GREAT BRITAIN DUBIOUS OVER ANY PROPOSAL

Regards Diplomatic Maneuvers Only As a Lull

PUBLIC OPINION FOR FIRM STAND

Although Door Left Open to Peace Proposals, Doubtful any Nazi Offer will be Acceptable

London, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Britain has left the door open for consideration of any German proposals to end the war, but is charting her course apparently on the assumption that present diplomatic maneuvers are merely a lull before a greater storm of warfare.

British public opinion as expressed through the press backs up the stand taken by Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons yesterday—that Britain would not test any Nazi proposals in the light of Adolf Hitler's past promises, which Chamberlain said, had proved "worthless."

The Times of London which often reflects the government's views declared that any peace terms offered by Hitler must conform to these conditions to be acceptable to the British-French allies.

They must not require us to condone the act of brigandage committed at the expense of Poland; on the contrary, they must repair the damage already done, and they must give not only to us but to all Europe adequate assurance that the peace concluded will be durable and will not be disturbed by the continual threat of Nazi aggression.

Official sources said no formal message relating to the German offer to end the war on Germany's terms had reached London. They added they knew nothing of any impending communications along that line.

Released on Bond In Extortion Plot

Two Farmville men, W. H. Fisher and Mitchell Harris, taken in custody Monday night by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in connection with an alleged extortion plot were released on bond yesterday afternoon.

Fisher was ordered held under bond of $500 and Harris under bond of $200, the latter as a material witness.

Nasif Cannon was the intended victim and the two men were allegedly arrested near the spot where the money was supposed to have been left after, officers said, the pair rode by the scene several times and finally stopped to pick it up.

According to information available Cannon, manager of Cannon's department store in Farmville, received a letter last week demanding under threat that he leave $500 at a bridge on the Fountain highway about a mile from Farmville. Officers were advised of the alleged plot and members of the Farmville police department and FBI agents stationed themselves near the designated "pay-off" place and caught the pair after an automobile chase of several miles.

Washington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Hearing will be held before the United States commissioner at Wilmington, N. C., for a man booked as Mitchell P. Harris, 24, arrested by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a charge of extortion.

The FBI said that the defendant was arrested in Farmville, N. C., Monday night when he attempted to obtain a package supposedly containing $500.

Fewer Indictments Here Last Month

There were 11 fewer indictments at the Greenville police headquarters in September than during the previous month, the monthly report of City Court Clerk H. B. Drum revealed today.

There were 139 indictments last month, compared with 140 in August. The same number of defendants, 103, were convicted each month, however. Eighteen persons were acquitted last month, one case was dismissed, one was appealed, two were transferred to Superior court, three were not pressed and prayer for judgment was continued in three.

Fines in September totaled $59.10 and court costs amounted to $422.22 compared with fines of $375 and court costs of $650.95 in August. The police pension fund and the Department of Justice each received $53 last month from city court defendants.

RENEW DEBATE IN SENATE ON EMBARGO BILL

Administration Proposal Opposed by Vandenberg

SUPPORTED BY TEXAS SENATOR

Michigan Solon Declares Measure Reaching into Arena Of War to Aid One Belligerent

Washington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told the Senate today that administration efforts to repeal the arms embargo were directed at reaching "into the existing arena of foreign war" to aid one belligerent against another.

Vandenberg arose to read solemnly a speech opposing revision of the neutrality law after Sen. Connally (D-Tex.) had predicted that Germany would begin sinking American merchant vessels unless the administration bill was adopted.

The measure would substitute a "title and carry" system of sales of munitions and all other supplies for the present arms embargo. It would prohibit American ships from carrying any goods to warring nations.

Vandenberg said he thought that repeal of the embargo would be a deliberately un-neutral act which may too easily be the forerunner of others when once the habit starts.

"Consciously or otherwise—but mostly consciously," he said, we are asking to depart from our neutrality policy in behalf of one belligerent whom our personal sympathies largely favor, and against another belligerent whom our personal feelings largely condemn.

"In my opinion this is the road that may lead us to war and I will not voluntarily take it."

Vandenberg asserted that the arms embargo had become the "symbol" of American neutrality. He contended that its repeal would be accepted by the world as indicating a change in our policy.

"I am not a pacifist," he said, "but I am a realist. I believe that the world is not yet ready to accept a policy of neutrality which is not backed by the power of the United States."

French Military Officials Crack Down on Signers of 'Immediate Peace' Appeal

Arrest of two Persons And Questioning of 29 others Characteristic of Government's Reaction To Nazi - Soviet Peace Overtures; Meanwhile Skirmishes reported on Western Front

Paris, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Military authorities cracked down today on persons whose names appeared as signatories to an appeal for "immediate peace," arresting two and starting an inquiry against 29 others.

These steps seemed to characterize the government's reaction to the German-Soviet Russian offer of peace based on the partition of Poland. The appeal, in tract form, had been circulated among members of Parliament.

The two men arrested were identified as writers, one named Lecoin and the other Jean Giono. The arrests were made under a decree law of September 1 forbidding any publication "susceptible of exercising an injurious influence on the spirit of the army and people."

The French cabinet intensified the economic war against Germany with a decision to attempt to block both food supplies and economic credit destined for the Reich.

A communique issued after the cabinet meeting in the Elysee palace under President Lebrun, said the new minister of blockade is allowed to take measures to restrict arrival in Germany of food stuff, and to "hinder arrival of economic credit."

There was no indication whether any action was taken at the cabinet session in regard to a possible German peace offer.

Meanwhile semi-official sources asserted that French guns dominated the front in the West. The new minister of blockade is allowed to take measures to restrict arrival in Germany of food stuff, and to "hinder arrival of economic credit."

Along a front of more than 50 miles the French army was fighting patrol skirmishes in efforts to surround cities, it was reported.

Italy Says It Will Not Call Peace Conference

Declares Such Reports are without Foundation

Rome, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Italy's present "peace" policy was announced today by the official Stefani news agency which said no initiative would be taken to convoke a peace conference.

A communique said: "Several English newspapers have published dispatches according to which Il Duce is studying plans for a peace conference. There was even given a list of the nations which were to participate."

"This news is without any foundation. During the present circumstances Italy will not take any initiative of this sort."

Usually well informed Italian sources said that any peace proposals that Adolf Hitler has to offer probably would be advanced in his Reichstag speech this week rather than through Italian diplomatic channels.

Diplomatic activity among the Rome-Berlin axis, these sources said, has been suspended, pending the Reichstuehrer's address.

Some Fascist circles said there still was a possibility of the Italian government serving as an intermediary for a formal approach to the French and British but they indicated Premier Mussolini would wait for reaction to Hitler's Reichstag proposals before intervening.

School Bells Call Firemen. Lawrence Kas, AP—Firemen are going to college here in October. The University of Kansas will have a short course to teach them how to fight flames scientifically. From 125 to 150 firemen from throughout the state are expected.

The various communities in the country are preparing "live-at-home" exhibits, which is one of the principal features of the fair. Vocational teachers are putting forth special efforts to have the best display of educational and agricultural exhibits in the history of the exposition.

A tobacco display showing the various grades of tobacco in a manner so the layman can understand them is being arranged and producers will participate for substantially increased premiums.

Livestock and poultry exhibits, which have shown a steady increase will be other features. The Art Lewis Shows, Inc. will provide the midway entertainment this year with some 20 shows and a like number of rides. Thrilling and sensational free attractions have been provided for each afternoon and night, with fireworks each night.

FARMERS TOLD BY SECRETARY LOOK ONWARD

Must Decide on Long-Time Program for Recovery

WALLACE HEARD IN KINSTON MEET

Speaker Also Urges Farmers to Practice Diversified Farming And Grow Things They Need

Kinston, Sept. 4.—(AP) Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, told flue-cured tobacco growers at a public meeting today that they should look beyond their present troubles and decide whether they are ready for a long-time program "for economic recovery."

Tomorrow tobacco growers throughout the flue-cured belt will vote on whether to limit production in 1940. Control of tobacco was rejected by the farmers for this year and a record crop of 1,000,000,000 pounds is estimated. Auction sales of the weed have been suspended since mid-September when British companies quit buying.

If control is approved tomorrow the government will aid in disposing of this year's crop, Wallace said, using federal funds and facilities of British tobacco firms.

Wallace pointed out that the record crop had resulted in a price average of about 14 cents a pound for tobacco sold this year before suspension of sales compared with an average of about 23 cents during the five previous years, when production was controlled.

Growers, Wallace said, should recognize the fact "that a good income from the growing of tobacco can best be obtained by purposely making necessary adjustments to keep supplies in line with demand, rather than by reducing surplus supplies which have already accumulated and depressed prices." He said that if only 75,000,000 pounds of tobacco could be sold each year that amount should be produced and sold "at a fair price." This year, he said, there is a 200,000,000 pound surplus.

The growers also should practice diversified farming by purposeful effort to produce on each farm "those things which are needed for good living on the farm."

"These two points," Wallace said, "are recognition of the need for stabilized production of tobacco and recognition for the need of getting more of the family income from the farm—are of vital importance as you go ahead with a consistent steady policy. Your efforts ought not to stop with spontaneous, temporary action in emergencies, such as the one now confronting you, but should provide the same enthusiastic support to your farm program a year from now that most of you are giving it today."

Pitt Cases Tried In Federal Court

Three Pitt county liquor cases were disposed of in Federal court in Washington, N. C., this week and one was continued until the April term next year. Defendants in each case were given penitentiary terms.

All defendants were arrested by Pitt county ABC officers. Pedro Boyd and Joe Everett, Negroes, charged with transporting three gallons of illegal liquor, were given two years each. Harry Atkins, Negro, charged with transporting 19 gallons, was given a year and a day. Oscar Pearson, charged with transporting 46 gallons, was given 18 months. All defendants were sentenced to the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga.

The case charging Otis Taylor with transporting two gallons, was continued until next April.

The Germans were said to be concentrating thousands of soldiers, many of them veterans of the Polish war at Black Forest, an upper Rhine fort.

At Istein, Germany's "Rhine-land Gibraltar," shielded lights were reported at night over the Rhine shallows on the German side. pontoons have been shipped into the Rhine valley by the Nazis.

A German strike from the Istein area probably would be routed across Alsace territory between Mulhouse and the French frontier, which forms the entrance to Burgundy gate. The French, however, have built strong fortifications along a 40-mile strip between Istein and Belfort. Guns placed along the mountain slopes command the side of the gate and its path under the cannon of great Fort Belfort.

Farmers Prepare Vote As Campaign Concluded

Meeting Here Last Night Ends Series In County

An active campaign in behalf of crop control was brought to a close today and farmers prepared to vote in the referendum to be held tomorrow. The polls will be open from 7 a. m. until 6 p. m. Polling places in the various townships appear elsewhere in this paper.

On the eve of the vote it was freely predicted that Pitt county would vote overwhelmingly for controlled production in 1940 and expressions of belief were mixed with a hope that the vote would carry throughout the flue-cured section. A two-thirds majority is required before quotas will be put into effect.

The government has agreed to purchase surplus tobacco with funds from the Commodity Credit corporation if the referendum carries. Facilities of the Imperial Tobacco company will be used to handle the tobacco purchased by the government and the company will be given an option on the purchases.

The tobacco markets closed on September 12 following the withdrawal of the Imperial company from the market and the subsequent drop in prices. The Sales Committee of the Tobacco Association of the United States has set October 10, Thursday of next week, as the date for re-opening the markets.

A series of township meetings was brought to a close with the gathering in the court house here last night. Original plans to hold the meeting in the Agricultural building were changed because of another meeting in that building.

Mayor Jack Spain opened the meeting last night, after which the program was explained by County Agent R. R. Bennett. Mr. Bennett declared that the proposed program differed from the one in effect last year in that it allows a farmer to sell all the tobacco.

Spain once owned the major part of the land now constituting the United States.

FRANCE WILL OPPOSE ANY DICTATED PEACE

Paris, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Premier Daladier told the Chamber of Deputies' Foreign Affairs Committee today that France intended to continue "the war that has been imposed upon us."

Following up Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration in the House of Commons yesterday, Daladier let it be known his government would stand loyally with Britain against any dictation.

RULE ADOPTED ON LEAF SALES

To Take Steps To Improve Tobacco Marketing

A special committee to adopt a uniform system to regulate the proper spacing of tobacco on warehouse floors was authorized under a resolution passed at a meeting of the Sales Committee of the Tobacco Association of the United States in Durham yesterday afternoon. It was revealed here today by C. S. Carr, secretary-treasurer of the association.

This move was "strongly endorsed" by Claude T. Hall, chairman of the Fine Cured Tobacco Growers' association in four states, chairman of the Growers Advisory committee and also an honorary member of the Sales committee.

H. P. Foxall, Rocky Mount warehouseman, was named chairman of the committee with J. L. Farmer, branch manager of the Imperial Tobacco company at Wilson, serving as vice chairman. The committee was composed of representatives from all of the bright tobacco belts.

Following a full discussion of the problem, including various systems in effect on individual markets, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"First—the adoption of a uniform system in all belts, whereby the growers' tobacco will be placed on the warehouse floors in such manner as to protect and display same to the best advantage possible, is of the most importance to this Committee."

"Second this Committee is not concerned with any method now used by markets to effect rotation of sales and floor space of individual warehouses."

"Therefore be it now resolved, That this Committee request all Tobacco Boards of Trade in all belts to take immediate steps to improve the marketing of tobacco; such as, providing ample space between rows to avoid any necessity of pulling baskets, and also provide a walkway at the end of each row of not less than 18 inches."

"While this Committee believes that it is also practical to mark warehouse floors crosswise leaving a marked space for individual baskets, no specific action regarding the marking is taken at this time but the respective Boards of Trade are urgently requested to enforce regulations to prevent the jamming of baskets." DON'T FORGET FAIR'S COMING

Legion - Sponsored Exposition Starts Here Monday

With a European war being waged, tobacco farmers preparing to vote, the public tomorrow to vote on the question of control of the entire tobacco industry making ready to re-open the markets next week, and the world's series baseball championship opening today, little has been said in the papers about the Pitt county fair to be held here next week.

But this should not be taken as an indication that plans are not going forward for one of the biggest expositions ever put on in this county. In fact, much enthusiasm has been displayed by those making preparations for this annual event stated by the two American Legion posts in the county, located at Farmville and Greenville.

The fair will get under way Monday of next week and continue through Saturday night. Officials report that the advance sale of tickets indicate a large number are expected to attend.

The various communities in the county are preparing "live-at-home" exhibits, which is one of the principal features of the fair. Vocational teachers are putting forth special efforts to have the best display of educational and agricultural exhibits in the history of the exposition.

Donald Dickson To Appear Here.

The second entertainment of the fall at East Carolina Teachers College, next Monday night, will bring to Greenville an outstanding young artist, Donald Dickson, well known to both opera and radio entertainers. Many in Greenville who have heard him over the radio know his rich baritone and friendly personality.

Dickson comes of a musical family, his mother having been an accomplished pianist, organist and singer. He has studied in Cleveland, Ohio, and in New York at the Juillard Institute of Music. His managers say that he paid for his first lesson by working in a cigar store and later in a steel factory.

It was his work at the Juillard Institute which first brought him to the attention of the Metropolitan Association, which he joined in the spring of 1937.

Soon after this he was given a contract by the National Broadcasting Company, and for some time appeared on the Sealtest Saturday night party. He is now heard regularly on the Chase and Sanborn hour on Sunday night.

His radio work brought about a demand for him to appear in concert, as he is doing the first time this season.

He will be in Greenville at the college, next Monday night.

Inter Se Book Club Meets.

Mrs. Sam Northrop was hostess to the Inter Se Book Club at her home on Fifth street on Tuesday afternoon, October 3.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Wyatt Brown, who welcomed the club members back after the summer dispense of the club. The club collect was read by the members, after which the program was turned over to Miss Louisa Hooker who gave a most interesting program on "Wild Flowers of North Carolina."

Miss Hooker stated that we should especially realize how fortunate we are to live in North Carolina which is one of the beauty spots of the world, for nature has spared no effort to clothe our swamps, our plains and mountains in the loveliest flowers, shrubs and trees that may be found anywhere. All about us in woods, fields, fence corners and along the sides of the woods we travel daily, nature has created beauty spots for us if we would only stop to look at them.

Our natural gardens fall into the following general groups: sand dunes, salt marshes, fresh water marshes, swamp forest, aquatic vegetation, shrub bog, grass sedge bog, sand hills, old field communities, great forest, and high mountain forest, each of which Miss Hooker discussed in detail as to the soil condition and the types of flowers grown in each group, showing examples of each.

At the conclusion of the program a short business meeting was held during the social hour, Mrs. Northrop served a delicious salad course with coffee.—Reported.

End Of Century Club.

On Tuesday afternoon, October 3, Mrs. Edward Batchelor was hostess to the End of the Century Club for its first meeting of the club year.

Mrs. R. C. Stokes, president, called the meeting to order and gave a most gracious greeting to the members and the guests, Mrs. Lindsay Savage and Miss Matheson. Each member responded to roll call with some interesting "highlight" from her vacation. These were surprisingly varied.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. J. T. Little gave a brief account of the work of the program committee.

Author

Dr. R. L. Hildrup, of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College, and author of "The Life and Times of Edmund Pendleton," just published by the University of North Carolina Press.

Miss Agnes Fullilove, speaker, compared England to the United States in size, wealth, population, controlling power, and dependence upon other nations. Two per cent of the property owners of England, said Miss Fullilove, own sixty-four per cent of the national wealth. England produces only about three-fifths of the food she needs, and only about one-fifth of the raw materials which she transforms into manufactured goods for all the markets of the world. England is, however, rich in the right things—coal, iron, and steel. It is, of course, the most highly industrialized state in Europe. There is a disproportionate individual British income, but the national income as a whole is much greater than that of any other European country. The British foreign policy, which has changed little from generation to generation, is based on the concept of the balance of power, with Great Britain holding the balance. Trevelyan has said "From Tudor times onward England has treated European politics simply as a means of insuring her own security from invasion and furthering her own designs beyond the ocean." Following this policy, in modern times, England has tended to France, to support Germany, to support France, when Germany was superior, but her land forces have never been sufficient except in alliance with some great military power. The population of England is 46,500,000; America 130,000,000; England controls outside population numbering 470,000,000, or ten times the size of the governing country in a world-wide empire. America exercises some measure of control over 15,700,000, or an outside population of only one-eighth the size of the governing country. England has attained and held her position in the world largely because of the loyalty of her people and their pride in the British Empire and her traditions. The strongest bond between the United States and England is, perhaps, a common language, always an important factor in determining sympathies. During the early history of the United States the British race was dominant, now the English are sixth in comparative numbers here, there being more Italians, Germans, Russians, Canadians, and Poles.

SUFFERING WOMEN WELCOME "BUILD-UP"

A simple method is saving many women much pain and discomfort! It is based on the knowledge that women's headaches, nervousness and cramp-like pain often are symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to a weak, run-down, undernourished condition. That so many women find relief from these painful symptoms through the CARDUI "build-up" is easy to explain. By improving the appetite, assisting digestion and assimilation, CARDUI helps to build physical resistance against periodic pain. Thousands of women also report that CARDUI, taken just before and during "the time," lessens periodic pain.—(Adv.)

Three new members, Miss Mae Jovner, Mrs. Will Whedbee and Mrs. Tom Rivers, were welcomed into the club.

The hostess, Mrs. Jack Spain served a delicious salad course with coffee.—Reported.

NO PRICE INCREASE ON NATURAL NITRATE

Ample Supplies To Meet All Needs Assured Despite War in Europe

New York, Oct. 4.—Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation has definitely announced that there will be no increase in the present price of Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda during the coming season which ends June 30 of next year. Simultaneously it is stated that arrangements have been made to assure ample supplies of Natural Chilean Nitrate in this country to meet everybody's needs.

This assurance to farmers and to fertilizer agents, J. A. Woods, president of Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation points out, eliminates all uncertainty concerning both price and supply arising from war in Europe. Carriage of Natural Nitrate are moving steadily from Chile to the United States. Larger supply than usual at this date is already in American ports and, in anticipation of greater demand, Mr. Woods declares that arrangements have been made to bring in extra supplies.

past three years. As no life of Pendleton had been written before, and his letters and papers had not been collected, the author has had to spend much time in searching out his material. He believes he now has, he says, more copies of Pendleton's letters than are to be found in any other one place.

Dr. Hildrup is a Virginian, himself, and did his graduate work at the University of Virginia. Related to the Pendleton family through his mother, he had access to valuable information in family papers in addition to that collected from libraries and historical societies in many parts of the United States.

Green Phantoms to Seek 2nd Victory Here Friday Nite

TO PLAY AYDEN AT SMITH PARK

Locals Victorious Over Windson in First Game

The Green Phantoms will seek their second victory of the season when they clash with the highly-rated Ayden eleven here Friday night, under the arcs of Guy Smith stadium. The game is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

With another record-breaking crowd expected, the game should mark one of the outstanding classics of the year. The battle last year between the Phantoms and the Aces resulted in a 6-6 deadlock. It is evident that the Phantoms were overconfident last year; this year they are out for revenge.

The Aces proved their ability last year and are expected to offer stiff competition to the highly-rated Phantoms next Friday night.

The end positions will be filled by two reliable lettermen from last year, John Collins and Larry James. Warren Parrish and Paul Scott will hold down the guard post while Earl Kittrell and Russell Rogerson will start at tackle.

The flashy backfield will be composed of George Tyndall, George Sakas, J. B. Kittrell and Marvin Stocks, all reliable lettermen from last year's eleven.

BUSY IN STATE ON ROAD WORK

More Than 500 Miles Of Improvement Under Way

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 4.—North Carolina road work now in progress would make a stretch of highway more than 500 miles long if it would be laid the proverbial end to end so often written about.

But even if it could be so laid the resultant road would be one of motley construction, ranging from simple graded dirt to brand new concrete with most of it with surface bituminously re-treated.

This hypothetical and composite road is imagined as the result of the 90 road projects listed on the latest Highway Commission Detour Bulletin, effective as of October 1, which lists a total of 90 projects of repair or construction affecting a grand total of 537.8 miles of North Carolina roads.

Of these projects 66 are on numbered Federal or State highways, affecting a total of 465.8 miles, while 17 are on county roads with a total mileage of 72.0. There are five bridge building or repairing projects also underway and two short city street jobs which affect less than a tenth of a mile each.

For the most part the projects are for repairs or re-treatment of already hard-surfaced roads. New concrete highways under construction will total only 34 miles, when all the half dozen projects of this sort are completed. New sand asphalt roads of 58.8 miles length will result from the six projects of that sort now under way on state and federal roads. There is one county project for construction of 10.8 miles of sand asphalt road. Two grading projects will affect 18.9 miles of state or federal roads, while there are four county road grading projects for 14.7 miles.

Bituminous re-treatment composes for the largest number of projects affecting much more than half the total mileage with 39 projects and 269.1 miles on state or federal roads and 12 projects for 46.5 miles on county roads.

Widening of concrete roads, something so urgently recommended by Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Mayfield in his program for improving the state's highway system, is being done on ten projects covering 79.2 miles, the two principal stretches being from Raleigh to Zebulon and from Zebulon to Wilson, a road which has long been regarded as treacherously narrow.

Revocations Go To New High During Past Month

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Oct. 4.—Revocation of drivers licenses hit a new high in North Carolina, when 589 drivers, 29 non-residents and 560 Tar Heels, lost their permits to operate motor vehicles. Ronald Hocutt, director of the Highway Safety Division, said today.

As usual drunken driving was so far the most frequent cause for revocation as to hold a virtual monopoly. Only 34 revocations were not directly connected with drunken driving, and in the case of 11 licenses revoked for driving after original license had already been taken away there is strong likelihood that drunken driving was at least a contributing cause.

Guilford, with 40 revocations, led the counties with practically no competition. Wake came second with 28 and there were 21 revocations in both Johnston and Pitt. Other counties showed less than a score each.

The month's record breaking list of revocations brought the state's total to 2414 since enactment of the revocation statute.

By offenses reasons for revocation were listed as: Driving drunk 512, driving drunk and reckless 14, driving drunk and hit-run 5, driving drunk (3 offenses) 1, driving drunk (2 offenses) 2, driving drunk and transporting 4, driving drunk reckless and hit-run 2, aiding and abetting in drunken driving 5, driving drunk and after license revoked 10, driving after license revoked 11, driving after license revoked (2 offenses) 1, driving after license suspended 1, two offenses of reckless driving 3, hit-run 3, perjury 1, reckless and transporting (2 offenses) 1, larceny of auto 8, temporary larceny of auto 3, manslaughter 1, hit-run and reckless 1.

There were no revocations in Avery, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Cleveland, Currituck, Dare, Franklin, Gates, Jones, Lincoln, Madison, McDowell, Onslow, Pamlico, Transylvania, Tyrrell and Watauga.

ECTC Gets Ready for Campbell on Saturday

With the week half gone, only a half-week remains before that exciting C. T. C.-Campbell encounter to be played at East Carolina Teachers college Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Much material will be available for the game Saturday, but the fine playing of Bill Merner and Bill Davidson will be missed. Merner is still nursing a leg injury and Davidson also remains on the hospital list with a crippled leg. Merner is a center and Davidson a backfield man.

No really serious injuries have occurred this season and the coaches are anxious that the Pirate camp remain free of any really serious injuries. Several players have received minor hurts this season, but were able to return to the fold again.

Bill Dudash has returned to the campus again, but it is debated whether he will return to the Pirate fold again. Bill was on the sick list during the summer and has not

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—So great is the superiority of coast defense over naval power in attack that authorities here discount almost 100 per cent the persistent stories that the British fleet may attempt to force a landing on the North German shore.

Attempting to land an armed force in the face of German power along the Baltic or North sea would be one of those tasks no navy would undertake if any other avenue of attack remained. Authorities always leave one avenue open. A Britain hard pressed in other quarters might make the desperate attempt at a shore landing. Odds against success are high.

Long ago Germany saw the possibility that a British fleet action might be launched against her in the Baltic. She took protective steps. Taking Danzig was one important step. As a free city Danzig was not strongly fortified against naval attack. Polish forces there failed to beat off one German battleship. You can almost bank on it that by now Danzig is well fortified.

A Port Would Help More than a year ago Germany crowded Lithuania out of Memel. That is another Baltic port that undoubtedly was only lightly armed until Germany took over.

An undefended port would be an ideal spot to make a landing. Under a naval barrage, troop ships could sail right into port and unload men and cannon. That is a dream situation for a navy.

Breaking into a fortified port is another thing. Shore guns have tremendous advantages over naval guns. They are concealed. The navy is in full view. Sighting and ranging devices for shore guns are greatly superior to those that can be installed on a ship.

Take Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, as an example. The water all around is zoned off. The coast guns know in advance what ranges and deflection to set off to hit a ship wherever it may be seen. Land guns on fixed bases are far more accurate than naval guns rolling at sea. Their range normally is equal.

Any landing the British navy would attempt likely would be along some unfortified shore. It would be necessary for the heavy ships to stand offshore and lay down a barrage to keep defending forces back while troops landed. Troop ships, conveyed by destroyers and cruisers, would crowd closer into shore, put men out in small boats, and trust to naval fire to keep enemy light and heavy artillery fire and machine gun fire to a minimum.

Dangerous Work But for a port to stand offshore and pound away at land troops is risky business. Undoubtedly every submarine in the German navy would be concentrated on the fleet. A half dozen, breaking through the screen of destroyers and cruisers, could ruin the British navy in a half hour. And they would try to break through even if it meant that nine of every ten submarines would be sunk.

After A Man's Heart

Chapter 27 Flight

"Where has Buff gone?" Tim yelled at Webby. "No need to speak to me so mad like, Mr. Tim. I don't know no more'n you do. She just said she was on her way and wouldn't be back."

"Where's her father? Where are Mr. and Mrs. Carroll?" "I can't tell you that neither. The last letter Miss Buff had from 'em, they was in Arizona."

"George was surprised at the look of frozen misery on Tim's face. 'It's all right, guy,' he said gently. 'We can always reach her through her father's syndicate. She hasn't disappeared completely.'"

The other man sank into one of the big chairs. "That's exactly what she done, and I know why: because she wanted to!"

"But why in thunder should she want to?" "A wry smile twisted Tim's lips. 'I thought you knew her so well! I thought it was I who didn't understand her, couldn't gage the motive for what she did. Of course she would go—after that Denver business. I think I suspected this all along. I think I knew she wasn't sick—unless she was sick at heart, poor child, over the imbecility of her friends. Don't you see?'"

"She did what she could for us—and then she washed her hands of us; of Boulder. Clean disgusted with the lot!" "In his turn George sat down. 'It doesn't make sense to me. Why should she be disgusted with us simply because she'd accomplished what she set out to do?'"

"Would you make us some coffee, Mrs. Webb?" Tim requested. "Mr. George and I didn't have time for lunch today." And when the fair housekeeper had withdrawn, he explained. "When I said the lot of us, I meant myself, of course. What sort of a girl would she be if she felt the least interest, let alone friendship, in a man who stuck his neck out twice in the same place in less than a year?"

"What if it hadn't been for her? I would have got it in the neck, too! She's fed up, she's through, don't you get it?"

"No, I don't," replied the simple Mr. Weekes. "She knew all along the kind of fool you were making of yourself. Good gosh, Tim, didn't we talk it over—she and I, you and she? Even Iris dumped plans and specifications in her lap. She cared enough then to put that smart brain of hers on the job and show you where you stood. Why should she change her mind about you just because she did that?"

"Unless," he added, "she thought you was still in love with Iris; that you resented what Buff had done for you. Listen," he demanded, "didn't you call her—telephone even?"

"I telephoned half a dozen times. I called her. I sent her flowers that same evening. The shop was closed and I had to hunt up the florist and pay him a winking sum to open up for me. Then I got a messenger boy to deliver 'em—the roses, I mean."

"She knew they were from you?" "I put my card in with them. 'Anything on it?'"

"Name." "George blushed at his vanishing hair. 'Suffering cats, guy! Of course it had your name. That's really the purpose of cards, isn't it? I mean—'"

A Little Exhausted "YES, I know what you mean." "Tim said drearily. 'Did I put twice-proven idiot? No, I didn't. Maybe I should have, but I didn't. It seemed a case for as few words as possible. Or so it seemed to me. There'd already been too many.'"

George regarded him unhelpfully. He felt the situation to be beyond him. Tim was, as he had repeatedly assured Buff, one of the best. Nevertheless his friend and business partner was finding himself a little exhausted by Tim's affairs of the heart. First Iris, then Buff, then Iris again, now Buff. "Make up your mind!" he said impatiently, and it betrayed the genuine seriousness of the case that he could be impatient with Tim.

The other man rose as though a spring had been released. "I have! The minute Webby told us Buff was gone I'm off. George. 'Fraid I'll have to take the car. And—oh, yes!' he paused a moment at the door. 'Look for me when you see me.'"

George made a feeble effort to halt him. "Look here! You can't go off like this! You can't—at least tell me where you're going for the love of Mike!" "For the first time in actual months," Tim smiled, showing a line of white teeth. "Going. How do I know? After Buff, of course. I'll be back when I find her and—she shoved his hat at a jaunty angle, settled his coat more closely to his big shoulders—'I'll bring her back with me!'"

Buff's character had been a character of her. The night before when Webby was safely asleep, she had slipped into the living room and telephoned Iris at the hotel. "I look persistent genuine and many."

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, Oct. 4.—It was cold in the Revenue building and other state offices, too, on Tuesday morning. On the fifth floor of the first named John Bray, superintendent of buildings and grounds, was having a time answering phone calls from all over Capital Square. It seems that the radiators weren't suiting the workers. "They're turning the heat on John, because he won't turn the heat on them," cracked J. M. Grainger, engineer of the State Rural Electrification Authority. Mr. Bray's next-door neighbor.

B. Liles and H. A. Saunders of Black Mountain, aver they are going to exhibit the biggest pig at the State Fair. They were down to see Commissioner Kerr Scott about the matter of entering their prize porker—a big bone Poland China which weighed 1,904 pounds last January and which they claim has gone on no part of a reducing diet since then.

Complete check-up on this year's revenue reports show that only in February and March have gasoline tax collections dropped below the $2,000,000 mark. The sales tax has exceeded a million in only one month, January, which reflected the Christmas shopping.

Yet there is twice as much complaining about the sales tax as about the levy on gasoline. It's all in the paucity of collection, presumably.

Donald Hocutt, director of the Highway Safety Division, has taken note of the football season and has issued a six-point piece of advice to grid game drivers.

1. Don't play offside, which in driving means don't drive on the left side of the road.

2. In carrying the ball, which is driving your car, do it in line with the rules of good sportsmanship. Don't hurry. Don't be reckless. Don't do anything on the road that you wouldn't want a player to do on the field.

3. Enjoy the game and help everyone else enjoy driving. This can be done by driving as you want everyone else to drive.

4. No matter who wins the game see that you make a touchdown every time by going to the game and home again in safety.

5. There are only twenty-two players permitted on the football field at one time, but there are thousands of players in the game of automobile driving. On the road before and after the game. You are

One of Seven Land-Grant Colleges Cooperating

By HENRY AVERILL, Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Oct. 3.—North Carolina politicians who have been contemplating campaigns for congress with a degree of complacency about the issues on which they plan to run, are now in something of a sweat as they see all their pre-arranged ideas go completely out-of-date as a result of war developments.

The claps in the Third, for instance, who were planning to buck Hap Haden because of his wage-hour gyrations are perfectly well aware that as of today that issue is about as useful as an incomplete forward pass in last Saturday's football game. Not only that, but until public sentiment crystallizes they don't know what to turn to next. Mr. Haden's stand on neutrality may or may not be popular today, but no matter which, it may be exactly the opposite come next spring.

Likewise Oscar Barker has been planning to tell the world, particularly that part within the confines of the sixth district, how Carl Durham "deserted" the President; but supposing that the astute Mr. Durham now goes along with F.D.R.'s brand of neutrality and further supposing that this brand proves popular with the people, how much good will Mr. Barker derive from his charges?

Almost dittoed situations exist in other districts—the eighth for instance where there is almost sure to be many-sided opposition to W. O. Burdick; or in the seventh where Emmett Bellamy has been sharpening an axe to chop down Bayard Clark's cherry trees.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — The religious life of New York city as a community springs from nearly seven hundred churches, synagogues, convents and monasteries, the earliest of which was Dutch, and the newest of which encompasses all nations. There are churches here of international fame and of unsurpassed richness and splendor, and there are others little known save by their congregations and the people who live in adjoining houses.

When the Dutch first arrived in Manhattan their first move was to establish a place of worship, and sure that time no decade has passed without the building of more and larger temples of worship. One can not begin to tell the history of church life in a brief letter, but these few widely separated facts may prove interesting:

When New York was the nation's capital, George Washington held services at St. Paul's on Broadway, between Fulton and Vesey streets. A special pew reserved for the Washington family was large and square, and on it was the coat of arms of the United States. It is still used as it was then, and anyone may sit in it today. St. Paul's originally was built on the site of a wheat field on the Queen's farm. Many American and British officers attended services there during their various occupations of the city during the Revolution, and many British officers are buried in the grounds.

Most widely publicized of all churches is the Actor's church, also Episcopal, which is known as the Little Church Around the Corner. It is daily the scene of 40 or 50 weddings. St. Thomas' church is one of America's most fashionable places of worship and at Easter the crowds are so large that the police force is taxed to control the on-lookers.

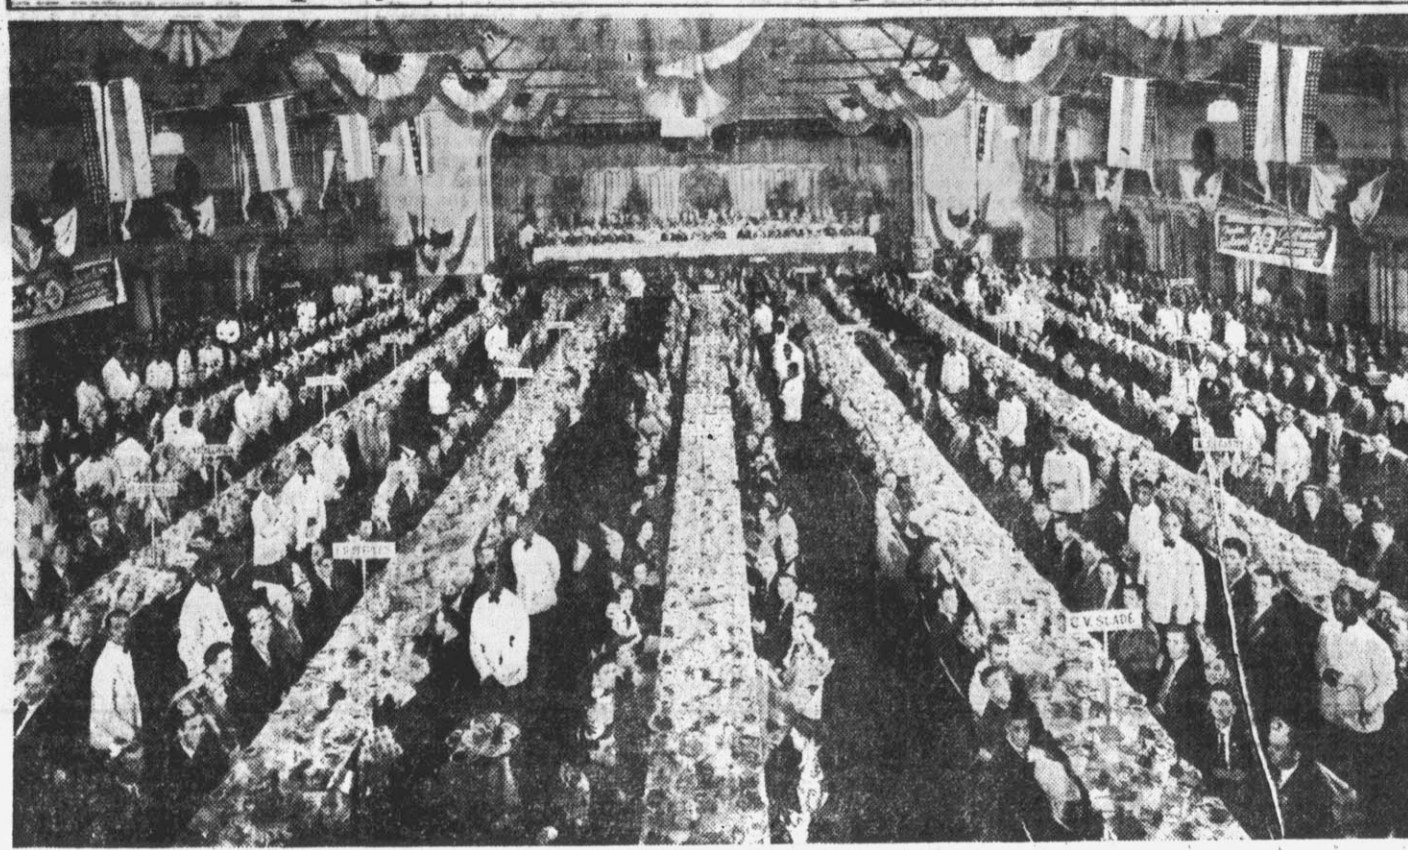

Temple Emanu-El, at Fifth avenue and Sixty-fifth street, is one of New York's most striking and beautiful synagogues. Early Romanesque in design it is an outstanding example of Hebrew symbolism. Its congregation is wealthy and influential, and numbered in its history are such important names as Guggenheim and Strauss. The Methodists in New York first met in an old loft at 120 William street, then known as the Street of the Cart and the Horse. By subscription they raised the money to erect the first Methodist church, known as the Old John street church. This was in 1768, and today it is the oldest Methodist church in the world. Aubrey Park in New York is named for Bishop Aubrey, of the Methodist church, who, in 1791 delivered his famous memorial sermon for John Wesley.

A great and magnificent church in New York is the Russian Orthodox Church of Christ the Savior, built in the '20s by refugees who fled Red Russia. The services are said to be of extraordinary beauty. The head of the church is the Very Rev. Vasily Kurduumoff, who is "tall, has a long black beard and walks with a white dog."

No mention of churches in Manhattan would be complete without a word on L'Église de Saint Esprit, the old French Huguenot church, at 229 East 61st street. It springs from the historical Edict of Nantes, which induced many French Protestants to flee to America. Their first place of worship was a small building in Pine street that was completely surrounded by a graveyard.

Quakers, Catholic, Baptist, Presbyterian—they are all here, and they are everywhere. Not without cause is New York known as "the city of churches."

A general view of the City Auditorium in Norfolk, Virginia, and some of the 1,500 guests at a dinner given on September 25 by the David Pender Grocery Company in honor of thirty-three employees who have a record of twenty years or more service with the organization. Officials, executives, and specially invited guests of the Company are seated on the platform while employees from both Virginia and North Carolina stores are at tables on the main floor. Another dinner of 500 employees was held simultaneously at Greensboro, North Carolina. The awards—handsome silver services for the women and solid gold watches for the men—were presented by David Pender, who founded the Company thirty-nine years ago.

WPA PAYROLLS AID BUSINESS

Pitt County Merchants Helped By School Projects

Payrolls totalling $38,939 poured from earned wages of workers on construction of Pitt county schools, into cash registers of merchants in the Pitt county area. PWA Resident Engineer D. H. Cooke estimated today.

Private industry employed all the men, Mr. Cooke said, and construction was made possible by assistance of the Public Works Administration.

The payrolls were spent for necessities. Over half of the workmen's pay went for food, housing and clothing, Mr. Cooke said.

The estimates were based on completed findings of the United States Department of Labor on how wages from PWA projects were spent in business channels of a community. This is the first time such information has been available.

Grocers received 32 cents out of every dollar wages, landlords were paid 15 1/2 cents, and clothing dealers received nine and nine-tenths cents worth of merchandise, the estimate showed.

Other items were 11 1/2 cents out of each payroll dollar spent for household operation which included electricity, water, coal, paint, house repairs and other necessary expenses for the home.

Workers paid 10 1/2 cents of their dollar for transportation, including upkeep of the family automobile, and bus, car and train fares.

The average worker spent almost as much for medical care as for furniture and equipment. He paid the doctor and druggist 4 1/2 cents and spent 4 1/2 with the furniture and home equipment dealer.

Movies, sports events, lodge benefits and other forms of recreation including a family trip to the circus or, to the fair, gave the workman an opportunity to spend another 5 1/2 cents of each dollar.

Savings banks, commercial banks, insurance companies and other items received the remaining 6 1/2 cents in the dollar.

Applying these findings to Pitt county school projects, Mr. Cooke said total sums spent by workmen were as follows:

For groceries, $12,458; for rent, $6,034; for clothing, $3,861; for household expenses $4,447; for transportation, $4,204; for furniture, $1,790; for medical care, $1,635; for recreation, $1,985; for savings and insurance $2,491.

WHAT IT MEANS: Russia Marches West

Washington — The news spot-by the Red troops of Stalin, light may play on the western Hemisphere in their minds is the front, but the attention of know-trunk admission by Herr Hitlering statesmen and historians is that he himself made the agreed-upon the astounding thrust of men with the Asiatic-minded State Asiatic influence into Europe—in that enables Russians to drive the occupation of eastern Poland their military machine up to the gates of Warsaw. Hitherto, European rulers have compromised with Asiatics, dickered with them, signed treaties with them, but they have never ventured to incur the wrath of their own people by practically buying the Asiatics into the European parlor.

Any statesman who does that violates a natural law that existed long before Kipling put it into words: "East is East, and West is West—and never the twain shall meet."

The Christian Heritage
It is not yet certain just how far Hitler has invited the Russians into Europe. But it is certain that he admits his aims in the east are "limited." It is certain that the toe of the Russian boot has been planted firmly at the Rumanian gateway to the Balkans, and Stalin is closer to Warsaw than any Russian before him ever got, save by military conquest.

Keep this point in mind: The old Russia of Catherine professed, at least, to be a Christian Russia. But not so Stalin; he professes atheism. And Christianity is still a living force in western Europe and has affected history time, and again.

It was the Christian heritage that more or less bound England, France, Austria and Spain together against the Russian advance on Poland in the days of Catherine II, even though Catherine was powerful enough to dub Poland her domain to Europe. Her legions did wipe their feet on the Polish doormat. But they never entered the door to the western world.

And it was the same Christian heritage that finally dismembered the great Ottoman empire that Solymann built. Eventually the western powers divided it among themselves as ruthlessly as the Turkish soldiery had split up and conquered the Balkans in the heyday of Ottoman power.

Historians Amazed
To the historian it seems incredible that Hitler has ignored these lessons from history. The response from the pope was immediate. His newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano declared the other day: "Russia is retracing its steps from Asia to Europe and is already in the heart of it. Nobody knows yet to whom allied and to whom an enemy."

That's a modern way of saying East is East and West is West. Whichever the final bargain Hitler may strike with Stalin, the historian and the statesman are chalking up his agreements with Russia as mistake No. 2. The first came when he violated the natural law of nationalism by carving up Czechoslovakia. Tricks like that led to the downfall of the illustrious Charles V, the master of Europe less than 300 years ago, and the meteoric Napoleon a little more than 100 years ago. Now he seems to have ignored the strength of the Christian heritage.

Can you figure on your car's Daily Winter Starting Schedule being any briefer than this?...

No. 2 Start * GOING TO LUNCH
No. 3 Start * RETURNING FROM LUNCH
No. 4 Start * GOING HOME FROM WORK
No. 5 Start * GOING TO THE MOVIE
No. 6 Start * GOING HOME FROM MOVIE

Could half-a-dozen starts or so get you through a day? Will your icy engine turn lukewarm in only 5 or 6 minutes? Even so, just think what that comes to, all through these bad months!... Total: 90 hours!

90 tough hours—and often more. A whole 90 hours when oiling that comes from "fast flow" alone lags far behind the sure lubrication that comes from changing today to OIL-PLATING.

OIL-PLATING is ready to lubricate sooner than any oil ever can flow—sooner than "instantly!"—because patented Conoco Germ Processed oil forces OIL-PLATING into a durable bond with the engine parts. OIL-PLATING becomes part of the parts!

They can't drain dry of OIL-PLATING. They remain "bathed in slippiness" all day, all night, in all weather, even with your car at a standstill. That's why OIL-PLATING lets your engine slide into swift, safe, dragless action, instead of letting it suffer Winter's worst 90 hours—along with your battery. Slash starting time; stretch your time between quarts to the limit; by changing to Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station today for your right Winter Germ Processed oil. Connally pointed out that the law which imposed the arms embargo left United States merchantmen free to carry other goods to belligerents.

He cited a long list of American vessels attacked or sunk by German craft before this country's entrance into the World war and declared:

"They were attacked or sunk not because they carried arms or munitions, or implements of war, but because they carried general commerce and on the theory that the destruction of such commerce would aid Germany and injure the allies."

"What Germany did in the World war she will do in this war."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—War stocks resumed a slow retreat today in an uneven market.

The market's defenses were strengthened somewhat by an advance in motor shares, but losses of fractions to around two points were in the majority near the fourth hour.

The strategy of the trading forces, brokers said, seemed to be mainly to wait for Hitler's speech later in the week. Meanwhile, deprived of speculative support, moderate offerings depressed steels, chemicals and other recent "war babies."
