ADMIT BRITISH U-BOAT LOST BY EXPLOSION

Time and Place of Disaster is Not Revealed, However

BRITAIN CLAIMS MASTERY OF SEA

Churchill Declares Three Times as Many Hunting Craft On Duty as at Start of War

London, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The loss of the British submarine Oxley by an accidental explosion was announced to the House of Commons today by Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty.

"Since the outbreak of the war," Churchill said, "one of our submarines, HMS Oxley, has been destroyed by an accidental explosion in circumstances which made its publication inadvisable at the time."

He did not disclose the place or date.

(The Oxley was one of Britain's ocean-going submarines completed in 1927 and having a normal crew of 54 officers and men.)

Churchill declared three times as many British hunting craft were at work now as at the outbreak of war and that "a fairly sound conservative estimate" of German submarine losses was between two and four every week.

"What I told the House under much reserve six weeks ago I can now repeat with more assurance—namely that we are gaining a definite mastery over the U-boat attack."

Churchill estimated that Germany could produce two new submarines weekly and added, "at any rate our expectation is that we must face 100 U-boats in January less whatever sinkings have occurred."

Dealing with the additional menace of the surface raider, Churchill said "it is certain that one and possibly two of the so-called pocket battleships have been out on the Atlantic trade route during the last six weeks."

Minimizing the successes of surface raiders to date, Churchill said "only two ships aggregating 10,000 tons have been sunk so far by surface action, compared to 212,000 tons by U-boats."

Group Of Farmers To Meet Tonight

There will be a dinner meeting tonight of a group of invited farmers of Pitt county to have the Farm Bureau Federation more fully explained. "Everyone really favors what the Farm Bureau is trying to do for Pitt county but the trouble is people have it all mixed up with politicians' claims, the Federal government, A. A. A., and all other things than a true understanding of just what the Farm Bureau has done and wants to do," said Paul Devenport, outstanding farmer and business man of the county when discussing tonight's meeting.

Everyone present will be given the opportunity to express themselves and to ask questions. It was announced. The leaders of the movement are confident of the support they will receive once farmers understand the true role of the bureau.

Farm Bureau officials announced that memberships are coming rapidly since the explanation of the Farm Bureau program was made to the small group of farmers last Thursday night. The meeting tonight is the outgrowth of the request by those attending last Thursday requesting they be permitted to bring in other farmers to have the Bureau explained.

Friends of the Farm Bureau Federation of Pitt county are proud that the Bureau in North Carolina had its start in Greenville and are encouraged by the new interest being manifested in carrying on the accomplishments of the Bureau. Membership they assert is necessary to carry on the work the Bureau has outlined.

Unable To Walk, She Goes Hunting Fort Collins, Colo.—(AP)—Mrs. Ralph Detwiler, victim of infantile paralysis, has not walked since she was six years old but she did what a lot of hunters failed to do this fall—she brought home a buck.

Determined to go deer hunting, she had her husband carry her to a rock near a path through a forest northwest of Fort Collins. "I kept very quiet and saw a lot of deer before a buck finally came into sight," she said. "I waited until he was within 75 yards and then fired."

It was a three-pointer. A pound of tea makes 150 to 200 cups, depending on the strength desired.

The proposed pension failed to carry.

One Killed, One Injured In Clash at Coal Mine

President of Corporation is Struck by Bullets

Greenville, Ky., Nov. 8.—(AP)—One man was killed and the president of a coal corporation was wounded today in a clash at a coal mine 15 miles west of Greenville, in which 250 to 300 armed men were reported to have taken possession of the mine property.

Several hours later the group still held the property, company officials said.

Robert Brown, 54, of White City, Ky., construction superintendent for the Hart Coal Corporation, was killed.

Brent Hart, president of the company, which operates other mines in adjacent Hopkins county, was wounded in the left side and there were five bullet holes in his coat.

Greenville is the county seat of Muhlenberg county in western Kentucky.

The mine, a new corporation, is not producing coal.

Company officials said there were men inside the shaft and about 25 outside preparing for the beginning of operations soon.

The Muhlenberg mines operate under labor agreements with the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.), while most of those in adjacent Hopkins county have contracts with the Progressive Miners Union (A. F. L.).

U. W. Powell, sales manager of the company, said he was informed the armed group came from nearby woods and were met by W. A. Vinson, general superintendent.

Vinson was searched and Hayden Webster, a guard, was disarmed. Powell said.

Company officials said shots that wounded Hart were fired as he stood near an employes' boarding house that was under construction.

The men then riddled the house with bullets.

Several men were reported beaten with pistol butts.

COURT DIVIDED OVER DECISION

Action Affirms $25,000 Award to 'Switzerland'

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Dividing evenly, three to three, with Justice Heriot Clarkson not participating because he was interested in the suit, the State Supreme court today affirmed an award of $25,000 to the Switzerland Company from the North Carolina State Highway and Public Works Commission for land taken for the Blue Ridge Parkway.

The matter of the value of the land had been considered in six hearings before it reached the high court with Justice Clarkson appearing as a witness twice. The jurist organized the Switzerland company. His contention that the damages exceed the valuation fixed by the highway commission were sustained at each hearing.

The court decided 14 cases. Chief Justice W. P. Stacy wrote a unanimous opinion finding "no error" in the conviction in Sampson county of murder of Raymond Williams and Henry Williams, convicted in the slaying of Nathan Reif. The decision set the death date for the men as November 24 unless Governor Hoey intervenes.

Associate Justice Michael A. Schenck wrote the opinion upholding the Superior court award in the Switzerland case. Concurring were Associate Justices William A. Devin and A. P. Seawell. Chief Justice Stacy wrote the dissent, in which Justices M. V. Barnhill and J. Wallace Winborne joined.

Negro Admits Killing

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Director Fred C. Handy, of the State Bureau of Investigation, said today that Zediah Smith, 29-year-old Sampson county Negro, had confessed that he killed William Daniels, 62-year-old white man, Sunday, October 29, near Clinton.

Handy quoted the Negro as saying he hit Daniels over the head with a brick and robbed him of $15.

Two state bureau agents and the sheriff of Sampson county secured the confession, Handy said. The Negro is being held in the Clinton jail, awaiting trial in the February term of Superior court.

Looking For Oil

Buenos Aires.—(AP)—Government officials are seeking greater supplies of native oil to offset a possible shortage of imported coal due to the war. A report of the federal petroleum monopoly says Argentine wells produced 1,185,414 metric tons in the first nine months of 1939, a 13.97 per cent increase over the same period of 1938.

New Territory

Buenos Aires.—(AP)—Argentina is, despite its modern appearance and fine capital, still far from a completely explored country. The discovery of a previously unknown lake more than 125 miles long in Chaco territory of Northern Argentina has just been announced.

Proposal of Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands and King Leopold of Belgium to be 'Considered,' Livelier Activity Reported on Western Front; Plane Losses Reported

By The Associated Press Proffered mediation by the monarchs of Belgium and The Netherlands raised only scant hope today for European peace.

The three nations who received the offer, Britain, France and Germany, said only that they would consider it.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain told the House of Commons today that the appeal of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold "is receiving the careful consideration of his majesty's government, but I am not prepared to make any statement upon it today."

Previously British officials said consultations with France would be held before replying.

Unofficial French quarters and the Paris press predicted "no" would be the French answer.

Authoritative German circles said that a German reply to the mediation offer had been rendered practically unnecessary by British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax's "acoustically prompt" speech last night.

Speculation immediately arose whether Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold made their sudden move because they feared imminent military developments which would embroil their nations or whether they considered circumstances propitious for ending the conflict.

A few hours before the offer reached London, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax broadcast a speech repeating a broad outline of war aims for "a new world in which the nations will not permit insane bombed rivalry to deny their hopes of a fuller life." His speech had been planned several days ago.

The German high command reported "livelier" activity on the Western front by artillery, and Germany had lost five planes and the allies seven during the first week of November.

Unofficial French dispatches asserted 12 or 13 German planes had been brought down in an aerial battle Monday. A previous official claim was that nine of 27 German planes were downed.

Two unidentified planes were reported to have flown over Paris yesterday dropping leaflets repeating parts of the speech Russian Premier Molotov made October 21 in which he mentioned closer German-Russian cooperation.

NLRB DECISION IS UPHELD BY CIRCUIT COURT

Republic Steel Directed to Rehire 5,000 Workers

ORDER CALLED FOR BACK PAY

Attorneys for Corporation Had Already Indicated an Appeal Would be Taken to Supreme Court

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—(AP)—A National Labor Relations Board order directing Republic Steel Corporation to rehire 5,000 Ohio workers involved in the "little steel" strike of 1937 was upheld today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The corporation had asked the court to set aside the order, issued by the board October 18, 1938.

The ruling of the court of appeals would require the corporation to provide back pay for strikers who were not returned to their jobs. At the time the case was argued in the court company counsel estimated such payments might amount to $7,000,000.

The payment is required under the board's original order, which directed the corporation to rehire the striking employes within five days after they applied for reinstatement—or pay them wages from that time.

Some were returned to work. Others were not. The corporation contended that on "acts of lawlessness" during the strike they forfeited the right to reemployment.

Attorneys for the corporation already had indicated they would appeal to the United States Supreme court in event of an adverse decision.

The case grew out of the costly and bloody strike at Republic's plants at Youngstown, Massillon, Canton, Warren and Cleveland, O.

R. C. Deal Speaker At Assembly Hour

In celebration of American Education Week, Professor R. C. Deal, head of the E. C. T. C. French Department, spoke at the college assembly Tuesday on the ideas discussed at the recent North Carolina College Conference at Greensboro, which he thought likely to affect his audience of prospective teachers.

Describing the college conference as perhaps the most important education meeting in the state because what it discusses frequently is later put into practice in the school system of North Carolina, Mr. Deal commented briefly on the main speeches of the conference and then gave the remainder of his time to explaining the important suggestions laid before the conference by the chief committees.

The chief suggestions made by the committee on collaboration, were two in number: That no certificate be issued after 1942 to a principal or superintendent who does not hold a master's degree, and have a certain number of hours in education; and that there be set up some kind of system to determine either in high school or college whether a prospective teacher has the ability and aptitude to make a reasonable success in the teaching profession.

The speaker pointed out that the provision about the training of principals and superintendents, if it does become part of the state's requirements, will not apply to people already in service.

The recommendations of a committee on language teaching, of which Mr. Deal is a member, were that the same basic English courses should be required of all high school students whether preparing for college or not; that the study of dramatics should not be substituted for fundamental courses in English that projects requiring only mechanical skill may be substituted for the study of fundamentals that the high school emphasize more and more ability to speak and write the English language with reasonable accuracy, that the literature taught in the high school be chosen to fit better the level of the students, and that written work be corrected and discussed with the writer.

The "week" Mr. Deal was speaking in recognition of American Education week has been observed since 1921, under the sponsorship of the National Education Association, the American Legion, the United States office of education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. This year the general theme for the week is education for the American way of life.

Woodrow McRoy, white man charged with non support, was acquitted. During trial of the case one of the witnesses, Willie Ross, was found in contempt of court and was fined $10. Ross' made some slight remark as he left the stand. Court attaches said they understood the witness to say, "I'll be dern."

They Offer Their Offices For Peace

Messages offering their "good offices" for peace will be sent Germany, Britain and France by King Leopold of the Belgians and Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands, the two monarchs announced after conferences at The Hague on the situation confronting their respective little neutral states. At first efforts were made to keep Leopold's visit to The Netherlands' ruler secret. This picture shows the two sovereigns at the time the Queen visited Brussels in the spring of this year.

FINES LEVIED IN PITT COUNTY

Convicted Dealers in Liquor Swell School Funds

Fines assessed against convicted illegal dealers in whiskey is swelling the Pitt county school funds during the session of Pitt county court which began yesterday morning and continued through this afternoon.

Snodgrass Mills was found guilty of possessing equipment for the manufacture of whiskey and also of having illegal liquor for sale and was ordered to pay a fine of $250, costs of court to be deducted.

Approximately 200 gallons of whiskey and parts of a still were found near the home of the defendant, who lives a few miles from Greenville off the New Bern highway.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Dink James found Thad Little and L. L. McLawhorn guilty of having whiskey for sale and fined Little $200 and costs and McLawhorn $50 and costs. The two were convicted of having liquor for sale at the Airport filling station on the outskirts of Ayden. The judgment also provided that the filling station be locked up for six months.

James Steele, Negro, entered a plea of guilty to driving without a license and a 30-day sentence was suspended upon payment of costs and on further condition that the defendant not drive any more until he secured a license.

Mose Williams and Ernest White, Negroes, were given 90-day sentences, suspended upon payment of $35 each, on a charge of larceny of corn.

Riddick Alexandria, white man, pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while his license was revoked and was fined $50, costs to be deducted. The judgment also provided that the defendant's license be revoked an additional 12 months.

Clarence Clancy, found guilty of driving careless and reckless, was ordered to pay the court costs, had his license suspended for four months and was ordered to pay for damages to the truck of Ralph Wiggin. The judgment provided the defendant serve a 30-day road sentence if he failed to pay. An appeal to Superior court was noted. Wiggin, also indicted in the same wreck, was acquitted.

Brownie Gray, who was given a two-year sentence for abandonment and non support at yesterday's session of court, had the sentence suspended today upon condition he pay the sum of $5 weekly into the offices of the Pitt welfare office, the money to be used for the support of his wife.

Woodrow McRoy, white man charged with non support, was acquitted. During trial of the case one of the witnesses, Willie Ross, was found in contempt of court and was fined $10. Ross' made some slight remark as he left the stand. Court attaches said they understood the witness to say, "I'll be dern."

Campaign Still Short, But Canvassing is Not Complete

By WYATT BROWN A total of $4,000 has been raised to date in the 1939 Community Chest campaign. It was announced today by Rev. W. A. Ryan, general chairman of the drive. This report is incomplete, so there will be some little more to be added.

Study of the figures by groups reveals that the East Carolina Teachers College faculty gave $341 to the Community Chest. Mr. Ryan said he wanted the public to know what a fine showing the faculty had made in their contributions this year.

This total announced today will mean that each participating agency in the Community Chest this year must cut their spending by one-third. For the first time in its three years efforts in Greenville the Community Chest idea has failed in Greenville to provide funds sufficient to carry on with a full budget.

Mr. Ryan announced today that he did not consider the $4,000 as final and was going to defer a final announcement until later. Some solicitors have not yet completed their lists. Some of the solicitors are busy men who have had to sandwich in between appointments the soliciting they have done.

To Exhibit Weaving.

Miss Alma Sparger, instructor of art at East Carolina Teachers College and chairman of the Art department of the Woman's Club, will have an informal showing of her own hand weaving Thursday, November 9, at 3 o'clock at the Woman's Club.

Articles such as table linen, towels, pillow covers, scarfs, etc. will be shown. Most of the designs have been woven from drafts that originated in our Southern mountains, and have been handed down from mother to daughter for many generations.

Some of the pieces in the collection were made on an old loom that dates back to "Grandmother's" day when all of the bedclothes and clothing were made at home. We would not want to return to that period but there is a peculiar charm in the products of that time that the modern machine has never been able to duplicate.

Miss Sparger, who feels that since the handcrafts have gone out of the homes and into the factories, much of the fine quality of hand-made products has been lost, believes in teaching her students the processes of handcrafts in order that they may be able to appreciate their value in comparison with machine made articles.

She has done much research in native North Carolina crafts and has visited many of the centers where industrial arts are taught. Some time ago she became especially interested in the weaving of the mountain people and decided to take it up herself as a hobby.

Miss Sparger encourages her students to ride a hobby. Weaving is the hobby she herself enjoys during her vacation periods. She says the days are not half long enough when the shuttle is flying back and forth, the loom is beating out its tune in

In addition to Miss Sparger's showing of hand weaving, Mrs. H. C. Hanes and Mrs. Knott Proctor will entertain with a short musical program, after which the club members and invited guests will go to the Art Gallery to see the Art exhibit and a puppet show made and presented under the supervision of Miss Hilda Ogburn, director of the gallery.

Club women from Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain and Winterville, have been invited to participate in the program for tomorrow which is being given in observance of National Art Week.

Literature Department Meets.

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. Hicks Corey on Liberty street, with Mrs. Walter Cherry as co-hostess.

The living room, dining room and sun parlor were thrown together and made bright and cheerful by fall cut flowers, indoor pot plants, and an open fire in the living room grate.

About 30 regular members and three visitors, Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., Mrs. E. A. Simmons, and Mrs. McCoy, were present to enjoy the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. K. T. Tutrell, who asked for the roll call and the reading of the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore gave the calendar of events taking place at the Woman's Club this week and urged all present to attend the meeting Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the club women of Pitt county will join the club women of Greenville.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. M. N. Posey who had charge of the program and read a most enlightening and interesting paper on Kirsten Flagstad and her important position in American opera. It was interesting to note that Madame Flagstad comes from a family of musicians in Oslo, Norway. Her father was an orchestra leader and her mother a pianist and an opera coach. Throughout her life, although Flagstad had not had real vocal training, she taught herself the roles that her mother was coaching—playing them at the piano herself. Her mother had given her piano and helped her with her voice, but was not expecting or wishing her daughter to have a musical career. Her first teacher of voice was Ellen Schytte-Jacobsen who was a friend of her mother, and who offered to help Kirsten develop her voice to keep her from ruining it. She was then fifteen. By the time she was eighteen she attempted an audition for a part in an opera (Hieland) her mother was to coach and got the part. From that day on Kirsten knew that she was to be a singer.

After a session with Gothenburg Opera Company in Oslo, she gave up her public life to marry Henry Johansen.

In 1933 Kirsten Flagstad was asked to sing at Bayreuth, the Wagnerian shrine for the festivals where Wagnerian roles are sung as Wagner instructed. Flagstad's husband was delighted with the honor paid

Vases of mixed chrysanthemums were used in profusion throughout the rooms.

The bride's table was lovely in its decorations carrying out the Thanksgiving idea. The centerpiece consisted of mixed fruits attractively arranged on magnolia leaves. Attractive place cards and miniature turkeys marked the places of each guest. Mrs. Edwards, assisted by Mrs. K. W. Cobb, served a four-course breakfast to twenty intimate friends of the bride-elect.

After breakfast the guests were invited into the living room, where the honoree was given a kitchen shower of red and white presented in a large red wagon. Much merriment was derived from the reading by Miss Taylor of limericks which she found with each gift. Mrs. Edwards remembered Miss Taylor with an electric waffle iron, and Miss Lautares with a Pyrex set.

G.H.S. To Observe Book Week.

Book week, which is to be November 12-18, is being sponsored in Greenville high school by the Library club. The purpose of Book week is to encourage students to enjoy and read more books.

A chapel program will be given Friday, November 17, in which a great number of books are to represent new flashes from various countries of the world. Costumed students will be dressed as natives from several countries.

Mrs. Luther Herring, school librarian, and her assistants are planning to have an individual display of exhibitions in each homeroom.

"Although all of these things will take place, we must not overlook the fact that reading the books means more than displaying them," quoted Mrs. Herring. "During Book week I hope each student will read at least one good book."

No title-author contest is being sponsored this year due to so many ties a few years back.

"It is hoped this year that Book week will bring more results to each student than ever before," emphasized Verda Harris, a member of the club. "Book week, of course, is going to be exactly what the students make it."—Green Lights.

his wife and urged her to go. It was to be her last performance and her climax. Soon after she was offered a contract to the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York.

To Americans it is an honor to be offered a Metropolitan contract—to Europeans it is a command. Her husband said she must go.

Madame Flagstad has voice, technique, temperament, and imagination. She accomplishes her aim purely by singing and not by gesticulation.

It seems strange that the shy, home-loving Kirsten Flagstad, who is so little concerned about her own greatness, can so well interpret the works of the concealed egotist Wagner, who thought of applause for himself alone.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore was asked to give a brief account of her trip to New York to attend the ninth annual public forum on current problems. Mrs. Moore said that the forum idea originated with Mrs. Edgar Brown Maloney, editor of This Week magazine. It is promoted by Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, president and vice-president of the New York Herald Tribune. The general tonic was "The Challenge to Civilization." Many outstanding leaders in various walks of life were forum discussion leaders. Several broadcasts from overseas were listened to, as well as one from President Roosevelt in Washington. About 6,000 club women from all over the United States were present.

The meeting was brought to a close by delicious refreshments served in buffet style, with Mrs. K. T. Tutrell pouring tea.—Reported.

SHOW PLANNED FOR FAT STOCK

Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce to be Sponsor

At the regular meeting of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce held in Goldsboro Thursday night, the matter of sponsoring an all Eastern Carolina fat stock show for the spring of 1940 was considered. It was the opinion of the directors present that emphasis should be placed on the increase of live stock for commercial purposes on the farms of Eastern Carolina and that it was felt that there was no better way of bringing this to the attention of the section as a whole than through a fat stock show.

Plans were submitted and tentatively adopted for holding the show in Kinston between the 1st and 20th of April. Secretary N. G. Bartlett was authorized to proceed with the details and report back to a meeting of the directors at an early date as to his findings. Letters were read from the packers including Armor and Company, Swift and Company, Kingham and Company, the railroads including A. and E. C., Norfolk and Southern, A. C. L., Southern railroad and Seaboard pledging their help in any way to make the project a success. It is the hope of the officials that if it is definitely decided to hold the show that at least 1,000 hogs will be on exhibition. At the close of the show the animals on exhibition will be sold at auction. The packers have pledged their cooperation in that they expect to have buyers at the sale.

Other matters that came before the directors were more or less routine except it was agreed to stress the matter of distributing publicity of Eastern Carolina along the main highways leading from north to south, this winter, with the hope of directing more visitors through this section.

The matter of selecting a place for the mid-winter business conference and the 18th annual dinner was left up to the secretary and vice president. Towns interested in securing either or both of these meetings are invited to communicate with the secretary.

In the absence of the president, R. L. Applewhite, Vice President John D. Larkins, Jr. presided. Those in attendance were John Kerr, Jr., and Mr. Harris of Warrenton; A. C. Barefoot of Angier; W. D. Turner of Greenville; C. L. Carter of New Bern; A. C. Hodges of Goldsboro; John D. Larkins, Jr. of Trenton; D. P. Wooten, Guy Elliott and N. G. Bartlett of Kinston.

Through the courtesy of Wyatt Brown, the Cascade laundry will sterilize these articles between lendings before they are returned to the closet. Dr. N. Thomas Ennett county health officer, and K. T. Futrell, are cooperating with the lending closet committee which consists of Mrs. S. M. Crisp chairman, Miss Louisa Hooker and Miss Elizabeth Skinner.

During October, Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson, chairman of the Layettes committee, turned over complete layettes to the health officer and other layettes are in the making. Miss Crockett of the Health department places these garments where they are most needed.

The Service League held its November meeting yesterday, at which time it received an expression of gratitude from Rev. W. A. Ryan, chairman, for the able assistance rendered by the league in the recent Community Chest drive.

At the same meeting, Mrs. Annie B. Faircloth of the State Commission for the Blind, spoke to the league about her work. For the past week she has been conducting in the county a home-teaching program for the adult blind. In her work she not only instructs in handicraft, but rehabilitates the person so that he or she might live as normal a life as possible. The State does not yet support her work entirely. The local Lions' Club sponsors her visits here and provides a revolving fund which purchases materials for use in instruction. During her visits here, her transportation about the county is provided by the Service League. When speaking to the league Monday, Mrs. Faircloth displayed many attractive articles which her pupils have made and are offering for sale. However, she said she wished these articles to be purchased, not through sentiment, but for their merit.

So great has been the recent demand for warm clothing at the Thrift Shop, more apparel is needed very badly. The Service League solicits all kinds of warm clothing for those in the community who have real need of it as winter approaches. If you have any to spare, please call telephone 2336.

Drunken Driving Accounts for 450 Revocations

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—The driving licenses of 543 persons were revoked during the month of October, according to statistics just released by the Highway Safety Division of the Motor Vehicle Bureau.

By offense, drunken driving was far out in front as it always is, with 459 revocations for that specific crime, while 45 more permits were taken away because of drunken driving in combination with some other offense; making 504 of the 543 directly caused by imbibing too much intoxicating liquor of one sort or another.

By geographical distribution, Guilford led all the counties in revocations, with 36; Mecklenburg had 23, while other counties having more than 20 were New Hanover with 22 and Rockingham with 21.

1940 Surplus Of Cotton Predicted

Washington, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicted today that despite recent sharp increases in exports, surplus stocks of American cotton next August 1 would be little different from the record surplus of 14,100,000 bales on the same date this year.

In its annual outlook report for the coming year the bureau said the European war was expected to result in a reduced consumption of cotton in the belligerent nations which normally are among this country's best cotton customers.

Emphasizing that reasonably accurate predictions as to future developments were difficult, the bureau stated that the war with its resulting uncertainties as to duration and effect on international trade had complicated the outlook. "Prospective increases in con-

WINTER DISARMED

90-hour threat ended by OIL-PLATING your engine today

You can probably agree that these are certainly conservative figures...

- 4 or 5 months of nasty weather right ahead of you now
- 8 or 10 daily cold starts for your car
- 6 to 8 minutes per start, till your engine's near-warm

And yet even that can run up your engine's cold-weather "starting-stretch" to right around 90 hours!... The foulest 90 hours that Gangster Winter could fire at your engine—your battery. And don't ever hope to halt him with motor oils whose biggest brag is "fast flow." That's not enough—and it's not your money's worth, considering that "fast flow" is mighty slow Winter lubrication compared to OIL-PLATING.

OIL-PLATING in your engine will lubricate before any oil can circulate. That's because the minute you start up with patented Conoco Germ Processed oil it makes OIL-PLATING "magnetize" to all inner engine surfaces, so that it cannot drain down again. It cannot retire to the crankcase as you park the car. Like any other good plating, OIL-PLATING stays right where it's plated by Germ Process action—all over the working parts. They've "got on" their OIL-PLATING all the while you're indoors. They never "take off" their OIL-PLATING. When you come out to start then, your OIL-PLATING can't be delayed even 90 seconds—or one-ninth of a second! And away you go. The battery hardly knows it was working. And it's a good long while before the gauge-stick calls for an added quart of Germ Processed oil. Your Mileage Merchant has your right Winter grade. Change today—to that Conoco station of his, Continental Oil Company.

Washington—The American Federation of Labor has promised to lobby in congress, next session to rescue Dave Beck's Seattle labor domain from the wrath of outraged Washington apple growers.

Beck is head of the teamsters union in Seattle that is a broad term. The big Washington port city is not surprised when stenographers, waiters and beauty operators are listed as members of the teamsters union.

Beck Has a Fight But a rebellion of eastern Washington apple growers gave Beck and his organization a fright last year. Here's the story as it is told here.

It was a jolly arrangement for the truck drivers, but the farmers rebelled. They advanced a piece of initiative legislation last fall so restrictive in its nature that strikes—as they are practiced on the Pacific coast—would have been vastly handicapped.

He Sees The Light Beck is belligerent but not stubborn. He quickly saw the light. To the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor, of which his tightly-knit organization is an affiliate, he conveyed his wishes.

Old Staff Cooperation with potential foes is no new diversion for Beck. He started out years ago by organizing the laundry drivers in his own particular way.

deny this, insisting that business benefits hugely by assurance of peaceful relations with labor, which Beck enforces.

From time to time reports come from the Pacific coast that a concerted movement is under way which break up Beck's tightly-knit system.

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Wees Chapter 28

YESTERDAY, Gordon tells Michael that first his boat was swiped, then his dog killed, but he'll "get even." An analysis shows no poison in the meat, but a scrap of it kills a cat.

Michael had been talking. He went on with his story. "So I tried to figure it out," he said. "It seemed to me that there must be some reason why it should be the meat that he... to use Gordon's term... chose to poison."

Michael glanced at him. "Perhaps I did," he said mildly. "But of course it was. The dog died. The cat died. What Jetro meant was that it wasn't poisoned with anything he knew anything about. With anything that had any known reaction. But we should have died very suddenly if we had eaten that meat."

"You're moving immediately?" "No. We're not moving." "You've got to, lad." "No. It's too late. It wouldn't do any good to move. He doesn't know my good to move. He doesn't know much we know, you see. We're on our guard now. Watching at least a bit. The girls don't know of course. They think the dog had a fit, or I hope they do."

John Forrester compressed his lips. "You're the only boy I've got," he said shortly. "Always thinking of yourself, aren't you?" Michael said reproachfully.

The District Attorney glared. Michael lit a cigarette. "As I was saying," he went on, "I wondered why it was the meat and not the soup or the pudding or the bread. And I found out."

"Well, you see, it's this way. The butcher boy came without the meat. He left the shop with it—he was sure. Anyway, I phoned the butcher, and asked. So we came to the conclusion that the meat was intercepted on the way. Why the meat? Because, my well beloved father, the groceries and all the rest of the supplies come from the city, direct to the store, while the butcher is on this side of town, and invariably sends the meat supply to the University first. The boy stops his cart there at the back door of the residences, and carries in armloads of supplies. And, while he is carrying in armloads of supplies, the meat for the Horseshoe is where? It should be reposing peacefully in the cart, waiting to be taken for a further ride."

"Well, it wasn't." "Where was it?" "Michael took an envelope from his pocket. From it he drew a square of the newspaper. In the center of it was a hole, a neat round hole that might have been punched out with a lead pencil, save that it bore no pencil marks. Michael held it up.

Animal Souls YOU see that hole?" "Of course." "Syringe," said Michael laconically. "Syringe?" "Well, hypodermic. Clever. Gasous poison that leaves no trace. Hypodermic so that he doesn't have to untie the parcel. I don't think our friend intended to take his parcel from the cart, no. But he'd scarcely started to tie the rope, even in the covered area, and where the cart was I think he barely got his hands on it when he heard something—footsteps probably, and he steps into a convenient doorway. The footsteps turn out to be the butcher boy's, who hereupon drives off.

"Who was around that door between half past five and six?" "Michael looked down at his foot. Well," he said slowly "Katie didn't see everyone perhaps. But he saw Duncan Murchison, coming across the campus. He probably entered the back door, and went up to his room. That was just as the boy's cart stood in the area way. She didn't watch him, no. She just saw him coming while she held the door open for the boy. And then, a few minutes after the boy had driven off, she saw Mr. Deane crossing the campus toward the Horseshoe, on his way home. But that doesn't mean a thing. Every body who lives out here has to pass along the back of that residence to get home. Deane passes there all most exactly at the same time every day.

Forrester filled his pipe. "Does the butcher boy call at the same time every day?" "Approximately." "Forrester lit the pipe carefully and smoked for a moment in silence. "You've had the body of the dog analyzed? There might be reaction there to the poison."

"There's none in the body of Jetro's cat. As for the dog, Michael got up and sauntered to the door. "Do you suppose dogs have souls? Freddie must have one. Because he's walked I tried to dig him up just an hour or two after we buried him. Freddie had gone."

Sunday dawned bright and clear and warm, a perfect day for a tea-party in the garden. Tuck had the wicker tea table set out of the sun on the east side of the house, facing Miss Lissey's.

Whether the Devoes and Mrs. Murchison would accept Tuck's invitation had been rather a matter for speculation. It seemed scarcely possible that they would after Jared Devoe's elaborately constructed alibi for them, and considering the fact that Tuck was violating one of society's rules in inviting them when they had not called upon her. But in spite of everything, they came, at four o'clock—almost too promptly, Tuck thought. Mrs. Murchison had gowned herself in red... a color quite inappropriate for Sunday afternoon in the garden but Mrs. Murchison obviously was not thinking of the garden.

Her eyes flashed at Michael as she shook hands with him, and Tuck got a sudden shock, a sudden insight into the woman's mind. Did she think that her smile might accomplish what Devoe's disgusting manner had failed to do? Tuck stiffened mentally.

"We're so glad you could come, Mrs. Murchison," she said sweetly. "We have been looking forward to coming," the red lips said, just as sweetly. The eyes were so dark it was difficult to read any expression in them.

Alert, attractive Miss Sara Nisbet, daughter of our sometime colleague and collaborator Lynn Nisbet is authority for the best parking meter story yet. She is willing to make affidavit to this one.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Nov. 8.—The usual Armistice Day parades could have been held all over North Carolina; Department Commander June Rose of the American Legion could have made his scheduled address here; stores and private business houses could have observed the day by closing; and in general almost everything could have gone on as it will even if Governor Clyde Hoey had not issued an official armistice day proclamation yesterday.

But in the absence of such a proclamation, not a single bank in North Carolina could have closed for the day; and so Commissioner of Banks Gurney, P. Hood would doubtless have reminded the governor of his official duty if by any chance the chief executive had overlooked it.

Subjects for Conversation MRS. Devoe stood behind her. She looked ill. Her eyes were heavy and lusterless, and the flesh on her cheeks hung flabby and pendulous as if she had suddenly lost weight. She was in black again, a heavy shapeless black, that somehow seemed more insister that the red. Tuck shook his head.

"It's a lovely day, Mrs. Devoe." "Yes. Her hand was limp—limp and cold." "I think you'll find this chair comfortable," Michael said as he greeted her. She sank into it with-out a word of thanks, and sat there at afternoon as if insensible as any Buddha. Inscrutable, but never noticing Her heavy eyes saw every movement.

Her son was as affable and polished as ever. He complimented Tuck on the condition of the garden, and moved on to Bunny with suspicious haste. Bunny sat quietly in her chair, and let him talk into her ear without evincing the slightest interest in what he was saying.

Mrs. Murchison and Michael drifted off together. Tuck caught one gray amused glance from Bunny, and turned resolutely back to old Mrs. Devoe. She picked a subject out of the air at random, as one reaches for a mosquito on a hot summer night.

"Have you seen our lovely sundial?" she asked. "I suppose you must have when your niece lived here." The heavy lids fluttered for the merest instant, and the eyes turned toward Tuck. "My niece?"

Devoe broke in. "It was the sundial she spoke of, mother," he said with a swift glance that Tuck caught. "The sundial. Yes. Yes, I have seen it." "I never owned a sundial before? They're so romantic, aren't they?" Mrs. Devoe did not answer, and Tuck was casting about wildly for another subject when she saw with relief Miss Lissey, smart in a flowered chiffon, coming hastily down the outer path. Tuck almost liked Alis Lissey at the moment. Certainly, she told herself, there would be no more of these awkward pauses in the conversation.

Then she remembered what Dr. McBain had told Michael about the Devoe-Lissey contretemps, and groaned inwardly. That would probably stop even Alis Lissey's agile tongue. But other than a slight raising of her chin Miss Lissey showed in no way her disgustment at Devoe and Devoe was very polite, if a trifle distant, with Miss Lissey, — so affairs moved rather more smoothly than might have been expected.

But the afternoon was fated not to go smoothly; not with the ease and lack of restraint that had characterized Mrs. Deane's party. It may have been the fact that the Forresters and Bunny and Dr. McBain too, when he finally arrived, were putting every movement, every word, under a strong microscope, that put the tension into the atmosphere. Not only that, but Tuck had a feeling that everyone, excepting perhaps Mrs. Deane and Mrs. McBain, was conscious of this. There was apprehension, wonder, mystery, even fear in the air. No conversation seemed able to live.

Tuck decided mentally that it was no use to keep to harmless subjects. With an air of utter innocence she introduced one, that might have a sting of which she, of course, couldn't be expected to know. The servant problem.

"We were told that it was very difficult to keep a maid out here," she commented. "But luckily Charlotte Jean likes it very much, and hasn't any notion of leaving us. I'm very thankful."

Mrs. Deane, hot and puffing a usual spoke, "I have always a perfectly terrible time with servants. I always think my boy Gordon just might have something to do with it. He's very trying, at least we find him so even ourselves. Really I don't know what to do about it. I rarely try to keep a maid at all."

There was a curiously furtive look in Marie Murchison's eyes. She glanced at Tuck with a little frown, then looked immediately away.

"Well, I have an old country girl, and I couldn't get along without her," Miss Lissey said. "She's hard working and sensible, and she hasn't any of the silly notions of servants in this country. She belongs to the servant class, and she knows it, and she stays where she belongs."

"Is there a servant class, Miss Lissey?" Bunny asked. "Of course there is. Some people are born to be ladies' maids, just as some aren't. Let them keep to their own levels. I say, it's no use their trying to pretend they belong to another class." She tossed her head angrily, and the red flamed in her cheek.

Only lately we have received such a report. Each time heretofore the movement has been met and liquidated by Beck. Just as he is seeking now to quiet the opposition of the Washington apple growers. Each time new doubt is expressed that he can survive, but he always has.

THEY COULDN'T WAIT TO BE MARRIED

Vancouver, Wash.—(AP)—Dressed in a robin's egg blue "nightie" topped by a pink silk bed jacket, Minnie Hinz was married to James Klepinski in Clark county hospital here recently.

Miss Hinz underwent a major operation shortly before the ceremony, conducted in a setting of salmon-pink gladioli and hospital white. The couple decided to go ahead with wedding plans when the bridegroom had to hurry to Grand Coulee dam to accept a job.

There are jobs opening throughout the state of North Carolina for furniture upholsterers; industrial engineers (maintenance and production); sheet metal workers (construction); clothes pressers; suit gutters; upholstery department and shipping room foremen; and carpenter foremen; according to Al Young, manager of the Raleigh office of the State Employment Service, from whom further information can be obtained on request.

Green Phantoms Engage Goldsboro Here Friday Night

SEEK REVENGE FOR LAST YEAR

Wayne County Aggregation Boasts Good Season

Two of the most powerful high school eleven in the state will clash under lights at Guy Smith Park Friday night, at 8 o'clock, when Bo Farley sends his galloping Green Phantoms into action against Goldsboro. The latter team is charged with a tie game, while Greenville has dropped one contest, this being a 7-6 loss to Roanoke Rapids two weeks ago.

The Farley men, fresh from a 34-0 victory over New Bern's scrappy Bear aggregation, will be seeking revenge for a 19-6 loss at the hands of Goldsboro, last season. Goldsboro, it is reported, has seventeen lettermen primed for action.

Paul Scott, starting guard, is the only Phantom on the injured list at the present. He has a shoulder ailment, but is expected to be ready for action against the Quakes. Fans may expect a hard fought game, because Greenville's twelve lettermen and a squad of plunging subs will be at their best in an effort to conquer the invaders.

The starting lineup for the locals will be James and Collins, ends; Parrish and Scott, guards; Kittrell and Rogerson, tackles; Williams, center; Sakas, quarterback; Stoeks, fullback; Tyndall and J. B. Kittrell, halfbacks.

Goldsboro was the title holder last year having defeated every team in the conference and having an unmarred record for the season. There are four games left on the Greenville schedule, including Goldsboro. The others are Edenton, there; Kinston, here, and Washington, here. If they win the rest of the season, the locals have a chance of bringing home the Eastern Conference title.

VMI NEXT FOR DUKE'S DEVILS

Virginia Team Offers Array of Backfield Stars

Durham, Nov. 8.—Duke's Blue Devils face brilliant backfield men when they go to Lexington, Va., Saturday to meet V. M. I. in that Armistice-Centennial day celebration.

The Cadet backfield corps is headed by the brilliant Captain Paul Shu who will face the Blue Devils in the best shape he has been in all season. The sensational Shu, outstanding candidate for All-American honors, has been handicapped since early in the campaign due to a knee injury.

And Shu is not the only Cadet backfield great. Coach Pooley Hubert has in Bosh Pritchard, 160-pound sophomore speedster, one of the most promising backs in the conference. He has been a "home run hitting" sensation. His outstanding run of the campaign was a 95-yard punt for V. M. I.'s lone tally against Columbia. He is the Cadet quarterback with Shu running at the fullback spot.

Another pair of fast-stepping sophomores fill the halfback posts Nelson Catlett and Jimmy Matthews. They have also been outstanding.

ing this season. And Frank Carney, junior triple-threat, is still another man the Blue Devils will have to watch when he is sent into the game.

To battle with them Duke will offer the McAfee brothers, George and Wes, Roger Robinson, Frank Killian and Jap Davis who have done the major share of the running, passing and kicking for the Blue Devils this season. Davis should be ready to return to duty after having been out most of the time during past games against Wake Forest and Georgia Tech.

While the Blue Devils of Coach Wade will be favored over those Cadets coached by Pooley Hubert, quarterback star under Wade at Alabama, there is nothing expected but the hardest kind of a battle—a battle that will have to be made ready for despite any games that might be in the offing.

Two weeks ago against Wake Forest the Blue Devils faced a set of backs that specialized in running with that ball. Last week against Tech it was trickier and passing which was faced. This week it will be a combination of both.

UNC PREPARES FOR DAVIDSON

Tar Heel's Only Appearance in Western Carolina

Chapel Hill, Nov. 8.—It may not be the strongest or the highest-powered outfit you could find, but the North Carolina Air Raiders who play Davidson at Winston-Salem Saturday, in their one appearance in that section, certainly rate with the headiest, most versatile and most colorful and thrilling eleven in the nation.

The Tar Heels, whose lightning starts netted two touchdowns in 10 minutes against State and Wake Forest and whose whirlwind finishes tied Tulane, beat N.Y.U. and rolled up three touchdowns in two and a half minutes on Penn. are being rated as high as No. 2 in the country in one of the national rankings (Williamson) this week.

Their game with the scrappy Wildcats, who also have a brilliant passing attack and are a traditional rival, will mark the colorful Tar Heels' one appearance in that section. A near capacity crowd is expected to jam Gray Memorial stadium to see the touchdown twins, General Stirweiss and Sweet Lanne, and the other Tar Heel and Wildcat stars in action.

This will be the first Carolina-Davidson game in Winston since the classic 0-0 tie in 1921, and the Twin City is making elaborate preparations to make the occasion a gala day. Other features on the program will include a pep meeting Friday night, a parade before the game led by the Carolina, Davidson, high school and Legion bands, and a gridiron ball after the game.

The Tar Heels were able to give only the barest preview of their brilliant gridiron show before the rains came in the State game last week. But Impresario Ray Wolf rehearsed the whole performance today, ground and air, with a full cast, and expected to have the whole-brilliant show ready for the 'Cats in Winston-Salem.

The Penn crowd declared the North Carolina offense was the most brilliant lightning attack they had seen. The Tulane audience went further and declared it surpassed Texas Christian and Davey O'Brien. And Grantland Rice proclaimed Carolina the greatest comeback or stretch team the season has produced so far.

BOOSTS STATE AS GAME SPOT

Camp's New Book Hails N.C. Hunting And Fishing

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Nov. 8.—North Carolina gets quite a boost in a new book "All Seasons Afield" authored by Raymond R. Camp, rod and gun editor of the New York Times and which was published this month by Whittlesey.

During the past two years Camp has fished and hunted considerably in this state, especially along the coastal sector. He is particularly loud in his praise of the salt water fishing on North Carolina's coast.

He reveals his knowledge of North Carolina and many of its particular locations, writing with obvious enthusiasm about such widely different subjects as surf casting at Cape Hatteras and barbeque at Goldsboro.

In his guide to salt water fishermen, he reserves prominent space for North Carolina.

"When the copper colored warriors, known to some as channel bass and to others as drum, make their first appearance off the coast of North Carolina early in April," writes Camp, "thousands of surf casters suddenly begin explaining to their wives and families that they are seriously run down and need a few days of open air to regain their health. The next day finds them on their way to Kitty Hawk, Nags Head, Manteo or Hatteras."

In other chapters, devoted to hunting waterfowl, quail, turkey, deer and bear, the author gives more than a little space to North Carolina and the areas where the various types of game are to be

Suggestion Made that State Itself Erect Big Stadium

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—Construction by the State of North Carolina of a bowl-type stadium to rival those in Los Angeles, Chicago and Pasadena is suggested to State Senator Emmett Bellamy of Wilmington in a letter from C. T. Gore, of the Atlantic Coast Line freight offices in the New Hanover capital. A copy of the letter was mailed this mornure.

Mr. Gore looks into the future and sees possibility of staging the Olympics in North Carolina, or of holding world championship fights, as well as providing a stadium large enough to hold the crowds which are attracted by such football "naturals" as the annual Duke-Carolina affairs.

Of course the Olympics and the fights would take time to develop, but the Coast Limer thinks that almost from the very start such a bowl would enable North Carolina to put on an annual football game (he suggests it be called the Tobacco Bowl game) of even rank with Rose, Sugar, Orange, etc., bowl games.

Site for the proposed stadium would be as near as possible in the center of the Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, Wake Forest quadrilateral.

"All the railroads in the vicinity of the stadium would extend their lines to take care of their interests as well as the state building new highways connecting with the main highway," writes Mr. Gore.

"This stadium could be used for events other than football. National conventions could be invited to North Carolina and possibly some day the Olympic games, or the outstanding heavyweigh fights."

found. After each chapter is a list of places to go. Several North Carolina pictures, supplied by the news bureau of the Department of Conservation and Development, are included in the illustrations.

Colored News

Reorganization of Scout Troop 63 Saturday night, November 4, was the date set for the registering of scouts for this year at the Pitt County Training School, Grimesland. The continued down pour of rain did not hamper the fish fry that was given for the scouts.

The program consisted of practice drills for tenderfoot and second class scouts, songs, patrol stunts and games. The chairman of the colored scout committee of the East Carolina Council, J. B. Taft, was present and gave the boys an illustrative talk full of inspiration. The subject of his illustrative talk was "Citizenship."

Mr. Taft drew on the board an arch that was titled "Life." This arch consisted of the stones of life. The first stone was the standard of living. He urged the boys to improve their standard of living. The following three stones were food, clothing and shelter. In the center of the arch was a large stone, the name of which was "Income." He told the boys that this stone is reached after they pass through the "Me-We-She" stages of life. The following stones consisted of opportunity, advancement, peace of mind and retirement. The stages were explained well by Mr. Taft to reach the understanding of the scouts.

Our scout roster this year will represent more scouts than ever before in the history of troop 63. As many as twenty-two scouts have registered and 50 per cent of them are old scouts. Troop 63 is one of the oldest colored troops in this county. It was organized by O. A. Dupree five years ago. This year H. C. Barnhill and J. W. Moyer will be scout masters. E. C. Setzer, Harrison Dudley and O. A. Dupree are members of the scout committee. Gaston Monk is senior patrol leader.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The stock market took a cool view of events today, but stocks brightened up a little as the session progressed. Losses after the moderately active opening ran to as much as two points, but they were largely retrieved in many cases near the fourth hour.

Aircrafts and steels felt the impact of the first selling wave, but recovered in fair style later. Once more favorable domestic news was upset by occurrences in Europe and traders appeared at a loss to determine just which way to turn.

Hutchinson, Kans.—(AP)—James Davis carefully oiled his shotgun, purchased plenty of ammunition and then drove Saturday night to his hunting lease where he planned an early morning duck hunt as the season opened. He couldn't recall until 4:30 a. m. Sunday—the moment he was ready to start hunting—that it was he had forgotten. He had neglected to buy a hunting license.

CUT IN RATES REALLY BOOST

Finds Auto Insurance Rate Boosted, Not Reduced

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, Nov. 8.—Recently Insurance Commissioner Dan Boney announced with quite a fanfare that new automobile insurance rates had been worked out which would give North Carolina car owners substantial reductions in their rates.

Now it develops that instead of substantial reductions, the new system of rates would cause substantial general advances in premiums to Tar Heels. As a result the Commissioner has ordered suspension of the rates and a thorough study of the matter before announcing definitely just what will be the new rates in North Carolina.

Commissioner Boney explains that the whole thing was just a mistake, and that nobody is really to blame for being completely taken in by the system it was proposed to put into effect.

The way the new rates were explained showed that on the whole North Carolinians would pay less than they have in the past, the new system being to divide automobiles into classes—for cars the average for pleasure and driven an average of less than 7,000 miles a year; cars used for pleasure but driven between 7,000 and 25,000 miles per year; cars used for pleasure and partly for business; and cars used wholly for business. There were to be substantial reductions on the pleasure cars, while there would be increases on cars used either partially or wholly for business.

Statistics from other states were produced to indicate that under this system a large percentage of all car owners would receive reduced rates—but that's where the joker came in.

The statistics had been gathered in states such as Connecticut and Rhode Island, almost wholly urban in character and in which very few cars are used partially for business and partly for pleasure. On the other hand a checkup directed by Commissioner Boney and made through insurance agents of the state showed that at least 60 per cent of all passenger cars are in the part business-part pleasure category in this state. The dreadful mistake of using city slicker statistics in a country-boy state had led everybody far astray.

And so the Commissioner is about to change the whole thing again. It is certain he is going to act in the very, very near future—may even have acted and issued a formal statement before this piece appears in print.

Whenever he does, it is going to reveal that the big ballyhoo in connection with the recent announcement of the new system of rate making was altogether a delusion. Under it there would have been increases in far greater numbers and amounts that there would have been decreases.

Realism
Dalhart, Tex.—(AP)—Fire Marshal O. W. Raillard believes in making fire drills realistic. Recently he had his fire trucks driven silently to the school door and then suddenly opened up the fire siren. Firemen in helmets and rubber coats, bearing axes and dragging hose, dashed into the building. Some of the accustomed exits were blocked, simulating fire conditions. Despite all this excitement, 440 students got out of the building in two minutes, five seconds.
