HUNGARY SAID TO HAVE MADE ITALIAN PACT

Defensive Military Alliance Reported Reached

TWO MINISTERS MEET IN VENICE

Authoritative Fascist Writer, however, declares that no formal agreement has been reached

Budapest, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A high authority today reported the foreign ministers of Hungary and Italy had agreed on a defensive military alliance, assuring Hungary of Italian support against any invasion by Germany or Russia.

The agreement was said to have been reached by the two foreign ministers, Count Istvan Cskay of Hungary and Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy, in Venice, where they have been conferring over the week-end.

This authority said Cskay was expected to arrive in Budapest tomorrow to submit the text of such an agreement to the Hungarian crown council.

If the council approves, he then will return to Rome for formal signatures of the pact.

In Rome the authoritative Fascist writer, Virginio Gayda, denied that any formal agreement had been reached in the Venice talks, but high Fascists said Italy would support Hungarian territorial ambitions in return for aid in checking Russia in the Balkans.

SOLONS START WORK EARLY IN NEW CONGRESS

Plunge Quickly Into Business Faced At Session

BEGIN TALK OF TWO BIG ISSUES

Harrison's Special Budget-Making Proposal and Anti-Lynching Bill Claim Wide Attention

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Plunging quickly into the new session's business, Congress talked today of argument-provoking issues, the proposal of Sen. Harrison (D-Miss.), for a special budget-making committee and the perennial bill to make a lynching a federal crime.

Harrison asked the Senate to approve at once his resolution to select 12 senators and 12 house members to examine President Roosevelt's revenue and spending recommendations and then make some suggestions of their own.

He claimed White House sympathy for his plan, but it has met opposition from various other quarters and there were indications that it might be allowed to gather dust in a House pigeon hole until the 1941 post-election congress.

The anti-lynching bill was forced onto the House floor by a petition of 218 members held over from last year's session. A majority of the House could vote against debating the measure at this time, but it was considered so unlikely that leaders arranged for six hours of oratory beginning tomorrow noon.

The House passed the bill by an overwhelming majority a year ago, but it was filibustered to death in the Senate. It would not surprise even supporters of the measure if the Senate were to blast consideration entirely at this session.

YMCA Secretary Speaks At College

Wiley Critz, regional secretary for the Young Men's Christian Association, spoke last night at the College at 7:30 p.m. and will speak at 7:30 p.m. at the college in Austin auditorium, to both college and town people. He spent today on the campus in group and individual conferences.

Mr. Critz took as his topic last night the close relationship between prosperity and interest in religion, which is often, he said, a disturbing factor in the thinking of people.

The reason for this relationship, he declared, is not difficult to find: God speaks to man most clearly in times of adversity because it is only those conscious of need of help that God can reach. According to both the Old Testament and secular history, the Jews have always been one of the most harassed peoples over known; and it is admitted that they are also the most deeply religious.

The speaker described the great optimism of the past four decades, saying that those years were marked by optimism, prosperity and an increasingly secularized life, with emphasis on man and his powers and accomplishments, rather than on God and religion.

Then, commenting on the change in recent days, he said that it is in such a time of crisis and tragedy that man turns to religion, to the symbol of the cross—which speaks of judgment for man, of forgiveness, of the power of God over evil.

"Man must relate himself to God," he concluded, "if he is to survive."

THREE KILLED ON ICY ROAD

Smithfield, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Three Florida children were killed today in a three-way collision of automobiles and a truck on highway 201 two miles from here when ice and sleet caused the cars to hit, throwing one into the path of a truck.

Sergeant V. R. Mallard of the highway patrol and Sheriff K. L. Rose of Johnston county investigated the accident and blamed it on the icy Neuse river bridge in their official report.

They identified the dead as Katherine Bowers, 16, of Pennsylvania; E. A. Bessie, 17, of North Carolina; and Patrick Guthrie, three children of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Guthrie of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Guthrie was driving one automobile.

The officers said they were told that Mrs. Guthrie's car hit the back of an automobile driven by W. A. Powell of Smithfield. This threw Mrs. Guthrie's car into the path of a truck driven by W. O. Shuman. Investigations showed Shuman's truck was well on its proper side of the bridge.

Mrs. Guthrie was examined at the Johnston county hospital, but was found not to have been injured.

Merchant Directors Meet Tuesday Night

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Greenville Merchants Association will be held in the organization's offices tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Any member having any question he desires to be brought up at the meeting is urged to call the association office or advise any officer.

CLUE FOUND IN BRUTAL DEATH

Fort Hunt, Va., Jan. 8.—Strands of silky brown hair clutched in the hand of a dead man were clues for G-Men today in the search for a slayer.

The body, its head battered, was sprawled 100 yards from the Mount Vernon Memorial highway about 15 miles south of Washington, D. C., when passing motorists found it yesterday and called police. A pool of blood colored the new-fallen snow where it lay.

Near the dead man, tentatively identified as S. M. Little, 29-year-old Fredericksburg, Va. tobacco salesman, was a powder puff, two change coins and a man's handkerchief. None of the fingerprints in the fresh snow appeared to be those of a woman.

An iron fireplace grating, which Dr. C. A. Ransom said was the instrument of death lay close by. A car in which the man apparently had parked in a small clearing off the highway was missing and police sent out a state-wide alarm for it.

The dead man's knuckles were bruised and police surmised he had battled his assailant.

The federal agents, called in because the crime occurred on government land, questioned a sailor whose name was found in the dead man's book. The Washington Post reported that the sailor had told of meeting the man Saturday night and of visiting several taverns with him, but said he left him about midnight.

Daladier called the cabinet for a session tomorrow morning preceding the opening of Parliament in the afternoon.

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Although President Roosevelt's address at the $100-a-plate Jackson Day dinner here tonight is expected to be non-partisan, democratic gatherings in other cities may hear political oratory key-noting the party's 1940 campaign.

The general opinion is that the President will limit his theme to the need of national unity in facing foreign crises, leaving to administration lieutenants, such as Robert H. Jackson, attorney general designate, any political message from the New Deal.

Jackson will speak at Cleveland, Secretary Wallace at Des Moines, and Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, at Raleigh, N. C.

The Nisbet-Proctor clothing store, dealers in wearing apparel for both men and women, has moved from the Munford building to the building on the northeast corner of Evans and Fifth streets, the site formerly occupied by the Gloria Shop.

The firm had been in the Munford building since its establishment.

Helsinki, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Finnish forces wiped out the 44th Russian division, killing thousands and taking more than one thousand prisoners near Suomussalmi, a special army communique reported today.

It was in the northern part of this region, the narrow "waistline" of Central Finland that the Finns a week ago reported the virtual destruction of the invaders' 163rd division.

In the new victory, the communique said, large quantities of arms and materials, including 43 tanks, were captured.

Heavy fighting has been reported in the Suomussalmi sector for days, but today's communique was the first mention of Russia's 44th division.

(Neutral military experts have estimated there are from 15,000 to 17,000 men in a Russian division.)

Penny-Thigpen
Mrs. Claude Luther Thigpen announces the marriage of her daughter, Ida Lucille to Mr. Joseph Parker Penny on Saturday, the Sixth of January Nineteen hundred and forty Eighth Street Christian Church Greenville, North Carolina

At home
723 West Morgan Street, Raleigh, North Carolina.

In a beautiful and impressive ceremony, Miss Ida Lucille Thigpen became the bride of Mr. Joseph Parker Penny on Saturday afternoon, January 6, at the Eighth Street Christian Church. The vows were spoken at 4:00 o'clock with Rev. W. A. Ryan, the bride's pastor, using the ever beautiful ring ceremony.

For the wedding the church decoration carried out the conventional green and white color scheme. Simplicity was the keynote, effectively emphasized in the placing of ferns and baskets of white calla lilies and gladioli and burning tapers.

While the guests were assembling Miss Nannie Rowlette rendered a beautiful program of nuptial music. Just before the entrance of the bride and groom, Mr. Malcolm Penny of Raleigh, brother of the groom, sang "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Prayer Perfect". Miss Row-

As the couple entered together, the familiar Wedding March from the opera "Lohengrin" was played and "Mendelssohn's Wedding March" from "Midsummer Night's Dream" was played as the recessional. The beautiful "Indian Love Call" from "Rose Marie" was played softly during the ceremony.

Mr. Bruce and Benjamin Thigpen, brothers of the bride, acted as ushers.

The bride never looked lovelier than in her Windsor blue velvet dress and short black fur coat. With this she wore a becoming blue velvet turban and used black accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of white orchids and valley lilies.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Claude Luther Thigpen and the late Mr. Claude Luther Thigpen. She received her education in the Greenville city schools. She is popular among a wide circle of friends and has been entertained a number of times since her engagement has been announced.

BUGGY UPSET

Mr. David Marrow of Greene county, was driving down Evans street Saturday afternoon, Mrs. J. L. Little and Mrs. E. B. Ficklen were out driving and they also were coming down Evans street, their buggy being close behind Mr. Marrow's. Without noticing anyone coming behind him, Mr. Marrow reined up his horse to stop. Just at this time the ladies started to turn into Fourth street. The buggy in front of them stopping unexpectedly, there was a collision. A front wheel of the rear buggy caught a rear wheel of the front buggy and Mr. Marrow and his vehicle were turned over in the street. Of course it was all purely an accident, and the fortunate part of it is there was no damage to either person or vehicle.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar in front of the spacious living room windows. Before a background of palms and ferns, tall floor baskets of calla lilies and white snapdragons were flanked by two seven-branched cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers. The entire residence was appointed with arrangements of calla lilies and white snapdragons.

The bride, unattended, was given in marriage by her father, J. J. Summerell. She wore a street length dress of stone blue fashioned with a long waist and drape effect. Her accessories were of black, and she wore a corsage of white orchids, lilies of the valley and sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Summerell, mother of the bride, wore a shoulder corsage of golden charm roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Kitchin, mother of the bridegroom, wore a shoulder corsage of tulle roses and valley lilies.

"How's Your Second Act?"
Miami, Fla.—Prof. Fred Koch, Jr., of the University of Miami is convinced playwrights are either a dizzy tribe or else are the world's most incurable optimists.

"One out of every seven persons in the United States bought a car last year," reported Koch, professor of playwriting and dramatics. "One out of every 10 purchased a radio. One out of 36 financed a refrigerator—and one out of 75 wrote a play."

Out of 1,000,000 theatrical brainchildren only 40,000 even reached dramatic agents or producers, and "only one found fame and fortune," Koch declared.

"Fortunately," said Koch, "at least 95 per cent of the authors have no intention of making a living writing plays. The other 5 per cent think they are good enough for Broadway."

New Route To Orient Foreseen With Ships Traveling Under Ice

AP Feature Service
 Milford, Conn.—In the midst of another naval war, Simon Lake, a pioneer submarine inventor, still likes to think of the submarine as an instrument of peace. And he dreams of new oceans it will conquer without a single torpedo aboard.

He was interviewed in his laboratory, which is littered with plans and models of submarines he has designed and built since the launching of his first undersea craft more than 40 years ago.

"I'd hate to think that my life had been spent in developing something that could be used for destruction alone," he said. "And I'm convinced the commercial submarine one day will open up a world of new riches for mankind."

He walked across the littered floor to a globe.

"Look here," he said. "The merchant submarines I'm designing now could travel the Arctic route. They would have ice-breakers, a retractable conning tower, and other features for going through and under the ice."

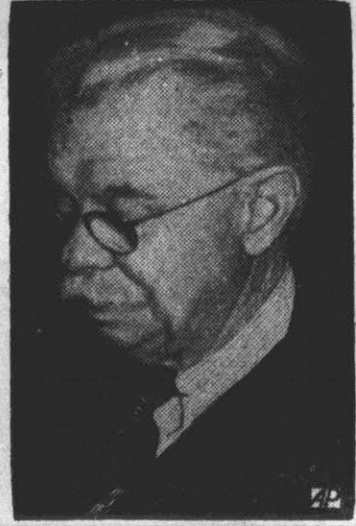

"You know, it is actually safer under the ice than on the surface. Wind and waves can't bother you, and it never gets below freezing under the water."

Tracing sea routes with a finger, he continued: "From Liverpool to Yokohama through the seas north of Russia is only 6,350 miles compared with 12,260 miles by way of the Panama Canal or 11,105 miles through Suez."

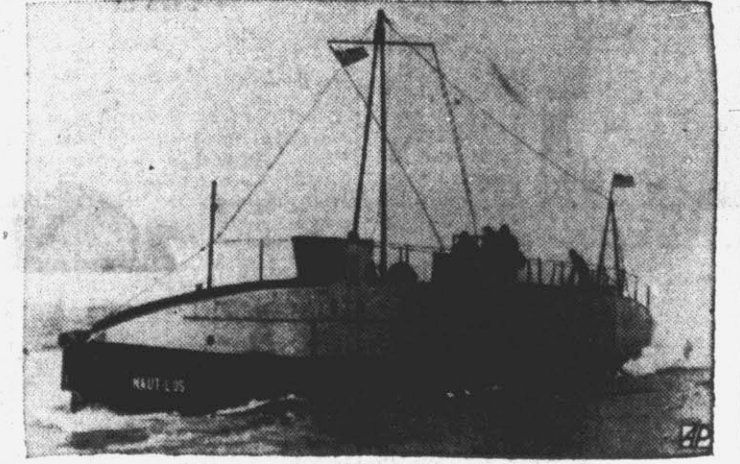

"And you wouldn't have to go under the North Pole. You'd be under the ice for only a fraction of the voyage."

"During five months of the year, the route by northern Russia is comparatively free of ice. Why, a sailing ship made the voyage 60 years ago, but for surface craft there is the ever present danger of being trapped by floating ice fields. That wouldn't be the slightest threat to a submarine."

Lake said that Sir Hubert Wilkins in the Nautilus proved that the submarine could be used for safely traveling under the Arctic ice floes. The British explorer penetrated the ice fields north of Spitzbergen on a trip in 1931. Lake says he probably would have reached the North Pole then except for a motor break-down and exhausted funds.

The undersea craft Nautilus which almost proved one of Simon Lake's fondest dreams. Simon Lake: "Safer under the ice."

Law Puts Teachers' Pay In A Special Category

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
 Raleigh, Jan. 6.—North Carolina's school teachers are in a special category among state employees when it comes to getting paid for their work. It has been brought out as the result of failure of teachers in many localities to get their December pay before Santa Claus made his rounds.

They are paid on the basis of a "school month" which "shall consist of twenty teaching days," according to the school machinery act, and they cannot be paid under this statute unless and until they have worked the full twenty days.

On the other hand most State employees are employed on an annual basis and are paid by the calendar month. Under this system, they regularly get their checks on the 25th of each month and in December and June this day is moved forward to the 20th, in order to facilitate reports at the end of the calendar and fiscal years.

Thus most state workers always get paid for some work before they have actually performed it; but teachers never do. All school superintendents, clerks and other school employees hired on an annual basis are paid in the same manner as the general run.

In those cases where the teachers did not get paid just before Christmas, however, it was due entirely to "local conditions," according to Lloyd Griffin, secretary of the State School Commission. The date of payment of school teachers is governed absolutely by the opening date of the term, Griffin said; and any local board which wishes to wind up a "school month," (whether it be the third or the fourth) can bring it about by figuring out the schedule necessary for it to come out that way, and then open on the resultant date.

Mr. Griffin explained that the probable reason for the law which virtually prohibits paying a teacher even for a day not taught is because there is no provision for sick, or other, leave for teachers with pay, whereas there is provision for such leave in the case of most employees. Thus, he said, if a teacher should get paid for work not done and then never do it—because of death, sickness or other cause—there would be nothing against which it could be charged off; while on the other hand any such undone work for which payment was made in the case of any other employees could be charged off against leave periods.

It therefore turned out that school teachers, in those places where the year's schedule had not been worked out so as to take care of the situation, were the only state employees—other than by the day or by the hour workers of the Highway Commission, perhaps, who did not get checks just before Christmas.

As far as the Raleigh system of school control went, however, their salaries had been provided for and sent to the counties in which they work long before Christmas—probably before December 5. Mr. Griffin explained that each superintendent sends in every month, immediately after the first, a statement of what his unit will need to pay all its obligations for the current month. After audit and approval, the money is sent in a lump sum to the local units to be paid out by them to the individuals entitled thereto.

All teachers are still paid in eight installments despite the legislation permitting division into twelve under certain circumstances. Concord teachers voted for a 12-month pay schedule, but local school board will not approve. Shelby teachers voted for such a plan last spring, but reversed themselves on another ballot in the fall. Mr. Griffin said these are the only two cases he knows of where teachers favored the 12-month payment plan.

Washington.—That conflict on national policy which grinds and grinds within the government was well illustrated here at one of the academic banquets which hit Washington during the Christmas-New Year holidays when professors are free from classes.

The grinding continues relentlessly year in and year out, with first one side gaining a bit and then another. But for the most part, these major influences on the nation are virtually forgotten by almost every one except leading historians and those within the government who are forever concerned over "grand strategy."

They blossom out so seldom that when they do, they startle casual readers. They even startled a few of the thousand or more historians who sat arm in arm in a Washington hotel ballroom while A. Whitney Griswold, of ale's department of government and international relations, and Captain W. D. Puleston, United States Navy, retired, presented a few of the rival viewpoints.

To Fight Or Not? Should we preserve our position in the Far East, by force of arms if necessary?

No, said Griswold. He has written repeatedly that it was a bad move for the United States ever to have taken on the responsibility of the Philippines. He believes the country now thinks the same.

"The Washington and London naval treaties, the Philippine independence act, and last but not least the cash-and-carry neutrality law showed a very substantial qualification of the 'command-of-the-sea' doctrine," he said.

"When Americans realize," he said, "that the best naval defense is a naval offense, I am convinced they will provide the necessary bases for the American fleet in the Far East." (These, no doubt, would be either in the Philippines or at Guam, or both.)

"If the Philippines did not exist, it would still be necessary for the United States to protect its interest in the Far East," he continued.

Pro and Contra On the other hand, Griswold argued that there were no grounds in experience for the assertions of the sea-minded that America must fight or be ready to fight in all parts of the world to protect its foreign trade lines. That, he said, is a doctrine which Captain Mahan carried over from the British.

"Because the welfare of so few Americans, as compared with Englishmen, was bound up with overseas traffic of any kind," he said, "the American people never wished to do those things as much as the British."

But that is a mistaken policy, said the naval man. "Professor Griswold states that the United States invests less capital abroad than Great Britain. This is one of the contributing causes to the world crisis. Economists almost universally agree that the sudden cessation of American capital exports in 1929 was an important cause of the financial crisis. The continued 'looking-inwardness' of American citizens protracts the depression."

The thing goes on endlessly. Just now the naval power expansionists have the upper hand. The navy is growing greatly. Manhanistic Captain Puleston glories in it.

One Is Beloved

YESTERDAY: Bob has an opportunity to leave St. Joseph and go with a shoe store in a country town, Sue is expecting a baby.

Chapter 31 Queen City

BOB'S eyes lingered regretfully on the mellow old room. "I never expected to hate giving this up! I thought we'd moved into the poorhouse when you picked this out. But you've made it mighty comfortable, honey. I should think you'd have a pang or two yourself when you think about leaving it."

"Oh, I do! I love every board in this funny old floor. I love the garden I literally wrested from the weeds and clods of the back yard. But I can make another garden, and we'll take this furniture with us, of course. It's sort of exciting to create things, isn't it?"

"Sort of. You don't think the baby will complicate the situation? How about doctors—hospital? I don't think Queen City boasts much in either line."

"It's only ninety miles from here. I could easily come in beforehand. Are you—are you thrilled about our daughter's impending arrival. Bob?"

"I'm knocked clean off my feet at the idea of having a son," he countered promptly. "You know, Sue, he went on in a rare burst of confidence. 'I've wanted kids—lately. Not at first. I was all in a ferment about you when we were first married. And then things got bad with the business, and I was worried and upset, and the crash came. I was darned glad then there weren't children to complicate matters. I suppose we're really in no position to have them now, for that matter. Still, if we're ever going to—'"

"Exactly!" she agreed. "I'm awfully happy about it, Bob." She continued to be happy during the tiring days which followed. A storm of protest greeted the Trentons' announcement that they were leaving St. Joseph for the small town of Queen City. Allen was seriously disturbed over it.

"Talk about a future! What future can there possibly be for a man in a country store? A shoe store at that! I never even heard of a shoe store in a town of that size. Usually shoe stores are in the general stock. Bob'll find himself out of a job in three months time, you'll see!"

Mr. Pearson doesn't think so, Allen. He was a junior partner with Bob's father, you know, years ago—before he sold out and started the Pearson's Peppermint Line. He thought that with all the good roads and motorcars we have now there is no reason why every town shouldn't have its shoestore. It isn't as if it were an experiment either. He's established these stores in the East and they've succeeded. Why not here?"

"Because the country is not so thickly settled, the towns are farther apart. And even if Bob does make a go of this Queen City store, what is to come after that? A slightly bigger town, a slightly bigger store? No percentage in that!"

"But there is, Allen; that's the point. Pearson isn't hiring Bob as manager; he's giving him a half interest. If he adds a store every two years—even every three or even five—he's piling up an income. Don't discourage him, Buddy," she pleaded. "Even if it fails I'd rather have Bob try than stay here working for someone else. He's got real executive ability. It just needs developing, that's all."

"Faith" HE LOOKED at her curiously. "You have a lot of faith in Bob, don't you, Sis? Goodness knows you've stuck by him like a housewife. If he doesn't get ahead it won't be for lack of encouragement from his wife." The bitterness in his tone was significant. Sue winced as she thought of how little encouragement Allen himself received.

The Trentons' packing was complicated by the delegations of friends who dropped in to protest their departure. Forest and Barbara Webb gave what they called a "donation party" on their last evening in town. The guests brought their own refreshments, their own paper cups and plates and folks, even their own folding chairs, since the furniture had gone by truck that afternoon.

Sue and Bob had expected to dine out and sleep at the hotel, driving directly to Queen City the next morning. "All we ask is that you keep the house warm," Forest had telephoned. "We'll bring everything else."

So in they had trooped, bearing the most absurd gifts: a hot water bottle in case there was no electricity for Sue's heating pad; candied fruits, tins of caviar, fat black olives, the specially imported Irish bacon which Bob liked so much; an order on a florist to supply Sue with budding plants of lilies of the valley every other week until Easter; subscriptions to magazines, chief among them being periodicals dealing with farm problems; fruitcake, boxes and boxes of it; two gorgeous Canadian blankets, light and soft; the collection looked like a cross between an outfit for an Arctic expedition, and supplies being laid in for a house party.

"You'll see the day you'll need every bit of it and more," Forest predicted darkly. "I understand you can't even buy Cheddar cheese in Queen City!"

"Even then we may be able to worry along," Bob assured him. "As a matter of fact, I don't believe we've been buying many fancy cheeses in the last year or two, eh, Sue?"

She was dimpling and smiling over the donations. "You're darlings, every one of you," she said warmly. "Even if Queen City is all of ninety miles away, I suppose we may hope to see you now and then? Say every five years or so? These will come in handy when you do drop in, at any rate."

Plan to come on Saturday and buy your shoes from me," was Bob's brazen suggestion. "You'll get a lot more for your money in Queen City than you will here, let me tell you! My overhead alone will be lower than—"

national circulation carried quite an interesting article under its "Marketing" department telling of the great fight now in progress among States seeking to interest new industries in locating within their borders.

"States Fight It Out with Ads" is the title, and it tells how the 'Haves' and 'Have-nots' are vying with increasing vigor for tourists, industries and farm markets.

North Carolina is stressed as one of the leaders. Of Tar Heeler, the article said: "North Carolina has been a standard. Its advertising campaign started in July, 1937, with a two-year program powered by appropriations for $125,000 annually. Advertisements have been carried in 21 business and trade publications aimed at 2,800,000 selected subscribers. The slogan is 'North Carolina, home of successful industry.'"

Hathaway Cross, side to Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill seems a reasonable good guess as successor to Robert L. Thompson as secretary to Governor Clyde R. Hoey. He is located well geographically and was one of the original Hoey for Governor men. He is concededly competent to fill the secretarial post with tact and ability. He probably can be spared by his present boss, for a ten-month period as there isn't anything out of the ordinary likely to bob up in the parole line.

There has been no definite statement about what Bill Sharpe, retiring head of the State News Bureau, will do in the "newspaper" field in Winston-Salem; but your reporter has heard tell of a weekly tabloid paper enterprise.

WHO SHE IS WHEN Judge Camille Kelley took over direction of Memphis' Juvenile Court in 1920, she was the second woman in the nation and the first in the South to receive such an appointment. Her belief that age is "psychological, not chronological," has kept her birthdate secret.

Her court handles domestic relations and related cases as well as those of juvenile offenders. She has spoken frequently on nationwide radio broadcasts and in 1936 she stomped the mid-west for President Roosevelt in his re-election campaign.

Friend of the local all-powerful E. H. Crump political organization, she has had its support in all her races for reelection, all of them without opposition. But, she says, she thinks of Crump, not as a politician, but as a family man and a public benefactor who established the Juvenile Court, which she likes to call her "moral clinic."

than hear his father and mother quarrel. Most knock-down and drag-out fights in homes happen because a man and his wife are starved for beauty. "As long as folks fight, physically and verbally, there's some hope of bringing them together, but when they get cold, indifferent and studiously polite to one another, that's when I throw up my hands and admit defeat. As long as they've got fire enough to fight, there's usually warmth enough left to effect a reconciliation."

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Jan. 8.—Lieutenant Governor Wilkins Horton apparently isn't worrying a bit about being left out of the Speaker's table list for tonight's Jackson Day dinner.

"I'm just one of the folks, anyway," he commented laughingly while talking to your reporter on the telephone. "And so I'll feel much more at home with the big mass of the people than with the big wigs up front."

It appears on the surface that Governor Clyde R. Hoey must, of necessity, be the man responsible for Horton's failure to get a head table seat; as it is impossible to believe that Senator Larkins didn't ask His Excellency's advice and seek to find out whether a representative of the Governor would be desirable. From any angle it's viewed, however, it is hard to figure out why the Number Two Tar Heel Democrat should be passed over and why there will be no representative of the State at the Speaker's table. There's a story behind the withdrawal of Administration blessings and backing from Horton; and some day it's going to be dug up to make a very interesting piece of reading.

High Point's Panthers Engage ECTC Tonight

Game To Be Played At Local College At 8 P. M.

High Point College's Purple Panthers will invade Greenville tonight at 8 o'clock in their first game of the season with Coach Bo Farley's Pirates of East Carolina Teachers College.

The Panthers rolled up a healthy score over United States Naval Base Saturday night, but it is not known whether the strength of the Panthers or the weakness of the apprentices accounted for this result.

East Carolina Teachers College will play the Naval Base next week in a four-day invasion of Virginia and their showing against the Panthers tonight may determine to a great extent how they do against the Middies in the upcoming encounter.

High Point and ECTC are noted for piling up large scores and close scores, this factor being exhibited in two games between these teams last season. In the first Pirate-Panther clash, which came midway the season, High Point turned back ECTC 43-37 in a last half spurge.

Later in the season the Panthers defeated the Teachers 51-45, neither score being more than six points from the other.

Farley's proteges showed up exceptionally well against the Elizabeth City Cardinals last Friday night in a season-opening affair. George Lautares of Greenville was the Pirate's most outstanding point-maker with 18. Tom Cox and Parson Parrish, who saw action last Friday night, probably will be in the line of fire tonight.

Harry Riddick, who frequented the opener, will likely be called to arms in the High Point game. Dave Watson did a fine job in checking the onslaught of Elizabeth City's Jimmie Johnson and will see much service during the season. Donald Brock, lanky center, will have to exercise his usual technique.

That huge blue van seen on Greenville's streets today foretells the coming of an event without precedent in the community's history. It marks the coming of "Previews of Progress," admittedly the standout attraction of the recently closed New York World's Fair, for a free showing to the local citizens.

Within it is carried a unique cargo—machines that manufacture lightning, that change sound into light, that fry an egg without heat, samples of unusual plastics that may revamp our scheme of life in the world of tomorrow.

In its wake come the science commentators from General Motors Research Laboratories, Director Ernest L. Foss, James Shoemaker, John Rife and Kenneth Smith, who will present the production on the stage of East Carolina Teachers College Auditorium tonight at 8:30. Tonight, with the same personnel and the same stage equipment which have thrilled more than four

HIGHS INVADE NEW BERN FIVE

Phantoms Will Be After Fourth Win of Season

With three wins in the bag against no defeats the Flying Phantoms of Greenville High School will engage the New Bern Bears of that city in the first conference tilt for the 1940 season. The game will be played in the local high school gym at 7:30 this evening.

The Dalleymen have chalked up wins over the Ayden and Grimesland high school, and ECTC Outlaw quints, winning easily over all the opponents thus far.

The G-Men have five veteran players from last year's squad. Sakas and Warren will hold down the forward posts. Sakas was high scorer for last year, while Warren was out almost the entire season with a sprained ankle, but showed himself invaluable in the few games he saw action.

Larry James, center from last year's five will also start. Larry alternated between the forward and center positions.

Polly Williams and Marvin Stocks, stellar guards for the Phantoms will hold down the other two posts. Others expecting to see action are Carl Whitehurst, Hicks Corey, Snag Clark, J. B. Kittrell, and John Collins, substitutes on the Phantom team.

Last year's G-Men lost only one game which was to Goldsboro and wound up with the championship of the Eastern Conference when they defeated the above team in the final play-offs at Washington. The Phantoms won both games from the New Bern team last season.

The junior high varsity will play the New Bern junior high varsity tonight in a preliminary. Probable starters are Bill Lee, center, Warren Ficklen and Connor Merritt forwards, and Charles Morye and Ed Rawls at guard.

million spectators, they will attempt to prove that the "world is far from finished." By restaging some of the current experiments in the nation's research laboratories, they will hint what may be in store for us in the future.

Despite the fact that the show comes from General Motors, there is nothing automotive about it; all of the marvels which it displays are those of research in fields far removed from the motor car. Cloth spun from glass, fabric woven from skimmed milk, equipment which permits the piping of light rays as water pipes now pipe water—these and a host of other incredible inventions will be included in its presentation. In view of the limited capacity of the auditorium and because of the fact that no admission will be charged, nor seats reserved, officials of the company urge the public to be present early. The performance will start promptly at 8:30 p. m.

Man About Manhattan

New York—Count Theo Rossi, the young Italian speed-boat king, sends in a note. . . . But before it is quoted perhaps we should deal in a bit of ancient history. . . . Back in the ninth century someone dug a square wooden tankard out of an Irish peat bog. . . . It was the first, and also the last—until recently—square drinking mug anyone had ever seen. Rossi doesn't own that tankard, but he would like to.

But not so long ago he took time out from his pastime of winning one speed-boat crown after another to design and have made some personal square glasses of his own. Since that incident of the peat bog—so far as anyone knows—his are the first square glasses to be made.

They are quite extraordinarily pretty. The ancient coat of arms of the Rossi family adorn them "I hope," he wrote, "you will do me the honor of putting these to hard service. Don't sit them on some shelf, or make a museum piece of them—put them where they will be handy when friends drop in. They are vermouth glasses. . . . You never heard of a vermouth glass, did you? Neither did anyone else. . . . There are wine glasses and brandy glasses, and every kind of glass—and I thought it was about time somebody made a vermouth glass."

There was more to the note, amiable but unimportant. I might add here that the count, who is one of the world's most eligible bachelors, is also a good business man. The Rossi name is to Italy what Metaxas is to Greece. . . . His is an ancient family of vermouth makers. . . . So perhaps the county may be pardoned for his zeal in the matter of glassware.

Several days ago there was a story about Rossi in which he was described as ubiquitous. This word always makes me think of the late Heywood Brown, whose untimely death stunned New York a little while ago. Brown loved to fashion tales about the origin of words—as a gag, and once, as the story goes, the word ubiquitous came up.

"Why," said he "do you mean to say you don't know how it began? There was once an Indian chief whose papoose, a daughter, grew into quite a big girl. The chief thought the time had come for her to get out on her own, so he called her and, folding his arms, said, "You big. Quit us." And that, declared Brown, was the origin of ubiquitous.

Rossi has many friends in this country, for he has raced, and won, at Detroit, at Washington, and on the west coast. On his last visit to New York I went down with him to watch him unload three special speed-launches that he had brought over from Italy. They were powered with airplane motors, and they were named after some mountains in Africa which the Italians had captured during the Ethiopian campaign.

Rossi likes to attend to his boats personally, with the same devotion that a cavalryman gives to his horse. He was a spic and span young man when the night began, but when those boats were finally and safely ashore he was a sad spectacle—hair awry, grease across his cheek, his trousers torn, his hands a wreck.

"Now," he said happily, "I can breathe easier."

Copying Corrigan Buckeye, Ariz.—Roland Rubel spent 10 years and $750 putting together a home-made airplane with parts reclaimed from the junk pile. The other day he soared above the town after an unannounced takeoff on his first flight.

After a few minutes in the air one wing seemed heavy, so he landed, drove a couple of nails in the other wing, and took the little ship up again. It performed perfectly.

On one of five test hops he squeezed his small son into the cockpit and gave him a ride.

"Everybody has been laughing at me for 10 years," Rubel grinned. "Now it's my turn to laugh."

The plane's motor, originally a two-cylinder 38-horsepower engine, was rebuilt until it developed 57 horsepower. The gasoline tank, holding seven and one-half gallons, came from an old automobile. The plane is 15 feet long, has a wing span of 27 feet, and makes about 80 miles per hour.

What? Again? Berlin.—(AP)—The War has given stimulus in Germany to campaigns against alcohol and tobacco. It is a German's duty to be as healthy and fit as possible, the Reich's health and medical leader, Dr. Leonardo Conti, reminded the population. Moderation in the use of alcohol and tobacco, or better still, total abstinence, is a blow against the enemy, he asserted.

More than half the population of Panama is of mixed race. Nicaragua has the largest area of any Central American republic.

In his budget message to congress, President Roosevelt urged members to slash farm, relief and public works spending, asked for $460,000,000 of special defense taxes and proposed a deficit of $1,716,000,000, one of the smallest in a decade. The estimate for the deficit in the current fiscal year was $3,933,000,000. This chart illustrates deficits of past years, the present and the future, as proposed by the President.

Murphy is 'Sad' and 'Glad'

President Roosevelt's nomination of Frank Murphy for the Supreme Court left the Attorney General "sad" and "glad." At a press conference in Washington where these pictures were made, he said he was "sad to leave this work" in the justice department, but would be "glad to take up the other work." He told the newsmen "I consider myself unworthy of it."

The brothers, sons of immigrants from Finland, divide up the United States and each works a section.

Adolph said he learned the art from his mother who took it up after the death of their father, a sculptor.

White Named For Spud Job

Commissioner Scott Assigns Specialist To Post Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 8.-Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott today announced he has assigned Buxton White, marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, to work for the next year with commercial growers of early Irish potatoes in an effort to promote approved processing, packing and marketing methods.

"Keen competition, the lack of information on the proper methods of harvesting and preparation for market, together with transportation problems related to loading and refrigeration practices are factors that have brought about a critical situation in the Irish potato industry of North Carolina," the Commissioner said.

"We hope the assignment of a well-qualified marketing specialist to this field will be of material assistance to growers in securing accurate, useful information to be used in more successful marketing of the potato crop."
The normal Irish potato crop of the state is valued at from five to six million dollars.

Mr. White has been in direct contact with early commercial growers of Irish potatoes for nearly two decades in every phase of the industry.
