never met. In fact, last month this fellow really left for Chile. He's editing a newspaper down there.

Greenville High Phantoms Open Season Here Tonight

GAME WILL BE AT SMITH PARK

To Be First Night Grid Game Ever Played Here

Local football fans will have the opportunity of seeing what is expected to be one of the most exciting games ever played here, when the Greenville high school Phantoms tangle with Windsor High tonight at 8 o'clock. This will be Greenville's first night game and will be played at Guy Smith stadium.

A colorful street parade has been arranged by the 60-piece Greenville high school band this afternoon at 8 o'clock. The band will also play at the stadium tonight under the direction of H. A. McDougle.

An unofficial report states that Windsor has a heavy team with a keen determination to crack the Phantoms. For the past week Coaches Farley and Pulkerson have been busy brushing up all possible weak spots in plays. As a result, the Phantoms are in excellent shape and are ready to take on any opposition.

Chapel programs held yesterday and today for junior and senior high students, respectively, have been given to acquaint the students with football. This was done in order to help students understand the sport better and add to the attendance of the games.

Under the management of Mr. A. E. Gibson and Mr. Tom Swain, the American Legion yesterday started an intensive campaign to get the citizens of Greenville to support athletics and come out to the first night football game in Greenville's history.

Season tickets for the six home games are now on sale. The prices are 50 cents for students and $1.50 for adults.

The fact that Texas now is marking some of its historic cattle routes, over which thousands of head of cattle were driven from remote Texas rangelands to railheads in Kansas and other states, caused Lorraine to recall the start of the Western-Northern trail.

Previously there had been a longer route to the East. It ran from

DEVILS LEAVE FOR DAVIDSON

Duke Starting Lineup Has Two Soph Tackles

Durham, N. C., Sept. 29. — Duke's Blue Devils, ready to make their first start since last January's Rose Bowl heart-breaker, were to leave here early this afternoon for their opening clash with Davidson at Davidson tomorrow afternoon.

Traveling by bus, the squad was scheduled to spend the night at the Hotel Vance in Statesville, going on over to Davidson tomorrow morning.

While Coach Wallace Wade had not announced it one way or the other, Duke's starting lineup for the clash will probably be as follows: "Bolo" Perdue, le; Mike Karmazin, lt; Captain Allen Johnson, rg; Gordon Burns, center; Frank Ribar, rg; Bob McDonough, rt; Bill Bailey, re; George McAfee, qb; Willard Eaves, lb; Wes McAfee, rb; Jap Davis, fb.

Of that crew, Karmazin and McDonough are sophomores, Bailey, Perdue, Johnson, Ribar and Eaves are regulars from that famous 1938 team, and the McAfee brothers, Burns and Davis are reserves from last season.

This team has been running as a unit for about 10 days with a few shifts now and then. The second team, which includes many boys who have been on the No. 1 outfit at one time or the other, lines up this way: Leonard Darnell, le; Tony Ruffa, lt; Jack Lange, lg; Aubrey Gill, c; John Naria, rg; Al Winterson, rt; Jim Marion, re; Frank Killian, qb; Carl Deane, lb; Frank Swiger, rb; Roger Robinson, fb.

extreme south Texas to San Antonio to Austin to Georgetown to Temple to Fort Worth and then to the Red River station, on the Red river. From here the cattle went on to the railroad at Dodge City, Kan.

In 1876, Lorraine recalled a sheriff in southern Texas had a writ of attachment against a herd of cattle. Before he could serve it, a cowboy started from the ranch with the herd and he decided to take the animals by the most direct route out of the state.

So after reaching San Antonio he went almost on a straight line northward. Before this no one had known definitely whether there were water holes or grass. It was possible the herd might have died in the summer heat.

But the cowboy stayed in the lead, found grass and water and thus established a new cattle course miles shorter than the older one to the east. From 1876 to 1895 it is estimated more than 6,000,000 cattle and 1,000,000 horses were driven over it.

EXPECT CROWD AT UNIVERSITY

25,000 May See Tar Heels and Deacons Tomorrow

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 29. — With the heaviest advance seat sale on record for an early season game, indications today were that a near capacity crowd of 22,000 to 25,000 will see the Tar Heels and Demon Deacons square off here tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock in one of the nation's outstanding early season gridiron battles.

Despite the heavy advance sale, university athletic officials said today that plenty of good seats were still available. Temporary stands have been erected at the west end of the playing field.

The game is expected to match one of the hardest running attacks in Dixie with one of its most powerful aerial offenses.

Carolina also has its brilliant ball carriers like George Strinweis and Sweet Lammie and Wake Forest, with passers like John Polanski, Joe Duncavage and Red Mayberry, may spring a surprise air attack. In fact, either team may steal the other's thunder, but that only enhances the interest.

The result is expected to be a football natural, and as far as the dopesters can see, the outcome is a toss-up, which may go to either team, depending on a few long runs, lightning passes or plain breaks.

Walters Operates on the Theory That Even a Pitcher Should Hit

'BUCKY' WALTERS

By PAUL MASON (AP Feature Service)

Cincinnati — As an eastern sport writer observed, "Our knock of today to Bucky Walters for masquerading so long as an infelder."

Bucky, tall, blond, lean-flanked, led both leagues most of the season in number of wins and was the first hurler to reach the coveted 20 mark. On September 26 he had won 27 games.

He's the hittingest pitcher in the business, his potent club frequently adding extra-base blows to a bewildering assortment of singles to any hit of the field.

"A hit's a bit any time," he said recently, "and I don't mind helping myself to a lead if I can. I like the feel of a full swing and I take it."

Walters, prior to 1935, was a third baseman, breaking into the big time with Boston, and going then to Philadelphia, his native heath. Jimmy Wilson, now coach for the Reds, transformed the hot corner performer to a mound star — the suggestion arising one night as the two enjoyed a chicken dinner in a Florida tavern.

He was obtained from the Phils in 1938 and wound up the season with an 11 and 6 record. Earlier in the season he had won 4 and lost 8 for the Quaker-towners.

He's married, and the father of two sons.

Reverses The Order
Buck's a newspaperman's baseball player. There's nothing loquacious about him, but he shows a lot of honest appreciation and respect for the news scribe and his work.

After winning the first of a twin-bill from the Phils in Cincinnati in late July, Bucky watched the second game from the press-box.

Almost shyly he drew from his carton a shiny new ball and handed it to one of the "boys."

"Here," he said, "Sign this—and pass it down the line, will you?"

To Clash In 37th Contest.
The University of North Carolina and Wake Forest College, which inaugurated football in this state 51 years ago in 1888, will clash at Chapel Hill Saturday in the 37th contest between gridiron representatives of the two institutions. North Carolina has won 80 per cent of the games although most of them have been decided by one and two touchdown margins.

Post Officials Urge Support For All Teams

Greenville high school athletics has one of its strongest supporters in the local post of the American Legion.

Letters signed by Post Commander T. J. Swain and Post Athletic Officer A. E. Gibson have been mailed to each legionnaire in the post urging them to support high school athletics and pointing out the value of such training to the youth of today and the men of tomorrow.

The letter points out that the post this year has set as one of its objectives the promotion and welfare of all its youth activities, not only those the post sponsors directly, but those outside as well.

The letter calls attention to the fact that the local high school athletic program includes football, baseball, basketball, track and tennis. It recalls that the Green Phantoms open their current football season with Windsor at Guy Smith park tonight and adds that Greenville has one of the best prospects for a winning team in years.

The post officials declare that the team needs the support of all legionnaires and reminds that season tickets for all home games can be purchased from Coach Pulkerson for the small sum of $1.50, "and it would seem that this amount invested in our youth would bring in handsome returns."

The message to legionnaires states that all home games will be played at night and that large crowds are expected at all contests. It urges, "If you can't come yourself talk it up and encourage the other fellow to come."

The officials declare that the letter is not an appeal for Greenville only, but for other schools throughout the county and prods legionnaires to "Be there when your team is in action. The boys need your support."

The home schedule for the Green Phantoms follows: September 29, Windsor; October 6, Ayden; October 27, Roanoke Rapids; November 10, Goldsboro; November 24, Kinston; and November 29, Washington.

ONE THING LEADS TO ANOTHER

Greeley, Colo. — (AP) — A cat scooted across Greeley's main arterial highway and here's what happened:

1—The driver of a small coupe stopped abruptly to keep from striking it.

2—A 10-ton truck, loaded with fruit and vegetables, directly behind the coupe, swerved to keep from hitting the smaller car.

3—The truck turned over, strewn with fruit and vegetables over the highway.

4—The driver of the coupe and his two passengers escaped injury although the truck struck it a glancing blow. The truck driver likewise was uninjured.

5—No ordinary wrecker could lunge the big truck and it blocked the avenue. Finally house-moving equipment was located and was used to pull the truck back on its wheels.

6—Police guarded the street and nearby sewer intakes for most of the night because the truck's gasoline had drained into them creating a fire hazard.

7—The cat, frightened zipped up a nearby tree and watched the activities of his trip across the street occasioned.

At least four square feet of floor space should be allowed each bird in the laying house, says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College Poultry Department.

John A. Arey, extension dairyman at State College, is urging livestock owners to visit State, county and community fairs this fall to observe the prize animals on display.

Families who have not already done so should clean up their summer gardens this month so as to eliminate breeding places for insects, advises Dr. Z. P. Metcalf, State College entomologist.

NEGROES OPEN NEW BUILDING Vocational Training Building Is Dedicated By HOWARD BARNHILL, Grimsland, N. C. - The new Agriculture Vocational building was dedicated at Pitt County Training School Friday, September 22, with J. W. Mitchell, Negro district agent of agriculture in North Carolina, as the principal speaker. Others appearing on the program were Mrs. M. M. Gaylord, local NYA supervisor; D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt county schools; S. B. Simmons, state supervisor of vocational agriculture; John A. Lang, head of the NYA activities of the state; Hugh Evans, supervisor of NYA activities of this district; M. Robinson of Washington, Prof. P. S. Jones of Grimsland white high school, Golden Roland of Ayden, and E. C. Setzer, head of vocational agriculture here. O. A. Dupree, principal of the school, was master of ceremonies.

The subject of Mitchell's address was "Building a Strengthened Rural Community." He made reference to a certain community in the state that was once inhabited by prosperous Negro farmers, but their children went to college and chose other fields. Now most of the land is owned by someone else; there, he said, the children should return to the farm and take care of their parents' investments. Mitchell based his speech on five major points: First was intelligence. He asserted that to be a prosperous farmer you must be able to appreciate information. In order to receive this knowledge, the children must be trained in school. Mitchell said that too many times families invest their money in land and neglect education.

Thrift was the next point. Every individual should be willing to work. After working they should make the best possible investments with their income. He stressed the importance of co-operation and ownership in the community. We as a race have not realized the importance of ownership. Mitchell urged the community to develop leaders. He said that in every prosperous home, school or community there are leaders or outstanding individuals. S. S. Simmons responded to the address given by Mitchell saying "Don't complain about what you don't have, but use what you have." J. A. Lang urged the parents to teach their children to save their money, and try to be the best in whatever they attempt to do. He also told the people that they should work to make their school one of the best in the state. Superintendent Conley said that the vocational students should make the best use of their tools.

The music was furnished by the school's choral society. They sang "You Are Going to Reap Just What You Sow," "The Bells of Shandon," "Is There Anybody Here?" and "Go, Mary, and Tell the Bell." The P. T. A., which played a major part in making arrangements for the program, served a delicious dinner to the visitors.

This honor will be conferred on the children Saturday morning after the 7 o'clock mass. The adults will be favored with the benediction after mass on Sunday. Driver. Cheyenne, Wyo. - (AP) - Three months ago a California man threw his car out of gear and let it coast down a steep Wyoming hill. That is against the law in this state. The law presumes such a car is "out of control." Recently Captain William Harwood of the state highway patrol received a letter from Los Angeles in which the driver apologized for his "recklessness," said his conscience bothered him as he was "trying to lead a Christian life" and would the captain forgive. The captain would, and did.

Cotton should be kept picked out as rapidly as possible to prevent weather damage in the field, says J. A. Shanklin, cotton specialist of the State College Extension Service in their parish church of vice.
