GERMANS SAY NAZI U-BOATS STILL ACTIVE

Refute Declaration Submarine Menace Been Defeated

REPORTS LOSSES PAST TWO WEEKS

Also Declared in Berlin That Advancing Enemy Infantry Dispersed at Front by German Artillery

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP)—DNB, the official German news agency, asserted today that 11 commercial ships, eight of them British, had failed to reach British ports since Winston Churchill, first lord of the British Admiralty, declared two weeks ago the submarine menace had been defeated.

The agency said three English fish cutters and the 5,000-ton British freighter Arlington Court had been torpedoed by German submarines, two English freighters attacked in the Atlantic and one English freighter off the coast of Iceland.

Reconnaissance flights over England yesterday cost Germany one plane, DNB stated, while the German navy was reported to have sunk an unspecified number of ships in the North sea.

German artillery dispersed advancing enemy infantry on the Western front north of Grindori, DNB said.

French artillery of all calibers was again reported active in the Perle sector near the Luxembourg French and German borders.

Legion Post Meet Held Last Night

Pitt county post No. 39 of the American Legion already has a membership of 155 for the new year, which began last month, a number larger than that secured throughout the entire past year, it was revealed at the regular meeting of the post last night.

The report was made by Arthur B. Corey, chairman of the membership committee, who also urged each member present to try to get one new member by the next meeting.

The meeting was held at the Third Street hut and a chicken stew dinner was served.

Cotton Allotment Fixed For County

Pitt county cotton farmers may plant a total of 15,592.7 acres, it was revealed today with the announcement of 1940 allotments for the various cotton producing counties under the AAA program.

The total for the state was fixed at 979,543.7, it was revealed in Raleigh by E. Floyd, AAA executive officer of State college.

The allotments, however, are dependent upon a favorable majority in the referendum to be held on Saturday, December 9.

It was pointed out that farmers will be advised of their individual allotment before the referendum date.

The allotment for Pitt county next year is slightly below the figure this year. The allotment last year was 15,700.5. It was explained at the county agent's office that this was because of the fact that for the past several years farmers in the county have not planted their full allotment.

This county, whose principal crop is tobacco, ranked 25th in the 1940 allotments. Robeson county led with an allotment of 54,614.9 acres.

RALEIGH GETS POLICE CHIEF

Latest Appointment Apparently Hits Happy Note

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Nov. 22 (AP)—Appointment as Raleigh's chief of police of Al H. Young, World war veteran who is still in his early 40's, seems to have hit a very happy note, if comment heard in general conversation on the subject is truly indicative.

Best thing seen about the appointment by most of those commenting is that it was entirely non-political—something that few Raleigh citizens, long enured to having their police chief the center of great political pressure, ever expected to live to see.

As a result the stock of Commissioner of Public Safety R. C. Powell, target of much criticism since he went into office earlier this year, appears to have risen considerably by the ordinary man on the street, though whether it suited the political forces which had much to do with electing Powell is not as evident.

Approval of Young by the Civil Service Commission was given after a session in which the commissioners pried extensively into the life and accomplishments of the appointee.

Young came through the examination with flying colors, to all appearances, and will take the office not later than December 1, Powell announced.

The new chief-to-be is quite well known in many parts of the state. He is a graduate of Duke University, taught school in Brunswick county and in Wilmington; was head of the Shelby Employment Service and has commanded three CCC camps—though none of them was in North Carolina.

Here in Raleigh he has never been known to take any part whatever in local politics—that's what seems to suit everybody.

Thad Eure isn't fooling anybody, except perhaps himself, with his pompous statement about North Carolina's 1940 delegation being for Governor Clyde Hovey for president next year and not for John N. Garner.

Everybody knows that the endorsement of Hovey, who would make just as great a president as he has made governor, by Tar Heel politicians is nothing more or less than a dodge to keep from committing themselves in advance of the convention.

GAIN IS NOTED IN AUTO SALES

Advance of 46 per cent Shown for Ten months

New York, Nov. 22—Automobile retail sales in the United States during the 10 months ended with October showed an advance of 46 per cent over the same period of last year, according to the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

October retail sales of passenger cars and trucks, amounting to 277,158 units, were 82 per cent ahead of October, 1938.

Passenger car deliveries totaled 2,191,683 units in the 10 months, the association reported, representing a gain of 48.8 per cent by comparison with last year. Commercial vehicles were up 35 per cent from the 10 month period last year with a retail sales total of 433,055 units.

October retail sales of passenger cars totaled 236,180 units, compared with 134,984 last year, or a gain of 75 per cent. Truck sales totaled 40,175 for the month, compared with 13,227 a year ago, representing an increase of 136 per cent.

SECURITY WORK INTENSIFIED IN EUROPE'S WAR

Activities of Secret Agents Leap Into Limelight

GERMAN IS HELD IN MUNICH PLOT

Two Captive Britons Are Specifically Linked With Blast Aimed at Murdering Adolf Hitler

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP)—Two captured British secret service agents were blamed today by German authorities as direct links in the Munich bomb explosion which missed Adolf Hitler by 11 minutes November 8.

Officials declared the agents were responsible for the beer hall blast jointly with Georg Elser, a former Munich resident said by the Nazis to have confessed setting the time bomb, and Otto Strasser, German exile who lives in France.

The two agents listed as Captain Richard Henry Stevens and Sigmund Payne Best, were seized at The Netherlands frontier November 9. German secret police who have questioned them since then declare that Capt. Stevens is chief of the European division of Britain's secret service.

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP)—The war among secret agents leaped into unaccustomed limelight today with the Gestapo's announcement that a Munich plotter had confessed the November 8 attempt on Adolf Hitler's life and that two British operatives had been seized.

Heinrich Himmler, chief of the secret police, said George Elser, 36-year-old resident of Munich, planted a time bomb in the Nazi beer cellar shrine there at the instigation of Otto Strasser, long-time Hitler foe, and with funds furnished by Great Britain.

He did not link the two captive Britons specifically with the blast, but accused them of organizing plots in Germany.

Himmler said that in trying to reach Switzerland Elser was caught the very night of the explosion, which killed eight persons and which Hitler escaped by 11 minutes.

Reporting another angle of the undercover war-within-a-war of rival secret services, Himmler said a "captain Stephens" and a "Mr. Best" of the British intelligence were captured November 9, while attempting to enter Germany from Venlo, The Netherlands.

In London the British foreign office denied any agent of the British government had "any knowledge" of a German "described as having placed a bomb in the Munich cellar."

The foreign office said there was "no connection" between the bombing and the kidnapping of two British subjects on the German-Dutch frontier.

Verdict Rendered In Domestic Case

A jury in Pitt Superior court, after having heard testimony and arguments for two days, found that Shade Wilson, Negro, separated himself from his wife and failed to provide the necessary subsistence according to his means and condition in life for her.

The case was started Monday afternoon, consumed all of yesterday and went to the jury this morning.

Wilson had been providing his wife with $3 weekly. The court did not immediately set the amount to be paid from now on.

The case of C. E. Hill vs. Hugh Winslow, in which the plaintiff asks $1,000 for injuries allegedly suffered when he fell from a trailer which had broken loose from a car operated by Winslow, was argued on Wednesday.

Elsewhere loans will be made at 75 per cent of the base rate or 43 cents a bushel to farmers who did not plant in excess of their AAA soil depletion acreage allotments.

Nazi Planes Loose Bombs Over Shetland Island As Sea Warfare Intensified

Girl Unruffled By Slaying

A few hours after Brooks Coffman, Dallas, Tex., attorney, was shot to death on the main street of that city, his accused slayer, blonde Corinne Maddox, 26, was back home calmly reading a magazine story. She was released under $7,000 bond after surrendering and telling police she shot Coffman who faced trial on a charge that he stabbed her last May.

INVADERS FIRE BRITISH PLANE

British Sources Announce no Hit Scored by First Attack German Freighter Intercepted by Britain Off Coast of Iceland; Italian Freighter Latest Mine Victim

London Nov. 22 (AP)—German air raiders bombed the Shetland islands and set fire to a Royal Air Force seaplane today in two sharp thrusts at Britain.

A communique said the Nazi raiders first made an attack on shipping, but were driven off and then attacked a seaplane at a mooring and set it afire.

The Air Ministry also announced the Royal Air Force made "successful flights" on Monday and Tuesday over Stuttgart, Frankfurt, Hamburg and Bremen.

London, Nov. 22 (AP)—German planes today dropped bombs in a raid on the Shetland islands off the northern coast of Scotland.

Air raid alarms in one of the island towns were followed quickly by the "all clear" signal.

Tracer bullets were fired as the planes circled, dropping bombs.

Six planes took part in the raid, but failed to score any hits, British sources announced.

Warfare between Great Britain and Germany entered an intensified phase as Britain planned an unrestricted blockade on German export trade in reprisal for recent shipping losses.

The Admiralty announced a British warship had intercepted the 4,110-ton German freighter Bertha Fisser off Iceland's coast, stating the crew started to sink the ship, took to their boats and then were picked up by the warship.

The 6,060-ton Italian freighter Flaminia was added to the list of mine victims off England's south-east coast. Although she was badly damaged by explosion last night, she was still afloat today. She was the sixteenth victim of mine and torpedo warfare off the British Isles in the last five days.

A German plane flew over villages along the mouth of the Thames in southeast England.

The plane was beset by anti-aircraft fire and Royal Air Force fighters. It dived and hedge-hopped to shake off the pursuers.

The government announced that three German fliers who piloted a reconnaissance plane to the eastern outskirts of London Monday had been rescued from a rubber boat in the North sea and taken prisoners by the British. Two were said to be badly wounded.

SAYS BOMBING ACT OF NAZIS

Accused Man Declares Explosion Set off By Himmler

Paris, Nov. 22 (AP)—Otto Strasser, erstwhile lieutenant of Adolf Hitler, accused as the instigator of the Munich bomb plot against the German Fuehrer, charged in an interview today that the Munich explosion was "organized by his accused—Heinrich Himmler, head of all German police."

"I have just received formal proof from a devoted party member that the plot emanated with Himmler himself," said Strasser, an exile from Germany in an interview with Havas, French news agency.

"He declared to Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party and second in line of succession to Hitler, that he needed the attack in order to unleash a 'hate offensive' against England and in order to have a pretext which would permit him to deal with domestic adversaries, notably the black front."

"The 'black front' is the name given to an anti-Nazi organization understood to be active within Germany."

Literature Department Meets.

The literature department of the Woman's Club held its regular meeting in the home of Mrs. W. A. Browne on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. P. A. Toll as assistant hostess. About 25 regular members were present and the following guests: Mrs. R. B. Brandt, Mrs. G. D. Gilbert, Mrs. O. A. Hankner and Miss Hazel Elsom.

Mrs. Browne's attractive home had a most inviting atmosphere. The beautiful fall cut flowers and the fire in the open grate added their share of loveliness.

The meeting was opened by the chairman, Mrs. K. T. Putrell, and turned over to Miss Mary Ann Cobb who had charge of the program. With her face and voice filled with animation, Miss Cobb, in a most able manner, shared with the group some of the interesting highlights of the life of Katherine Cornell and her association with the American theatre since 1916.

From the introduction in Miss Cornell's recent autobiography, Ruth Woodbury Sedgwick sums her up as follows: Katherine Cornell is the one actress of this generation who has possessed that fusing of genius, physical and vocal endowment, technique, discipline, sense of responsibility to a public and a high tradition; these being the necessary equipment for the triumphant presentation of the great roles which are the yardstick for measuring an actress' vitality. Her career—the only stage career we have which has been planned as fine architecture is planned—has swept for 20 years in a constantly mounting crescendo. From amateur playing to stock company performances, to small roles, leads to stardom, and to the royal position as actress-manager. An actress-manager who, each season, surpasses her own record, who believes that the theatre belongs to America rather than to Broadway. This belief she has put into practice by the many tours she has taken through America to present her plays. The scope of her emotional and technical development is revealed through the many different parts she is able to play. Perhaps the highest tribute that can be paid Miss Cornell is the suggestion that if you are lucky enough to see her seven-hundredth performance of a role you will get a fresher, keener interpretation than you did during the first week of its run.

Miss Cornell doesn't like to talk about the future. She is more excited about the future than the past. She enjoys telling about her husband, Guthrie McClintic, and Miss Jessie Bonstelle, who did so much to help her get a start on the stage, and directed her for so many years.

She likes also to talk about those close friends and counselors who have stood close to her for years, and who helped to make her career. She doesn't approve of the star system and refuses to be starred. She prefers to have an all-star cast. Although she thoroughly enjoys pictures, she has no desire or intention to give up the stage for the screen.

Peculiarly conspicuous is her superb health, her vitality, her complete serenity and sweetness of spirit.

Miss Cornell says acting is in her blood. Her grandfather Cornell and her father were both gifted amateur actors and fine directors. She has been writing and putting on plays since she was in kindergarten.

In 1920 Miss Cornell met Guthrie McClintic whom she had known for three years and they were married in 1921. He is one of America's finest directors. He has staged all of Miss Cornell's plays since 1925.

Miss Cornell is acclaimed the First Lady of the American stage. The gold medal of the Chi Omega National Achievement Award for 1936 was presented to her at the White House on March 30, 1937.

Among her best known productions are "The Barrets of Wimpole Street," "Candida," "Saint Joan," and "Romeo and Juliet."

Times had the following to say of Miss Cornell in "The Barrets": "Miss Cornell's acting had greatest significance because of the crescendo of her playing; by the wild sensitivity that lurks behind her ardent gestures and her piercing stares across the footlights she charges the drama with a meaning beyond the facts it records. Her acting is quite as remarkable for the carelessness of its design as for the fire of her presence."

John Mason Brown's review in the New York Post included the following: "Miss Cornell's Juliet is luscious and charming. It finds her at her mellowest and most glamorous. It burns with the intensity Miss Cornell brings to all of her acting. It moves gracefully and lightly, is endlessly haunting in its pictorial qualities; and reveals a Miss Cornell who equals the beauty of the

WOMEN: "BUILD-UP" TO RELIEVE PAIN

A weak, run-down, undernourished condition calls for attention! Such a condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get its foothold. That's one thing which leads to much of women's suffering from headaches, nervousness, those cramp-like pains. A good way to relieve such pains, women by thousands have found is by the proper use of CARDUI. It stimulates a lagging appetite, assists digestion and assimilation; thus helps build physical resistance to periodic pain. Taken just before or during the time, many women also report that CARDUI lessens the pain and discomfort of the period.—(Adv.)

lyric lines she speaks with a new-found lyric beauty in her own voice. Once again the playgoers of this town stand in Miss Cornell's debt. But the exciting truth is that they have never stood so deeply in her debt as they do today.

The following is an excerpt from a review of "Candida" by H. T. Parker in the Boston Transcript: "Candida was Miss Katherine Cornell, who achieved the part by mental and spiritual sensibility, gave it limpid outlet, poetized it along the way; filled it with a nervous or a tranquil beauty. Beyond Mr. Shaw was it transfigured."

At the close of Miss Cobb's talk, Mrs. W. A. Ryan devoted a few minutes to current events.

After the group enjoyed delicious refreshments the meeting was adjourned.—Reported.

Houston, Tex.—(AP)—"I want to surrender," said a mild-eyed, middle-aged fellow who walked up to Traffic Patrolman J. E. Armstrong. Armstrong eyed him carefully for earmarks of the criminal.

"What you wanted for?" he said skeptically.

"Traffic tickets," said the man soberly.

Armstrong went with him to the police station where he paid for five over-parking transgressions.

JEAN G. WALKER, 17, of Burlington, is named by Frances MacGregor, assistant state club agent, as a North Carolina delegate to the 15th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Dec. 1-2, for her general excellence in home economics work. In seven years she has canned 2,227 pints of foods, prepared 725 meals, made 11 garments, refinished a room, and raised poultry and five acres of tobacco. She made nine exhibits at county, state and national shows, and took part in 22 demonstrations and 11 health contests to win many honors and $19.50 in cash awards. She assisted leading 20 members for one year. Total value placed on her project work is $1,475.50. Miss Walker will compete with other state winners for one of six $300 scholarships, provided by Montgomery Ward, in addition to her trip.

lyric lines she speaks with a new-found lyric beauty in her own voice. Once again the playgoers of this town stand in Miss Cornell's debt. But the exciting truth is that they have never stood so deeply in her debt as they do today.

The following is an excerpt from a review of "Candida" by H. T. Parker in the Boston Transcript: "Candida was Miss Katherine Cornell, who achieved the part by mental and spiritual sensibility, gave it limpid outlet, poetized it along the way; filled it with a nervous or a tranquil beauty. Beyond Mr. Shaw was it transfigured."

At the close of Miss Cobb's talk, Mrs. W. A. Ryan devoted a few minutes to current events.

After the group enjoyed delicious refreshments the meeting was adjourned.—Reported.

WHAT NOW?

With the tobacco selling season nearing a close, we are wondering just what a lot of our people are going to use for money to take care of their needs between the close of the present season and the opening of the next selling season. There are entirely too many people in Pitt County who put all their efforts into the production of tobacco and gamble their year's livelihood on an uncertain crop and uncertain prices. If you will look about, you will find that the farmer who gets along best is the one who diversifies his efforts and as a result has something to sell all along through the year. There is probably not a farm in Pitt County that should not be self-sustaining with a surplus of various commodities to sell, and yet the vast majority of our farmers are depending entirely on the one-crop system of farming. There can be no financial independence for our farmers and our section until the farmers change from this one-crop system to one of diversification.

THE EARLIER THANKSGIVING

While postoffices and federal agencies generally will observe Thanksgiving Day tomorrow in conformity with President Roosevelt's recent proclamation advancing the observance a week from the usual last Thursday in November, this state, along with other states, will wait another week for its observance. We believe that the motive behind the President's action, that of prolonging the Christmas shopping period between Thanksgiving and Christmas, is good, and had the suggestion come earlier, probably all the states would have joined in the observance on the advanced date, but like the governors of several states, Governor Hoey declared that to change the date this year would disrupt already arranged schedules, so this year North Carolina will be among those who must wait until next week for their Thanksgiving observance.

It seems to us that right now is the time for the President to contact all the governors with a view to permanently setting Thanksgiving as the next to the last Thursday in November instead of the last Thursday. Such action now would give a year's notice of the change and future schedules could be arranged accordingly. North Carolina and several other states are observing a different Thanksgiving day from the federal agencies and other states this year, not because they wanted to be different, but because the suggestion for the change came too late. We believe that the earlier Thanksgiving observance is preferable to the late one, but there should be no further delay if the new schedule is to be carried out next year and in the years to come.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Mrs. Roosevelt recently wrote that certain people called on her the other night in St. Louis to take her some place and she needed only 25 minutes to get ready. That, to our own recollection, is a national woman's indoor championship. She was caught absolutely flat-footed. She was expected to be ready when they came, but had forgotten the hour. And in 25 minutes she was ready.

We showed this item to women we know, but they would have nothing to do with the idea. They insisted that getting ready in 25 minutes wasn't democratic, nor even liberal, but downright revolutionary.

Besides, one remarked, maybe time doesn't fly so fast in St. Louis and besides the clock is an hour slower there than in the eastern time belt. They believed that should prove something.

Roosevelts Move Rapidly
But for Mrs. Roosevelt to get ready in 25 minutes is no surprise to the White House staff, which finds the Roosevelt very fast.

Not only is Mrs. Roosevelt a motivated dynamo, but her brother, Hall Roosevelt, is blown by the same swift.

There are two uniformed attendants at the front door of the White House. They are expected to soften for strangers the shock of a White House visit, and, secondarily, to catch the Roosevelt wraps. Reports reach us that the two doormen, alert and working in harmony, manage to catch the out-flung hat of Hall Roosevelt just one time in four.

They have to operate almost with signals to have his hat ready for him when swings down the steps from the main hallway on his way out, or he may breeze along without it. He uses one of the family automobiles if it is handy, but he is as apt to pass it up in favor of fast footwork.

"How far is it to 1688 Butternut place?" he will call to a White House amiable.

"Six blocks," may be the reply. "Don't call the car. I'll walk," and out he goes.

We have seen him dance his 200 pounds around the big East room in a Virginia reel and the only one who would be going his pace at the end would be Mrs. Roosevelt.

Helps With Entertaining
Recently it was arranged for Mrs. Roosevelt to assume a share of White House entertainment that ordinarily would have fallen upon the increasingly busy President. She will save the President's time and strength by having afternoon musicales and teas for capital company to replace the evening dinners which the President would have to attend.

We can imagine her writing a report of a struggle with her valiant mail, of an hour's canter along the Potomac, of a session with a new book on the migrancy problem (she will tell you what's in it and why you should read it).

Likely that will absorb only the forenoon. After lunch she will visit an orphanage or a new slum clearance project, then be back in time to take 250 guests in for music. Don't be surprised if she flies to your town that night to deliver a lecture—not, however, without reserving time to go a bundle off to the new grandchild in Seattle.

No jesting, these Roosevelts are terrific. We can only recall repeatedly the comment of Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, reported in the book of Hugh Wilson, former ambassador to Germany:

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY. The keys to the poison cabinet were to be left with Duncan, testifies Mrs. Murchison. Duncan, wears a bombshell by refusing to give evidence because this case is bound up with something else—the murder of his brother.

Chapter 40
Suicide?
MICHAEL shut the garage door that evening, and turned to go into the house. He heard a shout from behind him, and turned. Gordon was in his own yard wrestling with his tent pole, which had evidently fallen down.

"Can you give me a hand, Mr. Forrester?" he asked. "I'm in a kind of a mix up."

Michael vaulted lightly over the hedge, and went up to the tent. Gordon crawled inside the collapsed canvas, and pushed up on the pole. Michael leaned over and pulled at the canvas, which seemed to be caught together somewhere down below.

There was quite an opening in the canvas at the top of the pole. Gordon's face was just beneath it. "It's Mike Devoe," he said in a low tone. "I think the old dame's gone crazy. She came home after the inquest's afternoon, and went out for a walk all by herself. She never does no walking, you could tell that to look at her. She went out along the path in the woods, and she acted like she didn't hardly know what she was doing."

"What do you mean?" Michael asked. "Oh, rubbing her hands together, and putting them over her face, and moaning every once in a while. I could hear her clear out in the brush where I was crawling along beside her. And after a while she just flopped down on her knees right there in the woods, and she had her hands over her face. And then she took them off and crossed herself. So I guess she was praying. She stayed there an awful long time. I got a cramp in my knee."

"And then?"
"She just got up and come home again. You know what I think?" Gordon's blue eyes shone fiercely through the aperture. "I think she knows he did it, and it's driving her crazy, 'cause she thinks they'll hang him."

"Gordon! I shall have to soak your head in a mixture of vinegar and goose grease if you, oh, good evening, Mr. Deane." "Good evening. Giving the boy a hand?"
"Yes, I think he's got it now, haven't you, Gordon?"
"Yep. Get off the canvas so's I can pull it up, will you?"
"Gordon!" his father said sternly. "There is no way to speak to Mr. Forrester."

There was no answer from beneath the canvas. Michael smiled. "It's not so easy to be polite when someone's stepping on your leg," he murmured. "I think that's what I was doing."

"Well, he's a very impolite child anyway. Very." Mr. Deane took off his glasses and polished them. The eyes beneath were small, with pupils the size of pin points. He peered at Michael, near-sightedly.

"This is a horrible state of affairs, Mr. Forrester," he said. "It seems to be," Michael moved away from the canvas with the upheaval taking place beneath it. Gordon crawled out and started tying down the ropes.

"What do you think of it?" Deane put on his glasses again and put his handkerchief away. Michael kicked at a tent peg. "To tell you the truth, I am completely bewildered."

Trembling Hands
DEANE frowned. "I heard today that you were out here for the express purpose of investigating Mr. Murchison's disappearance."

He said sharply. "I cannot understand why I was not informed of that. It is a great surprise, to put it mildly, to discover that one's neighbor and colleague has disappeared—that the police are working on the case—that in all probability he has been murdered, and that one is told nothing."

"There isn't very much to tell," Michael said apologetically. "I gather that. What progress, may I ask, have you made on the case?"

"Almost none," Michael replied sadly. He looked away over the tops of the trees. "It's all very confusing. Their family affairs seem to be in a terrible state. A stranger finds great difficulty in understanding them."

"You think this disappearance of Dr. Murchison has come about through these family differences?" Michael looked straight at him. "What else can I think? You heard the evidence this afternoon?"

"Yes," Mr. Deane cleared his throat nervously. "Yes, indeed, I feel sure that you are right. They are not a pleasant family. Dr. Murchison himself was a most objectionable person—most objectionable." He repeated again. "Anyone would have found it irritating to live with him. I wonder

Before America's entry into the World War the national debt stood well under 2 billions. Two years of war shot it up to more than 26 billions. In the next decade it sank to a little over 16 billions. But four years of depression drove the debt beyond the war level. Three years later it stood at 36 billion. Then on October 27, 1939, it passed the 41 billion mark. The treasury's borrowing limit is 45.

Green Phantoms Resume Practice; Meet Kinston Friday

FOES OUT FOR 7 TO O REVENGE

Heavier Line Expected to Aid Local Eleven, however

By BUDDY HARRINGTON
The Green Phantoms resumed practice yesterday after a four day rest period due to bad weather. They are practicing hard preparing for the invasion of Kinston's Red Devils Friday at Guy Smith field. The kick-off signal will be given at 2:15 o'clock.

Rumors are going around that the Devils are coming out of their den to avenge a 7-0 defeat handed them by the Phantoms last season. The score came in the closing minutes of the game when Tyndall went around end on a reverse. He was not touched by the opponents. Marvin Stocks kicked the extra tally.

Kinston took a 12-0 victory over Plymouth and Greenville took the Rocks on a 13-0 ride. This is a Eastern Carolina Conference game and three Kinston players will not see action because of ineligibility. Green has two injured players that will not be on hand. These facts go to prove that this should be a neck-and-neck battle.

The Phantoms have a heavier team than their foes and are determined to take advantage of this. In their rest period over the weekend, the Phantom boys have been recovering from minor injuries.

Kinston has some trouble makers on the Greenville list. Among these are Bill Taylor, veteran guard and captain of the Red Devils, Eborn Pittman, fullback for the opponents and Yancey Stallings, halfback, who has some flashy runs to his credit.

Phantom Center

Charles Williams is being counted on for a great game when the Green Phantoms are invaded by the Kinston high school team here Friday night. The Kinston eleven will be out to revenge a 7-0 loss handed them last year by Greenville.

hard to handle against the Blue Devils. The Wolfpack always plays its best ball in the Duke game.

And the 12-7 triumph over Furman last week—State's second win of the season—did much to boost the Wolfpack's stock. The Purple Hurricane was beaten mainly by a spirited sophomore outfit that scraps with the drop of a hat.

The set-up is just about perfect for another great contest between State and Duke—rivals since 1924. State is on the rise and has much to gain. The Blue Devils, it is conceivable, may be suffering from a let-down after their big spurge against Carolina's Tar Heels.

There have been a good many thrillers in this Duke-State series. The games from 1926 through 1929—all of them decided by close scores—were the talk of this section a decade ago. Last year's battle—won by the famous Iron Dukes, 7-0, was one of the more recent thrillers.

And you can count on another dog-eat-dog affair Saturday afternoon. Duke and State never disappoint!

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—You've met Frank Capra.

He's longfellow Deeds. He's Senator Smith. He's the footloose reporter in "It Happened One Night." He's Grandpa in "You Can't Take It With You." He's the grimly determined young man in "Lost Horizon," beating his way over Tabatan snows back to his Shangri-La.

As far as the record goes, he's a little Sicilian newsboy on the streets of Los Angeles who became one of Hollywood's greatest producer-directors. But he's all of those others, too. He told me so.

It happened this way. We were passing an idle hour in Capra's commodious suite high up in the Waldorf. We were mulling over the amazing string of Capra successes. Capra calls it luck.

"You have to have a theme," he says, "and you have to have people, real people. But after that it's just a prayer and luck."

Sure, Mr. Capra, just luck. Just an accident, I suppose, that for years nearly all of your successful heroes have had a great many things in common. They are nice clean-cut young fellows, generally with a

Not even the biggest boxoffice of the year (which is an odds-on possibility) will compensate Capra for the fact that "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington" got something of a kicking around in the nation's capital.

The little Sicilian patriotism is intense and he put all he had into "Mr. Smith."

By his own word, his purpose was that this is the greatest of all democracies and nothing—not even scandal in the senate—can dent it. That's all he had to say. And it seems to me he said it well. If there was yelling in Washington it must have been from some of the youngsters who have forgotten the Teapot Dome, the affair Bailey, or the Tragic Era that followed the Civil War.

It's surprising that any one in Washington would bother to get so wrought up about it. After all, Mr. Capra was born in Palermo. He can't ever be president.

Deacons Get Down to Work Following Long Rest

Wake Forest, Nov. 22—After resting most of last week and Monday of this week, the Deacons of Wake Forest got down to serious work Tuesday afternoon preparing for their encounter with Davidson's Wildcats in Charlotte, Thanksgiving (Nov. 30).

Coach Peabody Walker has said he does not intend to give his boys another easy moment before this final tilt of the year. He's doing this because the Deacons will be favored to take the Wildcats in tow, and there's no telling what may result in a Deac-Cat Turkey Day classic, especially so this year with the Davidson club possessing two fine passers in Granny Sharpe and Dave Spencer.

It's no secret that Wake Forest has been notably weak against most any semblance of a passing attack this year. Davidson has a fine aerial offense, there's no doubt about this. Against Duke, Sharpe and Spencer tossed heave after heave until it netted a touchdown. The Deacons are supposed to have a strong running game, but it could not score on Duke. North Carolina's aerial attack did not come close to scoring on Duke.

If the 'Cats can do that to the Blue Devils, what will they do to Wake Forest's glaring weakness?

Then, too, ever since the Wake Forest-Davidson series began back in 1908, there have been many occasions when one club or the other rose to great inspirational heights, even against seeming overwhelming odds. For instance, in 1937 the Deacons were conceded hardly any chance at all to upset the powerful Wildcats, quarterbacked by the flashy Tenny Lafferty.

But it's history now how the Deacons, playing over their heads, swept aside the Davidson defense and pounded out a 19-7 victory. Go back to the 1936 tilt when Wake Forest was led by the great passer, Walton Kitchen. Practically everyone thought the Deacons would make a route of that setto, but it was Davidson instead of Wake Forest who did the routing—Wake was beaten by two touchdowns.

Now with Davidson being placed in the underdog's role, there's no doubt but that the Wildcats will be keyed to the highest possible pitch. They will be out to win, and if they can hit their mark with a few of those bullet like passes, who knows what will happen.

VIRGINIA FOE NEXT FOR UNC

Ancient Foes to Renew Rivalry in Turkey Day Game

By TOM BOST, JR.
Chapel Hill, Nov. 22—Approach of the North Carolina-Virginia Turkey Day classic brings back vivid memories of two lean periods experienced by these two ancient foes who will renew the South's oldest and most colorful Thanksgiving rivalry here November 30.

The Tar Heels were the first to experience the long wait for victory although they weren't lacking support. From 1905 until 1916 thousands of Tar Heel supporters journeyed to Richmond, where all games were played during that stretch, only to see their favorites lose, often times by overwhelming scores. The 1912 Virginia victory of 66-0 is still high in the 47-year-old series.

The Virginia domination was finally broken in 1916 when an underdog Carolina eleven, led by Captain George "Yank" Tandy, a great center, upset the Cavaliers 7-0 on a wet, slippery field. The lone score of the game came in the third quarter when Halfback Bill Folger dashed 52 yards off his right tackle for the winning touchdown.

From 1917 through 1926 the Tar Heels and Cavaliers divided honors with each team winning three games and two ending in ties.

Beginning with a 14-13 victory in 1927, when Kenan stadium at Chapel Hill was formally dedicated, the Tar Heels have turned an about face in performance and have lost only once in 12 games. Virginia temporarily halted the victorious march in 1932 by upsetting a favored North Carolina eleven 14-7 at Charlottesville. The series now stands at six straight victories for the Blue and White.

Since Frank Murray, who piloted some of the nation's most colorful eleven at Marquette University, came to Virginia in 1936 the Cavaliers have shown marked improvement each year and the result has been a great revival of interest among Virginia supporters. Last fall 15,000 fans attended the game which was played in a snow storm and the advance sale of tickets was the largest for a Virginia-Carolina game at Charlottesville in 10 years.

The 1939 Virginia team is generally regarded the strongest and most versatile eleven in more than a decade. Beaten only three and two of these games by margins of three points or less. Navy 12-14 and V. M. I. 13-16, the Cavaliers are reportedly pointing determinedly for victory over Carolina next week.

Jim Gillette, triple-threat southpaw halfback; LeRoy Neustetter, a hard-hitting 190-pound sophomore fullback, and Mosby Cardoza and Bill Dudley, smart quarterbacks, head a fine delegation of backs who range at all over Chicago. William and Mary and Hampden-Sydney and came from behind to defeat Maryland 12-7.

STATE ALWAYS TOUGH ON DUKE

Wolfpack Gives Best Performance Against Devils

Durham, Nov. 22—State college's comebacking Wolfpack—driven by a brand new spark—will entertain the Blue Devils of Duke at Riddick stadium in Raleigh Saturday afternoon, and the high-riding Wolfmen had better be on their mettle! Not only is Coach Doc Newton's crew staging a grand comeback, State's record, although blotted by a six-game losing streak, proves that the Wolfpack has played its best football against the big boys of the current gridiron realm.

Against the imposing Volunteers of Tennessee, the Wolfpack played inspired ball to hold Major Neyland's legions to a two-touchdown victory. Against the Tar Heels of North Carolina, state battled brilliantly in the last half to halt the swift-moving Carolina attack and won praise even in defeat. And against powerful Duquesne, the Red and Gray lapsed only once to allow the Night Raiders to score—and lost nobly, 7-0.

All of which spells trouble for the Blue Devils, who right now are enjoying national attention because of their splendid triumph over North Carolina last week. If State was tough against Tennessee, Carolina, and Duquesne, it will be twice as

Red Cross Seeks More Members

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, its responsibilities increased by the European war, is driving to increase its present membership of 5,668,680. Red Cross activities, some of them shown here, are surprisingly varied. For example (right) the organization is the largest non-commercial translator of literature into Braille for the blind.

THERE ARE 44,479 nurses ready for emergency service in the Red Cross—a larger nursing reserve than it ever had before. Approximately 20,000 Red Cross nurses saw service in the World War. Nurses are busy even when there is no emergency. New York women (below) now are working on Christmas gifts for disabled veterans and their children.

VOLUNTEER drivers (above), working two days or more each week, supply transportation to all departments of the Red Cross, and also aid in transporting cripples to clinics for treatment. During the past year the Red Cross gave aid in 157 domestic disasters. This involved sending 356 nurses to scenes of trouble in 15 states.

GRAY LADIES (left) from the Red Cross distribute magazines, stationery, and good cheer to hospitalized men of the army and navy. The Red Cross War Service is an official adjunct of the regular military forces. The Red Cross last year helped 150,605 disabled veterans and 10,653 active service men in solving social-economic problems.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Buying was a matter of mixed sentiment in today's stock market and while a number of favorites held in the black, many leaders slipped backward.

Apathy was the order of the day from the quiet opening on. Toward the end most price changes were in fractions.

Evening-up operations in preparation for tomorrow's holiday were about all that took place except here and there where bargain hunters sought out some special share for a little upward pull.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, Nov. 22.—Former Governor J. C. B. Ehrman is receiving steady news from a source which accumulated in an automobile accident here, Saturday night.

A friend met J. C. B. Jr. on the street Tuesday and asked after the accident victim. The response was getting on fine.

"I. It came to me, I was crooked or permanently disabled," quired the friend.

"Well, you know he broke his neck while at college and never been straight since," the doctor says. The source said he isn't going to prosecute on the damage done by the last report, Junior.

Big doings are planned for the formal opening of the Institute of Government's own building, set to be held next week with Speaker William B. Beasley as the principal speaker and other dignitaries on the list for one hour or another.

The Institute, founded by Director Albert Coates, hasn't received as much publicity as some other far less deserving agencies in North Carolina, and this is one time the boys of the press really ought to help and "write up" the occasion in banner style.

The Institute is a pioneer in America's bewildering and varied methods of government. It holds conferences, classes and other offerings of public officials—county commissioners, law officers, city aldermen and the like. Laws old and new are discussed and analyzed and their political and practical conseterritory covered by the state, federal, county cooperative fire fighting system and do not include damage done by fires on purely federal areas or in non-cooperative counties.

McCormick emphasized the fact that the figures are not complete, but the best that can be compiled at the moment.

In a letter to Director R. Bruce Etheridge he said: "These are the best estimates possible at this time because many reports are not yet in. Because the boys were on most of the fires, you will find that these figures are not far wrong. I do want the general public to know, however, that these figures are not entirely accurate."

The fire fighting chief presented a vivid picture of the difficulties under which thousands of men fought these fires for more than ten days.

"These fires were in many instances uncontrollable. The boys would get them under control, apparently, and then lost their lines repeatedly. The fires of most of them occurred in some of the most remote sections of the mountains necessitating miles of foot travel to reach them. The smoke and haze were so bad that the visibility was very poor. The towers, for this reason, were almost useless at times and we had to resort to patrolmen and citizens to report these fires in many instances," he wrote.

At least half the blazes, McCormick estimated, were caused by hunters, though by hunters of the type which closing the season would do little to check.

"I wish to say that the situation is hard to cope with," he wrote. "These men up here hunt opossum, coons, etc., at night and usually go out in groups of from two to a dozen. They lay out all night building fires on rock ledges, drinking all the moonshine they can get hold of, and when the dogs jump they run off, leaving the fires and forgetting all about them. These are the fires that start and we have to put out. The real sportsmen are not like this, but the majority are."

McCormick reported that in addition to personnel of the district offices, there were employed in fighting the fires 18 county wardens, 18 patrolmen and 17 tower men. Six CCC camps were engaged under supervision of the North Carolina Forest Service. This is exclusive of the several United States Forest Service and United States National Park Service camps who helped; and several of them devoted their entire time for several days to fighting fires. It is estimated that approximately 1,000 WPA workers were engaged and about 2,700 fire fighters were employed by the State Forest Service during November in the 18 counties.

Details of the fire damage show as follows:

RAINS PUT OUT FOREST FIRES

Only After Worst Damage in N. C. History, However

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Nov. 22.—The forest fires in western North Carolina, happily drowned out by rain over the past week-end, composed the "worst period" we have ever experienced in the western district where not only timber was at stake, but watersheds, game and fish, according to a preliminary and tentative report rushed to Raleigh by W. C. McCormick, assistant state forester in charge of the Forest Fire Prevention Division of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Extinguishment of the fires gave him a chance to look the field over and arrive at a preliminary conclusion as to extent of the fires and the approximate damage done by them. He reported to the Department that there were at least 227 separate fires in 18 counties, which burned over a minimum of 25,000 acres and did not less than $95,000 damages in all.

These figures apply only to the quencies explained. Authorities in many fields are brought forth for the conferences.

As far as the press is concerned, the Institute's very finest service is its Legislative Bulletin during each session of the General Assembly. Every day it issues a bulletin giving the number and title of each bill introduced, with a comprehensive, though brief, analysis of every measure's provisions.

Without this bulletin the work of news men covering the legislature, especially those who do not cover "spot" and keep a running detailed story, would find their jobs about twice as hard.

That's why this correspondent feels that the scribblers should give the Institute as big a boost as possible.

The Raleigh office of North Carolina's State Employment Service called attention to requests for workers coming to it from points outside the state. Qualified workers can obtain employment in other states as advertising salesmen, sheet metal workers, aircraft, outside almen; glass cutters (machines); electrical engineers; general millwrights (construction); hard steel enginers; twister tenders; lead burners; foundry; and structural steel draftmen.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey and William B. Beasley would like very much to be the Hoey successor in office, as of the same church recently, the governor making a talk that was...

Afterward, a member of the congregation remarked it would be a fine thing if the governor would become their regular preacher.

"Well, maybe that could be arranged," said the governor. "It isn't going to be so long before I'll say to you, 'I'll be back, you know.'"

"You broke in Mr. Smith. I hope some influence with the bishop will tell you what I'll do. I'll see that I can do with him, if you'll just help me get the job you'll be leaving."

No deal was made. It is reported.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds
By Robbin Coon

Hollywood.—The first breath of what passes for autumn weather in this remote territory brings on again the town's annual attack of Academy Award blues and dithers.

The big banquet honoring the selections comes off in the spring, but the deadline for "candidates" is not far away. The academy awards "year" ranges from January 1 to December 31, and the films that have not been shown in this area during that period are out in the cold for the spring voting.

Another few weeks, during which the major contender yet unreleased but set this side of the deadline is "Gone With the Wind," will tell the tale.

This offering, regardless of its critical and popular reception, will surely weigh heavily in the final verdict: First, because it cost about $4,000,000, and there's no balloter in town who'll sneeze at that dough. Second, because it'll be freshest, with all its ballyho, in the memory of the voters—the workers in the film industry.

Awards for "bests" in a field of competition so varied and manifold as the movies are rather silly to begin with. To determine the "best performance" angle, for instance, it would be necessary to have the contenders each play the same role or a similar role. If Charles Daughton is so good, say, as "The Beachcomber," let's see what he'd do in James Stewart's spot as "Mr. Smith" and vice versa. Every actor, I mean, is limited by his type and role—although more frequently it happens that the role is limited by the actor.

For all that, there's a likely list of candidates for top honors in both actor and actress divisions.

The men sure to rate heavy consideration include Stewart, for "Mr. Smith"; Laurence Olivier for "Wuthering Heights"; Robert Donat for "Goodbye, Mr. Chips"; Spencer Tracy ("Stanley and Livingston"); it never to be overlooked, nor is James Cagney ("The Roaring Twenties" and "Each Dawn I Die"), nor is Henry Fonda (for "Young Mr. Lincoln"). Inevitably, Clark Gable will come up for "Gone"—and stand a good chance. And Muni is always with us.

The ladies of the town are easier to list, as fewer have had roles of a caliber to merit unusual attention. Including Vivien Leigh of "Gone" as a certain contender, the field otherwise belongs practically to Bette Davis, who has three notches in her Oscar-shooting rifle—"Dark Victory," "Juez," "The Old Maid." There is Anna Neagle (an 18-carat job in "Nurse Edith Cavell") and
