CLAIM PLANES SHOT DOWN BY NAZI BOMBERS

German High Command Reports Sinking Boats Sunk

CONFLICTS WITH BRITISH REPORT

Stern Nazi Sea Campaign Including Submarine Attacks Without Warning Is Indicated

Berlin, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A German high command communique today asserted Nazi bombing planes shot down two flying boats and scored a "probable hit on an English cruiser" in a raid on the Shetland islands yesterday.

British spokesman said the Shetland islands suffered no damage, except a few shattered windows.

At the same time authorized sources indicated a stern Nazi sea campaign was in the making, involving possible submarine attacks without warning.

While reporting quiet on the Western front, the high command communique continued:

"Despite unfavorable weather, a German flying squadron undertook an attack on the Shetland islands. In the encounter two flying boats were destroyed. A probable hit on an English cruiser could not with certainty be observed. All of our planes returned unharmed."

German sources in commenting on the published list of armed allied merchant vessels said each submarine commander would be guided by circumstances whether or not to sink a ship on the list without warning.

Several Tried At Morning Session

A charge of having liquor for sale brought against Zeno R. Brown, Negro, by Pitt county ABC officers was dismissed in County court today by Recorder Dink James on grounds that the warrant under which the officers searched the premises of the defendants was not sworn out before an authorized official.

Judge James upheld a motion of L. W. Gaylord, defense counsel, who quoted a law setting forth that warrants shall be sworn out before a justice of the peace, recorder, mayor or other qualified officers. The warrant in question was sworn out before the clerk of court.

Judge James said it was the first time the question had been raised in his court. At the luncheon recess he stated that he may have been wrong in the ruling, but that the dismissal would have to stand since it was the court's decision.

Jesse B. Hardee of the Black Jack section was convicted of driving drunk and was fined $50, taxed with costs and had his driving license revoked for 12 months.

Joe Norman, Zeb Norman and Henry Jones, white men, pleaded guilty to larceny and were given eight months each, the sentences to be suspended upon condition they pay the costs and also pay J. E. Faucette $30 for stolen tobacco. The defendants were placed on probation for a period of two years.

Robert Cobb, Negro, was found guilty of careless and reckless driving and of driving without a license and was given a 90-day sentence suspended upon payment of $25, costs to be deducted and the balance to go as a fine. The judgment also provided that the defendant not drive a motor vehicle until he secures a license.

Judgment was suspended upon payment of costs in the case charging Nathaniel Ward, white man with driving an automobile for hire without a chauffeur's license. The judgment also provided that the defendant secure a license.

El Bloom prosecuted the docket, in the absence of Solicitor Charles H. Wheelbee, who is recovering from an operation.

War Toll At Sea

(By The Associated Press) Sinking of five British and two German steamers raised the toll of ships sunk in sea combat to 120 today and the total known tonnage destroyed to 489,117.

At least 1,875 persons have been killed or drowned and many others were listed as missing.

Great Britain has lost 65 ships, German 14, France seven; the Scandinavian countries 24, and other neutrals 10.

Tar Heel Farmers Busy Harvesting Big Yields

Production in Nearly Every Crop Up From 1938

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—(AP)—North Carolina farmers are busy harvesting crops whose yields in nearly every case are "higher than the averages for the past 10 years," the Federal-State crop reporting service said today.

The tobacco crops this year set records, both in total pounds and pounds per acre, the service said, estimating this year's production at 696,525,000 pounds, 35 per cent more than last year and 41 per cent above the 10-year average.

The yield per acre was estimated at 944 pounds, an increase of 99 pounds over last year, 178 pounds over the average for the past decade.

The service estimated a crop of 47,151,000 bushels, two per cent more than 1938 and 14 per cent above the 10-year average.

Crop yields as a whole are turning out better than last year," said T. L. Stuart of the service.

"Cotton is poor in the northeastern part of the state and a few other localities have not enjoyed as good a season as in 1938, but practically all crops are making yields higher than the averages for the past 10 years," Stuart said.

Appointments For County Revealed

Ministerial appointments for the new year as announced at the closing session of the North Carolina Methodist conference, include the following of interest in Pitt county:

Greenville, Jarvis Memorial, Rev. T. M. Grant, who is beginning his fourth year; Farmville, Rev. D. A. Clark; Ayden, Rev. L. A. Tilley; Grimesland, Rev. W. A. Crow; Bethel, Rev. M. Y. Self.

Rev. L. A. Watts, formerly of Greenville, will continue as religious director at State's prison. Rev. E. L. Hillman, who was presiding elder last year, will go to the First Methodist church of Rocky Mount.

Rev. J. A. Russell was named district superintendent, official formerly known as presiding elder.

Rep. Taylor Dies

La Follette Tenn. Nov. 14.—(AP)—Rep. J. Will Taylor (R-Tenn) died of a heart ailment at his home here early today. He was 59 years old.

Dr. R. J. Buckman said Taylor was found dead in bed by his wife who was attending him. He had suffered a heart attack last night.

Loss of British Freighter and Trawler Also Officially Announced by Admiralty; Two German Steamers Reported to Have Been Sent to Bottom Yesterday by British Warships

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Three British vessels—a destroyer, a freighter and a trawler—were listed today as latest casualties in the intensifying war at sea.

The admiralty announced that a German mine sank the unidentified destroyer, first of her type lost by the British navy since the war began. The freighter, the 8,003-ton

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The sinking of a British destroyer, three British merchant vessels and a Norwegian tanker was reported as sea warfare intensified.

At least 32 were dead and missing in the sinking of the tanker, disclosed when 23 members of her crew were picked up in an open boat after 30 hours adrift. The tanker, whose name was not given, was torpedoed.

Matra, also was believed to have been victim of a mine. The trawler Creswell was reported torpedoed.

Loss of these ships came on the heels of an Admiralty announcement that British warships had destroyed the German steamers Mecklenburg, 7,892-ton, and Parana, 6,636-ton.

The Matra went down in the North sea last night after an explosion, presumably that of a mine. Two of her crew were killed and 22 injured.

The Admiralty did not identify the destroyer nor locate the sinking, which was believed to have occurred yesterday or the night before. One member of the crew was listed as dead, six others as missing and 15 injured.

More than 70 of the destroyer's crew were known to have been picked up by vessels which hurried to the scene after the explosion.

The 275-ton Creswell was reported sunk off the coast of northern Scotland by a submarine.

An Admiralty announcement said the Nazi crews of the Mecklenburg and Parana abandoned their ships in a sinking condition after they were intercepted by British warships.

LEAF PROGRAM IS EXPLAINED

Series of Meetings being Held Throughout Area

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—A series of meetings to outline procedure for administering the 1940 tobacco program, including the establishment of acreage allotments, is being held in the five-cured producing counties of the state this week. It was announced today by E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer of State College County and community AAA committee member attending together with farm agents and AAA field officers.

Meetings were held Monday in Snow Hill, Whiteville and Henderson with representatives of Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, New Hanover, Columbus, Brunswick, Bladen, Vance, Franklin and Warren counties attending.

On Tuesday morning meetings were scheduled at Williamston, for Martin, Washington and Beaufort counties; at Lumberton, for Robeson, Scotland and Cumberland counties; at Graham, for Alamance, Chatham and Caswell counties; and at Statesville for Iredell, Rowan and Wilkes counties.

Meetings were planned Tuesday afternoon at Edenton, for Chowan, Gates, Perquimans and Bertie counties; at Carthage, for Hoke, Moore and Lee counties; at Greensboro, for Rockingham, Guilford and Randolph counties; and at Taylorsville for Alexander and Caldwell counties.

The Wednesday morning schedule calls for conferences at Halifax, for Hertford, Northampton, Halifax and Edgecombe counties; at Smithfield, for Johnston, Harnett and Wake counties; and at Winston-Salem, for Stokes, Forsyth and Davidson counties.

On Wednesday afternoon, meetings are scheduled at Wilson, for Nash, Wilson and Wayne counties; and at Yadkinville, for Surry, Yadkin and Davie counties.

Wilson Tobaccoist Is Claimed By Death

Wilson, Nov. 14.—(AP)—John S. Leach, tobacco warehouseman, died at his home here today after a long illness which became critical following a stroke he suffered Friday.

He is survived by his wife, a son, a daughter, four brothers, E. C. Leach, Washington, N. C., T. H. Leach, Petersburg, Va., E. J. Leach, Hampton, Va., and R. H. Leach of Kinston, and a sister, Mrs. Virginius Chestham, Durham.

His funeral will be held Thursday afternoon.

Held for Slayings

Albert Dyer, bartender at Birmingham, Ala., is shown in police headquarters after he was charged with killing his estranged wife, Mrs. Dorothy Dyer, hotel cigarette girl, and her friend, Mrs. S. V. Lyemance, hat-checker, in the hotel lobby. He begged his wife to leave Mrs. Lyemance's home and return to him before opening fire with a revolver, witnesses told police.

MEETING HELD BY PRINCIPALS

Dr. Wooten Discusses First Aid To The Injured

Pitt county principals, meeting in what was described one of the best sessions of the year, last night heard safety measures and first aid to the injured discussed.

Dr. W. I. Wooten, discussing first aid to the injured, related a number of cases where lives had been saved by persons who knew what to do in cases of emergency.

He discussed the treatment of fractures, artificial respiration, cases of electricity shock, drownings, suffocation by smoke, treatment of poison and how to stop bleeding.

Dr. Wooten declared it was important for principals and teachers to be trained in first aid since they were subject to encounter emergencies at any time.

Henry Olesby, principal of the Griffin school, who was in charge of the program, made a talk on safeguarding school children against dangers of fire, placing emphasis on the importance of regular fire drills. He also called attention to the many fire hazards to be found about the school building and grounds and urged the principals to remove these hazards.

He also related several instances of sickness, because of careless exposure and of the spread of disease in the school room.

In addition to the talks the principals attended to routine business, heard reports and made plans for the remaining term including the fixing of Christmas holidays from December 20 through January 1.

Holidays Set For All School Units

Students of the Greenville schools will use the usual two weeks holiday Christmas, but the Pitt county schools will observe a shorter period.

City schools will close on Friday, December 15, and resume work on Monday, January 1. County schools will begin their holiday later and observe New Year's day, the principals in regular monthly meeting last night having decided to begin the holiday at the close of school Wednesday, December 20, and resume work on Friday, January 2.

Both systems will observe Thursday and Friday, November 29 and 30, in observance of Thanksgiving. By cutting their Christmas holidays short, the county schools will make up the two days lost at Thanksgiving.

Both systems also will observe a half holiday on Friday of this week so that teachers will be able to attend the Northeastern District teachers' meeting in Wilson.

Department Looking For Three Equipped Plants

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—The Division of Commerce and Industry, Department of Conservation and Development, is looking for three fully equipped textile mills and is conducting a survey of the industry in the state in an effort to find these plants, which are wanted by three out-of-state textile firms.

Contact was made by the firms with J. T. Anderson, the department's industrial engineer, last week.

All three firms stated a preference for fully equipped mills, either operating or idle and in distress. The types of plants sought are two yarn mills—one of about 30,000 spindles to produce rayon and wool blended yarns, and the other to manufacture fine counts of single yarns ranging from 50s to 80s; while the third operator desires a mill equipped with broad looms. Mr. Anderson said.

Although the Division keeps a file of available industrial properties in North Carolina, Anderson said that no completely equipped textile plant is listed at the present time. He has, therefore, started a survey of the industry for mills which might be sold or leased.

Owners of any such properties are asked to communicate with the Division of Commerce and Industry in Raleigh.

Commenting on the increased business of textiles in North Carolina, Anderson said a partial explanation undoubtedly lies in prospects for a larger consumption of American-made textiles by South American countries, cut off from European supplies by the war now going on.

Unexpected Turn Taken In Search For Slayers Of Chicago Sportsman

Letter Found in Pocket of Slain Guard Offers New Clue In Murder of Turfman; Evidence also Uncovered Showing Al Capone had Voiced Threats Against Slain Man

Los Angeles, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A letter found in the pocket of Russell Stoddard, identified as a former bodyguard of Edward J. O'Hare, slain Chicago sportsman, was described today by Detective Lieutenant LeRoy Sanderson as "implicating" Stoddard in the O'Hare case.

Chicago police said the body guard was not listed in their records and that they had no information concerning him.

Stoddard was stabbed four times last night by two men who accosted him on a downtown street. Sanderson said the wounds were superficial, but the 21-year-old chauffeur collapsed after two hours of questioning and was removed to a hospital.

The letter contained a cryptic warning that "has a few friends out there where you are and we don't want to lose you now."

The missile started: "Hello, Russ. Well, I guess you did the right thing about leaving here when you did for if you had stayed you probably would have been taken with Eddie when this happened."

Chicago, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The discovery of a letter relating that Al Capone voted threats in Alcatraz prison against Edward J. O'Hare, slain president of Sportsman Park race track, gave an unexpected turn today to the search for the turfman's slayers.

Bearing a signature "George," the letter was found in a book at O'Hare's apartment.

The letter had been from one friend of O'Hare to another. The writer said he had been told of the threat by two former inmates of Alcatraz prison and urged the recipient to warn O'Hare.

"You know," the letter said in part, "O'Hare and him had many arguments and disputes over them tracks. I think the sore spot is something in connection with Sportsman's park."

The Capone group was the original owner of Sportsman's park. At one time O'Hare managed a Chicago dog track in which Capone had an interest.

GERMANS PLAN TO ANSWER NO

Reply to Mediation Offer to Be Delivered Tomorrow

Berlin, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop today informed the Belgian and Netherlands envoys that Germany's reply to the joint mediation offer from the lowland nations would be a polite "no."

The formal reply to the offer, made November 7 by the queen of The Netherlands and the king of Belgium, will be sent tonight with instructions to German envoys that it be presented tomorrow, informed sources said.

Von Ribbentrop was said to have stated that Germany's reply was based on answers already received by the two sovereigns from Britain and France, which he said rendered peace impossible at this time.

The French reply, delivered Sunday, declared it was up to Germany to repair "the injustices which force has imposed on Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland" before peace could be discussed.

Britain promised consideration of any German proposals which might "afford real prospect of achieving" Britain's avowed aim to halt German "aggression."

Blind Man Helped By Red Cross Unit

By S. B. UNDERWOOD, JR. (Roll Call Publicity Chairman) Harry S. was blinded some years ago when a four-inch firecracker he was shooting off for his two children exploded in his face. Without insurance, and unable to continue his job, his case was called to the attention of his local Red Cross chapter. Today Harry runs a newsstand on one of the busiest corners of his city. Through the Red Cross he was set up in business when the chapter secured for him a tiny alcove in the side of a large office building. Harry is now able to support his family almost in the same style he enjoyed prior to the accident. He has learned braille and reads books prepared by the Red Cross braille group.

Bobby Williams Wins Ayden Baby Contest

Much enthusiasm was shown in the baby popularity contest which closed at the Ayden School Fair Friday night of last week.

Throughout the week, each home room had been diligently working for some baby they chose to represent them in the contest. At the conclusion of the contest, the judges declared little Miss Bobby Williams, sponsored by the 9-A grade to be the contest winner and presented her a gold comb and brush set.

Bobby is the attractive seventeen-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Williams of Ayden.

SOVIETS MASS TROOPS ALONG FINNISH FRONT

Hope To Force Finland Accept Russian Demands

FINN SOLDIERS ALREADY MASED

Only One Minor Soviet Official Accompanies Departing Finnish Delegation To Station

Moscow, Nov. 14.—(AP) Soviet Russia, hoping the economic strain of counter-mobilization still may bring Finland to terms, probably will continue massing troops along the Finnish border, diplomatic observers said today.

"Finland has been preparing for five weeks against a showdown with Russia and approximately one-tenth of the 3,067,000 population has been mobilized for defense service."

There appeared to be a general belief here that the Finnish diplomatic mission, which departed for Helsinki last night after steadfastly resisting Soviet demands for territorial concessions, would not return.

The Finns themselves silent and serious as they boarded a train, indicated that resumption of the negotiations was up to their government. The delegation is due in Helsinki tomorrow.

Only one minor Soviet official accompanied the Finnish mission to the station.

The delegation, which twice before during the month-long negotiations returned to Helsinki, had had only indirect contact with the Kremlin for the past five days.

Commission Refuses Registry Transfers

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Maritime Commission refused today to permit the transfer to Panamanian registry of four vessels owned by the Pacific Steamship Corporation.

The firm, incorporated in Nevada, is in process of liquidation under the bankruptcy act, the Commission said, and the transfer "would be detrimental to the best interests of the United States."

The vessels were built in 1920. They are the Admiral Wood, Admiral Day, Admiral Chase and the Admiral Gove.

The application did not state what use was planned for the vessels, it was said at the Commission.

Local ABC Officers Help Destroy Still

Pitt county ABC officers, working with Beaufort officers, last night located and destroyed a 75-gallon capacity copper still in the Batt's crossroads section of Beaufort county.

The still was in operation when officers closed in on it and one man, Robert T. Smallwood, Negro, was seized at the plant.

The still, located in the Gum Swamp grounds, was an oil burner. Besides the still, officers destroyed 600 gallons of beer, 20 gallons of fresh-rum whiskey and 40 gallons of kerosene used for fuel to operate the still.

Ballet To Appear At College.
The Graff Ballet, a brilliant new American company of young men and women dancers directed by Grace and Kurt Graff of international fame, will appear in a dance program at East Carolina Teachers College next Friday night at eight o'clock, in the Wright building.

The leaders of this group, Grace and Kurt Graff, have toured both Europe and America, having appeared in the leading cities of this country and Europe before their marriage as "Cornell and Graff." On their European tour they gave special performances for the King of Sweden, the King of Italy, the Prince of Wales and other royal personages. They were married in London while on tour.

The Graffs represent the best of the American and European trends in the dance today, as they have studied both in this country and abroad. Both have had thorough training in classical ballet and modern dance, and both were soloists in their own right before they joined forces.

Many of the other dancers in their group also have done solo work. For three years these young dancers, drawn from all over the United States, have been given rigorous training by the Graffs, until they are finally tuned together like the instruments of an orchestra.

The group has been described as "top rank in significant ballet." With them, as their accompanist, will come the composer, Joseph Hawes, the young musician who wrote the music for some of their most impressive ballet numbers. Most of their dances have a two-piano accompaniment, and call for an additional pianist.

The dancers are gorgeously costumed and dance against a striking background of curtains which they carry with them. They also carry their special lights.

When the Graff Ballet comes to the college next Friday night, it will bring to Greenville one of the outstanding theatre dance groups of the day.

Well Done

The ladies of Greenville, through the Daughters of the Confederacy, have today drawn a check for $70.50 for the living gift to Mrs. Stonewall Jackson. Greenville has the youngest and smallest chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy in the state, and taking this into consideration our ladies have indeed done nobly in raising so large a sum. According to their age and strength we doubt if another chapter has done so well evening and additional guests sufficient for three tables. The home on Maple street was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums. Mrs. C. M. Warren won the high score prize, an attractive novelty chain with pendant.

During the playing Mrs. Wooten served delicious hot chocolate, sandwiches, cookies and other tempting accompaniments.

Guests of the club were Mrs. J. C. Waldrop, Mrs. S. M. Crisp and Mrs. J. H. Thomas.

Attend Meeting In Goldsboro.
A group of faculty members from the college, composed of President L. R. Meadows, Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, Professor R. C. Deal and Dr. E. L. Henderson, were guests last night in Goldsboro at the meeting of the Goldsboro chapter of E. C. T. C. alumnae.

Miss Jenkins, having been invited to talk on her European trip of last summer, was the speaker of the evening.

Guests and members enjoyed a barbecue supper in town and then adjourned to the home of Mrs. Lily Dawson Thompson, former president of the State Alumnae Association of the college, for the program.

Display At Art Gallery.
Hand woven breakfast and luncheon sets, napkins, towels, scarfs, pillow tops, knitting bags and tray sets are on display at the Greenville WPA Art Gallery. The entire collection was woven by Miss Alma Sparger, instructor in the Art Department of East Carolina Teachers College.

Mercedized cotton, linen, homespun yarn and knitting yarn are the materials Miss Sparger used in weaving these ninety-nine exquisitely made articles. "The hardest part of this work is putting the warp," Miss Sparger says. "It takes technical skill, and time. A person does not really know how to weave until he knows how to set up the loom in preparation for the weaving. In weaving, one's ability as an artist comes into play when adapting patterns and working out designs and color schemes."

The designs are variations of drafts that originated in our Southern mountains and have passed into the hands of one generation after another. Molly Pitcher, Honey Suckle, Monk's Belt, Goose Eye, Ms and Os, Tabby, Double Bow Knot and Maple Leaf are a few of the quaint names by which the weaves and patterns are known.

A small hand loom is also included in the exhibition, with accompanying information about setting up the loom, points to consider in buying a loom, the process of weaving, weaving materials and purchase of looms.

The display will remain in the gallery through Saturday, November 18. The Art Gallery will be open every day from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., and on Saturday evening from 7 to 9.

at the community building Friday afternoon, November 17, about 4 o'clock. All women who can, are asked to be there, as he will tell us how to landscape our grounds.

Washington—Holland's danger in this world war arises out of the fact that aeronautical ingenuity has not devised a combat plane that will fly the round trip from Germany to England and back.

A combat plane is one of those compact little one-man fighters which are easily maneuvered and are death to awkward bombers, but are themselves helpless when confronted by long distances.

Strategists say one reason the smashing German Blitzkrieg planned for England has been held up is because these little combat planes cannot fly along and protect the Nazi bombers from British combat and interceptor planes. It is not the only reason the strategists give. Another important one is that Germany seems not too certain that a Blitzkrieg through the air will work.

There is a third important reason which we will take up further along.

Germany Needs Bases
 The danger to Holland, as strategists here see it, is that Germany must get bases closer to England from which to launch her air attack—

if she is determined to do it. The few reconnaissance and "sampling" tests made by Germany on British naval and supply centers have shown them that the defense is tough. It includes not only the anti-aircraft guns, but more important still, the fast flying little interceptor planes that can get off the ground in a split-second, climb 10,000 feet to be on a level with the bombers, then swoop in on them as many as four machine guns blazing from each plane.

If the German bombers could have an escort of a fleet of Nazi combat planes, these little fighters could take on the British interceptors and leave the bombers free to accomplish their mission. Losses that way would be cut to a minimum.

But the combat planes can't make the flight. It is 300 miles or more from the nearest German air bases to the British industrial centers. Combat planes can fly only about 650 miles on the fuel they carry. Even the best Yankee fighters can carry no more than 300 miles to get to England and 300 miles to get back home—only 50 miles, in fact. More than 50 miles would be eaten up in a first-class "dog-fight." Then the plane could not get home.

If Germany overran Holland, she could have air bases within much easier flying distance of England. Her combat planes could fly with bombers and air attacks could be launched with good chances of success.

Another Route?
 A little way back we mentioned there was a third possible explanation for Holland—and England—to have escaped so long the German air attack. It is an important one to keep in mind.

One strategist insists that Germany will attack through France, Belgium or Holland, but will head southeast through the Balkans. "Why should Germany hit England where she is strongest?" he asks. "More likely she will hit where England is weakest. That is in the eastern Mediterranean."

He expects an early smash through the Balkans that may carry as far as Istanbul, formerly Constantinople. England's wealth and major resources are in Asia. From Istanbul—if Germany got control there—Nazi penetration could be made swift and costly to England.

We don't know which way they are going. Holland fears she, does.

The Creeping Man
 by Frances Sholley Wees

YESTERDAY: Murchison told Duncan he was going away, and would leave the diamonds for him. Michael gives Duncan the gray box containing the pebbles and love letters—nothing more. Tuck accuses Michael of being beastly to Duncan.

Chapter 33
The Creeping Man

"DUNCAN couldn't possibly be guilty of anything very bad," Tuck went on. "You can see that in his face, Michael. He's got an awfully nice, clean look."
 "Soap," Michael muttered, but subsided hastily. Finally he came to a stop. He leaned against the wall. "All right, I'll talk sense," he said. "Real sense. First, I'll say this—the worst criminal I ever saw, who had committed unspeakably rotten crimes, had a face like an angel."

"Duncan doesn't look like an angel," Tuck cried. "He looks like a man."
 Michael disregarded her. He talked straight at Bunney. "This isn't a romance we're living in, Bunney. It may not even come all right in the end, the way romances do. I want you to understand that. If it were a romance, we should quite rightfully suspect Duncan about this time, knowing in our inmost hearts that the hero can really do no wrong, and is in all probability suffering for another's crime, suffering in silence. Later on, of course, it would all be cleared up. I'm not so sure that this will come out that way."

"You are almost insulting, Michael," Bunney said.
 "Probably, I'm just stating facts, that's all," he paused. "Really now, Duncan's little story explained a lot of things very nicely, didn't it? About the reasons for his brother's disappearance. But why didn't he tell it to the Commissioner long ago? As far as that goes, why did the wife, knowing that her husband was deserting her, go to the police at all? If Miss Lissey was right," he said quietly, "Duncan was probably far more anxious to get those letters this afternoon than he was the diamonds. However," he said grimly, "he didn't get them all. We kept one to identify the handwriting by—when the time comes."

"Michael—why should he want the letters?" Tuck asked.
 He did not answer. He was looking at Bunney. She stood with lifted chin staring out into the wood.
 "Bunney," he said after a moment. "I want to ask you a favor. It is for your own good. I want to ask you not to see Duncan or have anything to do with him again until this matter is cleared up. Will you promise that?"
 She considered. "No, I don't think I will, Michael," she said after a moment. "I am sure he is innocent. Why should I treat him like a criminal?"
 "Do you believe me to be a truthful person, Bunney?"
 "Yes," she said.

"Do you think I would make accusation against anyone if I were not absolutely sure of my ground?"
 "No, Michael."
 "Then, I will say this. Remember, I have chosen my words. I know exactly what I'm saying. Bunney—if I told you all I know about this case, all I am absolutely sure of, you would not dream of speaking to Duncan Murchison. You would avoid him like the plague. Your own feelings would not allow you to associate with him. Do I make myself plain?"

Dangerous
 SHE did not speak for a long minute. "Thank you, Michael," she said at last, very quietly, but her hands were locked tightly together.

Michael went back to Tuck. "Is there more tea?" he asked in his natural tone.
 Tuck poured a cup with shaking hands. Michael bent swiftly and kissed her as he took his cup. She bit her lip to keep the tears back.
 Bunney turned round. Her voice was firm and controlled. "There is something I am sure I had better tell you," she said. "I promised Duncan I would say nothing, but now I feel that that promise can be broken."

Michael waited.
 "The other evening," she went on almost immediately, "I went for a walk with Duncan. It was just at dusk—you and Tuck went for a drive, perhaps you remember. We went out along the river bank to look at the last of the sunset. It was very quiet and calm out there, and we sat down on a log to look out over the river. We stayed there quite a while, not talking much, just enjoying the evening and the quiet."
 "It was nearly dark," she went on, "when the thing I want to tell you about happened. Remember, we were sitting there perhaps twenty feet back from the edge of the bank, just under the overhang of the trees. You know the place—there is a sheer drop of rock from the edge of the bank to the river below; it must be thirty feet down. No one could possibly climb up there."

"Bunney, just a minute," Michael said quietly. "Was this just this side of the first big ravine?"
 "Yes."
 "Go on."
 "Well, we were just going to get up and come home when, as this as I am sitting here, Michael there was a man creeping along the ground between us and the edge of the cliff. He couldn't have come up over the cliff; he couldn't—I don't see how he possibly could have come all the way along the ground from the ravine. We were looking directly toward the ravine all the time. I was just stiff with fright. It was terrifying to see him creeping along there in the dark, like an animal almost—we could only see him against the shimmer of the water, you see. And I was going to jump up or say something—but Duncan saw him first. He put his hand over my mouth, and held me there as if we were made of steel. And after a while the man got to the edge of the trees away to our right, and disappeared among them."
 "He was coming this way, Bunney?"
 "Along the bank, yes."
 "Did you see who he was?"
 "Impossible."
 "Did Duncan offer any explanation?"
 "None. He said—he told me not to breathe what I had seen to anyone. He said it was dangerous."
 The next morning added another paragraph to the queer and mysterious story unfolding before their eyes. Bunney and Tuck, contrary to Michael's express orders, had been for a walk in the woods. As they came back and entered the study, Charlotte Jean burst into the room breathlessly. "It's a good thing as you're back, Mrs. Forrester. I haven't known what to do. I locked her in your bedroom!"
 "Locked who in my bedroom?"
 "Mrs. Murchison. She—"
 "What?"
 "Yes, I. I didn't know what else to do with her."
 "But Charlotte Jean—what did you—how did you get her there?"
 "I didn't, ma'am. She went herself. She said as how she was going home, wouldn't wait, and I let her out the front door with my own hands. And then, in a few minutes I'd gone back to the kitchen to wash them jelly glasses, Mrs. Forrester—in a few minutes I heard somebody prowl around upstairs, and I tell you I did get a start—but I slipped quick like up the back stairs, and I seen her in your bedroom. So I just reached in and grabbed the door and locked it. And there she is."
 "Heavens! Are you sure it was Mrs. Murchison? Sure?"
 "It was somebody in a purple dress. I saw it stickin' out of the clothes closet when I reached in for the door. Sure it was her, ma'am. You can just bet it was her. I bet we've caught the murderer, ma'am, that I have!"
 "Did she have any money?"
 "Not a word. She hasn't said a word, although I did hear her tryin' the window. It's a good thing the porch roof doesn't come just there, or we'd have lost her."

BOOK REVIEWS
 "ACROSS THE BUSY YEARS" by Nicholas Murray Butler
 Nicholas Murray Butler's new book, "Across the Busy Years" is not an autobiography in the ordinary sense of the word, for the reader does not become acquainted with the author's magnetic personality but rather with the personalities whom it was his great pleasure to know. Nothing personal or of an intimate nature is in the book. It is a newspaper story of a public man's public life. This autobiography is in direct contrast to another great educator's book, "And Gladly Teach," in which the charming personality of Bliss Perry is found in every line, thus allowing the reader a very pleasant acquaintance of a famous man.

From reading the book we learn that Dr. Butler is probably the outstanding American of today, that he has been in the confidence of more Presidents of the United States than any other person; that opportunity has knocked at his door oftener than at any other; that he has probably lived a fuller and more fascinating life than any one else living today; and that he has had the friendship of almost all the great figures in art, literature, education and politics. But only the great seemed to appeal to him. When Channing Pollock in "The Adventures of a Happy Man" writes "The fact is that I like people. They interest me. I know more barons and bootblacks, chorus girls and capitalists, and convicts and authors and actors and oyster-shuckers than anyone else in the world," has not Everybody conceded that Lumpkin would make a colorful, fighting candidate and one whose appeal to the average voter is not to be discounted. On the other hand there exists a strictly personal reason (a reason, incidentally, which ought never to exist in a truly tolerant and democratic country but which does, nevertheless) against his candidacy. And so Lumpkin was eliminated.

Thus the McDonaldites were left high and dry for a candidate of their own choosing and preference. Looking over the rest of the field and after more than a bit of maneuvering and conferring, they picked out J. M. Broughton, Raleigh attorney, as their best bet.

Whether there was any "deal" connected with this decision, whether Broughton gave the liberals any definite promises; and what they were, if he did; all these are facts for the future and it can be safely predicted that the real inside dope will leak out in due course of time. It's the rarest thing in the world for any political combination to be formed, or any political strategy mapped out, without Talmadge E. Baker has been granted a permanent parole from a life sentence in Alabama for a burglary in 1921 and here he is shown in reunion with his wife and son, Jerry, at their home in Kansas City. He went back to his job in a steel mill next day. After four years of his sentence, Baker escaped, went to Kansas City, married and became a respected man. Later he was recognized and was returned to prison.

Dr. Butler missed something by not knowing the bootblacks, the chorus girls, the convicts and the oyster-shuckers?

However, the book is most interesting. It begins with the author's splendid ancestry and childhood days in New Jersey. This is followed by an entertaining account of his undergraduate days at Columbia (of which he became president), and a year's graduate study at the Universities of Berlin, Paris and Sorbonne. The benefits of this study abroad and the reasons for the sequence of his attendance at the universities are well defined. The student of education will enjoy the chapter telling of the building and organizing of a great university, especially the beginning of Teachers College as a unit of the greater university. It seems that Dr. Butler's success in organization is due in a large measure to his ability to get along with people and to judge men of caliber.

To those interested in politics the last three chapters, "Behind the Scenes in Politics," "Fourteen Republican Conventions" and "On Keeping out of Politics" will prove fascinating and illuminating. Many readers will wonder how the last chapter would have read had Dr. Butler been offered the highest office in the land, which some of his friends believe he secretly desired.

His building of a great university, his unceasing labor in the cause of peace, his more than five score trips abroad and his activity behind the scenes in politics have made for him an extraordinarily eventful and successful life.

A second volume, dealing with the author's participation in international affairs, is soon to follow this one. It should be enlightening in lieu of the conditions of Europe today.

 "ESCAPEE"
 By ETHEL VANCE

This is a novel of modern Germany, both thrilling and absorbing. It is full of action and suspense, as well as being a very subtle study of human nature. The story is built primarily around the person of Emmy Ritter, a famous German-born actress, who returns to Germany on some private business, is arrested by the secret police and thrown into a concentration camp. The efforts of her son to effect her escape, aided by the prison doctor, who has known and worshipped her when he was a young boy; the aid given by the beautiful countess, head of a fashionable girls' school; and the sinister (and somehow pathetic) character of the General—these all combine to give us a story of fast-moving events, and a splendid psychological study. The picture that it gives us of political Germany, just prior to the present war, is very illuminating.

You may be sure that this is a novel you want to read—and read now!

In a Book Week meeting of the Children's Reading Club held in the auditorium of Sheppard Memorial Library this afternoon at 3:30 certificates for summer reading were presented to sixty-six children. During the summer vacation these children had each read and made simple reports on ten selected books.

A nature study feature was used during the summer also. Each child was asked to bring in specimens of seeds and roots of common plants growing around his yard or on nearby vacant lots. He studied these in very attractive books, finding descriptions and stories about the plant. These books were kept on the club table and members of the staff directed the study. Later specimens were mounted in native notebooks. On their certificates were placed blue ribbon seals. In addition to the nature study, Haywood Sellers made a book of sketches and Gene Skinner made a bird notebook. For these additional studies the boys were given red ribbon seals.

Those who finished nature notebooks are: Alef Collins, Louise Deaver, Marie Earley, Leroy Hardee, Elvin Ray Jones, Fred Joseph, Alfred Earl Saied, Betty Lou Saied, Haywood Sellers, Gene Skinner, Myra Tapper.

The list of those receiving the regular reading certificates follows: Constance Baker, Mary Lucy Barnhill, Sarah Lee Bland, Jane Hooper Bradshaw, Frederick Brooks, Virginia Brooks, Marie Ann Butler, Annie Cahoon, J. C. Cockrell, Jr., Alef Collins, Joyce Day, Polly Day, Louise Deaver, Mary Alice Dennis, Carmen Dunn, Sidney Dunn, Marie Earley, Annie Earles, Frances Clifton Griffin, LeRoy Hardee, Virginia Hardee, Allison Hardee, Betsy Helen, Carolyn Hines, Billy Ray Holbert, Blanche Jackson, Elvin Ray Jones, Eunice Jones, Fred Joseph, Sarah Kirkpatrick, Florence Laud, Billy Laughinghouse, Jane Dale Laughinghouse, Lucille Laughinghouse, Evelyn Lawrence, Lewis Lawrence, Ann Manning, Jean McGowan, Dorothy McLawhorn, Mavis McLawhorn, Bettie Mobley, Phyllis Moore, Eleanor Norris, Vivian Pearson, Alfred Earl Saied, Betty Lou Saied, Millie Roy Sears, Haywood Sellers, Gene Skinner, Kitty Smith, Mary Smith, Nancy Joe Smith, Bill Simpson, Ann Stafford, Vivian Stokes, Opal Mae Stoneham, Gerald Tapper, Myra Tapper, Carlton Taylor, J. Achievement Day
 About one hundred and sixty women assembled in the Greenville Woman's Club building Wednesday for the eleventh annual achievement program. First place for the year went to the Red Oak Club and the second to Falkland. At the beginning of this year's program, each member was asked to keep her own score card to turn in with her annual report. These scores were tallied for each club and a three-hundred word narrative report was written by the secretaries. They were sent to the district agent to be graded by someone out of the county. Thirteen clubs reported. Each one made a good score but some neglected to turn in the stories. Red Oak led with 47,450 points. Falkland came next. One of the chief things in their favor was the fact that their membership had gone from 23 to 40 during the year. They had 36 scores turned in and 34 annual reports. They also reached 118 non-club members, which is real extension. The scores show the following totals for the county: Home beautification steps completed, 381; 252 women exhibited flower shows; 125 women judged at flower shows; 107 women improved their kitchens; 15,258 quarts of fruits, meats, and vegetables were canned; 6,297 containers of jelly, pickles were canned; 3,318 garments were made; 1,701 books were read by the women; 101 club meetings with the fair; 1,609 women assisted in the fair; 180 council meetings were attended; 180 council meetings attended; 39 county district and state meetings attended; 135 tours taken; 267 annual reports turned in; 181 leaders gave reports; and 326 non-members were assisted.

The Pactolus club sang two numbers which all enjoyed. Belvoir is our best club. We are proud of it. F. H. Jeter brought the message for the day. Mr. Jeter spoke on "The Agricultural Extension Program." He pointed out that we might soon be trying to pay for 30-cent fatback with 10-cent tobacco and urged again that we revive the "live-at-home" program. With plenty of garden vegetables, fruits, poultry, livestock and home grown feeds, we can raise our standards. He told a story of a man in North Carolina who definitely decided not to have any cows on his place. After his wife started a small dairy of her own, he came to her to borrow money. Later he decided to combine forces with her and together they built up a nice herd. This year they sold $12,000 worth of milk.

Retiring officers were honored and incoming officers installed. New county officers are: Mrs. B. E. Tyer, Falkland, president; Mrs. W. O. Grimes, Bethel, vice-president; and Mrs. Heber Fleming, Stokes, secretary-treasurer.

By MARION ALEXANDER

Chapel Hill, Nov. 14.—Whether you believe in statistics or not, here are the records of North Carolina and Duke in a nutshell up to date, and they furnish some interesting material for speculation as to the outcome of their annual classic in Durham Saturday.

The total figures for the two conference titans, who will scrap it out before a capacity 52,000 crowd, the game already being a sell-out, are amazingly similar for their last seven games. (Carolina opened one week earlier against Citadel, but figures for this game are omitted).

Moreover, the opposition the two famous rivals have encountered has been almost equal. Williams' national ratings last week ranked Duke's opponents as follows: Davidson 75.9, Colgate 86, Pitt 87.5, Syracuse 83.8, Wake Forest 88, Georgia Tech 90.9; V. M. I. 84.1—an average of 85.2.

Carolina's opponents were ranked thusly: Wake Forest 88, V. P. I. 85.7, New York U. 86.7, Tulane 97.1, Penn 89.1, N. C. State 84, and Davidson 75.9—an average of 86.3, but take Tulane out, and they are almost even.

The edge of the Blue Devils' McAfee, Robinson, Prothro, et al. in rushing is obvious from the season records, 360 yards to 825. The Tar Heels' Stimweiss, Lalanne, and mates have the margin in passing.

Better Posture means Better Health. Health Spot Shoes provide Correct Posture.—Coburn's Shoes, Inc.

but it is a narrower margin, 820 yards to 640. And the total yards gained favors Duke 2,000 to 1,645.

However, Carolina's quick striking opportunists have turned their 1,645 yards into 14 points more than the less fishy but more driving Blue Devils, while each team has yielded the same 39 points. Carolina also has a slight edge in kicking.

It looks like Duke's command of the ground against Carolina's superiority in the air, with the air the quicker route but the ground the sure, as shown by the case of Texas Christian. The Horned Frogs, although they lead the nation in passing, have won only two games out of seven.

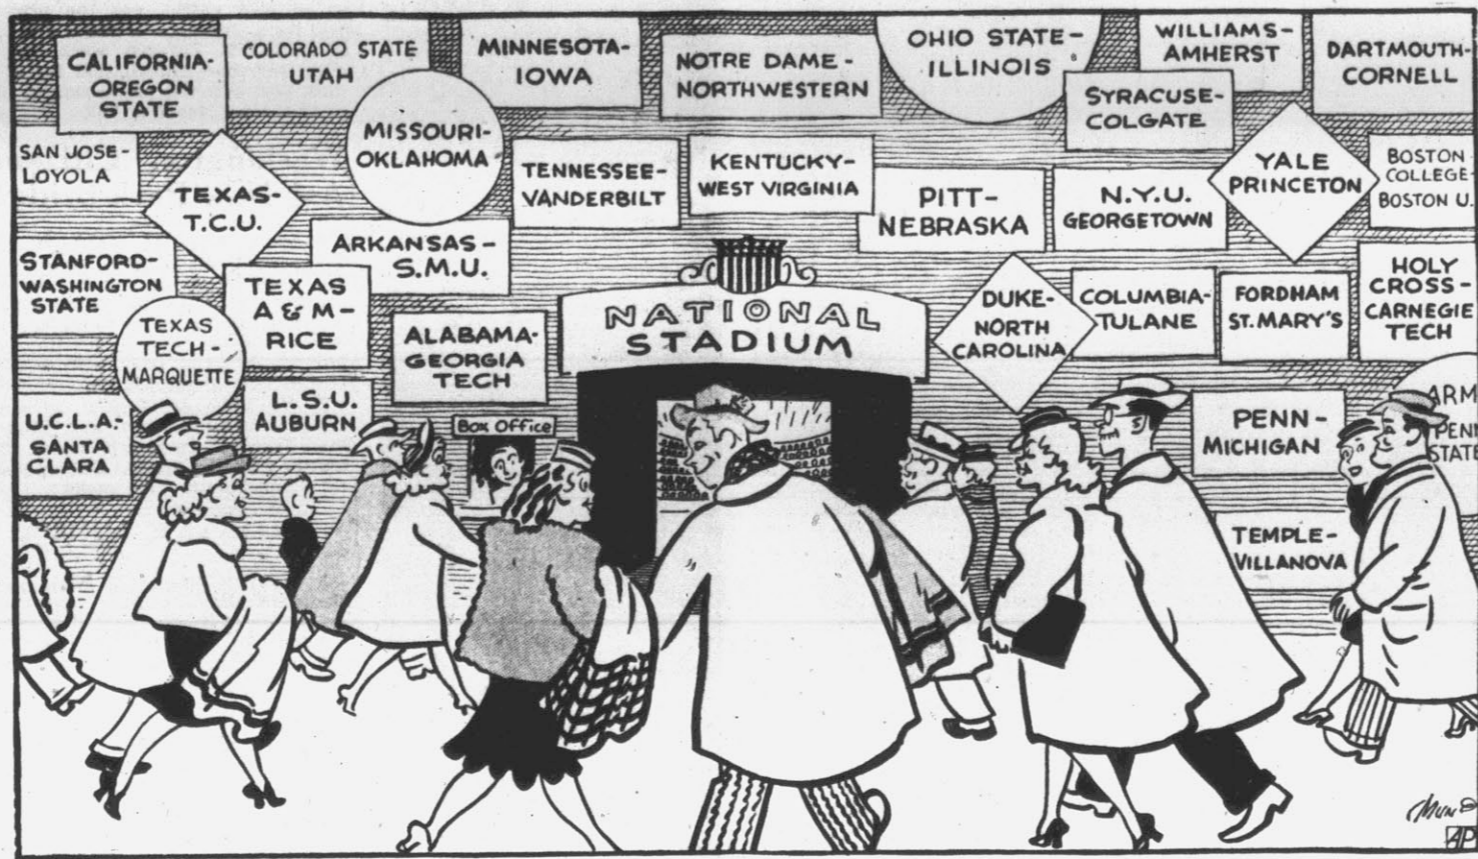

However, Carolina will dispute Duke's ground superiority with its touchdown twins and jackrabbit backs. And Duke will challenge Carolina in the air with a dangerous passing game of its own.

Each team has one of its leading backs on the injured list. Easy Eaves of Duke and George Radman of Carolina, and two or three minor casualties, but these just about offset one another.

So there you are, and you can take your pick for Saturday. When it comes to a showdown, however, past performances may be tossed out the window. And victory will go to the team that's at its best or gets enough breaks Saturday, as victory has a habit of doing in this classic rivalry.

AAA checks for adjusting the cotton acreage this year have meant much to North Carolina farmers in meeting their fall bills, says E. Y. Flood, AAA executive officer at State college.

Man About Manhattan

Little land in North Carolina is too poor or too badly eroded to grow a good crop of timber, says R. W. Graeber, forester of the State college extension service.

Prima wrote down all of those tunes, and invited Gleeby to come to New York. He wanted to organize a 16-piece band to play current musical favorites in the Gleeby style. The main difference in old jazz and new, is that the Gleeby exists in a clear, pure state. It is altogether without sophistication. Since the Gleebees can't read music, their songs, like folk-lore, were handed down from generation to generation. Prima has been rehearsing for a solid month. Billy Rose is said to have sat in on one of these rehearsals, at the Hickory House, and been so "taken" that he offered Prima a year's contract for the "Diamond Horseshoe."

In any case, old Gleeby, the King himself, drifted into town last week, and Prima has made him "head coach" of the band. The King sits back and listens, and if the rhythm isn't in just that peculiar sub-Congo mood, he shakes his head. They pay attention to him, too. In matters of rhythm, he's strictly the boss.

The Horse Show at Madison Square Garden was lots of fun. If you've never seen one, you ought to mark it down on next year's "must." The horses themselves get the "oh's and ah's," but some of those riders, in their snappy uniforms, weren't far behind.

One thing should be kept in mind. Accept what you hear warily. There was a perfectly beautiful-looking girl who was introduced to a young man and his belle, and then they began saying something about another girl. Her name was Elsie. "Let's go see Elsie—let's see the dear," one of the girls said. She sounded as if she was talking about her old schoolmate. And they hurried off to find Elsie. I probably wouldn't have thought a thing of it if Elsie hadn't happened along just then. Elsie was handsome, but in another way, Elsie was a filly—the prettiest little filly you ever saw.

Bob feels that "The Earl of Chicago" is a gamble for him, just as was "Night Must Fall." The first turned out rather happily, financially as well as artistically, doing 60 per cent better in England than any previous Montgomery film and holding its own in America.

"If this one should flop," he said grinning, "I'll go to the doghouse, a residence with which I have become fairly familiar. It might take ten years for me to come out of it, if at all. If you fall in this business, it's for good. But I think it's worth the gamble. It's an interesting story, a sound one, and it's different. And it's only coincidence that both Bob's pet movies see their he-rees safely to the gallows, if you were thinking (as I was) that being hanged is a Montgomery obsession.

"No," he said, "some of my pet stories—that I still hope to do—are comedies. The main thing is that they're good stories. Unless you start with one, you haven't much chance of a good picture."

And truer words were never spoken.

time?" "Big sweat," nodded Richard Thorpe, the director. "We're taking it up from the middle of the close-up."

The man with the little bottle of spraying oil stepped up to Bob Montgomery and sprayed, just as if Bob's face weren't doing its own perspiring in the repeated sessions under hot, close lights.

Bob was backed up in a corner—in this scene for "The Earl of Chicago"—and he was in a tight spot. The man he thought was his pal (Edward Arnold) was telling him off, and a moment or two later on the screen, but hours later as the camera turns, Bob was going to get a gun and shoot his way to trial before the English house of lords and subsequently to the gallows.

He was referring to the work put in on "The Earl of Chicago" before and during production. His producer is Cletor Saville (of "Mr. Chips" fame) and his director is Richard Thorpe, who made "Night Must Fall." The author is Brock Williams.

"We all work together, with the greatest confidence and mutual good will," he said. "That kind of cooperation is essential, I believe, to making a good picture—the kind in which neither producer, director, actor nor writer feels the other fellow is trying to take over his particular job. We're all willing to listen to the other fellow's point of view, and that makes for real teamwork."

"There's nothing that can insure the success of a picture, but this way we can all have fun trying for it."

N. Y. STOCK LIST

New York, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Moderate leanings toward a recovery trend were exhibited by selected stocks in today's market. The list got off to a slow start with prices spotty. Buying in steels and motors then turned the tide and improvement soon was being registered in other departments. The pace, brisk for a brief interval, slackened subsequently under profit taking and near the fourth hour gains running to a point or so were reduced. Aside from the steady flow of heartening domestic business news which markets have virtually been ignoring for about two months, brokers could find nothing particularly outstanding to stimulate the speculative appetite.

N. C. Mineral Production Certain To Set Record

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Nov. 14.—North Carolina's mineral industry is headed for new all-time heights this year, both in volume of production and value of products.

H. J. Bryson, state geologist, estimates that the value of this year's mineral production in the state will be approximately $20,000,000, an increase of something like 25 per cent over 1938 and no less than six times the corresponding figure for 1926, the year Mr. Bryson took over his present post.

The Bryson estimates are based on final and practically complete figures for 1938 which show that for the first time in the state's history its mineral production was valued at more than $15,000,000.

Going to make up this total are such widely differing products as sand and gold, clay and bromine, mica and lead.

Granite accounts for the biggest single item of value, with a production of 1,189,750 short tons valued at $4,364,477; but it is possible, Mr. Bryson said, that brick and tile may go even higher than that. Exact figures on the brick-tile production are unavailable, but can be usually estimated at approximately the same figure as shown for granite. That has been true in past years and if there is any variation for 1938 it would be to show the brick-tile value higher than granite in view of the tremendous increase of use of brick and tile during the big construction boom in full swing over the year.

The 1938 value of minerals is in itself a new record for North Carolina. Bryson pointed out, exceeding by at least $3,000,000 the value of production in 1937. Despite some setback during depression days the trend of the state's mineral industry has been steadily upward for the last dozen years. The first year Mr. Bryson was in the state service (1926) the total was only slightly more than three million dollars.

A brief resume of the volume and value of 1938 mineral production shows:
Feldspar (ground and crushed): 33,431 tons valued at $62,897.
Mica and vermiculite: 12,335 tons valued at $249,477.
Marble, lime and miscellaneous stone: 676,850 tons, value $677,539.
Bromine, clay and garnet: 17,875 tons valued at $4,907,012.
Spodumene: 250 tons, not sold.
Basalt: 58,700 tons valued at $54,603.
Sandstone: 605,723 tons valued at $748,395.
Granite: 1,189,750 tons valued at $4,364,477.
Sand and gravel: 431,795 tons valued at $279,942.
Silica: 55 tons, valued at $8,813.
Iron ore: 200 tons, not sold.
Breck and the estimated value not less than $4,500,000.
Gold: 1,878 fine ounces valued at $65,730.
Silver: 5,590 fine ounces valued at $3,556.
Lead: 4 short tons valued at $368.
Copper: value estimated at from $756,000 to $1,000,000.

NEW INTEREST IN LIVESTOCK

Tar Heel Farmers Buying "Cream of The Crop"

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—Farmers of North Carolina, in their eagerness to enter the livestock business, are buying the "cream of the crop" available in Tennessee, Virginia, South Carolina and other neighboring states, says L. I. Case, extension animal husbandman of State college. Scores of buying trips have been made into other states by farmers who are in the market for pure-bred foundation stock for beef cattle herds.

In most cases the farmers are being directed to the sources of the best breeding stock by farm agents, specialists, and other extension workers.

Case reported that he has just returned from a trip to South Carolina with H. G. Shelton of Speed, J. C. Candler of Lincolnton, and Dr. J. M. Litch of Asheville, where they inspected many fine herds.

Among these was the herd of polled and horned Herefords on the farm of Neal Trask of Burton, S. C. Mr. Trask is a native of North Carolina, where his father and brother are large truck farmers in New Hanover county. Case said that Mr. Trask is also growing a large acreage of truck crops in South Carolina. He added his herd of beef cattle a few years ago, more or less as a side line, but already he has one of the best herds in the south and it is proving profitable.

The North Carolinians also visited the farm of Colonel Elbert of Green Pond S. C. and saw a carload of polled Herefords recently shipped in.

from the west. At the head of Colonel Elbert's herd is a son of Mr. Trask's herd bull. Indicative of the mounting interest in beef cattle, was the price paid for a shipment of cattle sold at Columbia, S. C., last week. Case said. Only one animal sold for less than $150 and the prices ranged up to $210 for a yearling bull.

Washington Citizens Ask New Park Bridge

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—(AP)—W. B. Rodman of Washington, state senator from Beaufort county, headed a delegation which asked the Highway Commission today to replace an existing bridge between Washington and Washington Park with a new one to cost about $25,000.

E. V. Webb of Kinston, division highway commissioner, and Chairman Frank L. Dunlap discussed the matter with the group. Dunlap said no commitments were made.

'Gloom' Slayer

Charles Ebert (above), mild-mannered junk yard worker, was jailed at Pottsville, Pa., on charges that he killed his two children and seriously wounded his wife in a fit of despondency over the belief he had an incurable disease. Three physicians told him there was nothing wrong with him.

It is quite clear that the librarian occupies a place of growing importance in adult education. Perhaps no other resident or officeholder in a normal American community is more strategically located than is the librarian to initiate educational activity and organization for the adult population.—M. A. Cartwright, director, American Association for Adult Education.

DON'T KEEP ON Sniffing and SNEEZING!

..without doing anything about it
Put a few drops of Vicks Vapo-nol up each nostril right away. Feel it go to work. Notice how it relieves irritation and stuffiness of a cold. This treatment is successful because Vapo-nol is active medication—containing several essential relief-giving agents plus ephedrine—and is expressly designed for nose and upper throat. And what's more, when used in time, Vapo-nol helps to keep colds from developing.
