Forces Remove Small Mines left Behind By the Germans

NAZIS STIFFEN AERIAL EFFORTS

Account of Battle Saturday Reports Three French and Five German Planes Shot Down

Paris, Oct. 2.—(AP)—French military reports today said French forces had consolidated their positions and had removed thousands of small mines left behind by Germans on the Western front.

They said the French had taken advantage of the absence of heavy fighting and that only numerous localized encounters continued.

Unusual aerial activity marked the past few days, it was said, with Nazi fliers making stiffer efforts to turn back allied reconnaissance flights.

An account of a battle fought Saturday over German territory disclosed today that three French and five German planes were shot down.

The account said that two French reconnaissance planes and nine protecting fighters were attacked by 15 German planes.

After a "long" fight eight of the French ships returned, it was said, bringing "valuable photographic information" concerning German positions.

Army reports said the crew of one of the French planes shot down was observed descending in parachutes.

Officers estimated the French exploded 6,000 mines in one area.

The French announced capture of a small number of prisoners from whom they said valuable information on German defenses in advance of the Siegfried line was expected to be obtained.

Malicious Arrest Alleged in Action

A $10,000 damage suit has been filed in Pitt Superior court by Randolph Corbett through his attorney, Abdon Dunn, charging C. F. Spears with malicious arrest.

Both the plaintiff and defendant are Ayden citizens.

The complaint alleges that on August 19, this year, Spears "maliciously and without probable cause swore out a warrant before the clerk of the Ayden recorder's court charging Corbett with larceny of a watch from Spears, who is a jeweler in Ayden.

The action further alleges that Spears failed to appear in court to prosecute the case and a nol prosequit was taken by the solicitor, thereby denying the plaintiff the opportunity to defend his good name.

Corbett alleges that as a result of these actions, he was humiliated, embarrassed and put to shame. He is asking $5,000 compensatory and $5,000 punitive damages.

It was the second damage suit charging malicious arrest filed here in one week. Floyd Nichols having instituted action against J. A. Hathaway earlier in the week.

Italian Count Returns From Visit To Berlin

TO RECOGNIZE POLISH GOVT.

United States' Stand Made Known By Sec. Hull

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The United States refused today to recognize the disappearance of Poland, which Secretary Hull termed "the victim of force used as an instrument of national policy."

Hull said that "mere seizure of territory does not extinguish the legal existence of a government."

The United States therefore, he added, "continues to regard the government of Poland as in existence in accordance with the provision of the constitution of Poland."

He said this government would continue to recognize Count Jerzy Potocki as Polish ambassador to Washington and that the American ambassador to Poland, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, would remain near the Polish government, which has now gone to Paris.

A reporter recalled that the Soviet government had informed the United States of its occupation of Polish territory and asked whether that made any difference in this government's attitude.

The secretary replied that the Soviet announcement was a unilateral declaration meaning that it was not concurred in by the American government.

The secretary's statement was interpreted by officials to mean also that the United States recognized the legitimacy of the transfer of powers from former Polish President Moscicki, who resigned in Rumania after fleeing from Poland, to the new president, who is now in Paris.

Nine Make Escape From Prison Camp

Raleigh, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Nine long-term negro convicts escaped from the Surry county prison camp early today, Oscar Pitts, State Penal superintendent, announced here.

Pitts said he was given no details except that it appeared the men had escaped through a door to their cell blocks without damaging the door. He said he did not know whether a guard had left it open or the convicts had obtained a key.

The prisoners got out at about 2 o'clock Pitts said, and the alarm was given some 20 minutes later. None had been caught several hours later, so far as Pitts knew.

Two men serving murder terms Willie Lee Garner, 25, sentenced in Guilford in April, 1938, to 10 to 25 years; and Harvey Green, 38, sent from Wilson in May, 1937, for 20 years, were among the nine.

BORAH BRANDS EMBARGO BILL AS DANGEROUS

Fears Lifting of Act Would Get U.S. Into War

PITTMAN OFFERS BILL TO SENATE

Nevada Senator Declares Measure Most Important Legislation Ever Proposed In Congress

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Senator Borah (R-Idaho), asserted today that if Congress lifted the arms embargo on Europe's warring nations he did not "see how" the United States could refuse to send armies to help the allies "in their hour of greater need."

Borah took the Senate floor to voice the views of the opposition to the administration's neutrality bill to repeal the arms embargo after Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) had asserted that retention of the present law's embargo was "a discrimination in favor of Germany."

Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, was the first speaker in the momentous neutrality discussion.

Reading a lengthy prepared address, Borah charged that the administration bill to revise the neutrality law had been accepted in Europe as an attempt to aid Britain and France in their struggle with Nazism.

Repeal of the embargo, he continued, would be likely to put this country in the position where it could not deny further help to the democracies.

Speaking as chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, Pittman offered the administration's neutrality bill as "the most important legislation that has been proposed to Congress," and said it was designed "for the purpose of keeping us out of a European war."

The administration bill would wipe out the present embargo against the sale of armaments to warring countries, would require belligerents to take title to goods purchased in this country before shipment and would require that American goods be carried to belligerents in non-American vessels. In addition, the President would be authorized to designate combat areas in which American vessels and citizens could not enter.

Township Meeting Set For Tomorrow

With the date of the tobacco referendum only a few days off, local supporters of control, are working night and day in an effort to have Pitt county farmers vote overwhelmingly in favor of limited production at the election to be held Thursday of this week.

A series of meetings started Monday in the county is nearing an end with the final gathering to be held in the agricultural building here tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Meetings were scheduled today in Whiteville, at 2:30 o'clock, and in Grifton, 8 o'clock tonight.

Both places have made extensive plans for a big attendance and in Whiteville most of the business firms signed a petition to close their doors during the session so that all employers and employees could attend.

Meetings already have been held in other townships in the county and those in attendance voted overwhelmingly in favor of control.

Conducting Probe of Corn Theft in County

Members of the Pitt county sheriff's office today were conducting an investigation into the theft of a quantity of corn from the farm of a Mrs. Vandford in the Piney Grove community.

The theft was discovered the latter part of last week and reported to the sheriff's office. The corn was gathered from the field and it was estimated that about a barrel was taken.

SO THE POLICEMAN TOOK HIM HOME

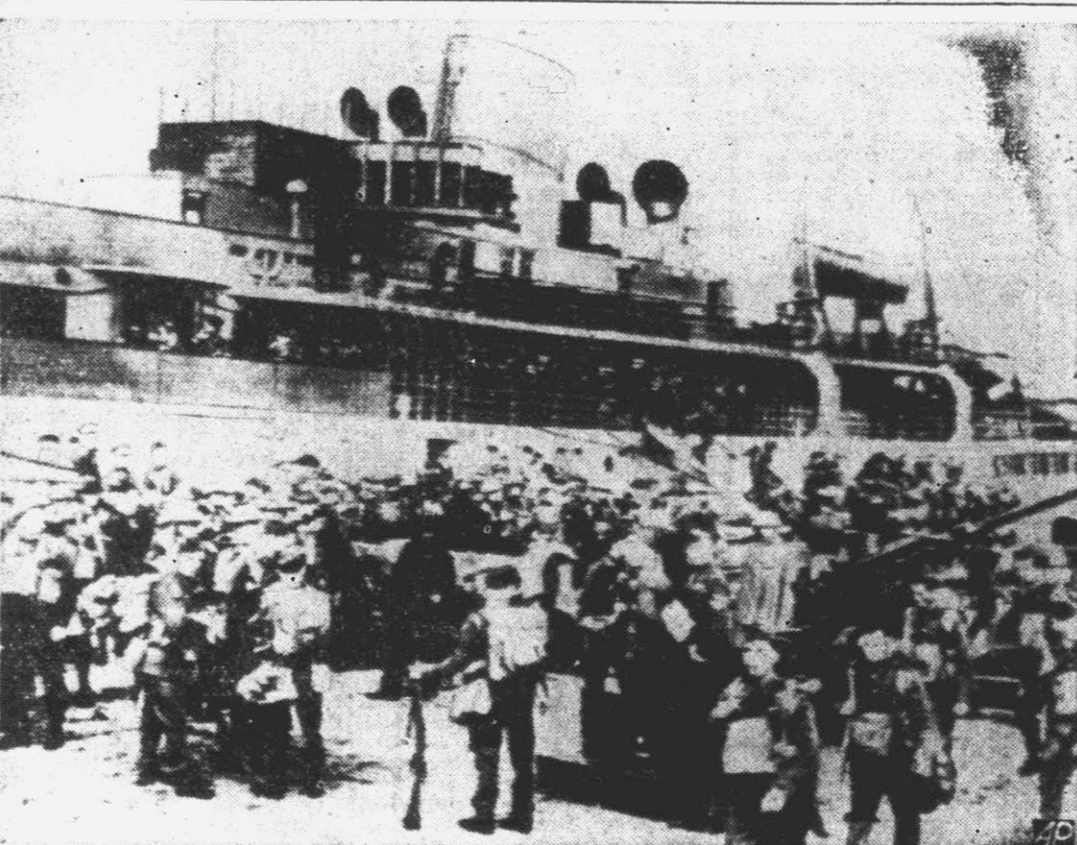

San Juan Bautista, Calif.—(AP)—Arrested for intoxication, a prisoner surprised Patrolman Ramirez by saying, "Okay, here's the key to the jail."

It was no idle statement. The celebrator previously had applied for lodging at an inn and had been given the key and told to let himself in.

In the heyday of Corinth, Greece, the city's 20,000 freemen were estimated to possess 460,000 slaves.

HITLER - CIANO TOPICS STATED

Fuehrer Sends Report on Conversations to Duce

Berlin, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler today sent to his ally Premier Mussolini, what Nazis said were the three main points of his conversation with Duce's son-in-law, Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

These points were given authoritatively as:

1.—The possibility of the future in Europe, including Italy's share in what will or may happen.

2.—Germany's conception of various spheres of interests in Eastern Europe.

3.—The possibility of giving effect to the German thesis that the European war should be ended now.

These sources intimate further that Hitler in his speech before the Reichstag some time this week would give the world Germany's conception of the peace possibilities.

LEAF GROWERS ARE ELIGIBLE

All Tobacco Producers This Year May Cast Vote

Raleigh, Oct. 2.—If a farmer produced flue-cured tobacco this year, either as an owner, tenant, or sharecropper, he or she is eligible to vote in the referendum on marketing quotas for 1940, to be held Thursday.

It was announced by E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer of State College. The polls will open not later than 9 a. m., and in many communities voting will start as early as 7 a. m. All polls will close at 5 p. m., Floyd said.

All voting will be by secret ballot, and no grower will be allowed to cast more than one vote, even though he may have been engaged in the production of flue-cured tobacco in two or more communities, counties, or states. Each grower must cast his ballot in person, except that votes by mail will be allowed where a producer resides in a county other than that in which his farm is located. In such cases, the ballot must be mailed before 5 p. m. on Thursday and should be addressed to the County AAA Committee or the county in which the voter is a tobacco producer.

Floyd explained that where a firm, corporation, or association is engaged in the production of flue-cured tobacco, an authorized officer of the organization will be allowed to cast its vote.

Answering several questions which have been asked frequently in connection with eligibility to vote, the AAA officer said: "If several members of the same family participated in the production of flue-cured tobacco on a farm in 1939 the only member or members of such a family who will be eligible to vote will be the member or members of the family who had an independent bona fide status as operator, sharetenant, or sharecropper." Floyd also said that a wage hand on a farm who receives part or all of the proceeds from a fixed acreage of tobacco, and thus shares in the proceeds of the 1939 crop, would be considered as a sharecropper and would be eligible to vote.

FIRST FLIGHT OVER CAPITAL

Announcement of Reconnaissance Flight Over Berlin Also Carries Assurance Britain is Prepared For Any Air Invasion; Freighter Sunk By Armed Raider

London, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A night reconnaissance flight by British planes over Berlin and the sinking of a British freighter by an armed raider were marked up today on the credit and debit sides of Britain's war-time ledger.

Announcing the first British flight over the German capital, the Air Ministry said "successful" air reconnaissances by day and night had been carried out over Germany and that the night reconnaissances included Berlin and Potsdam. There were no other details.

The attack on the 5,651-ton British freighter, Clement, in the south Atlantic by an armed raider was announced by the Ministry of Information. The communique said the raider had not been identified, "but the correct steps are being taken."

The exact position of the sinking and what happened to the crew was not given.

Sinking of the Clement, which brought the total British losses since the war's start to at least 21 ships, was the first reported since September 24, when the 4,846-ton freighter Hazelside was shelled and torpedoed off the Irish coast.

Announcement of the reconnaissance flight over Berlin was followed by assurances to the House of Commons that any German planes which try to raid London "will get the reception they deserve."

Laborite Josiah Wedgwood had sought detailed reports of the effect of German bombing in Poland. A foreign under-secretary gave assurances on London's readiness for air raids in answering, but said detailed reports on Poland were not available.

Prime Minister Chamberlain in formed the House that he would wait until tomorrow to tell members what the government thought of the Russian-German partition of Poland and of the peace gestures emanating from Berlin.

Great Britain strengthened herself for hostilities on the World War scale, apparently intending to ignore the Nazi-Communist peace offer.

The first official reaction to indication that Adolf Hitler would propose, through a neutral power that the war be called off on the basis of the partition of Poland, came from Winston Churchill, British first lord of the admiralty. Churchill told Britons last night "We are going on to the end."

Christian Science Church.
"Unreality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies Sunday, October 1.

The golden text was from Prov. 13:7. "There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Lord, how are they increased that trouble me! many are they that rise up against me. Many there be which say of my soul, There is no help for him in God. But thou, O Lord, art a shield for me; my glory, and the lifter up of mine heart. I cried unto the Lord with my voice, and he heard me out of his holy hill. I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the Lord sustained me." (Ps. 3:1-5).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Evil is a negation; because it is the absence of truth. It is nothing, because it is the absence of something. It is unreal, because it presupposes the absence of God, the omnipotent and omnipresent. Every mortal must learn that there is neither power nor reality in evil. Evil is self-assertive. It says: 'I am a real entity, over-mastering good.' This falsehood should strip evil of all pretensions. The only power of evil is to destroy itself. It can never destroy one iota of good. Every attempt of evil to destroy good is a failure, and only aids in perpetrating punishment on the evildoer. If we concede the same reality to discord as to harmony, discord has as lasting a claim upon us as has harmony. If evil is as real as good, evil is also as immortal."

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Rabbin Coom

Hollywood—More or less personal to George Tucker, the Man About Manhattan:

I want to meet him, that writer fellow you wrote about the other day. The fellow who came to Hollywood from God's City for consultation on his book they're making into a movie. The fellow who was "thirsting for news" about the war, and in five days didn't hear a radio. The fellow who talked with producers, directors, hotel, and restaurant men and bell boys—and heard talk only about pictures.

I want to meet him 'cause I think his was an unique, even happy experience. I'd like to wander into those circles he told you about and for one day—just for one blessed day—get the war out of my hair and my ears and my consciousness. I'd like to see and be with people—just for one day—who don't know yet that the party's over.

In this humble position I do considerable wandering in and around the movie lots and restaurants, and I have yet to meet a person, high or low, who has not the war in his eyes.

It isn't only in the business offices, either, as your writer friend implies—I have heard radios in the studios and I have seen groups of workers gathered around the newsstands, and I have seen their eyes—the helpless questioning, the fear, the sick, the pity, the outrage.

The war has been with Hollywood for months—in writers' table discussions in the studio restaurants. At Warner's Green Room the scribes gather daily and the din of Polish names of Marinet Line versus Limes Line, of Stalin, Hitler, Goebbels, Goering drowns out the feeble peaceful sounds of plot, dramatic effect and well-turned line.

I wonder if your writer friend was here long enough, in that first week of the war, to talk to workmen—carpenters, clerks, stenographers—who suddenly, because of those vague faraway things called "foreign markets," found themselves "at liberty." To talk to people who were doing good jobs until those jobs, in the retrenchment process, were suddenly removed. To publicize men, likewise doing good jobs, who were no longer "necessary."

Did he pause, by chance, near a movie set, "Tower of London," whereon most of the actors—Basil Rathbone, Ian Hunter, Boris Karloff, Ralph Forbes, Ernest Cossart, Ronald Sinclair—were British-born? Did he watch them over the headlines, hear them talking? Did he talk to friends of David Niven, of Laurence Olivier or other British subjects who may be called?

The war is in Hollywood. It comes on lovely secluded terraces where the sun shines and servants move quietly about and the hum of Hollywood is tender. "Poor Charlie's Boyer—he is already in it," says the star who ought to be (if your writer friend is right, George) talking about pictures. Her own pictures.

It comes beside gay swimming pools, where Hollywood laukhs and

Presents Budget

Britons will have to dig deeper in their jeans to pay the costs of war, Sir John Simon (above) British chancellor of the exchequer, made that clear when he presented his first war budget in the House of Commons. For the rest of the fiscal year, which ends March 31, the standard income tax rate would be 35 per cent and for the following year 37.5 per cent, according to the budget.

talks pictures—and then stops, and talks of the war or a silent

It comes on sets where foreigners work. It comes to Hona Massey, the Hungarian, whose folks are there, who can't go home.

It comes in restaurants, in homes, on the street—while Hollywood goes on making pictures. And Hollywood goes on making pictures just as your writer friend—and you and I, George—go on writing. But the war is with us, and the war is with Hollywood.

comprehensible was figured out by Sir Arthur Eddington, one of Britain's foremost astronomers.

The 200-inch telescope, he says, is expected to see nebulae, which are huge collections of stars, 950 million light years away from earth. A light year is the distance light goes in one year at 186,000 miles a second.

A radio message travels at light's speed. But when it had traveled 950 million years the message would still be even near the nebula. This is because the universe is expanding. At the end of 950 million years the nebula would have travelled 620 million light years farther away.

Hence the radio message would not arrive until 1900 million years "after" leaving earth. It could not get back in 1900 million years, however, because the expansion, which grows more rapid all the time, would keep the earth moving ahead of the radio message at almost the speed of the message itself.

But after countless millions of years, Sir Arthur figures, this message would overtake the earth.

TO FEEL FINE, USE VEGETABLE LAXATIVE

Here's the laxative that acts as thoroughly as harsher ones, but is a gentle persuader for intestines when used this way: A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight, a drink of water—there you are! Then this all-vegetable laxative usually allows plenty of time for sleep, acts thoroughly and gently, and relieves constipation's headaches, biliousness, irritability, bad breath. BLACK-DRAUGHT's main ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative," which helps tone the intestinal muscles. Millions of packages used prove its merit. Economical—25 to 40 doses, 25c.—(Adv.)

USC PREPARES FOR GOBBLERS

Carolina to Engage Virginia Tech. At Norfolk

By Tom Bost, Jr.
Chapel Hill, Oct. 2.—Rested from its 36-6 victory over the Wake Forest Demon Deacons, the University of North Carolina football squad today began intensive preparations for the first of three out-of-state invasions this season—with Virginia Tech at Norfolk Saturday.

The 1939 edition of the Gobblers, rated superior to the 1938 team which beat N. C. State and held North Carolina to a 7-0 score, is reputed to be another of the famed Pony Expresses which have bowled over the Tar Heel teams in a majority of the contests in this ancient and colorful 44-year-old rivalry.

Most recent of the celebrated Pony Expresses was the fast-traveling 1938 outfit, led by Triple-threat Frank Peale, which nosed out Carolina 16 to 14 in probably the most thrilling game of the long series. It was Peale's scintillating runs, passes, and punts that featured the intricate maneuvers of the Express. And, in addition, the Gobblers hard-hitting line outgassed and outplayed the heavier Tar Heel forwards.

The current backfield edition of the Express is composed of Billy James, 180-pound sophomore flash, quarterback; Sonny Ellison, 180, and Herb Thomas, 168, halfbacks, possessing greyhound speed; and Rankin Hudson, a powerful 175-pound fullback, who gained more yardage and had the best running average of any back on the field in last season's game. Rankin averaged 7.4 yards per play, netting 74 yards on 10 rushes.

In their first start this season the Gobblers romped all over Randolph-Macon 26-0, while on the same day North Carolina routed an impotent Citadel eleven 50-0.

The Gobblers will also present a versatile, well-drilled line headed by Dave Pitts and Jim Coleman, 195-pound tackles; Woody Gosney, stalwart 205-pound guard, and Johnny Henderson, rangy, pass-grabbing end, all of whom starred on the 1938 eleven.

Two outstanding sophomores, Bill Tate, guard, and Bill Zydiak, center, and Ends Danny Shawhan or Louis Wilson, the latter a son of one of Tech's greatest linemen of all time. Peter Wilson class of 1905, will round out the forward wall.

DOES FINE JOB ON N. C. BANKS

Stratton Plays Canute Role on Coast Of Carolina

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Oct. 2.—Old King Canute, Dane who conquered England back in medieval days, couldn't keep back the ocean, legend tells us; but around these parts those who know what has been done, and particularly the Department of Conservation and Development officials, regard 29-year old A. C. Stratton as more than a moderate success in the stopping role at which the Viking monarch failed so dismally.

Stratton doesn't look like a figure out of an important chapter of Nature's book, but Tar Heels as far inland as 50 miles from the famed Banks ought to regard him as general of a long thin yellow line which is keeping their geography intact, keeping a wild surf from rolling over their farms and cities, and saving their network of inland waterways and their substantial fishing industry.

Geologists believe that if the long finger-like Outer Banks were to be pounded to pieces, the banks would completely disappear, and the Atlantic, now held at bay, would invade the low mainland for many miles.

Less than 100 years ago the Banks seemed secure enough. They were "partially covered by remnants of the heavy forests which covered them when Sir Walter Raleigh's colonists arrived in 1587."

But demand for timber brought destruction to the great forest; allowing stock to roam at large resulted in rooting up of grass and shrubs. The constant winds from the ocean blew sand from the beach and away from around the roots of trees in the denuded ground. Destruction of the Banks loomed as inevitable.

North Carolinians became alarmed before Stratton was born. Erosion studies were conducted, but nobody seemed to be able to do anything about the situation. One year the state spent months opening New Inlet, and just as the work was finished, a southwest storm blew up and filled it up in one short night.

In 1935 the federal government began an ambitious attempt to check sand erosion. Fifteen hundred men were moved to the Banks, camps established and the tremendous job undertaken.

Stratton was picked to head the job, though he knew no more about it than anyone else. He was chosen for his demonstrated administration ability and his engineering experience in other lines.

He tried this and he tried that until finally he hit upon what appears to have been the happiest of discoveries. Binary brush, made of two types of brush, one high and eight feet long have no known equal at stopping shifting sand. These panels are made into fences above the high water mark, standing like a flimsy wall against the ocean winds. At some places, the fence is reinforced with criss-cross panels behind. The theory is that the enormous quantity of sand deposited on the beach will dry quickly, then the wind will sweep it southward. For generations it has been blowing into the sound. Now the fences collect the drops of sand and start miniature dunes which eventually build up into barrier dunes several feet high.

Today young Stratton can drive you down the Banks from the Virginia line to Ocracoke and show you 600 miles of brush fence. A great part of it is completed, and all of it is performing duty magnificently. For two winters the thin yellow line has held against the worst weather the Atlantic afforded, and the first chapter in a circule is unfolding.

After the barrier dune—and supporting cross-dunes—have built up sufficiently, Stratton's crews are planting tough beach grass to anchor them down. The grass is taking hold, the roots are spreading under surface.

In a few places, the second chapter of the miracle is being written. Thousands of tiny tree seedlings have been planted. Many have died, but others have taken root, and in time, it is confidently expected, they will grow into a forest such as was the Banks when men cut the giant trees for ship masts.

Tulane Defeats Clemson, 7-6, at New Orleans

Hailed as an outstanding contender for the Southeastern conference football title this year, the Green Wave of Tulane was hard-pushed to defeat the invading Tigers of Clemson College, 7-6, at New Orleans. This action picture made during the nip-and-tuck game, shows McFadden (66), the Clemson halfback who passed his team to its lone touchdown, coming around right end under full steam for a 10-yard gain. Blocking Banker of Tulane is Timmons (22) of Clemson, while the man rushing into the play is Gloden, Tulane.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—After all these years, with hundreds of plays coming and going, I still think the funniest scene on Broadway concerns the destruction of an automobile in Tobacco Road. It isn't a scene, really; the final obliteration of this automobile requires several scenes. It is explained in a few fragments of dialog.

Now this dialog is no good on paper. The background of the play is so essential to it that quotations would be meaningless. There is a strange quality of abstractness all through this play, particularly in the dialog of Jeeter Lester. He is never concerned with actual events themselves. If his grandmother, who is nearly a hundred, gets lost in the "sedge brush," it goes unnoticed for days. Then he reflects, "I better look for her, one of these days."

There is one scene in which his wife admits to an earlier infatuation with a traveling salesman. The salesman arrived on Tobacco Road when Jeeter was off in Macon.

"That was the time you went off to buy that brown mule," his wife tells him. Instead of being horrified at this frank admission, Jeeter looks at her for a second and then slaps his sides. "I remember that mule," he says, "best darn mule I ever had."

The same quality of abstraction, which in my opinion is the only justification for the play, reaches a high note when the half-witted son, who marries a woman preacher, systematically wrecks a new automobile which his wife's first husband's insurance has provided. Every time he takes the car out he tears off a fender, or caves in the hood. They limp into the yard finally and the half-wit son yells to Jeeter, "Had another wreck, shore did, but couldn't hep it. Wawn't my fault. Wawn't nothing in that road a tall. Then

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE That something should be done and done immediately in the matter of getting rid of mosquitoes in the City of Greenville.

Several years ago, when Mr. Bowling was living and our open ditches and weeds were kept off vacant lots, this trouble did not exist and one did not know what a mosquito looked like.

Just what the trouble seems to be it is hard to tell. But the writer does recall that this is the first fall in many a moon that mosquitoes have troubled so many persons with whom he has been in contact with as this year.

Why not have a clean-up week in the city by having the citizens cut down all the weeds in their yards, throw out all tin cans that are filled with water, and in fact clean up all places where mosquitoes are likely to breed?

Ever since I can remember I have been told that mosquitoes are carriers of various diseases, including various kinds of fevers. Is this the reason that we hear of so many people being sick now with various kinds of fevers? If it is, it is the opinion of the writer that something should be done in the way of clearing up the breeding places of these mosquitoes.

Why not have a clean-up week in the city by having the citizens cut down all the weeds in their yards, throw out all tin cans that are filled with water, and in fact clean up all places where mosquitoes are likely to breed?

BERT MOYE

Washington Daybook By Preston Grover

Washington - The President's message to Congress made clearer than ever the special situation of Canada in our relations to the new war.

Under the Neutrality act as it was up to May 1, Canada - at war - could have bought nothing from this country that she did not buy with cash and carry away in her own ships or trains.

On May 1 the cash-and-carry section of the Neutrality act died. That left it legal, even after war started, for American ships to carry supplies to belligerent nations so long as the supplies were not actually arms or implements of war.

In his message the President proposed a substitute for cash-and-carry. It was the same substitute proposed last session: To have Congress authorize the President to designate certain "combat zones" on the ocean into which American

After A Man's Heart by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Buff suggests that George offer to buy back the land at the price Iris said. If Iris accepts, she's on the level, but if she refuses, she probably has another buyer.

Chapter 25 The Drama

BUFF hated her task. Her open, forthright nature rebelled against what amounted to spying upon Iris. But Tim, she reminded herself again and again, had to be saved from this second and far more dangerous plot.

"And after I've yanked him out of her clutches, he can sink or swim, lose his way or keep to the straight and narrow path," said Miss Carroll with a fine scrambling metaphor. "He'll hate me even more than he does now, if he knows I've snatched him from the burning Well, that's all right too. Just so I spring the trap before it closes on him, it doesn't matter about me."

She had known Iris from the first to be almost pitifully lacking in brains, entirely lacking in subtlety. She was like a movie extra who went through her small part with conscientious accuracy. For two days she was very much the engaged girl, staying close to the hotel save when she appeared radiantly and shyly in the motor car.

Iris drove in character, the younger girl thought; putting on little spurts of speed exactly at the wrong time, slowing down at the midst of busy traffic, making use of hand signals which would have puzzled the hapless motorist.

Buff was not so fortunate. By the time she had disposed of her car and entered the lobby, Iris was nowhere to be seen. There was nothing for it but to wait for her. Buff selected an inconspicuous spot behind a clump of dusty palms and kept one eye on her watch, the other on the elevator.

It was nearly half-past one before Iris came down. There were two men with her, one unmistakably Latschew, Buff's ally, and George Weekes for his clever sketches. There were the plover's beneath the eyes - eyes coldly gray now - the little jut to the big nose, the thin lips. He kept close to Iris, not a word nor gesture of hers lost on him.

"The Curtain Rises" SHE was uncertain of what to do. It was patent that she could not follow Iris about Denver. Yet she felt the crisis of the situation to be upon them. Unwittingly it was Iris herself - stupid Iris who could not even obey orders without blundering - was Buff's scornful thought - who gave her the help she needed.

"Shall we all lunch together and then meet at Nesbit's office? It's late," she said plaintively. "and I'm starved. And this time her arch glance rested on Latschew who returned it without expression. "I do think I've earned something rather special in the way of food today."

"Here?" demanded Latschew. "Oh, the Shirley-Savoy? And the kind of luncheon that's a real celebration?" Latschew opened his thin lips, to protest, thought better of it; and the three moved toward the revolving door. Buff flew toward the telephone, praying silently that George Weekes had returned from his own lunch and that he was not out on a surviving job. To her vast relief his cheery voice answered: "Hello."

"George, this is Buff," she began rapidly. "Will you do exactly what I ask you to do?" "Y-yes, I suppose so. But where are you?" "Denver," she snapped. "And don't begin asking questions. I'll do the talking. You get Tim - hand cuff him and gag him if you have to, but get him! and drive here as fast as you can. Park where you can watch the front entrance to the Shirley-Savoy. Or if you can't park, get out and stand ships might not travel. Presumably, such combat zones would be the waters around England, Germany and France. Those are the active submarine and naval areas. But would shipping areas around Canadian ports, either on the Pacific or Atlantic, be included? It can be readily drawn from the President's message that he intends to leave the way open to imposing such restrictions on our trade with Canada, at least for the time being. He said that, upon repeal of the arms embargo, "this government clearly and definitely will insist that American citizens and American ships keep away from the immediate perils of the actual zones of conflict. Canada is not an "actual zone of conflict." No pitched battles on Canadian soil or in the air above the dominion are in prospect. The possibility is that Germany will send enough submarine raiders to Canadian waters to compel the President to designate at least the Atlantic route to Canada as a "combat zone."

Unique Relationship More than once the President has recognized our special relationship to Canada. It is a relationship unlike any other we know of. The President has said that, under the Monroe doctrine, the United States would prevent any "other empire" (than the British) from holding sway over Canada.

Germany caught the point at once. The Nazi press hailed at a situation under which Canada would be permitted to fight Germany but Germany would not be permitted to fight Canada without also taking on the U. S.

Presently, if the Neutrality act is revised, we may find American ships forbidden to take goods to England, France or Germany. And yet the American flag may protect shipment of goods to Canada, taking them safely on the first 1,000 miles of the hazardous trip to the front lines.

We are just "that way" about Canada.

Five persons were known to have perished and 36 others were missing in a tropical storm that did much damage along the coast of Southern California. To The Tobacco Farmers of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina

VOTE FOR CONTROL

OCTOBER 5TH

In the present crisis every resident of the tobacco growing area is vitally concerned with the finding of a way out of the disaster that appears facing all of those who live on the farms and grow tobacco and those who have businesses in the towns that are dependent upon and serve the farmers. The question is not one that affects a few individual farmers but one that will have its effect upon the entire tobacco growing section and it is for this reason that business men of the towns as well as thinking farmers have joined themselves together in an effort to solve the problem in a way that will bring the greatest returns to the farmers.

With this year's record production of more than a billion pounds and with the loss of foreign markets because of the European war situation, farmers have found themselves faced by starvation prices and in turn have appealed to the government to take a hand to save them from financial disaster. The government has expressed its willingness to aid by purchasing the surplus but under the law it cannot take such a step unless the growers will vote for controlled production for next year in order to avoid the creation of another big surplus.

It is true that it might be distasteful to farmers to be told what acreage they can or cannot plant, and in the past there have been many things about the government control programs that were not perfect. But adoption of the program for 1940 does assure the farmer of assistance from his government without which he now faces financial disaster. It offers the tobacco growers the only road of escape from serious loss on the tobacco they now have on hand and on next year's production as well.

In 1933 when the farmers were faced by great losses as a result of overproduction they turned to government crop control and it brought about a return of prosperity to the tobacco producing sections of the state. Present conditions are even more serious than those of 1933 for not only do we have on hand the greatest portion of the largest crop ever produced but at the same time we have lost customers who usually purchase a third or more of our crop. In view of the seriousness of the present situation there is but one road open to the farmers and that is to vote for control.

A Vote For The 1940 Control Program Is a Vote For The Financial Safety of Yourself And The Community in Which You Live

The following individuals, firms and institutions, realizing that a controlled 1940 tobacco production is necessary if our section is to overcome the financial disaster with which it is now faced, urge every tobacco grower to VOTE FOR the control program and work unceasingly to see that his neighbor does likewise:

LAMBS SOLD IN N. C. COUNTIES

Cooperative Shipments Made in 15 Counties

Raleigh, Oct. 2.—Farmers in 15 North Carolina counties sold 4,373 lambs this year through cooperative shipments sponsored by the State College Extension service in cooperation with State livestock grading specialists. It was announced today by L. I. Case, extension animal husbandman. The lambs netted grossly $26,082.61, which was approximately $1,500 more than they would have normally received for the animals through the usual sale channels.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Profit cashing appeared on the stock market today and leaders fell behind fractions to around three points.

While selling was moderately active at the start, the pace slowed down. Near the fourth hour prices were a little better than their lows for the day.

Brokers asserted the desire to realize was natural after the sharp run-up of Saturday, but added that offerings were at no time aggressive.

Rumors that peace might suddenly arrive, which depressed values last week, were of little moment in today's business. Traders were said to be taking at its face value the statement of Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, that "it (the war) began when he (Hitler) wanted it and it will end only when we are convinced that he has had enough."

Foreign markets were firm. Commodities tended lower as did bonds.

LAMBS SOLD IN N. C. COUNTIES

Cooperative Shipments Made in 15 Counties

Raleigh, Oct. 2.—Farmers in 15 North Carolina counties sold 4,373 lambs this year through cooperative shipments sponsored by the State College Extension service in cooperation with State livestock grading specialists. It was announced today by L. I. Case, extension animal husbandman. The lambs netted grossly $26,082.61, which was approximately $1,500 more than they would have normally received for the animals through the usual sale channels.

The lambs were marketed by county farm agents in Watauga, Ashe, Alleghany, Edgecombe, Nash, Pasquotank, Camden, Currituck, Hyde, Washington, Tyrrell, Beaufort, Jones, Onslow, and Alamance counties.

Case announced that the lambs weighed a total of 317,718 pounds, and that the lot included 966 lambs which graded "choice," 2,500 which graded "good," 781 medium-grade lambs, 181 plain lambs, 159 common lambs, and 86 yearlings and ewes.

This is the fifth year that cooperative shipments of lambs have been made by farm agents of the Extension Service. Last year the pools handled 4,464 lambs which weighed 348,314 pounds on home scales. However, last year the lamb prices averaged only 75 cents per pound, whereas this year the animals brought an average of 82 cents per pound. Thus, only $51.79 less was netted by the farmers this year as compared with 1938, and they sold 91 fewer lambs.

The pooled shipments have served to stimulate interest in better livestock. In 1938 only 823 choice-grade lambs and 2,076 good-grade lambs were shipped, as compared with 966 and 2,200, respectively, this year.

There is no ace to literature, said Dr. Phelps.

Dr. Phelps' topic was stated as "The Romance of Science and the Truth of Fiction," and the speaker showed by a wealth of illustrative material that science is really the field of the imagination, and literature the field of truth. In any work of science, he said, it is necessary to buy the latest edition because new facts are continually being discovered and old errors corrected, while in literature the earliest edition is still the best because literature is based on unchanging human nature.

If Darwin were alive now, said Dr. Phelps, he would have to revise all his books on evolution, but Dickens, who wrote his novels during Darwin's lifetime, would not have to change a word in them. Based on human nature, which never changes, they remain true.

There is no ace to literature, said Dr. Phelps.

RED FACE DEPARTMENT (PINK SLIP DIVISION)

Hutchinson, Kas., Oct. 2.—(AP)—There are at least three kinds of slips. Vaden Stroud, assistant football coach at Hutchinson high school, was on duty at the high school door with instructions to let in no students unless they had pink slips—a sort of pass. So Stroud stopped a pretty girl. "Let's see your pink slip," said he. The girl blushed. So did Stroud as she tilted the edge of her dress. "I must have made a slip," said Stroud.

Urges Development Of Wide Range Of Interest

Introduced by President Meadows Saturday night at the college as being like Browning's character who "liked all she looked on and her looks went everywhere," Dr. William Lyon Phelps, Yale professor emeritus, literary critic, and writer, proceeded to prove the introduction apt by emphasizing in his lecture the necessity for developing a wide range of interests if one is to have a happy life.

Dr. Phelps' topic was stated as "The Romance of Science and the Truth of Fiction," and the speaker showed by a wealth of illustrative material that science is really the field of the imagination, and literature the field of truth. In any work of science, he said, it is necessary to buy the latest edition because new facts are continually being discovered and old errors corrected, while in literature the earliest edition is still the best because literature is based on unchanging human nature.
