Babson Sees Big Holiday Business In All Sections

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 11.—Christmas shoppers will buy more goods this year than in any holiday season in the history of the country. Because of lower prices, however, dollar sales will not top the 1929 total.

All that merchants and stores need for the best Christmas season on record is a continuation of the present trend. Retail trade is currently reported 10 to 15 per cent above a year ago, and even higher than it was in early November of either 1936 or 1937.

Business Skyrocketing The step-up in trade is easy to explain. Business was soared from 100 on my Babsonchart in August to 112 at the present time.

Not only are factory and office workers receiving more money, than they were three months ago, but so are the farmers. Along with this vast business improvement has come a good mark-up in farm products.

A third source of increased Christmas trade will be from the thousands who depend on dividend payments for their shopping money.

Inventories Adequate? I sincerely hope that merchants have adequately stocked their shelves. After two lean years, it would be a crying shame for them to injure their Christmas trade by not having enough goods on hand.

When the war started, inventories of goods in retailers' hands were low. Buying had been on a hand-to-mouth basis for months.

Don't Get Fooled Even if the merchants in your town fail to recognize the trend, don't let the holiday season fool you.

TRIBUTE PAID TO VICTIMS BY ADOLF HITLER

Attends Funeral For Six Men And Woman

PLOT ASSAILED BY RUDOLF HESS

Munich, Nov. 11.—(AP) Adolf Hitler attended the funeral rites today for six men and a woman killed in a bombing of which he was the intended victim, and then went to the site of the blast — Buergerbrau hall, where his abortive 1923 putsch started.

Hitler placed a wreath on the caskets of the seven victims after arriving in Munich unannounced.

After his visit to Buergerbrau hall he heard a report of the commission investigating the explosion and called at a hospital to visit the 63 who were injured.

While cannon boomed a salute the fuhrer paid his respects to the "martyrs" of the explosion which last Wednesday wrecked the famous beer hall where veteran Nazis were celebrating the anniversary of the 1923 putsch.

Flags flew at half mast throughout Germany and the nation observed a "day of sorrow" as a state funeral was held for the victims before the field marshal's hall in Munich.

Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, who delivered the eulogy, described the bombing as "one of the most dastardly plots in history."

"The last thought of the victims," Hess said, "was of Adolf Hitler. Their deaths brought to the full consciousness of the German people that our fuhrer, too, was to have been a victim."

"But the fuhrer still lives," Hess declared. "He has been given to us anew. Tears of joy have been shed all over Germany at this miracle of preservation from harm. Providence will continue to keep the Fuhrer for us."

J. H. Rose Speaker For Capital City

Raleigh, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Men who fought the "so-called war to end war" are firmly resolved that "never again will America permit, under any circumstances, its soldiers to fight in a war across the seas."

"Regardless of who wins this war or even if there is no winner, we are still faced with the problem of defending this country. Therefore, there should be a conserving of our manpower and our natural resources."

Chief Executive Says World Is In Need Of A New And Better Peace

Declares Nations need To Lay Down Their Weapons of Hatred In Speech Sent By Telephone to Lexington, Va., on 100th Anniversary of The Founding of Virginia Military Institute

Washington, Nov. 11.—(OP)—President Roosevelt asserted today that the world needed a "new and better peace" than that at the end of the last World war—a peace that would cause men to "lay down the weapons of hatred" and forego the "purposeless ambitions" which have created fear.

The chief executive set forth his peace aims in an address to the cadets of Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., on the 100th anniversary of the school. He spoke from the White House here by long distance telephone.

It is fitting, he said, to remember on this Armistice Day that the only object of arms is to "bring about a condition in which quiet peace under liberty can prevail."

The president made the speech shortly after returning from Arlington National cemetery where he led wreath-laying ceremonies at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

"In this season," he said, "we have been used to celebrating the anniversary of the armistice of the World war. Now we need a new and better peace, a peace which shall cause men at length to lay down weapons of hatred which have been used to divide them and to forego purposeless ambitions which have created fear—ambitions which in the long run serve no useful end."

The president said he had sought and still seeks "in all simplicity to try to find the road toward this peace."

"It must be the goal not only of men trained to arms," he added, "but of all of us everywhere whose dearest desire is a quiet peace under liberty."

A peaceful wind-swept slope at Arlington National cemetery across Potomac river at Washington was the scene of the president's annual wreath-laying tribute to the World war veteran "known only to God."

Season's Average Standing At $16.22

At the close of sales yesterday the Greenville tobacco market had sold a total of 62,145,920 pounds for $1,066,086.47, for an official average of 16.22 cents per pound for the season.

Prices yesterday were about in line with those paid on Thursday the average remaining above the 18-cents mark.

As sales ended only about 200,000 pounds of tobacco remained on the floor, leaving plenty of space for farmers wishing to sell their tobacco here the first of next week.

Names Omitted. The names of three members of the Red Cross executive committee were inadvertently omitted from the list in yesterday's edition of this paper.

The three not mentioned are R. H. Forrest of Pactolus, G. P. Carr of Grimesland and C. D. Ward of Winterville.

More Than One In the vicinity of Washington are the tombs of one or more unknown soldiers of each of America's major wars. In Alexandria, Va., just across the Potomac from Washington and only a mile or two from Arlington, is buried an unknown soldier of the American revolution. His shrine in the "old Presbyterian church" is remembered by historians and many patriots but often forgotten by the public.

Not far from the tomb of the unknown soldier of the World war, in Arlington, lie the tangled remains of 63 unknown soldiers, Union and Confederate, taken from a mass grave at Gettysburg.

The latest of America's unknown, who died on one of four great battlefields in France in which American troops had a decisive part, was buried only 18 years ago—just long enough for a baby to have become a soldier ready for another war—if one must come. He is enshrined in the most impressive of all the monuments to America's unknown soldier dead.

ROBBERY HERE NETS $1,099

Money Taken From Greenville Tobacco Co. Safe

The safe of the Greenville Tobacco Company was robbed last night of $1,099.63 and officers investigating the theft had few clues upon which to base their investigation.

Captain Bowen S. Dorsey, who is investigating the robbery, said he had not been able to find where anyone broke into the building, and added that the safe was not blown or prized open. He said he was assured the safe was locked before the office was closed for the night.

A letter opener was used to open a metal box in which the money had been placed inside the safe. An end of the letter opener was broken off and left inside the box. Captain Dorsey said that $50 or $75 in silver was left in the box.

The money taken was $250 in five-dollar bills, approximately $150 in one-dollar bills, 63 cents in change and the remainder in ten-dollar bills.

The tobacco company had paid most of its laborers yesterday.

Names Omitted. The names of three members of the Red Cross executive committee were inadvertently omitted from the list in yesterday's edition of this paper.

The three not mentioned are R. H. Forrest of Pactolus, G. P. Carr of Grimesland and C. D. Ward of Winterville.

Four Caskets. The four soldiers, each "dead of a gunshot wound in the body," were placed in four caskets in a little French hotel at Chalons-sur-Marne.

Into the room where they were kept Sergeant Edward P. Younger, of Chicago, who for his outstanding service had been selected to designate which of the four would be brought to Washington for solemn entombment.

A French military band played outside as he circled three times about the caskets, placed a wreath on the third from the left, saluted and withdrew. Assembled military commanders in turn saluted. The other three bodies were removed to lie forever unknown in France. That was on October 24, 1921.

Brought home on Admiral Dewey's old flagship, the cruiser "Olympia," the unknown arrived at the Washington navy yard November 9. Two days later he was laid away in Arlington and all records of the event were lodged in a war department file upon which some unremembered clerk scribbled: "Do not mutilate this file. It is sacred."

And the day after the unknown, his casket bed with medals, was so prayerfully buried, representatives of the United States sat around a table in Washington with delegates from other nations to plead for a laying down of arms. All laid down a few, but warily kept around to make certain they would not be beaten in the next war.

WARREN HEARD AT ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM

Declares Disarmament Necessary For Real Peace

DISCUSSES NEW NEUTRALITY ACT Congressman Says Until Rest of World Disarms, America Will Have to Maintain Defenses

By JAMES WHITFIELD Congressman Lindsay C. Warren today declared in an Armistice Day address that "eternal Armistice will come only when the world decides to disarm, and until then, the United States will have to maintain an adequate program of defense."

His address was the keynote of the program sponsored jointly by the Pitt county and Farmville Posts of the American Legion. The exercises were held in the Austin building at East Carolina Teachers college.

Recalling how pledges of European nations were being violated today, the Congressional representative of this district explained: "Until we are certain that treaties and agreements are not mere scraps of paper; that rights of nations are not to be violated, we should pursue only one course: We seek no war, covet not one inch of foreign soil, but are determined to keep war from our own shores."

Maintaining a dependable standing army, as well as sufficient sea and air forces, was heartily endorsed by the speaker, although his endorsement was voiced after telling his listeners that "peace by force is futile."

Neutrality For America Congressman Warren told of the passage of a Neutrality Act in 1936-37, but declared that the present European conflict was required to give Congress the awakening that it had "an un-neutrality act instead of a neutrality act."

He said that Congress realized that the act "favored the greatest aggressor since Napoleon and that the repeal of the arms embargo was an American vote for the American people only."

"The best safeguard for the interests of our own people was the reason for present neutrality," said Congressman Warren.

Rekindling illusions of the American public that the United States is confronted with grim possibilities of war, the speaker declared, "Only Congress can declare war and has never done so except from the overwhelming demand of the people of our nation."

In the phrase of his address hinged on the valiant soldiers of the World War who spilled their blood on French soil so that their world might be safe for democracy, Congressman Warren said "the world has not been made safe for democracy. Kings have toppled and dictators have taken their places."

"The World war was not a war to end war," said the speaker, "in that all old causes and superstitions still remain." He also pointed out the inability of the League of Nations to prevent war and to enforce its decrees.

After retreating Italy's seizure of Ethiopia, the Spanish conflict and (Continued on page six)

Neutrals Stiffen Defense

Neutral Belgium and The Netherlands have moved to strengthen their defenses in the face of an implied threat from Germany. A border "incident," in which occupants of an automobile from Germany exchanged shots with oth motorists on The Netherlands side of the border at Venloo (No. 1 on map), caused widespread fears. The Netherlands began flooding her "water line" defense (shaded area) and Belgium strengthened defenses from Maastricht to Louvain (No. 2) behind the Albert canal.

Tobacco Farmers Paid Much Less Than In '38

LABOR PEACE URGED BY POPE

Appeals For Application of Christian Spirit

Vatican City, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Pope Pius, XII. in a special encyclical today appealed for the application of the "Christian spirit" toward solution of the conflict of capital and labor in the United States.

The encyclical was addressed to Bishops of the United States on the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Catholic hierarchy in that country.

The pontiff said solution of the social question would "bring great honor to the American people."

The epistle called attention to modern "evils" which arose from "ignorance of God, disregard for His commandments or their imperfect observance."

"These evils, the pontiff declared, are 'exaggerated egoisms, thirst for pleasure, immodesty in dress, aversion for power, hungering after riches, neglect of the poor, breaking down of family life, levity in regard to marriage, birth control and neglect of duty to one's country.'"

The pontiff urged that salaries of working men be sufficient to maintain them and their families and that something be done to provide greater employment.

Based on poundage and average prices given in the summary computation of the total amount received shows that farmers had received almost $75,000,000 up to the first of this month (the exact figure $74,390,457.19) against a total of slightly more than $100,000,000 (exact figure $101,355,520.09) up to November 1, 1938.

This decrease in cash receipts came about in the face of the fact that there poundage has been heavier than last. The department's figures indicate that up to the first there had been sold 480,869,148 pounds of producers' tobacco, as against 433,143,291 pounds to November 1, last year. This increase is the more remarkable in view of the fact that all the markets were closed from September 12 to October 10 on account of the withdrawal of its bidders by the British Imperial Tobacco company.

The tobacco of 1938, however, had sold at an average price of $23.40 per hundred pounds, while this season the average price dropped to $15.47; and that has been regarded as a "fair" price in relation to the size of the bumper crop which was produced with no crop control in effect.

The immediate effect of control for the 1940 crop can be gauged approximately by the fact that the tobacco average rose $3.50 per hundred in October over the pre-market holiday levels.

By belts the department's warehouse sales summary showed: Old Belt (Type 11)—The 18 markets of the old belt had sold 104,741,464 pounds prior to November 1 compared with 118,180,090 pounds to this date last year. The season's average price of $15.38 per hundred, although $8.15 under that for the same period of 1938, is $2.56 above the average of September sales. The market holiday has resulted in a much smaller proportion of the total crop in this belt being sold this year so far.

BELGIUM GETS PREPARED FOR ANY NAZI MOVE

Decides On Action in Case Netherlands Attacked

TWO COUNTRIES PLAN DEFENSES Switzerland Empowers Army Commander with Power to Call Able-Bodied Men to Colors

Amsterdam, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Netherlands and Belgium, squeezed between warring powers and the sea, prepared today for any eventuality: The Belgium cabinet in a night session was believed by observers to have decided its stand should The Netherlands be attacked.

It was reported that the Belgium frontier would be closed if Germany took any action against The Netherlands.

The United States consulate said it would advise Americans today to remove their wives and "dispensable" staff members from The Netherlands.

Foreign correspondents were warned by authorized sources at The Hague to limit their dispatches on defenses to material appearing in Netherlands papers.

The government planned to request a German investigation of Thursday night's border incident, in which one or two persons were reported shot on The Netherlands soil and carried with several others into Germany by occupants of a German automobile.

Military measures, not officially explained, continued in both Belgium and The Netherlands. Belgian mobilization was at near high of 600,000 while sections of The Netherlands' defense water system were flooded.

Bern, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Swiss government today empowered General Henri Guisan to call all able-bodied men to the colors whenever he decides the defense of the nation requires it.

The federal council action followed yesterday's order recommended by Guisan, calling an unstated number of troops to duty.

Henceforth, Guisan has the right to call up troops himself without first obtaining governmental permission. Heretofore such power has been granted to a commander only when Switzerland was at war.

Officials said the move was purely precautionary, although foreign observers noted it paralleled defensive measures by Belgium and The Netherlands at the other end of the Western front between Germany and France.

Switzerland has been in a state of mobilization since August 28, but an unspecified number of soldiers had been released after that date.

Vesper Services At College. "Whether Have You Made a Road Today?" was the title of a talk delivered last night at the Friday night vesper service by Miss Emma L. Hooper, of the English department at the college.

Miss Hooper began her talk by saying that each of her listeners must choose his own road today. He should choose the roads of worship, peace, health, and friendship—in fact, he might well follow the roads being suggested in this week, American Education Week, for all education; the ways to training for self-realization, for home and friendship, for economic efficiency, for civic responsibility, and for freedom.

"Are we taking a narrow road by choosing only the teaching profession as our life's work?" she asked.

"Should we not widen our choice and prepare ourselves for more than one job?"

We must choose one main road or vocation. The kind of homes we will have will depend on the roads we take now.

The genuine love of learning will lead us on the road to libraries and laboratories and art galleries, and on the road to meaningful hobbies, but we may add to our "economic efficiency" by taking some interesting side-roads in our training. The love of learning has helped improve our world today and make it a better place in which to live.

Our roads should be paved with kindness and courtesy because "Noble manners are the fruits of noble minds."

Each one should choose the roads on which Christ would go with him.

To Preach At Lutheran Church. Dr. Fred L. Lineberger of Columbia, S. C. will occupy the pulpit at the Lutheran Church tomorrow morning. The service, which will be conducted in the Rotary Club building, will begin at 11 o'clock.

The guest speaker, a graduate of Lenoir-Rhyne College, studied theology at the Southern Lutheran Seminary in Columbia and completed his course at the Chicago Lutheran Seminary. Dr. Lineberger has done post-graduate work at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and the University of South Carolina and has studied law at the University of Chicago. Upon entering the ministry, he was able to organize and serve congregations successively in Chicago, Detroit, Kalamazoo and Ann Arbor, Mich., and in Gary, Logansport and Huntington, Indiana. For nine years Dr. Lineberger served as field missionary superintendent for the Lutheran Church in Michigan and Indiana, and in Ontario, Canada. During the course of his ministry, which also included work in and around the cities of Savannah and Columbia. This active preacher also acted as high school superintendent over a period of ten years.

The fact that Dr. Lineberger is preparing to conduct a preaching mission in Wilson from Sunday night through Friday night has made it possible for him to be in Greenville tomorrow.

Dr. Lineberger is a powerful, but not a "sensational" preacher. His sermons give a clear presentation, not of his own philosophies, but of God's word. Among the most attractive features of his preaching are the numerous illustrations from everyday life. His subject for tomorrow, on a topic often misunderstood and misapplied, will be "Just what does it mean to belong to the Christian Church?"

When Mother Reads Aloud When Mother reads aloud, the past seems real as every day; I hear the tramp of armies vast, I see the spears and lances cast, I join the thrilling fray; Brave knights and ladies fair and proud, I meet, when Mother reads aloud.

When Mother reads aloud, far lands seem very near and true; I cross the desert's gleaming sands, Or sail the jungle's prowling bands, Or sail the ocean blue; Far heights, whose peaks the cold mists shroud, I scale, when Mother reads aloud.

When Mother reads aloud, I long to see the tramp of armies vast, I see the spears and lances cast, I join the thrilling fray; Brave knights and ladies fair and proud, I meet, when Mother reads aloud.

Book Week, as other "weeks" or "days" intended for community observance, has grown to country-wide significance and extended deep into school and community life through simultaneous action along a planned pattern. It is impossible to portray the detail of participation, but some facts of last year's campaign are recorded here so that the reader may understand how Book Week "gets that way."

Fifteen organizations were represented in Book Week observance: American Booksellers' Association,

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—The mathematical genius who added extra miles to the speed of every modern warship afloat watches today from a bed in Naval hospital here while younger comrades, using his plans, make ready to add another billion dollars worth of might to the United States navy.

The famous ship designer, whose texts have become the "bible" of naval architects in every country, is Admiral David Wagon Taylor. His is one of the brightest naval minds that have come out of Annapolis.

He is the admiral who "took the home out of the teeth of high speed fighting vessels," as navy people phrase it.

Generations of navy men knew that the huge boiling wave of frothy water which plowed ahead of fast ships was a costly one, cutting down the speed of the ship and eating up its fuel so that it could not stay at sea so long. It was beautiful to see an old style ship plowing the waves with "a home in her teeth." But to the navy it was a costly sight.

It fell to Admiral Taylor to design ships which cut the water instead of rolling it majestically aside in a huge wave.

Changed World's Navies
It took years of painstaking experimentation in a cramped testing pool in Washington. The plan he evolved was called the "bulbous bow." To the inexperienced eye it looked as if putting a big bulge on the lower part of a ship's bow would raise even a bigger wave ahead than would a knife edge Taylor proved it would not. Every modern destroyer, battleship and cruiser now has the "bulbous bow" design he worked out.

Speed-ling of ships was not his only contribution to "navy" design. He put the U. S. navy in the lead of other navies for a time by centering the firing turrets. Old line battleships balanced their gun turrets on opposite sides of the ships.

Taylor designed the system which permits the four heavy turrets, two aft and two forward, to be centered on the center-line of the ship. It increases fire power, accuracy, and stability of the ship. Equally important, it puts the turrets farther into the core of the ship, adding strength and efficiency. Every world navy followed suit.

'Brains Sailor'
Taylor was not much of a seagoing sailor for the navy would not waste his designing abilities by sending him to sea. He was a "brains sailor" from the time he entered Annapolis in 1881, after completing a college course at Randolph-Macon, where he enrolled at the age of 13.

Fresh out of Annapolis, from which he was graduated with a scolarship record exceeding all previous records, he was sent to the Royal Naval College in England for post-graduate work in naval architecture. There again he received highest honors. The lad seemed to have that "something extra."

Back in the U. S. he helped design the first three battleships the navy ever had. They were the Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon. They all sailed with "bones in their teeth" in the old style. The "bulbous-bow" came 25 years later.

Admiral Taylor was chief of construction during the World war when we built more than a thousand vessels from the mosquito fleet to first line battleships. In that period he put a million odd tons of fighting power on the waves. Our newest ships—including the 45,000-ton monsters not yet begun—will be Taylor-made.

Now about 75, Taylor has been in a hospital for several years, victim of a stroke. Naval men expect him to get up soon to see a huge naval experiment station on the Potomac dedicated in his honor.

The Creeping Man

YESTERDAY: Miss Lissey discloses that Mrs. Murchison and the Devoes are not related, that she heard Duncan say "I'll kill him," and that the night Murchison left she saw a man with a wheelbarrow. Before she can move more she drops dead—poisoned.

Chapter 31

Up Against Brains

"If you think you know who this person is," Michael's father told him, "can you take any measures to guard against trouble?"

"I can do something, maybe. I'll have to be handled at the inquest. I can't do much until then. When will that be?"

"Thursday."
"Three days. Well . . ."

"I'll send out a couple of good men," the Commissioner suggested.

"Only at night. We can't have it in the daytime. I've got to go on as I have been."

The District Attorney fingered his lower lip.

Michael spoke again. "Were there any fingerprints on those pebbles?"

"The Professor's. We got his from the apparatus in his private laboratory. Yours and his."

"Did the code man make anything out of the letters?"

"He doesn't think there's any code. He says they look like the real thing."

"I think so, too," Michael murmured. "I think so, too. Are you through with them, and the pebbles?"

"Yes. And—we've had word from Chicago."
"The letter! And they say?"

"Faked," said the Commissioner laconically. "We're up against brains, Michael. Do you know what he did?"

"The murderer, you mean?"

"Yes. He sent that letter to Mrs. Murchison, to Chicago. It was enclosed in a larger envelope addressed to Mrs. Murchison, General Delivery, Chicago. In the corner was typed, 'If not called for in five days please open envelope and forward enclosure.' The inner envelope was addressed here. And that's what happened."

"How did you trace it?"

"The Commissioner looked at the District Attorney. 'Your father figured out how it might have been done,' he said. 'We got the police in Chicago to see whether it could have been done that way. It narrowed down the chances, you see. Someone handled that letter, if it was done that way. They made inquiries until they found out the clerk that tore open the outer envelope and threw it away. The thing was so clever it made a mark on the clerk's mind. The letter had been opened at the time, why the second address was not written on the outer envelope.'"

Michael was watching him. He made no comment. He straightened his shoulders.

After a moment, he said, "Don't let those men come up until after dark, will you? And if there's anyone visiting, we'll leave the veranda lights on. If those lights are out they'll know that nobody has any right to be in the yard." He rubbed at his ear. "I don't think we'll strike that kind of trouble," he said. "This guy knows too much about poisons. You know what gets my goat, Michael?"

"Why in the devil didn't he use this queer poison to kill Miss Lissey with, instead of a common ordinary traceable one? Why didn't he Murchison give that paper to Smith? It didn't mean anything to him, did it? He went out and banged the door, whistling cheerfully."

"I guess," said the Commissioner, "I guess we better just sit here and whistle, John."

'Fidgets As A Cat'
IT WAS late on the afternoon of the same day, Michael, Tuck and Bunny had been sitting together on the sun porch, looking out over the back garden. They were very quiet and sober; Bunny was pale, and Tuck had dark rings under her eyes.

Without a word of explanation, Michael got up and opened the door into the garden. Tuck noted his tense face, the grim set of his jaw.

"Where are you going?" she asked sharply.

"Nowhere, honey. Just for a walk. I think I'll stroll down to the river. Will there be tea when I get back?"

She got up off the couch. "I shouldn't be surprised," she replied. "But I'm not staying here to see about it. Charlotte Jean can do it. I'm coming with you."

"I won't be gone long."
"Well, so much the better. I don't feel like walking very far."
"Tuck, I wish you would stay here."
"I won't be going."
Bunny stood up and straightened her dress. "So am I!"

Michael looked out at the woods, calm and peaceful in the afternoon sun. A crested blue jay swooped down on a branch, and a crowsed an Agamemnon crouched angrily on the ground. Over in the Deane yard Gordon's blond head glinted as he but there will begin to go out, within the next week or ten days, letters to all McDonald lieutenants over the state urging them to support J. M. Broughton, of Raleigh.

There are rumors, too—but these are nothing but rumors and your correspondent does not vouch for their truth and veracity, that certain very definite promises and assurances were given by Mr. Broughton before the McDonald group decided to support the capital city attorney.

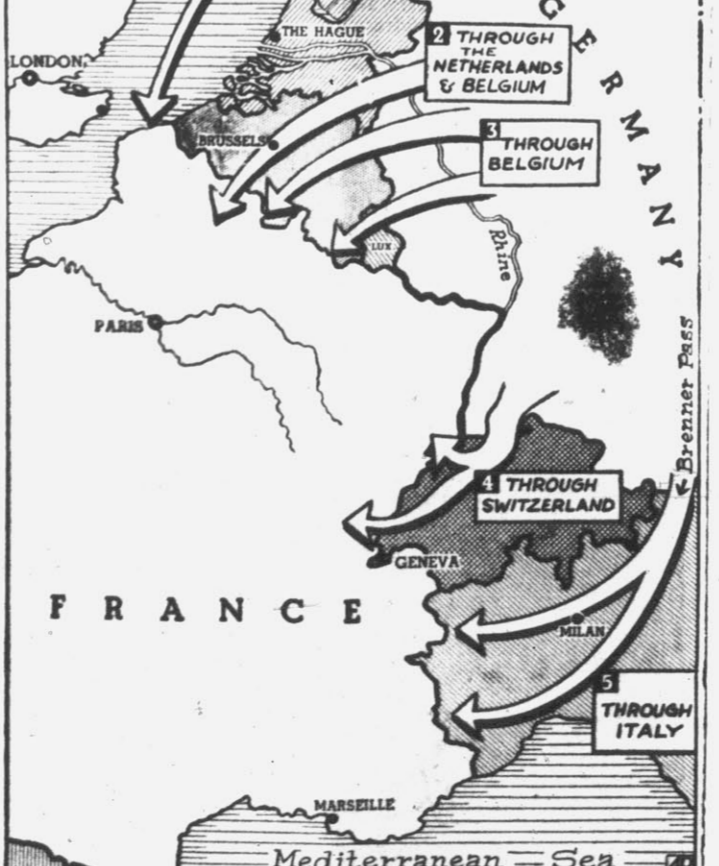

Here's a rather unusual one: The State Bureau of Investigation received a postal card from a woman in Oriental asking the handyman to find out when her son was born. If she doesn't know, who would? Just the same the SBI sleuths checked up and found out for her.

FIVE WAYS AROUND THE MAGINOT LINE

With the armies stalemated on the western front, strategists have been figuring how Hitler could get around the main part of the Maginot line. The map shows the possibilities. Four of them would mean the invasion of neutral countries. And of course if the Allies tried to get a round the Siegfried line, they could follow the same general routes.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—I have always heard that if an actor who has worn a certain necktie on the stage with a different tie on the rest of the cast is likely to go sky-high in his lines. This happened once to Helen Claire in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," and she says her mind was a blank for five minutes during which she spoke lines mechanically but had no knowledge or later recollection of what she was saying.

This same sort of "trip" almost got Katharine Hepburn off balance in "The Philadelphia Story," when Dan Tobin walked on the stage with a glaring red tie. After the scene she asked him never to do that again. Next night Van Heflin wore the tie in the first act, Tobin wore it in the second act, and Frank Penton wore it in the third. On each occasion Kate's eyes opened wide, and her lines went fluttering out of reach.

But that wasn't all. There is a wedding scene during which Kate unwraps all her wedding presents, and you can imagine what happened when she unwrapped one package and found the red necktie.

Getting back to Dan Tobin, he confesses to being thrown out of university three times, and finally he wandered away to Europe, got a brief stage job in London, and came back to New York, where his persuasive qualities won him his present part as Hepburn's brother, a writer in "The Philadelphia Story."

After word of his success seeped out into the Ohio valley, he picked up a copy of the publication of the University of Cincinnati one day and found there not only his picture but an amazing story of his undergraduate career which ended in this note: "He is one of our most successful graduates."

This so delighted him that he wrote the university at once, demanding his diploma.

I won't ask you to believe this, I don't know whether I believe it or not. In any case, a man who is now about 50 years of age was sitting in a restaurant where a girl with a guitar drifts slowly from table to table, singing songs. As she approached his table the man began to stare at her, and suddenly his companion noticed that something was wrong with him. Then the man fainted.

The next night he came back, but the previous night had been the last night of this girl's engagement, and she was gone. "This reminded me of someone I knew, a long time ago—25 years ago," was his explanation.

But he looked her up, and found her, and she was the daughter of a girl he himself had once been engaged to marry. He did not say why the marriage never came off. But he has not been back to that restaurant since.

The meeting was met November 8th at Whitwell school. Teachers from the following schools were present: Bethel high school, Piney Grove, Highsmith and Post Oak.

The meeting was opened and carried out very interestingly. Topics discussed, Home Improvement, discussed by Mrs. Ethel Tervey, Mrs. Lula Coburn and Prof. J. H. Carraway, closed by the supervisor, Miss J. M. Donnel. The talk from all was very interesting and helpful. Dinner was served to everybody and was enjoyed. Parents were present, Mrs. Cora Harlan, Mrs. Axeline Staton, Mrs. Sallie A. Harlan, Mrs. Georgia Annie Boyd, Mrs. Scottie Hyman, and Mrs. Viney Hyman and several visitors were present.

Green Phantoms Eke Out 7-0 Victory Over Goldsboro

FOES FAIL IN AERIAL DRIVE

Last-Minute Attack, However, Threatens To Score

Greenville high school's Green Phantom footballers beat back a serious last minute threat and held Goldsboro's Purple Earthquakes scoreless in a thrilling 7-0 game played here last night. Greenville marched 55 yards to score in the second quarter and offered the best game ever played before a local crowd. Approximately 1500 fans saw the battle.

Marvin Stocks carried the ball over on a line buck from the four yard marker to break the scoreless tie. This was in the second quarter. Russell Rogerson kicked the conversion to top off the night's scoring.

Greenville recovered a 'Quake fumble in the same period and again charged deep into the visitor's territory, only to lose the ball on the five yard line on downs.

It was in the third period that Goldsboro managed to make their opening first down of the evening. It came on an off-sides penalty imposed on Greenville. This quarter however was a zig-zag battle, with the ball being played in midfield most of the time.

Greenville punted in the final stanza and the visitors took over on the fifty. Then they completed two twenty yard passes and made their way to the Phantom's ten yard line. Greenville stopped two passes and George Sakas intercepted to end the threat. Greenville punted out of the end zone at this moment and again the 'Quakes took the ball.

Two completed passes placed the visitors on Greenville's ten and a holding penalty against Greenville put the oval on the two foot line. After two tries to break through the Phantoms line failed, the boys in Purple took to the air. Sakas batted down the pass, which was across the goal line as the final whistle sounded to end the game.

Stocks, Sakas and Tyndall were the "big guns" in the Phantom backfield and were responsible for the eight first downs made by Greenville. J. B. Kittrell played a bang-up game at the blocking-back post and aided his mates in cracking the powerful 'Quake defense. Greenville's standouts in line play were Rogerson, James and Williams, Earl Kittrell, Collins, Parrish, Scott and Carroll also were fighting when the visitors threatened to take the game.

Goldsboro made four first downs—two on penalties and two on passes. Their offensive stars were Sasser, Powell, Howell and Nickens. Sparking the line were McClintock, Pate, Bizzell, Liles and Hollowell. Three completed passes in four attempts netted the locals a total of thirty yards. Goldsboro made good four passes in twelve tries for a gain of about sixty yards. Ten of the pass attempts were in the fourth quarter.

This was an Eastern conference game and Greenville's second loop win in three starts. They journey to Edenton Friday afternoon for their fourth conference game.

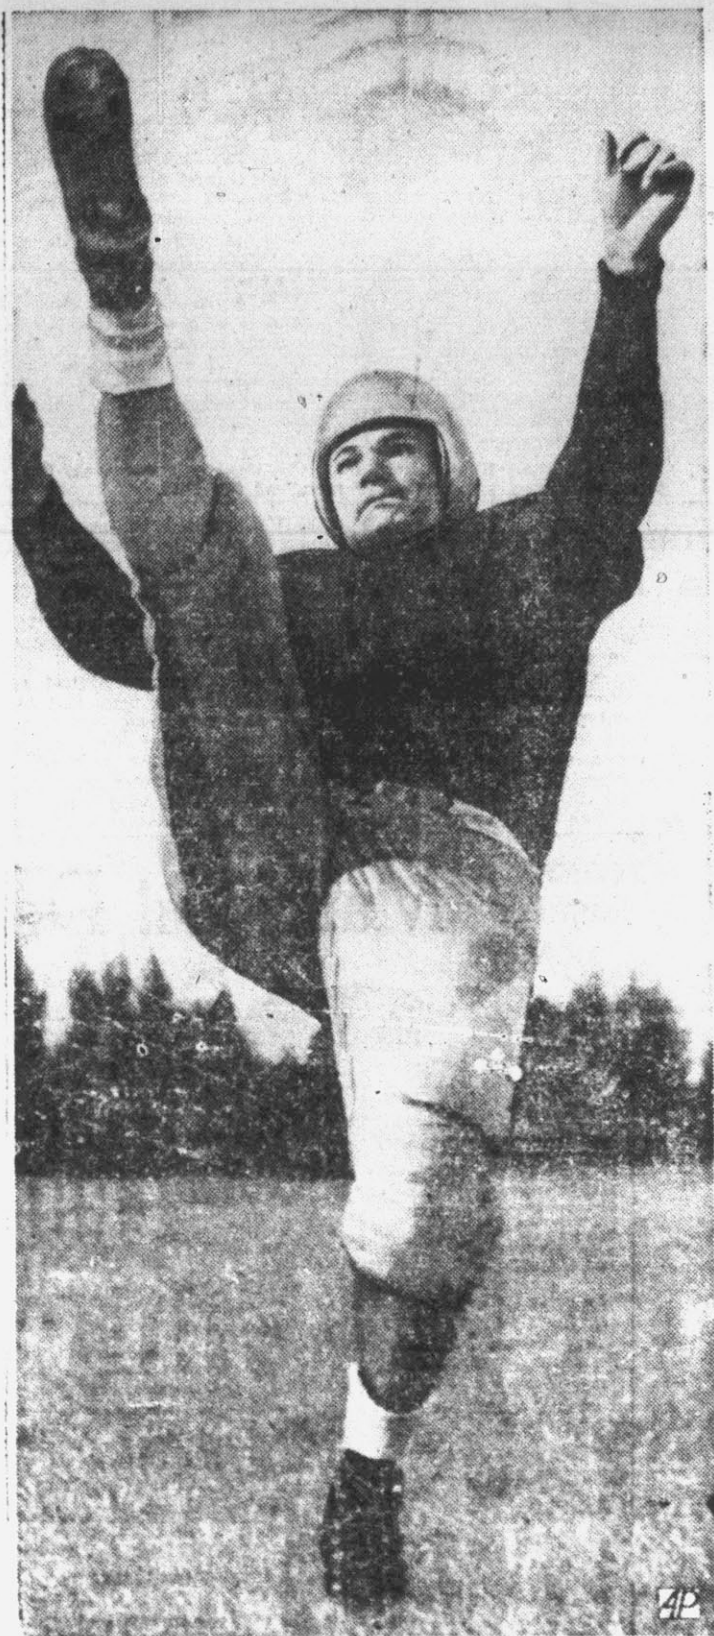

Score by quarters:
Greenville 0 7 0 0—7
Goldsboro 0 0 0 0—0

Fishing Contest Won By Man of This City

Fred Lewis of this city today was proudly displaying fishing equipment valued at $50 which he won in a state-wide contest by landing the largest big mouth bass (club) reported in the state.

The winner's catch, landed at the mouth of Hardee's creek, weighed nine and a quarter pounds. The first prize included a tackle box, fully equipped, a live bait bucket, two reels, a fly rod and a landing net.

"We want no more long rows of graves," said Charles Edison, assistant secretary of the navy. "This country is practically unanimous in its fervent desire to maintain peace. In the very disillusionment of the shattered dramas and ideals of those who survived the great war there is a spirited gain in the inspiring fact we may keep faith with the dead by directing every effort to non-involvement in the present struggle."

World War Injured Befriended By Organization

Gray Ladies and Disabled Veterans

By S. B. UNDERWOOD, JR.
In the spring of 1918, Private W. J. was just another one of the healthy young men in their early twenties who saw action in France. A few months before he had been taken away from his job in which he showed great promise of advancement.

The fire from an enemy machine gun that spring changed the course of his life. He was taken to a base hospital and miraculously managed to live. Today, more than two decades later, Private W. J. is still in a hospital. Paralysis set in shortly after his return from the front, and for 20 years he was destined to lie motionless in a hospital, only able to move his fingers. And for 20 years this stricken man has been befriended by the Red Cross. Each afternoon a Gray Lady comes to his bedside and reads the newspapers to him. Once a week he dictates a letter which he sends to his aging parents. All over the country, in Veterans Administration and service hospitals, thousands of the war maimed welcome the volunteer Gray Ladies of the Red Cross on their visits of mercy.

FINNS BLAMED FOR SITUATION

Uncompromising Attitude Charged By Russians

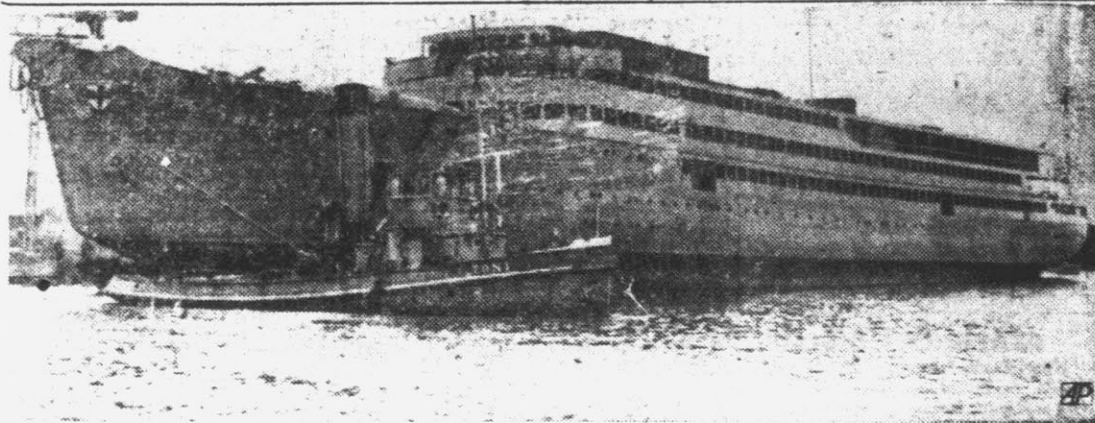

Moscow, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Charges that the Finns have intensified "their irreconcilability" in the Moscow negotiations and also have increased their forces on Russia's border, "thus demonstrating their uncompromising attitude," were made today by Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

The statement on the Kremlin parleys arising from Russia's demands for territorial and strategic concessions, declared the Finns had failed to meet the minimum Russian

It said: "The English newspaper Daily Express published a report of an Exchange Telegraph (British news agency) report of Helsinki to the effect that 'Stalin again rejected Finland's latest concessions.' PAYS TRIBUTE TO WAR DEAD

Ceremonies Held At Arlington National Cemetery

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—On the peaceful sunlit Virginia hill, where America's unknown soldier lies amid fields studded with the white crosses of the war dead, President Roosevelt paid solemn tribute today to the men who gave their lives to establish permanent peace for the world.

The President himself did not speak but others who participated in the ceremony united in expressing the hope that while a new war in Europe had shattered 21 years of peace, the effect of American sacrifices in the last war would be to keep the nation out of the present one.

"We want no more long rows of graves," said Charles Edison, assistant secretary of the navy. "This country is practically unanimous in its fervent desire to maintain peace. In the very disillusionment of the shattered dramas and ideals of those who survived the great war there is a spirited gain in the inspiring fact we may keep faith with the dead by directing every effort to non-involvement in the present struggle."

Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, declared that "we of the American Legion believe that it is of paramount importance for our fellow countrymen to permit only one answer to the question of the possible entry of the United States in the war abroad.

"The conclusive answer," he continued, "must be that the Armistice of November 11, 1918, did end—in irrevocable fashion—for these United States any further participation in European conflict. To us it was a true armistice. To us it did mean the ending of a war to end war."

Warren Heard On Armistice Day Program

Japan's invasion of China, along with present-day trends of autocratic nations, Congressman Warren told his attentive audience that "recollections of the World war should not be primarily reminiscent of the past, but a lesson for the present. We should not observe Armistice day to glorify war, but our contribution in the conflict should always be proclaimed."

The speaker reiterated staggering figures that had been compiled to convey the enormous losses in life and money by the United States in the World war. He paraphrased the adage of "making the world safe for democracy" to "keeping democracy safe for America."

Quoting from the renowned James Russell Lowell, who said that "A country will exist as long as principles of its founders are strong in the hearts of the people," Congressman Warren opened verbal fire upon the so-called propagandists in America who seek to undermine established principles of the nation. He drew a big hand when he declared: "Nazism, Fascism and Communism, all of the same stripe have no place in the American system."

Introduced by John Hill Paylor of Farmville, district commander of the American Legion, as a man who "needed no introduction," Congressman Warren praised the work of Junius H. Rose in his work with the American Legion and as a leading educator in North Carolina. State Commander Rose delivered the Armistice day address in Raleigh this morning.
