MOVE TO SLICE DEFENSE BILL GAINS SUPPORT

Proposal Given Powerful Bi-Partisan Support

CUT SUGGESTED OF $13,000,000.00

Measure Been Previously Whittled In House by $20,176,935 Under Original Sum

Washington, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Powerful bi-partisan support developed today behind a Senate Appropriations committee proposal to cut nearly $13,000,000 from the House bill for emergency defense and neutrality expenses.

The measure was whittled in the House $20,176,935 below budget bureau recommendations. As approved by the Senate committee it would appropriate $251,822,588.

Democratic Leader Barkley, predicting Senate adoption of the reduced figure, said the chamber would take up the legislation tomorrow. Both Senate and House were in recess today for the state funeral of Senator Borah (R-Idaho).

Barkley's forecast brought a comment from Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, that Republicans generally would support the committee reduction.

Senator Byrnes (D-SC), a member of the appropriations committee, said a substantial portion of the proposed reduction was in funds for navy patrol planes. He said the navy's chief need at present was additional training ships.

Of a proposed loan to Finland, Senator Brown (D-Mich) said that RFC experts were drafting a new bill expected to increase the $100,000,000 capital of the Export-Import Bank sufficiently to provide an additional $15,000,000 advance to Finland. The bank already has loaned $10,000,000 to Finland.

The body will be taken to Philadelphia by train tonight, leaving Wilson at 12:12. Funeral services will be held in Hadden Heights, N. J., but complete arrangements had not been made.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Carl Spaeth, Jr.; three grand children, all of Hadden Heights; her mother, Mrs. Sadie Detrich of Philadelphia; four sisters, Mrs. Millie Dilworth, Mrs. Howard Dilworth, Mrs. Clarence Ziegler and Mrs. Carl Spapps, all of Philadelphia.

Gov. Hoey Better Following Relapse

Durham, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Gov. Hoey, who underwent an operation for hernia at Duke hospital January 15, contracted a slight respiratory infection a few days ago, but now is much better and is on the way to recovery, hospital attaches said today.

Because of the "relapse" Governor Hoey may have to remain in the hospital a little longer than the three weeks originally estimated. Attaches attributed the relapse to "A-titus." Recently the governor has attempted to carry on some of the work of his office from his hospital bed.

Freezing of Gulf Brings Possibility Of Over-Ice Attack On Finns By Reds

One May Take Borah's Senate Seat

Speculation as to probable successor to Idaho's Senator William E. Borah, who died Jan. 19, brought forth these possibilities: In Boise there was talk that Gov. C. A. Bottelgren (left) might resign and in turn be appointed. Mrs. Borah, widow of the senator known as the "Lion of Idaho," also was mentioned as a prospect to fill her husband's seat until this year's election.

House Committee Votes To Continue Dies Probe

Chairman, However, Comes in for Much Criticism

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The House Rules committee voted today for continuation of the Dies committee investigation of un-American activities amid charges by Rep. Hook (D-Mich) that Chairman Dies (D-Tex) had actively associated with a "prominent collaborator of the Christian Front."

A few minutes after the Rules committee acted Hook placed in the congressional record a statement which said that Dies frequently associated with Merwin K. Hart, whom he described as an energetic "fellow traveler" of the Christian Front.

"Seventeen members of that organization," Cook added, "were arrested recently in a fantastic plot to overthrow the Government."

The House is to pass on continuation of the Dies committee tomorrow.

After reciting instances when he said Dies spoke at meetings sponsored by Christian Front representatives, Cook said, "the picture I have painted thus far is clearly one that puts Dies in active association with a prominent collaborator of the Christian Front. For Mervin K. Hart is unmistakably that."

"If he is not a member of it, he is certainly one of the most energetic and cooperative 'fellow travelers' of the Christian Front I can hope to find anywhere. Hart seems to be a kind of Park avenue operator for the Christian Front with its tragically misguided young men trying to assemble caches of arms and ammunition."

SEES GREATER MEAT DEMAND

Farmers Urged to Stick To Swine Production

Regardless of the unfavorable price being paid for hogs at this season, farmers in cotton, tobacco and peanut counties of Virginia and the Carolinas should stick to swine production. The so-called cash crop system of the South can no longer produce income sufficient to support the farm family in reasonable comfort. This system should be supported by food and feed crops and by livestock, particularly hogs.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is forecasting (December 20th) strong consumer demand for hogs in 1940 compared with 1939. The improvement is expected to result from the increase in industrial production and consumer incomes. Incomes have risen sharply since last summer, but the rise has not yet been fully reflected in demand for meats or in the prices of livestock. Hogs in early December were selling at the lowest prices in more than five years. The drop in the price of hogs in the past month was accompanied by a rise in the price of corn. The ratio of hog prices to corn prices is now unfavorable for hog producers for the first time in more than two years.

Soviet thrust from Estonia Base Speculated On By Foreign Military Observers; Finnish Authorities However, Declare Nation Prepared for Such a Campaign

Helsinki, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Freezing of the gulf of Finland to the Finnish shore has confronted Finland with the possibility of an over-ice attack from Soviet Russian bases in Estonia.

Foreign military observers speculated today on the chances of success for such a thrust, but Finns insisted they were well prepared to meet it.

The coast in some sections at least has been fortified and barricaded with barbed wire. The frozen beach at Hanko, for example, is laced with barbed wire.

Almost as though in an anticipation of such a Russian move, Finland was reported to have struck at Russian aviation bases on one of the few occasions in which the Finnish air force has challenged the Red Russian aerial armada.

Overhanging clouds today brought Finland renewed promise of lessening Soviet air attacks.

According to scanty reports on yesterday's operations by the Reds, several Finnish towns, including Ulvborg and vicinity on the Bothnian coast were bombed, but the raids apparently did not compare with the sweep of Saturday's attack when hundreds of planes were sighted and thousands of bombs were dropped.

Ryan, pastor of the local Christian church. Burial followed in the family plot in Cherry Hill cemetery.

Henderson, all of Pollockville; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rouse of New Bern; Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Moseley, Fennimore Hill, Robert Hill, James Coston, E. R. Rouse, Mrs. J. B. Hoey May Take Sides in Gubernatorial Campaign

Reflected Bureau. BY HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 22.—A while back there was a great deal of talk about the "Neutrality Proclamation" Governor Clyde R. Hoey planned to make in order to prove to all and sundry that the Administration will take no active or official part in the current scramble for the Hoey succession.

There was entirely too much smoke for no fire at all and it can be safely said that at one stage of the proceedings the proclamation was seriously considered and practically decided upon, but as indications now show up, it is quite likely that the proclamation will just get lost, or misplaced, or something. Anyhow there isn't nearly as much chance now as there was a month ago that there ever will be a hard-off announcement.

The reason seems to lie in the fact that Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton bluntly threatened to do a "True Confessions" kind of story about his relations with Governor Hoey and the Administration. There is more than a scintilla of evidence to show that "Our Nell" as played by the Lieut.-Gov. was not "done right by" and the Horton revelations would have kicked up something of a row, if not a stink, all over the state.

Up to that point it had been planned for the Hoey statement to hit the presses in rather short order, but the Hoey hand was stayed for fear he might "draw back a nub" if it was stuck out too far. It was agreed that sleeping dogs should be left for at least a long enough period for the proclamation, if ever made at all, to have no apparent connection with the Horton candidacy. At the time the Horton ultimatum was delivered, the Lieutenant Governor had not formally announced and a gubernatorial crack at that time would have been taken as a direct crack at the Number Two man and his chances.

Nobody has even the slightest suspicion that the Governor's trip to a Durham hospital was consciously timed to avoid several rather unpleasant situations which developed almost concurrently with the hospitalization.

There was the McNutt appearance at the Jackson Day dinner. The Governor's absence was certainly not in least unfortunate from the Governor's point of view, while his presence might conceivably have led to some slight embarrassment for Mr. Hoey.

Then there was the matter of the neutrality proclamation. Here again the very obvious explanation for failure to issue it is that Governor Hoey is ill in a hospital and can't be expected to give his attention to political matters.

All of which is quite true and, let it be repeated, not in the least the result of any sinister design on the part of Governor Hoey. It was just one of those fortunate breaks.

When the Hoey hospitalization is over and the Governor is back in his office, there will be plenty of (Continued on page six)

ACT PROVIDING 5-YEAR QUOTA TO BE OFFERED

Local Men Declare Such a Plan Has Been Approved

WILL APPLY TO TOBACCO CROPS

J. E. Winslow and E. F. Arnold also Seeking to Get Government to Finance '40 Purchases

Washington, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Representatives of the North Carolina Farm Bureau said today the Agriculture department had approved in principle a plan to permit five-year marketing quotas for flue-cured tobacco.

J. E. Winslow, of Greenville, N. C., president of the organization and E. F. Arnold of Raleigh, executive secretary, said a bill for this purpose would be introduced soon by one or more North Carolina members of Congress.

It would require an amendment to the farm act, which now provides for referenda to establish one-year marketing quotas on tobacco, cotton, corn, wheat and rice.

With quotas effective for so short a period, they said, there was no assurance against year to year fluctuations in prices. They declared a five-year control plan would make for a stabilization of the markets.

Winslow said they might be joined by producers of other types of tobacco who also have expressed interest in lengthening the quota period.

He said a point yet to be settled is whether the maximum life of the quota should be three or five years. He added that North Carolina farmers favored five.

Winslow and Arnold said they also had received assurances from the Commodity Credit Corporation that unless something unforeseen prevented it would be willing to finance another year's agreement with foreign buyers who customarily take large quantities of American tobacco on option for future delivery.

They pointed out, however, this had been thrown into uncertainty by the recently announced embargo on British purchases of tobacco in this country.

They said a curtailment of sales to British buyers would be "disastrous" to North Carolina, which depends heavily upon exports to Britain.

Although the embargo was not a primary purpose of their visit here, Winslow and Arnold spent the morning conferring with members of Congress who had discussed it with Agriculture and State Department officials.

Representative Cooley (D-N.C.) said he had Secretary Hull's assurance the question would become the subject of immediate negotiations with British authorities. He said the State Department had called upon its representatives in England for a full study and report.

GIRL HELD IN SUNDAY DEATH

Mother also held New Hanover Shooting Sunday

Wilmington, Jan. 22.—(AP)—"William H. Morrison came to his death as the result of a wound inflicted by a rifle fired by the hand of either Zella Morrison or her mother, Mrs. William H. Morrison," ruled a coroner's jury conducting an inquest this morning into the death of the wealthy Canadian at his home on the Carolina Beach road early Sunday morning.

The jury recommended that both the 12-year-old girl and her mother be held for further investigation by the grand jury and bond for each was set at $5,000.

Every witness testifying at the inquest called the witness that the child freely admitted to them Sunday morning that she did the shooting. The witnesses also agreed that Mrs. Morrison was intoxicated at the time, adding that several bottles of whiskey were found in various parts of the house.

104 Persons Lost When Italian Ship Sinks Off Southern French Coast

Forty of Victims were Passengers in Motorship which Sank in Mediterranean After Sudden Explosion; Members of Italian Diplomatic Corps Aboard

Genoa, Italy, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Italian officials announced today that 104 persons, including 40 passengers, were missing in the burning of the 11,669-ton Italian motorship Orazio in the Mediterranean off the French coast yesterday.

Of the 643 passengers and crew members aboard when the liner left Genoa Saturday a total of 539 were known to have been rescued by noon today, officials stated.

Those rescued were picked up by half a dozen vessels and authorities said that possibly some others also had been saved, but not reported by their rescue vessels. Seaplanes flew over stormy seas all day looking for survivors.

The Italian minister to Panama, Renato Sirenze, and several lesser members of the Italian diplomatic service were aboard when the vessel sailed from Genoa.

In Marseilles, France, first survivors of the liner reached here with narrowing stories of a sudden explosion which enveloped the ship in flames and destroyed all but two of her lifeboats.

The 47 survivors brought to safety by a French auxiliary cruiser said most of the Orazio's passengers and crew threw themselves into the stormy Mediterranean, where they were picked up by lifeboats launched by three Italian merchant ships and two French warships standing by.

Julian Reed, Negro, tendered pleas of guilty in Pitt Superior court here today to charges of having entered numerous Greenville homes and was given a total of from 14 to 21 years.

Reed, alias John Bell, was arrested by local police officers after carrying on a series of petty robberies, here for some time and one which caused much concern to Greenville citizens.

Washington Grimes, arrested as an accomplice of Reed, was given two years, and Mammie Boyd, Negro woman also arrested in the case, was given one year.

Another Greenville Negro was sentenced on charges of breaking entering and larceny. He was Larry Green, who admitted entering the store operated by Matt Duke and also the store run by Walter Swindell. The defendant was given a 4 to 6 year sentence at State's prison.

William Foreman was given 18 months on the roads for breaking, entering and larceny.

Early Davis was sentenced to a term of six months for forgery.

Henry Craft, convicted of drunken driving, was given 30 days.

Willie Ayche, Negro, was given four to six years for highway robbery. He robbed an aged Negro, William Humphrey.

Eight marriage licenses were issued last week at the offices of the Pitt county register of deeds, bringing to 24 the total for the year. Of the eight, six went to colored and only two to white couples.

White couples: Edgar Battle Wall of Johnston county and Selma Adell Forrest of Winterville; Walter E. Lewis of Greenville and Mattie Mae Bullock of Stokes.

Colored couples: James Cox of Grifton and Bettie Move of Ayden; Raymond Diggins and Cleo P. Wooten of Falkland, Ossie Lee Blount and Mildred Hyman of Greenville, Willie Dixon and Emma Gardner of Greenville, Henry Willie of Falkland and Janie Lucille Davis of Greenville, Wilbur Dixon and Acolia Nobles of Ayden.

GREAT BRITAIN SUFFERS MORE LOSSES AT SEA

Four Ships, One Of Them A Destroyer, Sunk

THREE NEUTRALS ARE ALSO SUNK

Disastrous Week-End Offers Sad Sequel to Optimistic Speech of Churchill Saturday

London, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Four British ships, one of them a destroyer, were sent to the bottom in a wave of week-end shipping losses.

Three neutral victims also added to the heavy toll of men and ships, especially in waters around the British Isles, which some sources attributed to a sharp increase in mines.

Sinking of the destroyer Grenville, 1,485-ton flotilla leader, "by a mine or torpedo" was announced by the Admiralty. She was the fourth British destroyer sunk in nearly five months of war and Britain's 21st acknowledged loss to her fleet. When she sank was not disclosed.

The Admiralty said 118 officers and men had been saved, "but eight are known to have been killed and 73 are missing and must be presumed to have lost their lives."

Among survivors landed at an east coast port were some gravely wounded and the commander of the warship, Captain G. E. Cressy, who at first had been reported among the lost.

To Britons the disastrous week-end was a sad sequel to words of Winston Churchill, first lord of the Admiralty, who declared Saturday "things have never gone so well in any naval war."

Speaks At Vespers
Judge Louis C. Skinner, speaking last night at the Vesper services at East Carolina Teachers College, told his audience of the values to be derived from both academic and extra-curricular activities in college.

"While in college, a student finds that he accomplishes most by applying his best efforts," said the speaker, "and he will find that this same principle can be applied in later life." He explained that business, like the school, is full of favoritisms, "but he who works will still accomplish most."

Judge Skinner pointed out that after a student gets out of college he associates with various types of people. He declared, "College is a good place for one to learn to adapt himself in the matter of getting along well with others."

Various phases of college life were recalled by the speaker, who expressed the belief that "unless a person gets the most out of college life, he will find himself later not getting most out of the stage of life that comes when one is graduated."

Utilizing time was a point strongly emphasized by the speaker as a good means of achieving objectives. He said that a student must budget his time, adding that when a student gets out of college he will find himself confronted with time problems.

Brantley Deloatche, member of the cabinet of the Young Men's Christian Association, had charge of last night's program and introduced the speaker, Mr. Skinner is judge of city recorder's court, a member of the Board of Directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and president of the Greenville Lions club.

Flowers were sent from the club to one of our members who had died the night before, Mrs. Sadie Elks. This was the first time in the history of the club that we have ever lost a club member by death.

Several business matters were discussed after which Miss Nice gave the "Outlook for 1940".

A salad plate was served by the hostesses to the twenty-four members who were present.

Mrs. H. H. May, Mrs. Billy May and Miss Ella May will be hostesses at the February meeting which will be held in the community building.

Mrs. James Allen entertained a few friends at dinner recently. The day was spent in pleasant conversation and at noon-time a delicious country dinner was served. Those enjoying Mrs. Allen's hospitality were: Mesdames Amos Evans, M. S. Crede, H. H. May, Billy May, Fannie Gardner, Lennie Edwards, Leon Tyson, J. J. Jenkins, Miss Ella V. May and little Amos Ray Evans and Alva Leota Edwards.

The following women have been asked to act as leaders to carry out some plans which will be discussed at the February Club meeting: Mrs. F. L. Allen, Mrs. R. R. Tyson, Mrs. Patrick Vainwright, Mrs. Sam Pollard, Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, Mrs. H. H. May, Mrs. Lennie Edwards, Mrs. Jarvis Tripp, Mrs. N. O. Hodges and Mrs. Leon Tyson. There will be a called meeting of this group next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Leon Tyson to discuss some plans. Make your plans now to attend.

N. W. Tyson returned Thursday morning from the hospital. His condition is somewhat improved.

Mrs. John Buck has improved from a recent illness.

Zack Whitford's father still remains in a critical condition in Duke hospital.

New Orleans is one of the few cities in America which possess official city flags.

Piano Recital

RED OAK NEWS
The Red Oak 4-H Club held its January meeting at the home of its President, Joe Tyson, Wednesday night, January 17th with every member on roll present except two—one of which was absent on account of sickness. After the meeting was called to order and business matters were cleared up the boys adjourned to another room, where Mr. Griggs discussed with them plans for the year's work. Reports were given by different boys. Miss Nice showed several curtains and discussed the material, how to make and how to hang. The girls seemed very much interested as most all of them have either already redecorated their rooms or will do so this spring as their project in club work.

After the meeting the girls formed a line in one room and the boys in another and while Mrs. Sam Pollard played a lively march they marked out of the hall and got their partners. They then marched to the dining room, where they were served hot chocolate and saltines by Mrs. B. L. Tyson, Mrs. Jarvis Tripp and Mrs. Sam Pollard.

Fifteen rousing cheers were given to Mrs. Tyson for opening her home to the meetings during the winter months.

After refreshments were safely placed away they assembled in the living room and sang a few catchy songs and rounds.

Plans were then made for a "Winter Carnival" to be held at the Red Oak Community building next Thursday night, January 25. Mrs. Lennie Edwards will run a bingo stand, James Sydney Allen will have charge of a "cake walk" and numerous other things for enjoyment have been planned. An old-fashioned "basket party" will be held in connection with the carnival and all the young girls of the community will take pretty baskets filled with good things to eat and they will be auctioned off by a real auctioneer.

We are going to give a beautiful gold "Duchess" bracelet to the prettiest girl present and there will also be a "handsome boy" contest. We hope our friends from all over the county will come and enjoy the evening with us. The proceeds will go for the community building. Come and help a good cause.

Squibs Found Here and There.

There was a big frost this morning. The spring-like weather has started some of the trees to budding. We hear so many say it is easy enough to get up sufficient stock for a cotton factory in Greenville. Maybe it is, but simply saying so does not get the factory. Come down with the subscriptions, is the way to make it count. We believe there is money enough in reach to start the factory if the proper effort was made to get it subscribed.

UP TO OUR CITIZENS

At a recent baseball meeting here it was pointed out that if Greenville is to have baseball this year it was up to the fans to lend their efforts in the way of financial support to the team. While all of us like baseball, in past seasons the whole financial responsibility of operating the team has fallen upon a few of our public spirited citizens while others spent their time criticizing the manner in which the team
was run.

We believe the directors
are right in declaring that it is up to our fans whether or not we are to have baseball.
Baseball is purely a community proposition and not only affords a worthwhile recreation for all of us but at the same time is a good advertisement for our town.

Of course everybody can't run the team for nothing makes progress under the direction of too many bosses
but every one of our citizens who is able should have a financial interest in the team.
It is not up to two or three of our citizens, just because they too like baseball, to have to furnish it for the benefit of the whole community.

TOBACCO EMBARGO MAY BE A BLESSING

The British embargo on flue-cured tobacco naturally places this and other fluecured tobacco producing sections in somewhat an uncertain plight for this year but in the end maybe it will be a blessing in disguise. For many years the tobacco-growing areas have been putting their entire dependence in the one crop despite warnings that such a practice was dangerous financially no matter what the crop might be. During all these years agricultural experts have been warning our people against one crop farming and have urged a diversified program that would make it possible for our farm people to live regardless of tobacco prices. Had these warnings been heeded and our plans of farming been gradually changed to a diversified program the present emergency would not have so much effect upon us. Unfortunately the warnings were not needed and it now appears that we will have to change our entire system of production at one time instead of gradually over a period of years. Naturally such a quick change is going to work a hardship on us but the quicker the change is made the quicker

we will overcome our difficulties, so we repeat maybe the present forced situation will prove a blessing for the entire community.

Of course the government
is being asked to lend all possible aid and use its efforts to persuade the British government to revoke the embargo but if the embargo continues there is little the government can do except to help tide the farmers over until they can make the necessary changes in their plans of farming. It must be remembered that the government already has on hand 175 million pounds of tobacco
on which the Imperial Tobacco company has options but if the British embargo prevents the Imperial from taking this tobacco off
the government's hands
there is little chance that the government can continue to put money into crop for which there is no demand.

If the British manufacturers cease to purchase their usual annual supply of tobacco we might as well face
the fact that one of the best markets for our product has been lost and the sooner we turn our attention to producing something else instead of tobacco the better off we will be.

There is no crop that cannot be produced on the fertile soil of Eastern North Carolina and it is foolish for us to continue to gamble our existence, year in and year out, on the uncertainties of tobacco.

Washington Daybook

Washington.—Three naturalized citizens, accused with others of a plot to overthrow the United States government, cannot be deported
if proved guilty.

The three, two Irish and one German in origin, were rounded up in New York by J. Edgar Hoover and his G-men amid a fanfare of publicity almost as fantastic as the nature of the plot against the government of which the 17 were accused.

The moment an alien completes his citizenship ceremony, he becomes forever immune to deportation except on one condition. Only if it is proved he obtained his citizenship papers by fraud or deceit can he be deported, no matter how undesirable
a citizen he may turn out to be.

The 17 men, including the three naturalized citizens, had an array of cans full of powder, rifles, ammunition, machine-gun belts and various impediments which together with other information convinced G-man Hoover that they had in mind a plot so gigantic that it made ordinary revolutions look pale.

As a prelude to seizing the government, they planned to blow up communication lines, said Hoover, to capture arsenals, to knock off a dozen congressmen as a sample of what they might do if they really got going. Moreover, said Hoover, they were mad at a neighborhood
theater which showed Russian-made films and were going to blow
it up along with a Jewish newspaper.

The Bridges Case
To a casual spectator it would appear that the main objective of becoming an American citizen would be to enjoy the sort of government and opportunities that America offers. Yet there is no provision in the law which states that a naturalized citizen may be chucked back home
if he tries to wreck the government
he was presumably so desirous of enjoying.

It is pretty well established that an alien applicant for citizenship
will be rejected if he has indicated
a disposition to overthrow the United States government by force.
Belonging to the Russian branch of the Communist party likely would be enough to bar a candidate for citizenship. That, at least, was the test which Harry Bridges, west coast waterfront labor leader, had to pass
to escape deportation proceedings.
Lately Dean Landis of Harvard Law school, sitting as examiner, cleared him of that charge. Presumably he may now renew his suit to become a citizen.

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Sergeant Long
of the Homicide Squad tells Christine Howarth that she's the one he's interested in. Queer Mrs.
Evans insists that Mr. Kimball killed his niece.

Chapter Six Accused

"How do you know?" the Sergeant demanded.
"Don't mumble your words,"
she snapped. "I can't hear you."
"I said, how do you know he's the one?"
"I never did like the looks of the man. He had all the earmarks
of a murderer."

The Sergeant groaned. "So you think that proves he killed his niece."
Mrs. Evans settled herself in the chair, adjusting a cushion carefully at her back. "Oh, I have proved enough," she said in a complacent voice. "My husband warned me."

Sarah, her face pale, uttered a faint moan. "He did tell her. I know, because she told me all about it."
"Where is your husband?" the Sergeant asked Mrs. Evans.
She didn't seem to hear and Sarah, nervously twisting her blue gingham apron, stared at her.

After a moment's silence the older woman said, "He is not dead,
ne is just away."
The Sergeant dropped his cigar
on his best hooked rug. "What in hell are you talking about?"

"She means he has passed away," Sarah said with a whimper.
The Sergeant looked close to murder. He was speechless and Sarah was staring first at the Sergeant, then at Mrs. Evans, her mouth agape.

"Go on," the Sergeant said to Sarah after he had recovered.
The maid swallowed and with an apologetic glance at Mrs. Evans said, "Well, Patrick's the janitor, but he doesn't live here, just comes in to fix the furnace. Then there's that Jap, whatever his name is.
He lives in back of the store and works for Mr. Kimball, does cooking and everything. She sniffed with disapproval. "But come to think of it, he wasn't here yesterday hasn't been here for a week."

"Where to?"
She shrugged her shoulders and half-closed her eyes mysteriously.
"I don't know. You never can tell both them Japs. Me, I don't trust em."

The Sergeant was irritated.
"Never mind about that. Who else?"
Sarah's earlier pleasure in the questioning had vanished and she answered ungraciously, "On the second floor over the shop is Miss Wells and Miss Rogers. They have an apartment together. That's the front one on this floor. Miss Wells is a nurse, and she doesn't work steady. And the red-haired one—Mary Ann Rogers, her name is—works in a swell dress shop uptown somewhere, not all day, though, only part time. Miss Kent lives... lived," she corrected herself hastily, "in the middle apartment, and the back one's been empty. When she added with a sharp look in my direction, "That is, it was empty until she came,
and goodness knows when that
was. She wasn't here last night when I left and Mr. Kimball wasn't expecting her neither."

The Sergeant swung around towards me this time. "Well?"
"There was some misunderstanding about the date," I said.
Mr. Kimball apparently expected me on the 16th and I told him that I would come in on the 15th."

The skeptical faces of my audience surprised me. Were they actually connecting me with the murder of the girl?
"I'll see what Mr. Kimball has to say about this," the Sergeant said. After a long look at me he turned back to Sarah. "Now for the third floor."

Sarah moistened her lips. "In the front is a Mr. Charles Whitfield and in the back is Mr. Mac-Donald. There's only two apartments that floor. Mr. MacDonald
does something down on Wall Street. And Mrs. Evans lives in the attic apartment. That's the fourth floor."

'An Artist'
THE Sergeant was scrawling away in his notebook. "What does Whitefield do?"
"I think he's an artist."

"Tell me about this morning,"
he said after a moment. "You were going about your work as usual and went to Miss Kent's apartment. Did you know?"
"Yes, sir," Sarah said. "I knocked like I always do, because she keeps her apartment locked at night."
"Did you try the door when she didn't answer, or did you just use your key to open it as usual?"

Sarah was frowning in the sea
of questions. "No, sir, the door wasn't locked. I just opened it without the key." She gulped.
"Then I saw this window was still up and then I saw Miss Joan." She shuddered dramatically.

After the first shock of seeing the girl's body had worn off Sarah was enjoying herself thoroughly.
To be in the limelight was a novel experience and she was going to make the most of it.

"Now think carefully before you rights of citizenship for felonies, but not deported.

We have listened for a half-dozen years to vitriolic outpourings in Congress against the most law-abiding aliens who happened to be here
but not even Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, whose rabid alien-baiter,
amendment to the law to crack down on the lads from across the sea who go sour on the government
after ducking into the safety zone.

Some of the players, alumni, have said, still hold athletic scholarships
but no new scholarships are being issued and within three years none of the Union football players will have them.

answer me," the Sergeant told her sternly. "Have you any idea at all who might have done this or how it happened?"

The maid apparently needed no pause for thought. She leaned forward and whispered, "Well, I don't know about her." She pointed at me again. "Maybe she helped him."
"Helped who?" the Sergeant
shouted, annoyed at the air of secrecy.

"Mr. MacDonald. He lives on the third floor like I told you." She motioned to the room directly over mine.

"Why do you suspect him?"
"Well, I was in his room this morning to clean up, his bed hadn't been slept in. Besides, they were always together, him and her."

Mrs. Evans interrupted with a sniff. "If you went by that, she could have been murdered by any one of a half a dozen young men.
They was always tagging after her."

Sergeant Long looked at Mrs.
Evans. "What do you know about this?"
"How?" she leaned forward to hear better.

The Sergeant raised his voice
five degrees. "What do you know about this?"
"Plenty!"

"Tell me, and stick to facts this time."
And then to my amazement the woman glanced at me significantly. For a moment the room was quiet. Then the Sergeant cleared his throat and said impatiently,
"Well?"

And never taking her eyes from me, Mrs. Evans said, "Perhaps I'd better speak to you in private, Sergeant."

I stared at her. The Sergeant stared at me. And Sarah stared at all.

Had she lost her wits? How in the world, I wondered, could this woman whom I'd never seen before until this morning, drag me into the murder? Certainly whatever she had to say she could say
in front of everyone.

"Please don't spare my feelings,"
I said icily.

Dumbfounded
THEN I saw Mr. Kimball coming in the doorway and I was relieved. At least he would take an intelligent view on whatever this woman had on her mind.

The Sergeant after I motioned him to a chair and told Mrs. Evans to go on. She leaned forward and in her heavy voice said:
"I was coming up the stairway
last night. It was about midnight.
And I saw a man go into her room.
It was a man who left here a week or two ago very mysteriously. A week after I'd gone up to my apartment I heard them quarreling. Loud, it was, too."

While she was talking she pointed a finger at me until it was all I could do to keep from screaming.
Before I could say a word Sergeant Long swung around. "Out with it," he barked. "I knew there was something funny about you."

I listened to me, Sergeant. Mr.
Kimball interrupted. "Miss Howarth—"
The Sergeant silenced him. "I'll talk to you later Kimball," he said. "We'll see first what this young lady has to say."

I was dumbfounded. It was bad enough to have moved in on sudden death without being accused of the murder itself.

"When did you come here to this house?" the Sergeant asked.
With all the dignity I could muster I said, "Last evening at quarter to six. At half-past six I moved in. And except for Mr. Kimball I've never laid eyes on any of these people before."

I took a cigarette out of my case and lit it. I was so angry my fingers shook.
"How about the man in your apartment?"

I took a long puff on the cigarette and said as calmly as I could, "Last night I couldn't get the door to lock and a little while after I went to bed a man ran into my room.
When I asked who it was he said
'My God!' closed the door and rushed down the hall. I have no idea who he was."

"H'm," the Sergeant said. "Try
the key in the door now."
I got up and tried the key in the door. It locked easily and I never felt so ridiculous in my life. Behind me I could hear Mrs. Evans and Sarah giving suspicious but gratified sniffs.

"You hadn't been drinking, had you?" the Sergeant said in a silky voice.
That was the last straw. I turned on him furiously. But before I could tear him limb from limb Mr.
Kimball spoke up.

"Sergeant," he said, "we have trouble with the locks continually.
This house is very old and none of the keys fit well. I'm certain that Miss Howarth had nothing to do with this."
"Listen to me," the Sergeant said glaring. "I'm the man who's supposed to find out who did this.
You can keep your opinions to yourself until you're asked."
Then the doorbell rang and,
with a glance of sympathy for me,
Mr. Kimball left the room.
"I'll see you later downstairs, Kimball," the Sergeant called after him.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 22.—There wasn't a thing surprising about the formal announcement of C. B. Deane for Congress from the Eighth District. It had been forecast so long ago that his statement of this morning will not even create a mild ripple of interest.
All hands will join in the very fervent hope that his entry doesn't prevent a repeat performance of the contest of 1938 which ran on thru the polls and into the courts to such an extent that mere mention of Deane-Burgin or Burgin-Deane aroused a feeling of nausea.
Governor Clyde R. Hoey is getting along all right at the Durham hospital, but if he keeps on trying to dictate all his mail at one time, thereby taxing his strength too much, Secretary Bob Thompson is going completely nuts. Bob reminds much of a mother hen with one beloved chick to look after.

Oscar Coffin, professor of journalism at the University of North Carolina, carries one of the keenest verbal blades in Christendom and when he thrusts he usually scores a neat "touch." At Chapel Hill Friday during the "News Room Session" of the Press Association clinic, he learned there is a real sting in that riposte.

Near the end of a talk filled with the usual quota of barbed Coffin wit, he illustrated machine political control of Tar Heel precinct meetings by telling how Josephus Daniels missed being named delegate to the State convention because the presiding officer simply ignored the fact that the Honorable Joe had been placed in nomination.

When taxed with the omission, this presider replied: "Hell, he ain't on the list Buck gimme."
After "The Skipper" (as Mr. Coffin is familiarly known to those who, as he expressed it, have "got under foot" in the U. N. C. journalism class) had finished and sat down, Sanford's Bill Fowler, president of the Press Association, rose to introduce a speaker but before doing so paid his respects to Oscar Coffin in words to this general tenor and effect:

"Oscar sure ought to know all about it when he begins to talk about controlling primaries and precincts and elections and such; because it's quite generally agreed that Oscar by himself put a Congressman in Washington in 1938."
All hands remembered the famous deadlock of the Eighth District Congressional committee (of which Coffin is the Orange county member) after the death of nominee Judge Lewis Teague of High Point. The deadlock was broken at long last by selection of a Chapel Hill druggist, Carl Durham of whom few people, except Mr. Coffin, had ever heard.

Green Phantoms To Play Wilson There Tuesday Night

FIVE WINS ON LOCAL'S SCORE

Red Devils of Kinston Only Team to Defeat G. H. S.

With a record of five victories and one defeat, the Daily-tutored quint will journey to Wilson to meet the Cyclones on their home hardwood tomorrow night. The game is called for 7:30. The Baby Phantoms will clash with the Junior Cyclones in a preliminary affair also.

Coch Coach G. H. S. was handed their only defeat of the season by the fast-stepping Red Devils of Kinston on the home floor.

Last year the Cyclones turned the Phantoms under twice. The first score was 33-20, while the latter was 26-22. Wilson is in the class A conference. Greenville was in the same conference two years ago. Then the locals defeated the Cyclones two times, each by a large margin.

Due to Wilson's being in the class A loop and the Phantoms' being in the Eastern loop, the Daily-men will enter their opponents' camp as the slight underdogs.

The locals' probable starting lineup includes Larry James, center; Charles Williams and Marvin Stocks, guards; Burney Warren and George Sakas, forwards.

The Cyclones will probably start Grady Stock, center; Billy Brooks and Cy Young, forwards; T. L. Herne and Kelly at guard posts.

The Baby Phantoms will start Moe Merritt, Pickles, Lee, and Anderson as their preliminary line.

The Junior Phantoms dropped a 6-7 decision to the Junior Pam-Pack of Washington last Friday night.

STATE ALUMNI TO AID SPORTS

Club Formed to Provide Athletic Scholarships

Raleigh, Jan. 21.—Athletes at North Carolina State College are going openly on the scholarship standard for the next five years.

D. W. (Dutch) Seifert, class of 1913 and a resident of Wekiva announced today the formation of the Wolfpack club, which will provide these scholarships for all sports at the college for at least half a decade from contributions made by alumni and other supporters.

Seifert, elected president of the club, said that L. C. Atkinson, class of 1915 and a resident of Greensboro, N. C., was elected vice president and Wade Iron of this city was elected secretary-treasurer at the organization meeting. President Seifert said the 16 other founders of the club are:

J. E. McGee, '12, of Roanoke Rapids, C. O. Seifert, '16, of Henderson, N. C. Roy Cates, '11, of Faison, T. K. Mial, '13, of New York City, L. C. Atkinson, '15, of W. H. Sullivan, '13, E. F. Lewis, '18, and R. W. McCreary, '17, of Greensboro, J. L. Von-Glabbe, '08, J. W. Harrison, '09, Hush H. Murray, Jr., '32, A. G. Floyd, '23, and Charles B. Park, Jr., '18, of Raleigh, C. A. Seifert, '05, of New Bern, C. L. Garner, '07, of Washington, D. C., and Harry P. Grier, Jr., '18, of Statesville.

"Whether we like it or not, subsidizing of athletes is and has been going on for years in every school of our acquaintance," Mr. Seifert declared, and for the past two years we have been endeavoring to and have brought our proselitizing activities out from under the table by publicizing the raising of our funds among our alumni in our several publications.

"We believe that the time has come for athletic scholarships to be placed on a business-like basis, open and above-board from the standpoint. And that is exactly what we are going to do.

"The Wolfpack club intends to create a fund sufficiently large to give our coaches in all sports the athletic material they need and should have in order to meet the powerful teams on our schedules.

"We know that there are many fine men who are unable to obtain their education except through such means as those we are creating, and inasmuch as the majority of the better athletes come from families that cannot afford to send them to college we are confident that the good the Wolfpack club will do alone this line will offset any harm, if there is any, of openly subsidizing athletes."

Mr. Seifert said that the club has adopted a far-reaching campaign that eventually will touch each of State's approximately 20,000 living alumni, who will be asked to participate in the community chest plan—in proportion to one's ability to contribute. The campaign he said, was originated by Mr. Mial, vice president and general sales manager of Johns-Manville, and was given formal approval at the founders' meeting.

Judge Landis Shows He's Serious About Ending Illegal Practices

By TOM SILER
AP Feature Service

Chicago—The big shots of baseball should know by this time that Kenesaw Mountain Landis, 71-year-old commissioner of baseball, isn't fooling.

First he knocked the props from under Detroit's octopus-like farm system, freed 91 players and ordered close to $50,000 paid to 14 other players formerly owned by the American League club.

Then he told the club owners and officials the worst was yet to come if they insisted on continued violation of the rules. He threatened heavy fines and suspension from baseball for illegal manipulation of players, "covering-up" of players, and filing of "fake agreements" in the future.

Baseball law, like most other codes, is too complex for general consumption and digestion, but here briefly is what the farm chains have been doing outside of legal bounds.

Covering up players: A cover-up deal is one in which a club that ostensibly holds a player's contract is merely holding it for some one else. There are many variations of this evil, but the cases generally fall into two classes. One, a "gentleman's agreement," in which nothing official is reduced to writing. Two, drawing up and filing on false transfer papers.

In the "gentleman's agreement" case, one club sends a player to a lower club, allegedly outright, but with a secret understanding that the player does not belong to the lower club, but that the lower club is merely holding him for the higher club. In some instances no transfer papers are filed at all, a violation of the rules in itself.

Officials pretend to comply with the rules in the second example. Transfer agreements are filed, but these agreements are fictitious. The assigned sends through official channels a check for the consideration specified in the transfer agreement, but in the end this check is secretly refunded to the assignor club.

Often two clubs keep a running account of their transactions if they are engaged in numerous transactions. A system of this sort spruces the trap which caught the Detroit club in the recent action by Commissioner Landis. In the Detroit office was found a tabulated list of credits and debits with the Toledo American Association club, records which had never been filed with Landis as required by the rules.

There are dozens of ways of dodging the rules. One handy means is by illegal use of the unconditional release. The club originally holding a player often assigns him to another club, but before sending him hands him an unconditional release and advises the player to report to the new club, where he is assigned.

Unconditional Release
An even trickier means of evading the law is by releasing a player unconditionally without his knowledge. Legally, a player must be given the original copy of his release by the releasing club, which then forwards a carbon copy to minor league offices. But sometimes minor league clubs, as an evasion, have resorted to destroying the original release and filing the carbon with minor league headquarters as if the player had been notified. The unsuspecting player, presuming a routine transfer, reports to his new club, signs his contract, never knowing he was momentarily a free agent. This deprives him of the right as a free agent to bargain for his services on the open market.

The principal behind baseball law is that all deals and transactions should be open and aboveboard and should give to the player an even better chance to show his true ability.

Landis has often expressed his opposition to "chain-of-ownership" baseball in general, but says that as long as such systems are authorized he will insist that they are properly operated and insist upon termination of their abuses and misuse as mere instrumentalities for wholesale "covering-up" of players, denying them their rights and for operation of two or more competing clubs.

THIS MAN'S HOME IS HIS STRONGBOX
Marshall, Tex.—(AP)—When F. Cruse saw a wooden railway shop being razed by fire here several years ago he resolved to build himself a house that would not burn.

Now people from nearby states come to Marshall to see the house Cruse built for himself from mottled "T" scrapped trucks, a discarded vault, concrete and 23 tons of iron pipe.

His new, cozy home weighs 70 tons. It's not only fireproof, but rat-proof, bomb-proof, water-proof, noise-proof, storm-proof and earthquake-proof as well.

A master welder by trade, Cruse welded him home into its present unmovable form in his spare time during the past six years. Mrs. Cruse often donned overalls and helped by holding the heavy pipe in place while her husband welded the frame.

They made the pillars under the back porch from the housing of a model, bomb-proof, water-proof, noise-proof, storm-proof and earthquake-proof as well.

The great diamond fields of South Africa extend eastward from the mouth of the Orange River across the Orange Free State and the Transvaal.

Yes! This Is The Sunny South

Pretty Miss Kathleen Cox was having a swell time ice skating—all things on an Atlanta Lake—but others in the South thought differently about the extended cold wave. Wintry weather menaced multi-million dollar fruit and vegetable crops in the South. Fruit growers battled the cold with smudge pots in Florida, but in many sections of the Southland preventive measures were useless. Nearly 150 persons died, either directly or indirectly, from the cold throughout the entire country.

KIWANIS CLUB 25 YEARS OLD

Celebrates Quarter of Century Achievements

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 22.—Twenty-five years of Kiwanis service to community, state and nation will be celebrated here tonight. On January 21, 1915 the Detroit Kiwanis club, recognized as the first club in Kiwanis International, received its charter from the state of Michigan.

Perhaps a mere quarter of a century isn't a very long span of years, as time goes, but back in 1915 the United States had little or no community club life at all. Back in those days groups didn't go to noontime luncheons every week. "Since 1915 we have had a rapid growth; there are now over 2,500 clubs with over 104,000 members in the United States and Canada," Bennett O. Knudson, of Albert Lea, Minn., International president, declared.

Kiwanis was born just in time to listen in on the first transcontinental telephone call New York in January, 1915, really began talking to San Francisco for the first time even though the telephone had been in existence for 40 years. Into national prominence were coming such newcomers as Jess Willard, Billy Sunday and Al Smith!

Henry Ford was busy getting his millionth automobile off the assembly line, and probably in a hurry, too, for he needed to get his 29-millionth car into service early in 1907.

Everybody was going for the first time to see the film "Birth of a Nation." The U. S. began the new year, 1915, worrying over its neutrality, for World War No. 1 was going into its seventh month. A horrified world realized that modern warfare had introduced bombing of cities from the air! German zeppelins were attacking London.

The motto of this original group was "We Trade," the organization being made up of tradesmen and merchants. By 1919 this slogan was changed to "We Build" to exemplify the constructive and idealistic character of the organization.

By early 1916 some 20 other American cities wanted similar Kiwanis clubs while Canada, at Hamilton, Ontario, got its first club in November, 1916. The organization therefore took on its international growth in 1916, and since then has always restricted its clubs to the U. S. and Canada.

The first convention was held in Cleveland in 1916 with 15 clubs sending delegates and representatives. At that time a constitution was adopted and the official title for the combined clubs was designated as the Kiwanis Club. George P. Hixon, of Rochester, N. Y., became the first president.

A rapid growth in club building started immediately after the close of the world war. In 1918, Kiwanis International had 93 clubs with 10,500 members. In ten years clubs totaled 1,812 and membership was in excess of 103,000.

During the depression years membership decreased, but today it is in excess of the high peak membership of 103,000 in 1921. Today's membership is close to 105,000.

TOUR SUCCESS FOR ETC FIVE

Pirates Return After Friday and Saturday Wins

Coch Bo Farley and his Pirates returned to East Carolina Teachers College Sunday afternoon with two more victories under their shirts, having turned back the United States Naval Base Friday night and William and Mary (Norfolk division), on Saturday night.

These triumphs trailed a pair of successive losses at the hands of the Langley Field "Flying Aces" and the Newport News Apprentices in a four-day series with Virginia teams.

Friday night's game with the Naval Base produced a 64-57 verdict for the Teachers, who were out in front 27-23 at intermission. Don Brock piled up 24 points, George Lautares, 18 points and Bill Shelton 14 points.

William and Mary lost to the Teachers by a 62-36 count. The Pirates got off to a flying start and held a 32-12 lead at the half. Brock led the scoring with 20 points. Lautares was next highest with 18 points.

Donald Brock was the highest scorer for all the games combined, having scored 86 points; Bill Shelton racked up 52 points in all four games and George Lautares scored 36 points in the last two encounters.

The Pirates will remain dormant as far as actual playing goes until Friday night at 8 o'clock, when they clash with the Portsmouth "Y" team at the local court.

Farley's boys appeared to be a little tired from the Virginia grind, but should be up to par when they confront the strong team from Portsmouth.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By HUBBARD KEAVY
(Battling for Robbin Coons—on vacation.)

Hollywood—"Of Mice and Men." Screenplay by Eugene Solow from the novel by John Steinbeck. Directed by Lewis Milestone. Cast: Lon Chaney, Jr., Burgess Meredith, Betty Field, Roman Bohnen, Bob Steele, Charles Bickford, Granville Bates, Oscar O'Shea, Leigh Whipper.

The comment of the man who made this picture, in reply to many well-wishers on the night of its opening here, should be significant to a great many moviegoers. Said Hal Roach, a former truck driver, by the way:

"I believe the story is just as effective without the profanity of the book and the play."

And it is. It again proves that life can be "mirrored" without filth and vulgarity and profanity, a set of devices used by some of the lazy modern writers. And further, that movie fellows like Solow and Milestone are about 98 per cent more ingenious than fellows like "say, Steinbeck."

As the title suggests, this is a story of frustration. Lennie is frustrated and so are George and Candy and Mae. But audiences won't be because this is so vigorous and its characterizations so real that they will sit on the edges of their seats, trying to find words so poor Lennie can express himself, hoping for George, crying with Candy and, probably, feeling sorry for Mae.

It is direct and to the point, this picture, one of the few which never deviates from its objective. It sets a course toward tragedy and defeat in the opening 10 feet and there is no extraneous action which is not entirely pertinent to the inevitable dis-

Saved By A Knife

In speaking of the cast, one doesn't know exactly where to begin. Young Chaney, as Lennie, was only a name, overshadowed by his late father's superior talents, until now. He has become somebody by virtue of this performance. Meredith, perhaps the sole member of the cast who "mugged" (and he should know better) was ideally cast as the big guy's keeper.

Miss Field's Mae is Steinbeck's Mae, or better, Bohnen, giving the same performance in a less well-balanced film, would have walked off with all the honors. The others also are excellent.

It is the kind of picture that impresses Hollywood. It certainly will get some consideration when the Academy awards are discussed.

"The Sidewalks of London." By Clemence Dane. Directed by Tim Whelan. Cast includes Charles Laughton, Vivien Leigh, Rex Harrison, Larry Adler, Tyrone Guthrie.

This is a fascinating bit of moviemania, mainly because it contains Vivien Leigh before she was Scarlett O'Hara and Charles Laughton, resting some on his laurels before plunging into the arduous and often absurd melodramatics of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Imagine Scarlett as Liberty, a pyrotechnic little waif of London town, who became a great musical comedy star. Imagine Ruggles of Red Gap as a ragged busker (street singer) who helped her on her way and returned to bumdom. I never could, but there are moments in the picture when it's not such bad fun trying.

cason over 1938-39 is likely to be greater than appeared probable in early November. The number of cattle fed this season will be larger than a year earlier in both the corn belt and the western states. The increase in the number of lambs fed in the corn belt probably will be greater than was expected a month ago, and the decrease in lamb feedings in the western states will be smaller. Hog marketings in 1940 will be considerably larger than in 1939. Foreign demand for hog products in 1940 probably will be stronger than in 1939, but no large increase in exports of pork and lard as a result of the European war is expected in the next few months.
