SENATOR ASKS PROVISION FOR VOTE ON WAR

LaFollette. Proposes Amendment to Neutrality Act

VOTE WOULD BE ADVISORY ONLY

Proposal Comes as Fresh Wave of Speech-Making Delays Final Vote Until Thursday or Friday

Washington, Oct. 25. — (AP) — Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.) proposed today that the administration's bill to repeal the arms embargo be amended to require that a national advisory election be held before Congress could declare an overseas war.

His proposal came as the Senate's rush toward a final vote on the neutrality revision legislation bogged down in a fresh flow of speech-making. Leaders of both sides in the arms embargo controversy said the final ballot was unlikely before tomorrow or Friday.

LaFollette, an opponent of the embargo repeal, described the suggested election as purely advisory and not binding on Congress.

He told newsmen the only case in which such an advisory test of public sentiment would not be required would be in the event of a threatened attack on this country or by any non-American country on any nation in this hemisphere.

The proposed constitutional amendment was similar to one previously introduced by Rep. Ludlow (D-Ind.) which was opposed by the administration and rejected by the House.

The new speech-making upset calculations for a quick vote. Although expressing hope that the "house would uphold the embargo, Senator Nye agreed with Democratic Leader Barkley that the Senate decision would come late this afternoon or tomorrow and added that repeal would get from 55 to 60 votes.

This program is carried on annually in the schools for children who are unable to afford services of a private dentist. The program includes colored schools, also, though work in the colored schools has not yet begun.

The dental work in the white schools is being conducted by Dr. A. D. Underwood working under the state director of oral hygiene, Dr. Underwood has served Pitt county for the past several years and has done much to improve the health of the school children.

The local health officer, Dr. N. Thomas Emmett, declared today that he regarded oral hygiene as of prime importance in any public health program.

Finnish at large, yet without official word as to the nature of the "political and economic" talks at the Kremlin and the foreign office and reported to have only a vague outline of the Russian demands, eagerly awaited the arrival of their emissaries. The delegation was scheduled to arrive tomorrow.

Community Chest Goal Of $6,000 Set Up For Drive Opening Oct. 31

Rev. W. A. Ryan, Director

Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of the local Christian church, has been chosen to conduct the third annual Community Chest drive to be conducted here starting October 31. Rev. Mr. Ryan will be aided by an able corps of assistants. An effort will be made to raise $6,000 here this year, a budget calling for this amount having been worked out by directors.

Third Annual Campaign for Greenville To be Conducted by Rev. W. A. Ryan; Budget Set up for Various Organizations Participating in Single Concerted Drive in City

A goal of $6,000 has been set for the 1939 annual Community Chest campaign to be opened October 31, it was announced today by Rev. W. A. Ryan, director of the campaign this year.

This is the third annual Chest Campaign for Greenville. It is the creation of the Civic Organizations of Greenville for the purpose of making one concerted drive for the raising of funds for community projects instead of a series of hit or miss drives. The participating recipients of money raised are: Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Service League Thrift Shop, and the Relief Fund administered by the Community Chest.

The funds are apportioned as follows: $600 for Girl Scouts, $2,000 for Boy Scouts, $1,500 for the Salvation Army, $300 Service League Thrift Shop, $1,500 for community relief, and $100 for supplies and clerical help in putting on the campaign and keeping essential records.

The participating organizations and the amount they receive is determined by a Board of Directors of the Community Chest after careful study of each organization's purposes and budget.

For the first time Girl Scouts are entering the Community Chest. It is their first time only because they began their movement in Greenville December of 1938.

With the idea of expanding a highly imperative service to the community the chest has seen fit to ask the public for an increase in the amount apportioned for relief. Later this week the public will be given a detailed report of how the relief fund has been of inestimable value to the community.

From day to day reports of each of the participating agencies will be given to the public through the press. Rev. Mr. Ryan is not quite ready to make announcements as to committees and other matters on which he will need to advise the public in putting on the Campaign. He said that he expects the cooperation of the people of Greenville have been giving in the annual chest drives. Each year of the drive he says he has found the people of Greenville ready and willing to give and work for the chest.

This clinic takes all types of cripples, both white and colored, free of charge who are unable to afford private treatments. It is desired, though not required, that patients be referred by a physician or the welfare officer, and that the patient bring such note to the clinic.

The clinic is set up to serve especially the counties of Beaufort, Carteret, Pamlico, Pitt and Tyrrell, though patients from other counties who desire to come may do so.

The clinic is conducted by Dr. Hugh A. Thompson, orthopaedist, Raleigh. This clinic has been running for something over three years and is now serving a large number of cripples, adults as well as children, in this area.

The Pitt County Health Department office is located at the corner of Third and Green streets, Greenville, and it has recently expanded its office facilities.

U. S. Employees In "Red" League

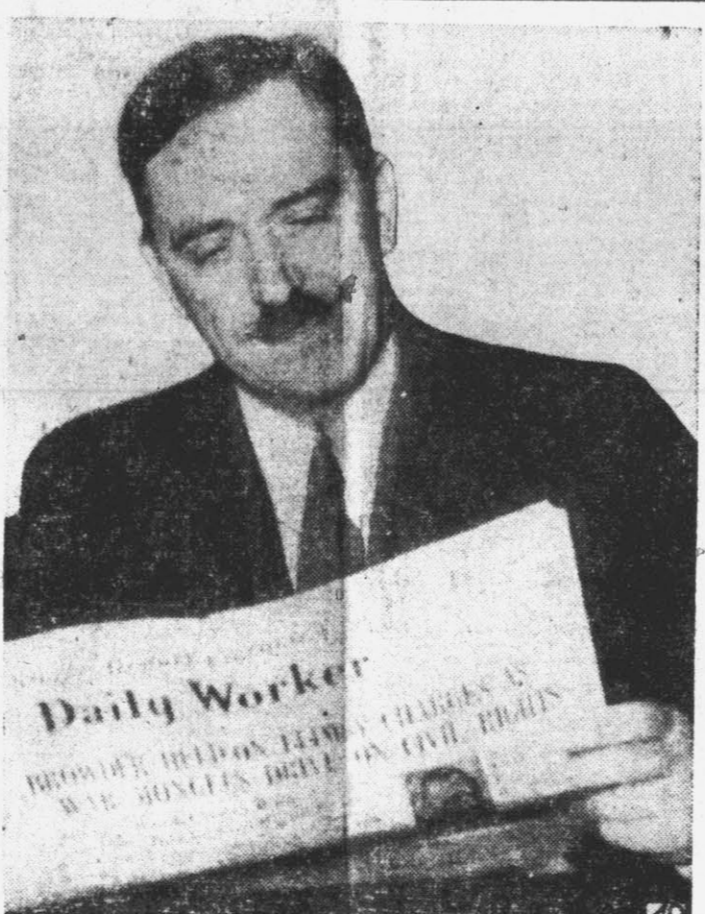

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Dies committee investigating un-American activities published a Washington "membership and mailing list" of the American League for Peace and Democracy and one of its own members promptly accused it of taking a "most damnable" and "most un-American" action. The accusations were made by Rep. Dempsey (D-N.M.), who was absent when the list of 563 names was given out soon after the committee's morning session opened.

The list made no distinction between government employees named on it and who might be members of the Washington branch of the league and those who might merely be on the league's mailing list here. Previously the committee had charged the league with being dominated by Communists. League officials have consistently denied this charge.

"I'm afraid," Dempsey said, "that in doing this we not only release in our hands the names of the league but those who contributed to Spanish refugees and are not members of the league at all."

The list included the names Edwin S. Smith, member of the National Labor Relations Board, and Louis Bloch, member of the "American Labor Board, both with salaries listed at $10,000; Oscar L. Chapman, assistant secretary of the Interior Department, with a salary of $9,000 a year, and Mordecai Ezekiel, director of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration, $8,000.

Browder Is Released On Bond

After spending a night as a federal prisoner in New York Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in the United States was freed on $7,500 security posted by Mrs. Hester G. Huntington, socially prominent New Yorker. Browder was indicted on charges of fraudulently obtaining and using a passport for travel abroad. This picture shows the Kansas-born Communist reading the Daily Worker in a Federal building office at New York.

FLIGHT MADE OVER BERLIN BY BRITONS

London, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Air Ministry announced today that Royal Air Force reconnaissance during the past 24 hours "included night flights over Berlin."

The announcement said night scouting flights also were made over Hamburg and Magdeburg.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's "fight to the end" speech in Danzig left British officials apparently unmoved today and brought a salvo of heated retorts in the press.

An official commentary characterized the address as a "clumsy attempt to divide Great Britain from France." The statement said the foreign minister had voiced "the same stupid falsehoods about the aggressive intention of Great Britain—intentions which everyone outside Germany fully understands exist only in the imagination of Herr von Ribbentrop and other members of the Nazi government."

$100,000 FIRE NAZIS PLAYING IN FARMVILLE WRONG RECORD

W. B. Lea Tobacco Plant is Completely Destroyed

The Farmville Tobacco plant in Farmville operated by the W. B. Lea Company, was completely destroyed by fire which was discovered about 5:30 o'clock last night.

Damage was estimated at $100,000, partially covered by insurance. In addition to the building and equipment, approximately half a million pounds of tobacco in the plant was lost.

The W. B. Lea company operates the cleaning and regrading plant and also operates a similar plant in Rocky Mount. The building was owned by A. C. Monk and R. E. Belcher. The building was said to have been covered by insurance, but no protection was believed to have been carried on the tobacco.

The blaze is believed to have started in the elevator shaft and made such headway firemen were unable to check the flames. The building was a two-story structure and it was feared that the fire would spread to other nearby buildings, especially the A. C. Monk factory.

Fearing the blaze would get beyond control, the Greenville fire department was summoned shortly before 6 o'clock. A few minutes later the local department was advised there was no necessity for it to go to Farmville, but a third call asked that they go to the scene.

Chief George Gardner took several men and a truck, but upon reaching the blaze was told that the fire was under control and the local men hurried back to Greenville.

The fire was under control about an hour and a half after it was first discovered.

Guests, including Mr. Dowell and president of various civic organizations, were presented, after which J. H. Blount introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Swain.

The Raleigh Merchants Association secretary discussed various questions of interest to merchants, including closer association, and a kinder feeling of friendliness; functions of a credit bureau and its advantages; elimination of unworthy advertising by the use of an advertising committee of the association; promotion of trade; and making Greenville a better place to live and do business.

New directors were named as follows: H. L. Ormond, B. D. Johnston, R. M. Campbell, L. B. Garris, D. J. Whitchard, C. T. Reid, E. Wilson, C. W. Harvey, Jr., Berry Bostic, J. M. VanDyke, J. C. Waldrop, J. M. Taft, O. C. Vatz, W. L. Nesbit and O. P. Matthews.

Average Of 19.01 Paid On Two Days

The average price paid on the Greenville tobacco market for the first two days of this week approximately the "parity" price figured at between 19 and 20 cents per pound.

Total sales for the two days, Monday and Tuesday, of 3,342,812 pounds brought $63,547.53, or an official average of 19.01 cents per pound.

Yesterday's offerings of 1,628,894 pounds brought $303,480.77, or an average of 18.63 per pound.

Sales Supervisor R. C. Rankin estimated that today's sales would total 1,600,000 pounds, bringing to 43,000,000 the poundage sold so far this season. A number of baskets of fancy tobacco this morning sold for better than 40 cents with a few baskets bringing as much as 43 cents per pound.

Prices continue strong following Monday's record price level for the season. New buying orders have boosted the level considerably this week, it was reported, especially the better grades of leaf which were affected more by the new orders than other grades.

Retiring President

O. P. Matthews was given a vote of appreciation both at the annual all-member meeting of the Greenville Merchants Association last night and that of organization's new Board of Directors this morning. Mr. Matthews, general manager of Blount-Harvey's store, is retiring as president of the association after having served as president last year. He will continue to serve on the Board of Directors.

Discuss Problem Of U. S. Vessel

Berlin, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The German government informed the United States today it was discussing with Soviet Russia the question of the American ship City of Flint, taken to the Russian port of Murmansk by a German prize crew.

The information was given American Charge d'Affaires Alexander Kirk when he received this morning by Baron Ernst von Weizsacker, Secretary of State in the German foreign office.

The ship was seized, inquirers were told unofficially, because it carried war contraband. According to the German report the City of Flint was taken to Primo, Norway, as "unseaworthy" because the American crew had put certain maps essential for navigation out of the way before the Germans took charge.

At Promos the prize crew attempted unsuccessfully to obtain the missing maps, informed circles said. The City of Flint then was taken to Murmansk where the German crew is being "detained" pending negotiations between Germany and Russia.

In German opinion the prize crew should be released because it sought refuge in a neutral harbor for reasons of safety while navigating an unseaworthy vessel.

Newspaper Close to Field Marshal Goering Declares Moment Has Come When War Desired By England Must Rain Down Upon the British Isles; Adds Patience of People Has Limit

Berlin, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Germany's next war move probably will be to loose a shower of bombs on England, the authoritative newspaper Nationalizing of Essen said today.

This daily is known to be especially close to Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering, Air Minister and number two Nazi. Hence its editorial commands special attention.

"The moment has come when the war is desired by England must rain down upon the British Isles itself," Nationalizing said.

Master Of Grange Heard At Meeting

Asheville, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Harry B. Caldwell of Greensboro, master of the State Grange, in 11th annual session here, told more than 400 delegates this afternoon that "co-operation must replace the autocratic rule of centralized ownership in the United States if business and agriculture are to prosper and democracy be preserved."

The annual address of the state master was a highlight of the afternoon session. Governor Hoy will be heard tomorrow evening.

"There are perhaps two ways of stabilizing farm commodity prices," Caldwell told the Grange. "One way would involve government control with price-fixing either in the form of commodity loans or subsidies from the Treasury, or by the straight-out fixing of prices by law."

"The other way involves the establishment of marketing machinery adequate to give the farmer a voice in the selling price of his product, legislative equality for agriculture and production control to balance with consumer demands as a result of sound farming practices adopted by the farmers themselves. As we seek to solve this problem we must ever be on guard to preserve the principles of democracy and freedom."

Literary Department Meets.

The Literary Department of the Woman's Club held its regular meeting in the parlors of the Woman's Club on Tuesday afternoon, October 24, with Mrs. Paul T. Ricks and Miss Nell Matheson as co-hostesses. The meeting was opened with remarks of welcome by the chairman, Mrs. K. T. Futrell. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. About 30 regular members were present, and one new member, Mrs. Al Dittmer, was added to the roll.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Charles Reynolds who gave a most interesting paper on the social life, education, interests and professional life of Judge Florence Allen, eminent judge of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mrs. Reynolds gleaned from her extensive reading about Judge Allen the following information:

Miss Allen never attended a public school. As early as four, she was studying Greek with her father, who had taught in Western Reserve University. She attended a famous academy in New Lyme, Ohio, conducted by her grandfather, Jacob Tuckerman. She was prepared for college by her father, and was graduated from Western Reserve in 1904 with honors. She received her Master's degree from W. R. U. in 1908.

After some teaching experience in a private school in Cleveland, she decided to study law. She studied law in the Chicago University Law School and the New York University Law School, from which she graduated with honors in 1913.

Ida Clyde Clarke, writing in the Century Magazine, says of Judge Allen that she has "conducted herself and the affairs of her office with such dignity and ability as to command the admiration of the entire country. She has been tried in the balance of public office and found not wanting."

Judge Allen is a prodigious worker and is vitally interested in improving the political situation of our country.

In addition to her intense interest in law, government, politics and the like, Miss Allen has always had a keen interest in music. She is both a musician and a music critic, having served professionally as a music critic in Berlin and in Cleveland. Judge Allen is decidedly an outdoor woman; her favorite recreation is a twenty-mile cross-country hike on Saturday half-days.

Her advice to women is "Don't be emotional—it's what the men expect us to be."

It may be said that Miss Allen climbed to her present position, as judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, since she was the first woman ever to sit in a court of last resort.

WOMEN: "BUILD-UP" TO RELIEVE PAIN

A weak, run-down, undernourished condition calls for attention! Such a condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get its foothold. That's one thing which leads to much of women's suffering from headaches, nervousness, those cramp-like pains. A good way to relieve such pains, women by thousands have found, is by the proper use of CARDUI. It stimulates a lagging appetite, assists digestion and assimilation; thus helps build physical resistance to periodic pain. Taken just before and during "the time" many women also report that CARDUI lessens the pain and discomfort of the period.—(Adv.)

high old time. . . How little it takes to satisfy some folk. I mused, patting my pockets to see that my tackle was there. And how suddenly envious they would be if they could but know that, come Friday, I'll be on the handsome road, renewing my faith in nature, with the city far behind, with whiffs of smoke drifting lazily up from my pipe my liar's license in an inside pocket. That was smug of me, really. I was standing on a street corner in Manhattan, being smug. Probably I shall be punished for this. I'll break a leg, or much worse, the fish won't bite. But then, what can you expect when half your friends don't even speak your language.

SEEK DATA ON ROBT. POTTER Too Tough For This State, Became Lone-Star Hero

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Oct. 25.—The Texas historical commission is seeking data in a one-time Tar Heel who proved too tough for this state some hundred years ago; but who became a hero in the embryo Lone Star commonwealth and for whom a Texas county was named in 1876. The information wanted is about Robert Potter, who served one and a fraction terms in the United States Congress from North Carolina, from March of 1829 to November of 1831; and, the particular and specific item desired was the North Carolina statute on "Potterizing" passed by the Tar Heel legislature especially to take care of unusual and diabolical crimes committed by such fellows as this Potter.

doubter, broke in with the low insinuation that every time I tell of an escape it seems to have a different ending. It probably hasn't occurred to him that I have made any number of escapes. Not long ago a man in Fort Worth sent me a nice little scroll, a "Liar's License for Fishermen," because, quote, "by long practice and coupled with a vivid imagination, you have exhibited all the proper qualifications. Therefore I am entitled to lie any time and anywhere except in the presence of game wardens. It also provides for the use of doctored scales and elastic rulers. Guides may be bribed. The lone restriction is that no lie, once told, may be retracted. I leave Friday to test this tall-tale man. Once again I join Mel Graff in the environs of Northville New York, more than 200 miles north, this time after walleys. Getting ready has been a lot of good clean fun. After fiddling away two hours in a tackle establishment this evening, laying by a supply of new 12-lb. test line, some spinners, and other accessories, I passed out into the street again and came upon a supper dance at one of the hotels. They thought they were enjoying life. Of course I felicitated them in their imagination—supper dances are so original—and in any case I did not want to throw gloom on an evening that for them promised such pleasure. But as they piled into their cab and went noisily away, I pitied them. They were going to a supper dance. They were having a

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington Vice President Garner has taken such a firm hold of the Administration's case in the neutrality fight that credit for repeal of the arms embargo likely will go to him if it goes to anybody.

From the night of the first conference at the White House at the beginning of the special session, Garner has been a calming factor in the debate. It is reliably reported that he spoofed at frightened senators who said repeal of the arms embargo would be the first step of this country toward war.

His 30 years and more of experience in Congress make an impressive record. His skill at unraveling legislative situations and interpreting public sentiment gives far more than average weight to his maneuvering.

It is all cloak-and-rod operation. The members just naturally drift into his famous "bureau of education" the vice president's private room off one corner of the Senate chamber. There he talks frankly at times bluntly both with members of the Senate and with certain news men in whom he places considerable confidence. He never is officially quoted, but on the other hand, the numerous quotations attributed to him are more often than not unofficially authorized.

In FDR's Camp

The debate on the neutrality bill was barely a week old when it became known that Garner was advising senators against restrictions on American shipping.

Senators objected that to let American ships cruise about the seas would run the risk of sinkings which would stir up American sentiment for retaliation. Again, Garner is credited with the assertion that public sentiment is so solidly against war that Congress never would dare vote for any kind of participation unless sentiment changed radically.

His position on neutrality is right down the same lane with the Administration. This puts him in the Roosevelt camp almost for the first time since he led the last-minute demand for a compromise on the court bill in 1937.

So quiet is the Garner way of working that it is almost overlooked that he had a greater hand in the administration than almost any vice president since Jefferson. He maneuvered for the selection of Joe Byrnes as speaker of the House in the first New Deal congress. He had a guiding hand in the selection of Bankhead as speaker to succeed Byrnes on the latter's death, and in the selection of Representative Rayburn of Texas to succeed Bankhead as majority leader.

On an actual count of noses at those little "big hat" conferences at the White House, Garner might even be in the majority, with Rayburn and Bankhead as his allies and the President supported only by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Senate majority leader.

Harmonious Team

These conferences on legislative strategy, which came Monday of each week during the regular session, have been discontinued during the current special session since only one issue is before the Congress and the five are in harmony on it.

So earnestly is the vice president working at this business of obtaining an early repeal of the arms embargo that senators have found him weary by the steady drag of personal conferences.

His principal recreation during the early days of the present session was baseball. Almost every afternoon he would spend an hour or so beside his radio when he could not

by Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: Smith tells Michael that because he needed money he agreed to submit to an experiment by Marchison. Now he lies in fear that Marchison will ask him to keep his bargain.

Michael's father, the District Attorney, comes to dinner.

Chapter 16

Letter From Chicago

"I WILL forgive you for keeping this mystery from me," Tuck solemnly told Michael's father, "on condition that you use your keen and agile brain in solving my little private mystery. Michael can't. He's too dumb. He can't. It has a mechanical base that is quite beyond my poor feminine mind. Bunny can't. I asked her. So it's up to you."

"Certainly," John Forrester agreed. "And what is it then, my dear?"

"It's my necklace," Tuck said. "Where is it? It's gone."

"Gone?"

"Gone. Disappeared. Michael says the insides of the pipes are smooth. And even I can see that if you drop a small and slippery thing down the inside of a large pipe it would have a tendency to land at the bottom. But it didn't."

Her father-in-law surveyed her from beneath bushy brows. "You are not talking to Michael," he reminded her. "His mind works in a scatter-brained fashion. I am a bit slow and ponderous, perhaps, but I feel that I could do with a wee little more detail."

Tuck explained. "It's not in the pipe? In the basement?"

"No."

"Nor yet in the furnace?"

"No."

"Well, then," he said, and settled comfortably back in his chair, "it must be somewhere in between."

"Very simple indeed," said Michael.

Tuck sighed. "I suppose it's gone forever," she said. "I can't quite see us pulling the house to pieces for a string of corals. It will break my heart to lose it." She looked sideways at her father-in-law. "I thought perhaps it had found out where the diamonds were hidden and gone to keep them company," she said.

"Humpf. Diamonds?"

"Diamonds," she repeated firmly. "You may all laugh if you wish, but I am more and more firmly convinced that the diamonds—Professor Murchison's diamonds—are hidden somewhere in this house, and that someone knows it and is looking for them. Higgins, probably. Although, even though he and his five thousand dollars sound very very suspicious, I don't think he has sense enough to hang pots and pans on the doors. It's too bright an idea for Higgins. Somebody else. Father Forrester."

"Mrs. Murchison," Bunny murmured. Tuck seized upon the idea instantly.

"Mrs. Murchison sounds reasonable," she said. "I wouldn't believe anything, she said anyway. I'm sure she's a double-crosser or whatever you call people like that. And I think she read 'The Bartered Bride' herself. It shows the kind of a mind she's got."

"If we were sure it was murder," Tuck went on after a reflective silence, "if we were positive he was murdered, it would be simple."

"Very," Bunny agreed dryly. "We'd just stand the whole campus in a row and say Eenie Meenie. Any of those people there at Deane's might be guilty. Any of them."

"Oh, Bunny, not Mrs. Deane. Not Mrs. Deane, Bunny."

Just A Mistake

"NO. Not Mrs. Deane. Unless she did it with an electric toaster or a sewing machine. From the looks of her she has one or the other in her hand all the time."

"I bet he's the kind of husband that simply makes a dreadful fuss about a button being off."

Michael looked at Tuck. She put her chin in the air, and averted her face. "You seem to be maligning me," he said bitterly. "I said nothing about my blue shirt. Nothing."

"I wasn't even thinking of you, Michael Forrester. I was thinking about Mr. Deane and those awful squinty eyes that you can't see, and the sarcastic things he says to you when you play the wrong card. And didn't you see that he didn't even have the same salad that we did? She had to fix something very special for him."

"We had lobster, and he had fruit," Bunny contributed.

Michael groaned. "Just because a poor man wears glasses and has a weak stomach. . . I tremble to think of you two being on the police force. I suppose you'd hang all the cross-eyed men just because."

"Well, of course," said Tuck with one of her lightning changes. "We aren't sure. Maybe none of them are. Maybe it's somebody else."

"And maybe it isn't anybody at all," Michael added.

"Michael, such nonsense. What about the diamonds?"

"Poof," said Michael. "There aren't any diamonds."

"It's so nice," said Bunny with sweetness. "To know that there's no mystery. No diamonds, just a mistake. The Professor has merely stepped out, Madam, and will be back in half an hour. Let's learn to knit, Tuck."

"No suggestive remarks, please, Bunny," said Tuck severely. Michael grinned.

"You could sew the button on my blue shirt," he mentioned. "Or is that what you'd call a suggestive remark, too?"

Tuck sniffed. "I am firmly convinced," she said, "that the Professor has been foully murdered, done to death in his own study, preferably by his wife, who then cleared away, pawned the diamonds and moved out. All we have to do is to find the diamonds, find a body, and hide the lady's mascara so a self-respecting jury can hang her without any qualms."

"What I'd like to know," said Bunny, "is where does the brother come in?"

"Does he have to come in, Bunny?" Michael asked plaintively.

Bunny colored faintly. "Something is bothering him."

"What about the pipe I found?" Tuck wanted to know.

Michael rubbed his forehead. "I'm not just so sure about that," he said slowly. "What would you think, Tuck. . . supposing you—well, supposing you were afraid that I had gone off on a trip with another woman and left you. You had been told that. And then, suddenly, someone comes along with my pipe, that I am never without."

You know that nothing short of a cataclysm would make me give up my pipe. Yet here, apparently, I have forgotten it. Wouldn't you get something of a jolt just for a minute? Wouldn't it hurt just for a moment?"

"Well, perhaps, just a very little," Tuck agreed.

"Womanly Sympathies"

BUNNY was looking at Michael shrewdly. "This display of wisdom and general deducing is very effective," she said. "Particularly the last bit of appeal to our womanly sympathies. But before you read our hearts any further, would you mind telling us quite frankly where you get this woman idea?"

Michael sighed. "Life is cruel," he murmured. Then with a gesture of resignation he said, "Well, . . . if I must. The Commissioner got a letter."

"A letter?"

"Um."

"Who wrote it?"

"The Missing Professor."

"What?"

"Even so, my children."

"Where is he?"

"He didn't state his present address."

"What made him write to the Commissioner?"

"He didn't write to the Commissioner. To his wife."

"To his wife?"

"Listen, don't say things over after me like that. It makes me dizzy."

"Well, tell us then, Michael! This suspense is awful."

"He wrote to his wife, and said he was sorry, that he didn't love her any longer, and that he had gone away never to return. And she took the letter to the Commissioner."

"Oh, she did, did she?"

"Yea, verily."

"Michael Forrester, I bet you're still trying to play hide and seek with us. Was it in his very own handwriting?"

"It was."

"Dated—six weeks after he left."

Tuck stared at him in silence for a long minute. Then, "Michael—was it in the envelope?"

"It was."

"And the postmark?"

"The postmark? Oh. . ." Michael grinned at her suspiciously. "Perfectly straight and correct, my love. Chicago. And kindly don't make any remarks about machine guns or gangsters, Bunny. I finished sternly as he saw a remark trembling on her lips."

Bunny frowned. "Chicago? Chicago, Michael?"

"Yes."

Tuck sank back into the couch. "Isn't that simply awful," she said miserably. "It's just like a balloon with a pin stuck in it," she reflected. "It can't be in his own handwriting," she said.

The District Attorney looked at her. "It's in his own handwriting."

"Is that certain?"

"As certain as the best expert we know can make it."

Tuck sighed. "We're sort of stopped, aren't we? Although . . . you can't tell me that all this sneaking around and crawling into people's houses and hanging pots and pans on people's doors, and getting the pots and pans away again before anybody can get a look at them, and turning pale and holding their breaths is imagination. I refuse to believe it. There's something in the woodpile."

Michael still paced the floor. "There's many a good man," said the District Attorney to the gas-log, "hung on circumstantial evidence."

at State College. A strange and wondrously dressed pledge was going through the Capitol Tuesday getting the signatures of officials on the piddle he carried. Secretary of State Thad Eure and Governor Clyde Hoey were among those autographing the instrument of torture.

The governor leaves today to dedicate a road in Surry county. From there he goes to the Grange convention at Asheville and thence to Cuthowee. He'll not be back in Raleigh until the end of the week.

Any lingering doubt about the effect of the European war on North Carolina's business during September is removed by the Revenue Department report showing collections of $988,207.51 in sales tax through October 27, compared with $872,747.04 in the corresponding period of September, 1938.

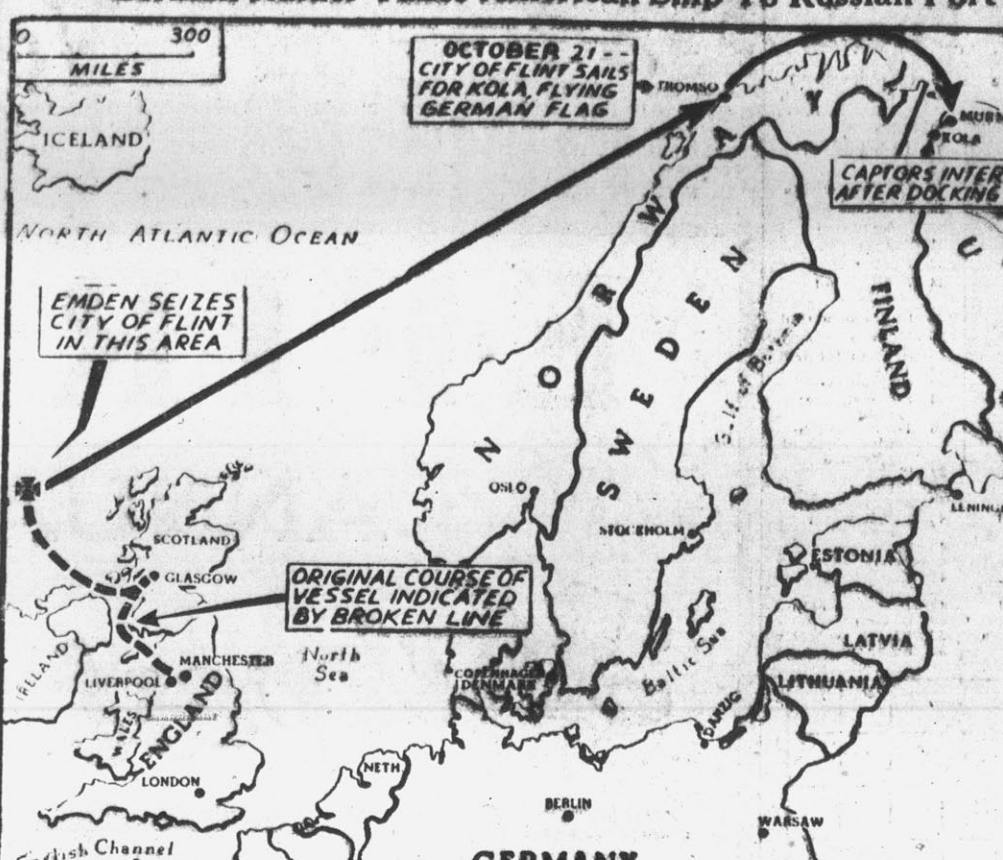

This despite closing of the tobacco markets for more than half the month.

Today's meeting at Kinston of the directors should almost wind up affairs of the old Atlantic and North Carolina (Mullet) Railroad as an operating corporation; though there will be elected a president, a secretary and perhaps an attorney to close out activities of the road which has been leased to the interests headed by H. P. Edwards of Sanford.

There will likely be considerable to do for the first year, at any rate, and it is logical to surmise that H. P. Crowell, head of the Mullet Road for a number of years can have the president's post if it is attractive enough to suit him.

Governor Clyde Hoey has named seven members on a commission to study ways and means of providing more suitable and adequate instruction in public schools for exceptional children. On it are Dr. E. A. Branch, Raleigh, chairman; Miss Ada E. Valentine, Spring Hope, secretary; Mrs. A. E. Wilson, Durham, Mrs. J. B. Sidbury, Wilmington; Mrs. W. E. Taylor, Charlotte; Dr. Henry W. Crane, Chapel Hill; J. F. Woodstock, Mount Pleasant.

Snow News For Today
Alamosa, Colo.—(AP)—Snow that fell eight years ago is a handicap to workmen in Alamosa. The snow was a wet one and as it fell it froze on top of ice that was being stored at the Western Railways ice plant. It made a four-inch layer of ice on top of the neatly cut ice blocks. The greatest demand in years upon the plant's supply diminished it this fall. Workmen finally were digging into the last layer. It was the one stored eight years ago and covered by the four-inch layer of frozen snow. Workmen had to remove it before they could reach the ice blocks. They found it a hard task.

A Mother Writes On War
Los Angeles.—(AP)—So bitter did Mrs. Josephine Mair feel about war that she wrote a bitter arraignment and made the document part of the public records by legally filing it with the county clerk. The lengthy statement reveals that she is mother of two sons, aged 23 and 9.

New buying orders have been placed on the Greenville Market affecting all types of tobacco, especially the better leaf. Many growers are averaging from $30.00 to $35.00 per hundred for loads of one, two and three thousand pounds, but there's a reason for higher prices in Greenville . . . Greenville is one of the largest tobacco centers in the world. Manufacturers and dealers all over the world look to this market for a big part of their annual purchases, particularly good tobacco. They know Greenville has unexcelled facilities for buying, handling and shipping tobacco in great quantities.

Raleigh, Oct. 25.—Efforts are being made to get Senator A. B. Happy Chandler as principal speaker at a Young Democratic rally here November 17, despite the fact that the Kentuckian is no longer governor and will not be able to make his hosts "Colonels" as he did for John Larkins and George Ross Pou, instrumental in getting him as the speaker at the Jackson Day dinner early this year.

College Team to Engage Norfolk Eleven Here Saturday

ECTC PLAYERS TO BE AT HOME

Face William and Mary Braves on Local Gridiron

The William and Mary Braves of Norfolk, Va., will tangle with Coach O. A. Hankner's East Carolina Teachers College Pirates here Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Adrian Brown, who received a back injury three weeks ago, is slated to see action against the powerful Norfolk foe this week-end.

Bill Shelton and Jack McJunkin, who played a thrilling game in the backfield last Saturday afternoon against the Western Carolina Teachers College Catamounts, appear to be ready for identical performance in the ensuing engagement.

When the Pirates clash with the Braves, they will confront a rather heavy contingent. One of the Braves' tackles, Morton McCarthy, is a six-footer and tips the scales at 218 pounds. He played with the Maury high school Commodores six years ago and did not return to the football wars until this season.

Harold Hudgins, stocky, blond and weighing 175 pounds, is one of the mainstays in the Brave forward wall, forming with Bernie Shapiro, a player weighing 190 pounds. Hudgins is performing his first year under Coach Tommy Scott, the Braves' guide.

The tallest man on the Norfolk team is Dorsey Cooper, who is three inches taller than the six-foot mark. He is not afflicted with the clumsiness that usually stands out among lanky football players.

It is not known what kind of scoring procedure will be executed against the Braves. The Pirates made to serious aerial threats against the West last Saturday and the Catamounts intercepted two passes for as many touchdowns.

Bleachers have been transferred from the north to the south side of the gridiron to keep the sun out of the eyes of spectators.

TANK MEET SET AT GOLDSBORO

Philadelphia Club to Engage Wayne Mermaids

Goldsboro, Oct. 25.—The mermaids of Goldsboro will meet one of the most outstanding girls' teams in the country Saturday night, October 28th, when the Broadway Athletic Club of Philadelphia visits the Eastern Carolina city.

The dual meet will be the second inter-sectional contest between Goldsboro and a member club of the Eastern League of Women's Swimming Clubs, of which both teams are members. The Newark Athletic Club of New Jersey recently defeated the Carolina fish by three points.

Brookwood has two girls that are not only hold senior national A. A. U. titles, but are the possessors of world titles. Dorothy Forbes won the 1937 senior women's 100 yard backstroke, and, according to the record book, has the following world times to her credit, all of these marks being in a backstroke event:

The 100 yard, 1 minute, 10 seconds, made in Kearney, New Jersey, April 10th, 1936; the 100 meter, 1 minute, 18 seconds, Coral Gables, Florida, January 2, 1938. These marks were set in twenty yard pool.

Under noteworthy performances in the shorter distances, Miss Forbes holds the 50 yard mark in the time of 31.7. This time was established at Miami Beach, December 26, 1937. On a twenty-five yard course, Miss Forbes holds the 50 yard mark in 32.8, set at Clementon, N. J., June 14, 1936. Her fifth record time was made over a twenty-five yard course in Allentown, Pa., and was for 75 yards in the time of 50.7.

One of the feature events of the dual meet will be the 100 yard backstroke in which Prince Nuffer of Goldsboro and Miss Forbes will renew their bid for a record breaking 100 yard backstroke mark.

The Pennsylvanians will bring nine swimmers for the meet, all having been in big meets in the East and some having participated in the national championships held in High Point.

DUKE'S DEVILS FACE DEACONS

Clash At Durham Saturday To Be Top-Line Contest

Durham, Oct. 25 — Saturday's headliner in Duke stadium between Wallace Wade's streamlined Blue Devils and Peabody Walker's dynamic Demon Deacons of Wake Forest promises not only to be one of the best battles of the 1939 Big Five campaign but to take rank for thrills as one of the best in the nation.

Continuing a gridiron rivalry that started back in the spring of 1889, the game is expected to be one of those slam-bang, hard-hitting affairs between a pair of big, fast squads.

And where the individual warfare will really be hot will be in the backfield. Both teams have brilliant arrays of backfield talent. The Blue Devils are headed by the sensational George McAfee and also offer George's brother, Wes, Jay Davis, Roger Robinson, Frank Swiger, Frank Killian and Steve Lach.

The Deacons have names that are just as big in Big John Polanski, Tony Gellovitch, Red Mayberry, Marshall Edwards, Joe Duncavage, Molly Layton, Bill Eutsler and Jim Dowdy.

Backfield averages on both teams are amazing. Gellovitch has an average of more than 12 a try in rolling up 659 yards, Mayberry is averaging eight yards, Polanski and Edwards seven yards, Layton six and Eutsler 10.

Duke, too, has impressive averages. George McAfee has one of better than eight yards a try and his substitute, Killian, has averaged 11 yards. Wes McAfee is averaging six, Robinson better than 3, Davis just less than five and Swiger slightly under six.

Polanski has been the Deacon's high scorer with a total of 51 points in six games to Mayberry's

48. Duke's George McAfee has scored 36 points in the Blue Devils four contests.

Although equipped to take to the air if they like with Duncavage doing the throwing, Wake Forest has been just literally smashing the opposing teams' lines this season and they will give the Duke forwards their biggest test of the current campaign Saturday. If the Blue Devil forwards are able to hold down those Deacon drivers it will be an amazing job.

Lincoln, Cleveland and Wilson counties in North Carolina were not named for presidents. The first two were revolutionary patriots and the last was a general in the Mexican war.

Green Phantoms Prepare to Meet Roanoke Rapids

Particular attention is being given to pass defense and blocking tactics by Greenville high's footballers in preparation for Friday night's game with the powerful Yellow Jackets of Roanoke Rapids. The contest will inaugurate the opening of the Northeastern conference schedule for the locals and will be staged at Guy Smith Stadium. Kickoff time is set for 8 o'clock sharp.

Coaches Farley and Fulkerson are working the Green Phantoms overtime in an effort to halt the team, which successfully stopped them 6-0 for the past two seasons.

Roanoke Rapids boasts one of the state's strongest high school eleven and battled Goldsboro, the conference champions of last year, to a 0-0 deadlock last Friday. They have two teams capable of handling most any high school team in this locality.

Greenville, however, has not been napping. They have won three games and tied the fourth, losing none to date. However, they have not met a conference foe as yet.

Hopes are high for a championship team and a possible undefeated season is being looked forward to.

The two teams will be equally balanced from weight angles and they tied for second place in wins and losses last season.

A crack backfield will represent Greenville as the referee sounds the starting whistle. They are J. B. Kittrell, George Sakas, George Tyndall and Marvin Stocks. Each of these boys is hard hitting and better than average high school players. Sakas is lame with a leg ailment, but will probably be at his best by Friday.

James Collins, Earl Kittrell, Rogerson, Williams, Scott and Parrish will hold down the seven coveted line positions unless plans are changed before game time. Parrish has an infected ear, but will don his uniform and be ready. The others are in fine shape.

PASSING DUEL TO BE WAGED

Carolina to Engage Pennsylvania on Saturday

Chapel Hill, Oct. 25—Another of the nation's outstanding passing duels of the season looms Saturday on Franklin Field in Philadelphia when the undefeated North Carolina aerial circus runs up against the unbeaten Pennsylvania passing express.

Both North Carolina and Pennsylvania were unusually successful with their air attacks Saturday. The Tar Heels came from behind midway of the fourth quarter to score two touchdowns and tie Tulane's mighty Green Wave 14-14. Outrushed 273 yards to 39 (net), the Tar Heels' advantage in the air was almost as decisive as Tulane's superiority on the ground. They completed 15 of 21 passes for 186 yards while the Greenies made good two out of five for only three yards.

After being held to one touchdown margin over Lafayette and Yale in the first two games this season, Pennsylvania passed to two touchdowns over a strong Harvard team while holding the Crimson to a single marker. Captain Harlan Gustafson, one of the East's finest ends, scored two of the touchdowns, and Frank Reagan, brilliant triple-threat quarterback, the third, Bill Koepsell, Reagan's capable understudy, threw both touchdowns passes. Pennsylvania completed 10 out of its 17 passes against Harvard a 59 percent, which is a fine average in any league.

George Stirmweiss and Sweet Lallanne, the touchdown twins, will pitch for North Carolina Saturday with Reagan, Koepsell and Substitute Bill Wexler, whose 51-yard pass to Gustafson beat Yale last week, on the firing line for the Quakers.

Gustafson, the glue-fingered 195-pound flankman, usually does the catching although Ed Allen, Reagan, Johnny Dutcher, and Len Warner also stand out as receivers.

North Carolina has four outstanding pass catchers at the ends in the persons of Paul Severin, Jim Mallory, Chuck Kline, and John Elliott. Severin caught both touchdowns passes against Tulane. However, George Radman, 175-pound halfback, is probably the best catcher on the squad. He has led the Tar Heel receivers for the past two seasons and caught the pass that beat N.Y.U. last season and again this fall.

In the Villa Gorghese, Rome's largest municipal park, there is a clock operated entirely by water power. The water drops from a fountain and is caught in a series of descending cups to provide mechanical energy.

U.S. RAILROADS FACE CHARGES

Group Accused of Anti-Trust Law Violations

Washington, Oct. 25—(AP)—Attorney General Murphy announced today that he had authorized filing of a complaint charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust act against the Association of American Railroads, its officers and directors and 236 member railroad companies.

The bill of complaint charges, the attorney general said, that the railroads had combined to restrain trade by agreeing not to extend to motor carriers the same cooperation in carrying freight and passengers which the roads customarily extended to each other.

Another allegation was that the railroads had jointly refused to establish rail rates on carrying motor trucks, trailers and truck bodies. "All commodity" rates, container and similar rates, and had jointly refused to establish through rates, joint rates, fares and joint billing arrangements with motor carriers in order to eliminate competition.

Murphy said the complaint would be filed later today in the District court of the District of Columbia. The announcement was made through Thurman Arnold, head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division. Arnold said that the agreement complained of consisted

An average of 75 farmers attended the 13 township election meetings, which have just been completed.

At these meetings committeemen were elected to serve in connection with the administration of the Agricultural Conservation Program and the Agricultural Adjustment Act for 1940.

Approximately 7,800 producers were notified of these meetings. Notices of election meetings have been mailed to farm operators in the past, but the attendance has been small. Each year we want all the farmers in the township to participate in electing good capable men to serve on the committee, and once elected as the people's choice the committee is entitled to the support of the people in the township.

In the past, since records are available in the farm office, we have tried to help the producers by discussing their complaints with them and then taking the information obtained up with the township committees for their consideration if

There was any allotment available to the committee with which adjustments could be made.

We suggest that producers take up their complaints with the committees whom they elect, then when the committee is in the office he can consult the records and determine if the allotment has been established according to the law and according to regulations adopted by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Producers should keep in mind that when allotments are established and the county allotments are used up the committee is powerless to make any further adjustment until allotments are set up the following year. But in such case the producer should take up his complaints with the review committee.

The county office will be glad, at the proper time, to help producers with the procedure to follow in getting justified cases before the local committees or the review committee.

The county office in cooperation with the county committee must see that the regulations are properly understood and followed and the county committee checks the work done by the local committees, then the state office checks the work done by both committees.

Township and county committees' allotments in 1938 and 1939 were required by regulations to be started in order that the state committee could review them.

Up to the present time we have received no additional instructions on the establishment of allotments other than that covered in Secretary Wallace's letter which was mailed before the referendum.

When regulations governing the establishment of allotments are received the county office in cooperation with the county committee will go over the instructions with township committees in order that the instructions may be understood by all concerned.

spared your OIL-PLATED engine

You need your engine OIL-PLATED now by patented Conoco Germ Processed oil to wipe out doubts of decent oiling during starting—when unplated engines wear worst. (6 or 8 minutes of such wear, repeated 6 or 8 times a day through these cold months, mounts up beyond 90 hours!)... 90 life-sapping hours for engines abandoned to oils that can only "flow fast"... no oil starvation in 90 hours or 900 hours, when your engine's OIL-PLATED.

The "magnetic" action of Germ Processed oil gives every square inch in your engine a slippery overlay of OIL-PLATING—attached as firmly as chromium-plating. And could any plating drain down when you park in any cold, for any length of time? Then you know why OIL-PLATING—drain-proof—is ready to lubricate before you're even ready to get out of bed, or away from work. Before any oil-pump could squirt a drop, your drain-proof OIL-PLATING has readied your engine for safe, easy starting. That's how you get the drop on the worst of Winter by OIL-PLATING now with Conoco Germ Processed oil. Keeps up your engine—your battery—your oil-level, too. Change now to Your Mileage Merchant.
