Russia Expelled From League For Invading Finland

COUNCIL VOTE IS UNANIMOUS

Four Members, Finland, Yugoslavia, China and Greece, However, Refrain from Casting Ballot; First Time in League History a Nation has Been Ousted from Membership

Geneva, Dec. 14.—(AP) The League of Nations by unanimous vote of its council today expelled Soviet Russia because of her invasion of Finland.

Four members of the council, including Finland, abstained from voting on the expulsion motion. The others were China, Yugoslavia and Greece.

The vote was on a resolution which declared that as a result of Russia's actions toward Finland "the U. S. S. R. no longer is a member of the League."

This was the first time in League history that a nation had been expelled.

Geneva, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The League of Nations Assembly, in record time today, condemned Russian aggression, asked members to aid Finland, and indicated Russia would be thrown out of the League before the 39 states present at the Assembly since abstained from voting on the resolution condemning Russia as an aggressor and asking members to aid Finland.

They were the three Scandinavian countries, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, three Baltic countries, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, Switzerland, China and Bulgaria.

A move to expel Russia from the League automatically goes to the League Council, where officials said it seemed sure of getting the required unanimous vote for adoption. Finland's delegate, Rudolf Holsti, walked to the tribune amid loud applause to express the Finnish people's "profound gratitude."

He said the amount of practical aid which Finland would get from the assembly's action depended upon the capacity of the League's coordinating staff and the cooperation of the civilized world with that staff.

Before the Assembly vote, Great Britain informed the League that she already "was taking steps to enable the Finnish government to obtain the material required for their defenses in England."

Additional Teachers Secured For College

The winter term at the college, which begins with registration on Tuesday, January 2, will see the addition of another new teacher to the E. C. T. C. faculty.

Miss Marguerite Z. Austin, Rock Hill, S. C. will come to the college as a teacher of French and Science.

Miss Austin did her undergraduate work at Emory, where she was French medalist, and at Winthrop. She has an advanced degree from Duke University.

She has been teaching French in Mullins, S. C.

The college will close tomorrow at noon for the Christmas holidays.

Resigns

N. O. Warren, president of the Greenville Fertilizer Company since its organization in 1931, has resigned his position with the company effective January 1, 1940. Mr. Warren gave up the active management of the business in 1936. However, since that time he has been retained as president in an advisory capacity. In an interview with him as to his future plans he stated that he is secretary-treasurer of The Land Investment Company and that he expects to devote his time to the management of the company's farms and the promotion of two developments owned by it. In addition thereto he stated that he expects to engage in a general real estate and investment business.

ROW DEVELOPS IN COMMITTEE

Member and Attorney Engage in Bitter Dispute

Washington, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Bristling verbal exchange between a member and the chief attorney of the House committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board broke out today when the latter outlined proposals for future committee action.

Rep. Murdock (D-Utah) disagreed with Edmund M. Toland, committee counsel, over Toland's statement of what he considered some decisions the committee must make.

Reviewing testimony about NLRB decisions on employee representation together with congressional debate on the subject, Toland said the committee must decide whether employers have the right "to contract away the rights of employees."

Murdock promptly expressed the hope that Toland would explain that his statement did not represent anything the committee had agreed upon or even that Murdock had known the statement was to be made.

Looking over his glasses at Murdock, Toland replied that everything he did was with "the knowledge of the committee and the consent of the committee."

Everything All Set For "Toy Matinee" Saturday

Everything was ready today for the annual toy matinee to be held at the Pitt theatre Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, admission to which will be a new toy or a good used one, or a can of fruit or vegetables.

Proceeds from the show will be turned over to the Greenville firemen who will reconduct the used toys and then deliver them to the Salvation Army for distribution to children who otherwise might not be visited Christmas by Santa Claus.

Boy Scouts also will play an active part in the movement, aiding in handling the crowd and otherwise making themselves useful at the matinee show.

The toy matinee is held each year with the theatre receiving the cooperation of the firemen, Salvation

REPORT FINNS PREPARED FOR COUNTER MOVE

Declared to Have Halted Red Invasion on Isthmus

RUSSIANS HELD TO STANDSTILL

Reports from Petsamo District, However, Say Finns Preparing to Withdraw South

Helsinki, Dec. 14.—(AP) Military sources reported the Finns were in position today to organize counterattacks after stopping the Russian invasion on the Karelian Isthmus.

A Finnish army communique reported last night the Red army had been brought to a standstill and that fighting on the Isthmus was localized.

On the eastern or middle front the Finns said the Russians continued fierce attacks, but that counterattacks cost the Russians "great losses." Five Russian tanks, five anti-tank guns, four field guns and many machine guns were reported captured.

A Russian communique from headquarters at the Leningrad military area said that an advance of between 65 and 66 miles into Finland had been made on the eastern front.

On the northern shore of Lake Ladoga the Russian communique reported an advance of about seven miles. The Finnish air force, it said, made successful bombing and machinegun raids on Russian mechanized forces and infantry "in different sectors of the war area."

Kirkenes, Norway.—(At The Finnish Frontier)—Russian troops advancing rapidly through the Petsamo district are approaching Salmijarvi near the Norwegian frontier and the Finns seem to be preparing to withdraw from that town to defense lines further south. Salmijarvi and four other towns in the region were ablaze today. The entire district was covered with black smoke.

Finns escaping from Salmijarvi to Norway said Salmijarvi no longer could be held.

It was uncertain whether the burning towns had been fired by retreating Finns or by Russian bombers.

High School Senior Victim Of Accident

Fayetteville, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Rebecca Kinlaw, 16-year-old high school senior of White Oak, died in a hospital here today of injuries she suffered in an automobile wreck as she was returning home from the annual junior-senior banquet last night.

Miss Kinlaw was the daughter of Charlie Kinlaw, a farmer. Also injured in the accident which occurred when the young people's automobile struck a bridge abutment, were Kenneth Council, Joan Davis, Ernest Owen and E. F. Owen, all of White Oak. Their injuries were not regarded as serious.

$10,000 Asked In Civil Action Here

A civil suit has been filed in Pitt Superior court here by Lyman Dail administrator of the estate of Annie Mae Dail asking $10,000 from the Quinn-Miller Company of Kingston.

Annie Mae Dail, seven, died of injuries allegedly received when struck by a truck owned by the defendant company while she was standing on the shoulder of a highway in Ayden on November 29.

A coroner's inquest resulted in a decision that the accident was unavoidable and that the girl ran into the highway.

The action filed here alleges that the truck was being operated in a negligent manner and at an excessive rate of speed.

Carter and Carter of Washington are representing the plaintiff.

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Cotton prices broke nearly $2.50 a bale today under a barrage of profit selling brought out by the market's spectacular rise on Tuesday and Wednesday.

'Dividends'

The folks of the community have been mighty good to him, said Judge Gordon W. Chambers of Augusta, Ga., and so he sent out about 1,600 personal checks to unemployed residents of the city. He called them "dividends to the people." Here's the Judge checking up on his bank balance.

NAZI SAILORS ARE RELEASED

Had Been Taken in Custody Off North Carolina Coast

Washington, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The coast guard released today seven German sailors who have been held aboard the 43-foot yawl Lakala at Wilmington, N. C. They were first detained about 10 days ago while federal authorities sought to determine whether they might violate any neutrality or other law.

The coast guard released the men on the advice of the United States district attorney for North Carolina.

Until the men explained that they bought the ship in an effort to get to their homes in Germany, their voyaging up and down the east coast threatened to cause a first class spy scare.

They were afraid, they said, to take passage on a regular passenger liner because they might be arrested by British searchers when they approached Europe. So they bought the small craft and planned to sail the Atlantic, either to make contact with a German ship or to sail all the way to their homeland.

25 Of 90 Opportunities Have Been Taken to Date

Twenty-five of the 1939 Christmas Opportunities have been taken, but there still remains 65 from which to choose from.

The Service League is acting as clearing house and any individual or organization interested in one or more cases is urged to call that organization, or either Mrs. W. L. Whedbee for complete details.

The list includes only needy families who are unable to provide sufficient clothing and food for themselves and each case has been checked by welfare officials or other responsible persons.

The Service League is anxious for any person or group of persons who are planning on providing for a family this Christmas, whether the case is listed or not, to advise the league in order to prevent any duplication.

The list follows: No. 1. Taken. No. 2. Family of 2 (w). Both old ages 67 and 74. No. 3. Family of 3 (c). 1 child 16, paralyzed father. No. 4. Family of 1 (c). Old colored woman 73. No. 5. Family of 8 (c). 7 children 6 boys 13, 11, 5, 3, 1; 1 girl 10. No. 6. Family of 1 (c). Bedridden old colored woman 77. No. 7. Family of 1 (w). Old woman 89. No. 8. Family of 3 (w). Mother and two children, 1 boy 9 and 1 girl 7. No. 9. Family of 1 (c). Old colored woman 72. No. 10. Family of 1 (c). Old colored woman 94. No. 11. Family of 2 (c). 2 old people. Britain Dealt Heavy Blow In Loss Of Destroyer In Collision Of Two Vessels

Details of How or Where Collision Occurred, with Indicated Loss of 120, Not Revealed; Only Three More Deadlier Blows, All Inflicted by Germans, Felt During War

London, Dec. 14.—(AP) The Admiralty reported today the British destroyer Duchess had collided with another warship and sunk with an indicated loss of 120 lives.

Only three blows—all dealt by Germany—have been more disastrous to the British navy since the outbreak of the war.

They were the sinking of the aircraft carrier Courageous, with a loss of 578 men; the battleship Royal Oak, with 786 men; and the armed merchantman Rawalpindi, with 265 men.

Details of where or how the collision occurred were not given, but it was disclosed that it happened yesterday.

The Admiralty said the destroyer, which was not immediately identified, was undamaged.

The Admiralty announced last night that the same British submarine it asserted refrained from torpedoing the German liner Bremen Tuesday, had sunk a German submarine and torpedoed a German cruiser.

The German high command communique today reported "an underwater explosion near one light cruiser. The damage was unimportant. The ship returned to a home harbor."

'BOGUS' BILL IS FOUND HERE

Discovered by Bank in Deposit of Local Cafe

Merchants and other business houses today were warned to be on the lookout for counterfeit $10 bills after one was detected by A. G. Wells, assistant cashier of the Dickinson avenue branch of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company this morning.

While checking the deposit of a local cafe, Mr. Wells immediately discovered the bogus bill merely by handling it. Examining it closer he found that the texture of the paper was not that from which bills are made and that the bill contained no silk threads.

The bogus bill, series of 1934, more the number A83878074A. It was the first counterfeit bill to be found here in several months, it was reported by bank officials.

Coward At Meeting For Tax Supervisors

J. H. Coward, Pitt county auditor, left for Chapel Hill this morning to attend a meeting of the Tax Supervisors' division of the Institute of Government, which group he heads as president.

The meeting was to begin at 2 o'clock this afternoon and continue through tomorrow morning. Mr. Coward is scheduled to take part on the program.

Tax supervisors from counties throughout the state will attend the meeting and will be welcomed by Albert Coates, director of the Institute.

Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell is scheduled to discuss fiscal policies and problems of state and local governments. Other prominent tax experts are scheduled to appear on the program.

Chamberlain Commends Victory By Sea Forces

Also Lauds League Condemnation of Soviet Union

London, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today that "the gallant action" of "three comparatively small British ships against a much more heavily armed adversary" probably would free the south Atlantic from depredations of the German raider Admiral Graf Spee.

Lauding League of Nations' action in condemning Russia for the invasion of Finland, Chamberlain told the House of Commons that "Germany alone among the nations even now is abetting by word and deed the Russian aggression."

"We must give what help and support we can to the latest victim of these destructive forces," the prime minister said, "but meanwhile it is only by concentrating on our task of resistance to German aggression and thus attacking the evil at its root that we can hope to save the nations of Europe from the fate which otherwise must overtake them."

In his final war review before Parliament's Christmas recess, Chamberlain declared that "the Finnish army has proved itself by far the better fighting force in anything but numbers."

Will Attempt To Evade Blockade, Reach Germany

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The 32,581-ton German liner Columbus slipped out of Vera Cruz in the darkness early today on what was an apparent attempt to run the Atlantic and reach the German port through the allied naval blockade.

Also at sea was the German Freighter Arauca, which cleared Vera Cruz harbor for New Orleans, La. The Columbus, a rich war prize if it falls into the hands of allied warships, obtained papers for a trans-Atlantic crossing.

The secrecy of her departure was because of the presence of British warships patrolling gulf and Caribbean waters.

There have been rumors here that a British destroyer would trail the Columbus and attempt to seize her as a war prize.

Nazi Vessels To Make Run

Interment for the duration of the European war seemed the only prospect for the battleship, which Germany in the days of naval limitation built to out-run or out-gun any other warship afloat. Her other choice would be a desperate gamble at escape after repairs.

Besides the 36 Germans killed, the casualties included 60 wounded in the crew, which normally totaled 926.

Otto Langmann, German minister to Uruguay, visited the vessel and renewed charges that crewmen were suffering from lung and eye injuries resulting from gas shells fired by the British.

Nazi Vessel Seeks Haven After Fight Of 14 Hours

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The German pocket battleship, Admiral Graf Spee, her steel rent by British guns and 36 of her crew dead, clung to her refuge today in this neutral port, while two of the three British cruisers which engaged her in a 14-hour running battle yesterday mounted guard out at sea.

The third cruiser, the crippled Exeter, which was knocked out of the fight after four hours of cannonading, limped into the Dio De La Plata to a position 12 miles off Montevideo.

As British legation officials sailed out to board her reports were current there were many dead and wounded aboard the cruiser, but nothing official had been issued on casualties either among the crews of the Exeter or of her fellow fighters, the Achilles and the Ajax, all of which were damaged.

Interment for the duration of the European war seemed the only prospect for the battleship, which Germany in the days of naval limitation built to out-run or out-gun any other warship afloat. Her other choice would be a desperate gamble at escape after repairs.

Chatham Book Club Meets.
The December meeting of the Chatham Book Club was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams on East Fifth street. In the decorations, in the refreshments, in the favors, and in the program, the Christmas motif was stressed. All regular business was dispensed with, but the club members decided to accept one of the opportunities presented by The Reflector.

Mr. Dean Tabor, head of the Department of Music Education at the college, was responsible for the program of Christmas music—a program which the group heard with very evident pleasure and appreciation. Mr. Tabor sang "Nazareth" and Miss Melvin "Cantique de Noel." The quarter composed of Mr. Tabor, Miss Melvin, Miss Tew and Mr. Kerr, with Miss Royal as accompanist, sang "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas," "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful," and other beloved melodies that belong to the season.

In the dining room, Mrs. J. C. Lanier and Mrs. F. A. Bendall, seated at opposite ends of an effectively appointed table, served a delicious ice course. They were assisted by Mrs. E. L. Henderson.

Mrs. Dean Tabor was a guest of the club.—Reported.

SEASONABLE SAVINGS Something Short and Snappy

Great throngs of shoppers are out.

A house was moved along Fifth street today.

Some of the young men from town went down to the ball at Grimesland Wednesday night.

A man who was admiring one of our handsome stores and noting the enterprise of the proprietors, remarked, "Greenville is bound to be a city yet, nothing can hold it back."

The happiest persons on earth are those who have forgotten how to fret.

Mrs. Thomas McGee left Wednesday evening for Goldsboro.

End of the Century Club Meets.
The End of the Century Book Club held its annual Christmas meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. M. Garrett, with Mrs. Richard Williams and Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Jr., assisting hostesses.

The cheery glow of the lighted Christmas trees at the entrance of Mrs. Garrett's beautiful home gave promise of the warm welcome within. As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Stokes, Mrs. Williams and her house guest, Mrs. Lulu Reedick, and invited into the living room. Here indeed was the Christmas season made real to us with the holiday decorations so beautifully carried out amid the soft glow of many candles. Tables were set for forty-four guests, each table bearing a lighted taper, the ladies' places marked with colorful nosegays and the gentlemen's marked with gay boutonnières.

After a bountiful dinner served in true Christmas style, an expectant hush fell as the lights were dimmed and in the distance could be heard sounds of sweet music. Eight beautiful young girls dressed in choral robes, each carrying a lighted candle, made a most impressive scene as they marched slowly in around the tables singing Christmas carols, forming a tableau effect at one end of the room. After several selections by the choristers, Mrs. Picklesimer read a charming Christmas story, "Why the Bell" rang," and then the choristers sang another group of Christmas songs, closing the program with the ever beautiful "Holy Night, Silent Night."

The eight young ladies who so ably furnished the music for the occasion were Misses Virginia Rouse, Ella Frances Evans, Ruth Crumpler, Clara Crumpler, Margaret Mills, Laura Hearne, Rebecca Moye and Rosalin Brown, accompanied by Mrs. Charles White. After so impressive a program every guest felt with deep appreciation what the true spirit of Christmas can mean to all of us and it was with reluctance that goodbyes were said.—Reported.

Are you still walking around in a daze...? ...wondering what to give her?

Stop worrying! You can put aside all fears that it's not the right thing and all that, because right under your very nose is the thing you've been looking for! Yes! Right at your favorite store—Blount-Harvey's!

First, type her!

Is she the glamorous type? Does she simply floor you with exoticness? Does she lift heavy-lidded eyes and say dreamily—"Antoinette must have been terribly bored in prison..." She does?—Well! We've got her gift right here—make it one of these—costume jewelry, lingerie or perfume—

Or—is she that perfectly independent individual who believes woman's place is where she wants it! Looks awfully fetching in outdoorsy things and says, rather suddenly—"I don't think Dewey has a chance against F. D. R.!" And—for these women, there's only one thing to do—suit them! You can be safe with any of these: An oil-silk umbrella, sweater, or cosmetics that are awfully good and don't take much forethought in applying—

Perhaps—she's that "Polly-sit-by-the-Fire" type! Does she say pertly, "Let's do stay home tonight and pop some corn!" Or "There's some awfully good reading in the house and we can eat some apples, too!" Ah—she warms my heart! You're a bell ringer if you give her one of these—a walnut magazine rack, book-ends, or a lamp—

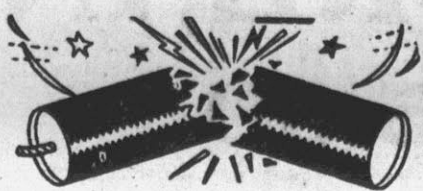

Or—is she this type? Does she walk up to you and coyly say, "Bill, you know, I've still got the first corsage you ever gave me—" Well, she's due a special gift—hosiery, evening hankies, compact, or her special brand of bath salts—come and get 'em!

Training School P. T. A. Meets.

The Training School P. T. A. met in its regular meeting December 13 at the Training school.

The program opened with a group of Christmas songs by the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades, directed by Miss Elson, after which "A Christmas Message" was read by the president.

Mrs. Harvey Clayton, the president, presided during the business session. Reports were given by different committees: Mrs. Ryan, chairman of the Welfare committee, reported on the eye clinic; Mrs. Cleith Oakley, membership chairman, reported an increase of twelve in membership over last year. The members decided to give lunches to several children again this year.

Miss Cobb gave a most interesting talk on Holgate Toys.

Following the business session,

"The Sad Shepherd," a Christmas story by Van Dyke.

Much merriment was caused by the distribution of gifts to each member from a beautifully lighted and decorated Christmas tree, every member of the club being present for this meeting.

Plans were made to provide Christmas cheer for a needy family.

A delicious buffet supper was served by Mrs. Jack Spain and Mrs. H. L. Rivers from a beautifully appointed table. Each member found her place by means of attractive place cards at small tables placed in the living rooms.

The home throughout was artistically decorated with red berries, lighted candles and Christmas greens.—Reported.

W. T. Grant Workers Will Receive Bonus

During the week before Christmas the W. T. Grant Company, which operates 497 popular priced department stores throughout the country, will share with its employees part of its profits for the year 1939.

The total amount of bonus will be considerably larger than in 1938. John E. Foster, personnel director, states that a total of approximately 14,000 full-time and part-time regular employees will participate in the bonus. Length of service will govern amounts received by individuals.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Dec. 14.—Anytime a political campaign gets started, there spring up a crop of odds and ends of gossip—some amusing, some incredible and some which eventually turn out to be important. The budding primary of 1940 is no exception and already plenty of items are being heard around here.

In the trivial class is the suggestion that Walter Murphy, candidate for Thad Eure's job as secretary of State, be made the "groom" in the "Dream of a Clown" fantasy to be shown here and in which Thad will be the "bride."

Among the comments heard on an announcement statement of J. Melville Broughton, Raleigh attorney, were the following from a Raleigh figure who would kill on sight if his name were quoted:
"Well, Mr. Broughton wasn't quite as specific on the subject of the

One Is Beloved

BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

YESTERDAY: Sue is deeply shocked when Bob breaks the news to her that Allen has married one of the secretaries in his firm without telling her.

Chapter Nine
Patsy

BOB put his hands on her shoulders and gripped them close. "If you let Allen down now, you'll never forgive yourself. Think how good he's been to you all these years! Think how he must dread this first meeting between you and his wife—far more than you are dreading it, sweet, believe me! Anyway, it's got to be gone through whether you like it or not. It's up to you to make it a flop or—something old Allen has a right to expect when he brings his bride home."

She, as still for a long moment, her small shoulders lax and drooping in his grasp. Then she freed herself, said with quiet dignity: "Thank you, Bob! I'll behave now."

A quarter of an hour later she left her bedroom at the sound of the opening door. She had changed to a trailing frock of dull red silk whose brief puffed sleeves and round neck exposed her white arms and throat. Bright color burned in her cheeks, and her eyes were very dark and starr.

"Sue, this is my wife!" Allen said quietly. If there was something like genuine panic in his thoughts his manner did not betray it. Bob mentally applauded both the young Davenports. It took real breeding to face a situation like this with such poise.

"My dear!" Sue's hands were held out in welcome to the newcomer, Sue's kiss was given to both bride and groom with nothing but laughing protest at the surprise of it all. "A sister for a Christmas present, Allen dear! And such a pretty sister, too! And such a pretty sister, too! And such a pretty sister, too!"

She was panting a little, the slenderly rounded breast rising and falling in an effort to keep herself in hand. Patsy saw nothing, Allen saw nothing, only Bob, momentarily forgotten, realized what iron control she was exerting; he realized and felt his heart almost bursting with admiration for the gallant young creature.

Allen, relieved of his acute apprehensions, relaxed, grew visibly fatuous and pleased with himself and his unannounced marriage. "I told you so, Patsy! I knew all along it was the best way to do it! Action first and explanations afterward! Cavalry tactics, eh, Trenton?"

Bob muttered pleasantly if incoherently Patsy's long gray eyes were roaming swiftly about the firelit room. "How about having some light in here?" she inquired. "I can hardly see my hand before my face."

Bob obligingly pressed a button and several lamps bloomed forth. In the sudden illumination Sue got her first real look at her brother's wife. Patsy wore a long fur coat with a matching cap which was perched jauntily on masses of ash-blond hair. Her makeup was a trifle heavy, her silk gown a bit too elaborate, but she was undeniably attractive in an odd exotic sort of way. She was as tall as Allen, far too thin, and the scent of a cluster of gardenias pinned to her coat warred with the expensive French perfume she wore.

All this Sue took in with a sinking heart. This Allen's wife! Allen who should have the best, the finest, the most genuine. But it couldn't be helped now—it couldn't be helped now, her quick thoughts ran. As Bob had reminded her, such a lot depended on what was said and done this first evening. She exerted herself to throw additional warmth into her voice.

doesn't bring his wife home every day!" "I don't mind," she answered dully. Presently she was beside Bob in the car. "Drive about a bit and get your bearings?" She assented, almost wordlessly. She did not even realize when the man stopped his car and went into a drugstore, "for cigarettes, Sue!" that there had been no telephone call from Barbara; that Bob was in here talking to her now, explaining, preparing her for Sue's coming. She was wrapped in a dream of misery and loneliness from which she could not awaken.

The day before Christmas she returned to her brother's house. Allen had insisted that she be there for the holidays. "It's your home just as much as it ever was, Sis," he told her kindly. "Patsy feels about it as I do, bless her! Lucky the rooms are so big. We've put twin beds in the front room, and moved you in back. You don't mind, do you?" "No, she didn't mind, of course. She didn't mind anything; not Patsy's absurd assumption of haughty superiority, not Allen's inflated eyes which saw only Patsy, his ears which heard only her somewhat thin and nasal voice; not Maggie's growing irritability at the "bossiness" of her new mistress; not the continual disorder of the lovely big living-room, the rock of strong perfume from the bedroom of the newly-weds. These were all minor hurts which were swallowed up in the major pain which tore her heart. Allen, her brother, her hero, had deceived her! He had been in love with this Patsy person for more than a year.

Worse than that, he had not had the courage to tell his sister himself, but had delegated the duty to one who was not even an old friend.

No Merry Plans
SOMEHOW she lived through Christmas Day, the week that followed. All her merry plans were forgotten, pushed aside by Patsy's own. Patsy had sisters, it appeared; three of them, rather common looking girls, younger than herself and without her striking good looks. They took possession of the apartment with glad cries of appreciation. They teased Allen, laughed at him, borrowed small sums of money from him when Patsy happened to be out.

They came to dinner so frequently that Maggie announced she must have a second girl or she'd "quit." Sue let herself in quietly one afternoon, to find Marie, the youngest, trying on Sue's own prettiest evening gown. "Fit like it was made for me!" she said, unabashed by the owner's arrival. "You're going to let me borrow it for tomorrow night aren't you, Sue?"

"I am not," was the decisive reply. "You've ruined the chiffon you wore last week, my dear, and I told you then never again. Take it off, and be careful how you handle it. Marie, won't you? It's my very most expensive frock for the winter."

"If only Patsy were not so tall, sighed Marie. "Patsy's thanking her lucky stars she is," was that person's comment. "Not that I'd let you wear anything of mine, any more than Sue will. Marie, a good grade of corduroy is what you need in evening wear." She yawned, and stretched her arm, gave her head "Clear out now, girls, I want to talk to Sue."

"Listen," she began when they had gone. "You and I have got to talk, Sue." The younger girl's eyes widened. "What about?" "This!" She indicated the room they were in. "We need a gown for the occasion. I'd like my sisters to spend the night occasionally. Allen ought to be able to entertain an out-of-town friend if he wants to." Her long eyes narrowed speculatively as they saw Sue flush. "Now don't go off at half cock," she warned. "I'm not trying to get rid of you. What I want you to do—her voice took on a coaxing note—"is to persuade Allen to move; to take a house instead of this apartment. He told me weeks ago that most of the furniture of your old home is eating its head off in storage. Isn't it simply good sense to use it? There's a living stucco on Ashland—I got the key and went through it yesterday. It would be better to buy it, of course, but Allen won't hesitate. But we could take a long lease."

Sue held on to the arms of her chair. She had a feeling that the very walls of the room were whirling about her. "What—what does Allen say?" Patsy's shoulders lifted in a shrug. "Oh, you know what he always says! That he can't possibly afford it, that the whole company is shaving estimates to the bone to meet competition." "That's true, isn't it?" "Of course it's true! I ought to know, as M. Featherstone's private secretary. But Allen carries heavy insurance. He could borrow on that. And there's your money."

"Mine?" "Mine?" "Continued tomorrow"

"The door is still wide open," he said. "There just haven't been any commitments made yet."

Raleigh, Dec. 13.—This column today is about a group of school boys—youngsters who are as enthusiastic over football and boxing and their books and the affairs of the world as any other group of its kind anywhere. But there are differences. To begin with they are all volunteer students. They don't have to go to school unless they want to. The state compulsory school attendance law doesn't affect them; though other and more severe laws of the state have already been applied to them somewhat harshly—because the group under consideration is composed of inmates of the State Prison Camp near Cary.

Nearly a score were in other elementary classes between the first and third grades. Another dozen are being taught fourth and fifth grade subjects. The rest range from there up in educational qualifications—most of them sixth and seventh graders. A couple of lads were working hard and in close cooperation copying a business letter on a somewhat antiquated, but quite usable typewriter. They were going at it right—learning touch system rather than "hunt and peck."

Everybody was busy. Everybody was obviously serious in his intention to learn something. There's no doubt about it—the prison system is doing something for them. It may be that the law has already done something to them; but Mr. Sox and his associates are earnestly trying to fit these young prisoners for a better place in society when they come out.

Your correspondence attended the school Monday night, as a guest of J. Loy Sox, director of education for the North Carolina prison division; and what he saw was at the same time a disagreeable shock and a pleasant surprise. The shock came from seeing so many promising lads who have at so early a stage fallen into the toils of the law for offenses serious enough to draw heavy sentences. The surprise from finding that the boys are so uncommonly anxious to learn; are as bright and cheerful as any scholastic group anywhere—in short, from the fact that they are so like all youth everywhere that the prison bars are forgotten while talking to them.

Cary camp has 161 inmates in all, with 68 enrolled in the school's four classes; a percentage of 42 which is extremely high when it is recalled they are all volunteers.

There are ten who are being taught the rudiments of reading and writing. Before they get out they'll be far better equipped to go straight and something worthwhile than they have ever been before.

Teachers are furnished by the WPA—and if this be "hoondogging," then this correspondent is definitely in favor of hoondogging and all its works. The teachers at the Cary camp are Mesdames Mary Kilpatrick, Dena Goodwin, Burt L. Hall and Annie Ragland.

But when the classes are over and the boys begin to talk sports, there are the same arguments; the same heroes; the same loyalties as in any other unit. For instance, Central Prison's football team is going to play Caledonia Farm on New Year's Day and the Cary boys are just as excited and thrilled as are Tennessee's students over the Rose Bowl trip of the Vols.

There will be, no alumni cheering section, however.

Cooky-making name cards for Christmas dinner will be lots of fun. Let the youngsters prepare them. Cut cooky dough into rectangles, bake them and when they're cool, spread frosting over them lightly and write the names with tiny candies.

Ayden Women to Present Dr. Koch on December 22

Dr. Frederick H. Koch's reading of "A Christmas Carol" in Ayden High School auditorium on December 22 at 8 p. m. will be vastly more than the mere recitation of a well-loved story.

The appearance is being sponsored by the Junior and Senior Women's clubs of Ayden.

Justly famous for his monologue performances, Dr. Koch brings Dickens' ageless story to full-bodied life as he explores the full range of character from Scrooge to Tiny Tim. His reading is a one-man drama, and it achieves as much variety as a corps of accomplished actors could give.

Dr. Koch, who is founder and director of the Carolina Playmakers at the University of North Carolina, has been interested in developing the art of monologue drama since his undergraduate days at Ohio Wesleyan University. He adopted and popularized the form long before the appearance of such distinguished monologists as Cornelia Otis Skinner and Ruth Draper.

As a sophomore at the little Methodist college he attended in Ohio, Dr. Koch began giving one-man productions of Shakespearean comedies in the schools and churches of nearby towns. Performing on a percentage basis he earned enough money the initial year to buy his first dress suit. That, as little as it was, represented an achievement to the young actor, and it spurred him to further study and practice in an art he was making for himself.

He paid his expenses for graduate work at Harvard by giving performances of "Hamlet," "She Stoops to Conquer," "Don Caesar de Bezan" and other favorite plays of the day. In the summers he wandered up and down the coast of New England from Boston to Bar Harbor, acting his one-man shows for hotel audiences. His only assistant was a bellboy at each stopping place who passed the hat for contributions.

Later Dr. Koch took up the monodramatic type of performance professionally and played in leading Lyceum and Town Hall forums throughout the New England states, going as far north as St. John and Halifax in Canada. He also toured the principal Hudson river cities of New York state.

It was quite natural that when the young actor turned teacher of the drama and theatre arts he should carry on his monologue performances as a hobby. He found it a valuable adjunct in teaching at the University of North Dakota, where he joined the faculty in 1905.

It was at Dakota where the idea of performing "A Christmas Carol" was suggested to him. And a happy idea it was. As an annual event at the University it drew an ever-increasing audience, and in the lonely little prairie towns he penetrated to give the reading it was like a vision from afar. The custom of giving the performance annually was instituted at the University of North Carolina when Dr. Koch went there from Dakota. And all of Chapel Hill knows it impossible to find a seat in Memorial Hall when Dr. Koch appears on the stage each December to rekindle the spirit of "A Christmas Carol."

His reading has become an annual event not only at the University of North Carolina but in many Southern towns and cities. In some of the cities he plays it is necessary to turn away hundreds of people.

E. F. Arnold Reports On National Farm Bureau Meet

Some tax may have to be imposed to support the farm program because of the huge demands of defense, delegates to the American Farm Bureau Federation were told by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at the recent Chicago convention of the bureau which was also the bureau's 20th birthday. It was learned today in an interview with E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, who attended the convention.

Mr. Arnold told of the brave, forthright, forceful, honest, clear presentation of the fee-cured tobacco's plight and claims by J. E. Winslow which resulted in a favorable decision of action by the National Bureau. This means, according to Mr. Arnold, that the resolutions adopted by the Pitt County Farm Bureau Federation to strive to have the 1940 Congress provide for fee-cured tobacco's unhappy plight in face of the war in Europe, will have the backing of the National Farm Bureau in the coming session of Congress.

A huge banquet as a birthday party for the 20th anniversary of the National Farm Bureau Federation was held. Each state had a table. At the North Carolina table Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Winslow were hostess and host for the occasion of the cutting of the birthday cake. There were over 8,000 people in attendance at the convention, representing 40 state organizations.

The voting delegation from North Carolina were J. E. Winslow of Greenville and R. C. Holland of Edenton. This was one more voting delegate than at last year's convention because North Carolina's membership has increased by over 2,500 in the past year. Each county organization had a non-voting delegate and Hayward Dail represented

FOREST TREES ARE IN DEMAND

State Nurseries Are Receiving Rush Orders Now

- Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Dec. 13.—The demand for forest trees from the State Forest Nurseries is larger this year than ever before and orders have already been received for at least 1,500,000 seedlings, according to Assistant State Forester F. H. Claridge, in charge of the nurseries and forest management for the Department of Conservation and Development.
- Although digging of seedlings was started at the state nursery near Clayton, in Johnston county, only ten days ago, at least 250,000 have already been shipped, Claridge said.
- An order for 52,000 shortleaf pine seedlings, to be planted in Mecklenburg and Cleveland counties, has just been received from the Duke Power Company, Claridge said. The North Carolina Pulp Company at Plymouth has placed an order for 116,000 pine seedlings while the Regal Paper company has ordered 1,000,000 forest trees from the nursery and will plant several thousand more from its own nursery on holdings that need replanting. This company owns approximately 140,000 acres of timber lands in Brunswick and Columbus counties. Several hundred thousand forest trees have also been ordered by farmers through the State College Extension Division.
- "Farmers and landowners seem to be more interested in planting forest seedlings this year than ever before," Claridge said. "As a result indications are that our supply of approximately 4,000,000 trees will not be enough to supply the demand this year. So those who have not yet ordered trees should do so at once if they want any this season."

Vote Your Choice For Outstanding Football Players

FANS TO NAME BEST PLAYERS

Contest Conducted For Both College And High School

Local citizens were treated to some fine football during the past season and now here is their chance to honor the player who in their opinion made the most outstanding record during the 1939 season.

Beautiful trophies have been purchased by the Tadlock Mutual Insurance Agency and one will be presented to the college player receiving the most votes and another to the high school player receiving the largest number of votes.

A coupon appears on this page so all you have to do to cast a vote for your choice, both on the college and high school team is fill it out, bring it or mail it to the Reflector office or to Tadlock Mutual Insurance Agency's offices on Evans street.

The sponsors of the movement are anxious to have a large number of football fans register their votes so that the winners will represent the choice of a large portion of fans.

Coupons also are printed in the high school and college papers, but it is the aim of the sponsors to have fans other than students participate in the voting.

Similar contests were conducted last year, with the Tadlock agency providing the trophies, and much interest was aroused. The plan was started later this year and fans are urged to get their votes in as early as possible.

Act now! Vote for the player on each team you think had the most outstanding record during the season.

Colored Boys, Girls Given Holiday Party

The white Girl Scouts of Greenville entertained forty underprivileged colored girls and boys at the Rotary club on Wednesday from 4:30 to 6 p. m. This Christmas party and tree was arranged for children ranging in age from two to five years. Each scout girl took charge of a child and saw to it that the child had a nice time throughout the evening. The children were shown an interesting puppet show, were served refreshments, and played games. Afterward each child received a package containing serviceable gifts and Christmas confectioneries from the tree. All of the children spent a most delightful afternoon. The afternoon being rainy, John Warner transported the children to and from the party. The colored people of Greenville and especially the mothers of these children, feel more grateful to these girls and their leaders than they are able to express for having remembered the poor children during the holiday season. They are wishing for the Girl Scouts a Merry Christmas and much happiness in the years to come.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE OF LAND

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain deed of trust executed by Elsie Rouse and husband, P. G. Rouse, to R. B. Lee, Trustee, on the 16th day of November, 1938, and of record in Book O-22 at page 344 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, default having been made in the payment of the debt therein secured and the trust being in default, having called upon said trustee to foreclose the trust, the undersigned trustee will on Monday, the 14th day of January, 1940, at 12 o'clock M. before the courthouse door in Greenville, N. C. offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash the following described real property to wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being situate in Swift Creek Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, beginning in the north-east intersection of the New Branch and Crossville Road at Harrison, N. C. and running with said New Branch Road with said thence S. 19° E. 4 poles and 3 links thence S. 62° E. 3 poles and 21 links thence S. 19° W. 51 poles to said road, thence again with said road S. 65° E. 70 poles thence N. 94° E. 134 poles thence N. 78° W. 75 poles thence S. 19° W. 23 poles thence S. 81° W. 7 poles to the Greenville Road, thence with said road S. 19° W. 81 poles to the beginning and containing 48 1/2 acres more or less. The above boundaries include the A. C. I. Railroad right of way, but said right of way 130 feet wide is hereby excepted. There is also excepted a parcel of land containing two-thirds of an acre conveyed by the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company to O. W. Munford, said tract of land above described after deducting the excepted land, containing 45 1-3 acres, more or less.

The above described land will be sold subject to a prior long term loan deed of trust thereon executed by Ida Mae Lewis, et al to Edward F. Rhodes, trustee for the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of record in book M-20, at page 522, the unpaid balance of which will be announced at the sale.

This the 14th day of December, 1939.

CONNIE MACK VISIONS ANOTHER FLAG AS HE STARTS HIS 56th BASEBALL YEAR

CONNIE MACK: "I'm trying for a winner" By DILLON GRAHAM Sports-Editor, AP Feature Service Philadelphia. — Baseball's grand-pappy just won't give up hope. At the ripe old age of 77 he has more spirit than the greenest young be a world's championship club. As his birthday approaches—he'll be 77 on December 23rd—Connie Mack sits in his office high up in Shibe Park's tower and lays his plans for another baseball season. "I'm trying for a winner; one that will be up there fighting for the lead. I do not know how successful we will be. But I have hopes," he says.

Was Stiff Battle

Just a few months ago baseball folk thought that Connie would never take the bench again, that perhaps he wouldn't live to celebrate another birthday. Critically ill for long weeks, Cornelius McGillicuddy lay in the sick room while his son Earl managed Connie's beloved Athletics.

Now Mack has recovered. He looks better than he has in several years. "I feel fine, never felt better," he tells friends.

"I have learned a lot about how to live, and I am observing those things I have learned. I am not on any diet, but I do eat the plainest of foods and sidestep fats and gravies, of which I am fond."

Mack expects to go South with his ball club for spring training in a few months. And he'll be on the bench again in the summer, waiting his scorecard to signal strategy moves to his players.

55-Year Veteran

Connie has been in baseball for 55 years.

He was a player back in the long ago days when the catcher took the batter's pitch on the first bounce back of the plate. He was a good catcher, too. That was in 1884.

Then he became a manager. In 1901 he took charge of the A's and has piloted them ever since. He has had some great teams, world champions in 1910-11-13-29-30.

Connie was the manager who broke up two great aggregations, his 1914 club and later his 1929-31 outfit. And it was Connie who put together baseball's famous $10,000 infield—McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker. Then there were Chief Bender and Eddie Plank and Rube Waddell. And Nap Lajoie and Jack Combs. And more recently Jimmy Fox, Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw, Mickey Cochrane, Jimmy Daves and Al Simmons. Mack just brought Slimmons back to the A's for next season.

Connie has seen many innovations in baseball down the long stretch of years. And he's in favor of one of the latest—night games.

"I am glad we started night ball

It has been a success and all clubs will eventually turn to it. The Yankees, too."

Mack insists he has no intention of retiring.

"I am going to stay in the game until I find that I am slipping. Then my son, Earl, will succeed me. I feel fine and I'm going to be going for some time yet."

Santa and the TALKING DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

Leezen hid behind a pillar to watch.

THE STORY SO FAR: Santa has taken a gift to the King of Westphalia, a doll made by the fairies so she can talk after midnight. Eric, the son of Lightning, who wanted the doll, has been put to sleep for a day and a night by the fairies.

Chapter Nine The Glass Man

For an hour that night Leezen sat silently watching the King of Westphalia. He stared motionless into the leaping fire. It was so silent in the great hall that Leezen could hear the soft swish of snow against the windows. She reached for a little gold box on the table and opened it. There lay a flashing sapphire.

She held it up to the fire, and turned it in the light so that pink lights darted from it. "Oh, I wish Eric could see this," she thought. Then the stone felt queer in her fingers. She looked sharply, and as she did, it turned into a little man, only two inches high. He seemed to be made of blue-white glass. He bowed.

"Why, who are you?" whispered Leezen. "I'm just a thought some one is thinking of you," said the little man. "Usually I lie asleep in that sapphire. But when anyone picks me up I can reflect the thought of a friend."

"I see," said Leezen. "But who is thinking of me?" "Look," said the little man. He pulled out a tiny flute, no bigger than a pin, and began to play. "Leezen, Leezen."

"It's Eric," said Leezen with shining eyes. "A Sad Tune The little glass man played on but he played so softly only Leezen heard. She whispered, 'How is Eric?' Then the little man played a very sad tune. 'Oh, dear,' sighed Leezen. 'I must escape from here and find him.'"

She put the little man back into the gold box and as she closed the lid over him he disappeared and only the round sapphire lay there. Then she rose from her chair so cautiously the King didn't notice her. She backed away from him and into the far shadows of the great hall where she found a wide staircase lit by candles. So she tripped silently down them and came out on a court yard where there stood two guardsmen dressed in armor with crimson plumes waving from their helmets. They leaned on their spears. Along the top of the court yard wall great flares of light burned. An iron gate opened onto the road.

Leezen hid behind a pillar to watch because she wanted to take one of the horses tied near the gate. Then she saw the guardsmen walk over to stand under one of the flares. They bent to look at the hilt of a fine sword.

Quick as a breeze Leezen slipped across the court yard. In a twinkling she was on a big white horse and he was galloping out of the court yard, onto the drawbridge, and down the road.

"Faster, Faster!" She leaned over to whisper to the horse. "Quick to Toyland before dawn for then I become like a stone." The horse pricked up his ears and sped. The strong white horse ran and ran until his eyes were red. But it was many, many miles to Toyland, and the woods grew deeper and more lonesome.

After the two had ridden through tall pine trees for three or four hours Leezen saw two bright spots by the side of the road. It was the glowing eyes of a young wolf that had just awaked and was stretching himself. Then she saw an old crow on the branch of a pine tree take his head out from under his wing and yawn. He cackled after them. "Who are you, who are you?"

"Oh, dear," sighed Leezen. "It's near dawn." She leaned over the horse and whispered, "Faster, faster." He pulled his muscles tauter. His steps became great leaps. But try as he would he was still galloping through the woods when the sun sent out its first streak of pink.

"Wait," shouted Leezen. The horse pulled up short. She slipped to the ground and ran into the woods. At the foot of a great tree she stopped. She was only a lifeless doll that couldn't see nor hear nor talk. The horse whinnied with fright and galloped off. Leezen was alone and lost.

We will ask her father for a hundred pounds of gold.

Chapter 10 THREE TROLLS

There was not a friendly fairy or bird or fox in all that big forest to help Leezen, the doll, where she stood. And she, poor doll, couldn't help herself because she could neither talk nor move until the midnight hour struck again. She stood quite alone until just before dusk when there were shouts and rumbling through the trees. If only Leezen could have heard them she might have hidden. But she stood silent, and there she was found by three very old trolls who were going home. They had been out all day looking for pieces of gold. They had looked for gold so long that they walked hunched over, and their big hands hung down to their knees.

"Sh, look," whispered one troll as he spied Leezen. "A Princess! We will take her home and make the King give us gold for her return." "Oh, gold," mumbled the other two.

They crept up to the doll on their hands and knees. Their little squint eyes never left her face. Then one straightened up and said, very astonished, "Why, she's asleep or blind." "Are you blind?" shouted another. Leezen never moved nor answered. So the trolls lost their fear of her and scampered up. One felt her pretty dress between his boney fingers. Another ran his finger over her pretty blue slippers. The third stood still and grinned. "Not Very Nice" "Come," said the first, "let's tie our coats together and carry her home." So they knotted their coats together, swung the corners up on their shoulders and put Leezen into the crude hammock. Then they tramped home singing.

Oh, we frighten babies in their cribs. We poke the Rector in his ribs. We encourage people to tell fibs. Oh, the life of a troll is a merry one.

You can see these little men were not very nice. Their home wasn't very nice, either. It was just a cave with a fireplace. They used rocks for chairs, and pine needles for beds. And in the center was a great pile of gleaming gold they were keeping for goodness knows what reason.

They stood Leezen near the fireplace and had dinner, and then they sat quarrelling for a silly reason.

One troll said, "We must find this princess's father and then we will ask him for a hundred pounds." "No, we'll ask for two hundred pounds," said the second troll. "No, three," said the third. "Not Strong Enough" "Three hundred pounds!" snorted the first disdainfully. "You're

Just then the moon touched the top of the sky and it was midnight. Leezen's eyes fluttered open. She was so frightened by what she saw that she wanted to run. But the trolls fought at her feet. So she

N. C. TO TRAIN ITS PRISONERS

Vocational Courses To Start At Camp Friday

Raleigh, Dec. 14.—Start on a program of vocational training for state prisoners will be made Friday at the Cary prison farm camp near here, J. Loy Sox, educational director for the state prison division, said today.

At the Cary camp classes will be opened in auto mechanics, radio, typing, poultry raising, and general electrical training. Mr. Sox said that plans are being worked out to extend this sort of training into every prison camp in North Carolina, if a feasible method of doing so can be worked out.

Last year there were conducted 32 schools in as many prison units scattered all over the state; and during this year this number has been increased by at least ten, so that there are now in operation more than two score schools in which prisoners, many of whom never before had a chance at any sort of education, can learn to read and write if they are illiterate or can pursue their schooling from whatever point it was broken off.

It is estimated that more than 1,200 inmates are this year attending schools. Last year's totals were 1,002 and when the 1939 figures are available shortly after the first of the year it will not be surprising, says Mr. Sox, if they show that as many as 1,500 have attended during the current year.

Teachers for the schools are provided by the WPA's adult education project under the general direction of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morris in Raleigh. More than 200 prisoners learned to read and write last year and it is estimated that this figure, too, will be increased, as interest in the schools has grown by leaps and bounds.

Revocations have been asked, and hearings are to be held in Alamance, Rowan, Henderson and Burke. Murphy, westernmost town in North Carolina, long land-locked, will soon find itself a lake city. Water from Hiwassee dam will back several miles right up to the city limits.

Mr. Sox cited as examples the Woman's prison here, where out of some sixty white inmates no less than 42 enrolled for classes. At the Cary camp for boys there are 68 enrolled out of a total population of 168. In a camp for Negroes in Perquimans county the average attendance has been 72 out of 138 inmates.

The general and vocational educational program go hand in hand with directed and supervised recreational activities. The division has worked out an athletic program which reaches practically every camp in the state. Boxing, baseball, softball, football, volley ball, basketball and wrestling were among the sports included on the program. Boxing bouts are held at various camps, and often inter-camp matches are scheduled.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY
Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes suggest there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

NEW YORK COTTON
New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Cotton futures opened 12 to 22 lower. Prices receded again in the late morning as hedge selling and foreign and speculative liquidation increased. Trade support persisted, but was not so heavy as in mid-morning dealings.
The market ranged 33 to 42 lower shortly before noon, December 11.42, March 10.83.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Stocks slowed down for a rest in today's market after Wednesday's brisk upswing, but most showed little disposition to backslide.
Dealings, fairly fast at the start, soon slackened and initial gains running to two or more points were clipped off in many instances.
A break in recent buoyant cotton futures and some hesitancy among other staples, attributed mainly to profit casting, helped put brakes on the stock list, brokers said.
